NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

VOL. 58—No. 27. "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which is Good." WHOLE No. 2890.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JULY 6, 1911.

CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.
Office, No. 512 Camp St.

PREACHERS OF CHRIST.

The preachers of Christ are not all in the pulpit. Those early disciples of whom it is recorded that "they, being scattered abroad, went everywhere preaching the Word," had neither church nor pulpit—yet their preaching was effective. The idea that a man must enter the pulpit in order to preach accords neither with reason nor facts. Most of our preachers to-day have no pulpits, and their congregations seldom number more than half a dozen, yet their sermons are sure of a hearing. Whether they preach Christ or the devil, there will be someone who will not forget the message.

The everyday life of man is a seed-time from early childhood to extreme old age, and the harvest will never end. Our deeds, our words, our very looks, are seeds which seem to possess marvelous powers of reproduction. The smile of the child is the smile of the grandfather of long ago; the incorruptible honesty of the boy is the honesty of a dozen generations. Like begets like. Whether it be prayer or oath, gospel hymn or ribald song, kindly deed or deed of darkness, love or hate, purity or impurity, each breeds true if it breeds at all.

This ought to invest "the daily round, the common task" with an importance that is not always assigned to it. It is true that the eternities converge about even a child, and there is no man or woman who is not directly influencing the ages to come either for good or ill. The cobbler who sews patches on well is teaching the neighborhood the value of good work. The hot-tempered individual who gives loose rein to tongue or fist is doing his part to make bad temper eternal. The man who deals unjustly is placing to his seal that injustice is right. The preachers of unrighteousness are alive and numerous. It is true that few of us to-day can say with Elijah, "Baal's prophets are four hundred men, and I, even, even I alone, am a prophet of the Lord," and yet it is true enough that the preachers of unrighteousness are neither few nor silent, and the preachers of righteousness must not remain quiet.

And it is well to remember that the good is neither weak nor short-lived. The idea that evil weeds alone can hold their own in the struggle for existence finds no countenance in nature. The flowers have survived the rush of the centuries, the grasses and grains, the fruit-bearing and food-producing trees, the useful animals and birds are just as full of vitality as those which seem to us less useful. The good is not weak. "Truth is mighty." So runs the old proverb, and the ages are demonstrating its truth to an unbelieving world. The world may crucify its Christ, but it cannot kill Him. There is no grave deep enough, and no human or demon band strong enough, to prevent the resurrection of the world's Best.

The Christian woman whose pure soul finds fitting utterance in sweet lullaby over her infant boy is not writing upon the sand. That lullaby shall charm the ear of childhood for a thousand years. The man who does nothing more than let his Christianity find expression in transparent honesty of life, is to that extent at least, preparing the way of the Lord for the generations to come. The life whose Christlike love lightens every life which comes within its range will kindle into being in other hearts that same light-giving and life-giving love.

Are we preachers of Christ? Upon our heads, it may be, no ministerial hands have been laid in solemn setting apart to the work of the ministry, but we have heard the voice of the Christ, and we have left His transforming power. Are not we aiso set apart for the work of our Lord? We have no pulpit but a bookkeeper's desk, a blacksmith's anvil, a plow, or a sewing machine, yet we are in deed and truth anointed to preach the gospel of our Lord. Our lives may be vocal with the gospel of righteousness, mercy and love, or they may speak a message of injustice, greed and unadulterated selfishness. The choice lies with us. The church and the world want preachers of Christ.—The Christian Guardian.

TIES THAT BIND.

Constant attendance upon the services of the sanctuary binds the hearts of men to the best things as with chains of gold. We do not want fetters to bind us to evil things. We do not wish to be bound to unjust and tyrannical masters. But we greatly need to he bound to the best things, the best thoughts, the best ideals, the hest principles, the best life. We covet fetters which will hold us close to these things. Such fetters are forged in the house of God.

Memory is a tie that binds. The memory of early days when father and mother and all the children took sweet counsel as they journeyed to the house of God together, when they sat together in the same pew, listened to the same message of life, sang together the same songs of praise, bowed together at the mercy seat and received the holy communion together, has saved many a soul in the hour of sore temptation, and has brought back many a wanderer to the fold again.

Some say their recollections of the church and the Sabbath are not pleasant nor edifying. They tell us that their parents led them to the house of God so often when they were children, that they got a surfeit of religion and have never cared to go to church since. It is possible that some children have been required to keep the Sabbath, to go to church and read the Bible in a way that did more harm than good. But this reason which some give for their neglect of the sanctuary is, in most cases, a poor excuse. It is often a cowardly and unmanly attempt to shift the responsibility for their delinquency to the shoulders of their dead parents. There may be a few who are not profited by the memory of early religious impressions and privileges, hut thousands can tell a better story.

Habit is another tie that binds. It is easy to form a bad habit by repeating an evil act many times. In the same way a good habit may be created. As one may form a habit of drinking strong drink by drinking every day for a long period until he cannot get away from it, as one may form a habit of going to the saloon by going every day for years, until he cannot stay away, so one may form a habit of going to church, of reading the Bible, of keeping the Sabbath holy. Such habits will hind the soul to things high and noble.

Affection is another tie. We love those things from which we have received benefit. Many love the house of the Lord for this reason among others. "How amiable are thy tabernacles, oh Lord of hosts! My soul longeth, yea, even fainteth for the courts of the Lord. I have loved the habitation of thy house, the place where thine honor dwelleth." It is easy to follow the lead of our affections. Happy is the man who in early life learned to love the church, the Bible, the Sabbath, the people of God, the songs of Zion and the Lord of the Sabbath and the sanctuary. These affections will bind his soul to the things which are noble. These are fetters which no man need fear. Some fetters every brave man will spurn; but recollections of home, of the church, habits of doing good and affection for the things that endure and elevate, are fetters in which our souls take great delight.—New York Christian Advocate.

ARE WE STUMBLING BLOCKS?

Are we living for to-day or for eternity? If all life ended with the day, how much more carefully we would live it in every detail. But, friends, how much more carefully we should live for eternity! What our condition may be there, it seems to me should impress every follower of Christ to the extent that we would examine ourselves daily and consider every act and thought, how it may reflect and what injury we may be doing some one or number of our acquaintances. Our life bears with it great responsibilities. Each word, each act, each thought has shut up in it consequences which we never can estimate. Any act that may seem right to us, but appears wrong to others, puts our influence over them on the side of sin.

We have a Friend who knows us better than we know ourselves, loves us better than we love ourselves, helps us when we cannot help ourselves, forgives us when we cannot forgive ourselves—and in the midst of our deepest despair breathes into our hearts the breath of a new and divine hope. But he said: "It is better for him that a millstone was hanged around his neck, and he be cast into the midst of the sea than to offend one of these little ones." That is a strong statement from a powerful God. one who keeps his word, "in whom is no variableness. neither shadow of turning."

A little word or deed may put a brother on the way to happiness and heaven—or, on the other hand, send him whirling through the rapids of sin, where he shall be dashed to pieces on its sunken rocks, only to come out into eternity broken in heart, shattered in character, ruined in hope.

Now, let us endeavor to so live that our lives, instead of being "stumbling blocks," will be guiding stars to light men on their way to the hall of divine favor, where there is safety and security for all who continue "serving God in spirit and in truth."—Helen M. Darter, in Christian Leader and Way.

Be steadfast in prayer, if you would be calm in affliction. Start your race from the throne of God itself, if you would run well and win the race.—Joseph Parker.

Christian Advocate.

Published for the Louisiana, Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

DIRECTIONS:

Correspondents will please direct all communications intended for the Editor to 512 Camp St., New Orleans, La. Communications intended for the Business Department should be addressed to the Manager of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if this date is not moved forward after three weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise.

CENTENARY COLLEGE.

By Dr. John T. Sawyer.

It might be of interest to the readers of the Advocate to state somewhat in regard to old Centenary. Among the names found on the long roll of Centenary students there was once the name of Jefferson Davis, first and only president of our Southern Republic, a man of commanding abilities, highest character, loftiest patriotism, unswerving fidelity and spotless record; the name of Judah P. Benjamin, U. S. Senator, and after in the cabinet of Davis, a man the strength and fiber of whose intellect put him easily in the forefront, a master of civil and common law, none being his superior at the bar of Louisiana or at the English bar; the name of the silver-tongued E. John Ellis, who on the hustings, in the courts or the national legislative halls, was ever the eloquent and persuasive orator, whose flowing periods entranced his fellowmen; and so with these many others, who have in the pulpit or elsewhere made themselves felt for the public weal and for the good of the race, are numbered among the former students of Centenary College. We may mention also Judge Charles Parlange, the knightly Creole gentleman, known to all as the very soul of honor and above reproach; Dr. C. G. Andrews, long the president, esteemed and loved; and Dr. C. W. Carter, still with us, who ranks among the first pulpit orators of the Church. These are only a few of the illustrious ones who were in attendance at the old college during her long existence.

We cannot take the space to tell of the splendid men, such as Bishops Keener and Parker, Prof. W. H. N. Magruder, Capt. John A. Pharr, and many more, who as trustees have guided the Jackson institution; nor of those others who have been her presidents and professors. We just sum it all up in the statement that the new Centenary at Shreveport will have to do most valiantly to surpass the illustrious history of the old Centenary at Jackson.

We are glad to know, however, that the success attained so far at Shreveport under the able presidency of Dr. Felix R. Hill gives bright hope for the future growth and glory of our Louisiana Methodist College. At their last meeting, as the Advocate editor states, "the trustees were much pleased with the work of the session, and it was decided to undertake to raise $50,000 for new buildings which are urgently needed." This was wise action and no doubt the trustees will be easily able to raise that amount and over. There is quite sure to be a large increase in attendance of students next session, and provision must be made for their coming; and, as Ashley W. Warlick stated in his excellent article in a late Advocate, "many things must be added to the present equipment." There has not yet appeared for Centenary any man like Millsaps for the Jackson, Miss., College, or Duke for Trinity in North Carolina. The endowments of those two institutions have grown to large proportions through the liberal and frequent donations of these two, added to the smaller amounts given by the many.

Dr. Hill and the trustees will look after the fifty thousand dollars; but if the presiding elders and pastors would just determine that each charge in the Conference should secure the attendance of at least one new student for next session, that would also be of great help to Centenary. The last Minutes show that there are 137 pastoral charges in the Louisiana Conference; and that number, in addition to those already attending, would likely run the student body up to 250 or more. By the presiding elder and preacher-in-charge acting together, backed by the church officials, more than one boy might be secured from some charges. If our presiding elders and pastors should go earnestly to work in the way suggested, we feel sure that our Methodist people would be awakened to a deeper interest in Centenary.

There is need for our membership—in all about 36,000—to take into their thoughts and hearts both Centenary and Mansfield, for they are our very own. Those who have an abundance and those who have little, should alike give to the full measure of ability; and the preachers and officials and any others who will help should seek out and direct our boys and girls to our Conference colleges. The presidents and faculties of both institutions are first-class, and Louisiana Methodists should see that they are heartily endorsed and steadily backed in the good work they are doing.

"CONFESSION DAY IN THE SUNDAY SCHOOL."

Mr. A. P. Holt, Superintendent of the Sunday School at Crowley, La.

Nothing adds more to the interest in and efficiency of the Sunday School than the observance of special days. "Mothers' Day" appeals to every one; "Children's Day" enthuses the children and enlists the co-operation of the fathers and mothers; "Rally Day" brings in the absentees and the indifferent ones; "Promotion Day" is essential to the graded Sunday School; Christmas, Thanksgiving and Easter programs may be rendered with profit; but the most important day of all is "Confession or Decision Day," for this is the day of reaping, of definite confession, of solemn decision for Christ.

Owing to its importance "Confession Day" should be definitely, wisely and prayerfully planned, for no haphazard method will succeed. Its beginning should be in the Teachers' Council, where all important work of the Sunday School should be inaugurated. At least two months in advance let it begin there in earnest prayer and careful planning. Then take a church census of the Sunday School according to classes by having each teacher make a list showing those of her class who are church members and those who are not, and giving a copy of this list to the superintendent. Those who are not members of the church will serve as a prayer list for teachers and officers and consecrated pupils. Let the teaching be carefully and prayerfully, though quietly, directed towards a definite confession of Christ. There should be no undue emotion or excitement, but the aim should be to provoke thought and prayer. A Sunday or two in advance, in a short, quiet, pointed talk, announce to the pupils the date of Confession Day and its meaning and purpose. Early the week before, say Friday, have a prayer meeting of officers and teachers, and here seek anew to lay upon the hearts of all the importance of the day and the responsibility of the officers and teachers. They have been sowing; now let them strive to reap a full harvest.

A written reminder is always effectual, so let the superintendent early in the week write some such letters as this to all the teachers:

"Next Sunday will be Decision or Confession Day in our Sunday School. The end and aim of all Sunday School work is to lead the members of the school to a saving knowledge of Christ. This is, therefore, the most important service of the year. Hence, we would enlist your prayers and earnest personal efforts for a rich harvest of souls on next Sunday. Direct your efforts particularly to the unsaved of your class. If they are all saved, pray for the other classes and for a deepening of the spiritual life of your own class. To this end, please have your class meet with you in a prayer circle before Sunday—on Saturday, if possible. Direct your teaching on next Sunday to these definite ends, and look to the Master for results."

Let the classes meet in these suggested prayer circles, and let the teacher direct them in a spirit of earnest supplication.

On Sunday the prayers, the songs and the lesson should all lead to the subject of confession. Let this be the most solemn, reverent and quiet service of the year. Omit, as much as possible, the ordinary routine of announcements, etc., and let all be in an attitude to hear the "Still Small Voice." After the lesson is taught, let the pastor in the same spirit quietly and fervently discuss the necessity and importance of public confession and open the doors of the church.

In this way it is hoped that the children will unite with the Church in a thoughtful and earnest spirit. This should be followed up by both teachers and pastor, remembering that this is but the beginning of the Christian life and that much help is needed, especially in the early days.

The reception into the Church can, with profit, be postponed for several weeks, while the applicants for church membership are being instructed as a class in the doctrine and polity of the Church and the meaning of the step they are taking—all in a manner suited to the child-mind. So that they might understand that they are joining the Church, they should be received in during the church service and not at Sunday School.

Let the pastor visit each applicant in the home to encourage, to teach and to lead the child; and at the same time to enlist the co-operation of the parents and impress upon them their duty and responsibility in the matter.

By some such definite and careful preparation as this the children will not only join the church, but will enter into this new and larger relationship with some conception of its meaning and with an appreciation of the seriousness, responsibility and dignity of church membership.

All this will require time, effort and thought, but will yield ample returns in a consecrated childhood.

DOCTOR JOHN WRIGHT.

The subject of this notice was born in Greensborough, Ala., March 25, 1833, and professed religion and joined the Methodist Church when 16 years old. He left us for his heavenly home April 26, at 10:30 o'clock p. m. He was 78 years and 1 month of age.

I write this as a tribute to one of earth's noblemen, and one of the best friends to come into my life.

The sad lament of earth over her fallen heroes and lovers seems justified. The loss from our ranks of the pure and good, leaves us in the gloom of earth's sadness and sorrow! The closer our relation to noble natures, those who are linked with our own lives and doctrines, the greater our loss. Yes, the loss is felt to the center depths of the soul—the point where the heart breaks. The world has no balm for such a woe. The heavens alone can still the throb of breaking hearts.

The town of Sardis, Miss., his home town, and the entire country where he was known and loved, to-day mourn the loss of that courtly, princely man, the beloved physician, Dr. John Wright.

For more than fifty years, he was personally identified with and interested in all that made for the welfare and peace of that goodly town and its people. He loved his people with a deep, constant love, and never thought of self when the interest of others demanded his time and service. He would not spare himself in sickness or distress, on the march, in camp, on the field of battle. Everywhere that duty called, he was ready to go, to do, and to die if need be, for others. No wonder that with the loving wife and noble, manly son, they mingle their tears and griefs for their hero and lover. "It is hard for us to make him dead."

His long and faithful services in ministering to the health, comfort and sometimes life, of so many of its people, the courteous gentleman, the faithful friend, the wise counselor, the patriot citizen, the capable, sympathetic, beloved physician, all this and more made him a real factor in the equation of that communityship; in very truth, there was a felt kinship, so close had he grown to them in all these years.

He was not simply of us—he was ours!—so close as that. No wonder they loved him, for his life was vicarious; he lived and toiled for them and would have died for them. It is fitting that these should join his own loved home circle in a kindred sorrow, born of the severed ties of kindred interests. The voice of their grief will be heard around the fireside and in all holy places, as a fond and loving people mourn the loss of their hero and lover.

From his boyhood days, the halcyon days of life, the time for visions and ideals, young Wright felt and obeyed the divine impulse to do and to be something in this world of which he was a part. He was quick to interpret nature in her intent, for nature, under the guidance of a beneficent Providence, writes the true signature of nobility in living characters "big with destiny" for him who aspires to gain the heights and become

"On fortune's crowning slope,
The pillar of a people's hope,
The center of the world's desire."

Our young friend acted wisely in following the natural bent of his mind so early in life. He applied himself diligently to the study of medicine, and having completed this part of his equipment with honorable distinction, he at once entered upon his career as an active, painstaking, laborious physician. The young doctor soon took high rank in his profession, and by his skill and unfailing courtesy, he won to himself the respect and confidence of his professional brethren, and soon began to number among his patrons many of the most influential citizens of the country. His success was now assured.

He could now see that no mistake was in evidence in the choice he had made in early life, to make a success in the medical world. Nature intended John Wright to be a great and good doctor, and he worked out the model nature gave him to a fine finish, and thereby "purchased to himself a good degree." No vain regrets over a misspent or misapplied life ever fell from his lips. The world needed him; God called him, he answered the call and the result is before us—he succeeded.

Dr. Wright had a superb equipment for his life's work, "my calling" as he termed it. A fine physique, strong and active, a pleasing manner, a smile that had the cheer of new wine, a voice soft and tender to a sufferer's ear, an unfailing sympathy, intelligent and resourceful—his presence inspired hope in the bosom of his patients, and the attendant nurse caught the contagion of his example, and with new faith and hope, both nurse and patient would resolve to do and live.

He was not bookish in the bad sense of that word. He did not ramble and browse in the rich fields of literature. He thought, he analyzed. Substance, not form, was the object of his study of questions. Dr. Wright did not despise the books, but the master workmen were his text books, and from these he took only what would be useful in his work. He held in his head the stuff out of which good books are made, brains.

Our friend was quick to detect the specious, the false, in the discussion of questions. No glittering generalities, or ex parte statement of interested advocate, was ever permitted to obscure an issue when Dr. Wright's mental vision swept the field of investigation.

How quickly would he brush the sophistry aside, and then in his own laconic way, lead on to the "truth deep as the center," and with an unfailing courtesy and tender voice, while healed the smart of defeat, say: "Now that is the point, don't you see?"

It was in the crises of life that the true, heroic soul of our ascended friend and brother stood out in bold relief. In the awful carnage of battle, heedless of the death dealing missiles flying around him, he would move his hospital corps close to the line of deadly conflict, so as to be ready for instant relief to his wounded men.

When some general officer remonstrated: "Doctor, you are in danger, so close to the line of battle." "Yes sir, but the boys out there are in danger, too. I must help them when they need me."

No wonder that the old gallant Fifteenth Mississippi Regiment loved and all but idolized their brave and loyal surgeon!

His loyalty, his constancy to duty, to God, home and friends, were distinguishing characteristics of the man at all times and under all circumstances. He was ever true as the magnetic needle to its pole. No Nemesis, fast and furious, ever had occasion to lash his conscience for moral lapses.

Dr. Wright was not only a nobleman—he was, in the best sense, a gentleman, a Christian gentleman, of the old South. He was a creation, or an evolution of certain hereditary environments, plus the grace of God. I make bold to say here and now that in my opinion, the great God never made a finer mold in which to cast the highest type of man than that splendid regime of the old South. Pity that vandal hands should mar the beauty of creation's social masterpiece! True to the truth, and loyal to the best traditions and customs of his fathers, Dr. John Wright grew steadily on towards life's high ideals.

"The elements did so mix in him, that all the world might say this was a man."

How we loved him! And how sadly we miss him! The home, the church, the lodge, the town, the rich and the poor, white and black—all alike will miss him, for all had a place in his great big heart. No member of the Masonic order in his home town and country will be more deeply mourned than our beloved friend, for he was among them one of the truest, brightest, best. Truly, it is a lodge of sorrow to-day and they will hold his memory sacred.

As a Christian, he wore no phylacteries, but had an experience. He was not afflicted with religious cant and hypocrisy, but the dicta of his Lord was the law of life to him. A Wesleyan Methodist of the old times, he could ill brook the superficial, formal worship of God in the Methodist Church. "We are not a ritual people. We worship God in spirit and in truth," he would often say. While a Methodist, he never put a sacrament or ordinance as a bar to his communion with any true soul. He was as broad in his sympathies as is the gospel in its reach for man.

Dr. Wright's home life was ideal. His love and devotion for wife and only child was strong, tender, Christian.

His marriage in early life to that elect lady, Miss Mary B. Walton, was the one event in his life to which he lovingly turned in his last day and called it, "the big event of my life." "I owe more to Bernice,"—the name he preferred to call his wife—"than to all the world besides, for what I am and everything." That sad sufferer in her home counts the hours but slow that keeps her apart from her knightly lover.

"Every one is kind and loving to me, but there is a vacancy that can't be filled"—"lonely"—these words in part tell the story of her woe, the sorrow and desolation of a heart in its broken home! We cannot write of it more. 'Tis a picture too sad for our pen.

I would write of my friend as I knew him in his home more than forty years ago. How often have I seen him in gown and slippers, sitting by his fireside enjoying the fragrance of a fine Havana, after a long night of toil and vigil, maybe in some lowly cabin on a mission of mercy bent.

In answer to my knock at his door, "come in preacher, I am just in from a hard, tough trip, all night, and I tell you I enjoy this thing. Here I enjoy life! Bernice lets one do just as I please. This is the best place in the world for me."

And it was. The blessings of home awaited him. The genial warmth from the grate of burning coals but faintly typed the glow and warmth of those "two hearts, that beat as one." Is it too fond an enthusiasm to feel that those tender, loving heart-beats made that room home? The union of these lovers finds a fit expression in the words:

"Like as when two dewdrops,
On the same petal shaken
By the wind, slip at once
All fragrant into one."

Dr. Wright's conception of the domestic and social virtues was of one who wore the badge of unsullied purity and whose honor spurned the slightest dalliance with temptation. To him, purity of heart and life was paramount to everything else, and he made it his motto to guide him till the visions of earth should close in the bolder, richer glory of the eternal world. And when his ascension day came, the promised vision to "the pure in heart" threw its kindling splendors amid the falling glories of earth, and collecting the rays of light, as in a lens, he saw his God.

Was he not worthy of such a vision? Had he not climbed the pure, unclouded heights, where the vision of light and life and glory greets the seer? Beloved, good night, till the dawn of the cloudless day! We'll meet you then and there. T. W. DYE.

THE NEW TABERNACLE.

(In appreciation of the new tabernacle at Seashore Camp Grounds.)

Thou art here! A structure of great strength and durability; a thing of beauty, a building octagonal, supported by iron bars. Thy beautiful green with white trimmings is soft and pleasant to the eye. Thy ceiling (finished in hard oil) will prove a blessing to the speaker and hearer in acoustic power. From thy pulpit between the two towers, may the gospel pure and simple, able to make men wise unto salvation, ever be proclaimed.

Our dear old bell, which has called us to service and to prayer so many, many times, hangs in one of the towers, thus linking the old with the new.

Mr. Burk, thy builder, beautiful edifice, has been a regular attendant at Sunday school and church services here on sweet Sabbath days, while directing the saw and hammer in thy construction on weekdays.

We are so thankful and appreciative for our splendid, new tabernacle.

And now we are planning, working and praying for a mighty baptism of the Holy Spirit upon the encampment and surrounding country, that many precious souls for whom Christ died may be saved. We ask the prayers of all Christians in our behalf.

MRS. F. G. HOCUTT.

Biloxi, Miss., June 25, 1911.

MRS. MARY A. SLOANE.

Mrs. Mary Almeda Sloane (nee Hayes) was born near Crowley, La., January 16, 1869, many years before Crowley came into existence. She was reared under disadvantages, and but for the life and training of her parents, brother and sister, Isaac Hayes, of precious memory, earth would have been deprived of her beautiful life. While but a child she joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, under the preaching of Rev. R. M. Blocker, and lived a consistent member of the same through life. On December 30, 1886, she married Mr. John G. Sloane. Of this union seven children were born, two of whom died in infancy; Dola, Robert, Byron, Joseph and Nolly, survive her, and belong to their mother's Church. Although possessing a good home in Crowley, La., and enjoying the convenience and comforts of life when she knew her husband was called to the itinerant ministry, she cheerfully left all for the gospel, which has blessed so many lives by the co-operative efforts of herself and husband, the Rev. John G. Sloane, a much loved member of our Louisiana Conference. Sister Sloane suffered much the latter part of her life. She died from the effects of an operation in the T. E. Schumpert Memorial Sanitarium of Shreveport, La., June 13, and was buried the following day in the beautiful Greenwood Cemetery, in the presence of many friends. Dr. G. E. Cameron and the writer conducted the funeral services. I am glad that it has been my lot to share the friendship of this consecrated woman. May the Lord comfort the bereaved husband and children!

W. J. PORTER.

WHITWORTH COLLEGE AND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

Session 1910-1911, 250 Students; Twenty Teachers and Officers. Thorough instruction under Christian influences. Courses leading to degrees of B. L. and A. B. Noted teachers in Piano, Voice, Elocution and Art. Forty thousand dollars will be expended in improvements within the next eighteen months.

NEXT SESSION BEGINS SEPT. 14, 1911.

Send for Catalogue. Address

WHITWORTH COLLEGE,

Brookhaven, Miss.

Church News

Princeton University has conferred the degree of LL.D. upon that widely known Methodist layman, John R. Mott.

* * *

The Northwestern University at Evanston, Illinois, is said to have awarded 651 diplomas at its recent Commencement.

* * *

The Western Christian Advocate, of Cincinnati, is authority for the statement that there are more Methodists in Los Angeles than there are Protestants in San Francisco.

* * *

Bishop James Atkins attended the silver anniversary of the wedding of President and Mrs. Taft. Bishop Murrah also was an invited guest, but found it inconvenient to be present.

* * *

President Schurman, of Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., has invited Bishop Anderson, of the M. E. Church, to conduct religious exercises in the chapel of that institution from October 1 to 7.

* * *

Dr. S. A. Steel, than whom there is no more brilliant preacher in American Methodism, recently delivered an eloquent and impressive series of sermons at Marietta, Ga. Dr. Steel's family are spending the summer at Union City, Tenn.

* * *

Prof. J. J. Tigert will not accept the presidency of Western College at Artesia, New Mexico, as was recently announced in the papers, but instead has accepted the professorship of Philosophy and Associated Subjects in the University of Kentucky.

* * *

The Southwestern University, at Georgetown, Texas, has conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws on Bishop E. D. Mouzon, and the degree of Doctor of Divinity on Rev. J. E. Harrison, President of San Antonio Female College. Distinctions well merited are these.

* * *

Bishop J. H. McCoy recently held a District Conference in Kentucky and also attended the annual meeting of the Kentucky Conference Epworth Leaguers. The Central Christian Advocate speaks in high terms of the service which he rendered at these two gatherings.

* * *

Bishop Denny has recently been doing some field work in Oklahoma in the way of dedicating churches and holding District Conferences. The Methodists of Richmond, Va., are reported to be greatly pleased by the news that this distinguished chief pastor will likely make his home among them.

* * *

Dr. A. M. Hughlett, formerly pastor of the First Methodist Church of Jackson, Tenn., but now stationed in Atlanta, Ga., has declined the presidency of the Memphis Conference Female Institute, which was recently tendered him. He is the third man in succession to refuse to become the head of this historic college.

* * *

Bishop Wilson of the Methodist Episcopal Church, who in company with Bishop Hartzell, has been visiting the African missions of that denomination, was reported ill at Beira, Portugese East Africa, on June 23; but a later dispatch announced that he had recovereved sufficiently to resume his journey. Mrs. Wilson is in Europe awaiting the arrival of her husband.

* * *

Rev. W. P. Quillian has been elected president of the Missionary Training School at Nashville, in place of the Rev. J. E. McCulloch, who recently resigned. Mr. Quillian was for several years a member of the South Georgia Conference, but for the past four years has been working in Mexico. He is considered well equipped for the position to which he has been chosen.

* * *

It is thought that the death of Pope Pius X is not far off, and that the Italian families of place and influence at Rome favor the election of Cardinal Rampolla to succeed him. Rampolla had a strong following when Pius was chosen to the papacy, but is said to have been defeated through the influence of Austria and Germany. He will be sixty-eight years old on August 17.

* * *

The first election of delegates to the next General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church was held at Rome, Italy, on May 2. Dr. Walling Clark, superintendent of the Rome District, was chosen clerical delegate, and Miss Italia Garibaldi, principal of the Girls' Home School of that city, was chosen lay delegate. Miss Garibaldi is a granddaughter of the famous Italian patriot whose name she bears.

* * *

In a volume entitled, "General Booth and the Salvation Army," recently issued in England by the editor-in-chief of the Army's periodical literature, the strength of that organization in the various nations is said to be as follows: "Great Britain and Ireland, 115,000; France and Switzerland, 6,000; Germany, 5,000; Holland and Belgium, 6,000; Denmark, 2,500; Sweden, 10,000; Italy and Spain, 200; Austria, 50; South Africa, 2,500; Australasia, 30,000; Canada, 20,000; United States, 30,000; India, 20,000; Japan, 1,500; Java, 500; Jamaica, South America, and other parts, 5,000; total 254,250."

* * *

Six thousand delegates attended the Baptist World Alliance Convention lately held in Philadelphia. Of these 450 were from Europe, including nearly a hundred from Russia and the Balkan States, some of whom have been made to serve prison terms for their Protestant faith. The South was well represented. Dr. Robert S. McArthur, of New York, said to be perhaps the ablest Baptist minister in the United States, was chosen president of the body to succeed Dr. John Clifford of England. Among other things done was the launching of a movement to establish a Theological School under Baptist control in Russia, to be located probably either at Moscow or St. Petersburg. Seventy thousand dollars was subscribed for this purpose during the Convention, and since its adjournment the amount has been increased to $100,000. Greeting from those arranging for the Ecumenical Methodist Conference was received, and a deputation was named to bear a fraternal message to that great assembly when it convenes in Toronto next October.

OUR ROLL OF HONOR.

We add two charges to our "Honor Roll" this week—Webb, Miss., and Ebenezer, Miss. It now stands as follows:

Mansfield, La., Rev. A. W. Turner, pastor.
Bogalusa, La., Rev. J. M. Alford, pastor.
Tunica, Miss., Rev. J. W. Honnoll, pastor.
Lumberton, Miss., Rev. T. W. Adams, pastor.
Ruleville, Miss., Rev. O. L. Savage, pastor.
Homewood, Miss., Rev. W. W. Graves, pastor.
Houston, Miss., Rev. R. P. Neblett, pastor.
Seventh Avenue, Meridian, Miss., Rev. J. A. Wells, pastor.
Shaw and Merigold, Miss., Rev. L. A. McKeown, pastor.
Moorehead, Miss., Rev. W. V. Shearer, pastor.
Holly Springs Circuit, Miss., Rev. W. L. Broome, pastor.
Lula and Lyon, Miss., Rev. J. J. Garner, pastor.
Iuka, Miss., Rev. W. L. Graves, pastor.
Utica, Miss., Rev. C. M. Crossly, pastor.
Glen Allan, Miss., Rev. J. H. Ingram, pastor.
Rosedale, Miss., Rev. T. M. Bradley, pastor.
Coahoma, Miss., Rev. H. M. Young, pastor.
Red Banks Circuit, Rev. E. Blizzard, pastor.
Second Church, Columbus, Miss., Rev. W. C. Carlisle, pastor
Gunnison, Miss., Rev. J. J. Brooks, pastor.
Montpelier, Miss., Rev. J. A. Poe, pastor.
Mt. Olive, Miss., Rev. L. F. Alford, pastor.
Carrollton Avenue, New Orleans, Rev. J. G. Snelling, pastor.
Coldwater, Miss., Rev. D. W. Babb, pastor.
Slidell, La., Rev. T. V. Peters, pastor.
Oakvale, Miss., Rev. H. K. McKee, pastor.
Clarksdale, Miss., Rev. J. Tillery Lewis, pastor.
Pearlington and Logtown, Miss., Rev. H. Mellard, pastor.
Bayou Pierre, Miss., Rev. Jasper L. Smith, pastor
Mars Hill, Miss., Rev. Thos. L. Porter, pastor.
Magnolia, Miss., Rev. H. B. Watkins, pastor.
Sidon, Miss., Rev. J. A. Goad, pastor.
Webb, Miss., Rev. W. C. Lester, pastor.
Ebenezer, Miss., Rev. E. C. Sullivan, pastor.

ARCADIA CHURCH DEDICATION.

The dedication of our church at Arcadia on Sunday, June 25, was one of the important events in the history of the religious life of the town. It marked a new epoch in the activities of Methodism here. The dedicatory services were participated in by Bishop W. B. Murrah, D.D. LL.D., Presiding Elder R. W. Tucker, Rev. Charles W. Carter, D.D., Rev. T. J. Upton, and Rev. A. Inman Townsley, the pastor. The Bishop's sermon was one of the weightiest and most profound discourses ever heard here. He chose for his theme the "Parable of the Leaven; or The Growth and Transforming Power of the Gospel of Christ." To attempt to give even an outline of his great sermon would be a greater task than I could perform. It was full of profound historic research, scholarly exegesis and lofty flights of eloquence. For the space of one hour and ten minutes the people literally hung upon his words, and listened with rapt attention. His peroration of the final triumph of the Gospel was full of poetic tenderness and lofty oratory.

One of the most helpful features of the service was the offering taken by Rev. R. W. Tucker, presiding elder. He certainly is an adept in showing people the joy of giving to the Lord. They say he even surpasses a Bishop in this kind of service. Moreover, he is one of the most eloquent preachers in the entire church. A debt of more than $1,100 was raised before the building was dedicated. Most of this was collected by the stewards before the day of dedication.

The building was erected last year during the pastorate of Rev. R. O. Weir. It is well located on a conspicuous corner lot. The architecture is mission style, handsomely furnished with modern pews, heated by furnace in basement, brilliantly lighted with electricity and has twenty-five artistic stained glass windows.

The sermon at the evening service was preached by a former pastor, Rev. Charles W. Carter, D.D. He has long been recognized as one of the greatest pulpit orators in Methodism. The Arcadia people were expecting a great sermon from the Doctor, for their lives had been enriched by his profound deliverances during his two years' pastorate here; but the sermon surpassed any they had ever heard from him. His theme was the "Pre-eminence of Christ." It was a profound, spiritual and scholarly exposition of Paul's Epistle to the Colossians. His utterances on the Atonement was a tonic to the faith, a confirming of the hopes, and a melting of the hearts of all. The congregation gave the closest attention, although the Doctor read every word from manuscript; but he knows how to read as few men do. What an inspiring sight to behold this veteran of the cross proclaiming with the vigor of a youth the everlasting Gospel! What other superannuate among us has all his faculties perfectly active, and, like Moses, his eye not dimmed nor his natural strength abated? When we see and hear Dr. Carter preach, what a lesson we have for our young preachers to follow! His form is as erect as a soldier, his gesture as graceful as a youth, his voice as powerful and as sweet toned as that of a bell. I had rather be his "junior preacher" than to take a full course in some theological seminary.

In addition to Bishop Murrah's great sermon, he delighted and edified with one of his fine talks the Murrah Men's Bible Class, addressed the Sunday school and presented the diplomas to the pupils. The dedication day will long be a most precious memory of a time when the Lord was in his holy temple and when all hearts were silent before him.

A. INMAN TOWNSLEY.

Secular News and Comment

A press dispatch from Kingston states that the papers of Jamaica are discussing the question of the annexation of that country to Canada.

* * *

With simple ceremonies Hon. Hoke Smith was for the second time inaugurated Governor of Georgia on July 1. His election to the United States Senate by the present Legislature is considered probable.

* * *

The two oldest members of the United States Senate are Senator Stephenson, of Wisconsin, who celebrated his 82d birthday on June 18, and Senator Cullom, of Illinois, who will be 82 on the 22d of next November.

* * *

Japan's public debt—largely the result of the war with Russia—is 2,761,685,203 yen, or pretty nearly a billion and a half dollars. Staggering under this enormous burden, it seems scarcely reasonable that her people should desire to do more fighting.

* * *

The recent school census shows that there are in the city of New Orleans 115,332 school children between the ages of six and eighteen—a gain of 10,304 over the 1907 enumeration. Of this school population, 83,755 are white, and 31,577 are colored. The females outnumber the males by 2,114.

* * *

It is stated that the Olympic, the largest ship in the world, carried on her return voyage to Europe a sufficient number of passengers for their fares to foot up the sum of $250,000. While the great vessel was in New York, 16,000 persons paid fifty cents each for the privilege of looking her over, and the $8 000 thus received was added to the seamen's charities.

* * *

The directors of the Panama Exposition have offered a prize of $1,000 for the development of a new rose, to be called the San Diego, which it is their purpose to use in connection with that great celebration. That the flower will be produced, we have little doubt. The law of biogenesis still holds good—men cannot create life; but that they can make it assume somewhat different forms has been abundantly demonstrated by Luther Burbank and others.

* * *

An effort will be made to have the Georgia statutes regulating the practice of law so amended that women may be admitted to the bar. It is said that this movement was brought about by the refusal of Judge R. Pendleton to grant license to Mrs. Minnie Hale, of Talladega, Ala., who had finished at the Atlanta Law School and made application for permission to practice. The Judge affirmed in his decision that the law of the State allows the issuance of such license only to men.

* * *

It has been announced that during the year ending April 30, there were on the Illinois Central Railroad and the lines under its control 193 avoidable and 75 unavoidable accidents, against 232 avoidable and 124 unavoidable ones during the year previous. During the year recently ended there were 10 persons killed and 123 injured, against 16 killed and 509 injured the year before. The property loss from accidents also decreased from $404,431 to 204,024. This is quite a good showing, and indicates that the danger of traveling by railway is diminishing.

* * *

Judge John Gibson, of the Chicago Circuit Court, has declared his purpose to refrain hereafter from performing marriage ceremonies. He gave as his reason for this decision that "marriages belong properly to the church, and that 75 per cent of the divorces of the land come from cases where the ceremony has been performed outside of the sanctity of church walls." Whether these figures are correct, we are unable to say, but they sound to us somewhat extravagant. We fully agree, however, with the sentiment that the most fitting place for a wedding is in a church.

* * *

Mr. Edward Wisner, of New Orleans, recently contributed $2,500 toward the endowment of a chair of Tropical Medicine at Tulane University, and the United Fruit Company has pledged $5,000 a year for the maintenance of such a department until it has become self-sustaining. It is the purpose of those who are behind this movement to raise an endowment fund sufficiently large to bring this course of instruction to a high state of efficiency, and make it a potent force in stamping out contagious and epidemic diseases in the tropical and semi-tropical countries with which New Orleans has close commercial relations.

* * *

From a recent number of the Times-Democrat we extract the following, setting forth some of the difficulties encountered by aerial navigators: "Physical exhaustion is now believed to have much to do with accidents to aviators who fly high. In their investigation of flying sickness, Drs. Cruchet and Moulinier, French physicians, find that aviators are exposed to the same physiological disturbances as mountain climbers, and at the same time are in an exalted state of nervous tension, putting forth physical and mental effort that cannot be relaxed for an instant, and must endure the change of conditions so rapid that the body cannot adjust itself. In the high flights, 7,000 to 10,000 feet is reached in thirty to forty minutes, the descent being made often in five to seven minutes. At 5,000 feet or less, the respiration and heartbeats are noticeably quicker, and there is nausea, headache and buzzing in the ears, and the cold becomes painful. To such symptons is added the overpowering misery of the solitude. The rapid descent gives a peculiar sensation of emptiness, and the face flushes, the eyes smart, the head throbs and aches, and there is overwhelming fatigue, with drowsiness and stupor. The headache, lethargy and disturbance of circulation may last for hours."

* * *

The Illinois Central Railroad, having tried the plan of maintaining hospitals for its employes on the Louisville and Tennessee divisions, has decided to extend the system along all its lines. The workmen who desire to take advantage of these institutions will be expected to contribute 50 cents a month each, and what additional funds may be needed the company will provide. The benefits furnished by this new department will include medical and surgical treatment at the hospital or in the home, medicines, wound dressings, artificial limbs and eyes, spectacles and in the case of death, a burial allowance. Injured passengers will also be cared for. It will, of course, take time to develop and perfect this department, but it is said to be the design of the company to own finally a chain of hospitals that will be fully adequate to all demands. It is stated that the credit for this good work is due Mr. W. L. Clark, the vice president of the road.

* * *

There are said to be entirely too many lawyers in Greater New York, and it is announced that as a result 50 per cent of them are barely making a living. As a remedy for this situation, upon the recommendation of the bar association of the Empire State, it is proposed to lengthen the course of preparation for entrance into the profession to three years, instead of two, for college graduates; and to four years, instead of three, for those who are not graduates. We are disposed to look with favor upon anything that seems to aim at raising the standard of the learned professions, but our enthusiasm for such legislation is considerably abated by the indication that it is designed more to help the lawyers than the people. And this also appears to be true of some of the proposed medical legislaion in some of the states. The good of the general public, and not that of those in any particular calling, is the object which our lawmakers should keep steadily in view.

MRS. ROBERT RANDLE.

Mrs. Pauline Glass Randle, daughter of Dr. Thomas A. Glass and Mrs. Sarah Grigsby Glass, was born in what was then Claiborne Parish, La., fourteen miles north of Minden, December 17, 1849.

In order that she might continue her education without interruption, her father placed her in school in Texas during the Civil War. At the close of this trying period, she entered Minden College, where so many of the young women of North Louisiana received a liberal education, and here she was graduated in 1867.

After her graduation, she engaged in teaching for two years, and on January 6, 1870, was married to Rev. Robert Randle, a young itinerant Methodist preacher, then just beginning his notably useful career in the Louisiana Conference.

She publicly confessed her Savior and became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in August, 1868, after which time she lived a life of heroic and unswerving devotion to her Master until her recent death, sharing all the trials and all the glorious successes that fall to the lot of the family of the Methodist itinerant.

She was the mother of six children, four of whom have grown to mature life, and in their careful rearing and education she literally invested herself, teaching school to assist in defraying expenses, and summoning every power of her being to work until this task was accomplished. Her heart has been gladdened by seeing them all enter upon life well equipped in culture and character.

Sister Randle was a woman of cultivated mind and natural ability, and the field of her usefulness has been large. Though quiet and unobtrusive, her charm and grace of manner have touched and quickened many lives outside of the home circle, which was so truly sanctified by her presence.

She was a most true type of the faithful preacher's wife, in perfect sympathy with the passion to serve Christ and the world that burns in the soul of her husband, ever inspiring and cheering him in the face of trials that would otherwise have been very difficult to bear—unselfish and self-sacrificing, an intelligent counsellor, and a genuine helpmeet. She filled nobly her place in this world, and has taken a worthy place in the world invisible. Her spirit abides here as a perpetual presence.

For a number of years Sister Randle was in failing health, and she passed away in peaceful triumph over suffering and death on Sunday morning, June 11, in Cotton Valley, La., not very far distant from the place of her birth and childhood home.

Her body was laid to rest in the Minden cemetery after impressive services conducted by Brothers D. C. Barr and W. J. Porter. The sympathy of all the church goes out to the bereaved family and especially to our bereaved brother, who must travel down the hill of life without the cheer of her companionship.

R. H. WYNN.

WANTED—Lady teacher, 2 to 5 years' experience; degree of A.B. or B.S. of high class college; a Methodist who will work in Sunday School; will pay $400 for eight months' work. Address Trustee, care New Orleans Christian Advocate.

A STRONG ENDORSEMENT.

In his eloquent introduction to The Modes Of The Heavenly Life, by Rev. Walter G. Harbin, Dr. Robt. A. Meek, the editor of the Advocate says of this book:

" * * * It is a popular and practical discussion, designed to be helpful to hungry hearts. The sermons are substantially as they were delivered, and as God has so signally used them in the awakening and upbuilding of his people. They are scriptural, forceful, and appealing, and abound in beautiful passages and apt illustrations. No one can read them without being stirred to holier aspirations."

Cloth and gold, only 50 cents, postpaid.

By the same author: A Man Wanted, paper, 15 cents, postpaid. Of this great sermon to men, Bishop Murrah wrote: "I would be glad if every young man in the land could hear this address."

Order from Chas. O. Chalmers, 512 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

The AMERICAN PAINT WORKS

—Manufacturers of—

High Grade Mixed Paints; Perfecto White Lead; Nonpareil Carriage Paint; Varnish Stain; Colors in Oil; Wood Fillers; Chemically Pure Dry Colors, Etc.

423-434 JOSEPHINE STREET.....Phone 915

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

SUPPOSE YOU HAVE A FIRE TO-NIGHT?

GET SOLID PROTECTION AND INSURE WITH

LEON IRWIN & CO.

FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.

736 Union Street. Phone, Main 565.

Concerning Missions.

WOMAN'S FOREIGN MISSION MEETING

The annual meeting of the North Mississippi Woman's Foreign Missionary Society was recently held in Cleveland, a thriving Delta town. The welcome spoken by Mrs. Hill came from the heart and found responsive echo in the hearts of delegates and visitors.

The formal or customary response, an admirable paper, was prepared by Mrs. E. S. Lewis, of Winona, who was kept at home by serious sickness in her family. Miss Murry acted well the part as substitute.

Miss Mamie Buckley, of Winona, in an impressive way introduced the jubilee services, giving prominent facts connected with the fifty years march of missionary work. At 11 o'clock Sunday, Rev. S. M. Thames preached the annual sermon in his own inimitable manner, which is to say that it was edifying, impressive and convincing. He showed that to achieve best results, we as Christians must be co-workers with God in such a conclusive way that some pronounced it the best missionary sermon they ever heard.

Then followed the "Lord's Supper." A solemn hush fell upon the waiting congregation, and to the company of communicants the presence of the Holy Spirit was manifest.

The afternoon with the young folks was made enjoyable by Mrs. Thomas, manager, assisted by Miss Elizabeth Hughes, who lets no opportunity pass without a plea for China, where she wrought so well and to which place her heart is ever turning.

Sunday evening Mrs. Clark brought full and interesting notes from the Woman's Council. All listened eagerly, as it is needful to readjust our forces to the new order. How to do this was a prominent feature of Council deliberations. Conference societies and auxiliaries must feel the pressure from above them, and will meet changed conditions as other things have been met by loyalty to the trust committed to all missionary workers. Sickness had entered our ranks to such extent that several prominent on the program were represented by others.

Mrs. McIntosh supplied Mrs. Woollard's place in conducting the conference love feast Monday morning.

Each heart responded to the divine influence and many bore testimony to the power of God to keep that which is committed to him.

The hour for business arrived. A pro tem must be chosen for recording secretary, Mrs. Alexander being detained by sickness. Miss Mamie Buckley was duly selected. The regular routine was broken here and there by talk or paper on some vital subject. Mrs. Binford conducted a "delegates' conference" with marked benefit. Her subjects were well presented by several delegates to whom they had been committed.

Reports were gratifying and in nearly every instance the hope was expressed that still greater progress may mark the ensuing year. Miss Hughes was an inspiration by her quiet yet ever helpful demeanor.

Miss Davies charmed alike by her magnetic personality and the able manner in which she gave the messages she brought.

A goodly number of ministerial brethren honored us by their presence, and gave added zest and encouragement by their wise counsel and commendation.

Of Rev. W. S. Shipman, we can truly say, "he was instant in season" and never seemed to grow weary. Nothing that would enhance our comfort or enjoyment seemed too great, no service too small, to enlist his attention. In all, he was ably seconded by his excellent wife.

The idea of unification was everywhere. The tendency of conferences, following the lead of the Woman's Council, is in that direction. Therefore, what shall be our attitude, was discussed at some length. However we could go no further than appoint a committee to confer with a like committee from the Home Mission Society of our conference in regard to methods, plan of union, etc. Following the suggestion of the new constitution, we eliminated the term superintendent and elected four vice presidents instead. Mrs. S. M. Thames remains president for another year. Vice-presidents, one, two, three, four had no difference of rank, the numbers serving only to designate the character of the work of each.

Mrs. McIntosh was placed in charge of the children's work; Mrs. J. E. Thomas continues to work among the young people; Mrs. White, of West Point, is in charge of Christian stewardship and mission study, and Mrs. J. M. Wyatt was elected to develop the work of social service. Other officers were chosen as follows: Corresponding secretary, Mrs. Clark, Verona; recording secretary, Miss Mamie Buckley, Winona; treasurer, Mrs. G. C. Jones, Belen; auditor and superintendent of press work, Mrs. J. F. Evans. Secretary, Aberdeen District, Mrs. Haughton; Prairie, Corinth District, Miss E. Murray, Ripley; Columbus District, Mrs. Shull, Brooksville (Mrs. Woodward for many years so faithful, found she must resign the work she loved to other hands); Durant District, Mrs. W. A. Hanna, Pickens; Oxford District, Mrs. F. J. Binford, Water Valley; Greenville District, Mrs. Boyd Brister, Shaw; Sardis District, Miss Jones, Hernando; Winona District, Mrs. E. A. Neblett, Eupora. Mrs. J. E. Thomas was chosen reserve delegate to the Woman's Council. Booneville was selected as the next place of meeting. With higher aspirations, nobler purposes, we turned about to face the responsibilities of another year.

MRS. J. F. EVANS.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE WOMAN'S WORK.

The following report was sent me by Mrs. J. K. Dunn, our conference treasurer, for the first quarter of 1911-12:

Amount raised—Membership dues, adult $568.90; dues, young people, $4.40; baby roll, enrollment, $7.50; brigade dues, $9.15; week of prayer, adult, $4.00; Florice McEachern mite boxes, $15.12; baby mite boxes, $7.00; conference pledge, $90.15; relief fund, $1.30; Gulf Coast Mission, $2.75; Scarritt Endowment Fund, $4.00; Anne Browder Rescue Home, $15.00; conference expense fund, $88.69; total sent conference treasurer, $817.96.

Local—Orphans' Home, cash and supplies, $314.80; value of supplies locally, $249.97; amount expended for assistance of needy, $217.10; cash expended on parsonages, $971.30; cash expended on churches, $550.99; local expense fund, $105.20; otherwise locally, $47.50; city mission work, $23.00; total local reported of conference treasurer, $2,479.86; grand total, $2,297.82.

Attention of all missionary workers, both home and foreign, is called to the proceedings of the joint session of the executive committees of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies of the Mississippi Conference. This committee met at Jackson during the Foreign Missionary Conference in May.

Mrs. T. B. Holloman called the committee to order. Mrs. Bessie Lipscomb was elected chairman, and Mrs. Charles McQueen, recording secretary. Prayer was voiced by Mrs. Holloman.

The following resolution was presented and adopted:

"Whereas, the executive committee of the Woman's Home Mission Society and the executive committee of the Foreign Missionary Society in joint session have considered the subject of the unification of the conference societies; therefore be it resolved, That the executive committee of the two conference societies meet in joint ad interim session next January, and then and there plan for a joint annual meeting, at which time a vote can be had from the auxiliaries on this matter."

The following resolution was also presented and adopted:

"Resolved, That the district secretaries of both Home and Foreign Societies be instructed to organize adult missionary societies as far as possible with Home and Foreign Departments, and report organization to the Conference secretaries of both Home and Foreign Societies of the Missionary Conference."

The committee decided to hold the joint executive meeting at Capitol Street Methodist Church, Jackson, in January—a definite date to be fixed later.

"Blest be the tie that binds," was sung and the committee stood adjourned.

I wish to call attention to our two new funds—the "Relief Fund" and "Scarritt Bible and Training School Endowment Fund." Each auxiliary is requested to pay the relief fund 10c per member per year, the money to be used for the support of retired missionaries and deaconesses. The Scarritt Fund is to be secured by each auxiliary paying $2 this year to the Scarritt Endowment Fund, the present endowment being insufficient to meet the demands made upon it.

MRS. M. W. SWARTZ,
Conference Press Superintendent.
Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

QUARTERLY TREASURER'S REPORT.

For the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Mississippi Conference, I submit the following report for the first quarter of the current year, sent me by the treasurer, Mrs. Zelle Watts Kendall:

Dues, adult, $386.15; dues, young people, $6.50; dues, juveniles, $11.20; pledges, adult, $269.77; pledges, young people, $48.94; pledges, juveniles $4.90; scholarships, $40.00; Bible Women, $50.00; relief fund, $7.20; Scarritt Endowment Fund, $2.00; Miss Mounger, $21.50; total, $848.46.

MRS. O. L. LEWIS, Press Superintendent.
Brandon, Miss.

QUARTERLY MISSIONARY REPORT.

Report of First Quarter, 1911, of the Foreign Department of the Woman's Missionary Society, Louisiana Conference:

Number of adult auxiliaries	36
Number adult members	897
Number adult auxiliaries organized during quarter	1
Number adult members added during quarter	22
Number young people's societies	1
Number young people's members	46
Number junior societies	6
Number junior members	161
Number junior members added during quarter	11
Total number members in conference	1,104
Number life members	29
Number honorary members	33
Number honorary life patrons	1
Number subscribers to Missionary Voice	303
Number subscribers to Young Christian Worker	86
Number Bible Women supported	6
Number of scholarships supported	15
Amount dues sent council treasurer	$136.45
Amount pledge sent council treasurer	182.85
Scholarship, (Robbie Foster)	60.00
Scholarship Louisiana Ring	40.00
China famine sufferers	9.00
Retirement fund	14.65
Total	$442.95

MRS. J. J. HOLMES, Treasurer.
MRS. A. P. HOLT,
Financial Corresponding Secretary.

THE
Grant Furniture Co.
IS NOW HAVING A
GREAT REMOVAL SALE
PRICES ON EVERY ARTICLE
IN THEIR
ENTIRE STOCK HAVE BEEN REDUCED
OUTFITS ESPECIALLY PRICED
427-429-431 Gamp Street, New Orleans

W. W. Carre Co. Ltd.
Manufacturer
Exporter of Lumber
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Geo. W. Riehl. Aug. Rauxet, Jr.
RIEHL & RAUXET.
Successors to Lowengardt & Armstrong,
JEWELERS.
122 BARONNE STREET - - New Orleans, La
(Optical Department: M. F. Fitzgerald, Optician.)
Phone Main 787

The Home Circle

THE LAMPS.

By Anna Burnham Bryant.

At bedtime mother kisses me,
And takes away the light,
But through the curtain I can see
Her lamp shine every night.

"Don't be afraid of dark and gloom,"
She says, "I'm always there;
My lamp, out in the sitting room,
Shines through the portiere."

So when night covers up the blue,
The stars give out their spark;
God lets His heaven-lamps shine through
The curtain of the dark.

—In Zion's Herald.

THE BIRTHDAY PRESENT.

"Dear little Alsie," grandma wrote, "you must write and tell me what you wish for a birthday present." And Alsie thought and thought, for it was a very important matter, and she did not want to make a mistake. For a while she ran her pencil over the page without making a mark, but finally she wrote:

"Dear Grandma—I believe I want a little gold necklace more than anything else. It costs ten dollars. I believe I want it as much as mamma wants a new set of teaspoons."

Grandma smiled when she read the letter; but she sent Alsie ten dollars, telling her she could buy the necklace or anything else. "Because I know," wrote grandma, "that sometimes little people change their minds."

"I don't change my mind when I get ten dollars to buy a necklace," said Alsie, and she ran off to the jeweler's. But, while she was standing at the counter waiting for the clerk, she saw laid out in the case before her the prettiest set of teaspoons, and she thought, "I wish mamma had them."

"The price is ten dollars," said the clerk, "but they're worth it," and he took out the spoons.

"I want to look at the little gold necklace," said Alsie, bashfully. She held the necklace in her hand, but again her blue eyes sought the silver spoons. "I believe," she said, softly, "I'll take the spoons."

It was a happy little girl who ran home carrying the teaspoons, a happy little girl who handed them to her surprised mamma, and a happy little girl who wrote:

"Dear Grandma—I know you won't care when I tell you that I spent the ten dollars buying lovely little teaspoons for mamma and all of us, instead of getting the necklace, just for myself. I send you a thousand thanks from everybody and a special birthday kiss from your little granddaughter.

"ALSIE."

And grandma did not mind at all.—Louis R. Baker, in Jewels.

TWELVE OLD DRESSES.

"It's going to be a beautiful party, mother. There are to be twelve girls and each one is to have a fairy lamp at her plate. Oh! no, not twelve, either; there will be only eleven of us. Belle Marks won't go."

"Why won't Belle go?" asked Mildred Smith's mother.

"Because she has nothing to wear but an old dress, a real old muslin that has been washed and darned. All the rest of us have new dresses, and you know Belle would feel bad. We are sorry! Everybody loves Belle, and she knows so many nice games to play."

"Couldn't you persuade her to go?" asked Mrs. Smith. "It seems to me she could have just as nice a time in an old dress."

"Oh, no mother, she would feel queer. I offered to lend her a dress (I knew you would let me), but she wouldn't take it."

"I like her all the better for that," said the mother. "But, Mildred, did you offer to wear your old dress, too? Maybe that would make her willing to go."

"Wear my old dress? O mother, I don't want to do that!"

"Very well," said Mrs. Smith, kindly; "I won't say any more about it. When you get to have as old eyes as mine, little daughter, you will see that a fine dress is one of the smallest things in the world—a great, great deal smaller than giving to anybody a single hour's pleasure. But perhaps I am asking too much to expect you to see that yet."

Mildred went off to school feeling very much stirred up in her little mind. The thought of the new blue dress with its little frills of lace, was very tempting. "That plain old white muslin is horrid?" she said to herself, "but then it would be so nice if Belle could have part of the fun, too."

Was it a white angel that stood at the little girl's side and made it seem better to please Belle than to wear her pretty dress? Nobody saw the wings, but I believe an angel was there.

At the noon recess Mildred and Belle ran up to Mary Clifton with bright faces. "Oh Mary," cried Belle, gayly; "please ask me over again to come to your party; I want to say 'Yes' this time. Did you ever know anything so sweet? Mildred is going to wear her plain old muslin to keep me from feeling bad."

"You won't mind having us in old dresses, will you, Mary?" asked Mildred, in a joyous tone. "We are going to carry big bunches of flowers out of my garden, and that will make us look fine."

"Mind, indeed!" cried Mary, "I just believe"—. She stopped short off, and, kissing the two little girls, hurried away without finishing her sentence.

But when the twelve fairy lamps were lighted, Mildred and Belle found out what bright idea had struck Mary, for all twelve little girls wore old dresses and carried bunches of flowers.

"Now, I'm never going to mind about my old dresses again," said Belle, as she kissed the others good by. "You may all wear the newest sort of dresses after this, and when I put on my old white I'll feel happy to think how sweet you all were to me about it. I'll just love the old things."—Olive Plants.

A COUNTRY VISIT.

Walter and Kathryn, Nancy and T. J., Jr., were little city tots. They didn't know anything about the woods, and almost nothing about trees; for the houses where they lived were right on the street, with no front yards, and house after house was just like the rest in the long row, so that T. J., Jr., had to put a lump of coal on the step to tell which was their home when he went out to play.

So, when Mrs. Brown, their mother, took them to the country for a day's visit to a friend, they were as happy a group of little folk as one could wish to see, and, when they saw apples growing on trees, they thought it was wonderful.

"Why, bless your hearts!" said Mrs. Gray, mother's friend, "go out and get all the apples from the trees that you want, you poor little city prisoners!" And she found a tiny red cart and let them take it out to the orchard and fill over and over again, bringing their loads to the house.

"My!" said Mrs. Gray, "what will I do with all these apples if the children keep this up? Why, I know," she added, after a minute. "I will get a little old trunk from the attic, let them fill it and take it home with them."

As they had made the trip by train, the trunk could be easily taken as baggage; so Mrs. Brown said the children would be greatly delighted with that plan, and indeed they were.

Load after load continued to come to the house on the little red cart till the trunk was full as it would hold.

How nice it was to tramp back and forth through the leaves and hear them rustle, for it was fall, and they were dry and brown. Then Walter suggested that they clean up the orchard a little, as Mrs. Gray had been so good to them; so they raked up leaves and set fire to them, which was great fun, you may be sure.

Now, what do you suppose they did with that trunk full of apples when they got home? Why, they piled them all up on the front steps of their house, row after row on each step, and then put a large card at the top, on which was printed in big letters:

"THESE APPLES CAME OFF OF TREES. TAKE ONE."

So all the children on the square, and, for that matter, from other squares as well, came to the steps filled with beautiful apples to get their share, and listened with great interest while Walter and Kathryn, Nancy and T. J., Jr., explained that they weren't store apples at all, but came right off of trees, and told them all about their lovely trip to the country.

When Mrs. Gray heard about it, she said: "Those dear, unselfish children!"—Child's Gem.

SEASHORE CAMP-MEETING.

40th Annual Camp-Meeting July 12-19—Special Rates on the Railroads.

The Seashore Camp-Meeting is known over a large part of Methodism to-day. Men have attended it from all parts of the Union. The religious services are under the direction of the presiding elders of New Orleans, Seashore and Mobile Districts of the M. E. Church, South, and these brethren will be assisted by the best preaching talent that can be obtained.

Preaching under the Tabernacle, Grove and Cottage Prayer Meetings and other religious services will be held during each day and evening, to which all persons on the ground are not only cordially invited, but are expected to attend.

Plan to come this year, and bring your unconverted friends with you. All Methodist preachers will be provided with board and lodging free of charge during Camp-Meeting.

A Delightful Summer Home.

There is not in all the Southland a more delightful place to spend the summer than on the Seashore Camp Ground. There are ample accommodations and good board.

Many men and women date the beginning of their aggressive service for the Master to a few days spent on the camp grounds. There is a distinctively Christian atmosphere and the many assemblies as well as the Camp Meeting bring together some of the brightest men and some of the most saintly characters we have. There is no compulsion about attending any of the lectures or sermons, but they are in easy reach and there is a sane and healthy tone, that tends to vigorous thinking and wholesome living.

ATTRACTIONS FOR THE SUMMER OF 1911.

Annual Camp Meeting, July 12-19. The Camp Meeting really gives the right to exist to the grounds, and it was for this purpose that Christian men invested their money in this property, in order that men might come away for a season from their other cares and commune with God.

Seashore Assembly for Christian Workers, July 20 to 30. This is the successor to the former Seashore Epworth League Assembly. It has simply broadened the scope of its work. While not undertaking to do especially evangelical work, but rather to train the young people how to work, this assembly usually numbers many conversions as an immediate result of its work. Some of the gracious revivals that have blessed some of the churches have had their inception in the new motives for service given the young people in this assembly.

Outdoor Attractions.

On the grounds is a long pier extending far out into the bay; the bathing facilities are fine, and the fishing is excellent. Those fond of outdoor sports may find here much to occupy and delight them.

For Full Particulars Address as Follows:

In regard to accommodations: R. G. Price, Biloxi, Miss., or S. H. Meyer, 116 St. Charles Street, New Orleans, La.

Christian Workers' Assembly: Rev. J. Bruce Airey, Fort Deposit, Ala.

THE SAFEST AND QUICKEST WAY
—TO—
TRANSFER MONEY
—IS BY—
Long Distance Telephone
FOR RATES APPLY TO LOCAL MANAGER,
Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co
INCORPORATED.

Christian Advocate.

ROBERT A. WEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.
CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.
OFFICE: 511 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

TERMS:
One Copy, one year, $1.50; eight months, $1.00. To preachers of all Denominations, $1.00.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE.
Louisiana Conference—Rev. N. R. Joyner, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake.
Mississippi Conference—Rev. I. W. Cooper, D.D., Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. D. Ellis.
North Mississippi Conference—Rev. J. T. Mayal, Rev. W. W. Woolard, Rev. H. S. Sprague.

Editorial.

Stick to the habit of going to church. Many times perhaps during the summer you will be tempted to stay away, but do not suffer yourself to do so. The pastor and others need your presence, and you need the quickening influence of the service. The member who can always be counted upon to be present is a valuable asset in any congregation.

* * *

"Godliness is profitable unto all things." It enriches and ennobles the present life, and opens the way into a future magnificent beyond human conception. When discouraged, let the Christian meditate upon the following precious words spoken by the Master under the shadow of the Cross: "I go to prepare a place for you. And if I go and prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself; that where I am, there ye may be also." Heirship to such an inheritance should make pessimism impossible.

* * *

We hear much in this day about the infectiousness of diseases, but the worse contagion is that of vice. It is well enough to battle against the germs that produce sickness and physical death, but even more do we need to combat the immoral influences that blight and wreck the soul. It is still true, as the wise man said thousands of years ago, that "one sinner destroyeth much good;" and never was there a time when the Christian needed to be more watchful than he does now, when many seem disposed to call "evil good, and good evil; to put darkness for light, and light for darkness; and bitter for sweet and sweet for bitter."

MARY'S GOOD EXAMPLE.

One of the most beautiful incidents in the earthly life of our Lord was the anointing of him by Mary, the sister of Martha and Lazarus, while he sat at meat with his disciples in the home of Simon the leper at Bethany. Many impressive lessons may be learned from this interesting occurrence and the conversation which grew out of it; but it is our present purpose to direct attention to only one of them, and that is, that Mary displayed commendable wisdom in that she bestowed her gift upon the Master while he was yet living. There were others who did reverence to his body after he was dead—who embalmed it and wrapped it in fine linen and laid it tenderly away in a respectable tomb; but hers is the proud distinction of having done honor to the Savior while he was alive and capable of appreciating it.

All of us need to lay this lesson to heart. The world is too much disposed to anathematize the living and to canonize the dead. It put Christopher Columbus in chains when he was alive, and built majestic monuments to his memory when he was no more. It shut Wesley out of the pulpits of England until his eloquent voice was hushed, and then inscribed his name upon the wall of Westminster Abbey alongside those of kings and warriors.

"Seven rival towns contended for Homer dead,
Through which the living Homer begged his bread."

When President McKinley was struck down by the deadly bullet of an assassin a few years ago, we were profoundly impressed with the high eulogies paid him by the Democratic journals of the country. They extolled him as a man of kindly heart, of ardent patriotism and ranked him as one of the noblest chief executives that our nation has ever had. And yet those very same papers a few short weeks before could say nothing too hard of the distinguished statesman who was manfully grappling with the perplexing international questions with which Providence had confronted his administration. And as we read those lofty tributes to our country's fallen leader from the opposition press, we could not but wish that some of them had been written before his eyes had closed in the dreamless sleep of death.

A remarkable thing is said to have occurred at a funeral in New York City some years ago. Dr. Edward Washburn, an able and distinguished minister had died and his obsequies were being conducted in Calvary Episcopal Church. According to the report, Bishop Potter was there, Phillips Brooks was there, and many other renowned and eloquent clergymen were there. One after another they rose and said many beautiful things about the deceased. Finally, his wife stood up in the audience, and, with her bosom heaving and her pale face quivering with emotion, said, "O if you loved Edward so, why did you not tell him while he was living? What cheer and inspiration your expressions of appreciation would have brought to his weary, burdened spirit!" What a reproach was that to those whose lips perhaps had been dumb and had spoken no word of encouragement until Edward Washburn had passed into that quiet land where the voice of praise and the voice of blame are alike unheard!

If we have good things to say of others, let us say some of them now, and not wait to speak them all above their sleeping dust. Kisses rained upon the cold cheeks of the dead are but a poor apology for those that should have been showered upon the lips of the living. Flowers strewn upon the bier of the deceased cannot supply the place of those that should have been scattered along the pathway of our friends before they fell into the last long sleep. Marble monuments, carved with tender words and uprearing their summits toward the sky, cannot make amends for the cruel neglect of which you were guilty when the heart, now still and cold, yearned for love and sympathy. In reflecting upon the past and dreaming of the future, we are far too prone to overlook the opportunities and duties of the present. We would do well to ponder frequently the pertinent interrogatory of the poet:

"We sigh for the touch of a vanished hand,
And we think ourselves sincere;
But what of the friends that about us stand,
And the touch of the hand that is here?"

THE SEASHORE DIVINITY SCHOOL.

The Seashore Divinity School, which opened on June 27 and which will close to-day, has been most satisfactory in every respect. This is the third session, and it has been by far the best of the three. We are not informed as to the exact number of ministers enrolled, but the number had passed the one hundred and fifty mark by the middle of last week, and we dare say that it approximated, if it did not reach, a final total of two hundred. The lectures given were most excellent, being calculated both to instruct and inspire all who heard them. Dr. James M. Gray, Dean of the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago: Dr. Leonidas Robinson, of the Kentucky Conference, and Rev. H. F. Ward, who has been prominently connected with social work in Chicago, were on hand promptly to meet their engagements, and each did his work in a manner that elicited enthusiastic approval. Of Bishop Candler's series of addresses, it is only necessary to say that they were characteristic and up to his very best. They were profound, witty, eloquent, and at times overwhelming. They were heard by large audiences, and will doubtless bear fruit for many days to come. It was not our privilege to hear Bishop Mouzon, who began his series of messages Tuesday of this week, but the secular papers report that his utterances have been scholarly and of a most superior order.

Committeemen from the co-operating Conferences were present, and, so far as we could judge, the instruction of the undergradnates was carried on systematically and with painstaking care. This is evidently one of the best features of the school. The inability of Bishop Hoss to meet his engagement caused universal regret. When just on the eve of taking the train for Biloxi, he was summoned by wire to the bedside of Senator and Mrs. Luke Lea, of Tennessee, both of whom were reported to be critically ill in Washington. The Bishop's coming had been looked forward to with anticipations of great pleasure, as he is generally regarded as the ablest expositor of the Scriptures in the Church, but unquestionably he did right to answer the call of his friends in their hour of suffering and need.

The outlook for the Divinity School could scarcely be brighter. Everybody regards the success achieved as remarkable and is optimistic concerning the future. Already it is one of the best institutions of the kind in Southern Methodism. Its location is unsurpassed, it has a large constituency, and its equipment is being steadily improved and enlarged. The new Tabernacle is attractive in appearance, and is one of the finest open-air auditoriums to be found anywhere in the South. It has been decided to maintain a school at the Camp Ground all the year round, and the contract for the building has been let. Wesley Hall and Epworth and Keller Lodges will be overhauled and prepared for winter as well as summer occupancy. The Methodists of Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi evidently mean to make use of their fine property on the coast in carrying forward their work for the Master in the years to come. Properly employed, it will undoubtedly, through the training in methods which it furnishes and the inspirational meetings held there, contribute much to the upbuilding of the kingdom.

AN INTERESTING INCIDENT.

The Times-Democrat gives the following account of an interesting occurrence which took place at the Seashore Camp Ground last Thursday morning at the 11 o'clock hour:

"A pleasant interlude at the beginning of the service conducted by Bishop Candler this morning was the presentation to the Bishop of a cane made from the railing that surrounded the altar in the old tabernacle, recently demolished. Mr. Cannon, a devoted churchman of Selma, Ala., was the one who had been thoughtful enough to preserve this memorial of the old times, and in a very graceful and earnest speech he made the presentation, saying that when he arrived on the grounds some weeks ago, seeing the old tabernacle in ruins, and the timbers being hauled away, he thought of the scenes that had transpired around that altar, and thought of preserving some little portion of it as a souvenir. The Bishop received the pathetic little gift with some emotion, referring to the walking canes which had come to him—a cane made of deers' horns from one of the Buddhist temples in India—a gold headed cane, which he found it difficult to live up to; his father's cane, around which clustered many memories; and he now added this to the collection with particular pleasure."

Mr. Connor also had made from the same wood a gavel which he will present to Mrs. John C. Keener.

WOULD GREATLY THIN THEIR RANKS.

A late number of the New York Christian Advocate contained the following statement: "A Methodist pastor in New York City recently sent to the Advocate three new subscribers, saying they were the men who had been elected stewards and the church would not allow any man to serve as steward who did not take a Methodist paper."

This is a high standard set up by the Methodists of New York, but we are not sure that they are demanding too much. How can men be expected to be efficient leaders in the church when they are uninformed as to its larger plans and achievements? But if this rule were applied down this way, we fear that stewards would be rather scarce in many of our charges.

THE MANSFIELD SITUATION.

We desire to call special attention to the communication of Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard concerning the situation at Mansfield Female College. Evidently from what he says, the situation there could scarcely be more critical, and only quick and vigorous work can save the institution to the Louisiana Conference. Is there not some noble-hearted Methodist layman of means in the State who will come to the rescue

In this crucial hour? At any rate, every pastor should at once bestir himself in behalf of this historic college, which has wrought so nobly for the Church in the past, and whose very existence is said now to be imperiled. Let the slogan from one end of Louisiana to the other be, "Mansfield College Must and Shall Be Saved!" It would be an irretrievable mistake and a lasting reproach to allow it to pass into other hands.

REV. M. H. MOORE DEAD.

Dear Brother Meek: I am pained to notify you that Rev. M. H. Moore, our pastor at Poplarville, died this morning at the St. Francis Hospital, Colorado Springs, Colo. He has been suffering some time from pellagra, and had gone out there on the advice of his physicians seeking relief. A 'phone message tells me that the body will arrive Thursday night. Where he is to be buried, I am uuable to say.

Brother Moore was one of our most faithful and hard-working men, and has been very active in the Church for a number of years.

I write this as I am hurrying to catch the train to go to Poplarville. W. B. JONES.

July 3, 1911.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The glorious Fourth came this week, and the Advocate, like other things, ran amuck of it. Patriotic celebrations and work do not go very well together. It is a time of hurrah, not of achievement.

Rev. E. L. Cargill, of Jena, La., was a pleasant visitor at the Advocate office Wednesday of last week. He was on his way to the Seashore Divinity School.

Rev. J. G. Snelling, pastor of the Carrollton Avenue Church of this city, left for the Seashore Camp Ground last Monday, where he went to attend the Divinity School and also to have a brief outing.

The Seashore Camp Meeting will begin next Wednesday night, July 12. With Drs. Hendrix, Rowe and McFerrin to do the preaching, the occasion promises to be a memorable one. Why not get ready and go?

Rev. G. A. Morgan, junior preacher on the Natchitoches charge, keeps busy and is pleased to see the work which he has in hand progressing favorahly. A $50 debt on the parsonage at Provencal was paid a few days since.

The pulpit of the First Methodist Church at Jackson, Miss., was filled last Sunday by Rev. H. M. Ellis, Agent for the Memphis Methodist Hospital. Brother Ellis is well known in Jackson, having formerly served the Capitol Street Church of that city.

We extend our hearty thanks to Rev. W. R. Harvell, of Grand Cane, La., for several names to go on our subscription files, and for words commendatory of the Advocate. May the Lord bless him and reward his labors with a large measure of success!

Rev. and Mrs. C. D. Atkinson left for the Seashore Camp Ground last Monday, where they have secured a cottage, and where Sister Atkinson will remain for a month. We suppose that Brother Atkinson will be in and out to look after his work in the city.

That noble veteran of the Methodist itinerancy, Dr W. T. J. Sullivan, is attending the Seashore Divinity School. Though a resident of Jackson, Miss., Dr. Sullivan is a member of the North Mississippi Conference, in which the whole of his faithful and useful ministry has been spent.

We were informed a few days since that upon his return home to Winona, after spending some time at Castalian Springs, Rev. E. S. Lewis had a severe attack of fever. How he is now, we are unable to state, but we trust that he is much better and that he will soon be quite himself again.

We are indebted to the following brethren for subscriptions lately sent to the Advocate: Rev. A. J. Davis, Porterville, Miss.; Rev. J. N. Hall, Glenmora, La.; Rev. J. F. Owen, Poplar Creek, Miss. We assure these brethren of our hearty appreciation of their good work for the Conference organ.

Rev. T. H. Lipscomb recently favored us with a fine list of subscribers from Lexington, Miss., with cash to correspond. The Advocate owes much to this gifted young minister, who in more ways than one has rendered it substantial service. We were pleased to see Brother Lipscomb in fine health and spirits at the Seashore Divinity School last week.

Rev. T. W. Dye, now serving the Pickens charge, writes that he and Sister Dye are comfortably situated in the parsouage at that place (which has lately been made over and newly painted and papered), and that the work under his supervision is moving along quietly. We regret to be informed that Sister Dye has recently heen quite ill, and we trust that she will soon fully recover her health and strength.

We were gratified to see Rev. M. L. Burton in a much improved state of health at the Seashore Camp Ground last week, where he was attending and enjoying the exercises of the Divinity School. During the absence of Rev. M. H. Moore, Brother Burton has charge of the church at Poplarville, and is ministering to our people there with great acceptability. We sincerely hope that he will continue to gain in strength and vigor, and be able to re-enter the active work next fall.

Dr. J. Magruder Sullivan, Professor of Chemistry at Millsaps College, has entered upon a canvass to secure pupils for that excellent institution, which will last a month or longer. Let our pastors heartily co-operate with him in this worthy undertaking.

Miss Eleanor Somerville who is taking a course in the Randolph-Macon Woman's College at Lynchburg, Va., returned to her home at Greenville, Miss., to spend the vacation on June 8. She and her younger sister, Miss Lucy, spent last Sunday at Cleveland, Miss., with their brother, Mr. Robert Somerville, who is a leading attorney at that place.

The New Orleans papers state that Rev. Paul Brown, presiding elder of the Alexandria District, preached a remarkably strong and helpful sermon at the Divinity School last Saturday evening. Brother Brown is one of the growing men of the Louisiana Conference. He not only knows how to preach, but possesses in an unusual degree the elements of leadership.

Mr. W. T. Oliver, of Rayville, La., writes that that community has been blessed with a gracious revival, conducted by Rev. W. G. Harbin and Rev. D. B. Boddie. He reports that Brother Harbin preached most eloquently and effectively, and that all the churches co-operated in making the meeting a success. Twenty-three names were added to the roll of the Methodist Church, and ten joined the Baptist Church and three the Presbyterian Church. It is thought that the town generally was greatly benefited hy the services.

A card written on July 1 has been received from Rev. J. W. Honnoll which reads as follows: "I have fully recovered and will go to my work to-day. I am profoundly grateful to God for his goodness, and to my friends for their many expressions of kindness and sympathy." We are happy to have this good news from our honored brother, and it greatly delights us to know that he has grown sufficiently strong to appear in his pulpit again. We dare say that he had an enthusiastic reception at Tunica last Sunday.

We have been requested to state that owing to the fact that Rev. Joe Ramsey, with whom he has been working, has found it necessary to cancel several of his engagements to conduct revivals, Prof. E. H. Smoot, of Greenwood, Miss., has about six weeks of time at his disposal, which might be secured by brethren who would like to have his services in meetings. As a singer Brother Smoot ranks with the best, and he is also said to be a most acceptable preacher. We are informed that it is his purpose to join the North Mississippi Conference at its next session.

It was our pleasure to have a visit from Dr. F. N. Parker, of Alexandria, La., last week, and to converse with him at some length concerning church matters in general. He went from New Orleans to the Seashore Camp Grounds, but only remained there for a day, as he is quite busy arranging matters to leave for his new field at Durham, N. C. Just when he will get away he does not know, as no provision has yet been made for supplying the church at Alexandria; but he hopes to get his mind centered upon his scholastic work at the earliest day possible. General regret is expressed throughout the Louisiana Conference that Dr. Parker is to leave the State.

A note from Rev. F. B. Ormond, of Hickory, Miss., states that he has had severe affliction in his family for the past few weeks. Sister Ormond has heen critically ill, and it was found necessary to have her undergo a serious operation, and her suffering has been intense. We have no late information as to her condition, but we hope that it continues to improve, and that she may soon entirely recover. Though hindered in his work by the situation in his home, Brother Ormond has been able to meet all his appointments and has been greeted by fine congregations. He will begin a series of revival services at Hickory on the third Sunday in July, and will have to assist him Dr. I. W. Cooper, president of Whitworth College.

THE DURANT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Dear Brother Meek: The recent session of the Durant District Conference was one of the best meetings of the kind that I ever attended. Every pastor was present except Brother J. S. Owens, who was kept away by a very sick child. Most of the preachers made encouraging reports, and those who could not do so seemed to take courage and gain strength for more work and better work hy the optimistic spirit prevailing. The splendid program was well carried out, each subject announced being ahly discussed. The sermons by Brothers Lipscomb, Dye, Countiss, and Geddie were of a high order.

Rev. W. L. Duren, president of the Conference Board of Missions; Rev. J. R. Countiss, president of Grenada College; Rev. W. M. Williams, Manager of the Orphans' Home; Rev. H. M. Ellis, Agent of the Tri-State Hospital, and Prof. M. W. Swartz, of Millsaps College, were present and Impressively represented the various interests with which they are connected. Our faithful colporteur, Rev. G. W. Bachman, was present and forcefully pleaded for a better circulation of our church periodicals and literature.

Home Made

Have your cake, muffins, and tea biscuit home-made. They will be fresher, cleaner, more tasty and wholesome.

Royal Baking Powder helps the house-wife to produce at home, quickly and economically, fine and tasty cake, the raised hot-biscuit, puddings, the frosted layer-cake, crisp cookies, crullers, crusts and muffins, with which the ready-made food found at the bake-shop or grocery does not compare.

Royal is the greatest of bake-day helps.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., NEW YORK

The business sessions and preaching services of the Conference were well attended from heginning to end. The good people of West knew how to take care of the visitors, and doubtiess each one felt that he had the hest home. Brother Rogers, our host, acted his part well, and seemed to take delight in seeing that every delegate had all the comfort and pleasure possible. He and his family are in great favor with the people of his charge, and the writer heard more than one person say that they desire to keep them as long as possible. May the Lord ever hless the good people who entertained us so royally! The Durant District is a fine one, and has one of the hest presiding elders in the North Mississippi Conference.

E. C. SULLIVAN.

Ebenezer, Miss.

HELP FOR MANSFIELD URGENTLY NEEDED.

Dear Doctor Meek: A crisis in the history of Mansfield College is at hand, and unless the Methodists of Louisiana are aroused to immediate action, property to the value of not less than $75,000 will be lost to our Church. The seeming indifference of some of our preachers, and, as a consequence, of our people, has so discouraged the few loyal friends who at no little sacrifice of time and means, have sustained the college for the past four years, that they are about ready to throw up the sponge. Unless God shall speedily raise up a host of friends who are ready and willing to come to the aid of this useful and sorely needed institution, its doom is sealed so far as our Church is concerned.

I am told that not half of the amount pledged at the last Annual Conference has heen paid and that several preachers have even failed to present the cause to the people. If this is true, it is certainly a reproach.

In feehleness of hody and mind and depressed in spirit, I make this (my last) appeal to my hrethren and friends to save the dear old college to our posterity. Three or four thousand dollars (half of which is already pledged) would relieve immediate want. Let every pastor in the Louisiana Conference take the matter up at once and represent the situation faithfully and earnestly to his congregation. And especially let every pledge made at Homer he redeemed without delay. Remit either to the Treasurer of the Board of Education, or to Mr. D. G. Petty, President of the Board of Trustees of Mansfield College.

J. L. P. SHEPPARD.

Mansfield, La., June 30.

CALLED HOME.

Dear Brother Meek: Mrs. Ann Lucretia Edgar, wife of the Rev. E. F. Edgar, who died some years ago, died at 11:15 o'clock, June 30th, in the Presbyterian Hospital. She will be huried this afternoon here. Dr. I. W. Cooper, Rev. J. G. Galloway, and Rev. C. N. Guice will assist us with the service. This death will cause sorrow all over our Conference. No woman of our connection had given herself more fully or more efficientiy to the Master's cause than she. Some one will furnish you a more extended notice later.

H. B. WATKINS.

$177.00 pays Board, Tuition, Laundry, Medical, Library and Lyceum fees whole session. Those who wish may reduce this by taking duties. Apply now to Port Gibson Female College, Port Gibson, Miss.

DR. H. B. BARTLETT
National Dental Parlors
Cor. Canal & Camp Sts.
ENTRANCE 108 CAMP
Phone Main 2193
NEW ORLEANS
Vitalized Air for Painless Extraction
Crown and Bridge Specialist.
The Largest and Best Equipped Dental Parlors South.

MRS. F. L. WIER.

An Appreciation.

By Rev. W. S. Harrison.

In the early morning of June 13th, 1911, our community was greatly shocked by the announcement of the sad and sudden ending of a brilliant and useful life. Sorrow, grief and anguish gripped our souls when the news was made known that Mrs. F. L. Wier had suddenly answered the summons that soon or late must come to one and all, and had gone to join the great majority, for

"All that tread the globe
Are but a handful to
The tribes that slumber in Its bosom."

How mysterious, then, is that Providence that passes over the ignoble of earth, and entering the lives of the choicest and the best transforms the home into a house of mourning! If it wrings the heart with grief to see the full blown flower fade and fall to the earth after the spring and summer have passed and the whitening frost heralds the approach of chill winter's blasts, what must be the heartache and pain of those who are called to witness the young bud crushed in the glad morning of its unfolding? But that all men are born to die all sacred and profane history will attest, and all human experience will prove.

"The hills rock-ribbed and ancient as the sun,
The vales stretching in pensive quietness between,
The complaining brooks that make the meadows green,
What are they all but the vast tomb of man?"

Then blessed are those who die in the Lord from henceforth; yea saith the Spirit, they rest from their labors.

Mrs. Margaret Gay Wier was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Gay. She was born February 2, 1879. On February 14, 1901, she was married to Mr. Frank L. Wier, the son of our much beloved Dr. T. C. Wier, a venerable and venerated superannuate of the North Mississippi Conference.

To portray in all their fullness the many beautiful virtues of this life just closed, would require a more gifted pen than mine. In her was seen the lovelliness and beauty of a symmetrical Christian character. She grew up from infancy here in Starkville, attended our day school, and was a faithful member of the Sunday school. In early girlhood she professed religion and joined the Methodist Church, in which communion she remained an honored member until she went away to join the Church triumphant. She was graduated from the Industrial Institute and College at Columbus when only a girl, and her mind thus trained in the school was greatly enriched by general and judicious reading. Mentally, she was unusually bright; mor[illegible] was as near faultless as human nature can be made; spiritually, she gave every evidence of sweet and close communion with God.

But it was in the sacred realm of the home that her life shone with such resplendent luster and beauty. As a daughter, her devotion to her parents, especially her mother, was an all-consuming passion; as a sister, she was kind, gentle and considerate; as a wife, she was faithful, loving, and helpful; and as a mother, she was devotion itself to her children. From all it may be seen that she was most unselfish, and the very last person in the world to give pain or trouble to any one. Her constant and tender care for her father-in-law, Dr. T. C. Wier, who made his home with them, was most beautiful to see.

But some time ago it began to be manifest to those nearest to her that a strange and fatal darkness was beginning to cloud the brilliant intellect. The nervous organism, already taxed to its utmost by the burden of her own declining health, had added to it the additional burden occasioned by the steady decline of her mother's health; and so ardent and consuming was the daughter's love for the mother that the decline of the physical strength of the one was marked by the steady beclouding of the mind of the other, and so at last when the mother went away a little more than three weeks ago, the brilliant mind of the daughter was all but totally dethroned and the nervous system collapsed under the terrible strain to which it had been subjected. More than any one else, she realized the mighty forces against which she was contending, and struggled toward off its inevitable end. Time after time, she would go into Dr. Wier's room and ask him to pray for her that she might be able to bear the burden under which she was then struggling. Each time after praying himself, the doctor would call on her to pray. This she did with all the earnestness of her soul, and we rest in the assurance given us in the Word of God that no real prayer is ever lost.

It seems fitting just here to say a few words in regard to Mrs. Gay. It is the belief in all this community that we never had among us a more lovely character—one in whose life was a larger blending of truly Christian graces, and one in whom the Christ Spirit, the spirit of helpfulness and sacrifice for others, was more truly manifested. Quiet, reserved, gentle, and kind, meeting life's duties only to discharge them faithfully, we have never known a better example of Christian fidelity.

As a church, we are poorer in membership because these bright lives are gone. As heirs to the heritage of faith, we are richer in memories which lure us to the immortal life beyond the range of earthly sorrows.

Starkville, Miss.

LOYALTY IMPERATIVELY NECESSARY.

The Church is a unit and all departments of its work are under the same general management. Even those churches that decry connectionalism have connectional heads, with their councils "up at Jerusalem" and their general boards, whose work mark either the success or failure of that church. But whatever may be said of the obligations to keep and not to mend the laws of the general legislative body, it must be admitted that Paul and Mr. Wesley were right in commanding members to obey them that have the rule over them in the work of the local church.

A church must have a head, just as an army, a government, a corporation or a railroad does; and disloyalty to that duly-appointed officer is treason, and a just ground for ecclesiastical court-martial. If a leader is held responsible for results, then he must have the authority to pursue unhampered the work for which he is held responsible.

Thus a pastor as a head of the whole church should be accorded the loyal allegiance of every Sunday School superintendent, teacher and class officer, of every Epworth League officer and department leader, of every woman's and laymen's missionary society officer and leader, and of every steward, trustee and local preacher. In fact, every private in the ecclesiastical army is under the law of loyalty and obedience, and even more so, if possible, are "commissioned officers." When the President of these United States assumes the reigns of government, he organizes his staff of officers in harmony and sympathy with his administration, and when one becomes disloyal to his policy he is at once asked to resign or is summarily dismissed. The church is a brotherhood and not a civil government or a military army, but the unity of its administration is imperative and must in a brotherly and factful way be upheld. And if an organization, such as the Epworth League or a Bible Class, shows discourtesy or contempt for the church of which it is a part, or of its chief officer, either the pastor should be removed, if he is guilty of maladministration, or the guilty member be dissolved. The disloyalty of a subordinate organization involes both the officers and members of the organization, and the welfare of the whole church, and when a president, teacher or superintendent has charge of one of these organizations and cannot lead it in loyal harmony with the church, an investigation should be made, and if the officer or organization is found in insurrection, a wise and loving reprimand should be given, and if no reformation follows, the unruly member should be dismissed or dissolved. The immediate flurry caused will be much more than compensated for in the peace and harmony that will follow. A pastor had better have a few faithful co-workers who are teachable and loyal than many headstrong, discourteous raisers of strife.

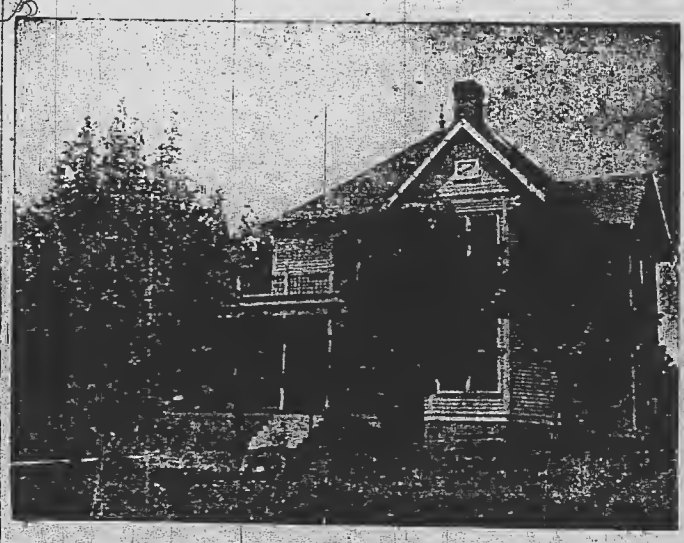
P. O. LOWREY.

EDUCATIONAL

WESLEYAN FEMALE COLLEGE. MACON. GEORGIA
NIMIUM NE CREDE COLORI
CHARTERED A.D. 1836
SCIENTIA ET PIETAS

Wesleyan College
Macon, Georgia
One of the few real colleges for women in the South. Plant worth a half million, with all modern facilities. Faculty of forty. Nearly 3,000 alumnae throughout the nation.
Schools of Literature, Languages, Science, Arts and Music.
A safe institution for young ladies. Non-sectarian, but Christian to the core. Health record without a parallel—not a death for many years. Not conducted for profit, but to bless the world. Rates reasonable. No traveling agents.
For detailed information, address
W. N. AINSWORTH, D. D., President
C. R. JENKINS, Vice President

THE BRISTOL-NELSON SCHOOL FOR FEEBLE MINDED CHILDREN



A PRIVATE institution for the mental and physical development of Nervous, Backward and Feeble-minded Children. Each child receives individual attention.
The Superintendent has made a life study of the training of Backward Children.
Endorsed by Southern Medical Association.
For full particulars, address
Mrs. Cora Bristol-Nelson, Superintendent,
Murfreesboro, Tenn.

SWEETWATER COLLEGE For Young Women.
Complete college course. Preparatory department. Music and Art. Three laboratories. Beautiful buildings, steam heat and electric lights, hot and cold water in each room; new plumbing. Rates $250. Booklet.
EDWAIN F. ROWLAND, President, Sweetwater, Tenn.

SAVE YOUR Complexion
Protect it this summer from the painful and unsightly effects of SUNBURN and WINDBURN; keep it clear, soft, velvety and youthful by using this pure, snow-white
HINDS Honey and Almond CREAM
Always supremely good for dry, rough, coarse skin; for irritated, eruptive, sore skin; for dull, sallow complexions. Soothes and removes babies' skin ailments. It has remarkable antiseptic, cleansing, invigorating properties. You can see the skin become fresher and fairer each week. —It contains nothing harmful; is not sticky, and cannot possibly aid a growth of hair.
There is only one genuine, original Hinds Honey and Almond Cream;—on the market 35 years and selling throughout the world. Do not accept substitutes, for you will be disappointed.—Price, 50c in bottles. Sold by all dealers.
Trial Bottle mailed Free by A. S. HINDS, 72 West St., Portland, Me.

Tidings From the Field

Church Point, La:

Dear Brother Meek: I send you a few items from Church Point. Possibly some of your readers within the bounds of this charge will be interested in reading that we had a good quarterly meeting in Church Point recently. Brother Denson was with us, and though physically he was far from well, none of the interests of the church were passed over without due consideration. Sunday, June 18, at 11 a. m., Brother Denson preached a very interesting sermon to a fairly good congregation. At the close the sacrament of the Lord's supper was administered to a goodly number of people. Altogether it was an encouraging gathering. One young lady the day following remarked to the pastor, "that was a fine sermon the presiding elder gave us yesterday." The members of Branch Church recently gave the writer a pounding, consisting of provisions enough to last many days, and a purse of cash. While we do not magnify the temporal above the spiritual, yet a preacher is encouraged to do his best work when these expressions of good will and sympathy come voluntarily from the people he is serving in spiritual things.

Rev. P. O. Lowrey, Sunday school missionary of the Conference, has been with me at two of my churches. He has been helpful to us in his instructive addresses to the workers in the Sunday school. We are making an effort to introduce into the Sunday schools the graded system and get our Sunday schools as much as possible up to date. Our entire work seems to be making steady improvement. Should the farming interests prove successful, we believe that the finances will be ahead of last year.—H. B. Vandenburg, P. C.

Second Church, Baton Rouge.:

I wish to state that Second is moving along smoothly. We have had no great demonstration, but a steady growth all the year. We have had up to date 40 accessions. My brother, M. L. White, was with me in May and preached with great power. Much good was done.

The people at the beginning of the year received me cordially, and they have been true to the pastor and family all the year.

They are a most loyal flock. I believe that there is a great future for Second Church. Our part of the city is growing rapidly. Our church building is not large enough or up-to-date enough; hence we have many handicaps. We greatly need a more modern and commodious structure. I pray that God may touch the heart of some one who has means so that he may assist us in providing a better house of worship at this important point.

We are also without a parsonage, which makes the pastor's expenses much heavier. But we are pressing on with our work, and hope to have a better equipment in the near future. —G. P. White P. C.

CHILDRENS' SERVICE AT SEE'S CHAPEL.

Dear Mr. Editor: Last Sunday evening I had the very great pleasure and profit of attending the Children's Day service at See's Chapel on the Longtown charge. The exercises opened at 8:30, and for one hour the great audience was highly entertained and thrilled with the exercises. Mrs. G. W. Coleman presided, with the assistance of the committee who had helped in the training. The children and young people reflected great credit on themselves and also on those faithful women who trained them. The choir, under the leadership of the organist, Miss Maud Jenkins, did the singing to the delight of all.

This was the most interesting and soul-inspiring Children's Day service I have ever attended. I close with a plea to all the superintendents of the Sardis District to see that committees are appointed to train the children in each congregation for the observance of Children's Day.

W. M. YOUNG, P. E.
June 16, 1911.

NOW IS THE TIME TO SWAT THE FLY.

If you see a fly walking over the food and dishes, or alighting on your baby's face, remember that he is a messenger of disease and death, says the July Woman's Home Companion.

The rules for dealing with the fly nuisance, published by the Merchants' Association of New York, and widely circulated by them, are worth reprinting. We repeat our suggestion that an excellent work for any live woman's club would be to reproduce these rules on cards and distribute them broadcast.

Keep the flies away from the sick, especially those ill with contagious diseases. Kill every fly that strays into the sick-room. His body is covered with disease germs.

Do not allow decaying material of any sort to accumulate on or near your premises. All refuse which tends in any way to fermentation, such as bedding straw, paper waste and vegetable matter should be disposed of or covered with lime or kerosene.

Screen all food. Keep all receptacles for garbage carefully covered and the cans cleaned or sprinkled with oil or lime.

Keep all stable manure in vault or pit screened or sprinkled with lime, oil or other cheap preparation. See that your sewage system is in good order; that it does not leak, is up-to-date and not exposed to flies. Pour kerosene into the drains.

Cover food after a meal; burn or bury all table refuse. Screen all food for sale.

Screen all windows and doors, especially the kitchen and dining room.

Burn pyrethrum powder in the house to kill flies.

Don't forget, if you see flies, that their breeding place is in near-by filth. It may be behind the door, under the table, or in the cuspidor.

If there is no dirt and filth, there will be no flies.

If there is a nuisance in the neighborhood, it would be advisable to write at once to the health department.

Marriages

June 22, 1911, in Jefferson Street Methodist Church, Natchez, Miss., by Rev. H. G. Hawkins, Mr. ARTHUR A. HARRIS, of 1018 S. Rampart St., New Orleans, to Miss NELLIE LOLETE CHAMBLISS, of Natchez.

June 1, 1911, at the Methodist Church, Indian Bayou, La., by Rev. J. S. Rutledge, Mr. EDDO SMITH and Miss EUNICE FAULK.

On June 21, 1911, at the Methodist Church, Palmetto, La., by Rev. P. A. Swann, Mr. W. H. McADAMS to Miss BEULAH M. BIHM.

YOU CAN AFFORD a new Song Book in your Church or Sunday School, and one for every person; "FAMILIAR SONGS OF THE GOSPEL." Round or Shaped Notes, for $3 for 100. Words and music. 83 very best songs. Sample copy 5 cents. E. A. K. HACKETT, 109 North Wayne Street, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Methodist Benevolent Association

The Connectional Brotherhood of Ministers and Laymen. Life or Term Certificates for $500 to $2,000. Benefits payable at death, old age, or disability. $100,000.00 paid to widows, orphans, and disabled. $14,000.00 reserve fund. Write for rates, blanks, etc.
J. H. SHUMAKER, Secretary Nashville, Tennessee

FRECKLES TAN, SUNBURN Quickly removed by WILSON'S FRECKLE CREAM. Guaranteed for freckles, sunburn, tan, moth, pimples. Postpaid 50c a box. Trial size 25c—postage 5c. Dealers and agents write for special offer to Wilson's Freckle Cream Co., 236 Meeting St., Charleston, S. C.

ROYALINE OIL
Stongest and Best
ANTISEPTIC
Stops Pain----Heals Wounds.

Use it for Burns, Cuts, Sprains, Bruises, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Sore Eyes, Sore Mouth, Sore Throat, Sore Muscles, Sore Feet, Sore Joints. For External and Internal use. Pleasant, Clean, Safe.

There is nothing "just as good". Try it and you will use no other. It has stood the test for nearly twenty years.

10c, 25c, 50c Druggists.
ROYALINE MED. CO., Ltd., New Orleans, Sole Proprs.

VERY LOW RATES
ATTRACT THOUSANDS
To CALIFORNIA
EVERY SUMMER.
Tickets on sale daily, June 1 to Sept. 30, 1911. Limit Oct. 31, 1911.
ESPECIALLY LOW RATES
June 5 and 6, June 11 to 22, and June 27 to July 5, 1911. Return Limit Sept. 15, 1911.
TWO TRAINS DAILY
Via SOUTHERN PACIFIC

Also Very Low Summer Rates to Colorado and Yellowstone National Park. Excellent Service afforded by the Southern Pacific and Connections. For full particulars, call on or write
City Ticket Agent, 225-27 St. Charles Street, New Orleans.
PHONE MAIN 4027
Beautifully Illustrated Literature Furnished on Request.

L&N Louisville & Nashville R. R.

THE DIRECT LINE TO NORTH AND EAST
ELECTRIC LIGHTED STEEL SLEEPERS
DINING CARS, OBSERVATION CARS, CHAIR CARS

Phone M 4093. TICKET OFFICE 201 ST. CHARLES STREET.

Use the L. & A. Railway

When you travel go via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY, The Road That Is Always on Time. FIRST-CLASS EQUIPMENT; Gravel Ballasted Track; 75 Pound Steel Rails; The Best of Service in Every Respect. Double Daily Passenger Service; Two Trains Each Way Daily.

OUR FREIGHT SERVICE IS UNEXCELLED.

When you order or ship freight if you want quick and satisfactory service, instruct your shipments routed via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY. Our motto is "EVER ON TIME."

F. W. GREEN, General Superintendent. Stamps, Ark.
S. S. ATKINSON, Gen. Frt. and Pass. Agt., Texarkana, Ark.

Death Lurks In A Weak Heart

If Yours Is fluttering or weak, use "RENOVINE." Made by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn. Price $1.00

Spend Your Summers
—AT—
MONTEAGLE,

One of the most delightful and popular Summer Resorts in the South, on the summit of the Cumberland Mountains.

Summer season June-October. Assembly season July 4-Aug. 29th.

Elaborate Program, Lectures, Entertainments, Music, Summer Schools.

Special low rate excursion tickets on sale June 30th, July 1st, 8th, 15th, 22d, 29th, Aug. 11, 12, 18; good for return until Sept. 5, 1911.

Ask any ticket agent for the Assembly Annual and for a free copy of N. C. & St. L. Ry., beautifully illustrated Summer Resort folder, or write to W. L. DANLEY,
G. P. A., Nashville, Tenn.

ESTEY CHURCH ORGANS.

The ESTEY is the world's best Organ. The KOHLER & CAMPBELL PIANO is in every particular first class; satisfaction guaranteed in every case; freight paid; low cash price on easy payments without interest. Write for Catalogues.

J. H. BASS, Pastor Meth't Ch'ch.
Brookville, Miss.

DAISY FLY KILLER

placed anywhere, attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Can't spill or tip over, will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Of all dealers or sent prepaid for 20c.
HAROLD SOMERS
150 De Kalb Ave.
Brooklyn, N. Y.

Our Copyrighted Book on GALL STONES, DYSPEPSIA AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, Stomach and Bowels FREE Address Gallstone Remedy Co., 225 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. Ask for Book No. 18.

Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic
WELCOME RELIEF

Follows the use of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic on the face after shaving.
Mix with five parts water and bathe the face well each time—and your shaving troubles will all be over.
No more Chafing, Stinging, Chapping or Soreness if you will do this.
"It's soothing coolness is delightful."

ALL DRUGGISTS • 25 AND 50 CENTS

ASK ANY ONE WHO HAS EVER USED IT!

Epworth League Department.

(Edited by Rev. H. B. Watkins, Magnolia, Miss., to whom all communications intended for this Department should be addressed.)

DEVOTIONAL.

July 9: God Overrules Evil for Good.
(Rom. viii. 28; Phil. i. 12, 19.)

The evil referred to in the topic is not sin. It may result from sin, and often does. But just as frequently it flows from other sources; for the evil here mentioned is anything that may be included under the head of adversity, misfortune, suffering. The Scripture texts cited seem to justify this conclusion.

The viewpoint from which the subject is to be studied needs to be carefully guarded. It is not that God brings good to pass in spite of evil. It is rather that suffering evil is the price man has to pay for blessedness.

Suffering is the cost of progress. Suffering is the price of survival. This is the theme. The apostle would enrich believers to pay the price by suggesting the enormous advantages, the positive great good that accrues from the investment.

Sensitiveness to Pain a Mark of Progress.

It is characteristic of the highest forms of life that they have the power to endure relatively greater and greater measures of pain. The jellyfish is one of the simplest forms of organized matter. Its sensitiveness to pain is almost zero. The most highly developed man is the most complex form of physical life. His sensitiveness to pain is incalculable.

Survival and Submergence.

Primitive man shrank from suffering. Man in his lowest estate to-day seeks to avoid it. Untutored, undisciplined, his first endeavor is to escape. Early in the history of this planet, however, there appeared an individual now and then who dared to strive for good, even though he had to endure terrific pain in the striving. The great majority sank back baffled by unwelcome adversity. The few persisted, enduring incidental affliction in order that they might attain some worthier goal. The difference between the survivors and the submerged millions is the difference between the sufferer and the man who prefers exemption at any price. Every victory of knowledge over ignorance, of science over superstition, of right over wrong has been paid for in terms of agonizing suffering. The man who gave the world the adding machine gave his mind and later his life to accomplish the task. He died in a madhouse.

The Pulse Beat of That Mighty Heart.

The more progress achieved, the higher the price that must be paid. The present day exacts sharper suffering from men than any previous age of human history. Conveniences, comforts, luxuries, facilities, servants, it is true, there are in greater abundance than ever. But do these things spell immunity from

"Pangs of nature, sins of will,
Defects of doubt, and taints of blood?"

Think of it. Insanity and crime and nervous collapse are on the increase. Quick communication makes the American heart shudder the moment an atrocity is committed in Turkey or Russia. Rapid transportation bears the bounty of our quickened sympathy to relieve the starving need of China. Of course, there are countless thousands who yield no response whatever to the quivering of that mighty heart we call humanity. The modern world is for them simply one big opportunity to escape from suffering. They use it to gain ease. They do not serve it to improve it. But by this very fact they class themselves with the already submerged millions. They are themselves submerging. By refusing to suffer they lower themselves in the scale of being.

"(It is) true, O Christ in heaven, that the highest suffer most,
That the mark of rank in nature is capacity for pain,
That the anguish of the singer makes the sweetness of the strain."
—Epworth Era.

Missionary Department.

The object of this department is to broaden the vision of our young people that the church may rear a generation of men and women upon whose hearts the needs of the world lie heavy.

* * *

With this department of the League really at work, it ought to be only a few years before we shall never again hear a Methodist say, "I don't believe in Foreign Missions."

* * *

In brief, this department can give to missions, study missions, pray for missions, work for missions. As a splendid worker has put it, "Some can go, most can give, all can pray."

* * *

In studying mission courses, books and periodicals, we are but obeying the command of the Master when he said, "Lift up your eyes, look on the fields, they are white already unto the harvest."

* * *

If you can, have a separate mission study circle with weekly meetings, but at any rate, every League ought to have some systematic mission study in connection with its monthly missionary meeting. A chapter in "Korea In Transition" could be taken up in each meeting of either kind.

* * *

A League should lose no opportunity to have before them one of our returned missionaries. No influence will make a greater impression of the reality and value of mission work than this.

* * *

It seems to us that the ideal method of giving to missions is when a church accepts and supports its own missionary, for the Sunday school and League to assume a part of the expense and contribute to this plan. But at any rate the more definite the purpose for which the missionary collection is taken the better. Now that the Epworth League Board has adopted a definite field, it would be well for every League possible to join in this. Of this we are persuaded, the League collections for missions should not go on the regular assessments except as a surplus.

* * *

Prayer for missions should in no sense be discounted. Let this not be a formality, but let it be very earnest and very definite. Christ purposed that his followers should pray a world-wide prayer each day when he taught them to say, "Thy Kingdom Come." Missionaries, above everything else, ask that the people at home pray for them. One is inclined to say, "That is so easy to do." But it isn't easy to do it sincerely, for the sincere heart will do all it can to answer its prayer. It is sheer hypocrisy to let praying be our sole effort when there is so much else we can do to further the kingdom. But he who earnestly and sincerely prays, "Thy Kingdom Come," will also be saying, "Lord what wilt thou have me to do?"

* * *

We have read the story of a missionary and his wife who were daily burdened because in their neighboring city of many thousands, there was not a single Christian. Each day the husband prayed that God would send a missionary there, and so the years went on, but each day the same prayer was made. One morning, when the husband had prayed, his wife placed in his hand a package saying, "Here is the answer to your prayer." When he found that it contained her few jewels and mementos of girlhood and home, he protested. But she said, "God has made me see we ought not to continue to pray for a blessing when we have the power to answer the prayer in our own hands." If that spirit should come over our people at home, "Thy Kingdom Come" might soon be an answered prayer.

EDUCATIONAL.

SCIENCE HILL SCHOOL
SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY.

An English and Classical School for Girls. College Preparatory course with certificate privileges at Wellesley, Vassar, Smith, Leland Stanford, Randolph-Macon and other colleges. 86 years of successful work. College trained teachers. Superior advantages in music. MRS. W. T. POINTER, Principal.

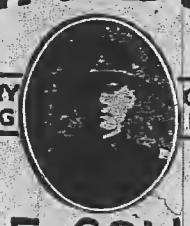
IF YOU ARE PARTICULAR
SEND YOUR SON OR DAUGHTER TO RUSKIN-CAVE COLLEGE
"The School That Cares"

The college that is religious but non-sectarian. Does not tolerate tobacco, football or baseball. No loafing places, for the college owns the village, making the school the safest place for training men and women. Located in a HEALTH RESORT. Only 200 students accepted. Apply Early.

Write to-day for Free book "Character Talks" which tells all about it.

RUSKIN-CAVE COLLEGE, Ruskin, Tenn.

MERIDIAN



MILITARY TRAINING CHRISTIAN INFLUENCE

MALE COLLEGE

In the Health-giving Pine Hills of Mississippi. Beautiful campus and recreation grounds. Dignified, manly athletics encouraged. Brutal games, secret societies, tobacco, etc., prohibited. Preparatory, Collegiate, Theological and Commercial courses. Commercial School open all the year. Enter any time. An IDEAL HOME SCHOOL for your boy where he will receive thorough instruction, morally, mentally and physically. Write for Catalog No. 4

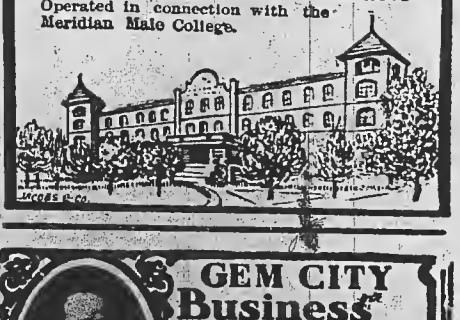
M. A Beeson, D. Sc. Pres. Meridian, Miss.

Meridian Woman's College, a quarter mile distant, is an Ideal place for your sister. Non-sectarian. Christian Influences. Operated in connection with the Meridian Male College.



GEM CITY Business College
Quincy, Ill.

25 teachers, 1400 students, $100,000 School Building, Shorthand and Typewriting, Bookkeeping, etc. 68 page Illustrated Catalogue free.
D. L. MUSSELMAN, Pres't
Box 59, Quincy, Ill.

TREVECCA COLLEGE
—FOR—
CHRISTIAN WORKERS.

A Literary, Missionary, and Bible Training School of an undenominational character. Its primary object is the training of Christian workers, but all Christians are admitted. The Biblical and Theological teaching is practical and spiritual. The literary work is thorough. There has been added a two-years Medical and Nurses' Course for Missionaries.

Missions is given an important place in the course of study, and this subject so vital, is kept before the student. The city affords abundant opportunity for practical work along the various lines of Christian activity, thus the students has not only theory but practice. The rates are very low for the advantages offered. Write for Catalogue.

J. O. McCLURKAN, President,
Nashville, Tenn.

ALABAMA POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTE,
"AUBURN."

The oldest School of Technology in the South. 64 Professors and Instructors. 737 students. 20 well equipped Laboratories. Next session begins Wednesday, Sept. 6th, 1911.

New Buildings: Smith Dining Hall, Carnegie Library, Agricultural Hall, Ehrom Engineering Hall, Dairy and Horticultural Laboratories and Greenhouses.

Departments: I. College of Engineering and Mines—Civil, Electrical, Mechanical and Mining Engineering, Architecture, Mechanic Arts, Technical Drawing, Machine Design, etc. II. College of Agricultural Sciences—Agriculture, Horticulture, Animal Industry, Botany, Entomology, Chemistry and Metallurgy, Pharmacy. III. Academic College—History, English, Mathematics, Latin, German, French, Physics and Astronomy, Political Economy, Psychology. IV. College of Veterinary Medicine.

Expenses: Free tuition to residents of Alabama; $20.00 to non-residents. Board in dormitory and with private families.

For catalogue and further information, address,

CHAS. C. THACH, LL.D., President, Auburn, Ala.

WHEN IT COMES, BE PREPARED.

The SAFE and SAVING WAY of insuring Church and Pastor's property is with THE NAT'L MUTUAL CHURCH INSURANCE CO., OF CHICAGO, ILL.
THE METHODIST MUTUAL. Now in successful operation for years. Business at highest point ever attained, and constantly increasing. Protects against FIRE, LIGHTNING and TORNADO. No assessments. For particulars, address Henry P. Magill, Sec'y & Mgr., 184 LaSalle St., Chicago.
Mrs. Alice Hargrove Barclay, M. E. Church, South, South Brook 1116 Louisville, Kentucky.

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days, usually gives entire relief 15 to 45 days and effects cure 20 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box X, ATLANTA, GA.

Good News for the Deaf.

A celebrated New York Aurist has been selected to demonstrate to deaf people that deafness is a disease and can be treated successfully in your own home. He proposes to prove this fact by sending to any person having trouble with their ears a trial treatment of this new method absolutely free. We advise all people who have trouble with their ears to immediately address Dr. Edward Gardner, Suit No. 480, No. 40 West Thirty-third street, New York City, and we will assure them that they will receive by return mail, absolutely free, a "Trial Treatment."

BUY Building Material BY MAIL

Do not think of building or remodeling until you get our large Free Catalog showing how you can save money on all kinds of building materials. Prices low, quick shipments and quality guaranteed.

THE HUBER BUILDERS MATERIAL CO., 64 Vine St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

Granulated Eye

Lids can be cured quickly by Leonardi's Golden Eye Lotion. Weak, sore and inflamed eyes are cured without pain in one day by Leonardi's. Cools, heals, strengthens. Makes strong eyes.

Guaranteed or money refunded. Druggists sell it at 25c. or forwarded prepaid on receipt of price by S. B. Leonardi & Co., Tampa, Fla.

Nothing can be of substantial or permanent value to a community which does not meet with the approval of Christ. Let us test all things always by that criterion.—Presbyterian of the South.

A Boy's Best Creed.

Be honest, lad, in word and deed,
In all you say and do;
Treat others in your walk of life
As you'd have them treat you;
Don't steal another's precious time
Or blot a spotless name—
You may not think that stealing; 'tis
Dishonest just the same.

Be true—there's nothing half so grand
As character of truth;
Let never trace of falsehood stain
The glory of your youth;
Let every thought you harbor be,
As clear and pure as day;
Sincerity of purpose gleam
In every word you say.

—Selected.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Monroe Dist.—Third Round.

Monroe	July	16
W. Monroe	July	16, 17
Bastrop, at Humphries Chapel	July	22, 23
Farmerville	July	29, 30
Waterproof, at Wesley	Aug.	5, 6
Gilbert, Holy Grove	Aug.	8
Bonita, at Jones	Aug.	12, 13
Lake Providence	Aug.	16
Delhi	Aug.	20, 21
Brooklyn	Aug.	23
Floyd	Aug.	26, 27
Downsville	Aug.	29, 30
Mangham, at Boueff River	Sept.	2, 3
Eros, at Indian Village	Sept.	6
Winnsboro, at Boneff Pralrie	Sept.	9, 10
Rayville	Sept.	13
Florence	Sept.	17, 18
Merrouge	Sept.	20

District Conference will meet in Rayville, July 26, 10 a. m.

S. S. KEENER, P.E.

LaFayette District—Third Round.

Indian Bayou	July	9, 10
Jeanerette	July	15, 16
LaFayette	July	16, 17
St. Martinsville	July	21
Lake Arthur	July	22, 23
Bell City	July	24
Eunice	July	29, 30
Lake Charles	Aug.	5, 6
Sulphur	Aug.	6, 7

J. E. DENSON, P. E.

Ruston District—Third Round.

Bernice, at Summerfield	July	29
Gibbsland, at Mt. Moriah	July	29, 30
Jonesboro, at Jonesboro	Aug.	5, 6
Ringgold, Grand Bayou	Aug.	12, 13
Simsboro, at Antioch	Aug.	16
Beinville, at Bear Creek	Aug.	19, 20
Boyd Mission, at Chestnut	Aug.	21
Arcadia	Aug.	26, 27
Ruston	Aug.	27, 28
Lanesville, at Brushwood	Sept.	2, 3
Lisbon, at New Hope	Sept.	9, 10
Houghton, at Doline	Sept.	16, 17
Cotton Valley, Pleas. Val	Sept.	23, 24
Minden	Sept.	24, 25

R. W. TUCKER, P. E.

Alexandria District—Third Round.

Boyce and Lecompte, at Eden	July	9, 10
Pollock, at Polloci	July	16, 17
Natchitoches at N	July	23, 24
Oakdale and Fullerton, at Spring Hill	July	30, 31
Longville and Merryville, at Fields	August	5, 6
Harrisonburg, at Mt. Hermon	August	12, 13
Jena, at Jena	August	15, 16
Trout	August	17
Columbia, at Stanard	August	20, 21
Marksville, at Bay Hill	August	23, 24
Tioga, at Liberty Chapel	Aug.	27, 28
Alexandria	Sept.	1
Selma	Sept.	3, 4
Opelousas	Sept.	10, 11
Glenmora	Sept.	13
Colfax, at Atlanta	Sept.	17, 18
Melville, at Simmesport	Sept.	24, 25
Bunkie, at Cheneyville	Sept.	26

Special attention will be given to questions 18, 21, and 23.

PAUL M. BROWN, P. E.

EDUCATIONAL

Belmont College

FOR YOUNG WOMEN NASHVILLE, TENN.
IRA LANDRITH, D. D., LL. D., PRES. MISS HOOD AND MISS HERON, PRINCIPALS.

Environment and equipment ideal. Modern buildings surrounded by a beautiful Magnolia park of 20 acres overlooking Nashville, "The Athens of the South." City advantages and country environment. Outdoor sports, athletics and horseback riding. Delightful climate and unsurpassed health conditions. Every provison for safety, comfort and work. Non-sectarian, but distinctively Christian influences prevail, with all the refining atmosphere of home life.

Administration and teaching staff include 50 specialists. Experienced teachers trained in leading Universities of America and Europe. Splendid Conservatory under direction of Edouard Hesselberg, pianist and composer. Most expensively maintained music faculty in the South.

Students from over 30 states. 20 per cent Northern girls. Limited capacity, always filled. Early registration advised. For Catalogue, address

Department 34 BELMONT COLLEGE, Nashville, Tenn.

BINGHAM, Asheville, N. C., has prepared BOYS for College and for Christian Citizenship for 118 years, and ALONE in the U. S., offers a FREE ROUND TRIP TICKET from anywhere within 1500 miles to any parent who, on inspection, is not convinced that its pairs of ONE STORY brick rooms, separated by a parapet FIRE WALL, are the BEST for Health, Sanitation, Ventilation and safety against FIRE. 1793 Send for Catalogue or come and see. COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt., R. F. D. No. 28 1912

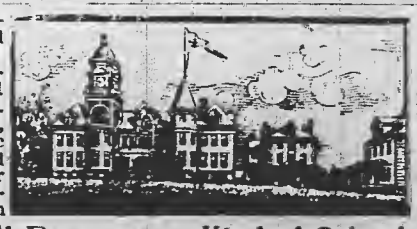
CHAMBERLAIN-HUNT ACADEMY, Port Gibson, Mississippi.

A High Grade Training School for Boys and Young Men.



First class boys wanted. Industrial and Practical in aim Courses on Agriculture and Manual Training just added. Buildings modern, steam heat, electric lights, etc. In old historic section near Vicksburg. No malaria. Among High Hills. Four Optional Courses. Instructors all College Graduates. No Hazing; Military abolished. Some boys reduce expenses by work. Non-sectarian, but Christian. Bible a Text Book. Last session crowded. Cheapest school of its kind in the South.

$180 Pays all Expenses. Kind of School South Needs.

Mention the Advocate. For Catalog address M. R. MELVIN, A. M., Pres.

MARTIN COLLEGE,

An Endowed School for Girls and Young Women.

PULASKI, Tenn. Established 1870. W. T. WYNN, President

Located on Main line of the L. & N. R. R., eighty miles south of Nashville, forty miles north of Decatur, in the beautiful "Blue Grass" region so famous for health and the beauty of its scenery. Cultured community. All departments. German Director of Music. Conservatory and University trained teachers. Modern buildings. Good pianos, new $1000 grand for recitals. Correspondence invited. Forty-first session begins Sept. 20, 1911. Write for catalogue. Address W. T. WYNN, Pulaski, Tennessee.

Morgan School Not Better than Some Others

Morgan School has no better building, the health of the school and town is not superior to some, the Dormitory and Gymnasium are not better than some others in the State.

All these are good enough,

But the standard of character and scholarship is equal to the best and superior to many.

If information is desired, write for catalogue.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal.

FAYETTEVILLE, TENN.

The Mississippi Conference Training School,

MONTROSE, MISS.

A unique Preparatory school for boys and girls with wholesome moral surroundings and positive Christian influence.

Our regular literary course is practical, and prepares for taking the A. B. degree in the best colleges. The Bible is included in our daily recitations.

Our extras are: Music, Expression, and a normal course preparing teachers to teach in the public schools.

Special features are: A Mission Study Class, and a course preparing teachers to teach in the Sunday school. We also have a farm in connection with the school, and boys of moderate means may have the free use of the land and thereby pay expenses.

Write for catalogue.

(Rev.) WALDO W. MOORE, A. M., President.

TRINITY COLLEGE

1859 1892 1910-1911

Three memorable dates: The Granting of the Charter for Trinity College; the Removal of the College to the growing and prosperous City of Durham; the Building of the New and Greater Trinity.

Magnificent new buildings with new equipment and enlarged facilities.

Comfortable hygienic dormitories and beautiful pleasant surroundings.

Five departments: Academic; Mechanical, Civil, and Electrical Engineering; Law; Education; Graduate.

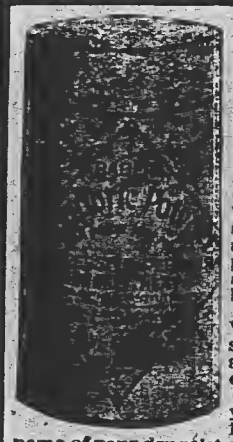
For catalogue and other information, address

R. L. FLOWERS, Secretary, Durham, N. C.

ATLANTA COLLEGE OF PHARMACY

Twenty years of remarkably successful work. Greater demand for our graduates than we can supply. Best attendance south of Philadelphia. Begins October 1. Address

GEORGE F. PAYNE, Ph.G., President, 96 Edgewood Ave., Atlanta, Ga.



BAUER'S CAPORIC POWDER

A positive cure for excessive prespiration and odors arising therefrom, sore and sweaty feet, prickly heat. Fine after shaving and bath.

We will send full sized package postage paid on receipt of twenty-five cents (25c). We will send you a sample FREE if you will give us the name of your druggist or dealer. We guarantee every package. Your money back if not as represented.

DAVE S. BAUER,
DRUGGIST
Mobile, Alabama.

I WILL MAKE YOU PROSPEROUS

If you are honest and ambitious write me today. No matter where you live or what your occupation, I will teach you the Real Estate business by mail; appoint you Special Representative of my Company in your town; start you in a profitable business of your own, and help you make big money at once.

Unusual opportunity for men without capital to become independent for life. Valuable Book and full particulars FREE. Write today.

NATIONAL CO-OPERATIVE REALTY CO.
E. E. HARDEE, President
594 Harden Building, Washington, D. C.

RUBBER STAMPS

We make rubber stamps and accessories of every description, autograph stamps, seals, stamp pads and stamp pad inks. New equipment, expert labor and prompt service—satisfaction guaranteed. Orders shipped same day received.

Write for free illustrated stamp Catalog!

SOUTHERN ADVERTISING CO., Inc.
JACKSON, MISS.

Do You Want a Piano?

Lyon & Healy
27-59 E. Adams Street, Chicago are desirous to have you hear the new Lyon & Healy Piano, which is "Pure in Tone." If you are in the market for a piano, write to Lyon & Healy for the name of the nearest dealer in Lyon & Healy Pianos and you will receive free an order for a beautiful roll of new high-class piano music. The price of the Lyon & Healy Piano is $350 and upward, and you can buy it on easy monthly payments. You owe it to yourself to examine a Lyon & Healy. Write today and mention the order for the music. 251 local dealers sell and recommend the LYON & HEALY Piano.

VISIT
MINERAL WELLS
FOR HEALTH AND PLEASURE
AND
WEST TEXAS
FOR
FINE AGRICULTURAL LANDS
REACHED VIA

THE TEXAS AND PACIFIC RAILWAY — SHREVEPORT — EL PASO

EXCURSION TICKETS ON SALE DAILY.
Free Booklet.

E. P. TURNER,
General Passenger Agent,
DALLAS - - - - - TEXAS

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

Mrs. E. M. HARRIS (nee Tillman) was born in Carroll County, Ga., Dec. 23, 1846. Her parents moved to Columbus, Ga., where she was reared. On Dec. 6, 1866, she was married to John W. Harris. They moved to Louisiana, and in 1868, at Arizona, under the ministry of Brother Cravens she joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and lived until the end of her life on earth a Methodist. The last years of her life she suffered greatly, but with patience waited until the time for her going. A few hours before death, she called her children to give them the parting kiss, and on May 31 she went to join three of her children who had preceded her. She leaves ten children, an aged husband, and many other relatives and friends to mourn their loss. The Lord comfort each!

Her pastor,

W. J. PORTER.

MRS. NORA McNEIL was born in Wilcox County, Ala., July 2, 1845, and died in the Jessie Gates Hospital, near her home in Laurel, Miss., April 12, 1911. She joined the Church when hut a girl, and remained a faithful member as long as she lived. She loved her Church and was always interested in her pastor. She and her noble husband and neice always took pains to make their home a pleasant and comfortable place for the preacher to stop. In her death Kingston Church lost one of its best and truest members. On April 18, 1866, she was happily married to Colonel W. D. McNeil and lived with him 45 years, lacking 6 days. Her devoted husband said: "No man ever had a better nor a more faithful wife." In her home she was ever doing what she could to make life pleasant. She was kind to every- and had many friends. While we all mourn our loss, she is in possession of her eternal inheritance. May God richly bless and comfort the bereaved loved ones and help them to be true and faithful and meet her in a better world!

J. J. GOLDEN, Pastor.

MRS. MARY AGNES TERRELL was born May 1, 1831, and died April 29, 1911, at Bentonia, Miss., in the home of her son, Henry G. Terrell, with whom she lived during the last years of her long and very useful life. On May 13, 1852, Mary Agnes Johnston was married to Mr. James W. Terrell. This union was blessed with two children, both boys. The younger died in childhood, the other lived to minister to his mother in her old age. Mrs. Terrell was left a widow in 1869, during the great struggle that followed the Civil War, but she met the changed conditions of life like the heroine that she was. Mrs. Terrell joined the Methodist Church in her girlhood and lived a most beautiful Christian life. It was the privilege of the writer to know her during the last two years of her life, and she was truly a good woman. She literally walked by faith and not by sight; though being totally blind, she was bright and happy. Her faith in God was strong, and her life was devout and consecrated. May the God of all grace comfort the loved ones! Her pastor,

L. L. ROBERTS.

Flora, Miss.

Death has visited the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Potts, and taken from their presence a bright little jewel, little BEATRICE, aged 22 months, having been born Aug. 18, 1909, and having died June 12, 1911, after an illness of several days. All that loving hands could do to save her, was done, but without avail. She was called to live with Jesus. She leaves a father, mother, four sisters, a brother and other relatives to mourn their loss. It was hard, indeed, to say good-bye to little Beatrice, but "God's will be done, not ours." They will miss her sweet smiles so much! Her funeral service was held by Brother T. A. Jones, after which she was laid to rest, to await the resurrection when we shall all meet again. Let us try not to complain since God thought it best.

E. G. G.

JOE M. WHITE was born in Monroe County, Ga., Nov. 26, 1824, and died in Houer, La., April 23, 1911. He joined the Methodist Church when he was twenty-one years old at County Line Church, Ga., during camp meeting. In December, 1847, he married Martha Ann Mack Philips, who preceded him to the better world last August. He came to Louisiana in December, 1858, and settled near Haynesville, Claiborne Parish. He had seven children and he rejoiced in the fact that he saw all of them profess religion. In his later years blindness came upon him, but with cheerfulness he bore his affliction and ended his useful career surrounded by his loved ones and hearing a clear-cut testimony to the saving power of the gospel. He was a man of remarkable steadfastness of character, and was methodical in all his habits. Beyond the pathless mountains that lift their blue peaks in the fading distance, is a charming valley that drinks the diamond dews of morning and bathes in the liquid sunbeams, that is clad in the everlasting green and dotted all over with the flowers of every hue and shade, and there, beyond the flush and the brightness of the stars, the bereaved will meet again their loved one to part no more.

ALBERT S. LUTZ.

"All things are yours, life or death, things present or things to come, all are yours and ye are Christ's, and Christ is God's." Thus writes the greatest of all the apostles, St. Paul. It is difficult for us to comprehend and rightly appreciate these statements of this inspired man of God; especially is this true when we are called to pass through the dark places of life. There was a sadness and gloom cast over not only the immediate family, but the entire church and neighborhood, by the death of BRO. J. T. YOUNG, of New Salem Church (of typhoid pneumonia), which occurred April 29, 1911. Brother Young was a son of Hugh and Tabitha Young, and was born near Slate Springs in Calhoun County, Miss., March 16, 1854. He was converted and joined the Methodist Church at Springhill in Webster County, under the ministry of the Rev. W. S. Lagrone in August, 1873. Brother Young was one of the truest and best men of his church and community, often giving counsel, advice and encouragement to the distressed and down-hearted, and helping in every way possible the needy. He was, indeed, the pastor's friend, always ready with his counsel, prayers and money to help advance the cause of his Lord. Brother Young had the confidence of his brethren in the church, and those that knew him best loved him most. He served often in the capacity as trustee, steward and Sunday school superintendent. A more congenial friend and brother the writer has never known. His home was the preacher's home, and such a home! The father, was, indeed, the head of the house in the highest and best sense. Brother Young was sick only a few days, and just after he was taken sick he told his wife that he was ready to go, that he was at peace with God and man, and "resting under the shadow of the Most High." Brother Young leaves a wife, three daughters and two sons, and a host of friends to mourn for him. We would commend them to Him that is able to comfort and lead through this dark and trying hour!

We shall meet again.

His former pastor,

D. M. GEAN.

ICE CREAM

1 Cent a Dish

If Ice Cream could only take the place of meat as the substantial dish at dinner a great deal of money would be saved.

for

Ice Cream, which has always been considered a luxury, costs less, made from

JELL-O ICE CREAM Powder

than meat. Its actual cost is about one cent a dish.

And it is good, substantial food, too.

Dissolve Jell-O Ice Cream Powder in milk and freeze. That is all there is to do.

Flavors: Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon, Chocolate, and Unflavored.

At Grocers', 10 cents a package.

Beautiful Recipe Book Free.

The Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

GINSENG RAISING Is the surest way to make big money on little capital. One acre yields thousands of dollars a year. Sells for $6 to $7.50 lb. Will buy all you raise. Easily grown anywhere. Requires your spare time only. Could you realize how rapidly you can make money honestly, you'd write me today. T. H. Sutton, 406 Sherwood Ave., Louisville, Ky.

ESTABLISHED 1858
CHURCH AND SCHOOL BELLS
Write for SPECIAL DONATION PLAN Cat. No. 57
THE C. S. BELL COMPANY, HILLSBORO, O.

LAGRIPPE
BAD COLDS
NEURALGIA

Quickly cured by Johnson's Chill and Fever Tonic. Drives every trace and taint of Grip poison from the blood. 50 cents if it cures—not one penny if it fails. At all drug stores.

Your Summer Trip,

Whether to the North, East or West, should be made via the

Illinois Central

Low Summer Tourist Fares now in Effect.

Let us assist in planning your trip.

Write or call at
ILLINOIS CENTRAL OFFICE
141 St. Charles St.

W. H. BRILL, Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ED RODDY, City Pass. Agt

QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Best & Quickest Service
TO ALL
IMPORTANT DESTINATIONS
In the North & East

Summer Tourist Tickets now on Sale to all Mountain, Lake and Seaside Resorts.

—Ticket Office—
211 ST. CHARLES STREET
Phone Main 4482
Terminal Station---Canal Street

MRS. JULIA HARRIET ENOCHS

An Appreciation

Mrs. Julia Harriet Enochs, daughter of S. E. F. Byrd and Sarah Byrd, was born March 17, 1839, in Hinds County, where she continued to reside after her marriage to Capt. I. V. Enochs in 1855 until his death in 1895, when she moved to Biloxi and lived with her daughter till March 31, 1911, when God took her to be with Himself and her loved ones who have preceded her. She was buried in Crystal Springs, April 1, 1911.

Of the seven children born unto Capt. and Mrs. Enochs two remain, Byrd Enochs and Mrs. W. A. White.

Sister Enochs possessed in her childhood home a large inheritance. It was a home of that type of Methodism which has made the church great in godliness and usefulness; so that early in life she surrendered herself to God. As a result, when but sixteen years of age she undertook the responsibilities of the wife, she was well prepared for the duties that came to her. The foundation of her home was upon Christian principles, and happiness and usefulness reigned within it. The children God committed to her guardianship showed the touch and character formation of a mother who knew the King and dwelt in His kingdom. In her home the minister of the gospel found true sympathy and always a welcome. Though marked in fidelity to the Methodist church, every minister of whatever faith found a glad welcome. For forty years the residence of Capt. Enochs was a place from which proceeded large intluence for all that was good. When through the providence of God Sister Enochs moved to Biloxi, that community gained a matured Christian. Some Christians possess the power to do good, but with it there is also seen so often things unbecoming the followers of Jesus Christ. In Julia Harriet Enochs the evil seemed to have all been eradicated and sainthood reigned. Her life was plethoric with acts of kindness and good works. She delighted to do for others and thought so little of herself. So often she might have claimed exemption from serving because of difficullies or frailty of the body, but the joy of her life was to minister; it was a spontaneous loving service that expected no return to hersell. She marred no act of mercy with selfishness. She never harmed nor injured.

For many years it was my privilege to know Sister Enochs intimately, and not once was there a complaint from injury done her nor unkind remarks about any, it mattered little what might be the cause for provocation. Whether suffering physical pain or sadness of spirit, her faith always triumphed and there was no complaint.

Sister Enochs was a tower of strength to her pastor; she knew how to encourage and strengthen him. Unusually gifted in prayer for one so retiring in disposition, she would, when called upon, lift all into that presence where she lived. Broad in her vision of Christian usefulness and the world wide mission of the gospel, as a tribute to her labors and deeming her well worthy the honor, the Biloxi Woman's Missionary Society years ago made her a life member.

It is not surprising that during the latter days of her last illness it seemed that the body was left upon earth while the spirit was caught up into glory and heard those things that belong to Him who has overcome all the conflicts of life. Her room was as if God dwelt there and His angels her ministering servants. As the Comforter would speak to her, with fervency she would praise her Lord.

A great woman has gone to her reward. Great in the beautiful things of the human heart, enriched with the truths that moth and rust do not corrupt, it was her privilege lo make the world richer and better. With what gladness did she hear and with what gladness did her Master say, "Well done thou good and faithful servant!" H. W. VANHOOK.

FROM BROTHER SANDELL.

Dear Brother Meek: The Advocate of this date was received this morning. I am still able to do some work in the garden. It has been my custom for many years to cultivate the vegetable garden; but sickness during the first three months of this year made it late before I commenced this task. Then the dry weather came on us here and our vegetables are failing very fast. After working about two hours this morning, I went into the house very tired; after about an hour's rest I took up the Advocate, hoping to find something to strengthen my physical and spiritual nature, and build up my mental structure; and I was not disappointed.

It is probable that I am only one of many who are growing in grace and the knowledge of the Lord Jesus Christ by the help of the Advocate.

I read the first three pages at one sitting before dinner; the editorial, "The Effects of Sin;" the communications, "The God of All Comfort," "More With Us," "Little Bits," and "The New Theology, or the Old Gospel—Which?"—all edifying.

Just after finishing the last article the call to dinner was heard, and I was ready for that. I thank the Lord for all blessings, and that includes the Advocate. For dinner we had bread and meat and beans and rice, biscuit and custard and ice tea, and pure well water after eating. I have had about the same articles of diet for a long lifetime. I have found these articles to be good for many, if taken in moderation. It is the old diet. It is the same with the old gospel, which Jesus promised to be with to the end of the world. I know very little about the new theology. I have read Dr. Gross Alexander's article in the "Review," which I think is a timely warning to our young preachers. It is not the kind of food that our people need in this age of inventions. They need the bread of life which is promised in the gospel, and which Jesus said would preserve men unto eternal life.

Now, Bro. Meek, I just want to emphasize the truth that this gospel of repentance toward God and faith in Jesus Christ is the only way of salvation for men.

J. W. SANDELL.

June 15, 1911.

COMMENDATORY RESOLUTIONS.

The following resolutions were adopted at the recent session of the Oxford District Conference, in session at Charleston, Miss.:

Whereas, the four years' limit will not permit the return of our Presiding Elder, J. E. Cunningham, to this district, therefore be it

Resolved, That we hereby express our heart-felt appreciation of his life and labors among us. His soul culture, his gentle Christian bearing at all times, his brotherly devotion to his fellow-laborers, his loyalty to the church, and self-sacrificing service for the good of the cause which he represents, have charmed us, challenged our admiration and made us better. His efficient administration of the affairs of the district has been productive of most gratifying results. A study of the minutes for the past years shows considerable growth in membership, finances, and other departments of church life.

2. That we pledge Brother Cunningham our fullest help in making this closing year of his quadrennium the best in the history of the district; and that we assure him and his excellent family of our interest in their future work for the church, and record our sincere regret that the relations now existing betwen us must be severed.

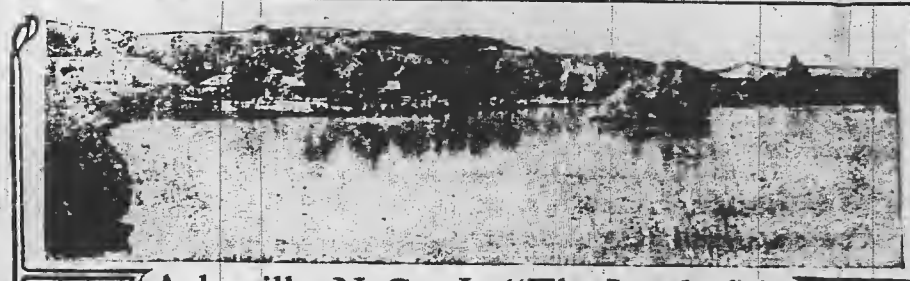
3. That we commend him and his family to any people among whom their lot may be cast as worthy of the fullest confidence and most loyal co-operation.

HIBERNIA INSURANCE CO.,

Capital.....$200,000.00
Assets..... 479,860.90

No. 305 Camp Street., New Orleans, La

LOSSES PROMPTLY PAID.



Asheville, N. C.—In "The Land of the Sky" Is the Ideal Spot to Spend Your Vacation.

The Climate is superb, being 2,250 feet above the sea level, is high above humid, sultry and less favored sections—it is healthful, invigorating and strengthening. Asheville has the purest water and most beautiful scenery in the world. Hotel and boarding house accommodations are unsurpassed. Beautiful roads for motoring and driving, golf, tennis, bowling and every imaginable attraction for recreation and amusement. Biltmore House, the magnificent home of Mr. Geo. W. Vanderbilt, and the finest country estate in existence, is situated here and open to visitors three days each week. Asheville people are hospitable and you'll enjoy every minute you stay here. Make your arrangements to come to Asheville this summer—cheap rates from all points.

For Handsome Illustrated Booklet Describing Asheville, Write

Board of Trade,
Asheville, N. C.

Source of Asheville's Water Supply.

LOUISIANA RAILWAY
(La. R'y & Nav. Co.)

—THE SHORT LINE BETWEEN—
Shreveport; Alexandria;
Baton Rouge; New Orleans.

THE COMFORTABLE ROUTE FOR PASSENGERS
QUICKEST ROUTE FOR FREIGHT

LESS THAN CARLOAD SHIPMENTS HAULED IN PACKAGE CARS IN THROUGH TRAINS.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION.

Whereas our Heavenly Father, whose love and wisdom is unquestioned by his faithful children, has called from among us our beloved friend and brother, THOMAS J. WESTBROOK, a man of great worth and merit, and whereas, we deem it a great privilege to offer some testimony of our esteem for him, our appreciation of his life and example, and our sympathy for his bereaved family, be it resolved by the third quarterly conference of the Aberdeen District, Buena Vista charge:

First—That in the sudden death of this noble Christian man, Ebenezer Church has lost a great steward and Sunday school superintendent; his friends, a friend of whom they could justly be proud; his brothers, sisters and relatives, one whose life to them was a blessing; his children a worthy father to whom they were greatly attached, and his wife, the one to whom she looked for her life's happiness.

Second—That he was a man in the fullest sense, strong, earnest, faithful, industrious, and generous. He practiced the Christian graces in the walks of life. His lofty ideals and winning personality won for him a host of friends who will ever remember him as one of the truest and best of Southern gentlemen.

Third—That we believe the call found him ready, and that while we deplore the fact that we will never again on earth meet his pleasant face and feel his hearty handclasp, we rejoice in the hope of meeting him again in the home of the blest.

Fourth—That these resolutions be placed upon the minutes of the conference, that a copy be sent to his bereaved family and one to the New Orleans Christian Advocate for publication.

Signed by: J. B. Naugle, J. M. Valliant, Dr. Guinn.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children, 50c.

The Sunday School.

LOUISIANA NOTES.

By Rev. F. O. Lowrey.

At the Chantilla Schoolhouse, near Jonesville, on the Harrisonburg charge, a Sunday school was organized June 25, with Mr. W. P. Adams superintendent and Mr. Willie Taylor, secretary and treasurer. When it was learned that it would take about $10 to supply the school with necessary literature, a visitor from a near-by sawmill instructed the pastor to order the literature and draw on him for any deficit.

* * *

On June 2, from 8 to 10 p. m., Miss Mary. L. Howell, superintendent, gave her junior department of the Lake Charles Sunday school a splendid social, with games refreshments and stories. The admission ticket was the pupils work book with the quarter's work filled out in good shape. This inspired the lagging pupils with unusual zeal and brought the work up to a good standard. There are thirty-five pupils enrolled in the department, and eight teachers, beside the superintendent.

* * *

At the Ruston Epworth League Conference the delegates were met by the courteous and well trained Boy Scouts, who took their grips, escorted them to their places of entertainment, and showed them every possible courtesy. Rev. W. H. Coleman, who has established an enviable reputation in Ruston as the children's friend, is the leader in this movement, though the other pastors in the city have co-operated with him.

* * *

On June 18 the first and second grades of the Lake Charles Juniors enjoyed an exhibit of Chinese curios by little Miss Julia Watkins, whose aunt, Miss Janie Watkins, is a missionary in China. She held each curio up and in her own childish and interesting way explained its meaning, as they had learned it from her auntie herself. This exercise occupied the opening service hour on missionary Sunday. Although the Ruston Church is new, and a good one, the Sunday school room is inadequate to the needs now existing, and a plan is on foot to enlarge the Sunday school facilities. One man leads off with a $200 subscription, and the work will no doubt be pushed to completion.

* * *

At Jonesville a Home Department has been organized with Mrs. E. M. Grayson, superintendent; and a cradle roll department, with Mrs. O. L. Marvin, superintendent. Miss Levia Yancey was chosen teacher of a teachers' training class, and an organized Bible class is to follow. Programs were ordered for Children's Day, and a new supply of song and class record books, and a wall map of Palestine were also sent for. Mr. L. F. Wiggins is the consecrated young superintendent, and Mrs. C. W. Yancey the efficient secretary.

* * *

As a result of a revival at Jonesville the last of April, the Sunday school has doubled its enrollment. The people of the town have been enlisted in church work, the installing of new seats being one of the immediate results. The L. and A Railroad extension now being made to Natchez is expected to reach Jonesville before the end of the year, and with the magnificent country surroundings, a splendid town is sure to be built up.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Rev. B. F. Lewis.

The objective of an Adult Bible Class is not merely to study the Sunday school lesson, but "the other man." An Adult Bible Class that is not reaching out for "the other man," has failed to grasp the real purpose of its existence.

* * *

The field secretary is meeting with much encouragement in her work. Into nearly every charge that she has gone, Sunday schools have been found doing good work, with the pastor, Sunday school superintendents and teachers striving to better conditions. Many of the schools are preparing to organize, grade, and introduce the graded literature. The experience of the past thirty days emphasizes the necessity of continuing this character of work.

* * *

Grading a Sunday school cannot be accomplished in one Sunday. The mere separation of scholars into classes by age, or any other arbitrary rule, is not grading. Other things must be taken into consideration—the school, the class, the teacher, the scholar, the purpose. It is better to begin with the lower grades than the higher. One Sunday school began grading thus, and set eighteen months as the minimum time in which to complete the work. Two years have passed, and the work is just being finished. None of the work done thus far will have to be abandoned or done over. It takes time and patience.

* * *

Many Sunday school superintendents, having inadequate class-room facilities, hesitate to undertake thorough organization and grading. But a few screw eyes, a handfull of brass rings, a few feet of telephone wire, a few yards of cloth, a few deft fingers, and a little ingenuity will overcome, to some extent, this difficulty. Screw-eyes placed in the front, back, and side walls of the auditorium, wire stretched from front to back, and side to side, with curtains suspended therefrom, gives four isolated class rooms in the four corners of the church, while a few cheap screws will give as many more as may be needed. Some schools have tried this plan and found it admirable. These curtains, draped against the walls of the church, do not interfere with the church services, nor materially mar the appearance. "Out of Zion the perfection of beauty, God hath shined," but nowhere has Jehovah sacrificed utility to artistic finish.

NEWS AND NOTES

By Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick.

Read Dr. Joseph Clarke's "Fishin' for Men." As Timothy Standby he has made himself noted as well as loved. This book should be in the hands of the clergy and laity, as well as all.

* * *

This good summer time lends itself to sociability and personal contact, and it is devoutly to be boped that all Sunday School people will exert themselves to win members, to hold institutes and conventions, and to enthuse as many persons as possible in this great work.

* * *

There should be a home missionary or "angel adjutant," as it were, in every organized class of men or women, who will be ready and willing, yea, who will hasten to all the town and urban Sunday Schools within reach on Sabbath afternoon, help them organize, take them new literature and methods and assist them in every way possible.

Such real joy comes from this work—the joy of helping others—and the heart feels the joy reflected when a duty is well done.

* * *

Mrs. Neblett's fine class in Houston, Miss., has quite doubled itself in these last days. They have a fine, compact organization, a really magnetic enthusiasm and a most capable teacher, and will soon rank with the largest classes in the Conference.

Mrs. Wadworth's class in Winona is increasing by leaps and bounds, and is a close second to this good Houston class. Nothing is so indicative of the increase in interest of all the people in the Sunday school as the growth of these adult classes.

General sociability, if not merely conventional, promotes broader views and mutuality of interest. The very meeting of people, even of those whose motives are mean and sordid, is in some degree uplifting; hence what joy, help and uplift must come from the meeting of good people with good and world-love motives. The time may come when all the forces which make for sociability will have made our Christendom of one heart, if not of one mind.

The social emphasis has summer for its largest field of usefulness. Statistics tell that it is the season of rampant crime and evil suggestion, so the social workers in this great Sunday School army must be wonderfully wise and loving during these days.

Will not each one take it on his or her heart to be the guiding star to one wandering soul?

* * *

The Sunday school teacher must search the Scriptures.

(John 2:12-13; 5:39.)

Seriously—Acts 17:11; 2 Tim. 2:15.

Earnestly—Joshua 1:8; Psalms 119:12.

Anxiously—John 20:31; Psalms 119:9.

Regularly—Acts 17:11; Psalms 1:2.

Carefully—Luke 24:27; 2 Tim. 3:16-17.

Humbly—Luke 24:45; James 1:22.

The second means of grace never to be neglected is prayer, and indeed no class, teacher or school can progress or radiate all good things without earnest, believing and frequent prayer to the source of every good and perfect gift.

How to pray—Job 37:19; Hosea 14:2; Matt. 6:7-8; 18:19; Luke 11:1-4.

When to pray—Psalm 5:3; 55:17; 86:3; 88:1-13; 142:8; Acts 16:25; Luke 18:1; 2 Chron. 33:13.

Where to pray—Psalms 61:2; 2 Chron. 20:9; Matt. 6:6.

The Druggist Knew From Experience.

I have been selling Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-root for the past three years and those of my customers who buy it speak favorably regarding it. I have used it in my own family with good results, and I believe the preparation has great curative value. You may use this as you like.

Very respectfully,
C. B. RUPE & SON,
By C. B. Rupe, Mgr.,
Seymour, Texas.

Personally appeared before me this 20th day of July, 1909, C. B. Rupe, Druggist, who subscribed the above statement and made oath that the same is true in substance and in fact.

R. C. JANES,
J. P. and Ex-Officio.

Letter to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You.

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention the Christian Advocate. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

KOGER PEA & BEAN THRESHER

Guaranteed to thresh Cow Peas and Soy Beans from the vines and not break over two per cent of the grain.

WRITE FOR FREE ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE

"DOES NOT BREAK THE GRAIN."

Giving in detail the superior advantages of this machine. Requires the least amount of power, and produces the greatest amount of work. Also threshes Oats, Wheat, Velvet Beans, Rice, Millet and Sorghum.

Write us to day.

Koger Pea & Bean Thresher Co.
Morristown, Tenn.

WHERE SHALL I GO FOR MY HEALTH?

Asheville, North Carolina.

The Biggs Sanitarium is located in the most beautiful and most healthful region of the United States. It is fully equipped with modern appliances, employs all the most successful modes of treatment, and offers unexcelled advantages for the up-building of health and strength.

Our equipment affords every facility for the efficient application of electricity, massage, movement cure, osteopathy, physical culture, high frequency, X-ray, mechanical vibration, hydro-therapy, electric light baths, steam baths, medicated baths, dry hot-air, regulated diet, hygiene, and many other means of cure. Special apparatus for treatment of paralysis, rheumatism and joint affections. Also special apparatuses for treatment of catarrh, asthma and bronchitis.

No Drugs---No Surgery

Our methods have been remarkably successful in digestive disorders, neurasthenia, paralysis (including infantile paralysis), rheumatism, kidney and bladder diseases, and special diseases of men and women.

No cases of tuberculosis, cancer, insanity, or any contageous diseases accepted. Hundreds of the best people in the South have found health and strength through our methods.

Names of former patients, physicians, ministers, lawyers, merchants, bankers, farmers, teachers, and others who recommend our treatment sent on request.

If drugs have failed to cure you—write for FREE book which tells all about this new and better way.

The Biggs Sanitarium

ASHEVILLE :: :: N. C.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

VOL. 58—No. 28. "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which is Good." WHOLE No. 2891.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JULY 13, 1911.

CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.
Office, No. 512 Camp St.

IF I SHOULD DIE TO-NIGHT.

(The author of this poem is unknown, but it has been found worthy of a place in Mr. Slason Thompson's "Humbler Poets." And we think it deserves even higher rank than has been accorded it. Ben King, the Michigan poet, wrote a very famous parody on this poem, and recited it the night he died at Bowling Green, Ky.)

If I should die to-night,
My friends would look upon my quiet face
Before they laid it in its resting place,
And deem that death had left it almost fair;
And, laying snow white flowers against my hair,
Would smooth it down with tearful tenderness,
And fold my hands with lingering caress—
Poor hands, so empty and so cold to-night!

If I should die to-night,
My friends would call to mind, with loving thought,
Some kindly deed the icy hands had wrought,
Some gentle word the frozen lips had said;
Errands on which the willing feet had sped;
The memory of my selfishness and pride,
My hasty words, would all be put aside,
And so I should be loved and mourned to-night.

If I should die to-night,
Even hearts estranged would turn once more to me,
Recalling other days remorsefully;
The eyes that chill me with averted glance
Would look upon me as of yore perchance,
And soften, in the old familiar way;
For who could war with dumb, unconscious clay?
So I might rest, forgiven of all, to-night.

O, friends, I pray to-night,
Keep not your kisses for my dead, cold brow—
The way is lonely, let me feel them now.
Think gently of me; I am travel worn;
My faltering feet are pierced with many a thorn.
Forgive, O, hearts estranged, forgive I plead!
When dreamless rest is mine I shall not need
The tenderness for which I long to-night.

(Anonymous.

"ENOCH WALKED WITH GOD."

Then he was never alone. Some people complain that they are lonely in the world. They say no one loves them, no one cares for them, no one understands them, no one calls to see them. The world is cold, their neighbors are not neighborly. Let these lonely people seek the acquaintance of God and they will lose their loneliness. They will have One to love them, One to care for them, One who will not only call on them, but abide with them. They will have company, the best company in the world. They will have a Friend and Companion who will be true, who will never betray them, never forget them, never forsake them. One can trust in this Friend. One can safely confide to him the profoundest secrets Enoch was never lonely, never alone. There are many men now who are never alone. Wherever they go God is with them. On the land and on the sea, at home and abroad, everywhere the Lord is at their right hand.

If Enoch walked with God he walked uprightly. No one can walk with God and in the way of the transgressor at the same time. "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the counsel of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful." One who does these things does not walk with God. Sin is a dividing, separating force. So soon as Cain murdered his brother he became a wanderer. His sin separated him from his kindred. He was driven by an inward force of moral gravity to go out and go away. So soon as the son made up his mind to live an evil life he separated himself from his home. So soon as the devil entered into Judas he went out from the company of Jesus and his brethren. He could stay no longer. He could not walk with Jesus to the last. Walking with God means walking uprightly. One cannot be at home in the company of a good man and be guilty of even a secret sin. Much less can he be at home with God.

When Enoch walked with God he was not afraid. The world was full of dangers then, as it is now, but none of these things troubled his mind. If one has a powerful friend at his right hand all the time his fears vanish. "The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear? The Lord is the strength of my life, of whom shall I be afraid?" Let those be afraid who are far from God, but so long as he is at my right hand I shall never be moved. Fear is a terrible thing. Some men are all their lifetime subject to bondage through fear. There are many ways of getting rid of fear, but the best way is to walk with God.

It is saying much to say of a man that he walked with God. This was nearly all that was ever recorded of Enoch, and this was enough. To walk with God is more than to invent an airship, or a telegraph, or a steam locomotive, or to write a great poem, or discover a continent. Happy will it be for us if after we are gone men may say that we walked with God. Enoch did something which caused him to be remembered many centuries. He lived thousands of years ago. Many centuries have elapsed since he walked on the earth. Yet his memory has been preserved unto our day. What makes him to be remembered? One thing: He walked with God.

He lived in a dark time, but walked in the light. He lived in a time of abounding wickedness, but walked uprightly. Walking with God he entered into glory. "He was not, for God took him." What a beautiful way to speak of death. To most men death seems terrible. It is hard to die because one must go alone. If he could take his wife and children and friends with him he would not dread the journey so much. But he must leave all and go alone. Not so did Enoch die. "God took him." The Companion of his earthly pilgrimage took him. No one wants to die alone. No one needs to die alone. Walk with God and he will fold your ransomed soul to his loving heart and take you home.—New York Christian Advocate.

HENRY WARD BEECHER'S VIEW OF DEATH.

(An extract from one of Mr. Beecher's sermons, delivered when at the height of his fame.)

I have known morbid people to speculate as to how they were going to look in their coffins. I have known grown people who were full of imagination about the grave. Death is not only heathenish, but barbarous, in their thought.

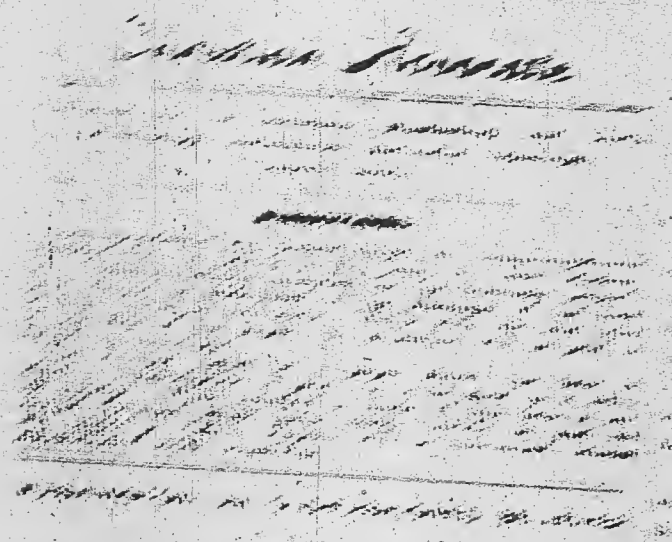
I never think of dying except with pleasure, as I would of translation. To me the mere passing through is nothing; it may be a little longer or a little shorter. I have always hoped it would be very short. I may horrify some people by saying it, but I pray God will give me sudden and instantaneous death. I would rather die by being struck by lightning than die with consumption. If it be God's will that I should become old and tottling, and grow feebler and feebler before I die, I am willing that it should be so; but if I were left to my choice, I should like to break off short, and die a strong man, in the middle of battle; but that is for God to decide, and not for me.

Dying to me is not at all the humiliation of the body. It is the exaltation of the spirit. It is the emergence of the soul from its outward form. It is our development out of this sphere into a higher one. It is not the ushering of men into a state of weakness and gloom. It is the inauguration of a condition of power and joy. It is the moving of the soul in the direction of amplitude and glory. It is the endowing of the soul with the riches of immortal life in its highest forms and its greatest beneficences.

I do not know that a nightingale, sitting in the twilight and singing with all its little soul, has the least idea that the whole neighborhood is charmed with its song; but I can conceive that a soul may be in such a blessed state of experience that it may, like a nightingale, charm the wide circles in heaven with inspiring music.

The Apostle did not care to be unclothed; he did not care to get rid of his burden, except by overcoming it through divine grace; but he desired to be clothed upon. He desired a better manhood—spiritual manhood, heavenly manhood. He did not take a gloomy view of suffering and death, as some are given to doing. I do not think of anything black or smirching when I think about death. I think of gold and precious stones and flashing wings. Some men think of an iron gate with an ugly, grim, jailer, who, with a big key, that is not rusty, turns it often. I think of a "pearly gate," as Milton calls it, which turns on golden hinges. Some men think of dying as they think of disease. I think of dying as the flight of the bird—higher and higher into the purer ether.

Now it seems to me that no thought of death is valid or right which does not leave you stronger, more joyous, happier. I am not going to die downward. I am not going to die toward hell. I mean, by the grace of God, to die toward heaven. And I am going to think of it so as to take some comfort of it beforehand. I am going to shake the tree of life so that if I do not get the golden fruit here, some leaves shall drop down for the healing of my heart.



At
near burg orga
Ada
Tay
Wh take with fron pas dra

O
Ma her
Ch cia sto pu wo ins us to fiv
m su

C
th
S
th
a t e l t
t
c

[illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible]

many places. I will give you several examples: Camaguey, the most fanatical city on the island, has been stirred like Ephesus of old. Over one hundred people want to come into our church, yet the chapel there will not contain more than one hundred and fifty, and has to be used for both the Cuban and the American congregations. Twenty-five hundred dollars would relieve this congested condition. This amount will be spent by many of our Southern Methodists on a pleasure trip to Europe this summer.

Another case: Santa Clara, the capital of the province of the same name, is in sore need of enlargement also. We have one hundred and thirty candidates waiting to be received into the church, and during our meetings here, in order to accommodate the audiences, the pastor has had to rent chairs, and to remove doors and windows and seat people in the yard. One thousand dollars here would bring relief for the next ten years.

Last, but not least, we have Havana—three hundred thousand people in that great city, the seat of our Candler College. Yet we have no church building. Brethren, we are giving all we have—ourselves, our lives; can you not give us some of your money and personal interest?

Again, we are receiving letters every day asking for other meetings. The members and friends of our churches in other places feel that this is the propitious moment, the hour of opportunity, and we need funds to lengthen the campaign. A postal to Bishop Candler will bring you all the information you may need in regard to the work in Cuba and the present campaign. We crave the prayers of the church in this great work, and beg you to remember us when you pray: "Thy Kingdom come, Thy will be done on earth." Your servant in Christ. H. W. BAKER.

Santiago de Cuba, June 17, 1911.

COMMENDATION AND ELSE.

By Rev. H. P. Lewis.

The year is over half gone, and I have not reported to headquarters or elsewhere. Even a superanuuate ought to report occasionally, in order, if nothing else, that the brethren may know of his whereabouts and what he is doing. I have not been as active this year as last, for reasons best known by persons advanced in age. I said to an old man fifteen years ago, "I discover I am more feeble than I was a few years ago." His reply was, "Ah! my brother, I am sorry to inform you that you will feel the infirmities of age more and more every year." So it is. I am sure I did not superannuate too soon. While I enjoy going and preaching as much as ever, my physical strength will not admit of my going as I once did.

Early in the year, through the courtesy of Rev. J. T Leggett, presiding elder of the Brookhaven District, I talked to a small congregation at Crystal Springs. One good brother gave me $5, and told me my talk did him good. I felt like thanking God and taking courage. Sometimes it helps a preacher, especially us older ones, to know somebody was helped by our preaching. I preached at the "Seashore Camp Ground" a short while before Bishop Keener passed to his home on high. On my return to the "Wesley Hall" with other brethren, some one said to me, "Bishop Keener wishes to see you." I remembered the Bishop was in the congregation and gave close attention while I preached. On reaching the Bishop, he extended his hand and said, "Brother Lewis, I enjoyed your sermon; it did me good, and I felt like I ought to tell you so." I bowed my head and wept. I felt humble and grateful. Dr. Richard Abby, late of the Mississippi Conference, seldom, if ever, failed to speak encouragingly to a brother preacher whose sermon helped him. His custom was to go to the brother, take him by the hand, whisper in his ear, "Your sermon helped me," then walk out and go home. He was so unlike a certain D.D. elsewhere in our State who seldom failed to criticise, sometimes a little severely, when he heard a sermon. I suppose that it is right sometimes.

When I was a young preacher, after preaching the best I could on one occasion, I called on a brother to conclude with prayer. He did so. Among other things in his prayer, he told the Lord he reckoned the young preacher did the best he could. Yes, I had done the best I could, but I did not feel like shouting when the brother said so in his prayer. I preached in Rocky Springs more than fifty years ago, then called on Brother Owen (Little Tommy Owen we called him) to conclude. He said, on rising to his feet, "We will be dismissed," and pronounced the benediction. Some one said, "Uncle Tommy, what is the matter with you to-day? You usually give us a talk!" His reply was, "I really thought the benediction was the best part of the service." I said nothing, but have often thought of the matter. That was in 1860.

I have during the year preached twice at D'Lo, twice at Harrisville, once at Bethany, all on Brother R. T. Nolen's work. I found Brother Nolen doing well. His people seem fond of him. I have preached twice in Brandon, and find the young preacher there doing well. His people love him. While at Brandon I went around to the courthouse and saw the place where I sat when I received my first appointment, more than fifty-three years ago. The third Sunday in May I was at Montrose. I preached four times while there. One brother said to me, "We have the best preacher we ever had and the best pastor." The school there (Montrose Training School) is in good hands and is prospering. At Vancleave I spent ten days, preached three times and conducted one prayer meeting. Everything is working well. The preacher and people seem to be in love with each other. That was a wonderful meeting at Mt. Pleasant where Wiley Ferguson helped Jim. The last Sunday in April, I preached twice at Porter's Chapel, near Vicksburg, on the Oak Ridge work. Brother Massey, the pastor, is doing nicely. It was quite a treat to get back to one of my old charges. We had dinner on the ground and a good congregation. In the afternoon I baptized two children whose parents were Episcopalians. I found Wash Ferguson the same big, big-hearted man he was years ago. We need more such men. I have preached four times here in Jackson: twice at Rankin Street Church, once at Galloway's Chapel, and once at First Church. Altogether, I have preached about twenty-five times so far this year.

BETTER OBSERVANCE OF THE SABBATH NEEDED.

Having observed the tendency among some of our church people to fail in the observance of the Christian Sabbath, I am constrained to call the matter to their attention and ask them to stop and think.

Shall we compromise with Satan? To this we could never give our consent, and yet we do compromise with him when we violate God's law by failing to keep holy the Sabbath day. His law, the highest of all, says we shall work six days, and says with equal force that we shall rest the seventh. Christ lived in this world and conformed himself to that law, and we are inexcusable when we fail to follow Him.

O, how many professing Christians patronize the Sunday newspaper, the Sunday ball game, iced cream parlors, and various other things, which in their place are legitimate enough, but when used as a means of desecrating God's holy day they become a stench in the nostrils of God.

One writer said, "Do not touch the Sunday newspaper; take it out of the house with tongs, for it is dangerous, even worse than a snake." Dear friend, if a snake were loose in your house, would you sit still and wait for it to bite some member of the family? If not, how do you justify yourself for trifling with that which is far more dangerous?

If we were asked to go to the photograph gallery on Sunday, we would refuse; yet on Sunday mornings some of our Sunday school classes will assemble and have their picture made. How can we endorse such acts, and spread such influence among the children, the hope of the country? Some may say I am wrong: To such a one I say, Go read your Bible and notice where God says, "Remember the Sabbath day to keep it holy." Why does the photographer make the picture, if not for the money? We all agree that he is desecrating the Sabbath, and wherein we are less guilty, I fail to see.

How can we expect our prayers to reach God when our life is wrong, and in that last great day, will we not have to answer for these trangressions?

"How careful then ought we to live,
Who such a strict account must give."

Let us then raise our standard higher and stay by our convictions, that we may get nearer to God and be more fruitful in his service. THINKER.

REPORT OF THE HOSPITAL COMMITTEE OF THE MERIDIAN DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Your hospital committee wish to make the following report:

We note with much pleasure the fact that our great Church is awakening fully not only to the importance and magnitude of the work of relieving and curing the sick and afflicted, but also to the fact that this is its bounden duty, and hence is planning and erecting the best possible buildings for its accomplishment.

The Homertoberman Hospital and Deaconess' Home, located in Los Angeles, Cal., is doing good work under the management of the Woman's Missionary Department of our Board of Missions, although it is only a three-story building, with but nine rooms and one ward with four charity beds.

The Wesley Memorial Hospital, located in Atlanta, Ga., a $100,000 dollar memorial to the zeal and enterprise of the South and North Georgia Conferences; is doing a most excellent work. In less than five years it has treated 2,365 patients, 1,194 of whom were unable to pay the cost of their treatment.

The Barnes Hospital, with nearly $2,000,000 in hand, will be located in St. Louis, on a lot with a frontage of 1,400 feet. It will begin with a capacity of 320 beds for patients.

The Galloway Memorial Hospital is a proposed $250,000 building to be erected in Nashville, Tenn., as soon as possible.

With inexpressible delight, we can declare that our own Conference is not asleep on this great question, but is planning through its Hospital Commissioners, in co-operation with the Hospital Commissioners of the Memphis and North Mississippi Conferences, for a $250,000 hospital to be located in Memphis, Tenn.

To this end, the united Hospital Commissioners have seen proper to select our brother, H. M. Ellis, as the general agent, to secure the necessary funds for its erection and equipment, therefore, be it resolved,

1—That we feel by this selection the Mississippi Conference has been honored, and the commissioners wise and judicious in their choice.

2—That we will not only most cordially welcome Brother Ellis into our homes and charges, but that we will most earnestly pray for him and heartily co-operate with him in his great work.

3—That our secretary is hereby requested to send a copy of this report and these resolutions to Brother Ellis.

WHITWORTH COLLEGE AND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

Session 1910-1911, 250 Students; Twenty Teachers and Officers. Thorough instruction under Christian influences. Courses leading to degrees of B. L. and A. B. Noted teachers in Piano, Voice, Elocution and Art. Forty thousand dollars will be expended in improvements within the next eighteen months.

NEXT SESSION BEGINS SEPT. 14, 1911.

Send for Catalogue. Address

WHITWORTH COLLEGE,
Brookhaven, Miss.

W. W. Carre Co. Ltd
Manufacturer Exporter of Lumber
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

SUPPOSE YOU HAVE A FIRE TO-NIGHT? GET SOLID PROTECTION AND INSURE WITH

LEON IRWIN & CO.
FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.
736 Union Street. Phone, Main 585.

Church News

Bishop Berry, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, is spending the summer on his farm near Lake Chautauqua. His present address is Bemus Point, N. Y.

* * *

Los Angeles has been selected as the place for holding the International Convention of the Christian Endeavor Society in 1913. These meetings are held every two years.

* * *

A million dollars has recently been contributed to the Congregational Church for foreign missionary work by a friend who will not allow his name to be made public. This is said to be the largest single donation ever made to this cause.

* * *

It has been announced that Rev. O. F. Sensahaugh, presiding elder of the Oklahoma City District, has been chosen president of Epworth University, the school which is being established by the Southern Methodists in that State. It is expected that this institution will be opened in September.

* * *

The Methodist Episcopal Church has an invested Superannuate Endowment Fund of $3,560,569. The amount paid out to these retired veterans last year was $835,843. Most of this sum, of course, came from the assessments, hut the endowment is now sufficiently large to help considerahly, and it is still being increased.

* * *

When Bishop Lamhuth goes to Africa in August, he will be acompanied hy Rev. John Gilhert, who will enjoy the distinction of being our first missionary to the Dark Continent. He was the first student to matriculate at the Paine Institute when it was opened in 1883, and is a graduate of that institution. He will go to Africa as the representative of both our Church and the Colored Metbodist Episcopal Church.

* * *

In a meeting recently conducted at Toledo, Ohio, by Billy Sunday, there are said to have taken place 7,323 conversions. Like Sam Jones, Mr. Sunday arraigns sin mercilessly in plain and pointed language that everybody can understand, and the Master greatly honors his messages. Faithfully proclaimed by men whose hearts are on fire with love and zeal, the gospel is still the power of God unto salvation.

* * *

General Clement A. Evans, who died at his home in Atlanta on July 2, and who was Commander-in-Chief of the Confederate Veterans in 1908-9, was a superannuate member of the North Georgia Conference. He entered the itinerant ministry after having served through the Civil War, and gave to the Church twenty-five years of active service. He was the author of "A Military History of Georgia," and edited "The Confederate Military History."

* * *

The Northern Methodist Church has a mission in New York City, where within a few blocks 43 languages are spoken. In this polyglot population are over 10,000 Russians, many of them having been driven into exile by tyrany. Many are Russian Jews, and many, though helonging to the Greek Orthodox Church, have lost all interest in ritualism and are drifting rellgiously. The mission workers are seeking to reach all classes, regardless of natlonallty or the tongue spoken, and are meeting with not a little success.

* * *

The press dispatches announce that Judge J. M. Dickinson, formerly head counsel for the Illinois Central Railroad and later Secretary of War of the United States Government, has been tendered and has accepted a place in the law faculty of Vanderbilt University. It is stated he will teach Federal law principally. Judge Dickinson is one of the first lawyers of the South, and we predict that he will achieve much distinction in his new field of work. He is a native of the State of Mississippi.

* * *

The Minutes of the General Assembly of the Southern Presbyterian Church show the strength of that denomination in the leading cities of the South to he as follows: Atlanta has 4,317 communicants, Louisville 4,143, New Orleans 3,908, Richmond 3,830, Birmingham 3,237, Nashville 3,195, Memphis 3,137, Charlotte 2,942, Houston 2,065, Dallas 1,784, Fort Worth 1,647, Lynchburg 1,594, Wilmington 1,574, Norfolk 1,456, Charleston (W. Va.) 1,425, Greensboro 1,390, St. Louis 1,319, Kansas City 1,275, Knoxville 1,138, San Antonio 1,128.

* * *

The official board of the First Baptist Church of Dallas, Texas, at a recent meeting passed a resolution releasing their pastor, Dr. George W. Truett, for three weeks, and requested him to devote the time to the promotion of the prohibition cause in that State, where a vote is soon to be had to determine whether the commonwealth shall be made dry by a general law. Dr. G. C. Rankin and the Texas Advocate are also doing heroic service in this great battle. In every part of the country the Baptists and Methodists are standing shoulder to shoulder in the warfare against the iniquitous saloon.

* * *

New York City is said to be the greatest summer resort in America, and the churches there try to secure ministers of unusual attractiveness to dispense the Word at this season. Bishop Gailor of Tennessee is the preacher at the Cathedral St. John the Divine for the month of July, and he will be followed for a part of August by Dean Hodges, of England. The Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church is to have a series of sermons by famous English and Scotch ministers until September. St. Bartholomew's is to have again Rev. J. Stuart Holden, of London, and Trinity Church has secured the services of Bishop Williams of Michigan and Bishop Weller of Fon du Lac. Many tent and park religious meetings will also be held both on week days and Sundays.

FROM THE TREASURER OF THE BOARD OF MISSIONS, MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

As treasurer of the Board of Missions I wish to make this appeal to the brethren of the Mississippi Conference in behalf of our pastors serving missions. After a careful inspection of the records I find that these preachers are poorly paid at best. With the help of the Board their salaries are entirely inadequate to meet even the necessary expenses of themselves and families. It is a fact, also, that these small salaries are not even met either by the charges or the Board when due, but the bills of these hard worked and poorly paid men must be carried by their creditors, sometimes under protest, until the end of the year. This policy is not only not business, but works hardships that in some measure, at least, are avoidable. For instance, some of our strongest charges financially have not paid one cent on either of the mission assessments this year, and many other charges have paid only nominal amounts. Now, brethren, there is hardly a charge within the Conference that could not pay one half of these assessments as easy by the middle of the year as it could pay the remaining half by the end of the year. This matter is wholly with the pastors. Brethren, will you not get out after these assessments at once and remit one-half, at least, within thirty days? It can be done; will you do it? This is the ouly solution of this delicate and difficult matter. Then our mission pastors will find that their lot is not nearly so hard as at present.

The Conference is assessed for foreign missions $15,000, of which $1,867.59 has been paid, making approximately twelve and one-half percent, with seven months of the Conference year gone. The home and Conference mission assessment is $11,500, of which $2,227.17 have been paid to date, approximately fifteen per cent. With this showing a charge on the Board that is to receive $100 would be entitled to hut $15 for the first seven months of the Conference year.

The treasurer has written the presiding elders and many of the brethren urging greater effort in bringing up these assessments in full for the seven months already past. But, with the many duties of a large pastorate, you see the impossibility of his writing every pastor on this subject. Hence, the church paper is resorted to in order to acquaint the Conference with the situation.

This is purely a business proposition. These poorly paid pastors on missions must have relief. Each pastor in the Conference is in the same relation to them that the hoard of stewards is to him. When he gets out and hustles they get their money; otherwise they do not. Stir up your board of stewards where they are looking after these collections and tell them we must have the money, must have it at once.

The treasurer requests every pastor to send him the assessments made on his charge hy the district stewards, hoth for foreign and home and Conference missions this year. Furnish this information with your check for one-half the mission assessments within thirty days. Yours fraternally,

CHAS. W. CRISLER,
Treasurer Board of Missions.

Vicksburg, Miss.

REPORT OF SUNDAY SCHOOL MISSIONARY.

To give the Louisiana Methodists an idea of my work and movements for the first six months of the year, I make this itemized report from the data submitted to the Sunday School Board from month to month. I have visited and helped in some way in the Sunday school work at the following places: Colfax, Montgomery, Polock, Selma, Rochelle, Jena, Edén, Trout, Opelousas, Say's Chapel, Oak Grove, Glenmora (at three churches), Columhia, Melville (at three churches), South Mansfield, Bon Ami, Gibbsland (at two churches), Mooringsport, New Orleans, Lake Charles, Shreveport and Ruston (at District Conferences), Whitecastle, Memphis Field Worker's Conference, Haynesville (at two churches), Vernon (at three churches), Sloan, Boyd's Mission (at two churches), Kingston, Shreveport Epworth League Conference, Queensboro (Shreveport), Caddo City, Doyline, Church Point, Branch, Long Point (Moxie), Alexandria Board Meeting, Jennings, Gueydan, Indian Bayou, Harrisonburg, Jonesville, Mermenteau, and the Ruston State Epworth League Conference.

In all, I have traveled 8,621 miles by rail, 321 by buggy, made 78 addresses, preached 16 children's sermons, held 37 round-table councils, organized 11 Sunday schools, 24 home departments, 22 cradle rolls, 3 teacher-training classes, 8 Wesley adult Bihle classes, established 11 teachers' libraries, graded 1 school, put maps into 2, placed Adult Student, Boys and Girls, Visitors, etc., into quite a few, raised $37.30 for local Sunday school equipments, $30.20 for the board, and have had an expense account of $79.01 for traveling expenses and postage.

P. O. LOWREY.

NOTICE.

To the Members of the Newton District Conference:

The Newton District Conference for the current year will open at Union, Miss., with the opening sermon by Rev. J. C. Long, at 11 a. m., Wednesday, the 26th inst., and the first business session will open at 2:30 p. m., the same day.

The train schedules are such that all members may leave home Wednesday morning, and reach Union in time for the opening of the first business session.

Union is on the N. O., M. & C. R. R., twenty miles north of Newton. The schedules of trains on said road at Newton are: North-bound, 8:12 a. m. and 12:58 p. m.; South-bound, 9:10 a. m. and 5:01 p. m. The schedules at Newton on the A. & V. road are: West-bound, 4:05 a. m., 8:05 a. m., 12:16 p. m., and 5:13 p. m.; East-hound, 12:35 a. m., 11:25 a. m., 4:42 p. m., and 8:53 p. m.

These schedules give very convenient connection at Newton.

We want every traveling preacher, local preacher, and lay delegate in the district to attend.

The local preachers who cannot attend will please to send written reports. Failure to do so is cause for censure. (See Par. 590, Discipline 1910.)

The pastors who have not already done so, will please to send me, at their earliest convenience, the names of their lay delegates.

Let all who expect to carry their wives, or any members of their families to conference, notify Rev. C. C. Evans, Decatur, Miss., that provision may be made for their entertainment.

All members of and visitors to the conference will confer a favor on Brother Evans hy notifying him of the time they expect to arrive at Union.

Following are the Committees:

License to Preach—W. W. Graves, H. F. Tolle, W. H. Lane.

Recommendation for Admission on Trial—M. M. [illegible], W. A. Hays, A. M. Broadfoot.

Orders—J. M. Weems, J. A. Moore, W. J. Dawson.

Respectfully T. J. O'NEIL, P. E.

Geo. W. Riehl. Aug. Rauxet, Jr.

RIEHL & RAUXET,
Successors to Lowengardt & Armstrong,
JEWELERS,
122 BARONNE STREET - - New Orleans, La
Optical Department: M. F. Fitzgerald, Optician.
Phone Main 727

The Centenary College of Louisiana
SHREVEPORT
Fall Term will open
Sept. 13, 1911.
For Catalogue or other information write to
FELIX R. HILL, President,
P. O. Box 455
SHREVEPORT, LA.

Secular News and Comment

England is said to have 11,500 ships engaged in foreign trade; Germany over 2,000, and Japan nearly 1,000. The United States is said to have only nine ships thus employed.

* * *

A bill has been introduced in Congress providing for the erection of a National Archives Building, designed to be a depository for the Government records and papers not in current use.

* * *

Joseph Chamberlain, the famous British statesman, celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday in his home at Highbury, England, on July 8. He was the recipient of congratulations from all over the world. His health is stated to be fairly good.

* * *

Prof. Simon Flexner, of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, has demonstrated that infantile paralysis is transmitted by the house fly. If with the indictments against him the house fly is not put out of civilization it will be because there are so many stupid and uncivilized people.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

* * *

Mr. Frederick A. Keep, a wealthy lumber man, who formerly spent considerable time in New Orleans, but who recently died in Paris, donated in his will $1,000 to the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital of this city. Mr. Keep's estate is valued at $1,000,000. He was a brother-in-law of Miss Mabel Boardman, the head of the Red Cross Society of America.

* * *

Thomas E. Watson, the noted populist leader, announced his candidacy for the office of United States Senator from Georgia on the 7th inst. In view of the fact that the State is overwhelmingly Democratic, it is not likely that he will command much following. The general impression is that the Legislature will probably elect Governor Hoke Smith.

* * *

It is announced that the Audubon Society of Texas will seek to have the Legislature of that State make it unlawful to kill doves at any season. It is claimed that they are very valuable assistants to the farmer in destroying noxious weeds, and as proof of this it is stated that an examination of the stomachs of three doves, recently made by scientists, disclosed the fact that they contained between 23,000 and 24,000 seeds of pernicious weeds and grasses.

* * *

Statistics recently made public by the Census Bureau at Washington show that the cities of the United States are increasing in population at a rate much faster than the rural sections. During the past ten years the percentage of people living in cities of more than 2,500 inhabitants increased from 40.5 to 46.3. Twenty years ago the percentage of the population in such incorporated places was 36.1. In 1910 the urban population of the United States was 42,622,383, and the rural was 49,348,883, 53.7 per cent.

* * *

King George and Queen Mary, accompanied by the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary, visited Ireland last week, and were accorded a hearty reception by the people, who are said to have been flattered by the fact that the royal family visited their country before going to Scotland or Wales. In the decorations, however, the Irish flag and the stars and stripes of the United States are said to have been much in evidence. His Majesty's remarks at Dublin were appropriate and expressed his deep interest in the welfare of his subjects on the Emerald Isle.

* * *

Governor Deneen, of Illinois, has recently received from King Victor Immanuel III of Italy a royal document and a silver medal as an expression of the appreciation of the Italian people of the assistance rendered them by the chief executive and citizens of Illinois after the earthquake in December, 1908. Quite a large sum reached the sufferers from this source at the time when it was most urgently needed. The outbursts of philanthropy which for many decades have followed great catastrophes, is an eloquent attestation of the fact that the Christ spirit is coming more and more to dominate the world.

* * *

The Kansas Supreme Court in a recent decision upheld the bloodhound as an agent of justice, holding that if the dog has been proven accurate in following the trail of human footsteps, that his pursuit of an individual from the scene of a tragedy should be accepted as very strong, if not conclusive evidence. The case under consideration was that of a man named Glen Adams who was charged with murdering a farmer and convicted with no proof, except that bloodhounds caught up a trail where the crime was committed and followed it to Adams' home, six miles away, and that the tracks corresponded to the shoes that he wore. The lawyers for the defense contended that the evidence was insufficient to warrant conviction, but the Court refused to reverse the case.

* * *

It has developed that Christian Science has at least one advocate in the United States Senate. While the bill creating a National Health Department was under consideration on July 6, Mr. Works, of California, opposed it on the ground that Christian Science furnishes the true method of overcoming disease. He stated that both he and his wife have been greatly benefited physically by the teachings of this cult. The Christian Scientists throughout the country are said to be strongly opposed to the establishment of a National Bureau of Health, and it is stated that they are doing all they can against the measure now pending in Congress. That a United States Senator should be so deluded, should occasion little surprise. The educated and intellectual have their idlosyncrasies as well as the illiterate. Alfred Russell Wallace, the eminent English scientist, is a Spiritualist and believes in many of their ghost stories, etc. Dr. Fitchett in his brilliant book, "Wesley and His Century," devotes a chapter to the great preacher's "odd opinions." The common sense of the people in general may be trusted with far more confidence than the views of any single individual, no matter how large may seem to be his intellectual reach.

MILLSAPS COLLEGE—ITS WORK AND NEEDS.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

During the nineteen years of its history the writer has attended many of the public gatherings at this college, and since he was honored ten years ago with a seat in its Board of Trustees, has not missed a single session. At the session just closed it was his pleasure to be present (with the exception of Thursday evening) during the entire Commencement season. During this time I mingled considerably with the student body, the faculty and the citizens of Jackson, and feel that I risk nothing in saying that, among all, the interest in the success of the college was never greater. And the college spirit among the student body was at high water mark, the very atmosphere being full of enthusiasm and suggestive of greater things for the institution. The enthusiasm of the students was evidenced by a college mass meeting at which they adopted as a slogan. "Four Hundred Students Next Session."

The zeal of the faculty came out, not only in their splendid reports of the work accomplished, but in the plans suggested for greater advancement on all lines. If any differences existed, they were so completely overshadowed by the desire and determination on the part of all to build up a larger and a stronger Millsaps that they were not heard of. It is the conviction of those in immediate touch with the workings of the college that the campaign to secure four hundred for the next session will be easily successful.

To have reached the position of equality with the oldest institutions of learning within the short period of twenty years, certainly justifies the claim of Millsaps to the fullest support of the Methodists in the State of Mississippi. As a member of the committee on improvements for several years, the writer is in position to say that the grounds of the campus were never more attractive, nor the buildings more comfortable, nor in better condition than at the present. The setting apart of Founder's Hall as a home for the younger students, under the supervision of an accomplished, experienced matron, is a step long contemplated in the interest of the college and for the greater safety and comfort of the boys.

Many of the suggestions made in the comprehensive report of President Hull, the Board did not see its way to grant, except in part. But though the lack of funds and a steadfast determination of the Board to incur no debts would not allow all, the most needed were provided for and sanguine hopes were expressed that our finances would soon enable us to meet every demand for advance movements.

The truth is, Mr. Editor, Millsaps, like all growing, flourishing institutions, needs more money. The very success which the college has achieved creates the demand. Another hundred thousand dollars of endowment would not be too much to meet the expanding conditions of the institution. The recommendation of President Hull for the establishment of a chair of Biblical Literature, such as forms a part of the Trinity Colege in North Carolina and the Southwestern University in Texas, was received with great favor by the Board, but the need of funds to make this advance forbade action for the present. That such a department is needed there is no doubt, and if properly presented to the Methodists of the State, this writer is forced to believe that they would provide for the endowment of such a chair.

If it were not that every organization in the church had laid its hand upon the children, we would suggest that the Sunday schools of the State take the matter in hand. In round numbers, there are one thousand Sunday schools in the two Conferences, representing 60,000 scholars. This host of workers are certainly enough to assure $30,000 or $40,000 to care for this department. This writer hopes to see the day when every educational institution of every grade in our great Church shall have such a chair, and when a full course of instruction in Bible literature and history shall be required to secure a degree. Begging pardon of those who may read and of you, Mr. Editor, I close, but I just wanted to submit these reflections.

A GENEROUS GIFT.

Dear Brother Meek: The following extract from a letter received by the treasurer of the Board of Missions this evening does my heart good:

"I see from a call you have made to the pastors that you, the Board, are greatly in need of funds for your Home Mission work. I am sending you my personal check for $100. This is above the tenth that I always give to God. In fact, I have already promised more than a tenth of what I expect to make this year. But I assure you that it is a great pleasure to send this hundred dollars to you for our brethren who are serving the poor works and are in need. God bless every one of them."

After reading the above, we can better understand what St. Paul meant when he said, "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver." Notice, that this $100 is over and above the tenth of this year's income, hence, is purely a gift. Who will be next?

Yours fraternally,

CHAS. W. CRISLER, Treasurer,
Board of Missions, Mississippi Conference.
Vicksburg, Miss., July 5, 1911.

A STRONG ENDORSEMENT.

In his eloquent introduction to The Modes Of The Heavenly Life, by Rev. Walter G. Harbin, Dr. Robt. A. Meek, the editor of the Advocate says of this book:

" * * * It is a popular and practical discussion, designed to be helpful to hungry hearts. The sermons are substantially as they were delivered, and as God has so signally used them in the awakening and upbuilding of his people. They are scriptural, forceful, and appealing, and abound in beautiful passages and apt illustrations. No one can read them without being stirred to holier aspirations."

Cloth and gold, only 50 cents, postpaid.

By the same author: A Man Wanted, paper, 15 cents, postpaid. Of this great sermon to men, Bishop Murrah wrote: "I would be glad if every young man in the land could hear this address."

Order from Chas. O. Chalmers, 512 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

The AMERICAN PAINT WORKS
——Manufacturers of——
High Grade Mixed Paints; Perfecto White Lead; Nonpareil Carriage Paint; Varnish Stain; Colors in Oil; Wood Fillers; Chemically Pure Dry Colors, Etc.
422-434 JOSEPHINE STREET.....Phone 915
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Concerning Missions.

MEETING OF THE MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE WOMAN'S FOREIGN MISSIONARY SOCIETY.

The Annual Conference of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society of the Mississippi Conference was held at Jackson, May 24-28. The first meeting of the Conference was on Wednesday evening. After a hymn and prayer, Mrs. Geo. C. Swearengen made the address of welcome, and Mrs. T. M. Searles made the response. There were happy greetings to the Conference from Mrs. W. A. Borum of the Baptist Church, Mrs. R. L. Price of the Christian Church, and Mrs. James Black of the Capitol Street Methodist Church. Miss Emily Butt addressed the Conference in the interest of the juvenile reformatory work.

Thursday morning the regular business was taken up. The Conference officers made their reports during the morning session, and in the afternoon interesting and helpful papers were read by Mrs. R. M. Hand on "Missionary Literature and Mission Study," and by Mrs. T. B. Clifford on "Christian Stewardship."

Friday, Mrs. A. F. Watkins made her report on the Council Meeting, and the important question of union was discussed by the Conference, acting as a committee of the whole. The members of the Executive Committee of the Home Mission Conference who were present were accorded the privileges of the floor and took part in the discussion. The committee of the whole resolved that the Executive Committee of the Foreign Missionary Society meet that of the Home Mission Society for discussion of the union of the societies. The report of this meeting is as follows:

Mrs. T. B. Holloman called the committee to order, and Mrs. Bessie Lipscomb was elected Chairman. Prayer was voiced by Mrs. Holloman. Mrs. Charles McQueen was elected Secretary. The following resolution was adopted: "Whereas, the Executive Committee of the Woman's Home Mision Society and the Execntive Cammittee of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society in joint session have considered the snbject of the unification of the Conference societies; therefore, be it resolved,

"That the Executive Committee of the two Conference societies meet in joint ad interim session next January, and then and there plan for a joint annual meeting, at which time a vote can be had from the auxiliaries on this matter."

The following resolution was also offered and adopted:

Resolved, That the District Secretaries of both Home and Foreign Societies be instructed to organize adult missionary societies as far as possible with Home and Foreign departments, and report organization to the Conference Secretaries of both Home and Foreign Societies of the Mississippi Conference.

The committee decided to hold a joint executive meeting at Capitol Street Church, Jackson, in January—a definite date to be fixed later. The following resolution was offered and adopted:

Resolved, (1) That the District Secretaries be instructed to organize new auxiliaries according to the Constitution given by the Missionary Council; (2) That all societies now collecting a voluntary membership fund, and those who shall agree to do so, be requested to send all surplus above the ten cents per member to each society and contingent fees, and minutes, as a surplus membership fund.

"Blest Be The Tie" was sung and the committee stood adjourned.

Saturday morning the reports of the committees were heard and other miscellaneous business attended to. In the afternoon, the election of officers for the next year was held and resulted as follows: Mrs. Bessie W. Lipscomb, Brookhaven, president; Mrs. A. F. Watkins, Hattiesburg, corresponding secretary; Mrs. A. E. Wyatt, Natchez, recording secretary; Mrs. G. C. Kendall, Meridian, treasurer; Mrs. T. B. Clifford, Yazoo City, first vice-president; Mrs. S. S. Ferguson, Meridian, second vice-president; Mrs. W. H. LaPrade, Meridian, third vice-president; Mrs. W. C. Lowry, Jackson, auditor; Mrs. O. S. Lewis, press superintendent.

The District Secretaries are as follows: Jackson District, Mrs. J. C. Cavett; Newton District, Mrs. Reese Price; Port Gibson District, Mrs. T. M. Searles; Meridian District, Mrs. R. M. Hand; Brookhaven District, Mrs. McClesky; Hattiesburg District, Mrs. G. H. Thompson; Seashore District, Mrs. R. L. Favorite.

The Conference was honored by the presence of two missionaries who are at home on furloughs: Dr. J. J. Newton, of Japan, and Miss Bettie Hughes, of China. Dr. Newton made two very inspiring addresses on Sunday.

In summing up the treasurer's report, it was found that the collections of this year were $400 in excess of those of last, making this year's total $7,000. One thousand dollars of this was a special donation from one great-hearted woman.

The Conference was, indeed, glad to have presented to them a new missionary candidate. This new candidate is Miss Jessie E. Mounger, of Port Gibson, Miss. For several years Miss Mounger has been a teacher in Whitworth College, and has proven herself capable of the highest mental and spiritual attainments. She was joyfully accepted by the Conference, and when her work of preparation at the Scarritt Bible and Training School is over, we feel sure that she will be accepted by the Board of Missions.

It would be impossible for the members of the Conference to express the appreciation we have of the hospitality of the Jackson people. It will be very difficult indeed for anyone else to surpass them.

MRS. O. S. LEWIS,
Press Superintendent, W. F. M. S.
Brandon, Miss.

TREASURER'S REPORT,

Board of Missions, Mississippi Conference.

The treasurer of the Board of Missions of the Mississippi Conference submits his quarterly report as follows, beginning April 1st, ending June 30th:

	Missions—For.	Missions—Home.
Brookhaven District—
Hazlehurst	$30.00	$ 40.00
Magnolia	22.50	.....
Adams	5.00	5.00
Osyka and Liberty	40.00	65.00
Brookhaven	50.00	35.00
Meadville	18.50	13.25
Scotland	15.00	15.00
Crystal Springs	27.54	30.00
Topisaw	30.00	.....
Pearlhaven	.....	10.00
North Wesson	.....	10.00
Barlow	11.00	5.00
Buford	.....	10.00
Total	$239.54	$238.65
Hattiesburg District—
Prentiss	$ 10.00	$ 10.00
Taylorsville	30.00	20.00
Magee	12.55	10.00
New Augusta	18.00	10.00
Collins	27.50	28.00
Lucedale	29.00	26.00
Eucutta	5.00	10.00
Richton	25.00	20.00
Broad Street	25.00	25.00
Main Street	101.00	.....
Ellisville	.....	13.00
Seminary	45.00	.....
Total	$227.05	$272.00
Jackson District—
Sharon	$ 5.00	$ 5.00
Florence	25.00	25.00
Madison	25.00	.....
Benton	17.50	7.50
Brandon	15.00	15.00
Canton	25.00	25.00
Deasonville	25.00	20.00
Camden	5.00	5.00
Harrisville	10.00	10.00
Fannin	6.00	10.00
Flora	8.93	25.00
Rankin Street	5.00	15.00
Satartia	10.00	15.00
Yazoo City	52.50	40.00
Thomasville	7.30	.....
Total	$247.23	$217.50
Meridian District—
Lauderdale	$ 15.00	$ .....
Central	34.78	.....
Shubuta	50.00	35.00
DeSoto	7.00	8.00
Binnsville	8.18	5.46
South Side	30.00	22.50
Seventh Avenue	.....	14.20
Matherville	.....	14.20
Poplar Springs	.....	13.30
Vimville	.....	5.30
Waynesboro Circuit	.....	15.00
Total	$144.96	$132.66
Newton District—
Philadelphia	$ 20.35	$ 20.00
Forest	20.00	20.00
Montrose	10.00	10.00
Carthage	6.00	5.00
Bay Springs	10.00	10.00
Pachuta	20.00	20.00
Laurel, Kingston	10.00	10.00
Sixth Street, Laurel	.....	10.00
Walnut Grove	.....	11.25
Total	$ 96.35	$116.25
Port Gibson District—
Silver City	$ 17.50	$ 27.50
Pearl Street, Natchez	22.50	19.00
Washington	5.00	5.00
Crawford Street	26.54	75.00
Oak Ridge	10.00	10.00
Rockey Springs	20.00	.....
Jefferson Street	.....	48.60
Total	$141.68	$185.10
Seashore District—
McHenry and W.	$ 20.00	$ 20.00
Howison	20.00	.....
29th St., Gulfport	8.75	7.00
Logtown	50.00	50.00
Mentorum	5.00	10.00
Oak Vale	.....	4.00
Escatawpa	.....	10.00
Bay St. Louis	.....	20.00
Long Beach	.....	5.00
Columbia	.....	50.00
Total	$103.75	$176.00
The following specials have been received:
Brandon, Layman's Mov't		$ 57.25
C. T. Noble, Palmore Institute		10.00
Z. Z. Linton for P. H. Enochs, subscription to Nashville Training School		188.77
Total		$256.02

Respectfully,

CHAS. W. CRISLER, Treas.
Board of Missions, Mississippi Conference.

SUMMER CONFERENCE OF LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT.

Three general interdenominational missionary conferences have been planned for this summer by the Interdenominational Laymen's Missionary Movement in co-operation with the several denominational movements. These will be held at Lake Geneva, Wis., Aug. 2-6; Silver Lake, N. Y., Aug. 5-10; and Mt. Gretna, Penn., Aug. 29th to Sept. 3rd.

It is very desirable that Southern Methodism should be well represented in one or more of these conferences. That which is most accessible to our constituency is the Lake Geneva meeting, Aug. 2-6. A special invitation to attend this meeting has been extended to all Southern Methodists through the office of the Laymen's Missionary Movement in Nashville.

The conference will combine a very strong missionary program and opportunity for study of the broader work of missions with an attractive vacation trip to a region of remarkable beauty and charm. The conference will be held at the Y. M. C. A. camp, a superb place for meetings of this kind, and cottage or tent life may be enjoyed, as desired. The program will present a number of the best known missionary leaders of the nation, lay and clerical, and a number of missionaries also. The afternoon will be given to recreation, for which abundant provision will be made. Delegates may take their families, if they wish, and stay as late as Aug. 14, thus giving opportunity for a delightful vacation.

All further information may be had of F. J. Michel, 19 South LaSalle St., Chicago, or of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

THE
Grant Furniture Co.
IS NOW HAVING A
GREAT REMOVAL SALE
PRICES ON EVERY ARTICLE
IN THEIR
ENTIRE STOCK HAVE BEEN REDUCED
OUTFITS ESPECIALLY PRICED
427-429-431 Camp Street, New Orleans

The Home Circle

YOUR ALABASTER BOX.

Mrs Lucy Murray.

In every busy crowd we meet
Some heart is always aching;
Though earth is thrilled with melody,
Some heart is always breaking.

The one who needs your smiles today,
To-morrow may bo sleeping;
O scatter seeds of love and cheer,
For soon will come the reapIng.

Waste not your choicest perfume o'er
A soul from life departed,
But break your alabaster hox;
Anoint the broken-hearted.

Pour happy smiles and loving deeds
Upon life's stream of sorrow;
The present fill with fragrance sweet;
Wait not until to-morrow!

—Southern Churchman.

HIS FIRST DOLLAR.

Many years ago a boy left home to seek his fortune. All that he had was tied up in a bundle which he carried in his hand. As he trudged along he met an old neighbor, the captain of a canal boat.

"Well, William, where are you going?" asked his friend.

"I don't know," William answered: "father is too poor to keep me at home any longer and says I must now make a living for myself."

"There's no trouble about that," said the captain. "Be sure you start right, and you'll get along finely."

William told his friend that the only trade he knew anything about was soap-making and candle-making, at which he had helpcd his father while at home.

"Well," said the old man, "let me pray with you once more, and give you a IIttle advice, and then I will let you go."

They both knelt upon the towpath (the path along which the horses which drew the canal boat walked); the dear old man prayed earnestly for William, and then gave him this advice: "Some one will soon be the leadiug soap-maker in New York. It can be you as well as any one. I hope it may be. Be a good man; give your heart to Christ; give the Lord all that belongs to Him of every dollar you earn; make an honest soap, give a full pound, and I am certain you will yet be a prosperous and rich man."

When the boy reached the city he found It hard to get work. Lonesome and far from home, he remembered his mother's words and the last words of the canal hoat captain. He was then led to "seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness," and united with the church. He remembered his promise to the old captain and the first dollar he earned brought up the question of the Lord's part. In the Bible he found that the Jews were commanded to give one-tenth, so he said: "If the Lord will take one-tenth, I will give that." And he did; and ten cents of every dollar were sacred to the Lord.

Having a regular employment and being faithful and interested, he soon became a partner. After a few years his partner died, and William became the sole owner of the business.

He now resolved to keep the rest of his promises to the old captain. He made an honest soap, gave a full pound, and instructed his bookkeeper to open an account with the Lord and carry one-tenth of all his income to that account. He prospered; his business grew; His family was hlessed; hls soap sold, and he grew rich faster than he had hoped. He then gave the Lord two-tenths, and prospered more than ever; then he gave three-tenths, then four-tenths, then five-tenths.

He educated his children, settled all hls plans for life, and then devoted all his income to the Lord. He prospcred more than ever.

This is the story of Mr. William Colgate, of Colgate & Co., who has given millions of dollars to the Lord's cause and left a name that will never die.

THE STORY OF A PICTURE.

"Don't drink it! There is poison in wine, father. Miss Mary at the school, she say so," said Guido covering the wine glass on the table with his small brown hand.

"Ha! ha!" laughed the peddler. "You gotta be smart boy. Know more than your old father, yes? You go no more to that school."

Guido jumped up quickly aud ran to his mother.

"O carissima!" he sobbed. "He say I go no more to the school where are llowers and music and Miss Mary!"

The Italian woman stroked the hoy's hair gently.

"I begged you to not talk of the wine. Your father thinks he knows."

"I do know," sneercd the peddler, "that a boy must do what his own father says. It is the law. I sell many statues to-day and so I drink a glass of wine to feel good about such fine business."

The woman winced as if she had felt a blow.

"It is no the way to do right and I am tired. You will be drunk by night."

The thought of the little boy sobbing on her breast strengthenel her in a sudden new purpose.

"I want Guido to be a good man," she went on, "and if you drink all the time, soon he drink, too. I will not have it so. If you keep him from school where he is happy, if you drink we can not stand it."

The half drunken man rose threateningly.

"He is mine," he cried. "If I go on the streets and sell images for him, he must do what I say and you, too. You are my woman, and the school it would take you away. No."

"You no frighten me any more, never any more. Miss Mary's Christ, He will protect me," replied the mother.

There was a great light in the dark, slender face, and the man, seeing the divine in her faith, was somewhat ashamed and went grumbling out of the room.

When the father went home that night the little hair cloth trunk that had always stood in the corner by the window was gone. There was no laughing, romping Guido to search his pockets for a handful of peanuts and no gentle woman to make him comfortable. He was sober as he lighted the lamp, though his hands trembled from the weakened condition of the flesh, due to prolonged dissipation. With the sense of his loss, anger seized him, and he spoke harshly of the little school and Miss Mary, the sweet young teacher who had taught Guido and his mother about the sin of drinking wine.

"She take my boy, that school teacher, will she? No, no, no. I—I find——"

He stopped at the sight of two pictures which Miss Mary had given to Guido. In one of them the Christ stood with outstretched hands blessing little children. In the other was the agonized face of the Christ on the cross. The Italian seemed to hear Guido's chlldish prayer calling across the night:

"O Christ, look in pity on Guldo and Guido's little mother. Also bless much the father and keep him from drink. Amen."

He went closer and something in the divine anguish of the Christ's face held his gaze. The little stories of this Man of Sorrows that Guido had learned in the school on the corner came back in a flood of memories. He had healed the sick, made the hlind to see and the lame to walk, and for love of men He had died a cruel death on the cross. Christ had suffered alone in some garden, Guido had said, never thinking that his own father would some day be utterly alone. In deep remorse the Italian fell to his knees and lifted his face to the picture above.

"O Christ, look in pity on Guldo's father. Keep him from drink. See his breaking heart and send his little one and the mother home. Amen."

And so it was that even as he prayed the door was softly opened and a woman looked from under her red shawl at the figure of the kneeling man and heard him call to her Christ and the boy's for help and comfort.

Guldo could not be kept back.

"Father!" he cried shrilly, "see, we have come back to you. We could not stay away when it came dark and night."

The man held out his arms in eager welcome.

"Come to me here," he begged humbly, touched hy their need of him when the dark came. "I would pray much to your Christ. He is good. I will drink no more to hurt Him and you, for He heard me when I prayed."

The father held his wife and son close to his broad breast and the face of the crucified Christ looked down in mercy on their bowed heads.—A. Maria Crawford in Union Signal.

LORD MACAULAY AND HIS MOTHER.

Lord Macaulay, writing of his mother, says: "Young people look in those eyes, listen to that dear voice and notice the feeling of even a touch that is bestowed upon you by that gentle hand. Make much of it while yet you have that most precious of all good gifts, a loving mother. Read the unfathomable love of those eyes; the kind anxiety of that tone and look, however slight your pain. In after life you may have friends, fond, dear, kind friends; but never will you have again the inexpressible love and gentleness lavished upon you which none but a mother bestows. Often do I sigh in my struggles with the hard, uncaring world, for the deep, sweet scrutiny I felt when of an evening, resting in her bosom, I listened to some quiet tale, suitable to my age, read in her tender, untiring voice. Never can I forget her sweet glances cast upon me when I appeared asleep; never her kiss of peace at night. Years have passed since we laid her beside my father in the cold churchyard, yet still her voice whispers from the grave, and her eye watches over me as I visit spots long since hallowed hy her memory." —New York Christian Advocate.

WANTED—Lady teacher, 2 to 5 years' experience; degree of A.B. or B.S. of high class college; a Methodist who will work in Sunday School; will pay $400 for eight months' work. Address Trustee, care New Orleans Christian Advocate.

THE SAFEST AND QUICKEST WAY

—TO—

TRANSFER MONEY

—IS BY—

Long Distance Telephone

FOR RATES APPLY TO LOCAL MANAGER,

Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co

INCORPORATED

COLIC, CRAMPS and DIARRHOEA are both painful and dangerous.

Prompt and permanent relief follows one or two doses of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. You should never be without it.

At all Druggists

25 and 50 Cents

Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic

Christian Advocate.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.
CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.
OFFICE: 811 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

TERMS:
One Copy, one year, $1.50; eight months, $1.00. To preachers of all denominations, $1.00.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE
Louisiana Conference—Rev. N. E. Joyner, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake.
Mississippi Conference—Rev. I. W. Cooper, D.D., Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. D. Ellis.
North Mississippi Conference—Rev. J. T. Murrah, Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. H. S. Spragins.

Editorial.

A contemporary observes that the pulpit of to-day needs more of a note of urgency in the messages which it gives out. So it does; and less of a note of apology. To stir human hearts, the gospel must be proclaimed in tones of certitude and authority.

* * *

Hopefulness is necessary to the best work in any sphere of service. The man who is despondent is already beaten in the battle. There is much truth in the homely little couplet:

"A cheerful spirit gets on quick,
A grumbler in the mud will stick."

* * *

We have never admired men of the chameleon type—who change to suit the complexion of the crowd they are in. We like the man of reasoned convictions, who knows what he believes and why, and whom nothing can shake from his anchorage. To drift with the tide may bring the reward of popularity, but such a course makes impossible the development of majestic manhood and the achievement of lofty aims. There is nothing so grand beneath the stars as a princely soul standing unmoved by popular clamor for what it conceives to be right; preferring to sacrifice, and if need be, to suffer, rather than to surrender principle. Such characters may go down in apparent defeat, but in reality they are the heroes of the race and the world's only true conquerors.

* * *

There is much harm in reckless talking and writing. It is easy to impeach the motives and asperse the characters of men. Especially is this true if they are persons of such prominence that one feels pretty certain that they will not take notice of what he says. But scarcely anything could be more unchristian than this. To be sure, there are times when it is proper to speak boldly out concerning men and measures, but this should be done only after the most careful investigation. For one to echo slanderous utterances about which he himself really knows nothing and thus aid in wronging a fellow being, is far from being a trivial offense. Few things are worse than such scribbling. In discussing questions that affect the reputations of others, it behooves every gentleman, not to say Christian, to be certain of his facts.

* * *

The mission of Christianity is to make men. Those who join the Church and observe the forms and ceremonies of religion, but who makes no progress toward the attainment of the essential elements of true manhood, are a reproach to the cause. The soul that is destitute of noble qualities is no better within the courts of Zion than outside of them. The elder brother in his envy and selfishness, though he dwelt in his father's house, was scarcely less a sinner than the prodigal who had wandered far away. The lesson that we all need to learn is that character is the only thing that counts, and if that be lacking, even the preacher in the pulpit has no advantage of persons in the same condition who never enter the sanctuary. Nay, is he not rather worse because of his pretense and hypocrisy? The Church and its ordinances are valuable only to him who uses them as a means of rising above the base and low and becoming like him who was the full-orbed and perfect Man.

THE VALUE OF TACT.

We have known some ministers whose only idea of getting men into the right way was to drive them into it. Of persuasion they had little or none; harsh denunciation seemed to be their chief, if not sole, reliance. That such is not the Master's plan of procedure for his representatives in seeking to reach and save lost humanity, is clear to the careful student of the Scriptures. Our Lord in calling his disciples said: "Come after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men." The very expression used by Jesus implies the need of skill. No man goes fishing with a club. St. Paul, the most majestic figure of the Christian era, in referring to his work said: "I am become all things to all men, that I may by all means save some." And in writing to Timothy, his son in the gospel, he gave him the following admonition: "The Lord's servant must not strive, but be gentle toward all, apt to teach, forbearing, in meekness correcting those that oppose themselves." In no other calling is tact so indispensably necessary as in the Christian ministry. This is true because of all vocations its work is the most delicate and difficult.

In a recent number of the Pittsburg Christian Advocate a writer relates the following incident concerning the renowned Dr. J. H. Jowett, now pastor of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian Church, of New York, which admirably illustrates the power of tact and persuasion in overcoming the forces of evil and enlisting them in the Master's service:

"When Doctor Jowett was a young minister at Newcastle, he started a children's service, but at the first meeting four mischievous boys in the back of the gallery interrupted the proceedings by playing on tin whistles. Doctor Jowett asked one of the stewards to capture the lads, and bring them to the vestry. This was done, and when the minister came to them the lads looked very sheepish, and evidently anticipated a good scolding. To their blank astonishment, however, Doctor Jowett asked: 'Can't you play better than that on tin whistles?' And before they had sufficiently recovered from their surprise to reply, he added: 'I must really get Mrs. Jowett to teach you how to play properly.' Nothing loath, Mrs. Jowett undertook their tuition, and about six weeks later the four lads who disturbed the first children's service filed on the platform, and gave a tin-whistle quartet, accompanied on the pianoforte by Mrs. Jowett. A few years later all the four lads were regular stewards at the children's service."

WHAT THEY SHOULD DO.

More than once we have advanced the view that if a minister cannot obey the laws and teach the doctrines of the Church with which he is connected, the only high-minded and honorable thing for him to do is to so state, and sever his relations with it. We notice that in commenting upon the recent trial of the Rev. William Grant, of Pennsylvania, a number of church and secular periodicals have taken substantially the same position. Below we quote a few of these:

"The mistake made was that Dr. Grant, when he found his views in conflict with the Standards of the Presbyterian Church, did not of his own accord withdraw from the communion of the Presbyterian Church. No man has a right to permit his views to distress and untranquilize the Church with which he has been associated; the only righteous course is, when he finds his views opposed to the Standards, to withdraw."—Methodist Recorder.

"For men to misrepresent their Church, to masquerade under its colors while untrue to its convictions, and to use its authority and influence to exploit their personal views and preferences, is an act that should bring the blush of shame to their own cheeks, as it brings a pang of sorrow and regret to the hearts of all honest men."—Christian Intelligencer.

"Doctrine is not the only topic in the modern discussion. Morals have a share. False teachings lead to wrong practice. Men everywhere are recognizing this, and, differ as they may in opinion, they are rallying to the rescue of common honesty. There is strong accord in the testimony both of the ministry and the laity, both of the orthodox and unorthodox, both of religious and secular press in regard to the impudence of men who vow to preach to a people doctrines harmonious with a given standard and then preach just the opposite. People may not be interested in theological discussions, but all true men believe in common honesty and all true Americans in a fair deal."—The Presbyterian.

"There can be no doubt that men have, from a worldly and civic point of view, a right to be 'heretics.' If a man does not believe in the Divinity of Jesus, or in the Atonement, or in the Resurrection, there is no law of man to compel him to do so or to punish him for his refusal. Neither is there any law to forbid his preaching against these doctrines. But there is a certain law of consistency and common sense and fitness which does forbid a man who has repudiated these doctrines to remain in and preach in a church of which they are essential and fundamental principles of faith. But it is not within, but outside of an orthodox church that he should say such things. To us the strangest part of it all is that the 'heretics' should try to remain in the churches which they repudiate, and should fight through ecclesiastical trials to retain their places as representatives of creeds in which they no longer believe. What would be thought of a man who was an habitual liquor drinker and openly denounced abstinence, and yet insisted that he should be retained as a member and officer of a total abstinence society? A man who denies and denounces an important article of religious belief, and yet insists upon remaining a priest of the church which is founded upon that belief, is guilty of similar self-stultification. There is plenty of room in the world for so-called 'heretics.' But it is outside the pulpits of the churches whose creeds they have repudiated."—New York Daily Tribune.

DR. HAMILL HONORED.

Dr. H. M. Hamill, superintendent of the Sunday school training work of the M. E. Church, South, attended the recent Commencement exercises of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute, from which he was graduated in 1872. He was toastmaster at the alumni banquet, at the conclusion of which he was presented with a loving cup by Dr. D. B. Ross, whose speech in bestowing the gift was most happy and appropriate. Dr. Hamill was deeply touched by this manifestation of esteem and attachment by his friends, and responded in the following tender and impressive words:

"Men, you have honored me more than I deserve. What you have done has caused me to experience the happiest event I have known since I left dear old Auburn and went out into the world with the intention of being a man. In 1868 my mother brought me to this campus by the hand, and left me, saying: 'Be a good boy and try to make a man—one who can go out into the world and DO something.' I determined then to do so. To-night I feel unworthy, but I feel in the face of this that I have, to a certain extent, been a man. That dear old mother lives yet. She is now at Hanceville, Ala., in her ninety-third year, and when I leave you, I shall go to her, just as a boy, and lay this loving cup in her lap, and on my knees place my head there as I used to do, and God will help her understand that I have tried, how hard I have tried, to be a good boy. That will be happiness for her, men, and when I tell her all the nice things you have said about me, she will love you all as I do now."

AN UNEXPECTED COMPLIMENT.

In a recent public address Dr. J. M. Buckley, the veteran editor of the New York Christian Advocate, is said to have told the following interesting story on himself. On a train he chanced to sit down near a somewhat intoxicated man who was reading the Christian Advocate. The Doctor asked the stranger if he was a subscriber to that paper. "No," was the prompt reply, "but my wife takes it, and I like to read it because there is an old cuss at the head of the paper who call things by their right names." A rather homely compliment was this, but it was a compliment notwithstanding. The world is not full of men who have the courage to speak boldly out on pending issues.

LET IT GO ON.

The editor of the Times-Democrat says: "A national crusade against tobacco smoking is being organized in New York. But the tobacco trust, so far as can be learned, refuses to view it with alarm."

Anyhow, it is a needed crusade and we trust that a mighty host will soon enlist in its ranks. Tobacco does a vast amount of harm and no good. Even whisky is said to have the merit of making a man imagine that he is rich, but we have never heard such a claim set up for tobacco.

One of the first things we should like to see these new crusaders do, is to stop men from carrying smoldering cigar stubs on the street cars. Though not allowed to smoke on them, it is a very common thing for a male passenger to come aboard, holding in his hand a lighted cigar which is quite offensive and sickening to others. But perhaps the most striking characteristic of those addicted to the use of the weed is their belief that they have a right not only to smoke themselves, but also to smoke their fellow creatures. In some way they should be taught better manners.

DR. W. T. J. SULLIVAN DEAD.

The press dispatches announce that Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan, an honored superannuate of the North Mississippi Conference, died at his home at Jackson, on Tuesday afternoon, July 11. He had been indisposed for some days and recently went to the Seashore Camp Ground in company with his son, Dr. J. M. Sullivan, thinking that a brief outing there would prove beneficial; but growing worse, he returned home about the middle of last week. It was our pleasure to see him there last Thursday; he was dressed and reclining on his bed, and his illness was not then thought to be serious. But now he has gone from us! With inexpressible sorrow, we write these words. Truly, a prince in Israel has fallen. Our forms are closed and on the press, and we cannot say more now. May God comfort and sustain the sorrowing loved ones!

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The Seashore Camp Meeting began last Wednesday night. Many people from New Orleans are in attendance.

Rev. R. T. Nolen, who is in his third year on the Harrisville charge, Mississippi Conference, reports his work as progressing favorably. It is his habit to give a good account of himself where he labors.

From Waterford, Miss., Rev. J. M. Carpenter has lately sent us a fine list of subscribers, accompanied by the requisite amount of cash. We are grateful to him for remembering the Advocate in his rounds.

The cooking and sewing classes at St. Mark's Hall (New Orleans) have closed for the summer. Miss Baker will take her vacation this month, and Miss Margaret Ragland will take hers in August, spending it in Texas.

Mrs. J. B. Streater and Miss Ella R. Streater have returned to their home at Black Hawk, Miss., after a stay of some weeks in Chicago, whither they had gone in the interest of the former's health. Mrs. Streater is reported to have been much improved by the trip.

Dr. J. M. Henry, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, preached a strong and helpful sermon at the Seashore Tabernacle last Sunday at 11 a. m. He is one of the managers of the Camp Meeting now in progress at that place, and is greatly interested in its success.

Rev. H. M. Ellis occupied the pulpit of the Lenox Methodist Church, of Memphis, last Sunday at 11 o'clock, and presented the cause of the Tri-State Hospital. We heard Brother Ellis' speech before the Durant District Conference highly complimented a few days since.

Our office was favored last Thursday by the presence of a welcome caller in the person of Brother T. C. Barron, of Holloway, La. We are always pleased to have our friends look in on us when they come to the city. The editor regrets that he missed seeing Brother Barron.

We are pleased to learn that Mrs. J. M. Johnson, of Lexington, Miss., who has lately been quite ill, is now convalescing. She is the mother of the Rev. W. J. Johnson, who is the pastor of the First Methodist Church, of Galveston, and one of the leading members of the Texas Conference.

It was reported for a time last week that Rev. T. H. Lipscomb would give up his pastorate at Lexington, Miss., and be transferred to the Louisiana Conference and stationed at the Noel Memorial Church of Shreveport. Brother Lipscomb's final decision, however, was not to make the change.

Rev. B. H. Sheppard, our pastor at Many, La., has lately added to our subscription files a number of names from Loring, La. We thank Brother Sheppard for his kindly interest in the Conference organ, and we pray that it may carry a weekly blessing into every home into which he has been instrumental in sending it.

The Young Woman's Christian Association of New Orleans has inaugurated a vigorous campaign to secure a thousand new members. The workers have been organized into two competing bands, one of which is known as the "Black-Eyed Susans," and the other as the "Ragged Robins." Gratifying success has attended their efforts so far.

Rev. L. E. Wicht, of Washington, Miss., states that while he was at Wesley Hall at the Seashore Camp Ground, some one through mistake picked up and carried off his tablet, upon which he had been making notes. He would greatly appreciate it if the brother who happened to get it would tear out the pages written upon and send them to him.

Rev. H. G. Gatlin, now assisting Rev. J. P. Haney on the East Feliciana Circuit, writes: "The work on this charge is progressing finely. We are planning for two meetings this month. One of our oldest members at the Gilead Church, Sister Elizabeth Kent, died Sunday morning, July 5, and was buried the Monday following at the family graveyard, six miles east of Clinton. She was 85 years of age."

A letter from Sister E. S. Lewis, written from Winona, Miss., on July 5, stated that Brother Lewis still had fever and was quite sick. We greatly regretted to receive such news, and we hope that ere this the fever has disappeared, and that this faithful worker is well on the way toward recovery. As his district lies largely in the newly-settled part of the Delta, we suppose it is malaria that is troubling him.

We regret to be informed of the death of Miss O. D. Ireland, which occurred at the home of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Evie D. Ireland, at Natchez, Miss., on Friday, July 7. The obsequies were conducted at the Jefferson Street Methodist Church the next day, Rev. L. E. Wicht and Rev. W. H. Huntley, officiating. Miss Ireland was in the fifty-fourth year of her age, and had long been a zealous and active member of the M. E. Church, South.

Rev. W. F. Rogers, our faithful pastor at West, Miss., favored us with a nice list of subscribers a few days since. Brother Rogers added a postscript to his letter in which he said: "We had a good Children's Day at Hebron last Sunday (July 1). A large congregation was present, and a liberal collection was taken. The Sunday school superintendent at this church is Brother W. D. Brock, who always brings things to pass."

Rev. A. S. Lutz, our pastor at Homer, La., spent last Sunday in the city. He occupied the pulpit of the Parker Memorial Church at the morning hour, and preached to his former congregation at the Felicity Street Church in the evening. Echoes of both sermons reached us, and the characterization of them was that they were eloquent, forceful, and stimulating to the spiritual life. Brother Lutz is a favorite with the Methodists of New Orleans.

Rev. D. E. Vickers, of Trenton, Miss., writes as follows: "My work is moving along very nicely. On the second Sunday in June we observed Children's Day at Burns. The program was well arranged, and the exercises did credit to all who participated in them. The Burns organization is yet in its infancy, but it bids fair to become one of our strongest country churches in the near future. We are planning to remodel and paint our church at Trenton."

We make grateful acknowledgement to Rev. W. D. McCullough, of Eupora, Miss., for a list of subscribers to the Advocate recently forwarded. Elsewhere in this issue appears an interesting account of Brother McCullough's work. We congratulate him and his worthy flock upon the forward movements which they have inaugurated in their community. It delights us to know that such progress is being made by the followers of Wesley in any part of the field.

In renewing his subscription, Hon. H. S. Stevens, of Hattiesburg, who is one of the leading lawyers of south Mississippi and an active church worker, takes occasion to say some commendatory things concerning the Advocate, for which we heartily thank him. We have not thought it proper to print the expressions of appreciation from our readers which we often receive, but we are none the less grateful for them on this account. Amidst many discouragements, they have cheered us not a little.

A pleasant caller at our office on Wednesday, the 5th inst., was the Rev. E. W. Barrington, pastor of the Methodist Church at Woodville, Miss., and the newly-elected president of Edward McGehee College. He spoke most encouragingly of the outlook for the school with which he is connected, and of the church work in general in his section. Brother Barrington has had considerable experience as an educator, and we predict a large measure of success for the institution whose interests recently have been committed to his hands.

In a note to the editor, Rev. A. Inman Townsley, of Arcadia, La., says: "Bishop Mouzon mightily pleased the brethren of the Ruston District at the District Conference with his strong and scholarly sermons and genial and affable bearing. His expository discourse on "The Beatitudes" was original, lucid, and convincing. His missionary address reminded me of the misionary address of the sainted Bishop Ward. It was earnest, eloquent, and overwhelming." Brother Townsley states that during the summer he will conduct his Sunday evening services in the Willow Park instead of in the church.

While recently in Mississippi, we were pained to be informed of the serious illness of the Hon. J. C. Kyle, of Sardis, Miss., whose health for some time has been such as to excite the solicitude of his friends. Brother Kyle was for many years a distinguished and useful member of Congress, and no man in his State enjoys in a larger measure the confidence and esteem of the people. He is one of the most widely known Methodist laymen within the bounds of the North Mississippi Conference. We trust that the malady with which he is afflicted will yield to treatment, and that we may soon hear of a marked improvement in his condition.

The Commercial Appeal reports that Mrs. W. B. Parks, of Merigold, Miss., was seriously injured in an automobile accident between that place and Cleveland on July 7. She was hurried to Memphis by a special train and carried to St. Joseph's Hospital, where she received surgical treatment. We are glad to state that it is thought that she will recover. Mrs. Parks is a leading member of our Church at Merigold, and a woman of noble Christian character. We trust that no complications will arise, and that her recovery may be a speedy one. The other occupants of the car—her little daughter, Ethel Claire Parks, and her brother, Rev. Oscar Wynne—escaped without injury.

The remains of the late Mrs. A. L. Edgar, widow of the late E. F. Edgar of the Mississippi Conference, and the mother of Mr. Joseph E. Norwood, editor of the Magnolia Gazette, were laid to rest in the Magnolia Cemetery on Sunday, July 1. Touching addresses were delivered by Dr. I. W. Cooper, Rev. J. W. Sandell, and Rev. H. B. Watkins, the pastor. Other ministers present were Rev. J. G. Galloway, of Crystal Springs; Rev. C. N. Guice, of Summit, and Rev. R. L. Bunyard, of the Baptist Church. The entire community mourns the loss of this good woman, whose life was a blessing to all with whom she came into contact. May divine grace be vouchsafed to the sorrowing relatives and friends in their sore bereavement!

Mrs. Walter Pate (nee Miss Irene McLaurin), daughter of the late Senator A. J. McLaurin, of Mississippi, died at her home in Jackson on Saturday morning, July 8, after a painful illness of seven weeks. Bravely she battled for life, and all that loving hands and the best medical skill could do, was done, but it was of no avail; for God's finger touched the patient sufferer and she gently fell asleep. The remains were carried to Brandon, the family home, and on last Sunday were laid to rest near her honored father and other loved ones, where they must repose until the trumpet blast of the archangel shall proclaim the resurection morn. The obsequies were conducted by Rev. C. F. Emery, of Canton. We extend sympathy to the stricken relatives and friends, and pray that the loving Heavenly Father may comfort and sustain them in the grief and darkness of this sad hour.

The latest news from Bishop A. W. Wilson is that he is much improved in health, and that he is remarkably vigorous for one of his years. He very properly tries to guard against overtaxing his strength, however, and usually invites one of his younger colleagues to assist him in his presidency over the Annual Conferences assigned him. We are informed that he has asked Bishop Collins Denny to be with him at the session of the North Mississippi Conference and that he has consented to do so. The relations between these two honored chief pastors has long been very close, and they are said to entertain for each other a genuine affection. Greatly delighted at the prospect of having Bishop Wilson among them, the Methodists of North Mississippi will count it a double pleasure to be favored also with the presence of Bishop Denny, whom for many years they have regarded as one of the ablest and most gifted men in the connection.

A dispatch to the Times-Democrat states the remains of Rev. M. H. Moore, of the Mississippi Conference, who died at Colorado Springs on July 3, were interred at Poplarville last Friday morning at 11 o'clock. We profoundly regret the death of this worthy and faithful minister, who enjoyed the confidence and high esteem of all who knew him. It was sad that the summons came to him far away from home, while he tarried among strangers, with only his son with him, but we doubt not that the call found him well prepared and ready. Our acquaintance with him was too brief for us to undertake to write of his character and career; to others we must leave that task. To the bereft family we give our deepest sympathy and most earnest prayers. In the glorious truths of the gospel can comfort alone be found when our loved ones pass from us and we are left in the desolation of our sorrow. Earth is lonely without them, but we can look forward to heaven and a happy reunion in the sweet by and by.

Through the kindness of the presiding elder, Rev. W. W. Woollard, we have received a copy of the "Digest of the Pastors' Reports of the Greenville District," which covers a period of six months, ending June 15. This leaflet shows the work under Brother Woollard's supervision to be in a most admirable condition. The reported gain in membership is 162; the amount paid for the support of the ministry is $8,237; raised for foreign missions, $946; for domestic missions, $747; New Orleans Advocates taken, 424; Nashville Advocates, 57; subscriptions to the Missionary Voice, 124. One charge (Tunica) paid off all of the connectional claims many weeks ago. The pastor of this work is Rev. J. W. Honnoll, who though considerably past 70 years of age, is one of the most efficient ministers of our acquaintance. The appointments in the Mississippi Delta were never better manned than they are now, and never were the interests of the Church looked after with more painstaking care.

DR. H. B. BARTLETT
National Dental Parlors
Cor. Canal & Camp Sts.
ENTRANCE 106 CAMP
Phone Main 2193
NEW ORLEANS
Vitalized Air for Painless Extraction
Crown and Bridge Specialist.
The Largest and Best Equipped Dental Parlors South.

Obituaries.

On June 12, 1911, Little BEATRICE, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Potts, winged its flight back to God who gave it. She was born Aug. 13, 1909. Only a brief period was she permitted to live here, hut they were months filled with hlessings to the home. The memory of her little life and songs will always be fragrant, and although gone from home and loved ones for a season, she still abides with them in thought and memory. One night, while I was with her, she asked me to sing, and I sang "There is a Fountain Filled With Blood," and she tried to help me, but she was so weak she couldn't sing very loud. She loved music so well. Little as she was, she would always thank God for what she had. Her going away has left sadness behind, hut heaven has heen hrought nearer. We cannot hring her back, but we can go to her. Her little hody was laid to rest in Macedonia Cemetery, with appropriate service, conducted hy Rev. T. A. Jones. May the presence of the God of comfort and peace fill the empty places in the hearts of father, mother, brother and sisters. COUSIN ALMA.

Potts Camp, Miss.

The subject of this sketch, MRS. MARY E. BROWNLEE, was horn in Lowndes County, near Columbus, Miss., on February 17, 1834, and died June 29, 1911. She was converted at New Hope Church at 13 years of age, and joined that church. She was converted under the preaching of Rev. William Weir, father of our Dr. T. C. Weir. It has not been my pleasure to know a more faithful, consecrated servant of the Lord than was Sister Browniee. Loyal to her Lord, to her church and institutions, she lived and enjoyed her religion every day of her life, walking by faith, "having her affections placed on things above, and not on things of this earth." When Sister Brownlee was at church, and she always was when able, I knew that I would have help in preaching. In 1861 her husband, J. B. Brownlee, died, leaving her with three children to rear. And how well she trained these children is seen in their exemplary lives. B. F. Brownlee, her eldest son, was killed by lightning July, 1903. He was a steward in the church when killed. J. M. and Miss Nannie J. Brownlee are left to mourn her departure. The latter has been an invalid for many years. Mrs. Sidney Nash, of Columhus, Miss., is the only living sister. She is two years older than Sister Browniee. She, like her sainted sister, is a woman of great faith and much piety, and is calmly awaiting the summons from the Master to come up higher. May the Holy Spirit comfort the bereaved relatives, and lead them on, so that in the sweet by and hy they may meet her where partings come no more!

W. R. GOUDELOCK.

Sister NANNY MAY SIMS was born in Itawamba County, Miss., on the 28th day of April, 1873. She was converted at the early age of eleven years and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. She was married to Joseph E. Sims Dec. 13, 1893; the two lived happily together till her death, June 10, 1911. In writing these lines in appreciation of her, I appreciate the fact that I am quite unable to picture her life as it is already written in the mind of everyone who knew her. It has been said that actions speak louder than words, and how true it was in her case. To say that she was a loyal church member and a devoted Christian, hardly gives her justice, since these terms are often abused. It was her meat and drink to do her Master's will. She will be missed much in the missionary society, Sunday school, prayer meeting, regular preaching services and everywhere that she could go to do good. From the beginning she was so devoted to Christian work she was almost singular. Notwithstanding her physical weakness for several years, her strong will-power and heart-interest kept up her Christian work till the last. Although the writer has only known her since the beginning of the Conference year, he is sure that her many friends and acquaintances will testify to the truth of the above. May God bless her memory! As someone has said, "He[illegible] will be a lamp to lead her loved ones on to a happy reunion." She leaves a devoted Christian hnshand, one son and a host of relatives and friends to mourn their loss. Her funeral service was conducted by her pastor, assisted hy Rev. D. A. McDougal. May the hlessing of God rest upon the bereaved ones! May the good ladies and all of us on Mantachie charge carry on her good work and live such lives as to meet her in heaven! A. S. BRISCO.

Mantachie, Miss.

SARAH ERNESTINE LANGSTON, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Langston, was born Nov. 13, 1909, and died at her home in Cochrum, Miss., June 20, 1911. Someone has said, "Our hearts are gardens, in the soil of which are dropped tiny seeds of sweet words and kind actions, which as the days pass, germinate and spread their tiny roots, that grow stronger with each succeeding day, and ere we are aware, influence the course of our lives." This was true of every life that came in contact with little Sarah's. With fond parents, aunts and uncles to lavish upon her all the affectionate attention that is usually given the only babe in the home, yet her sweet nature remained unchanged, and all who came within the circle of her hright, brief life, enjoyed alike the sunshine of her smiles and the prattle of her sweet baby talk. I can see her now, as I did once during her long illness with that patient look, and I seem to hear that sweet voice repeating the one word that to me she said with more expression than any other, in which gratitude and content seemed blended, "all right." Yes, it is all right with little Sarah. Our Heavenly Father hath plucked the lily ere it was full blown, as if eager to preserve its lovely purity that it might be more fit to blossom out in heaven. May the devoted parents and each loved one that ministered to her during her illness be enabled by the divine power to behold in little Sarah's spirit the bright star that will ultimately lead them to that bright home above.

A FRIEND.

FROM BROTHER NEBLETT.

Dear Brother Meek: I am just home to-day from our trip to San Francisco. We had a great convention. Bishop Hughes and Bishop Hendrix, of the M. E. and M. E. Church, South, made notable addresses before the convention. Our trip going was over the Santa Fe, by Kansas City, and through southern California. Returning, we came over the mountains hy Salt Lake City, Denver, St. Joe, and St. Louis. I am glad to be home.

I had the pleasure of seeing Brother Borders and of hearing Bishop Waterhouse preach on the Sunday of the convention at our Southern Methodist Church in the city of San Francisco. It is good to get back and read the Advocate and hear good talk through it.

The Lord hless you!

R. P. NEBLETT.

HIBERNIA INSURANCE CO.,
Capital.....$200,000.00
Assets..... 479,860.90
No. 305 Camp Street.. New Orleans, La
LOSSES PROMPTLY PAID

Asheville, N. C.—In "The Land of the Sky" Is the Ideal Spot to Spend Your Vacation.

The Climate is superb, being 2,250 feet above the sea level, is high above humid, sultry and less favored sections—it is healthful, invigorating and strengthening. Asheville has the purest water and most beautiful scenery in the world. Hotel and boarding house accommodations are unsurpassed. Beautiful roads for motoring and driving, golf, tennis, bowling and every imaginable attraction for recreation and amusement. Biltmore House, the magnificent home of Mr. Geo. W. Vanderbilt, and the finest country estate in existence, is situated here and open to visitors three days each week. Asheville people are hospitable and you'll enjoy every minute you stay here. Make your arrangements to come to Asheville this summer—cheap rates from all points.

For Handsome Illustrated Booklet Describing Asheville, Write

Board of Trade, Asheville, N. C.

Source of Asheville's Water Supply.

To Quickly Relieve
SUNBURN
Apply Hinds Honey and Almond Cream gently with the fingers, or, if very tender moisten a piece of old linen or absorbent cotton with this pure snow-white cream and lay it on the inflamed surface. It will cool, comfort and heal the hot, sore skin and prevent blistering or peeling. If you apply before exposure to sun and wind and again on returning indoors, there will be only slight tendency to sunburn or windburn. The skin will remain soft, smooth and clear.—This is a non-greasy cream;—guaranteed harmless. It cannot possibly grow hair. It is supremely good for dry, rough, irritated, sore skin. It makes dull complexions clear and attractive.
HINDS Honey and Almond CREAM
Price 50c., in bottles.—Sold by 40,000 dealers.
For Free Trial Bottle write A. S. HINDS, 72 West St., Portland, Me.

VERY LOW RATES
ATTRACT THOUSANDS
To CALIFORNIA
EVERY SUMMER.
Tickets on sale daily, June 1 to Sept 30, 1911. Limit Oct. 31, 1911.
ESPECIALLY LOW RATES
June 5 and 6, June 11 to 22, and June 27 to July 5, 1911. Return Limit Sept. 15, 1911.
TWO TRAINS DAILY
Via SOUTHERN PACIFIC
Also Very Low Summer Rates to Colorado and Yellowstone National Park. Excellent Service afforded by the Southern Pacific and Connections. For full particulars, call on or write
City Ticket Agent, 225-27 St. Charles Street, New Orleans.
PHONE MAIN 4027
Beautifully Illustrated Literature Furnished on Request.

Tidings From the Field

Coldwater, Miss.:

Our third quarterly meeting is past, with gratifying results. Brother Young, our presiding elder, came in the spirit of the Master and surcharged with interest for the Church. This is the fourth year of Brother Young on this district, and our people regret to give him up. He is painstaking in looking after the varied interests of the Church and spiritual in his preaching. Our work is moving on in harmony. We have had our Children's Day, with pleasing results, notwithstanding the hot weather—praise to the good women and children. All of our finances are in advance of what they usually are at this time of year. We have never served a more loyal people to the Church of God, yet we are not perfect. There are still many heights to climb, and the devil is not dead, nor has he left us; on the contrary, he is still in evidence, putting in his work whenever opportunity allows. But this is no new trick of his to us. We expect to be on the ground, and in the name of the Lord, fight to the last ditch and conquer through Christ. Our protracted meetings are to be held yet. Pray that we may have a glorious victory.—D. W. Babb.

Rayville, La.:

We closed last week a very fine meeting here, conducted by Rev. Walter G. Harbin, of Haynesville, La., beginning Sunday morning, June 18, continuing through the second week till Thursday night. Congregations were large and interested from the first service. Brother Harbin I found to be a man most discreet, of good judgment, and a preacher of no mean ability—pointed and clear. He has been a great blessing to our town. Thirty-six united with the different churches during the meeting, and others have indicated their purpose soon to do so. Brother Harbin has associated with him as his helper Rev. D. B. Boddie, a student from Centenary College, a young man of tact, fine qualities and consecration, such as will make him acceptable and successful wherever he may go. He soon found his way into the hearts of the people here, and did a great work among them. I heartily recommend these brethren to any one needing assistance in their meetings. Secure them, if you can; you will make no mistake. I think, Mr. Editor, you will get a few names to whom you may send the Advocate, with others to follow, as a result of the meeting. —W. F. Henderson.

Prentiss. Miss.:

It has been some time since I have written you. A great many good things have happened in the bounds of my work and I have failed to say anything to your paper about it. We have had several fine revivals on this circuit since I've been here. Quite a number of people have been brought into the church. We have a beautiful church here in Prentiss, where two and a half years ago we had none. We have one of the best organized Laymen's Movements in the bounds of this circuit that I know of. Mr. H. T. McGehee is our very efficient circuit leader. He has associated with him a committee of five from each church. On Saturday night before the third Sunday in July our protracted meeting began at Prentiss. M. L. White preached Saturday night. Brother John Kelly, of Gloster, was here with his cornet, and led the music, which could not have been excelled. Rev. Geo. D. Anders preached very efficiently from Sunday till Thursday. He is oftentimes the forerunner or stump-puller of Rev. D. E. Kelly, the Conference evangelist. The meeting was in fine shape by the time Brother Kelly came. Brother Kelly in his own way went after my people in Prentiss. Our meeting resulted in one of the best revivals known to Prentiss. Twenty-four members were added to the church, and the good that came to the church membership cannot be estimated. The prayer meeting, Sunday school, and church have taken on new life. I am sure that our Conference has acted very wisely in appointing Rev. D. E. Kelly our Conference evangelist. I have four other meetings to hold in this circuit and we are expecting great results.—M. L. White, P. C.

Vermillion Charge (La.):

If you will allow me, I will endeavor to give you and the readers of the Advocate a few notes from the Vermillion Charge. My work is a circuit with three preaching places, situated along the Vermillion river, where we have plenty of cane and mosquitoes. Saturady night, June 24, we began revival services at Henry, my home church, and closed Sunday night, July 2. The preaching was done principally by Rev. J. L. Cady, of Shreveport. Brother Cady gave us good service. His sermons were delivered with the earnestness characteristic of the man, and with demonstration of the power of God. Sunday night, June 25, Rev. J. E. Denson, presiding elder of the Lafayette District, came and preached a strong and instructive sermon to a full house, after which we went into the business session of the quarterly conference, this being Brother Denson's third round. We continued the services through the week, preaching morning and evening, and had cottage prayer services in the afternoons; congregations were good at night, but small in the forenoon. Everything moved along nicely until Friday night, at which time the mosquitoes began to come to church in swarms, and they continued to come until we decided we would close Sunday night, as before stated. The visible results were not what we should like to have seen, but we are confident that much good was accomplished. We had five accessions to the church, and several promised to lead a better life. Sunday, July 2, was devoted to Sunday school work and Christian instruction to the young. Addresses were made in the forenoon by Brother J. H. Williams and Q. R. Henry, and a sermon was preached by J. L. Cady, after which we adjourned to meet at 2 o'clock p. m. The good ladies had prepared plenty of good things to eat, and brought them along, and you may rest assured, the yellow-leg chicken was there. Some one said it was a dinner fit for a king. At 2 o'clock p. m., we again assembled in the house of the Great King, and after singing the superintendent and teachers met in a teachers' meeting, and the young people of the congregation were divided in two clases. Brother Quinton Henry taught the young ladies, while Brother Cady cared for the young men in the same way, after which the pastor endeavored to instruct the children in spiritual things. The services were closed by Brother J. L. Cady.—J. H. Hoffpauir, pastor.

SNOWDRIFT
HOGLESS LARD

"Pure as the Drifting Snow"

Snowdrift Hogless Lard marked the first great advance in purity of shortening and relief from hog lard and other unwholesome ingredients. It has many imitators fighting for your patronage, FIGHT SHY OF THEM ALL! Snowdrift is one-third less expensive than hog lard and goes one-third further and produces much finer results in cooking. ALWAYS use Snowdrift. Buy it in tins only. Avoid snow-FAKE labels.

Sold by all leading dealers who Avoid Substitution Trade.

Made by The Southern Cotton Oil Co., New York, Savannah, New Orleans, Chicago

LOUISIANA RAILWAY
(La. R'y & Nav. Co.)

—THE SHORT LINE BETWEEN—
Shreveport; Alexandria;
Baton Rouge; New Orleans.

THE COMFORTABLE ROUTE FOR PASSENGERS
QUICKEST ROUTE FOR FREIGHT

LESS THAN CARLOAD SHIPMENTS HAULED IN PACKAGE CARS IN THROUGH TRAINS.

L&N Louisville & Nashville R.R.

THE DIRECT LINE TO NORTH AND EAST
ELECTRIC LIGHTED STEEL SLEEPERS
DINING CARS, OBSERVATION CARS, CHAIR CARS

Phone M 4093. TICKET OFFICE 201 ST. CHARLES STREET.

Use the L. & A. Railway

When you travel go via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY, The Road That Is Always on Time. FIRST-CLASS EQUIPMENT; Gravel Ballasted Track; 75 Pound Steel Rails; The Best of Service in Every Respect. Double Daily Passenger Service; Two Trains Each Way Daily.

OUR FREIGHT SERVICE IS UNEXCELLED.

When you order or ship freight if you want quick and satisfactory service, instruct your shipments routed via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY. Our motto is "EVER ON TIME."

F. W. GREEN, General Superintendent. Stamps, Ark.
B. S. ATKINSON, Gen. Frt. and Pass. Agt., Texarkana, Ark.

You Look Prematurely Old

Because of those ugly, grizzly gray hairs. Use "LA CREOLE" HAIR DRESSING. Price $1.00, retail.

Epworth League Department.

(Edited by Rev. H. B. Watkins, Magnolia, Miss., to whom all communications intended for this Department should be addressed.)

THE DEVOTIONAL SERVICE.

Topic for July 16.

"NEED THE GATE TO ABUNDANCE."

Phil. iv, 19; I Cor. x, 13; Phil. iv, 13.

Our Need.

Man is the most needy and helpless of all creatures, and yet it has been suggested that we may learn the greatness of his nature from the character of his wants. "He must have a world made for him, and all things in it must serve him." Man's needs are various and constant. He has physical needs. There is no other creature with so many wants. The creatures far beneath him have not so long and helpless an infancy, and acquire much sooner the means of self-support. His wants are constantly recurring. His body must be clothed and fed and cared for as long as he lives. Man has also social needs. We cannot exist alone, but are dependent upon others. The words, father, mother, brothers, sisters, husband and wife—these all represent the need of his social nature. Again, man has mental needs. The mind must be fed and cared for, that it may expand and grow as the Almighty intended that it should. Man also has moral needs. He is a sinner, and needs a Savior. Some one suggests that we set out our needs as empty vessels in a long row, all of them, that God may fill them—needs for our body, and needs for our soul; needs for our families, for the present, for the future, for time, and for eternity.

Christ Adapted to Human Needs.

Doctor Guthrie very forcefully says: "You cannot name a noble figure, a sweet simile, a tender or attractive relationship, in which Jesus is not set forth for the comfort and encouragement of his people. Are we wounded? He is balm. Are we sick? He is medicine. Are we naked? He is clothing. Are we poor? He is wealth. Are we hungry? He is bread. Are we thirsty? He is water. Are we in debt? He is our surety. Are we in darkness? He is our sun. Have we a house to build? He is the rock on which to build it. Have we a black and gathering storm to face? He is a strong tower to which we may flee and be safe. Are we to be tried? He is our advocate. Is sentence passed, and are we under condemnation? He is our pardon. To deck him out and set him forth nature culls her finest flowers, brings her choicest ornaments, and lays these treasures at his feet."

Need of Assistance Under Trial.

None of us are exempt from temptation, and all forms of temptation are common, yet most of us are disposed to think that our own temptations are peculiar. A lady said to her pastor: "You do not know the peculiar circumstances in which I am placed." "I beg your pardon," said the minister, "I thought I had spoken of peculiar circumstances." "Yes, but mine are very peculiar circumstances." "But is not Christ a mighty Savior?" "Yes, but mine are very, very peculiar circumstances." "Will you look away from me now, and speak to God in heaven thus: 'God, I thank thee for Jesus Christ. I thank thee thou hast looked down on my lost, hell-deserving state, and that he died to save me. I want to live a holy life to thy glory. But my circumstances are so very, very peculiar that I cannot think that Jesus Christ is quite able to keep me in them.'" "But," she exclaimed, "would not that be blasphemy?" "Not more," replied the wise pastor, "than your saying to me that in your very, very peculiar circumstances he is not able to keep you." As the besieged citizens slipped away by an underground passage under cover of night, so to every tempted soul there is always one sure way of escape—Jesus Christ.

The Theme Illustrated.

Many years ago an aged and ragged Indian wandered into one of our Western settlements, begging for food to keep him from starving. A bright-colored ribbon was seen round his neck, from which there hung a small dirty pouch. On being asked what it was, he said it was a charm given him in his younger days. He opened it, and took out a worn and crumpled paper, which he handed the person speaking to him for inspection. On examination it proved to be a regular discharge from the Federal army, entitling him to a pension for life, and signed by General Washington himself. Here was a man with a promise duly signed, which, if presented in the right place, would have secured to him ample provision for the way; and yet he was wandering about hungry, helpless and foriorn, and begging for bread to keep him from starving! What a picture we have here of many Epworth Leaguers, who, with all the promises of Jesus in their hands, with the charter of their inheritance in full possession, are yet gloomy and sad, and starving for the bread of life!—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

A Friend of the People.

Since 1820 Gray's Ointment has been sold entirely upon its merits. It is a friend that thousands of people have been unable to do without in the cure of Cuts, Boils, Carbuncles, Felons, Tumors, Rheumatism, Blood Poison, etc. Dr. Jas. R. Phelps, of Dorchester, Mass., writes: "Please send me a new supply of Gray's Ointment. It is my sheet anchor in cases of carbuncles, unhealthy granulations, and blood poison."

Ask your druggist for a 25c. box, or write Dr. W. F. Gray & Co., 804 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., for a free sample postpaid.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

New Orleans District, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., presiding elder; residence, 236 Olivier Street; phone, Algiers 76.

First Methodist Church, St. Charles Ave., near Caillope St.; Dr. S. H. Werlein, pastor; residence, 5830 Prytania St.; phone, Uptown 329.

Rayne Memorial Church, St. Charles Ave. and General Taylor St.; Rev. A. G. Shankle, pastor; residence, 1421 Constantinople St.; phone, Uptown 945.

Second Methodist Church, 2531 Burgundy, near Lafayette Ave.; Rev. A. F. Vaughan, pastor; residence, 815 Louisa st. Phone Hemlock 1376.

Parker Memorial Church, corner Nashville Ave. and Perrier St.; Rev. C. D. Atkinson, pastor; residence, 734 Nashville Ave.; phone, Uptown 671.

Louisiana Avenue Church, corner Louisiana Ave. and Magazine St.; Rev. H. T. Carley, pastor; residence, 920 Aline St.; phone, Uptown 156.

Felicity Street Church, cor. Felicity and Chestnut Sts.; Rev. W. W. Holmes, pastor; residence, 1515 Prytania St.; phone, Jackson 1753.

Carrollton Avenue Church, cor. Carrollton Ave. and Elm St.; Rev. J. G. Snelling, pastor; residence, 1125 Fern St.; phone, Walnut 1238.

Algiers, Lavergne Street, cor. Delaronde; Rev. J. W. Booth, pastor; residence, 119 Vallette, St.

Epworth Church, cor. Banks and Scott Sts.; Rev. L. A. Sims, pastor; residence, 3602 Canal St.

Mary Werlein and McDonoghville; Rev. W. B. Perritt, pastor; residence, No. 1026 Tchoupitoulas St.; phone, Main 412.

Rev. John L. Sutton, Superintendent Orphan Boys' Asylum; residence, 5220 St. Charles Ave.; phone, Uptown 128.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, Superintendent St. Mark's Hall, 619-21 Esplanade. Residence, 1634 Sixth Street; phones: Residence, Uptown 954; St. Mark's Hall, Hemlock 1458.

Rev. R. A. Meek, Editor New Orleans Christian Advocate; residence, 724 Nashville Ave.; phone, Uptown 679.

Rev. John T. Sawyer, D.D., residence, 4420 Howard St.

Twitching Eyes

Will soon be inflamed, sore, weak eyes. Leonardi's Golden Eye Lotion stops the twitching; allays the inflammation; cures soreness without pain in one day. Insist on having "Leonardi's—it makes strong eyes.

Guaranteed or money refunded. Druggists sell it at 25c. or forwarded prepaid on receipt of price by S. B. Leonardi & Co., Tampa, Fla.

ESTEY CHURCH ORGANS.

The ESTEY is the world's best Organ. The KOHLER & CAMPBELL PIANO is in every particular first class; satisfaction guaranteed in every case; freight paid; low cash price on easy payments without interest. Write for Catalogues.

J. H. BASS, Pastor Meth't Ch'ch.
Brookville, Miss.

"CARBOLITE"
CALCIUM-CARBIDE
Highest Quality, Lowest Price, carried in stock by
A. T. THOMPSON & Co., New Orleans, La
—We also sell—
DYNAMITE AND BLASTING SUPPLIES.
—Post-office Box 748—

A PERPETUAL MONUMENT

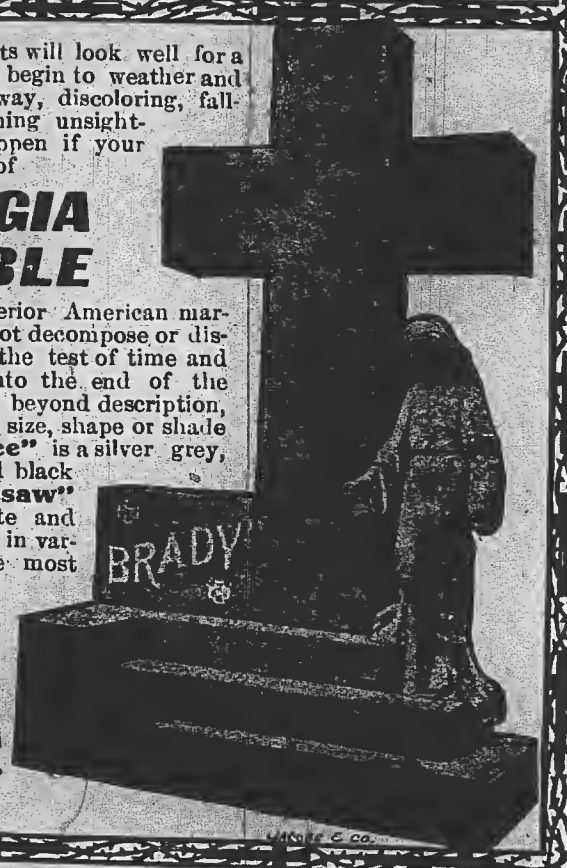
Some monuments will look well for a short time, but soon begin to weather and gradually crumble away, discoloring, falling down and becoming unsightly, but this can't happen if your monument is made of

GEORGIA MARBLE

This is the most superior American marble—positively will not decompose or discolor, but will stand the test of time and the elements even unto the end of the world. It is beautiful beyond description, and can be had in auy size, shape or shade desired. "Cherokee" is a silver grey, "Creole" a mottled black and white, "Kennesaw" almost a pure white and "Etowah" comes in various shades of the most exquisite pink.

Ask your dealer to show you samples, and if he can't supply you, write us and we will put you in touch with a nearby dealer who can.

The GEORGIA MARBLE CO.
TATE, GA.



When Business Demands—When Pleasure Calls

NO MATTER where you live; regardless of weather and road conditions, you can pin your faith to an International Auto Wagon.

As a business vehicle it opens new possibilities for you. It brings the best markets for your produce, hours nearer your farm. It saves you the cost of maintaining a horse and wagon for light work, saves you the expense and annoyance of taking a horse from the field when you need to go to town. The can be used as a pleasure car by adding a rear seat and top. It is reliable, economical, and decidedly good looking.

International Auto Wagon

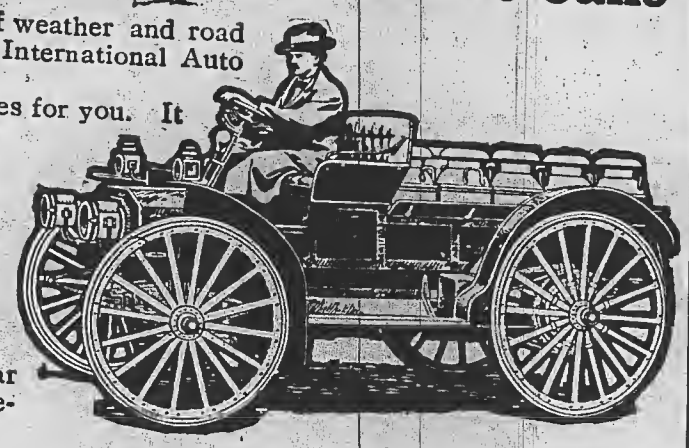
International Auto Wagon owners know no tire troubles; they are never detained by snow or rain; in winter and summer they go when and where you want to go.



Let us tell you all about the International Auto Wagon. We want to show you that the buying of an International is an economy not an expense. We can prove that it will save you money and add to your pleasure. Write for catalogue.

International Harvester Company of America
103 Harvester Building, (Incorporated) Chicago U S A

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

NORTH MISS. CONFERENCE.

Sardis Dist.—Third Round.

Sardis	July	16, 17
Hernando	July	19
Lake Comorant and Hinds, at Poplar Corner	July	20
Byhalia, at Fount. Head	July	22, 23
Como	July	30, 31
Tyro, at Mt. Vernon	Aug.	5, 6
Olive Branch, Oak Grove	Aug.	12, 13
Wall Hill, at Grubb Hill	Aug.	15
Long Town, McGee's Chap	Aug.	17
Oakland, at Bethel	Aug.	19, 20
Courtland, at Shiloh	Aug.	22
Senatobia	Aug.	23
Cockrum, at Independence	Aug.	26, 27
Eureka, at Pisgah	Sept.	2, 3
Arkabutla	Sept.	9, 10
Crenshaw	Sept.	12

W. M. YOUNG, P. E.

Winona Dist.—Third Round.

Carrollton, at Valley Hill	July	14
Ruleville, at Sandy Bayou	July	15, 16
Webb, at Parchman	July	22, 23
Inverness, at Coile	July	23, 24
Mar's Hill, at Hopewell	July	26
Schlater	July	29, 30
North Carrollton, at McCarley	Aug.	5, 6
Indianola, at Faisonia	Aug.	12, 13
Moorhead, at Blaine	Aug.	13, 14
Lambert, at Glendora	Aug.	19, 20
Minter City..8 p. m	Aug.	20
Eupora, at Eupora	Aug.	24
Bellefontaine, at Walthall	Aug.	24
Kilmichael, at Lodi	Aug.	26, 27
Tutwiler, at Marks	Sept.	2, 3
Slate Springs, at Bethlehem	Sept.	9, 10

E. S. LEWIS, P. E.

Corinth Dist.—Third Round.

East Booneville Circuit, at Blythes Chapel	July	14
Mooreville Ct., at M	July	15, 16
Mantachie Ct., at Hebron	July	17
Jonesboro Ct., at Ebenezer	July	22
Ripley and B. M., at Falkner	July	23, 24
Rienzi Ct., at Bethel	July	29, 30
Tishomingo Ct., at Paradise	Aug.	4
Bellmont Ct., at Patterson Church	Aug.	5, 6
Booneville Ct., at Shady G	Aug.	12, 13
Dry Run Ct., at Mt. Carmel	Aug.	19, 20
Hatchie Mission, at Mt. Pisgah	Aug.	21
Ripley Mis., at Black Jack	Aug.	22
Dumas ct., Jacobs Chp	Aug.	23
Sherman Ct., ———	Aug.	25
Myrtle Ct., at Ebenezer	Aug.	26, 27
Kossuth Circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Sept.	2
Guntown and B., at Baldwyn	Sept.	3, 4
Baldwyn Mission, at Palestine	Sept.	9, 10

BEN P. JACO, P. E.

Greenville District—Third Round.

Dundee	July	12
Dockery	July	16, 17
Litton	July	18
Hillhouse	July	22, 23
Kuhn	July	29, 30
Hollondale	Aug.	5, 6
Shaw	Aug.	13, 14
Sherard	Aug.	20, 21

Let the pastors take particular note of question No. 17 in the business of the quarterly conference, and make a written report in full of this question, as the Discipline requires.

W. W. WOOLLARD, P. E.

Columbus Dist.—Third Round.

Mashulaville, at Mt. Hebron	July	15, 16
Crawford, at Pope's Chp	July	22, 23
Starkville Ct., at Kilgore	July	29, 30
Sturgis, at Pughs	Aug.	5, 6
Mayhew	Aug.	11
Cedar Bluff, at Pearson	Aug.	12, 13
Cochrane	Aug.	19, 20
Columbus Circuit	Aug.	26, 27

J. E. THOMAS, P. E.

Durant Dist.—Third Round.

Vaiden, at Midway	July	15, 16
Lexington	July	17
Kosciusko, at East Union	July	21
McCool, at Shady G	July	22, 23
Louisville, at Rocky Hill	July	25
High Point, at Mt. Pleasant	July	28
Rural Hill, at Plattsburg	July	29, 30
Chester, at South Union	July	31
Ackerman, at Mt. Airy	Aug.	4
Ebenezer, at Bethany	Aug.	5, 6
Black Hawk, at B. H	Aug.	12, 13
Sallis, at Salem	Aug.	15
Kossuth Ct., at Salem	Aug.	17
Poplar Creek, at Huntsville	Aug.	19, 20

N. G. AUGUSTUS, P. E.

Oxford Dist.—Third Round.

Taylor, at Burgess	July	15, 16
Coffeeville, at Gray Rock	July	15, 16
Abbeville, at Union Hill	July	15, 16
Potts Camp, at Winborn	July	15, 16
Oxford	July	16, 17
Toccapola, at Tula	July	22, 23
Holly Springs Circuit, at Sylvestria	July	22, 23
Paris, at Pine Flat	July	22, 23
Water Valley, Main St	July	23, 24
Water Valley, First Ch	July	23, 25
Pine Valley, at Salem	July	29, 30
Randolph, at Sprg. Hill	July	29, 30
Grenada Circuit, at Holcomb	July	29, 30
Lafayette, at Liberty	July	29, 30
Waterford, at Harris Chp	July	29, 30
Duck Hill, at Bethel	July	29, 30
Ashland	Sept.	2, 3
Charleston, at Oak G	Sept.	9, 10
Grenada	Sept.	10, 11

J. E. CUNNINGHAM, P. E.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Monroe Dist.—Third Round.

Monroe	July	16
W. Monroe	July	16, 17
Bastrop, at Humphries Chapel	July	22, 23
Farmerville	July	29, 30
Waterproof, at Wesley	Aug.	5, 6
Gilbert, Holy Grove	Aug.	8
Bonita, at Jones	Aug.	12, 13
Lake Providence	Aug.	16
Delhi	Aug.	20, 21
Brooklyn	Aug.	23
Floyd	Aug.	26, 27
Downsville	Aug.	29, 30
Mangham, at Boueff River	Sept.	2, 3
Eros, at Indian Village	Sept.	6
Winnsboro, at Boueff Prairie	Sept.	9, 10
Rayville	Sept.	13
Florence	Sept.	17, 18
Merrouge	Sept.	20

District Conference will meet in Rayville, July 26, 10 a. m.

S. S. KEENER, P.E.

Baton Rouge Dist.—Third Round.

Hammond	July	5
Baton Rouge, Second Ch., at Antioch	July	22, 23
Baton Rouge, First Ch	July	23, 24
Baker, at Bethel	July	26
Clinton and J., at Concord	July	29, 30
Zachary, at Ethel	July	30, 31
Denham Springs, at Alford's	Aug.	2
Tickfaw, at Red Oak	Aug.	4
Ponchatoula, at Sp'gfield	Aug.	5, 6
Amite City	Aug.	6, 7
E. Feliciana, at Camp G	Aug.	12
Franklinton, at F	Aug.	16
Mt. Hermon, at Augie	Aug.	19, 20
Bogalusa	Aug.	20, 21
Wilson, at Manassas	Aug.	26, 27
St. Helena, at Pine R	Sept.	2, 3
Kentwood	Sept.	3, 4
P. Grove, at Pipkin's	Sept.	6
Port Vincent, at Mauripas	Sept.	9, 10
St. Francisville, at Tunica	Sept.	16, 17
N. Roads, at Morganza	Sept.	23, 24

C. C. MILLER, P. E.

NOTICE.

The Crystal Springs Camp Meeting will begin Friday night, Aug. 4th, and continue through Friday, Aug. 11th.

All preachers will be given free entertainment.

J. G. GALLOWAY, P. C.

ESTABLISHED 1858
CHURCH AND SCHOOL BELLS
Write for SPECIAL DONATION PLAN Cat. No. 67
THE C. S. BELL COMPANY, HILLSBORO, O.

EDUCATIONAL

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

Rev. David Carlisle Hull, M.S., President.

A high grade college, situated at the capital of the State. Location high, dry and healthful.

Entrance Requirements and Curriculum same as in other Leading Colleges and Universities North and South.

Separate Preparatory School under Private Dormitory Management.

The very finest Moral and Religious Influences. Extraordinary Advantages in

LITERARY AND LAW DEPARTMENTS.

Courses Leading to A.B., B.S., A. M., M.S., and LL.B. Degrees.

TWENTIETH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 20th, 1911.

For catalog and other information address

E. Y. BURTON, Secretary, Jackson, Mississippi.

The Mississippi Conference Training School,

MONTROSE, MISS.

A unique Preparatory school for boys and girls with wholesome moral surroundings and positive Christian influence.

Our regular literary course is practical, and prepares for taking the A. B. degree in the best colleges. The Bible is included in our daily recitations.

Our extras are: Music, Expression, and a normal course preparing teachers to teach in the public schools.

Special features are: A Mission Study Class, and a course preparing teachers to teach in the Sunday school. We also have a farm in confection with the school, and boys of moderate means may have the free use of the land and thereby pay expenses.

Write for catalogue.

(Rev.) WALDO W. MOORE, A. M., President.

MERIDIAN WOMAN'S COLLEGE

Among the Health-giving Pine Hills of Mississippi.

The largest private School for girls in the South, an ideal union of home and school. Non-sectarian, yet Christian, a school where the social and religious welfare of your daughter is carefully guarded and no phase of her education neglected. Beautiful 60 acre campus. Largest conservatory of Music in the entire South; Oratory and Art.

Write for Beautifully Illustrated Catalog No. 4

Meridian Woman's College, J. W. Beeson, A. M. President, Meridian, Miss.

Meridian Male College, a quarter mile distant, is an ideal place for your son. Military discipline, Christian home influences. Operated in connection with the Meridian Woman's College.

BINGHAM, Asheville, N. C., has prepared BOYS for College and for Christian Citizenship for 118 years, and ALONE in the U. S., offers a FREE ROUND TRIP TICKET from anywhere within 1500 miles to any parent who, on inspection, is not convinced that its pairs of ONE STORY brick rooms, separated by a parapet FIRE WALL, are the BEST for Health, Sanitation, Ventilation and safety against FIRE. 1793 Send for Catalogue or come and see. COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt., R. F. D. No. 28 1912

CHAMBERLAIN-HUNT ACADEMY, Port Gibson, Mississippi.

A High Grade Training School for Boys and Young Men.

First class boys wanted. Industrial and Practical in aim. Courses on Agriculture and Manual Training just added. Buildings modern, steam heat, electric lights, etc. In old historic section near Vicksburg. No malaria. Among High Hills. Four Optional Courses. Instructors all College Graduates. No Hazing; Military abolished. Some boys reduce expenses by work. Non-sectarian, but Christian. Bible a Text Book. Last session crowded. Cheapest school of its kind in the South.

$180 Pays all Expenses. Kind of School South Needs.

Mention the Advocate. For Catalog address M. R. MELVIN, A. M., Pres.

Morgan School Not Better than Some Others

Morgan School has no better building, the health of the school and town is not superior to some, the Dormitory and Gymnasium are not better than some others in the State.

All these are good enough,

But the standard of character and scholarship is equal to the best and superior to many.

If information is desired, write for catalogue.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal.

FAYETTEVILLE, TENN.

TRINITY COLLEGE

1859 1892 1910-1911

Three memorable dates: The Granting of the Charter for Trinity College; the Removal of the College to the growing and prosperous City of Durham; the Building of the New and Greater Trinity.

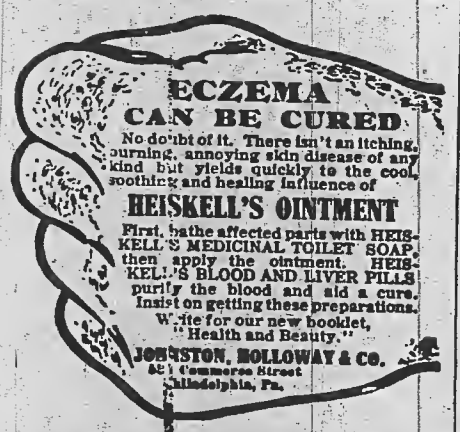
Magnificent new buildings with new equipment and enlarged facilities.

Comfortable hygienic dormitories and beautiful pleasant surroundings.

Five departments: Academic; Mechanical, Civil, and Electrical Engineering; Law; Education; Graduate.

For catalogue and other information, address

B. L. FLOWERS, Secretary, Durham, N. C.



ECZEMA CAN BE CURED

No doubt of it. There isn't an itching, burning, annoying skin disease of any kind but yields quickly to the cool, soothing and healing influence of

HEISKELL'S OINTMENT

First, bathe affected parts with HEISKELL'S MEDICINAL TOILET SOAP, then apply the ointment. HEISKELL'S BLOOD AND LIVER PILLS purify the blood and aid a cure. Insist on getting these preparations. Write for our new booklet, "Health and Beauty."

JOHNSTON, HOLLOWAY & Co.
421 Commerce Street
Philadelphia, Pa.

I WILL MAKE YOU PROSPEROUS

If you are honest and ambitious write me today. No matter where you live or what your occupation, I will teach you the Real Estate business by mail; appoint you Special Representative of my Company in your town; start you in a profitable business of your own, and help you make big money at once.

Unusual opportunity for men without capital to become independent for life. Valuable Book and full particulars FREE. Write today.

E. R. MARDEN, Pres't Jest
NATIONAL CO-OPERATIVE REALTY CO.
594 Marden Building
Washington, D. C.

WILBUR R. SMITH BUSINESS COLLEGE

Medal awarded Prof. Smith at the World's Fair. SUMMER SESSION
Bookkeeping and Business, Shorthand, Typewriting and Telegraphy taught. Notes received. Situations—10,000 graduates in business. Begin now. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, Lexington, Ky.

Spend Your Summers

—AT—

MONTEAGLE,

One of the most delightful and popular Summer Resorts in the South, on the summit of the Cumberland Mountains.

Summer season June-October. Assembly season July 4-Aug. 29th.

Elaborate Program, Lectures, Entertainments, Music, Summer Schools.

Special low rate excursion tickets on sale June 30th, July 1st, 8th, 15th, 22d, 29th, Aug. 11, 12, 18; good for return until Sept. 5, 1911.

Ask any ticket agent for the Assembly Annual and for a free copy of N. C. & St. L. Ry., beautifully illustrated Summer Resort folder, or write to

W. L. DANLEY,
G. P. A., Nashville, Tenn.

VISIT

MINERAL WELLS

—FOR—

HEALTH AND PLEASURE

AND

WEST TEXAS

—For—

FINE AGRICULTURAL LANDS.
REACHED VIA

THE TEXAS AND PACIFIC RAILWAY

EXCURSION TICKETS ON SALE DAILY.

Free Booklet.

E. P. TURNER,
General Passenger Agent,
DALLAS - - - - - TEXAS

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Meridian Dist.—Third Round.

Enterprise and Stonewall,
Vimville, at Why Not	July	22, 23
DeKalb, at New Hope	July	29, 30
Moscow, at Big Oak	July	31
Shubuta and Quitman, at Shubuta	Aug.	2
Matherville, at Poplar Springs	Aug.	3
Ciara, at Goldwood	Aug.	5, 6
Meridian, 5th Street	Aug.	9
Lauderdale, at Marion	Aug.	12, 13
Meridian, Central	Aug.	16
Binnsville and Wahalak, Binnsville	Aug.	20, 21
Meridian, East End	Aug.	23
Porterville, at Porterville	Aug.	26, 27
Daleville, at Andrew's Chp	Aug.	30
Waynesboro Circuit, at Fedora	Sept.	2, 3
DeSoto, at Hopewell	Sept.	9, 10
Meridian, 7th Ave	Sept.	13
Meridian, Poplar Spgs	Sept.	14
Waynesboro	Sept.	17, 18
Bucatunna, at ———	Sept.	19
Meridian, South Side	Sept.	20

W. H. LEWIS, P. E.

Seashore Dist.—Third Round.

Lumberton	July	23
Escatawpa, at Orange Gr.	July	27
Americus, at Rosedale	July	28
Moss Point	July	29, 30
Columbia	Aug.	2
Hub, at Pinebur	Aug.	3
Oakvale, at Baxterville	Aug.	4
Ocean Springs	Aug.	5, 6
Mississippi City	Aug.	9
Vancleave, at Shiloh 11 a. m.	Aug.	10
Mentorum, at Antioch	Aug.	12, 13
Lumberton	Aug.	16
Poplarville	Aug.	17
Derby, at Mill Creek	Aug.	18
Carriere and McNeil, at Picayune	Aug.	19, 20
Gulfport, 25th Avenue	Aug.	23
Wolf River Mission, at Durham's Chapel	Aug.	26, 27
Long Beach	Aug.	30
Biloxi	Sept.	2, 3
Bay St. Louis	Sept.	6
Logtown	Sept.	7
Coalville, at Poplar Head	Sept.	9, 10
McHenry and Wiggins, at McHenry	Sept.	13

W. B. JONES, P. E.

Newton Dist.—Third Round.

Lake, at Lake	Wed. July	12
Rose Hill, at Paulding	July	15, 16
Chunkey, at Suquelena	July	22, 23
Decatur, at Union	Wed. July	26
Dist. Conf., at Union	July	26, 30
Shiloh, at Johns,	Wed. Aug.	2,
Trenton, at Pulaski	Aug.	5, 6
Carthage, at Singleton Friday	Aug.	18
Walunt G., at Freeny	Aug.	19, 20
Homewood, at High Hill Tuesday	Aug.	22
Morton, at Zion Grove, Friday	Aug.	25
Hickory, at Garlandville	Aug.	26, 27
Philadelphia	Fri. Sept.	1
Neshoba, at Sand Town	Sept.	2, 3
Hillsboro, at Prairie Hill, Friday	Sept.	8,
Forest, at Lena	Sept.	9, 10
Indian Mission, at Neshoba	Sept.	16
Stallo, at Neshoba	Sept.	16, 17
Newton	Wed Sept.	20

T. J. O'NEIL, P. E.

Port Gibson Dist.—Third Round.

Silver City, at Holly Bluff	July	11
Anguilla, at Anguilla	July	12, 22
Port Gibson	July	23, 24
Utica, at Learned	July	26
Fayette	Juy	29, 30
Gloster	Aug.	5, 6
Hamburg, at Knoxville	Aug.	11
Sunflower, at Straight Bayou	Aug.	12, 13
Rolling Fork, at Cary	Aug.	15
Mayersville, at M	Aug.	19, 20
Harriston, at Martin	Aug.	25
Washington, at Pine G.	Aug.	26
Natchez, Jefferson St	Aug.	27, 28
Nebo, at Oak Grove	Sept.	2, 3
Wilkinson, at Mars Hill	Sept.	9
Woodville	Sept.	10
Hermanville, at Sarepta	Sept.	16
Natchez, Pearl St	Sept.	17
Rocky Springs, at Willows	Sept.	23, 24
Oak Ridge, at Bovina	Sept.	30
Vicksburg, South Washington Street	Oct.	1
Centreville	Oct.	4
Homochitto, at Mt. Vernon	Oct.	6

Will the preachers in charge kindly have a carefully written answer to Ques. 19, as well as to Ques. 18 and Ques. 23? Please have all the items ready to fully answer Questions 8 and 9. We have had some vexations, delays and uncertainties here.

Let all of us bend all energy and faith to the matter of revival.

H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN, P. E.

Brookhaven District—Third Round.

Tylertown at Tylertown	July	15, 16
Bayou Pierre, at Sweet Water	July	22, 23
Barlow, at Lebanon	July	29, 30
Osyka, at Liberty	Aug.	5, 6
North Wesson, at Providence	Aug.	12, 13
Topisaw, at Topisaw	Aug.	16,
Buford, at Hopewell	Aug.	19, 20
Magnolia	Aug.	26, 27
McComb and Fernwood, at South McComb	Aug.	27,
Wesson	Aug.	30,
Adams, at Ebenezer	Sept.	1,
Meadville, at Ediceton	Sept.	2,
Pearlhaven, at Bethel	Sept.	3,
Brookhaven	Sept.	3, 4
Summit, at East McComb	Sept.	10,
McComb, Centenary	Sept.	10, 11
Monticello, at Georgetown	Sept.	16, 17
Scotland at Bethesda	Sept.	23, 24

J. T. LEGGETT, P. E.

Hattiesburg Dist.—Third Round.

Hattiesburg—Broad St., at Petal	July	15, 16
Hattiesburg—Court Street	July	17,
Hattiesburg—Main Street	July	18,
Vosburg, at Saundersville	July	23, 24
Purvis, at Pine Grove	July	25,
New Augusta, at Batson	July	26, 27
Summerland, at S.	July	29, 30
Mt. Olive, at Oakvale	Aug.	2, 3,
Taylorsville, at Okahay	Aug.	4,
Collins, at Ora	Aug.	6, 7
Magee, at Sharon	Aug.	9,
Silver Creek, at Bethel	Aug.	12, 13
Sumrall, at Sumrall	Aug.	16
Oloh, at Advance	Aug.	17
Prentiss, at Bassfield	Aug.	19, 20
Lucedale, at Shipman	Aug.	27, 28
McLain, at Cross Roads	Sept.	2, 3
Eastabuchie, at McLaurin	Sept.	7
Eucutta, at Broyls	Sept.	9, 10
Sanford, at Sanford	Sept.	16, 17
Seminary, at Bethel	Sept.	20

District Conference at Richton, July 11-14. The conference will organize on the 11th at 8:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present at the organization.

M. B. SHARBROUGH, P. E.

Jackson Dist.—Third Round.

Madison, at Pocahontas	July	15
Jackson, First Ch	July	16
Jackson, Galloway Chp	July	19
Brandon	July	23, 24
Thomasville, at Forest Hill	July	24
Jackson, First Church, 8 p. m.	July	26
Camden, at Forest G	July	28
Sharon, at Millville	July	29, 30
Terry, at Forest Hill	Aug.	2
Canton	Aug.	6, 7
Mendenhall, at Holly G.	Aug.	8
Harrisville, at Poplar Springs	Aug.	9
Jackson, Capitol St	Aug.	13, 14
Jackson, Rankin Street, 7:30 p. m.	Aug.	13, 16
Florence, at Richland	Aug.	19, 20
Eden, at Philips	Aug.	21
Lintonia, at Lake City	Aug.	22
Edwards	Aug.	24
Yazoo City	Aug.	27
Benton, at Tranquill	Aug.	28
Deasonville, at Fletcher	Aug.	29
Flora, at Livingston	Aug.	30
Fannin, at Holly Bush	Sept.	6
Jackson, Galloway Chp	Sept.	10
Yazoo City 7:30 p. m.	Sept.	13
Bolton, at Brownsville	Sept.	16, 17
Satartia	Sept.	23, 24

J. R. JONES, P. E.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children, 50c.

Poor, Foolish Woman!

Think of her attempting to make ice cream in the old disappointing way! With she can make the most delicious ice cream in ten minutes, freezing and all, at a cost of about one cent a dish—and never go near the stove.

JELL-O ICE CREAM Powder

Your grocer will tell you all about it, or you can get a book from the Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N.Y., if you will write them.

Grocers sell Jell-O Ice Cream Powder, 10 cents a package.

Our Copyrighted Book on GALL STONES FREE

STONES, DYSPEPSIA AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, Stomach and Bowels

Address Gallstone Remedy Co., 225 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. Ask for Book No. 18.

BEST THING MADE

April 28, 1910, Dothan, Ala.

I began handling Johnston's Tonic in Blakely, Ga., in 1884. In 1892, moved to Dthan, Ala. Have sold more than 1000 bottles. Use it in my family for Colds, Fever and La Grippe. In all the years I have been selling it, never had but 2 complaints. Both parties admitted afterwards they had not used it right.

H. Q. FRAZIER.

April 13, 1910, Greenwood, S. C.

I have used Johnson's Tonic in my family for 9 years. It is all you claim for it and more too. It cured me of Typhus Hemorrhagic Fever. I would have been under the sod 9 years ago but for JOHNSON'S. Tell this to the world. It may save some man's life.

A. P. ALDRICH.

Drives every trace and taint of Malarial Poison from the Blood.

Your Summer Trip,

Whether to the North, East or West, should be made via the

Illinois Central

Low Summer Tourist Fares now in Effect.

Let us assist in planning your trip.

Write or call at

ILLINOIS CENTRAL OFFICE
141 St. Charles St.

W. H. BRILL, Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ED RODDY, City Pass. Agt

QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Best & Quickest Service

TO ALL IMPORTANT DESTINATIONS

In the North & East

Summer Tourist Tickets now on Sale to all Mountain, Lake and Seaside Resorts.

—Ticket Office—
211 ST. CHARLES STREET
Phone Main 4482
Terminal Station---Canal Street

Marriages

June 28, 1911, at the Istrouma Hotel, in Baton Rouge, La., by Rev. F. N. Sweeney, Rev. A. W. HOFFPAUIR, of Rayne, La., to Miss LEISIE SMITH, of Jackson, La.

At the Methodist Church in Flora, Miss., on June 14th, Mr. M. L. ARNOLD, of Plaquemine, La., and Miss FANNIE RUTH LEE, of Flora, Miss., Rev. L. L. Roberts officiating.

June 26, 1911, at the residence of the bride's parents, in D'Lo, Miss., by Rev. R. T. Nolen, W. L. JONES, of Jackson, Miss., to Miss IDA ESTELL RHODES.

June 28, 1911, in the Baptist Church, at Tonchstone, Miss., by Rev. R. T. Nolen, Prof. J. C. JONES to Miss ALICE GUYNES.

June 11, 1911, at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. S. R. Pullen, Robeline, La., by Rev. H. J. Boltz, Mr. DANIEL BRUCE LORD, of Shreveport, La, to Miss BLANCHE MAIE PULLEN.

June 27, 1911, at the residence of the bride's father, Mr. Drake, Longstreet, La., by Rev. H. J. Boltz, Mr. AUGUST WILLIAM BRASSLER, of Malvern, Ark., to Miss HARRIETT ANNE DRAKE.

June 29, 1911, at the residence of the bridegroom's father, W. M. Pearce, Noan, La., by Rev. H. J. Boltz, Mr. LUCE PEARCE to Miss MARY ANN HOOD, both of DeSoto Parish, La.

THE WORK AT EUPORA, MISS.

Dear Brother Meek: Allow me to tell the Advocate readers something about our Eupora Methodists and our new church enterprise. I arrived here in December, 1910, and found our people worshiping in an old frame church built many years ago—now wornout and wholly inadequate.

Our Sunday school of 165 members had nine classes (about 100 people) reciting in this old church (one room). Two classes were reciting down town, but "the people had a mind to work," and we decided to "build a house unto the Lord"—a modern, up-to-date brick church. Proper committees were appointed and the work begun. The committees have worked faithfully and the people have responded liberally. Our Woman's Home Mission Society started us off with a $1,500 subscription. The Sunday school classes also subscribed liberally; this was followed by individual subscriptions. Interest grew and the work went on. The walls of the new church are now nearing completion. All the materials are on the ground, and the contractor thinks that with good weather he can finish the building and be ready to turn it over to the committee by Aug. 15. Hot air heating is included in the contract. The main auditorium is 42x48 feet. The Sunday school department is 31x56 feet and will have eleven classrooms. This department is separated from the main department by rolling partition. The two can easily be thrown into one auditorium, seating 750 or 800. The building, when finished and furnished, will cost $10,000. Perfect harmony prevails, and we are all looking forward with intense interest to the time when we can move into our new and commodious quarters. Our Sunday school, from T. W. Cooper, the efficient superintendent, to the infant class, are laughing for joy at the prospect.

Our Eupora Methodists are an earnest, enthusiastic, progressive people. The work moves on steadily along all lines.

The Baptist people are also building a new brick church, just begun, which will cost about $8,000 when finished. Both churches being built at the same time will tax the people heavily.

Eupora has a splendid $9,000 school building, three years old, and five miles of cement walks, two banks, a new passenger station, and several new residences. I may send you a picture of our new church later, if possible. W. D. McCULLOUGH, P. C.

The true use to be made of all the imperfections of which you are conscious is neither to justify nor to condemn them, but to present them before God, conforming your will to his, and remaining in peace; for peace is the divine order, in whatever state we may be.—Fenelon.

EDUCATIONAL

Wesleyan College

Macon, Georgia

One of the few real colleges for women in the South. Plant worth a half million, with all modern facilities. Faculty of forty. Nearly 3,000 alumnae throughout the nation.

Schools of Literature, Languages, Science, Arts and Music.

A safe institution for young ladies. Non-sectarian, but Christian to the core. Health record without a parallel—not a death for many years. Not conducted for profit, but to bless the world. Rates reasonable. No traveling agents.

For detailed information, address

W. N. AINSWORTH, D. D., President
C. R. JENKINS, Vice President

PEOPLES-TUCKER SCHOOL,
Springfield, Tenn.

Elevation 1200 feet. Superb new buildings with all modern improvements. Beautiful campus. Boys live with the teachers and are under their personal supervision at all times. On account of limited numbers, each boy receives the most careful personal attention of skilled teachers. If you want your boy well cared for physically, mentally, and morally, you will be interested in our catalogue. Send for one, and we will prove our claims. $300 covers all expenses.

Columbia College NEW and FIRE Proof Building Columbia, S. C.

For over half a century ColumbiaCollege has acceptably served those parents who require the best facilities for the men tal, moral and physical training of their daughters. In faculty, equipment, buildings and location, Columbia College presents advantages which are extremely difficult to duplicate. Requirements, those of Class A Colleges.

SPECIAL ADVANTAGES

1. Our central Location-easily accessible from all points of the South.
2. At the seat of the Legislative, Judicial and executive departments of the State, affording object lessons in the science of Government.
3. Visited by distinguished lecturers, musicians, artists and public men, thus constantly brought into touch with the leading men and measures of the day.
4. Access to several large libraries, in addition to its own library and well selected reading table,—especially that of South Carolina College, containing over 30,000 volumes.
5. Columbia is now one of the leading educational centers in the South, and nowhere else in the State can young ladies see and hear so much that they would never otherwise learn.
6. The social advantages of Columbia are unsurpassed in the State.
7. The college is in easy access to all the churches in the City, and is kept in touch with spiritual forces at work here.
8. Columbia is one of the finest winter resorts in the South. The mildness of our climate during the entire winter makes our location invaluable for college work.
9. Our heating apparatus is the product of the world's latest and best thought on the subject. All parts of the building are kept at the same temperature, being regulated by one thermometer, and the atmosphere is kept sufficiently moist to be most conductive to health.
10. Our Sanitary arrangements are the best, and our health record is unsurpassed.
11. The fine natural drainage of the premises.
12. An able faculty of specialists, all thoroughly trained in their departments. Courses leading to the degrees of B. A., B. S., and B. L.
13. The course of study is carefully graded and thorough at every point. It is arranged on the University plan, allowing girls to enter the class they are prepared for, as far as possible, in every department.
14. Our special departments are under the direction of able teachers. Music, art, elocution, and business courses are all extensive and thorough.
15. Our system of physical culture seeks to develop symmetrically every muscle of the body, and correlate it as far as possible with the mind.
16. The elevating and ennobling influence of a Christian environment, which pervades every department of the college.
17. The lyceum brings to our midst lecturers of national renown and musicians of reputation.
18. Our large campus of 20 acres, overlooking the city of Columbia, affords abundant room for all games and exercises.
19. Suburban location gives quietude for study, and freedom of country life.

For Descriptive Catalogue Address

REV. W. W. DANIEL, D. D., President, Columbia, S. C.

The Sunday School.

LOUISIANA NOTES.

By Rev. P. O. Lowrey.

Under the leadership of Brother Able and McCarmack, the Poncha-toula school is doing fine work.

* * *

Brother L. M. Alford is the superintendent of our Covington Sunday school, and Sister Alford has charge of the Beginners' Class.

* * *

A Home Department has been organized at Harrisonburg, with Mrs. W. C. Prichard, superintendent, and a Cradle Roll with Miss Josie Mayes, superintendent.

* * *

Dr. J. M. Middleton, our faithful and efficient superintendent at Many, La., is under great grief, having lost his most noble and devoted wife. In every high sense she was cultured, consecrated, unselfish, tactful, loving and useful. She lived to help her husband, serve her children and bless the world. May the Father bless the bereaved ones.

* * *

A new $75 organ has been put into the Little River Church on the Harrisonburg charge, and a new Sunday school has been organized with Mr. John Boyd, superintendent, Mr. J. G. McVeigh, secretary and treasurer, and Mr. Butler, Deville, is the assistant superintendent. This pastoral charge now has five active Sunday schools. Both young men's and young women's Bible classes have been orgainzed in Harrisonburg that promise fine work in the recognized activities of such classes in the shut-in town on the Ouachita. Of the former Mr. F. O. Ellis, is president; W. C. Mattles, vice-president; R. E. Jones, secretary and treasurer, and H. Taylor, teacher. The young ladies chose as their officers: Mrs. Edna Prichard, president; Miss Carrie McGee, vice-president; Miss Minnie Carter, secretary and treasurer; Mrs. J. W. Walters, teacher. Rev. G. D. Purcell is the pastor and is actively pushing the work.

* * *

The Hammond school has three Wesley Adult Bible Classes organized.

The moving spirit and aggressive leader in our Hammond Sunday school is Dr. Lucius D. McGehee, son of Dr. E. L. McGehee, of New Orleans, and grandson of Dr. Edward McGehee, of Mississippi, founder of the school at Woodville, Miss., bearing his name; of Centenary College of Louisiana, and the donor of Carondelet Street Church in New Orleans. Surely the blood of such sires must make "noble sons," and their love and sacrifices for the Church are being continued in the service and leadership of their sons and grandsons. Dr. McGehee also stands at the head of his profession in medicine, having taken the lead in the anti-tuberculosis fight. He is now operating a sanitarium in Hammond for the afflicted ones. Led by their superintendent, Dr. L. D. McGehee, the the Hammond Sunday school has organized a mission school at Zanobia, four miles east of Hammond. A second school is maintained at Genesee, with Brother John Saint as superintendent and Sister C. C. Miller as assistant. These are good signs of active and growing life.

Through the efforts of Rev. W. G. Evans, we are in receipt of a copy of "The Sunday School Monitor," published in the interest of the Sunday schools of Hammond, La., from which we glean some interesting notes. In all, there are ten denominations with Sunday schools in Hammond, with ours in the lead, the attendance in February having been 145 one Sunday, and the Congregational coming second with 90 in attendance one Sunday. Hammond now numbers 4,500 souls and the Sunday school work seems to be abreast with the other progressive movements there.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Rev. B. F. Lewis.

The Sunday school lessons for the next six months are most interesting and suggestive. Israel, through obedience to God, rose from a mere handful to a great world-power. But then, forgetting him who had made them, they became vassals of foreign powers, and ultimately were dispersed among the nations to be no more. Here is an opportunity to emphasize the truth, "Them that honor me I will honor, but they that despise me shall be llghtly esteemed."

* * *

Dr. Josiah Strong, in his book, "Perils of the City," has shown that if the influx into our cities from the country continues for the next thirty years at the same rate as during the past, by 1940 there will he 21,000,000 more people in the city than in the country. Then the city will indeed dictate the policy of the country and of the government. The future depends in large measure upon the character of the men and women we continue to send into the city. Our hope lies in the religious home and a well organized and maintained Sunday school. We have only this generation in which to command the situation.

* * *

The permanent Census Bureau of the United States, in giving its report for 1904 of prisoners in confinement in this country, distinguishes between the literates and the llliterates as follows: Number of literate prisoners, 124,295; number of llliterates, 25,369.

Education alone does not check crime. Without the moral element, it but sharpens the wit for more and greater crime. Here are five times as many criminals who can read and write as there are criminals who cannot read and write.

When it is known further that very nearly seventy-five per cent of our criminals are young men, we may place our fingers on the only two agencies to which we may look for relief—the home and the Sunday school.

* * *

Our field secretary, in submitting the report for June, shows among other things as follows: Number of mlles traveled, 1,715; number of Sunday schools visited, 12; numher of District Conferences, 1; schools to adopt the new graded lessons in October, 5; home departments and cradle rolls projected, 8; schools planning separate class rooms, 3; schools already graded through the elementary department, 7; planning to grade, 5; number of organized classes, 4.

This is a fine report for the first month. Almost every day of July is filled in, and a part of August, with calls for service. It is going to be hard to discontinue the service in Septemher, but at present there seems to be no relief.

NEWS AND NOTES.

By Miss Elizabeth Kllpatrick.

"The Sunday school is the very center of the firing line of the church."

* * *

Man cannot accomplish in himself what God must accomplish through him.

* * *

Introspection is no longer fashionable, but it is very necessary to right living.

* * *

"Let us pray and study the Bible, and get ready to use the Great Chart and then we shall be able to steer men across the ocean of life."

* * *

One man must be won by another man whose heart yearns for his salvation—you can't save men but by this personal touch and prayer.

* * *

He only is advancing in life whose heart is getting softer, whose blood warmer, whose brain quicker, whose spirit is entering into living peace.—Ruskin.

* * *

Let us never suppose that any plan our business, world-sense may formulate will ever succeed in itself; we must supplement it with a real prayer-life.

* * *

"The leisure problem is as big as the labor problem;" as many men go wrong in the time they have at their own command as in the time they are under the command of others.

* * *

"Put one of us in a retort and take away everything that somebody else has put into us by those contacts which make life itself, and you have just your self-made man, who generally worships his maker."

* * *

Our hopes are these: (1) A church awakened to the power of the Sunday school work; (2) Men's classes multiplied: (3) Of the teen age, as many boys as girls, thus multiplying our boys and men by three. We must go after them."

* * *

Whatever form our work for the kingdom may take, we are very sure of one thing, and that is that its success will depend upon prayer. Not only will it depend on the corporate prayer of the church or class, but it will depend largely upon prayer in the individual life.

* * *

The only way you can find out just what the unsaved man needs and wants is to look into your own heart, for there you will find the man of all times, human nature being always the same. There is really no new man and no new need. It is the same human nature that was in Galilee when the Christ preached to the sin-sick multitudes, and the need and desire are the very same and the salvation the same.

* * *

We say prayer consists of adoration, thanksgiving, confession and petition, but the apostolic way was to begin with confession. The Korean nation has awakened in this wise, and this must be the class and individual prayer program of our great movement. If we believe this (and we must) that prayer is confession, repentance, determination to live differently and to put into practice what we preach, then it will be easy to believe 100,000 men and boys shall be brought to Christ within this year.

* * *

At their Annual Meeting in May, the General Sunday School Board adopted a standard for our Sunday schools. Here it is:

Cradle Roll.
Home Department.
Wesley Adult Bible Class.
Teacher Training Class for Students.
Graded Instruction.
Definite Decision for Christ urged.
Annual observance of Children's Day, with offering as required by the Discipline.
The use of our own Literature.
A session every Sunday in the year.

Any school meeting this standard, will be so registered in Nashville, and a certificate issued by Mr. French, if twenty-five cents is sent to pay for same.

MIRACULOUS ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

Rev. T. P. Pierce, a Minister and Merchant of Vinemont, Ala., has a Close Call.

REV. T. P. PIERCE.

Following is Mr. Pierce's own story of how he fell into good hands and evaded the "grim reaper."

"In the spring of 1907 I was a complete wreck, and was pronounced by some doctors to have dropsy, by one to have cancer of the stomach, another said tumor; in all there were fourteen or fifteen doctors. Scarcely any of them agreed, and none of them did me any good whatever. Four of our country doctors said I could not be cured and gave me up to die. My weight had decreased to 147 lbs and I was perfectly helpless, when I decided to try W. H. Bull's Herbs and Iron. After using five bottles, my health was immediately restored and in a few weeks, I was as strong and healthy as ever in my life. My weight to-day is 247 lbs and I shall never fail to recommend W. H. Bull's Herbs and Iron."

W. H. Bull's Herbs and Iron can be had from any druggist. If after using two-thirds of a bottle you are not benefitted, take the remainder back to your druggist and he will refund your money.

If your druggist's supply is exhausted ask him to order it for you from his jobber. You can't afford to take a substitute.

EDUCATIONAL.

SCIENCE HILL SCHOOL
SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY.

An English and Classical School for Girls. College Preparatory course with certificate privileges at Wellesley, Vassar, Smith, Leland Stanford, Randolph-Macon and other colleges. 86 years of successful work. College trained teachers. Superior advantages in music.
MRS. W. T. POINTER,
Principal.

ROANOKE COLLEGE
SALEM, VA.

For Men. 59th year begins Sept. 13th. Courses for Degrees, with Electives; high standard. Also Commercial and Preparatory Courses. Library, 24,000 volumes; working laboratories; good morals and discipline; six Churches; no bar-rooms. Healthful mountain location. Very moderate expenses. Loan Fund. Catalogue Free. Address
J. A. MOREHEAD, President.

MARTIN COLLEGE,
An Endowed School for Girls and Young Women,
PULASKI, Tenn. Established 1870. W. T. WYNN, President

Located on Main line of the L. & N. R. R., eighty miles south of Nashville, forty miles north of Decatur, in the beautiful "Blue Grass" region so famous for health and the beauty of its scenery. Cultured community. All departments. German Director of Music. Conservatory and University trained teachers. Modern buildings. Good pianos, new $1000 grand for recitals. Correspondence invited. Forty-first session begins Sept. 20, 1911. Write for catalogue. Address W. T. WYNN, Pulaski, Tennessee.

Ward Seminary FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN
Nashville, Tennessee

Literary Department of the highest order. Seminary and Special Courses. French and German spoken. Certification to Wellesley, Vassar, Goucher, Randolph-Macon.

In Music opportunities unsurpassed—nine teachers, eight with the best European training—Winkler, Director, Piano; Campobello, Voice; Schmitz, Violin. School Orchestra and Chorus.

Expression, Art, Domestic Science—all in charge of specialists.

City advantages. Accessible to leading churches, libraries, lecture and concert halls. Outdoor sports, Tennis, Basket Ball, etc., also beautiful Ward Place campus for recreation.

47th year begins Sept. 21. 175 boarding pupils. Early application is advised

For Catalogue and Other Circulars, Address J. D. BLANTON, LL.D., Prest.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

VOL. 58—No. 29. "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which is Good." WHOLE No. 2892.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JULY 20, 1911.

CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.
Office, No. 512 Camp St.

THE MASTER-BUILDER.

No man can build a good house without a competent and honest architect. If he is not an architect himself he must employ one. In those more important and enduring structures which we are all building we need a great architect. We have one at hand. He built the universe.

> He framed the globe; He built the sky,
> And all the shining worlds on high.

He will help us build. He will give us the foundation and all the plans. He will give us counsel and superintend the work. Without him we can do nothing. "Except the Lord build the house they labor in vain that build."

We canot build a church without Him. Men may appoint committees, establish Sunday schools, formulate creeds, collect money and disburse it, and toil hard to make the best church in the world; but if God be excluded, the labor is all in vain. No Christian congregation will openly propose to build a church without God; but many church workers labor with great enthusiasm in the affairs of the church, putting into it much of self and little of God. Such building will turn out badly. We must trust in God, obey him and keep his commandments, consecrate ourselves to his service, and do all things as in his sight. Let him make the creed. Let him call the preacher and inspire the message. Let him preside over the congregation. Let him superintend the Sunday school. Put yourself into the building, but let yourself be filled with the Spirit of God, "filled with all the fullness of God." Then all will be well.

We cannot build a home without him. When one undertakes to build a home in this world, he assumes a grave responsibility, before which an angel might well tremble. Yet some young people take up the task with as much coolness, indifference and self-assurance as they would build a brick wall or frame a pine door. God is not in their thoughts. The wedding feast and the wedding display occupy more of their thought than God does. Is it any wonder we read of so many divorces and domestic tragedies? If the Lord had built the house it would have been otherwise. It is a great thing to build a railroad, in which thousands of men will be employed, and by which thousands shall be transported in safety across the coutinent; but it is a greater work to build a good home.

We cannot build a nation without God. The nation is built, not by statesmen alone, but also by preachers, teachers, farmers, mechanics, laborers, professional men and business men. Some think they have no need of God. They would banish every vestige of religion, not only from the public schools, but from all public institutions and from the minds of the people. It is well to separate Church and State. The Church should not be corrupted by politics and the State should not manage eccleslastical affairs. But to separate religion from the State would be to return to the barbarism from which our religion has redeemed us.

Think of the nation without God. See what abominable materials many are putting into the national life. The drunkard is putting himself into it. The saloon keeper is putting himself and his business into it. The slum is as much a part of the national life as the common school or the Sunday school. These are protected and fostered by the nation. These are among our American institutions. A little more of this material built into the nation will cause it to totter and stagger like a drunken man.

We want a nation; but we cannot have a strong nation without having a clean nation. Defilement is an element of weakness. Millions of people do not make a nation strong. Millions of money cannot make a nation strong. We may use our millions to corrupt politics, business and social life. Education will not make a nation strong. In this age no nation can be mighty without education; but the people may all be educated and deeply immoral at the same time. Nothing but righteousness can make a nation mighty. "Righteousness exalteth a nation." We cannot have a righteous nation without God.

We cannot build character which will stand without God. If we shall make a mistake in this inner spiritual structure it will be an unspeakable calamity. Many are making this mistake. They are building a mercenary character, a sordid character, a selfish character, a sensual character, "earthly, sensual, devilish," as the Bible says. They have declined the offer of the great Master-Builder, and given the work to a competing architect, who with wily suggestion has beguiled them. Some will build depravity and rottenness into their lives until it is too late to change.

The great Master-Builder can remedy the mistake if the soul shall be surrendered into His hand. He can make all things new. He will not only remodel, but remake the character. He can take a ruined soul, a wrecked life, and make it new.

Be not deceived. Every act, every word, every desire goes into the building for good or evil. When you go out and when you come in, when you read a book and when you sing a song, when you talk with a neighbor and when you quarrel with an enemy, you are building a temple within. You can never be exactly the same after one little transaction as you were before. If we build according to our own ideas, if we build after the pattern of the Evil one, we shall suffer loss. But if the Lord shall build the house it will stand forever.—New York Christian Advocate.

PUNCTUALITY A GOLDEN ASSET IN LIFE.

Punctuality seems to be such a little thing that by many it is trifled with, but in reality it is a golden asset to any life. It has been the secret of the success of more than one life. When Napoleon was asked the secret of his splendid victories, he replied, "By always being on time." Lord Nelson said, "I owe all my success in life to having been always a quarter of an hour before my time," and Gladstone, England's best statesman, left this statement on record, "Believe me when I tell you that thrift of time will repay you in after life with a usury of profit beyond your most sanguine dreams."

We have a friend, gifted, capable, consecrated, whose prominent and seemingly only fault is this radical defect—he is always late, even at his meals, though he has a healthy appetite, late in retiring, late in getting up, late at business, late at every public function; he not infrequently arrives at one end of the railway station when the train is pulling out of the other, as he generally waits until the engine whistles before he grabs his grip and runs for the train. Now, this friend with his excellent equipment, his many opportunities for advancement, has never made any appreciable headway in life, while many of his contemporaries, mediocre as compared with him, are climbing the ladder of success. Unpunctuality is the rock upon which his craft is constantly striking.

The person who is habitually late not only wastes his own time but the valuable moments of others—as long as they will put up with his tardiness. Louis XIV once said, "Punctuality is the politeness of kings, the duty of gentlemen, and the necessity of business men." Washington, when president, had a secretary who was frequently late, and attempted to excuse himself on the ground that his watch was slow. "Well," said the president, "you must get another watch or I must find another secretary." Business men justly will not put up with perennial tardiness. It is an inexcusable habit that is responsible for great disorder and damage. It can be cured by a tardy person's giving himself a large margin beyond the ordinary time to meet every engagement, for it is better to be too early than too late.

Benjamin Franklin, the common sense philosopher, quaintly says: "He who loses an hour in the morning may keep on a dog trot all day, and will not overtake it by night."—Baltimore Southern Methodist.

THE HABIT OF READING.

Sooner or later we all of us need some kind of consolation and diversion; for the world is not invented to suit any one man's fancy, and the continuous clash of wills is bound to bring about a certain amount of sorrow to everyone. Of all consolations, the cheapest, the easiest, the most effective is a passion for the printed page. To be able to step out of our immediate environment at will, to roam the centuries, to scour the earth, to beckon the spheres, to have all the best minds ready to serve our need—this is the gift for the reader.

Reading, like everything else, is a matter of habit. The little child, as a rule, finds it painful and certainly less alluring than action. But habit perfects one in this matter, and the life with books may become as vital, as real, as consoling as a life with society. Moreover, as soon as one has learned to love them, books never fail us; they are always accessible, always willing to yield up their secrets, always sympathetic.

In life one cannot always cultivate the associations he would like. The people you want to know may live at the other ends of the earth, or their moods may be variable, or their interests other than yours; but in a world of books we can literally choose just what we want for our own immediate consolation.

On the whole, there is nothing in the world perhaps that so repays a woman as acquiring the habit of reading.—Harper's Weekly.

Christian Advocate.

Published for the Louisiana, Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

DIRECTIONS:

Correspondents will please direct all communications intended for the Editor to 512 Camp St., New Orleans, La. Communications intended for the Business Department should be addressed to the Manager of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if this date is not moved forward after three weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise.

MISSION OF THACKERAY.

(This brief discussion from the pen of the Editor of Zion's Herald is particularly appropriate at this time, as July 18 marked the hundredth anniversary of Thackeray's birth, which both England and the United States are celebrating.—Editor of the Advocate.)

Most of the folk born a century ago are forgotten. Dr. Holmes said that after three generations from their birth about twenty-five survived in the general memory. Thackeray remains, and will for many a generation to come. The secret of survival is one—a slow, quiet consequence of values. Whether a man be a scientist, artist, teacher, philanthropist, philosopher, poet or novelist, the test is: Has he seen the truth and lived it, or told it to his fellows more clearly than any other of his day? This is the secret of Homer, Plato, Dante, Shakespeare, Browning; of Raphael, Michael Angelo, Titian; of Luther, Wesley and John Knox; of all selfless great truth seekers.

Thackeray knew how to tell the truth kindly. We try to forget the roughness with which the author of the "American Notes" set forth the faults of the American people after accepting their hospitality. Listen to Thackeray after his return from his first visit to America. Speaking of one of his Mississippi sketches—for he was almost as good an artist as writer—he says: "Yonder drawing was made in a country where there was such hospitality, friendship, kindness, shown to this humble designer, that his eyes do not care to look out for faults or his pen to note them." He was as cordial a hater of humbug as Carlyle himself, but he shows up shoddy and show in a different spirit. He makes you despise shams because you see how foolish, stupid and wicked it is to thus defeat one's own desires, to be miserable instead of happy, to be useless instead of useful. Many a woman has read "Vanity Fair" unconsciously to begin to kill in herself "every false way;" many a young man has made a good finish to his college career by reflecting on the thoughtless years of Pendennis; many an indulgent motner has seen in Helen Pendennis the tendencies of her own fondness, and many a father has saved an aching heart through a study of Thackeray's fathers, of which three at least are lessons in parental government. His worldly and selfish men and women make us abhor all that is worldly and selfish; his noble and lofty characters, to emulate their virtues. To be sure, he takes us sometimes to places redolent with tobacco and thick with fumes of alcohol, but it is never to make us care to stay. One might make a book to live by from Thackeray's philosophic sayings. Hear these: "If we have selfish languor and indifference to-day, it is because of some selfish ardor in yesterday's pursuit." "The ray that travels from the sun reaches me no sooner than it finds the man who blacks my boots." "It tastes well, the bread you earn yourself." "Unfortunate love affairs are never fatal nor even harmful to a sound organ." "The truest honor is the manly confession of wrong; the best courage, the courage to avoid temptation." "It is the fashion to call people 'unfortunate' who have merely lost their money; we know better than that." Of the royal Stuart family he says: "If ever men had fidelity, it was they; if ever men squandered their opportunity, it was they; and of all the many enemies they had, they themselves were the most fatal." Thackeray did not write tales that hold children from play, or the old from the hearth corner; but to have arrested the thought of youth, to keep men and women from ways that "take hold on death," that was his mission, and he gloriously achieved it.

SELECTIONS FROM THACKERAY

The hour for serving God is always—now.

I am a country woman—the ambitions of the town seem mean to me.

No training is so useful for children, great or small, as the company of their betters, in whose society they lose the overweening sense of their own importance.

The discovery of our love of poetry, the awakening of religion, the great truths of our lives, never leave us.

What does the word cheerfulness imply? It means a pure heart; it means a kind, loving disposition; it means a generous appreciation of others, and a modest estimate of one's self.

We forget nothing; the memory sleeps and wakes again. I often think of how it shall be in that last sleep of death, the reveille that shall rouse us forever.

It is in the generous time of youth best friendships are made. With mere acquaintance, we part without grief and meet merely to be glad to see each other.

"We must forgive people's trespasses, my boy, if we hope for forgiveness of our own."—(Colonel Newcome to Clive.)

When we think how mean the best of us are, it is well to give a hand to charity.—Zion's Herald.

THE BEAUTIFUL LIFE.

One day as Dr. Leighton Parks, now rector of St. Bartholomew's Church, New York, was in his study, a young Japanese called upon him.

When the maid opened the door, the young man entered very abruptly, and said: "Sir, can you tell me how to find the beautiful life?"

Dr. Parks answered: "Do you wish to talk with me about religion?"

"No, sir, I merely want to find out about the beautiful life."

"Have you read the Bible?"

"Yes, sir, I have read some, but I don't like the Bible."

"Have you ever been to church?"

"Yes, I have been twice, but I don't like the church. I am trying to find the beautiful life. Many of your people do just as our Japanese people do; they are bad, they cheat and tell lies, and yet they are all Christians. That is not what I want. I do not want your religion. But there is something I want, I can not tell what it is; I call it the beautiful life, and they told me perhaps you could tell me about it."

"Where did you ever hear about it?"

"I never heard about it; but I saw a man in a boarding-house in San Francisco soon after I landed—a poor old man, not an educated man like myself, who have studied in a university in Japan, and am now studying in one of your great universities; a poor man he was, a carpenter, but he had what all my life I have wanted. I have thought it might be in the world, but I have never seen it in my own country. I call it the beautiful life. How can I find it? This old man went about helping everybody; he was always happy; he never thought about himself. I knew him three weeks, and watched him all the time, and I felt that I must have what he had. I have seen some other people who have had it. I do not know what it is. It can not be your religion, because you do not have it."

Doctor Parks read him the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians—that beautiful "love chapter" which means so much to us, and asked: "Is that it?"

The Japanese said: "Yes, perhaps; it sounds like it: hut how can I get it?"

Then Doctor Parks took that wonderful story of the perfectly beautiful life, and tried to tell him very simply, and said: "Now, you have just to follow that Life."

And then, as he was obliged to go, he gave him a copy of the New Testament. The Japanese asked: "Can you not give me a more modern book? You know the Japanese are very up-to-date."

But he said: "No, it is not in any other book, although I can give you some other books which will help you; but this is the one Book you need. You may study it, and pray that light may be given you to live this beautiful life."

Doctor Parks heard nothing from the young man for a year or two, and then received a letter saying: "I am called back to my own country to an important position. Before I go I must see you. May I call at a certain hour?"

As he could not be at home at that hour, Doctor Parks wrote that he would see him the following day. At noon he burst in as he had done before, very abruptly, saying: "My train leaves at two o'clock. I must take that train to catch the steamer at San Francisco, to go back to my own country. I have something to tell you."

But he did not need to tell one word. It was all written on that radiant face.

"Sir, I have found the beautiful life. I have found Jesus," he exclaimed. And then, unable to linger, he went back to his own country to tell the people of the life once lived on earth, and lived here again in the lives of God's children to-day.—Churchman.

CHARITY AND HELP DEPARTMENT OF THE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

By Miss Esther C. Hall

The man of God has said, "As a man thinketh in his heart, so is he." Another has said, "Out of the heart are the issues of life."

We accept these statements without hesitancy and without argument as self-evident truth. And knowing that the heart must be pure in order to create and to maintain character and worthy manhood, and that the heart is the source and seat of every emotion and that it is also the secret power that gives rise to and controls the thought, the Church throughout its life has been trying to affect the heart and the principles of men so that their lives may be pure and sincerely religious. Of all the forces that can in any degree react upon the heart of man, purifying the heart and consequently the life, and causing that purity to be maintained, there is no force so potent and as effectual as the Word within the heart. Its guidance alone can enlighten man as to what are the correct ideals of thought and of action, and this Word is our sole source of unquestionable information upon the vital issues of life. It is through the written Word, the Holy Scriptures, that we can receive the most intelligible direction and instruction in the ways of godliness and ultimate purity. Among the organizations of our Church for the diffusion of the knowledge of this Word and for the close and sacred worship of the Father, the Epworth League is a mighty organ.

In regard to this auxiliary of the Church, we notice that within the meeting-hall walls under the direction of the devotional and other departments, the study of, and meditation upon, the Word is the primary object, and has for its aims (1) a knowledge of the right principles of living, with what thoughts, motives and sentiments are in harmony with the will of the Father; (2) the gaining by the Leaguer of an accurate and lasting concept of life, its meaning and its possibilities; (3) a knowledge of the correllated duties and obligations of man to man; (4) the grasping of the true and infallible standards of things which will enable man to judge of the worth and value in the eternal plan; (5) a strengthening and deepening of the tles of relationship with the Father; (6) the awakening of the church member to the needs of the Church, to his responsibility for the life, success and spiritual state of the Church, and to lead him to take his place in the conduct of the affairs of the Church, both in management, support and worshipful attention.

After these things are learned, and indeed while they are being learned (for they are inexhaustible), we find within the League a department designed for the controlled, effective and united expression and expenditure of feeling, brotherly love and helpfulness that must arise in the heart which is upright and worshipful, knowing its value and responsibility in the world of the Lord. This department is known as the Charity and Help Department.

The field of this department is bounded only by the opportunity given to cheer the sick and discouraged, to visit and to comfort the sad and the afflicted, to help the needy, and to minister to the suffering. In a word, to continue in his absence, the loving ministry of Christ to those who need his sympathetic care.

To the giver of service of this nature there is a reward of pleasure that is both elevating and satisfying. It creates or brings nearer the surface the joyous feeling of brotherhood. The service given without expectation of its return, and in the love of service for the Master, more nearly approaches perfect happiness and renders us more like the Son than anything else we can do. In its performance, we put into use the principles, the love, the charity and sincerity that we have learned of in the study in the other departments of the League. Here is where we practice what we have learned; where we do the missionary work of the League also. The active and benevolent service performed under the supervision of this department deepens the spiritual life of the servant, and is the fruitage of sincere and reverential attention to the cails of other departments of the League.

But the effect of this service is not confined to the willing servant. It extends outward and includes within its influence the one ministered to. This person does not always happen to be a fellow-Leaguer. Where he is not, he is relieved in need, cheered and uplifted in discouragement and sorrow, and there is perhaps created within his bosom a belief and faith in his fellow-men which is worth untold treasures to him. His vigor is renewed, he sees the glory and the beauty of fellowship, the potency and influence of the Christian life and the stimulus of example. He is tempted to imitation and maybe will ultimately be led unto the Christ, were he not a follower aforetime.

It is in this department that one of the commissions entrusted to the disciples of Christ finds a channel for fulfillment. Through such ministry many may be reached who otherwise would never believe. Man loves a helper, and one who has brought him out of distress of soul or body can get very near unto his heart and can exert a very great influence over his life. No more effective evangelizing influence can be seized by our Church. It is an opportunity that abides with us so long as we have the poor and the sick with us.

The means of manner of service in this department are as diverse as the occasions for its use, and each occasion must govern the means. But the point to be observed is that no opportunity be let pass, but let the Leagues be alive and awake, ready to seize upon every opportunity and to answer every call that comes to them. In this way they can become a great force for good in each several community.

KING GEORGE THANKS HIS SUBJECTS.

King George has issued the following message of thanks to his subjects throughout the Empire for their expressions of loyalty during his coronation ceremonies:

"To My People: Now that the coronation and its attendant ceremonies are over, I desire to assure the people of the British Empire of my grateful sense that their hearts have been with me through it all. I felt this in the beautiful and impressive service in the Abbey—the most solemn experience of my life—and scarcely less in the stirring scenes of the succeeding days, when my people have signified their recognition and their heartfelt welcome of me as their sovereign, for this has been apparent not only in the loyal enthusiasm shown in our passage to and from Westminster and in the progresses which we have made in the different districts of London, but also in the thousands of messages of good will which have come to me across the seas from every part of the Empire. Such affectionate demonstrations have profoundly touched me and have filled me afresh with faith and confidence. Believing that this generous, outspoken sympathy with the Queen and myself is, under God, our surest source of strength, I am encouraged to go forward with the renewed hope that whatever perplexities or difficulties may be before me and my people, we shall all unite in facing them resolutely and calmly and with public spirit, confident that under divine guidance the ultimate outcome will be to the common good."—Christian Inteiligencer.

A NOTE FROM BROTHER LEWIS.

Dear Advocate: I always enjoy your visits. You bring me messages from old friends, and you refresh my spirit with news of my old Conference. Memphis Methodism is vigorous. I listened to the pastors this morning as they reported the number they had received this Conference year and I think the figures showed about 700. First Church has received 165. I had the pleasure of receiving an Italian and his two little girls into the church last night. His wife and son will join later. The hot weather is affecting us, but the work goes on. Brother R. A. Clark is doing splendidly at Second Church. It is a mutual fit. Tell the preachers to write to us if any of their members move to Memphis. There are hundreds of Methodists in the city not connected with any church. Some of them hide out when they come to Memphis, and we preachers never see them.

T. W. LEWIS.

Memphis, Tenn., July 10, 1911.

THE PREPARATORY SCHOOL AT MILLSAPS.

Dear Brother Meek: I desire to let the readers of the Advocate know about our new plan of management for the Millsaps Preparatory School.

The purpose of the plan is two-fold: (1) To conform to the policy of our General Board of Education, which requires that preparatory schools be separated as completely as possible from the colleges, and (2) to provide more homelike surroundings and more wholesome discipline for our young students.

Founder's Hall, a large brick building on the east side of the campus, has been set aside as the home of the preparatory school and will be used for that purpose exclusively. This building has a study hall and classrooms on the first floor and living rooms for about one hundred students on the second and third floors. The dining room and kitchen are commodious and have been put in first-class repair at a cost of several hundred dollars. The building has electric lights throughout, steam heat, and a nice bath and toilet room.

Mrs. M. E. Joyce, of Gulfport, has been engaged as matron, and will give her personal attention to the preparation and serving of all meals and will exercise helpful and sympathetic supervision over the living arrangements at all times. Discipline in the hall will be in the hands of Prof. S. G. Noble, head master of the school, with the assistance of Mr. W. C. Coggin, who will live in the hall with the students; and these two will have at all times such co-operation from the president of the college as the ends of good discipline may require.

During school hours, students not in recitation will sit in the hall and will engage themselves with the preparation of their lessons. A study period will be held at night, between the hours of 7:30 and 10 o'clock. Visiting in Jackson at night except for absolutely necessary purposes will be strictly prohibited, and all matters affecting the moral and religious life of the students will have the most careful attention.

It is our fixed purpose that the management shall be as homelike as it is possible for it to be made. The discipline will be firm and wholesome, but not rigid, and at no time unreasonable. Students who expect to remain with us will be required to conform to recognized standards of good morals and to address themselves diligently to their studies. Students under twenty-one years will be required to live in the hall, those over that age being allowed to choose their living places elsewhere. Any student may, by special request of parent or guardian, be permitted to live with a near relative in Jackson.

We expect to have as fine a training school for boys as can be found in the South, and we invite the co-operation of all friends of the college in our effort to make it such. A catalogue containing full information will be gladly mailed on request.

D. C. HULL,
President of Millsaps College.

DR. ABBOTT ON THE FOUR GOSPELS.

As Dr. Lyman Abbott has for a number of years been speaking and writing about the Bible in a way to unsettle many minds, we hasten to quote a passage from him, bearing date of June 17 of this year:

"I regard the four Gospels as authentic biographies; and no attempt is made to discriminate between them as historical documents or to utilize the efforts which modern scholars have made to distinguish the sources from which they suppose these Gospels were composed. The object of these articles is practical, not scholastic. The fourth Gospel, after considerable study on the question, I believe to have been written by the Apostle John, or by one or more of his immediate disciples, acting as amanuensis or interpreter, and as probably dating from the close of the first century, or, at the very latest, from the first decade of the second century."—New York Christian Advocate.

THE CIRCULATION OF CHURCH PAPERS.

We observe that the Catholic forces are making a most energetic effort to extend the circulation of their periodical literature. All the way down the line, from pope to priest, there is a pressure to spread the circulation of the church papers.

Where the families are really too poor to pay for a paper there is a society which gathers up the papers already read and sends such papers to them. Last year 336,897 pieces of periodical literature were sent out by this society.

Is there a lesson here for ourselves?—Central Christian Advocate.

THE VANDERBILT GERMAN.

Some, perhaps, have wondered why the Midland has had nothing to say on the subject of the Vanderbilt german given at its recent commencement. Our explanation is, we were in Virginia at that time, and, not having been invited to attend, did not hear of that brilliant affair till it was all over. Now that we have time to write, and have had time to think, we wish to say a few things:

First, we indorse what the Christian Advocate has already said of this affair, and congratulate Dr. Ivey on his cool, deliberate, and forceful manner of criticizing the official management of a great Church school that officially put forth such a fiasco as a german at the head of its commencement exercises.

Secondly, we wish to say, with what emphasis we can, that such a thing was a plain and uncalled-for insult to the Church, and was a deliberate slap in the face of nearly two millions of Southern Methodists by a few men clothed with a little "brief authority," whose only method to prove their existence is to show their bad manners. For whether the german be wrong or not, the Christian world believes it is; and good manners at the head of a great religious institution would respect that belief.

Thirdly, it furnishes the best argument in favor of the Church's ownership and control of the University. Now, it can be said, not only for business but for moral reasons, that the Church should control the management of the University; and if this cannot be, let the Church wash her hands of the whole thing and begin over again. We don't want a university that puts a german at the head of her program for the commencement exercises.—Editorial in the Midland Methodist.

WHITWORTH COLLEGE AND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

Session 1910-1911, 250 Students; Twenty Teachers and Officers. Thorough instruction under Christian influences. Courses leading to degrees of B. L. and A. B. Noted teachers in Piano, Voice, Elocution and Art. Forty thousand dollars will be expended in improvements within the next eighteen months.

NEXT SESSION BEGINS SEPT. 14, 1911.

Send for Catalogue. Address

WHITWORTH COLLEGE,
Brookhaven, Miss.

Secular News and Comment

The crops of Louisiana are represented as considerably damaged by the excessive rainfall of the past few weeks.

• • •

Mrs. Lulie Lea is still seriously ill at Denver, Col., having recently, in addition to her other afflictions, been attacked by pneumonia. Hope of her recovery, however, is still entertained. Senator Lea is reported to be rapidly regaining his strength.

• • •

The Picayune's Washington correspondent reports that General W. J. Behan's term as postmaster at New Orleans will end on Sept. 30. President Leonhardt, of the New Orleans Board of Trade, has been appointed to succeed him.

• • •

Governor Hoke Smith, of Georgia, was elected to the United States Senate from that State on July 12, receiving a majority of 91 votes over all his opponents. Only seven ballots were cast for Tom Watson, who had formally announced his candidacy.

• • •

Johns Hopkins University is to be removed from its present site in Baltimore to a suburban situation, and $1,200,000 has been raised to erect the new buildings needed. It is stated that the construction of the first of them will be begun next autumn.

• • •

King George and Queen Mary concluded their visit to Ireland on the 12th inst., and with the Prince of Wales and Princess Mary, sailed in the royal yacht for Wales. It is said that as they passed through the streets of Dublin to take their departure, they were greeted with cries of "Come back soon."

• • •

The fatalities occurring on the Fourth of July which has just passed are said to have been less than half the number of those occuring the year preceding. This is a good showing, and should encourage the reformers who are seeking to bring about a "sane and safe observance" of Independence Day.

• • •

Plans are reported under way to make the lumber mill at Bogalusa, La., the largest in the world. It has now a capacity of turning out 650,000 feet of lumber a day, and it is stated that if the improvements in contemplation are carried out, its capacity will be increased to 1,050,000 feet.

• • •

A recent estimate of the amount of energy derived from Niagara Falls places it at 272,410 horsepower, divided in its application as follows: Electro-chemical industries, 126,000; railway service, 56,200; lighting, 26,400; various industrial purposes, 24,540. The total energy of the falls is estimated at 5,000,000 horsepower, so that not much more than 5 per cent is at present utilized.

• • •

Mrs. Frederick Patrick Lawrence, treasurer of the English Suffrage Association, recently announced that the campaign fund of that organization amounts to $515,000. Five years ago the association set out to raise half a million dollars. Now, having passed that amount, it proposes to bring the total up to $1,250,000, all to be used for the furtherance of the cause of equal suffrage.

• • •

Mr. Bryan's paper, The Commoner, recently gave a long list of available candidates for the presidency and vice-presidency of the nation on the Democratic ticket. Among the presidential possibilities enumerated are the following: Governor Woodrow Wilson, Ex-Governor Joseph W. Folk, Speaker Champ Clark, Governor Hoke Smith, Governor Marshall of Indiana; Governor Dix of New York, and Senator Culberson, of Texas. The name of Governor Harmon, of Ohio, is conspicuous by its absence.

• • •

The work of uncovering the wreck of the Maine continues to progress favorably. Enough of the sunk vessel is now visible to see that the greatest amount of damage was done by the explosion of the ship's own magazines. This does not mean, however, that the Maine was blown up by the carelessness of the Americans, as an outside explosion would very likely cause just an explosion within, where much ammunition is carried by war vessels. A board of naval experts is now being selected at Washington to inspect the wreck and submit an official report concerning it.

• • •

A bill has been favorably reported in Congress appropriating $125,000 for the erection of a monument in honor of the Confederate Navy in the National Park at Vicksburg. This monument is intended to be a companion piece of the shaft set up to commemorate the service rendered thereabout by the Union fleet during the Civil War. This action certainly looks as if the day of sectional hatred were a thing of the past.

• • •

A press dispatch states that "Absolute Life on Trial" and "The Book of Truth," the two volumes that played a conspicuous part in the conviction of Evelyn Arthur See in Chicago on July 11, will be burned if an order to that effect can be obtained from the court. Undoubtedly this is what should be done with them. The world would be vastly better off if much of the vicious literature which has been burned off our printing presses were converted into ashes.

• • •

The rural population in many Mississippi counties shows a marked decrease, according to the census of 1910. Thus Warren County, outside of Vicksburg, had in 1900 a population of 24,906, and in 1910 of about 16,000; and in Adams County, the rural population was about 5,000 less than it was ten years before. The greatest gain in population shown anywhere in the State was in the south Mississippi towns and counties, and some of the secular papers are predicting that the people of that section will not remain satisfied with their present small representation in the State Legislature, which is based upon the enumeration of 1900.

• • •

Some time since a law was passed in New York making it a felony for an automobilist to run away from the scene of an accident caused by his machine without disclosing his identity. Now the Supreme Court of that State has declared this law unconstitutional on the ground that it compels a person to become a witness against himself. Anyhow, we think this was wise legislation, and we regret that the Court for technical reasons has seen fit to nullify it. Everything possible to make persons riding in automobiles careful not to injure others on the highways should be done. Many of them are far too reckless.

• • •

After a brilliant debate in which he badly worsted Senator Heyburn, of Idaho, Senator John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, succeeded in retaining "Jim" Jones, the aged negro who was the body guard of Jefferson Davis and who is said to be the only person in the world who knows where the seals of the Confederacy were hidden, on the pay roll of the Senate. He formerly was in the active employ of this body, but is now eighty-two years old and incapable of filling the position which he held, and was about to be set adrift when Mr. Williams came to his rescue. The distinguished Mississippian opened his address in the following language: "I rise for the purpose of pleading the cause of an old, faithful and honest negro man. I do not know that I have anything to urge in his behalf, except sentiment. Among all the magnificent attributes of the human race, I think Tom Carlyle was right in saying that loyalty is the greatest of them all, loyalty to a country, to a cause, to a leader, to a man, loyalty to something. It is not pecularly one of our virtues. This old darky possesses it in a very high degree."

WHITWORTH COLLEGE, BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

Whitworth College closed a prosperous session May 15th, 1911, with a registration of two hundred and fifty students, and twenty officers and teachers. The Trustees will make $40,000 or $50,000 worth of improvements within the next eighteen months.

Next session begins September 14, 1911. The following faculty is one of the strongest in the history of the College:

Mrs. B. W. Lipscomb, A.M., Mathematics and Dean of Faculty.

Miss Elizabeth Lisby, Webb School and Agnes Scott, Latin and Greek.

Miss Majorie Chappell Davis, A.B., and A.M., University of Tennessee, English.

Miss Ruby Lawhon, A.B. and A.M., University of Alabama, Science and French.

Mrs. J. M. Wyatt, A.B., I. I. & C., History.

Miss Sallie Matthews, B.L., Whitworth College, Preparatory Department.

Misses Floyce Taylor, B.L., and Ora Nell Moore, Whitworth College, Assistants.

Piano—Miss Elizabeth McVoy, Directress, Conservatories of Cincinnati and Boston.

Miss Lois Wadsworth Cooper, A.B., and M.B., Whitworth College, M.B., Conservatory of Music, Cincinnati.

Miss Sara Stout, Conservatory of Cincinnati, Piano and Harmony.

Miss Courtney Ranch, A.B. and M.B., Whitworth College.

Voice—Miss Carrie Lewis, Cincinnati and New York.

Expression—Miss DuBois Elder, Curry School of Expression.

Miss Sophie Cameron, Monitress.

Mrs. L. S. Burdine, Matron.

Dr. J. T. Butler, College Physician.

Miss Willie Williams, Housekeeper.

Mr. W. A. Atwood, Night Watchman.

Rev. Paul D. Hardin, Financial Secretary.

Art and Commercial teachers will be named later.

One of the Mississippi State Normals closed a most prosperous session July 7th. Approximately, two hundred were entertained at Whitworth College. The following instructors were entertained at the College: Prof. Woodley, of Hattiesburg; Prof. Windom, of Canton; Prof. Rose, Yazoo City; Mrs. Hardy, Blue Mountain; Mrs. Crawford, Cold Water; Mrs. Topp, Greenwood; Prof. Thames, Picayune; Prof. McCleskey, Hazlehurst; Prof. Vandiver, New Albany; Miss Rowan, Wesson; Mrs. Lipscomb, Brookhaven; Prof. Bennett, Brookhaven; Prof. Schumpert, Brookhaven. These instructors unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

Whereas we, the instructors of the Brookhaven Summer Normal of 1911 desire to express our appreciation of the many courtesies shown us, therefore, be it

Resolved 1st. That we commend unreservedly the splendid accommodations, the excellent table fare and the unsurpassed dining-room service furnished us by Whitworth College under the management of President I. W. Cooper.

2nd. That we commend the sanitary conditions of Whitworth College and bear cheerful testimony to the healthfulness of the location.

Geo. W. Riehl. Aug. Rauxet, Jr.

RIEHL & RAUXET,
Successors to Lowengardt & Armstrong,
JEWELERS,
122 BARONNE STREET - - New Orleans, La
(Optical Department: M. F. Fitzgerald, Optician)
Phone Main 787

The Centenary College of Louisiana
SHREVEPORT
Fall Term will open
Sept. 13, 1911.
For Catalogue or other information write to
FELIX R. HILL, President,
P. O. Box 455
SHREVEPORT, LA.

W. W. Carre Co. Ltd
Manufacturer Exporter of | Lumber
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Church News

The Brownwood (Texas) District Conference recommended Dr. S. A. Steel for re-admission into the Annual Conference.

* * *

Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Lee, of St. Louis, left home for Canada about two weeks ago. They were booked to sail for England on July 15.

* * *

Bishop Hoss is one of the speakers at Chautauqua, New York, this season. He is also down for some platform work at Monteagle in August.

* * *

Bishop Lambuth left the United States for Brazil on June 24. Before returning home, he will visit Africa in the interest of the mission work which our Church is projecting in that country.

* * *

The Northern Presbyterian Church has among the negroes of the South 4 synods, 16 presbyteries, 401 churches, and 28,873 members. The amount contributed by these communicants toward their own support last year was $68,459.

* * *

Dr. H. H. McNeil, pastor of the Methodist Church of Opelika, Ala., has been chosen Dean of the Seashore Divinity School in place of Dr. F. N. Parker, resigned. Dr. McNeil is well equipped for the place.

* * *

It is said that for the first time in the history of Mexico some of the high officials of the Government are Protestants. Surely this means that there are better days ahead for this long-oppressed people, and that pure Christianity is to have opened to it larger opportunities in this land in which its work hitherto has been so difficult.

* * *

Following a conference between Chancellor J. H. Kirkland, of Vanderbilt, and President Brown Ayers of the University of Tennessee, it was announced in Nashville on the 13th inst. that the medical department of the University of Nashville and Tennessee would be discontinued and the faculty combined with Vanderbilt. The consolidation will hereafter be known as a department of Vanderbilt University.

* * *

From the Central Christian Advocate we take the following: "The basis of union agreed upon by the joint committee of the Presbyterian, Methodist and Congregational Churches in Canada is indorsed by a majority of the members of the presbyteries of the Presbyterian Church who voted, but fell far short of a majority of all entitled to vote. Sixty-six presbyteries gave 927 votes for the basis, 516 against, and 1,278 votes were unpolled."

* * *

Bishop Candler is making a vigorous attempt to secure a famous collection of Wesley portraits, books, pamphlets, etc., belonging to a noted Methodist in England, and to bring it to Georgia. The collection is one of the richest in the world, and Bishop Candler thinks that Georgia should possess it, as it was there Mr. Wesley spent a most important period of his life and developed in part the plan of his future work.—Central Methodist Advocate.

* * *

The noted Japanese Methodist minister, Dr. U. Sasamori, died at Omura, a quiet country-place near Nagasaki on June 12. He was born in 1867; was educated at De Pauw University in the United States where he spent eight years, and was considered the most effective speaker and evangelist among the followers of Wesley in Japan. At the time of his decease, which was caused by tuberculosis, he was president of the Chinzei Gakuin, the Anglo-Japanese College at Nagasaki.

* * *

A French paper published in Paris says: "Tourists who visit the Holy Land note the progress of its Germanization. On the road to Nazareth most of the inns are kept by Germans. Nearly all the streets of Jaffa have the aspect of the Prussian village. The houses have red roofs and are surrounded by the little garden so dear to Gretchen. Traces of the Teuton are everywhere. The Syrian has been supplanted by the Berliner, who has migrated from the banks of the Spree to the borders of the Jordan in order to make his fortune. German is spoken everywhere. The American consul himself is a German. Souvenirs of the Kaiser abound on every side."

* * *

From the Church Family Newspaper we take the following item concerning one of England's most famous cathedrals: "Every preacher who occupies the pulpit at St. Paul's signs his name after the service in a book that is kept in the vestry, a book which dates back to 1726, the earliest signature in it being 'Edward Stillingfleet.' This is for autographs one of the most valuable books in existence, as it contains the signatures of great numbers of eminent churchmen for nearly two hundred years. Most archbishops, bishops and clergymen of eminence preach at St. Paul's some time in their career."

* * *

Pressure will, it is said, be brought to bear upon the Rev. Dr. Robert S. MacArthur, the new president of the Baptist World Alliance, to induce him to resign his New York pastorate and take up the active work of the Alliance. Formed in 1905, and only now reaching a stage of world power, it has never had a president who did much more than to preside, leaving most of its work to its secretary and founder, the Rev. J. H. Shakespere, who is also secretary of the Baptist Missionary Society of London. There is to be held in Sockholmn in 1913 a conference of European Baptists, and the president of the Alliance is asked to preside. Baptists are growing in every European country save Portugal, and into it they aim to go at the earliest possible moment. Mr. Shakespere states that Russians make a peculiar call upon Baptists because they are immersionists. Unlike the Roman Catholic Church and the Church of England, the Rusian Orthodox Church has never accepted sprinkling as scriptural baptism. A second reason, he says, is the independence of the individual and the congregation, contrasting with the autocracy of the State Church. The Rev. Dr. MacArthur says he will not resign his pastorate until fall at any rate, but that he will then consider his line of action. He admits very real interest in the vast field which the Alliance presents. The next meeting of the World Alliance is fixed for Berlin in 1916.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

To Members of the Ministers' Relief Association, North Mississippi Conference:

Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan, the saintliest of us all, was a devoted and prompt member of our Association for many years. His death makes assessment No. 7 now due. Let the members pay promptly and then they will not forget to pay. Assessments must be paid by Aug. 14th, or delinquent is suspended.

This would be a good time for those who have lapsed on former assessments to "return to the fold." Send $10 and be reinstated, with $5 to your credit.

JOHN C. PARK,
Secretary and Treasurer.

Oxford, Miss., July 14, 1911.

CONFERENCE CLAIMANTS FUND.

To the Preachers of the Mississippi Conference—

Dear Brethren: Will you please press the collection for Conferenece claimants? The second quarter is passed and we have not money sufficient to pay these veterans. They are dependent upon the amounts we pay them. Think of these dear men and women who have worked so faithfully for their Lord and yet who have waited in vain for small amounts we should have sent them. Tell your people of their needs and they will respond. We have sixty-eight claimants and have paid them about ten per cent of the amount promised.

Send all money to S. A. Tomlinson, Gulfport, Miss.

J. M. MORSE,
President of the Board.

Jackson, Miss.

$177.00 pays Board, Tuition, Laundry, Medical, Library and Lyceum fees whole session. Those who wish may reduce this by taking duties. Apply now to Port Gibson Female College, Port Gibson, Miss.

RUSTON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Ruston District Conference convened in annual session in the Methodist Church, of Winnfield, La., at 9 a. m., Friday, June 30, 1911, Bishop E. D. Mouzon, presiding.

Nearly all the pastors and a large number of laymen were present. The following were among the Conference visitors: Rev. P. O. Lowrey, Conference Sunday School Missionary; President A. B. Peters, of Mansfield Woman's College; Rev. Robert W. Vaughan, superintendent Louisiana Methodist Orphanage; Revs. C. B. Carter, W. E. Akin, Wilson Moore, Jordan, of the St. Louis Conference, and Harrell, of the Arkansas Conference.

Rev. R. W. Vaughan, Rev. P. O. Lowrey, and President A. B. Peters, respectively, spoke in the interest of their work.

The preaching was done by Bishop Mouzon, Presiding Elder R. W. Tucker, J. B. Williams, W. G. Harbin, and W. H. Coleman.

The reports from the various charges were, for the most part, encouraging. Some of the notes of progress were as follows: Good revivals have been held; the membership has been increased; the spiritual state is good, or improving; there are new church building enterprises on hand; and where the March Missionary Campaign Movement was observed, the missionary assessments have been either partly or wholly paid, with a prospect of all benevolences in full.

The conference sent loving greetings to Rev. T. J. Upton and Dr. Jas. A. Parker, superannuated brethren living within the bounds of the district, and passed resolutions of condolence for Rev. J. G. Sloane and Rev. R. Randle in their recent sad bereavement.

Our beloved brother, Rev. J. D. Harper, is a most excellent conference host, and the good people of Winnfield demonstrated to us the full meaning of "genuine Southern hospitality."

Bishop Mouzon made a most favorable impression both as a presiding officer and as a preacher of the gospel in its pristine vigor. We shall all be glad to meet him again at Parker Memorial in December.

Gibsland was selected as the place for the next meeting of the conference.

WM. H. COLEMAN, Sec.

GOOD NEWS FROM REV. E. S. LEWIS.

Dear Brother Meek: I am glad to be able to report to you that I am up and out again. Of course, I am not strong enough to take up my work, but I hope to do so in a week or so. I want to thank my many good friends throughout the Conference who have written me and sent me messages of love and sympathy. This is my response to them until I shall have time to write to each separately.

The work in my district is going right along. The presiding elder is not of so much importance after all.

With good wishes for all my friends, I am, yours truly,

E. S. LEWIS.

July 15, 1911.

A STRONG ENDORSEMENT.

In his eloquent introduction to The Modes Of The Heavenly Life, by Rev. Walter G. Harbin, Dr. Robt. A. Meek, the editor of the Advocate says of this book:

"* * * * It is a popular and practical discussion, designed to be helpful to hungry hearts. The sermons are substantially as they were delivered, and as God has so signally used them in the awakening and upbuilding of his people. They are scriptural, forceful, and appealing, and abound in beautiful passages and apt illustrations. No one can read them without being stirred to holier aspirations."

Cloth and gold, only 50 cents, postpaid.

By the same author: A Man Wanted, paper, 15 cents, postpaid. Of this great sermon to men, Bishop Murrah wrote: "I would be glad if every young man in the land could hear this address."

Order from Chas. O. Chalmers, 512 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

The AMERICAN PAINT WORKS
——Manufacturers of——
High Grade Mixed Paints; Perfecto White Lead; Nonpareil Carriage Paint; Varnish Stain; Colors in Oil; Wood Fillers; Chemically Pure Dry Colors, Etc.
422-424 JOSEPHINE STREET.....Phone 918
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Concerning Missions.

LAYMEN'S MISSIONARY MOVEMENT.

What the Every-Member Canvass Did for Memorial Church, Lynchburg.

By Robert B. Ellerer.

Four hundred dollars to foreign missions in 1910; $1,000 in 1911! This is the remarkable record of Memorial Church, Lynchburg, Va. The Every-Member Canvass explains it. The following letter from Rev. W. A. Cooper, the pastor, addressed to the Secretary of the Laymen's Missionary Movement, tells the story more in detail and should be an inspiration to every pastor who desires to see his church take a more active interest in the world's evangelization.

Lynchburg, Va., June 26, 1911.

Rev. C. F. Reid, Nashville, Tenn.

Dear Brother Reid: Your request for information concerning the "Every-Member Canvass" in Memorial Church was received, and in reply will say that the minutes of our Annual Conference show the following:

In 1906, to foreign missions	$422.36
In 1907, to foreign missions	1355.35
In 1908, to foreign missions	1145.00
In 1909, to foreign missions	2569.00
In 1910, to foreign missions	4206.00

This year we had a more thorough and efficient organization and more of our people contributed than ever before. We cleaned up this work this year in about ten days.

The other interests of the church, both financial and spiritual, show great advance. Even the pastor's salary was voluntarily increased this year.

Yours very sincerely,

W. A. COOPER.

THE CHRISTIAN MISSION TO THE JEWS IN THE SOUTH.

On the night of July 4th, Dr. Julius Nagath of Oxford, Ga., and his helper, Mr. Abram Pineto of Jerusalem, formally opened the Christian Mission to the Jews in the South at Wesley Memorial Church. This is one of the most significant additions to the features of this institutional church yet made, and the scope of the Mission is such as to command the attention of the religious South.

This movement, thus crystallized after years of patient pleading and work by Dr. Nagath, is at the instance of Bishop Candler, who is warmly commending it to the Christian public. A board of managers to supervise the work will be appointed by the quarterly conference of Wesley Memorial Church shortly. Dr. Nagath will, for the present, devote Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday of each week to the local mission, and the remaining time to travel throughout the Church in the interest of Christian work in behalf of Hebrews.

A religious service will be conducted at Wesley Memorial Church for Hebrews every Tuesday night. The spacious library has been tendered for this purpose. His helper will have charge of the room, which beside its general library will contain an assortment of Bibles, Testaments and periodicals in Yiddish, for distribution among the Jews. His helper will visit daily among the Jews in Atlanta, under Dr. Nagath's superintendence.

The attendance last night of church members from several denominations in the city, Hebrew Christians and unconverted Jews, attested the high esteem in which Dr. Nagath and his work is held in Atlanta. The London Society for the propagation of the gospel among the Jews, formed one hundred and one years ago, has produced fourteen hundred ordained Christian Hebrew ministers. Among them was the great Dr. Ellersheim. A similar mission begun twenty-two years ago in Chicago, with a few interested members of Moody's Church and other Christians, now owns its mission house and other property worth thirty thousand dollars—its annual budget is seventeen thousand dollars.

With two millions of Jews in the United States, seven thousand of whom are in Atlanta, with an increasing number throughout the South, this definite beginning of Christian effort in their behalf is imperative. May not the previous years of Dr. Nagath's work among the churches prove now to have been the sure education of our people to more earnest efforts toward Christianizing the Jews among us? With adequate support to this movement there is no reason why the number of local missions may not be increased from time to time.

In the absence of Bishop Candler, I am writing the above for the information of all interested, who, desirous of helping in a financial way, may send contributions to W. B. Wilkerson, treasurer, Wesley Memorial Church, Atlanta, Ga.

Dr. Nagath will gladly enter any open door whose pastor and people are interested in this work. So will his helper, whose experience of four continents is most thrilling.

FRANK SILER.

Atlanta, Ga., July 5, 1911.

A BROTHER'S ADMONITION.

By Beta.

The baneful effect of the spirit of gambling also infests most insidiously the institutions and membership of the Church.

The desire, or willingness to get valuables without a due equivalent therefor being given, is distressingly fostered in the attractive "offers" made by our church papers, almost, if not entirely, like unto the "popularity contests" manipulated by secular papers for securing subscriptions. It surely cannot be for the ultimate good of the periodical, or the constituency thus secured. If the paper cannot be sold "on its merits," like other goods, it ought to "requiescat in pace," which, being interpreted, means remain on the shelf. Moreover, if the prospective patron must be baited before he will buy, then, by every token, a sale of manhood is involved in the purchase—and the purchaser? Well it is not worth while to consider the ethics of his case.

June 29, 1911.

NOTE: Some have been misled into supposing that the element of chance must always enter to constitute gambling, whereas the mere effort, or expectation of securing money or some valuable possession, without giving an equivalent therefor, is the essential quality involved in the spirit of gambling.

AN APPRECIATION.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Reville is a name which has long been familiar in church and in philanthropic circles. For more than twenty years she was a distinguished worker in the Woman's Home Mission Society of the Louisiana Conference, in the Woman's Christian Temperance Union and in other prominent altruistic societies. Born in the good old State of Georgia, the cradle of American Methodism; reared in a cultured Christian home by pious parents, educated in the city high schools of Atlanta and in LaGrange College, her equipment for the battle of life was of a high order.

Like the boy Samuel, she heard the voice of God early in childhood, and was quick to respond to its call. Her Christian experience was of a most positive and unwavering character. Christ was real to her because he was her friend and companion. Of course, she was an active member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and fully understood and lived all of its sublime and holy teachings. For years she was a regular attendant at the class meeting, a teacher of the Holy Scriptures in the Sunday school, and an officer in the local auxiliary and in the Louisiana Conference Home Mission Society. So far as this writer knows, she filled all these offices with distinction and with honor.

When she reached the state of young womanhood, she was happily married to Mr. J. H. Reville, with whom she lived until his death, about seven years ago. For more than a quarter of a century they walked hand in hand dividing the sorrows and multiplying the joys of each other.

The last year of her life was one filled with pain and intense suffering. Immediately after the annual session of the Louisiana Conference, Woman's Home Mission Society, held in New Orleans, Mrs. Reville was stricken with paralysis. For most of the time she was unable to walk without assistance and during the last two months was unable to leave her room. In all her affliction she found her Savior her daily friend and companion. Her greatest joy was to talk of his goodness and compassion toward her.

Her interest in her church and in the Woman's Mission Society was unfailing. During her last illness she made an effort to attend the annual meeting at Monroe, but found her strength insufficient. The Society sent its greetings and sweetest sympathy in an appropriate telegram by its secretary. This act of remembrance was one of the solaces of her last days. She spoke of it repeatedly and always with appreciation.

In addition to her zeal for church and mission work she was also an ardent supporter of the benevolent and eleemosynary institutions of Shreveport. Many of them were blessed with her purse and prayers. She was an honored member of the Order of Eastern Star, at one time holding an office in the Grand Lodge of this order. By her request, this order attended and gave the funeral obsequies. Her dust reposes in the Greenwood Cemetery at Gibsland, La., beside her parents and other loved ones who have gone before.

She leaves two brothers and three sisters—Rev. James M. Manley, of Arcadia; Mr. W. H. Manley, of Lake Charles; Mrs. T. C. Rhodes, Mrs. T. F. Ward and Mrs. Fannie Peterson.

Were I asked to sum up the traits of her character in one word, I would answer, "Strength." There was nothing uncertain nor negative about her. She always had an opinion on all vital and moral questions and dared to assert it. All her convictions were positive and outspoken. She had a strong will, hence executive ability. She had the gift of utterance, hence she was a convincing public speaker. She had foresight and prudence in planning the affairs committed to her charge.

May the grace of the Father be given to the bereaved loved ones left behind who were so kind and patient and attentive during her long and painful illness.

A FRIEND.

A GOOD WOMAN GONE HOME.

Dear Brother Meek: Last Wednesday morning, July 12, at 7:30, Mrs. Martha Susan Ellis left us for the better land. She was born Jan. 10, 1841; united with the Church when nine years old and was married to R. A. Ellis in 1866. Her father, the Rev. J. E. Hudgins, was for many years a local preacher, and was loved and honored wherever known. Sister Ellis had been a great sufferer all her life, and for the past seven years an invalid, but she suffered uncomplainingly and constantly exhibited a faith and trust that were sublime.

For thirty-eight years as the wife of an itinerant Methodist preacher she had willingly gone wherever the Church had indicated, and the beautiful life she lived and work she accomplished will continue to shine forth as "letters of fire upon the horizon of time."

Her husband, the Rev. R. A. Ellis, a superannuated preacher of the North Mississippi Conference, will, I am sure, have the sympathy and prayers of his brethren in this trying hour.

She left three sons—Brooks, Hudgins and Jesse Barnett—the last named being an official member of our church at Yazoo City. A daughter, Alice, had preceded her to the glory land.

Everything was done that loving hands could do to alleviate her suffering and prolong her life, and in this connection special mention should be made of her devoted neice, Miss Janie Fudge, who loved her and waited upon her to the very last like a daughter.

After appropriate services at the church, we laid her body to rest in the city cemetery to await the coming of the resurrection morn.

THOMAS B. CLIFFORD.

Yazoo City, Miss., July 14, 1911.

THE
Grant Furniture Co.
IS NOW HAVING A
GREAT REMOVAL SALE
PRICES ON EVERY ARTICLE
IN THEIR
ENTIRE STOCK HAVE BEEN REDUCED
OUTFITS ESPECIALLY PRICED
427-429-431 Camp Street, New Orleans

The Home Circle

HOW THE CHIPMUNK GOT THE BLACK STRIPE ON HIS BACK.

As everybody knows, the chipmunk has a black stripe running up and down his back.

According to the red Indians, he did not have any black stripe on him at all originally. They say that he got the one he now wears in the following manner:

The animals used to meet once a year to elect a leader, and, once upon a time, the porcupine was chosen for that position.

The first thing the porcupine did was to call a great council of all the animals. Then he placed before them the following question: "Shall we have day all the time or night all the time?"

It was a very important matter, and the animals began to debate it earnestly. The bear said he wanted night all the time, for then he could sleep, and sleep was much the most pleasant thing he knew of.

But the little chipmunk said: "No; I want night part of the time and day part of the time, for then we can have a time to sleep and a time to gather nuts and hop around among the trees."

The big bear and the little chipmunk got into a violent discussion over the question, and the other animals became silent and left the two to argue it out.

It was night while they were debating, and when they got out of breath arguing, they began to sing.

"Night is best; night is best. We must have darkness," sang the big bear.

"Day is best; day is best. We must have light," sang the little chipmunk.

"Night is best; night is best. We must have dark ness," growled the bear in a deep, thunder tone.

"Light will come. We must have light. Day will come," piped the little chipmunk in his shrill voice.

And, just as he was singing the day began to dawn and the light of morning to illumine the world.

Then the bear and the other big animals on his side of the question saw that the little chipmunk was prevailing, and set up an angry chorus, so that the chipmunk was afraid and ran for his hole in a neighboring tree.

The bear and his followers ran after him, and, just as the chipmunk was diving into his hole, the big bear reached out his paw to catch him. But the chipmunk was so quick that the paw of the bear only grazed his back, and he got into his hole in safety.

But you can see to this day the black stripe on the back of the chipmunk where the paw of the bear who loved darkness just grazed the fur of the little fellow who loved the light.—The American Boy.

BOBBY'S MISTAKE.

By Mrs. Livingston Barbour.

Shall I tell you about "Bobby," whose life—nay, whose death—contained such a fine moral? Well, he was my foster-child, and he was not "Bobby" at all, but Robert E. Lee, and he was not a child, but a beautiful, thoroughbred Irish setter dog. It all lay in that second adjective "thoroughbred," because you know there is as much difference between a thoroughbred and feist puppy dog as there is between a dignified, straight-stemmed clay pipe made in Ireland from a bit of the old soil, that may be smoked at moments with the bowl turned the other way, and one of our graceful, curved-stemmed clay pipes made of Jersey soil, and baked in the oven of the New World.

Well, I was really Bobby's foster-mother. One day a certain little "Go-between," who had much influence at the court presided over by her mother, said, "I know someone who has five Irish setter puppies, and they are all going to be drowned." "Why?" "Well," said little Go-between, "The mother is sick, the coachman refuses to bring them up by hand, so they are to be all drowned." "Oh, Go-between, do you suppose we could try our hand on raising one?" A pair of bright eyes answered "Yes" long before a certain little tongue could speak it. And Go-between added, "And Mr. Fox said I might have one," so after all, someone had fallen into a trap prepared for her, because it had been suggested that Go-between's mother might adopt one.

The puppy came the next day, wrapped up in a nice, warm flannel shawl, curled up in a tiny grape basket, sound asleep; he never knew when the papers were signed, and he exchanged the fond love of a genuine mother for the apology we gave him. However, it was the best thing that could have been done, because the next day his mother died.

How did he come by such a name? Well, that is part of my story.

Go-between's mother studied history when she should have been reading Louise Alcott's stories, so all the dogs bred in her dear father's kennels bore the names of her heroes in history—Napoleon, "Polie;" Bonaparte, "Bonnie;" Grant, "Ulysses;" Lincoln, "Linkie," and so on.

Naturally, this child of adoption must be called after someone whom she had been taught to love.

Have you ever tried raising a puppy-dog, three days old, when you adopt him? First thing, he must be supplied with nursing bottles, the rubber tip must be the tinlest ever; he must be bathed and rubbed dry every day; his dear little cold nose must be rubbed with alcohol; he must have a clean flannel blanket and a warm bed in which he is put to sleep. When he is nursing, he will miss the nice, pliable, warm body of his mother; he will not consider a glass bottle a favorable substitute at all, and your hands will be clawed and scratched as you try to perform the office of mother to the little furry ball.

Bobby looked like the picture of a baby seal; he had such a beautiful body, covered all over with a reddish brown hair, which lay in one wave after the other. His head looked too large, all out of proportion to the body.

As soon as the cow was milked, two quarts were put aside for Bobby. Perhaps that was why he grew so much flesh, or, rather, fat. At two months, his body was so heavy the legs could not support it, and the toes almost met. Splints were suggested; "a surgical operation," said another, but the adopted mother and Go-between felt sure it was the rich cream and milk making so much flesh that his frail baby legs could not support the burden, and it was. Once he stopped living on milk, his body changed size, and his legs straightened out.

The only thing I have neglected to tell you is this: Twice a night, someone very sleepy had to get up and feed a howling baby dog. No, that part was not fun, but we loved the child.

I cannot here tell you how he grew to be a beautiful, full-grown Irish setter dog. His devotion to the family seemed almost human and when almost every dog in the neighborhood died as a result of poisoned food, Bobby escaped, because he would eat nothing, save from the hand of his foster-mother.

He was afraid of one thing, and that was the steam-cars; the shriek of a locomotive almost drove him mad. I wonder did Bobby feel what the future held in store for him?

Well, he had to be taken to the seashore, so after a terrible experience during a journey, where he had to be held every moment, Go-between's father said, "We must teach him not to be afraid of a steam-engine."

His education began immediately; every day he was taken over to the station and kept there until two or three trains pulled in and out. Before the summer was over, he became so familiar with the great black monster, snorting on the tracks, that he would frolic with the old thing, and once he was found playing a running game with it.

He was told that that was a dangerous pastime, but he could not understand how anything could hurt him that he was so familiar with.

Every day when Go-between took her surf bath in the ocean, Bobby went down to the beach with her, and if he thought she was out too far, his anxiety was pitiful to behold.

Go-between came home one day without the dog. "He has disappeared." All the rest of the day search was made for him; about eight o'clock in the evening, someone asked, "Have you been down to the beach, he may be waiting for you there?"

It was a new idea, but the father and Go-between rushed to the beach and there stood Bobby, mournfully watching the waves, as they rolled in, one overlapping the other. He had gone without luncheon and dinner and doubtless would have remained there all night, had the beloved voice of his little mistress not called him home.

Coming home, he behaved beautifully, but the lesson of the summer had taken root. Later it was discovered that he would quietly walk off for a little outing, and soon Go-between discovered that he was continuing his education all alone, and his innocent little jaunts carried him to the depot.

When he tried his next racing game, the engine won out. They brought Bobby back home to be buried.

Now, my morai. At first he was terribly afraid of that black monster that proved his death. Next he learned to look at it without fear, then he argued it was harmless. "I can run as fast as it." Alas! It overtook him the next time he tried it, and the thing he thought he could play with became his death.

My little ones, please do not learn to look at, do not cease to fear, do not play with anything that may mean your undoing. Remember Bobby.—From the Weekly Witness.

SUPPOSE YOU HAVE A FIRE TO-NIGHT?
GET SOLID PROTECTION AND INSURE WITH
LEON IRWIN & CO.
FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.
736 Union Street. Phone, Main 586.

THE SAFEST AND QUICKEST WAY
—TO—
TRANSFER MONEY
—IS BY—
Long Distance Telephone
FOR RATES APPLY TO LOCAL MANAGER,
Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co
INCORPORATED

THE GO-BETWEEN
whether it be a Burn, Bruise or Scald—
DR. TICHENOR'S ANTISEPTIC
affords instant relief. Its cooling effect prevents congestion and the antiseptic qualities prevent swelling, blistering and superation afterwards.
"It draws the fever"—you cannot afford to be without it at home.
All druggists 25 and 50 cts.
ASK ANY ONE WHO HAS EVER USED IT.

Christian Advocate.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.
CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.
OFFICE: 512 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

TERMS:
One Copy, one year, $1.50; eight months, $1.00. To preachers of all Denominations, $1.00.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE
Louisiana Conference—Rev. N. E. Joyner, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake.
Mississippi Conference—Rev. I. W. Cooper, D.D., Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. D. Ellis.
North Mississippi Conference—Rev. J. T. Murrah, Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. H. S. Spragins.

Editorial.

THE NOBLEST GIVING.

We live in an age of large philanthropy. Never was there a time in the history of the world when so much money was given for charitable, educational and religious work. The streams of benevolence seem unceasing in their flow, and they are beginning to reach even the most isolated and benighted lands of earth. This is a cause for gratulation and thanksgiving. Wealth, rightly used, is a mighty power for good. It can do much to alleviate the physical sufferings of mankind, to equip men and women to fulfill worthily their mission in life, and to speed the race upon its march of progress. Money can establish and endow institutions of learning, and who can measure the circle of their influence? How much does England owe to Oxford and Cambridge, or the United States to Harvard and Yale? They have contributed more than armies and navies to the national prosperity and greatness. They have been more truly seats and sources of power than legislative halls or the thrones upon which monarchs sit.

And money plays an important part even in the evangelization of the world. The Church must have adequate means to provide forces and maintain them if she is to go forward with her task of discipling the nations. Though vastly larger than in any former period of her existence, her resources are yet far too meager to enable her to measure up to the magnificent opportunities which now lie out before her. Open doors greet her vision everywhere, which, because of a lack of funds, she is not able to enter. There must yet be increased liberality among the followers of Christ before the Master's kingdom can be extended as it should.

Nor should it be hastily concluded that because our gifts in the aggregate amount to more than those of former generations that we are really more generous than they. We are richer in things material than those who went before us. Wealth is comparatively modern. A half century ago there was scarcely a millionaire in the United States; now they are numbered by the scores. The Christians in this twentieth century are by no means reaching the old Jewish standard of giving a tenth. Paul's exhortation to the Corinthians has not yet ceased to be pertinent and applicable: "But as ye abound in everything—in faith, and utterance, and knowledge, and in all earnestness, and in your love to us, see that ye abound in this grace also." The obligation to honor God with his substance rests upon every man. To contribute to his cause is not only a duty, but also a privilege and a means of grace. None can shirk it without suffering loss in the spiritual life.

But potent as money is to accomplish good, it is far from being the best or greatest gift. Millionaires, much as many of them deserve to be praised for the use made of their wealth, are by no means the world's largest benefactors. Inventors, unselfishly devoting their thoughts and lives to devising methods of lessening human toil and lightening the burdens of the race, have done more to bless mankind than mere dispensers of treasured gold can ever hope to do. Who can compute the debt that the world owes to those who discovered and utilized the forces of steam, electricity and magnetism? Who can measure out the reward due those who have spent their years in seeking to learn how to conquer diseases, that they might protect humanity from their insidious and destructive attacks? And the men who have sought to widen the intellectual horizon of the masses—students, teachers, and authors—how nobly they have wrought, and how far-reaching has been their influence! How Shakespeare, Dickens, Thackeray, Hugo, Tennyson, and countless others whose names are household words in all lands have instructed and enriched the nations! And most lasting and valuable of all has been the service rendered by those who have quickened the faith of men and brought them into a fuller realization of their responsibility to God and obligation to humanity. None who have ever lived upon our planet, except our Lord himself, have done more to lift it upward toward the light than Moses, Paul, Luther, Wesley, and others whose names we might mention.

The truth is, no man is capacitated to live worthily until he recognizes himself a debtor to his fellow-creatures. We are here "not to be ministered unto, but to minister"—not to get, but to give. And let us not restrict the idea of giving merely to money and material things. To be sure, we need to give the Lord the tithes which are his, and we should help the poor and needy in a financial way; but these duties are by no means all that we need do. We should lay ourselves out to make the world brighter and better. All the talents that we possess should be addressed to the accomplishment of this end. We should give to the struggling ones about us faith, hope, love, and help and support of every kind in our power. To the cripple at the temple gate, who asked for alms, Peter said, "Silver and gold have I none, but such as I have, give I unto thee," and at his touch the lame man stood erect and walked. We may not have fortunes to launch benevolent enterprises, but we can help the morally weak and impotent to rise and live a better life. Such as we have let us freely give.

"One smile can glorify a day,
One word true hope impart;
The least disciple need not say,
There are no alms to give away,
If love be in the heart."

Every Christian may offer Christ in all his richness and fullness to others, and no other possession in time or in eternity is comparable to him. He is God's "unspeakable gift," whose value no tongue can declare.

THINKS THE GROUND SUFFICIENT.

We quote without comment the following from the pen of our brilliant brother-editor, Dr. E. G. B. Mann, of the Central Methodist Advocate: "Mrs. Ada Ruddy, of New York, has brought suit for divorce from her husband, Professor Hans Christian Ruddy, of the College of the City of New York, on the grounds of inhuman treatment, a part of which, she states, consists of reading his poems to her! Let us urge that they grant her her divorce at once. To be held up by any one who has an original poem to read you is ground for divorce or any other action allowed in the books of the law!"

AN EXCHANGE OF CONFERENCES.

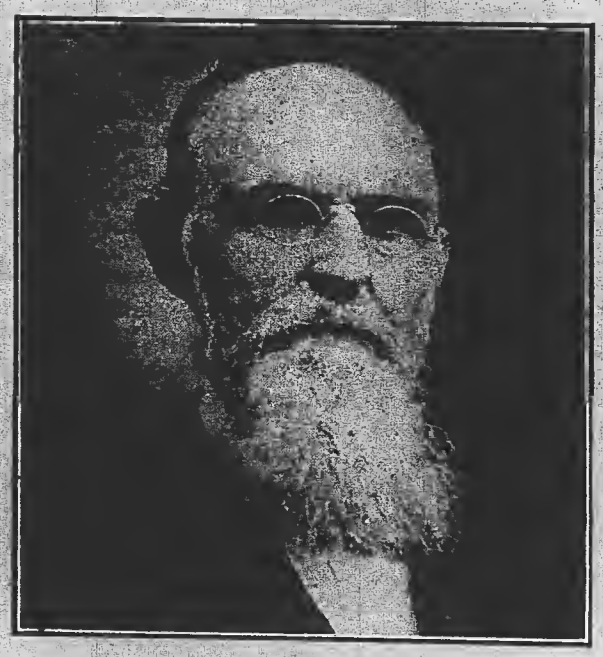
From the Midland Methodist of July 12 we take the following, which we assume to be correct, although we have had no official notification to that effect: "Bishop Kilgo will hold the Holston and Tennessee Conferences, and Bishop Candler the Kentucky and Mississipi Conferences. The date of the Holston Conference is changed to October 4, and that of the Tennessee Conference to October 11." We are wholly uninformed as to what has brought about this rearrangement.

This will be Bishop Candler's first visit to the Mississippi Conference, and he will be accorded an enthusastic reception by the members of that body, many of whom know and greatly admire him. As a preacher and administrator, our distinguished Georgia chief pastor has no superior. He has not only a great head, but also a tender heart. He is loyal to the teachings and institutions of Methodism, and sound in the Christian faith. Never is there an uncertain note in any of his pulpit or platform messages. All the interests of the Church and kingdom are safe in his hands, and any Conference may count itself fortunate to have his presidency and ministrations.

LAID TO REST.

The remains of the late Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan, who died at his home near Millsaps College, Tuesday afternoon, July 11, were laid to rest in the Cedar Lawn Cemetery at Jackson, Miss., on the morning following, the obsequies being conducted by Bishop W. B. Murrah and Dr. A. F. Smith. The following acted as pall bearers: Prof. R. S. Rickets, President D. C. Hull, Mr. J. C. Cavett, Mr. J. R. Slack, Mr. J. H. Frazier, Mr. R. P. Moore, and Mr. J. P. Lowther.

In the decease of this honored veteran, the North Mississippi Conference has lost its most beloved and widely known member. For more than half a century he had gone in and out among his brethren, and there was not one among them who did not have in him the utmost confidence, and who did not entertain for him a feeling of genuine esteem and affection. In every charge which he served during his long and useful career in the itinerancy, Dr. Sullivan won his way into the hearts of the people, and when commissioned to go elsewhere, invariably left behind a host of friends who never ceased to hold him in loving remembrance. The news of his departure touched thousands of hearts with sorrow, and gave to a vast company a sense of impoverishment and loneliness.



The Late Rev. W. T. J. Sullivan, D.D.

Viewed from any standpoint, Dr. Sullivan was an uncommon man. His intellectual endowments were of a high order, his education was thorough, accurate, and comprehensive, and he was to the end of his life a painstaking and progressive student. The Church has had few men of wider information than he. Graduating with honors at the University of Mississippi in 1857, he began the work of the ministry well equipped, and, by his assiduous application, soon grew to be a man of remarkable strength in the pulpit. His clear, analytical, and discriminating mind enabled him to present the truth in a manner most impressive and convincing. Though not endowed with a gift for popular oratory, he was in many respects a truly great preacher. It was his habit to prepare his sermons carefully, and he never carried unbeaten oil into the sanctuary. He kept companionship with his Greek Testament, and was a luminous expositor of the precious Word.

As an educator Dr. Sullivan also rendered distinguished service. In his early life he was called to the presidency of Edward McGehee College; later he taught in Soule College; was for four years at the head of Central Female College at Lexington, Missouri, and was for a time a professor in the A. and M. College at Starkville. It was, however, in the ranks of the itinerant ministry that his years were chiefly spent. He filled with marked acceptability nearly all of the leading appointments of the North Mississippi Conference, and served several terms in the presiding eldership with notable success. He was elected to the General Conferences of 1890, 1894, 1898, and 1902, and was for more than twenty years a member of the Publishing Committee of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, in which he never ceased to manifest a deep interest. He was a Mason of high standing, and was for a while honored with the chaplaincy of the Grand Lodge of Mississippi.

In this brief notice we cannot discuss the character or write specifically of the work of our ascended friend. A more extended account of his life and labors, written by some one who knew him long and intimately, will be published later. Many doubtless will feel disposed to bear testimony to his worth and lay a flower upon his grave. Well may we cherish the memory of his shining virtues and kindly deeds. A rarer and more majestic man we have never known. No one could meet him without being impressed with his saintliness. Pure in heart, he lived in daily communion with his Lord. He dwelt upon the heights, far above the base and low. Neither in word or action, or thought did he wrong any hnman being. Christlike in heart and bearing, to know him was to love him. Gentle in manner as a refined woman, he yet was firm and inflexible in purpose. Nothing could make him waver in his loyalty to Christ or swerve him from his convictions. Though gracious, kind, courteous and obliging, no reed shaken by the wind was he. He was a voice—not an echo—and fearlessly proclaimed what he conceived to be the truth. Never did he shirk a duty, or evade an issue, or betray a trust. Having wrought worthily and left behind a long and unsullied record, having served his day and generation well, he has passed into the Master's presence, where we doubt not he received the plaudit accorded the faithful and found awaiting him a rich reward. Not soon shall we look upon his like again.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. Hilary Westbrook has just closed a successful meeting at Hopewell, Miss. He was assisted by Rev. W. W. Hopper, of Waynesboro.

Mrs. Harry Critz and Miss Laura Critz, of Starkville, Miss., are visiting the parents of the former, Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Ferguson, of this city.

The editor has been far from well for the past few days. This will explain the lack of fulness in some departments in this number of the Advocate.

Rev. W. W. Holmes, the accomplished pastor of the Felicity Street Church, this city, has announced that hereafter during the hot season his evening services will be conducted in the open air.

Rev. H. W. Ledbetter, of Colfax, La., and Rev. W. J. Dawson, of Morton, Miss., have recently brought us under obligation for service rendered the Advocate. We assure these brethren of our hearty appreciation.

Rev. S. J. McClean, pastor of the Port Vincent Circuit, Louisiana Conference, and Miss Agnes Stephens were united in marriage on June 28, Rev. J. B. Fulton officiating. The Advocate extends congratulations and best wishes.

Rev. R. O. Weir, of Donaldsonville, passed through the city last Monday, en route home from the Seashore Camp Meeting, and favored the Advocate office with a call. He was looking well and spoke in terms of appreciation of the sermons which he heard at the Camp Ground.

In a recent note to the editor, Rev. A. S. Raper, of Taylor, Miss., says: "We are getting along fairly well. I have a good people to serve, and one of the best prayer meetings in North Mississippi." We are gratified to hear of the success of our worthy young friend.

We were delighted to have a visit from Rev. A. S Lutz, of Homer, La., a few days since. After attending the Divinity School, Brother Lutz tarried for a time with friends in New Orleans before returning to his parish. Genial, affable, and brotherly, he is a welcome guest in any circle.

Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Decell, of Osyka, have recently been visiting their parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Decell, of Wesson, Miss. Brother Decell is a most enthusiastic worker, and is in high favor with his flock. He attended the late session of the Seashore Divinity School, and was much pleased with it.

Rev. William Mercer Green, Dean of the All Saints' College, of Vicksburg, has been called to the pastorate of St. Andrews Episcopal Church, of Jackson, Miss., lately made vacant by the resignation of Rev. Halsey Werlein, Jr. Mr. Green is a grandson of the late Bishop Green, of the Diocese of Mississippi.

We are informed that Whitworth College has purchased seventeen new practicing pianos, three new teachers' pianos, and two Knabe grands. There will not be an old piano in the college. This institution furnishes a course in music unsurpassed anywhere in the South.

The Cockrum charge, North Mississippi Conference, under the energetic superintendence of Rev. R. I. Collins, is having a year of prosperity. Children's Day has been observed at three points, and will be celebrated at two others. Brother Collins began his round of protracted meetings last Sunday.

Rev. J. C. Park, of Oxford, Miss., has been chosen vice-president of the Seashore Divinity School. During the recent session of this School, Brother Park occupied the pulpit at an important hour, and delivered a discourse which made a profound impression. He easily ranks as one of the first preachers of his Conference.

Rev. and Mrs. J. L. Futrell, of Berkeley, Cal., are visiting the family of Mr. W. O. Page, at Starkville, Miss. Brother Futrell was for a number of years a prominent member of the North Mississippi Conference. He transferred to the West more than a score of years ago, and has there rendered notably efficient service in the Master's cause.

Rev. D. L. Cogdell, of Belzoni, Miss., attended the Seashore Camp Meeting last week. He conducted the prayer service one morning, and made himself useful generally, as it is his habit to do wherever he goes. While on the coast he also visited the Soldiers' Home at Beauvoir, where he met a number of his war comrades who gave him a most cordial greeting.

The Bluff Creek Camp Meeting will begin Friday, Aug. 4, and continue ten days. All ministers are invited and will be provided for free of charge. Bluff Creek Camp Ground is in a healthful locality, situated among the pine hills, ten miles south of Clinton. Plenty of pure water and reasonable hotel rates. For further information, address Oredus E. Townsend, chairman of committee, Olive Branch, La.

A joint meeting of the Louisiana Conference Board of Education and the Trustees of Mansfield College is being held in Mansfield to-day. Dr. Stonewall Anderson, secretary of the General Board of Education, was also expected to be present. We sincerely hope that this conference will result in the formulation of some plan that will bring needed relief to the institution in whose interest it has been called.

A card from Rev. Paul D. Hardin, bearing date of the 17th inst., contains the following sad announcement: "Little Linda, the nineteen months' old daughter of Rev. J. E. Williams, our pastor at Mendenhall, died this afternoon after a week's illness. The funeral will be held here to-morrow, conducted by the writer and Rev. Loyd Decell. Let the brethren remember Brother and Sister Williams in their prayers."

Through his pastor, Rev. R. I. Collins, of Cockrum, Miss., Brother H. A. Jones, of Wagon Wheel Gap, Col., has forwarded us his subscription to the Advocate and enclosed enough money to send the paper to some other person not able to take it. Brother Jones lives where there is no Methodist Church, and hence has left his membership in Mississippi. He is a graduate of Millsaps College, and feels a deep interest in the work throughout the connection.

We call attention to the notice concerning the condition of our worthy brother, Rev. J. P. Haney, which appears in this issue above the signature of Rev. C. C. Miller, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District. This deals with a matter of great importance, which should have immediate consideration. Let assistance be given this faithful itinerant at once. We feel sure that the brethren will count it a pleasnre to respond to this call.

On the 13th day of next September Port Gibson Female College will enter upon its 72d session. Much interesting history clusters around this time-honored institution. Here Irving Russell's mother once taught, and here the parents of the distinguished author were married. And when the battle of Port Gibson was fought, the college chapel became an improvised hospital, and was filled with the wounded. The outlook for this school under the presidency of Rev. Henry G. Hawkins is very bright.

The Jackson Daily News reports that the Gideons have placed Bibles in the hotels of the following Mississippi towns: Amory, Aberdeen, Booneville, Baldwyn, Brooksville, Centreville, Columbus, Corinth, Guntown, Gloster, Gunnison, Greenville, Grenada, Greenwood, Holly Springs, Jackson, Nettleton, Pontotoc, Tupelo, Water Valley, and Shelbyville. Copies enough for one to be left in each room have been furnished. Up to the present only one hotel has refused to allow the Bibles to be placed in it, and that is located in Jackson.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fletcher Hill, of Nashville, Tenn., have issued invitations to the marriage of their daughter, Miss Nan Paschal, to Mr. Thomas Leachman Boswell, which will take place at their residence at 1106 Boscobel Street, on Wednesday evening, July 28. The groom is the youngest son of Dr. J. W. Boswell, formerly editor of the New Orleans Advocate.

The Seashore Camp Meeting, in spite of the inclement weather, has been an occasion of considerable interest. The attendance on the week days has not been large, but we are informed that a great throng was present last Sunday. The preaching by Drs. Hendrix, McFerrin, and Rowe has been of a most superior quality. Their messages have been fresh and stimulating, and we do not doubt that many have been helped and lifted to a higher plane of spirituality by them. It was our pleasure to be present a part of two days last week, and we greatly enjoyed both the preaching and our association with the brethren. We do not concur in the view, now sometimes expressed, that the time for such gatherings has past.

Bisop W. B. Murrah occupied the pulpit of the First Methodist Church last Sunday at 11 o'clock, and was greeted by a large audience who eagerly availed themselves of the opportunity to hear the Bishop's last message before his start for the Orient. He and Mrs. Murrah will sail from San Francisco on the steamer Manchuria on Aug. 2. They will be accompanied on the trip by Prof. Frank H. Williams, a son of Rev. W. M. Williams, superintendent of the Mississippi Methodist Orphanage, who is going to Canton, China, to accept a position in one of the American colelges at that place, which he has contracted to fill for three years. Mr. Williams is a Millsaps graduate of the class of 1910. He taught last year in Lincoln County.

We greatly regret to chronicle the death of Mr. W. L. Young, which occurred at his home at Lexington, Miss., on Monday, July 10. Mr. Young was in his early years a faithful and successful teacher in the public schools, but later became a prominent and prosperous banker. He was for a number of years at the head of the Bank of Lexington, and at the time of his decease was president of the Bank of Commerce. He was a Confederate soldier, and a public-spirited citizen who was esteemed by all who knew him. He was one of the leading members of our Church in Lexington, and his character and life were above reproach. He will be greatly missed in the business, social, and religious circles of the community with which he had been so long identified. We extend sympathy to the bereaved, and pray that God may graciously comfort and sustain them.

Writing under date of July 14, Rev. J. M. Morse, pastor of the Capitol Street Methodist Church, of Jackson, Miss., says: "The work on our new church is progressing nicely. The brick work is about completed, and we will commence to put the slate roof on next week. We hope to be able to occupy the building by the first of next November. Fifty-eight have joined the church during the present year. The stewards raised the pastor's salary from $1,500 to $1,800, and the congregation is paying $150 of it every month. There are no better people in the State than the Capitol Street Methodists. We have in our flock those two princely laymen, I. C. and J. L. Enochs, one of whom is president of the Board of Stewards, and the other is Sunday school superintendent. These two men are duplicating every dollar that the church raises for the new building. Our people are responding nobly to the demands made upon them. Peace and harmony prevail.'

NOTICE.

Dear Brethren of the Louisiana Conference: Brother J. P. Haney, pastor of the East Feliciana Circuit, has been sick all the year and confined to his bed since Jan. 28. Death has twice entered his home, taking his devoted wife and a precious babe. His expenses, incident to his sickness and misfortune, have exceeded his receipts from all sources by an amount equal to $400.

Brother Haney has been a faithful itinerant preacher for twenty years. His courage and faith during the trying ordeals through which he has passed, and is passing, are a living monument to the Methodist itinerancy.

Any amounts contributed by congregations will be acknowledged through the Advocate. If there are laymen in the bounds of the Conference who have enough and to spare, they can remit and will receive personal thanks. Send all contributions directly to Miss Bertie Haney, Clinton, La.

Brother Haney requests me to thank the members of the District Conference and the good people of Frankiinton for their contributions.

C. C. MILLER, Presiding Elder.

DR. H. B. BARTLETT
National Dental Parlors
Cor. Canal & Camp Sts.
ENTRANCE 106 CAMP
Phone Main 2193
NEW ORLEANS
Vitalized Air for Painless Extraction
Crown and Bridge Specialist.
The Largest and Best Equipped Dental Parlors South.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

The subject of this sketch, Mrs. C. TAULBERT, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. I. Covington, was born Dec. 7, 1896, in St. Helena Parish, La., and died Friday morning, June 16, 1911, at her home in East Feliciana Parish, La., ten miles east of Clinton. Her remains were laid to rest in the Clear Creek Cemetery. The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Mr. Woodson, of Clinton. She was married to P. R. Taulbert, in Liberty, Miss., May 12, 1910. She was a loving daughter and sister, and a faithful wife, and will be missed by all who knew her. On her dying bed she said, "They have come after me," and passed away to be with her Maker. May God comfort the sorrowing ones, and help them press on until they shall find themselves a re-united family around the Father's throne.

H. G. GATLIN.

Mrs. IRENE GOODE, wife of Dr. Dabney Phillips, and daughter of Augustus J. and Mrs. Elizabeth Coleman, was born at Memphis, Ala., Sept. 22, 1864, and died June 25, 1911. Mrs. Phillips was a true Christian and was ready to go when the summons came. She gave her heart to God and joined the Methodist Church when sixteen years old, and ever afterwards walked in the "straight and narrow path that leads to life." Being well qualified for the task she always presided at the organ in all the church services, which was a guarantee of good music. Her home life was beautiful, patient, cheerful and optimistic, always supporting every member of the family with her strength of character. The Christian graces shone out in all their beauty during her last illness which lasted for three months, and amid all her suffering, which was great, she never complained, but had a smile for all who came into the room. On Dec. 15, 1886, she was happily married to Dr. Dabney Phillips, oldest son of Rev. B. P. Phillips, of the North Mississippi Conference. There are four children left to mourn their loss—three daughters and a bright, promising son who has just been graduated from a medical college in Nashville, Tenn. The earnest prayers of her friends will go up in behalf of these four children and sorrowing husband, for whom her love knew no bounds. She is at peace. May God's Holy Spirit comfort and sustain the bereaved and bring them at last to a happy reunion in their Father's house!

S. A. BROWN.

Mrs. ALMA FISHER BLOCKSOM, the subject of this sketch, was born Jan. 28, 1883. She was married to Mr. T. C. Blocksom, June 28, 1903. My first acquaintance with Sister Blocksom was three years ago, when as her pastor we visited her home. Her beautiful life and amiable disposition had so impressed her friends and neighbors, that through them we had heard much of her life of devotion to God and her home. We were, therefore, prepared to meet just the person we found her to be—intelligent, quiet, unassuming, appreciating fully the responsibilities that devolved upon her as wife, mother, and Christian. For several years Sister Blocksom had not been in good health. She was at times a great, but patient sufferer, showing in her life the power of God's assurance, "My grace is sufficient." We do not know when Sister Blocksom joined the Church, but some time in early life. Her life was such as not to make it necessary for the pastor to ask, "Are you a member of the church?" Owing to the continued illness in the home, she was deprived of the privilege of regular attendance at church, yet often in the face of difficulties known only by a few, she was found at her place in the Lord's house. Her last illness was of short duration, but her suffering was very great. Some two or three days before the end came she was perfectly blind, but her spiritual vision was clear, and she would often exclaim, "How beautiful!" Conscious of the beckoning hand of God calling her to her reward, she spoke often of her going, regretting only to leave the loved ones. On the morning of June 28, she quietly passed away, leaving four small children, a broken-hearted husband, several brothers and sisters and a host of friends to mourn their great loss. One of the precious little ones has since gone to join the mother in heaven. May God graciously bless the loved ones!

C. M. CROSSLY.

SAMUEL ELI McNULTY was born in Pike County, Miss., Sept. 12, 1832, near Topisaw Camp Ground. He moved to the Auburn community, near Adams Camp Ground, in 1854. Dec. 30, 1858, he was married to Miss Sarah E. Ellzey. Their union was blessed with eight children. Five daughters and the wife survive him. He joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Adams Camp Ground in 1859, under the pastorate of Rev. E. R. Strickland. He was a steward in the church for a number of years, and president of the board of trustees at the time of his death. He spent four years in the war, fighting in quite a number of important and hard battles. He received a serious wound in one battle, from which he suffered more or less the balance of his life. He was a true, good man. His church was first in everything. He was his pastor's friend, and only expected him to make his needs known. He was conscious of the presence of the Lord at all times, and his delight was in doing his will. One only had to be in his presence a short time until he was thoroughly convinced of his constant fellowship with the Father. He loved to tell how good God had been to him. He often told about the battle he fought when seeking the Lord. He never received the witness of the Spirit until he agreed to take up family prayer. This he kept up as long as he was able to read and get down on his knees. The Lord give us a host of men like him! On the morning of Dec. 11, 1910, after several weeks of suffering, he quietly and peacefully fell asleep in the arms of Jesus. His body was laid away by the Masons, after a sermon by the pastor of Mars Hill Baptist Church (his pastor being away at Conference) in the Adams cemetery, Auburn, Miss. May the blessings of the most High be with the sorrowing loved ones and friends! His pastor,

JAS. V. BENNETT.

HIBERNIA INSURANCE CO.,
Capital.....$200,000.00
Assets..... 479,860.90
No. 305 Camp Street.. New Orleans, La
LOSSES PROMPTLY PAID.

Asheville, N. C.—In "The Land of the Sky" Is the Ideal Spot to Spend Your Vacation.

The Climate is superb, being 2,250 feet above the sea level, is high above humid, sultry and less favored sections—it is healthful, invigorating and strengthening. Asheville has the purest water and most beautiful scenery in the world. Hotel and boarding house accommodations are unsurpassed. Beautiful roads for motoring and driving, golf, tennis, bowling and every imaginable attraction for recreation and amusement. Biltmore House, the magnificent home of Mr. Geo. W. Vanderbilt, and the finest country estate in existence, is situated here and open to visitors three days each week. Asheville people are hospitable and you'll enjoy every minute you stay here. Make your arrangements to come to Asheville this summer—cheap rates from all points.

For Handsome Illustrated Booklet Describing Asheville, Write
Board of Trade,
Asheville, N. C.

Source of Asheville's Water Supply.

Sunburned
FACES, HANDS and
Arms will experience most gratifying relief in the cooling comfort that instantly follows the use of this pure, snow-white lotion,—
HINDS Honey and Almond CREAM
It will heal in 24 hours. A few applications will make the skin soft, smooth, clear and attractive. It will remove dust and other impurities from the pores, and prevent eruptions. It is not greasy nor harmful in the least, and is guaranteed not to grow hair. Best for babies' skin ailments.
There is only one genuine, original Hinds Honey and Almond Cream;—on the market for thirty-five years, and selling all over the world. Do not accept substitutes, for you'll be disappointed.—In bottles at 50 cents. All dealers sell it.
FREE—Trial Bottle mailed free by A. S. HINDS, 72 West St., Portland, Me.

THE BIGGS SANITARIUM,
ASHEVILLE, N. C.
Dyspepsia, rheumatism, paralysis, neurasthenia and other chronic diseases cured. No tubercular cases accepted. Complete equipment; all modern methods; hundreds remarkable cures; personal care and attention; ideal climate; delightful mountain scenery. Twelfth year. Liberal guarantee of satisfaction. Endorsed by hundreds of best people in the South. Comfortable rooms, electric light, steam heat, moderate charges.
References, testimonials and diagnosis blank free.

ESTEY CHURCH ORGANS.
The ESTEY is the world's best Organ. The KOHLER & CAMPBELL PIANO is in every particular first class; satisfaction guaranteed in every case; freight paid; low cash price on easy payments without interest. Write for Catalogues.
J. H. BASS, Pastor Meth't Ch'ch.
Brookville, Miss.

GINSENG RAISING is the surest way to make big money on little capital. One acre yields thousands of dollars a year. Sells for $6 to $7.50 lb. Will buy all you raise. Easily grown anywhere. Requires your spare time only. Could you realize how rapidly you can make money honestly, you'd write me today. T. H. Sutton, 406 Sherwood Ave., Louisville, Ky.

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days, usually gives entire relief 15 to 45 days and effects cure 30 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box X, ATLANTA, GA.

WILBUR R. SMITH BUSINESS COLLEGE
Medal awarded Prof. Smith at the World's Fair. SUMMER SESSION
Bookkeeping and Business, Shorthand, Typewriting and Telegraphy taught. Notes received. Situations—10,000 graduates in business. Begin now. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, Lexington, Ky.

EDWARDS, MISS.

I have not written to the Advocate in quite a while, but at this time there are some things that I want to say in regard to Edwards. This is the second year of our labors here, and I want to express to them my appreciation of their kindness during these two years. Our second quarterly conference was held some weeks ago, but on account of illness the presiding elder was not present, but was ably represented by Dr. A. F. Smith, of Jackson. This conference found a good report from the stewards—everything being reported up in full for the preacher and presiding elder. We believe that substantial gain is being made. Our people are prospering in spiritual things, and seem determined to do more for God than has been done before. Because of sickness in my family, my wife having been in the sanitarium, I have not been able to do a great deal of work, but my people have remained true and faithful to the preacher and to the Church. It is impossible for any one to be better cared for than we have been during the illness of my wife. I pray that each one of those who have helped in any way during her protracted illness may be recompensed from the Lord, who withholdeth no good thing.—Geo. P. McKeown, P. C.

HOLLYWOOD, MISS.

We have just closed a good meeting at Hollywood. Brother L. A. McKeown came on Monday night before the second Sunday and preached five days and nights. On Friday night we received seven into the church on profession of faith, the most of them heads of families. On Sunday at 11 a. m., our presiding elder, Rev. W. W. Woollard, dedicated our beautiful new church, preaching the best dedication sermon I have ever heard, and three more joined the church.—J. W. Honnoll, P. C.

READ THIS SLOWLY, AND THINK.

Does my life please God?

Am I studying my Bible daily?

Am I enjoying my Christian life?

Have I ever won a soul to Christ?

Is there any one I cannot forgive?

How much time do I spend in prayer?

Am I trying to bring my friends to Christ?

Just where am I making my greatest mistake?

Am I doing anything I would condemn in others?

Have I ever had a direct answer to prayer?

Is there anything I cannot give up for Christ?

How does my life look to those who are not Christians?

Is the world being made better or worse by my living in it?

Have I ever tried giving one-tenth of my income to the Lord?—The Canadian Churchman.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Monroe Dist.—Third Round.

Bastrop, at Humphries Chapel	July 22, 23
Farmerville	July 29, 30
Waterproof, at Wesley	Aug. 5, 6
Gilbert, Holy Grove	Aug. 8
Bonita, at Jones	Aug. 12, 13
Lake Providence	Aug. 16
Delhi	Aug. 20, 21
Brooklyn	Aug. 23
Floyd	Aug. 26, 27
Downsville	Aug. 29, 30
Mangham, at Boueff River	Sept. 2, 3
Eros, at Indian Village	Sept. 6
Winnsboro, at Boueff Prairie	Sept. 9, 10
Rayville	Sept. 13
Fiorence	Sept. 17, 18
Merrouge	Sept. 20

District Conference will meet in Rayville, July 26, 10 a. m.

S. S. KEENER, P.E.

Baton Rouge Dist.—Third Round.

Baton Rouge, Second Ch., at Antioch	July 22, 23
Baton Rouge, First Ch.	July 23, 24
Baker, at Bethel	July 26
Clinton and J., at Concord	July 29, 30
Zachary, at Ethel	July 30, 31
Denham Springs, at Alford's	Aug. 2
Tickfaw, at Red Oak	Aug. 4
Ponchatoula, at Sp'gfield	Aug. 5, 6
Amite City	Aug. 6, 7
E. Feliciana, at Camp G.	Aug. 12
Frankiinton, at F.	Aug. 16
Mt. Hermon, at Augie	Aug. 19, 20
Bogalusa	Aug. 20, 21
Wilson, at Manassas	Aug. 26, 27
St. Helena, at Pine R.	Sept. 2, 3
Kentwood	Sept. 3, 4
P. Grove, at Pipkin's	Sept. 6
Port Vincent, at Mauripas	Sept. 9, 10
St. Francisville, at Tunica	Sept. 16, 17
N. Roads, at Morganza	Sept. 23, 24

C. C. MILLER, P. E.

LaFayette District—Third Round.

St. Martinsville	July 21
Lake Arthur	July 22, 23
Bell City	July 24
Eunice	July 29, 30
Lake Charles	Aug. 5, 6
Sulphur	Aug. 6, 7

J. E. DENSON, P. E.

Ruston District—Third Round.

Bernice, at Summerfield	July 29
Gibbsland, at Mt. Moriah	July 29, 30
Jonesboro, at Jonesboro	Aug. 5, 6
Ringgold, Grand Bayou	Aug. 12, 13
Simsboro, at Antioch	Aug. 16
Beinville, at Bear Creek	Aug. 19, 20
Boyd Mission, at Chestnut	Aug. 21
Arcadia	Aug. 26, 27
Ruston	Aug. 27, 28
Lanesville, at Brushwood	Sept. 2, 3
Lisbon, at New Hope	Sept. 9, 10
Houghton, at Doiline	Sept. 16, 17
Cotton Valley, Pleas. Val.	Sept. 23, 24
Minden	Sept. 24, 25

R. W. TUCKER, P. E.

Alexandria District—Third Round.

Natchitoches at N.	July 23, 24
Oakdaie and Fullerton, at Spring Hill	July 30, 31
Longville and Merryville, at Fields	August 5, 6
Harrisonburg, at Mt. Hermon	August 12, 13
Jena, at Jena	August 15, 16
Trout	August 17
Columbia, at Stanard	August 20, 21
Marksville, at Bay Hill	August 23, 24
Tioga, at Liberty Chapel	Aug. 27, 28
Alexandria	Sept. 1
Selma	Sept. 3, 4
Opelousas	Sept. 10, 11
Glenmora	Sept. 13
Colfax, at Atlanta	Sept. 17, 18
Melville, at Simmesport	Sept. 24, 25
Bunkie, at Cheneyville	Sept. 26

Special attention will be given to questions 18, 21, and 23.

PAUL M. BROWN, P. E.

SNOWDRIFT
HOGLESS LARD

"Pure as the Drifting Snow"

Snowdrift Hogless Lard marked the first great advance in purity of shortening and relief from hog lard and other unwholesome ingredients. It has many imitators fighting for your patronage, FIGHT SHY OF THEM ALL! Snowdrift is one-third less expensive than hog lard and goes one-third further and produces much finer results in cooking. ALWAYS use Snowdrift. Buy it in tins only. Avoid snow-FAKE labels.

Sold by all leading dealers who Avoid Substitution Trade.

Made by The Southern Cotton Oil Co., New York, Savannah, New Orleans, Chicago

LOUISIANA RAILWAY
(La. R'y & Nav. Co.)

—THE SHORT LINE BETWEEN—
Shreveport; Alexandria;
Baton Rouge; New Orleans.

THE COMFORTABLE ROUTE FOR PASSENGERS
QUICKEST ROUTE FOR FREIGHT

LESS THAN CARLOAD SHIPMENTS HAULED IN PACKAGE CARS IN THROUGH TRAINS.

L&N Louisville & Nashville R.R.

THE DIRECT LINE TO NORTH AND EAST
ELECTRIC LIGHTED STEEL SLEEPERS
DINING CARS, OBSERVATION CARS, CHAIR CARS

Phone M 4093. TICKET OFFICE 201 ST. CHARLES STREET.

Use the L. & A. Railway

When you travel go via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY, The Road That is Always on Time. FIRST-CLASS EQUIPMENT; Gravel Ballasted Track; 75 Pound Steel Rails; The Best of Service in Every Respect. Double Daily Passenger Service; Two Trains Each Way Daily.

OUR FREIGHT SERVICE IS UNEXCELLED.

When you order or ship freight if you want quick and satisfactory service, instruct your shipments routed via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY. Our motto is "EVER ON TIME."

F. W. GREEN, General Superintendent. Stamps, Ark.

E. S. ATKINSON, Gen. Frt. and Pass. Agt., Texarkana, Ark.

Death Lurks In A Weak Heart

If Yours is fluttering or weak, use "RENOVINE." Made by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn. Price $1.00

Epworth League Department.

(Edited by Rev. H. B. Watkins, Magnolia, Miss., to whom all communications intended for this Department should be addressed.)

THE DEVOTIONAL SERVICE.

Topic for July 30.

"AN UPWARD WAY."

II Peter i, 5-8; Heb. vi, 1.

The Revised Version reads: "Yea, and for this very cause add on your part all diligence." God has granted all things, and for that very reason we must be diligent; virtue must answer to glory, duty to grace. "In your faith supply virtue." "The Christian life is not a mere adding of qualities together, but a growth. Virtue is in faith, as the flower is in the seed; the complete fruit is love."

"Leaving * * * let us go on" (Heb. vi, 1). We are exhorted here to advance beyond the elementary stage of Christian doctrine, and "go on to perfection." This does not mean that we are to forget these doctrines, and turn away from them; but we are to leave them as the scholar leaves the letters of the alphabet—leave them only to use them. We are to leave them as the plant leaves the root, leaving it only that it may the more depend upon it. We are to leave them as the builder leaves the foundation, that he may carry up the building to the finish.

Diligence Necessary on our Part.

Some one has said: "It is not fit that heaven should take all the pains to bring earth to it; earth must do somewhat to bring itself to heaven." God has made bountiful provision for our salvation, for which we should all be profoundly thankful; yet thankfulness is not enough; there is matter of labor involved also. "He that expects a royalty in heaven must admit a service on earth." When God called each of us into his service he knew perfectly well what we were capable of doing, and unless we give him most diligent and faithful service we need not expect to hear him say at last, "Well done!"

The Christian's Additions.

Courage. "Add to your faith virtue." The young Epworthian has as much need of courage to-day as did the saints of old—courage to say "No." The world is no more a friend to grace to-day than it was two thousand years ago. If we trace things to their source, we will find that most of the failures in Christian lives spring, not from ignorance, but from cowardice. Pilate condemned a Savior of whose innocence he was conscious "because of the Jews." Many of the Pharisees "believed on him, but feared to confess him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue."

Knowledge. This virtue very properly follows the other. It teaches us that courage is a force which wisdom is to employ—practical knowledge, or knowledge applied to action.

Temperance. Christian temperance sets itself in opposition to the drunkard's bowl, and the glutton's banquet, and the revels of the profligate, and the anxious longings of the covetous, and against the immoderate desire of what is not ours, as well as against the undue and immoderate abuse of what is ours. It includes, thus considered, sobriety, chastity and moderation.

Patience. We need the virtue of patience in all our labors for Christ and the good of men. In working against evil we are prone either to irritation or to despondency. Our weak natures are annoyed by the opposition we encounter in a good cause. We need this patience under the afflictions and wrongs which we personally suffer. We need patience with respect to the fulfillment of God's plans of mercy for the world.

Godliness—that reverence toward God which is a spontaneous feeling of the heart in view of his character. Godliness is the opposite of godlessness. This virtue, as well as all the others, leads to "brotherly kindness," and "brotherly kindness" to "charity." To the mind of the apostle it was utterly absurd for any one to claim to love God and hate his brother. If we love God, we will love one another; and if we love one another, we will be kind and charitable toward all.

The Theme Illustrated.

Some one says that it is the impulse of perfection that gives the impulse to trade, and makes all the difference between success and failure, between eminence and stagnation. The bad tradesman sees nothing insufferable in imperfection, and thinks his customers unreasonable when they demand the best. "It will do," is his motto: "it will do" if the color almost matches, if the dress nearly fits, if the dropped stitch or the accidental flaw can scarcely be noticed. Such a workman cannot rise, will always be outstripped, and must come to want. Why? Because he has no instinct of perfection, and therefore he lacks the first requisite of attainment.

Low aim. "It is a low and unworthy strain in some to labor after no more grace than will keep life and soul together, that is, hell and soul asunder."—Trapp.

Forward. "Brave soldiers die with their faces to the foe. Looking back never conquered a city, nor achieved a work of art, nor wrote a book, nor amassed a fortune. The silent, inward cry of the world's great men has ever been: 'On, my soul, right on!'"—Nicol.—Pittsburg Advocate.

LOUISIANA LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

The Louisiana Epworth League Conference was held in Ruston, June 21-23, and much was accomplished that will further the work throughout the State.

The attendance was good from the northern part of the State and there were several delegations from the extreme southern cities.

The Ruston people, with such a pastor as Rev. W. H. Coleman is proving for them, would, and did make impressions that will last. When the afternoon train arrived, on which was the largest delegation (there being thirty-four), there were the Boy Scouts in uniform to take charge of the baggage, the Seniors in numbers to escort the delegates to the church where the Juniors stood in line on each side of the steps extending into the vestibule to greet us. Only a few minutes and the Scouts showed us to our conference homes.

The opening sermon was preached by Rev. H. R. Singleton, presiding elder of the Shreveport District, which was so full of inspiration and impetus that we were ready to say, "Success."

The devotional service each morning, which lasted one hour, was conducted by Rev. A. S. Lutz. Everyone felt the force of these sermons, so full of the spirit was he.

Dr. Fitzgerald S. Parker's presence meant more to us than can be expressed. His addresses were full of inspiration and information, and his counsel invaluable.

Rev. C. D. Atkinson, president of the Conference League Board, called the Board to meet during this Conference. It seemed that everything that was said or done was planned by inspiration and gave momentum.

Much information was gained from the addresses that can be of great value in the local chapter. The Conference pledged $50 toward the expense of a Junior Epworth League secretary for the Southern Church (when elected), this amount to be paid by the first of January.

The request of the Mission Board is that the Leagues finance the whole Cuban mission field, and pledges will be asked from the various chapters to be paid by June, 1912.

The reception given by the local Seniors at the parsonage was a most delightful occasion. The tennis game between Arcadia and Queensborough resulted in defeat for the latter.

On the last afternoon, the Conference, in a body, visited the Methodist Orphanage, which is a beautiful and well kept home for the dear little inmates.

The delegates of the Ruston District were called to meet, when Dr. F. S. Parker presided and organized their district.

We regret that more time had not been arranged for, and our stay made longer in Ruston, for more hospitable people are not to be found.

The officers elected are as followes: Rev. Hugh W. Jamieson, Shreveport, president; Mr. Robt. A. Steele, Ruston, vice-president; Mrs. Sudie J. Lingle, Shreveport, secretary; Miss Evelyn Price, Lake Charles, treasurer.

The district secretaries were appointed as follows: Mr. S. P. Peters, Shreveport, Shreveport District; Miss Evelyn Price, Lake Charles, Lafayette District; Miss Homie Webb, Athens, Ruston District; Mr. J. R. Stanley, Alexandria, Alexandria District; Miss Myrtle Langston, Bogalusa, Baton Rouge District; Mr. Shell Mer Rouge, Monroe District; Mr. Crawford, New Orleans, New Orleans District.

The next Conference will be held in Lake Charles.

The secretary was appointed delegate to the Seashore Assembly, July 20-30, with her expenses paid. There is great need of trained workers and no one could appreciate such an honor more that she, being anxious for such training.

(MRS.) SUDIE J. LINGLE,
Secretary.
1215 Oakland St., Shreveport, La.

Standard of Service for Organized Adult Bible Classes.

The Adult Bible Class department of the International Sunday School Association has formulated this standard of service.

Since adult classes are organized for service, we urge your class to adopt this definite program for 1911:

1. Increase the class membership fifty per cent by January 1, 1912, or secure an equivalent increase through the organization of other classes. For example, if your class now numbers sixty, thirty new members; or organize in your own or some other school a new class of thirty members; or organize two new classes of fifteen members each.

2. Bibles used in the class. (May be either class Bibles or individually owned Bibles).

3. A definite contribution to missions. (Either American or Foreign Missions. We are making special efforts to secure the support of the organized classes for the enlargement of our work among the immigrants, an admirable combination of Foreign Missions in the home land, and our newest and most distressing problem in America's Christianization).

4. Personal Evangelism. (Some actual personal work must be planned and carried out by the class as a whole or by a committee on personal evangelism.)

5. Some other definite Christian work in the community. (This should be very definite and be undertaken as class work, such as the maintenance of a mission Bible school, care of a needy family, conducting religious services in jails or hospitals.)

6. Representation in Teacher Training, Study Class, or Reading Course, with a view to larger service. (Some members of every adult class should be preparing themselves to become teachers; others should be in Mission Study Classes.)

Adopt this as your class goal for the year.

After much prayer, consultation and real meditation this standard of service has been given out to help these great adult classes to a higher, nobler, and more aggressive plan of work.

EDUCATIONAL.

SCIENCE HILL SCHOOL
SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY.
An English and Classical School for Girls. College Preparatory course with certificate privileges at Wellesley, Vassar, Smith, Leland Stanford, Randolph-Macon and other colleges. 86 years of successful work. College trained teachers. Superior advantages in music. MRS. W. T. POINTER, Principal.

TEXAS BERMUDA ONION FARMS
Located in Best Bermuda Onion District in Texas. PROFITS $200 to $600 per acre annually. WE RAISE the crop for SHARE of PROFITS. No PERSONAL ATTENTION nor EXPENSES required from YOU. Easy payments. WE PAID DIVIDENDS 1911 to UNIT HOLDERS. Dividends for You next season. Endorsed by local clergy and bankers. For particulars address, ZAVALA ONION FARMS CO., Gibbs Bldg., P. O. Box 836, SAN ANTONIO, Texas.

GEM CITY Business College
Quincy, Ill.
25 teachers, 1400 students, $100,000 School Building, Shorthand and Typewriting, Bookkeeping, etc. 68 page Illustrated Catalogue free.
D. L. MUSSELMAN, Pres't
Box 1-0, Quincy, Ill.

VANDERBILT University
1,000 Students 100 Teachers
Campus of 80 Acres
also
New Campus for Departments of Medicine and Dentistry
Expenses low. Literary course for graduates and undergraduates. Professional courses in Engineering, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Theology. Send for catalog, naming department. (1)
J. E. HART, Secretary, Nashville, Tenn.

FOR THE GIRL'S SAKE
As well as the Boy's send them to
RUSKIN-CAVE COLLEGE
"The School That Cares"
The college that is religious but non-sectarian. Does not tolerate tobacco, football or baseball. No loafing places, for the college owns the village, making the school the safest place for training men and women. Located in a HEALTH RESORT. Only 200 students accepted. Apply Early.
Write to-day for Free book "Character Talks" which tells all about it.
RUSKIN-CAVE COLLEGE,
Ruskin, Tenn.

MERIDIAN
MILITARY TRAINING
CHRISTIAN INFLUENCE
MALE COLLEGE
In the Health-giving Pine Hills of Mississippi. Beautiful campus and recreation grounds. Dignified, manly athletics encouraged. Brutal games, secret societies, tobacco, etc., prohibited. Preparatory, Collegiate, Theological and Commercial courses. Commercial School open all the year. Enter any time. An IDEAL HOME SCHOOL for your boy where he will receive thorough instruction, morally, mentally and physically. Write for Catalog No. 4
M. A. Bacon, D. Sc. Pres. Meridian, Miss.
Meridian Woman's College, a quarter mile distant, is an ideal place for your sister. Non-sectarian. Christian Influences. Operated in connection with the Meridian Male College.

Let Adler

The Organ Maker

Save You $48.75 Take Your Own Time To Pay

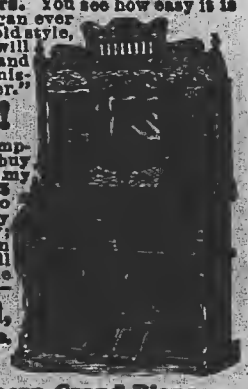
I Am Sweeping the Country Like Wildfire With My Direct-From-Factory, Free-Home-Trial Selling Plan. It Will Pay You To Read Every Word Below!

All Records Broken in the Most Stupendous Nation-wide Sale of Organs Ever Known—Competition Entirely Swept Away by My Wonderful Offer.

I am the man who made the "Adler" a household word; more than 75,000 of these famous organs are now in the homes of the people. You have been reading my big announcements, and the time has arrived—right this very day—for you to send for my Wonderful Free Organ Catalog. I want you to learn how you can have the World's Best Organ—winner of highest prize at the St. Louis World's Fair—sent right to your home for 30 day's Trial without paying a cent.

I can and will save you $48.75 because I sell direct from the $500,000 Adler Organ Factory (greatest in existence) at lowest wholesale factory prices. The Adler Plan thoroughly wrecks organ prices, absolutely sponging out all "in-between", extra, middlemen's profits you pay on other organs.

So simple, too, to buy an "Adler"! Just send for my Catalog. Select the Adler Organ you like best; then tell me. I will ship it at once. Have it a month free. Send no money until you decide to buy. Then pay me at your convenience in small amounts. I won't even charge you interest on your small monthly payments. At the end of a year, if the "Adler" fails to make good on every point I claim for it, I will refund every dollar you have paid with 6% interest. And more: I will give you the longest and strongest guarantee ever made on an organ —for fifty full years. You see how easy it is to own the finest organ ever made. If you have an old style, worn out organ, it will pay you to give it away and replace it with an exquisitely sweet toned "Adler."



Mail Coupon!

Now, Friend, you simply cannot afford to buy an Organ until you see my plan to save you $48.75 with your own time to pay. So, write for my Organ Book right now; FREE! The Coupon or a Penny Postal will bring it. Address me personally—right now—

C. L. Adler, Pres't,
Adler Manufacturing Co.
Louisville, Ky.

Also Makers of the Celebrated Southern Grand Pianos.

C. L. Adler, Pres't, Adler M'f'g. Co.,
2053 W. Chestnut St., Louisville, Ky.

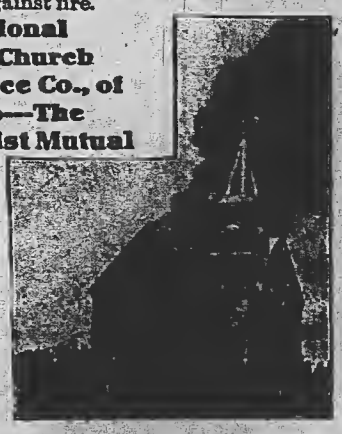
Send me my copy of the Wonderful Free Illustrated Adler Organ Book.

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

It Is a Burning Shame that so many Churches are without sufficient insurance, and not properly safeguarded against fire.

The National Mutual Church Insurance Co., of Chicago—The Methodist Mutual



furnishes protection and assists in prevention. Also writes tornado insurance. Take part and you can save money.

Advantageous rates; easy payments; profits to policy holders. And your Church is entitled to share in these benefits. IT IS UP TO YOU

For applications and particulars address

HENRY P. MACILL, Sec'y and Manager.
184 LaSalle St., Chicago, Ill.
Mrs. Alice H. Barclay, Agent M. E. Church South
South Brook 1916, Louisville, Ky.

NOTICE.

The Crystal Springs Camp Meeting will begin Friday night, Aug. 4th, and continue through Friday, Aug. 11th.

All preachers will be given free entertainment.

J. G. GALLOWAY, P. C.

Dizzy Eyes

Are always weak eyes and should be treated at once with Leonardi's Golden Eye Lotion. Cooling, healing, strengthening. Cures sore eyes without pain in one day. Be certain to get "Leonardi's." It makes strong eyes.

Guaranteed or money refunded. Druggists sell it at 25 cts. or forwarded prepaid on receipt of price by S. B. Leonardi & Co., Tampa, Fla.

Marriages

June 21, 1911, at the residence of the bride's parents, near Wilson, La., by Rev. F. N. Sweeney, Mr. C. C. LIPSCOMB to Miss ALMA PEMBLE.

July 10, 1911, at the South Side Methodist parsonage, Meridian, Miss., by Rev. Isaac Lockhardt Peebles, Mr. GEORGE A. RITTER to Mrs. EMMA WITTINGTON, both of Meridian.

July 5, 1911, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Phillips, near Pineville, La., by Rev. A. R. Hoffpauir, Mr. JOHN C. CLARK, of Pollock, La., to Miss OLLIE PHILLIPS.

April 12, 1911, at the home of Mr. J. C. Langston, Cockrum, Miss., by Rev. R. I. Collins, Mr. W. O. COCHRAN, Of Olive Branch, to Miss LILLIE LANGSTON, of Cockrum, Miss.

April 12, 1911, at the residence of Mr. Fletcher Sage, Cockrum, Miss., by Rev. R. I. Collins, Mr. C. J. LANGSTON to Miss NORA SAGE SWAN, both of Cockrum, Miss.

July 5, 1911, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Mattie Freeman, near Fayette, Miss., by Rev. J. Early Gray, Mr. LESLIE R. ANDING, of Hollandale, Miss., to Miss MATTIE V. FREEMAN.

DISCIPLINE OF DISAPPOINTMENT.

It might not be untrue to say that a man is known by the number of disappointments he has survived. It is certainly a fact that strong characters are made by constant battling with adverse circumstances, so long as the contestants are not "swallowed up with overmuch sorrow." Too much poverty and too little hope sap one's strength, and cut the nerve of effort. But within limits opposition, by serving as a foil to activity, assists the formation of the character of him who bravely meets it.—Selected.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

New Orleans District. Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., presiding elder; residence, 236 Olivier Street; phone, Algiers 76.

First Methodist Church, St. Charles Ave., near Calliope St.; Dr. S. H. Werlein, pastor; residence, 5830 Prytania St.; phone, Uptown 329.

Rayne Memorial Church, St. Charles Ave. and General Taylor St.; Rev. A. G. Shankle, pastor; residence, 1421 Constantinople St.; phone, Uptown 945.

Second Methodist Church, 2531 Burgundy, near Lafayette Ave.; Rev. A. F. Vaughan, pastor; residence, 815 Louisa st. Phone Hemlock 1376.

Parker Memorial Church, corner Nashville Ave. and Perrier St.; Rev. C. D. Atkinson, pastor; residence, 734 Nashville Ave.; phone, Uptown 671.

Louisiana Avenue Church, corner Louisiana Ave. and Magazine St.; Rev. H. T. Carley, pastor; residence, 920 Aline St.; phone, Uptown 756.

Felicity Street Church, cor. Felicity and Chestnut Sts.; Rev. W. W. Holmes, pastor; residence, 1515 Prytania St.; phone, Jackson 1753.

Carrollton Avenue Church, cor. Carrollton Ave. and Elm St.; Rev. J. G. Snelling, pastor; residence, 1125 Fern St.; phone, Walnut 1238.

Algiers, Lavergne Street, cor. Delaronde; Rev. J. W. Booth, pastor; residence, 119 Vallette, St.

Epworth Church, cor. Banks and Scott Sts.; Rev. L. A. Sims, pastor; residence, 3602 Canal St.

Mary Werlein and McDonoghville; Rev. W. B. Perritt, pastor; residence, No. 1026 Tchoupitoulas St.; phone, Main 412.

Rev. John L. Sutton, Superintendent Orphan Boys' Asylum; residence, 5220 St. Charles Ave.; phone, Uptown 128.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, Superintendent St. Mark's Hall, 619-21 Esplanade. Residence, 1634 Sixth Street; phones: Residence, Uptown 954; St. Mark's Hall, Hemlock 1458.

Rev. R. A. Meek, Editor New Orleans Christian Advocate; residence, 724 Nashville Ave.; phone, Uptown 679.

Rev. John T. Sawyer, D.D., residence, 4420 Howard St.

ESTABLISHED 1858
CHURCH AND SCHOOL BELLS
Write for SPECIAL DONATION PLAN Cat. No. 57
THE C. S. BELL COMPANY, HILLSBORO, O.

EDUCATIONAL

Millsaps College. Jackson, Miss.

Rev. David Carlisle Hull, M.S., President.

A high grade college, situated at the capital of the State. Location high, dry and healthful.

Entrance Requirements and Curriculum same as in other Leading Colleges and Universities North and South.

Separate Preparatory School under Private Dormitory Management.

The very finest Moral and Religious Influences. Extraordinary Advantages in

LITERARY AND LAW DEPARTMENTS.

Courses Leading to A.B., B.S., A. M., M.S., and LL.B. Degrees.

TWENTIETH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 20th, 1911.

For catalog and other information address

E. Y. BURTON, Secretary, Jackson, Mississippi.

The Mississippi Conference Training School,
MONTROSE, MISS.

A unique Preparatory school for boys and girls with wholesome moral surroundings and positive Christian influence.

Our regular literary course is practical, and prepares for taking the A. B. degree in the best colleges. The Bible is included in our daily recitations.

Our extras are: Music, Expression, and a normal course preparing teachers to teach in the public schools.

Special features are: A Mission Study Class, and a course preparing teachers to teach in the Sunday school. We also have a farm in connection with the school, and boys of moderate means may have the free use of the land and thereby pay expenses.

Write for catalogue.

(Rev.) WALDO W. MOORE, A. M., President.

BINGHAM, Asheville, N. C., has prepared BOYS for College and for Christian Citizenship for 118 years, and ALONE in the U. S., offers a FREE ROUND TRIP TICKET from anywhere within 1500 miles to any parent who, on inspection, is not convinced that its pairs of ONE STORY brick rooms, separated by a parapet FIRE WALL, are the BEST for Health, Sanitation, Ventilation and safety against FIRE. 1793 Send for Catalogue or come and see. COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt. R. F. D. No. 28 1912

CHAMBERLAIN-HUNT ACADEMY, Port Gibson, Mississippi.

A High Grade Training School for Boys and Young Men.

First class boys wanted. Industrial and Practical in aim Courses on Agriculture and Manual Training just added. Buildings modern, steam heat, electric lights, etc. In old historic section near Vicksburg. No malaria. Among Hills. Four Optional Courses. Instructors all College Graduates. No Hazing; Military abolished. Some boys reduce expenses by work. Non-sectarian, but Christian. Bible a Text Book. Last session crowded. Cheapest school of its kind in the South.

$180 Pays all Expenses. Kind of School South Needs.

Mention the Advocate. For Catalog address M. R. MELVIN, A.M., Pres.

Belmont College For Young Women

Two Lawrences, D.D., LL.D., Presidents Nashville, Tenn. Miss Pearl Allen, Mary Bonner, Presidents

Environment and Equipment Ideal. Modern buildings in magnolia park of 20 acres, overlooking Nashville, the "Athens of the South." City advantages and country benefits. Outdoor sports and athletics. Every provision for safety, comfort and health.

Character and Culture in right relation. Non-sectarian, but earnestly Christian, combining high ideals with the best secular education. Belmont is as happy a home as an honest school can be.

Administration and Instruction staff includes 50 specialists, one for every seven students. Teachers trained in the leading universities and conservatories of America and Europe. Twelve Schools leading to diplomas and degrees—Academic, College Preparatory, Art, Household Economics, Music, etc. Most expensively maintained music faculty South.

The Student Body represents more than 30 states. Over 20 per cent. Northern girls. Limited capacity. Always filled. For illustrated catalog, address Department 34 BELMONT COLLEGE, Nashville, Tenn.

TRINITY COLLEGE

1859 1892 • 1910-1911

Three memorable dates: The Granting of the Charter for Trinity College; the Removal of the College to the growing and prosperous City of Durham; the Building of the New and Greater Trinity.

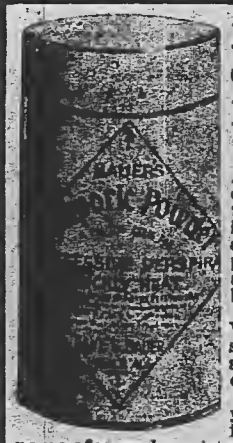
Magnificent new buildings with new equipment and enlarged facilities.

Comfortable hygienic dormitories and beautiful pleasant surroundings.

Five departments: Academic; Mechanical, Civil, and Electrical Engineering; Law; Education; Graduate.

For catalogue and other information, address

B. L. FLOWERS, Secretary, Durham, N. C.



BAUER'S CAPORIC POWDER

A positive cure for excessive prespiration and odors arising therefrom, sore and sweaty feet, prickly heat. Fine after shaving and bath.

We will send full sized package postage paid on receipt of twenty-five cents (25c). We will send you a sample FREE if you will give us the name of your druggist or dealer. We guarantee every package. Your money back if not as represented.

DAVE S. BAUER,

DRUGGIST
Mobile, Alabama.

I WILL MAKE YOU PROSPEROUS

If you are honest and ambitious write me today. No matter where you live or what your occupation, I will teach you the Real Estate business by mail; appoint you Special Representative of my Company in your town; start you in a profitable business of your own, and help you make big money at once.

Unusual opportunity for men without capital to become independent for life. Valuable Book and full particulars FREE. Write today.

NATIONAL CO-OPERATIVE REALTY CO.

E. L. HARDEN, President
594 Marden Building, Washington, D. C.

Spend Your Summers

—AT—

MONTEAGLE,

One of the most delightful and popular Summer Resorts in the South, on the summit of the Cumberland Mountains.

Summer season June-October. Assembly season July 4-Aug. 29th.

Elaborate Program, Lectures, Entertainments, Music, Summer Schools.

Special low rate excursion tickets on sale June 30th, July 1st, 8th, 15th, 22d, 29th, Aug. 11, 12, 18; good for return until Sept. 5, 1911.

Ask any ticket agent for the Assembly Annual and for a free copy of N. C. & St. L. Ry., beautifully illustrated Summer Resort folder, or write to

W. L. DANLEY,
G. P. A., Nashville, Tenn.

VISIT

MINERAL WELLS

—FOR—

HEALTH AND PLEASURE.
AND

WEST TEXAS

—For—

FINE AGRICULTURAL LANDS.
REACHED VIA

THE TEXAS T AND P PACIFIC RAILWAY

EXCURSION TICKETS ON SALE DAILY.

Free Booklet.

E. P. TURNER,

General Passenger Agent.
DALLAS - - - - - TEXAS

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Meridian Dist.—Third Round.

Enterprise and Stonewall,
Vimville, at Why Not	July	22, 23
DeKalb, at New Hope	July	29, 30
Moscow, at Big Oak	July	31
Shubuta and Quitman, at Shubuta	Aug.	2
Matherville, at Poplar Springs	Aug.	3
Clara, at Goldwood	Aug.	5, 6
Meridian, 5th Street	Aug.	9
Lauderdale, at Marion	Aug.	12, 13
Meridian, Central	Aug.	16
Binnsville and Wahalak, Binnsville	Aug.	20, 21
Meridian, East End	Aug.	23
Porterville, at Porterville	Aug.	26, 27
Daleville, at Andrew's Chp	Aug.	30
Waynesboro Circuit, at Fedora	Sept.	2, 3
DeSoto, at Hopewell	Sept.	9, 10
Meridian, 7th Ave	Sept.	13
Meridian, Poplar Spgs	Sept.	14
Waynesboro	Sept.	17, 18
Bucatunna, at ———	Sept.	19
Meridian, South Side	Sept.	20

W. H. LEWIS, P. E.

Seashore Dist.—Third Round.

Lumberton	July	23
Escatawpa, at Orange Gr.	July	27
Americus, at Rosedale	July	28
Moss Point	July	29, 30
Columbia	Aug.	2
Hub, at Pinebur	Aug.	3
Oakvale, at Baxterville	Aug.	4
Ocean Springs	Aug.	5, 6
Mississippi City	Aug.	9
Vancleave, at Shiloh 11 a. m.	Aug.	10
Mentornm, at Antioch	Aug.	12, 13
Lumberton	Aug.	16
Poplarville	Aug.	17
Derby, at Mill Creek	Aug.	18
Carriere and McNeil, at Picayune	Aug.	19, 20
Gulfport, 25th Avenue	Aug.	23
Wolf River Mission, at Durham's Chapel	Aug.	26, 27
Long Beach	Aug.	30
Biloxi	Sept.	2, 3
Bay St. Louis	Sept.	6
Logtown	Sept.	7
Coalville, at Poplar Head	Sept.	9, 10
McHenry and Wiggins, at McHenry	Sept.	13

W. B. JONES, P. E.

Newton Dist.—Third Round.

Chunkey, at Snquelena	July	22, 23
Decatur, at Union..Wed.	July	26
Dist. Conf., at Union	Jnly	26, 30
Shiloh, at Johns, Wed.	Aug.	2,
Trenton, at Pulaski	Aug.	5, 6
Carthage, at Singleton Friday	Aug.	13
Walnnt G., at Freeny	Aug.	19, 20
Homewood, at High Hill Tuesday	Aug.	22
Morton, at Zion Grove, Friday	Aug.	25
Hickory, at Garlandville	Aug.	26, 27
Philadelphia Fri.	Sept.	1
Neshoba, at Sand Town	Sept.	2, 3
Hillsboro, at Prairie Hill, Friday	Sept.	8,
Forest, at Lena	Sept.	9, 10
Indian Mission, at Neshoba	Sept.	16
Stallo, at Neshoba	Sept.	16, 17
Newton Wed	Sept.	20

T. J. O'NEIL, P. E.

Port Gibson Dist.—Third Round.

Port Gibson	Jnly	23, 24
Utica, at Learned	July	26
Fayette	Juy	29, 30
Gloster	Aug.	5, 6
Hamburg, at Knoxville	Aug.	11
Sunflower, at Straight Bayou	Aug.	12, 13
Rolling Fork, at Cary	Aug.	15
Mayersville, at M	Aug.	19, 20
Harriston, at Martin	Aug.	25
Washington, at Pine G.	Aug.	26
Natchez, Jefferson St.	Aug.	27, 28
Nebo, at Oak Grove	Sept.	2, 3
Wilkinson, at Mars Hill	Sept.	9
Woodville	Sept.	10
Hermanville, at Sarepta	Sept.	16
Natchez, Pearl St.	Sept.	17
Rocky Springs, at Willows	Sept.	23, 24
Oak Ridge, at Bovina	Sept.	30
Vicksburg, South Washington Street	Oct.	1
Centreville	Oct.	4
Homochitto, at Mt. Vernon	Oct.	6

Will the preachers in charge kindly have a carefully written answer to Ques. 19, as well as to Ques. 18 and Ques. 23? Please have all the items ready to fully answer Questions 8 and 9. We have had some vexations, delays and uncertainties here.

Let all of us bend all energy and faith to the matter of revival.

H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN, P. E.

Brookhaven District—Third Round.

ter	July	22, 23
Barlow, at Lebanon	July	29, 30
Osyka, at Liberty	Aug.	5, 6
North Wesson, at Providence	Aug.	12, 13
Topisaw, at Topisaw	Aug.	16,
Buford, at Hopewell	Aug.	19, 20
Magnolia	Aug.	26, 27
McComb and Fernwood, at South McComb	Aug.	27,
Wesson	Aug.	30,
Adams, at Ebenezer	Sept.	1,
Meadville, at Ediceton	Sept.	2,
Pearlhaven, at Bethel	Sept.	3,
Brookhaven	Sept.	3, 4
Summit, at East McComb	Sept.	10,
McComb, Centenary	Sept.	10, 11
Monticello, at Georgetown	Sept.	16, 17
Scotland at Bethesda	Sept.	23, 24

J. T. LEGGETT, P. E.

Hattiesburg Dist.—Third Round.

Vosburg, at Saundersville	July	23, 24
Purvis, at Pine Grove	July	25,
New Augusta, at Batson	July	26, 27
Summerland, at S.	July	29, 30
Mt. Olive, at Oakvale	Aug.	2, 3,
Taylorsville, at Okahay	Aug.	4,
Collins, at Ora	Aug.	6, 7
Magee, at Sharon	Aug.	9,
Silver Creek, at Bethel	Aug.	12, 13
Sumrall, at Sumrall	Aug.	16
Oloh, at Advance	Aug.	17
Prentiss, at Bassfield	Aug.	19, 20
Lucedale, at Shipman	Aug.	27, 28
McLain, at Cross Roads	Sept.	2, 3
Eastabuchie, at McLaurin	Sept.	7
Eucutta, at Broyls	Sept.	9, 10
Sanford, at Sanford	Sept.	16, 17
Seminary, at Bethel	Sept.	20

District Conference at Richton, July 11-14. The conference will organize on the 11th at 8:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present at the organization.

M. B. SHARBROUGH, P. E.

Jackson Dist.—Third Round.

Brandon	July	23, 24
Thomasville, at Forest Hill	Jnly	24
Jackson, First Church, 8 p. m.	July	26
Camden, at Forest G.	July	28
Sharon, at Millville	July	29, 30
Terry, at Forest Hill	Aug.	2
Canton	Aug.	6, 7
Mendenhall, at Holly G.	Aug.	8
Harrisville, at Poplar Springs	Aug.	9
Jackson, Capitol St.	Aug.	13, 14
Jackson, Rankin Street, 7:30 p. m.	Aug.	13, 16
Florence, at Richland	Aug.	19, 20
Eden, at Philips	Aug.	21
Lintonia, at Lake City	Aug.	22
Edwards	Aug.	24
Yazoo City	Aug.	27
Benton, at Tranquill	Aug.	28
Deasonville, at Fletcher	Aug.	29
Flora, at Livingston	Aug.	30
Fannin, at Holly Bush	Sept.	6
Jackson, Galloway Chp	Sept.	10
Yazoo City 7:30 p. m.	Sept.	13
Bolton, at Brownsville	Sept.	16, 17
Satartia	Sept.	23, 24

J. R. JONES, P. E.

Christianity, I say, was missionary from the start. That is the very idea of the thing; that is the genius of the machine. It wasn't made to run on any narrow gauge. You will need a broad gauge track for it to run on.—J. A. Broadus.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children, 50c.

ICE CREAM

9 Cents a Quart

A quart of Milk (8 cts.) and a package of

JELL-O ICE CREAM Powder

(which costs 10 cts.) makes 2 quarts of the best ice cream.

There is absolutely nothing else to be added, for everything is in the powder. Dissolve the powder in the milk and freeze it. That is all there is to do.

Think of ice cream at 9 cents a quart!

Flavors: Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon, Chocolate, and Unflavored.

At Grocers', 10 cents a package.

Beautiful Recipe Book Free. Address,
The Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

Our Copyrighted Book on GALL STONES, DYSPEPSIA AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, Stomach and Bowels FREE Address Gallstone Remedy Co. 226 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. Ask for Book No. 10.

BEST THING MADE

April 28, 1910, Dothan, Ala.

I began handling Johnston's Tonic in Blakely, Ga., in 1884. In 1892, moved to Dothan, Ala. Have sold more than 1000 bottles. Use it in my family for Colds, Fever and La Grippe. In all the years I have been selling it, never had but 2 complaints. Both parties admitted afterwards they had not used it right.

H. Q. FRAZIER.

April 13, 1910, Greenwood, S. C.

I have used Johnson's Tonic in my family for 9 years. It is all you claim for it and more too. It cured me of Typhus Hemorrhagic Fever. I would have been under the sod 9 years ago but for JOHNSON'S. Tell this to the world. It may save some man's life.

A. P. ALDRICH.

Drives every trace and taint of Malarial Poison from the Blood.

Your Summer Trip,

Whether to the North, East or West, should be made via the

Illinois Central

Low Summer Tourist Fares now in Effect.

Let us assist in planning your trip.

Write or call at

ILLINOIS CENTRAL OFFICE
141 St. Charles St.

W. H. BRILL, Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ED RODDY, City Pass. Agt

QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Best & Quickest Service

TO ALL IMPORTANT DESTINATIONS

In the North & East

Summer Tourist Tickets now on Sale to all Mountain, Lake and Seaside Resorts.

—Ticket Office—
211 ST. CHARLES STREET
Phone Main 4482

Terminal Station---Canal Street

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

NORTH MISS. CONFERENCE.

Sardis Dist.—Third Round.

Lake Comorant and Hinds, at Poplar Corner .....July 20
Byhalia, at Fount. Head...July 22, 23
Como ....July 30, 31
Tyro, at Mt. Vernon.....Aug. 5, 6
Olive Branch, Oak Grove.Aug. 12, 13
Wall Hill, at Grubb Hill....Aug. 15
Long Town, McGee's Chap.Aug. 17
Oakland, at Bethel.....Aug. 19, 20
Courtland, at Shiloh .....Aug. 22
Senatobia .....Aug. 23
Cockrum, at Independence.Aug. 26, 27
Eureka, at Pisgah .....Sept. 2, 3
Arkabutla .. ..Sept. 9, 10
Crenshaw ....Sept. 12

W. M. YOUNG, P. E.

Winona Dist.—Third Round.

Webb, at Parchman .....July 22, 23
Inverness, at Coile.....July 23, 24
Mar's Hill, at Hopewell..July 26
Schlater ....July 29, 30
North Carrollton, at McCarley ....Aug. 5, 6
Indianola, at Faisonia....Aug. 12, 13
Moorhead, at Blaine.....Aug. 13, 14
Lambert, at Glendora.....Aug. 19, 20
Minter City..8 p. m.....Aug. 20
Eupora, at Eupora .....Aug. 24
Bellefontaine, at Walthall..Aug. 24
Kilmichael, at Lodi .....Aug. 26, 27
Tutwiler, at Marks.....Sept. 2, 3
Slate Springs, at Bethlehem ....Sept. 9, 10

E. S. LEWIS, P. E.

Corinth Dist.—Third Round.

Jonesboro Ct., at Ebenezer.July 22
Ripley and B. M., at Falkner ....July 23, 24
Rienzi Ct., at Bethel.....July 29, 30
Tishomingo Ct., at Paradise.Aug. 4
Bellmont Ct., at Patterson Church ....Aug. 5, 6
Booneville Ct., at Shady G.Aug. 12, 13
Dry Run Ct., at Mt. Carmel ....Aug. 19, 20
Hatchie Mission, at Mt. Pisgah ....Aug. 21
Ripley Mis., at Black Jack.Aug. 22
Dumas ct., Jacobs Chp....Aug. 23
Sherman Ct., ———.....Aug. 25
Myrtle Ct., at Ebenezer...Aug. 26, 27
Kossuth Circuit, at Pleasant Hill .....Sept. 2
Guntown and B., at Baldwyn ....Sept. 3, 4
Baldwyn Mission, at Palestine ....Sept. 9, 10

BEN P. JACO, P. E.

Greenville District—Third Round.

Hillhouse ....July 22, 23
Kuhn .. ..July 29, 30
Hollondale .. ..Aug. 5, 6
Shaw .. ..Aug. 13, 14
Sherard .. ..Aug. 20, 21

Let the pastors take particular note of question No. 17 in the business of the quarterly conference, and make a written report in full of this question, as the Discipline requires.

W. W. WOOLLARD, P. E.

Columbus Dist.—Third Round.

Crawford, at Pope's Chp.July 22, 23
Starkville Ct., at Kilgore..July 29, 30
Sturgis, at Pughs .....Aug. 5, 6
Mayhew ....Aug. 11
Cedar Bluff, at Pearson..Aug. 12, 13
Cochrane ....Aug. 19, 20
Columbus Circuit .....Aug. 26, 27

J. E. THOMAS, P. E.

Durant Dist.—Third Round.

Kosciusko, at East Union..July 21
McCool. at Shady G.....July 22, 23
Louisville, at Rocky Hill..July 25
High Point, at Mt. Pleasant ....July 28
Rural Hill, at Plattsburg..July 29, 30
Chester, at South Union..July 31
Ackerman, at Mt. Airy....Aug. 4
Ebenezer, at Bethany....Aug. 5, 6
Black Hawk, at B. H....Aug. 12, 13
Sallis, at Salem .....Aug. 15
Kossuth Ct., at Salem....Aug. 17
Poplar Creek, at Huntsville ....Aug. 19, 20

N. G. AUGUSTUS, P. E.

Oxford Dist.—Third Round.

Toccapola, at Tula.....July 22, 23
Holly Springs Circuit, at Sylvestria ....July 22, 23
Paris, at Pine Flat.....July 22, 23
Water Valley, Main St....July 23, 24
Water Valley, First Ch....July 23, 25
Pine Valley, at Salem....July 29, 30
Randolph, at Sprg. Hill...July 29, 30
Grenada Circuit, at Holcomb ....July 29, 30
Lafayette, at Liberty ....July 29, 30
Waterford, at Harris Chp..July 29, 30
Duck Hill, at Bethel .....July 29, 30
Ashland ....Sept. 2, 3
Charleston, at Oak G.....Sept. 9, 10
Grenada ....Sept. 10, 11

J. E. CUNNINGHAM, P. E.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

We, the undersigned committee appointed by the Home and Foreign Mission Societies to draft resolutions of respect in memory of our dear friend and co-worker, Mrs. A. Lou Edgar, beg leave to submit the following:

Resolved, That in the death of Mrs. Edgar our two societies have lost one of its most worthy and devoted members. As President of the Home Mission Society, which office she held for many years, she was always painstaking and faithful in the discharge of every duty. Her interest in this great home mission work seemed supreme, and she was never so happy than when she felt that we as a society had done some good work "in his name" to uphold the motto of her selection at its organization.

Failing health somewhat narrowed the scope of her activities during the last year of her life, but when her strength would permit, her place was never vacant at Sunday school, church or missionary meeting. Fitted to adorn any circle, the social as well as the religious world will miss her. Of a bright and cheerful nature, she brought sunshine wherever she appeared. Her great big heart was filled with love and charity for all, and her generous hand was ever its almoner. True and pure and womanly her judgment of others always reflected her inner self, and was marked by tender pity for the erring and by loving kindness for all. There was no bitterness in her heart, there was no gall upon her tongue. The world would be happier far were there more women like A. Lou Edgar and there would be fewer wounded hearts within its borders. Truly her life was an inspiration to live for higher and nobler things.

To those who formed the inner circle of her life we extend our heartfelt sympathy. God, who was her hope and comfort, offers to you his help and waits when your day of service has passed to unite you in his house of many mansions.

Be it further resolved, That a copy of the above be sent to the bereaved family, and entered on the minutes of the society and be sent to the Magnolia Gazette, Magnolia News, and New Orleans Christian Advocate, for publication.

Signed: Mrs. Jerome Ford, Mrs. L. L. Lampton, Mrs. A. H. Gatlin.

Magnolia, Miss., July 11, 1911.

HIGHLY COMMENDED.

Mrs. Bessie Lythe Scovell is one of the splendid national W. C. T. U. lecturers. The following is what she says about A-le-the-ia, Mrs. C. C. Miller's temperance story:

"I have beard a great many fine things said about Aletheia. I heard one gentleman say he wished everybody would read it, for the book was capable of doing great good." Mrs. Scovell says she found it to contain many lofty ideals and noble thoughts.

Price 25 cents. Address New Orleans Christian Advocate, 512 Camp St., or Mrs. C. C. Miller, Hammond, La.

EDUCATIONAL

Wesleyan College

Macon, Georgia

One of the few real colleges for women in the South. Plant worth a half million, with all modern facilities. Faculty of forty. Nearly 3,000 alumnae throughout the nation.

Schools of Literature, Languages, Science, Arts and Music.

A safe institution for young ladies. Nonsectarian, but Christian to the core. Health record without a parallel—not a death for many years. Not conducted for profit, but to bless the world. Rates reasonable. No traveling agents.

For detailed information, address

W. N. AINSWORTH, D. D., President
C. R. JENKINS, Vice President

SWEETWATER COLLEGE For Young Women.

Complete college course. Preparatory department. Music and Art. Three laboratories. Beautiful buildings, steam heat and electric lights, hot and cold water in each room; new plumbing. Rates $250. Booklet.

EDWAIN F. ROWLAND, President, Sweetwater, Tenn

MARTIN COLLEGE,

An Endowed School for Girls and Young Women,

PULASKI, Tenn. Established 1870. W. T. WYNN, President

Located on Main line of the L. & N. R. R., eighty miles south of Nashville, forty miles north of Decatur, in the beautiful "Blue Grass" region so famous for health and the beauty of its scenery. Cultured community. All departments. German Director of Music. Conservatory and University trained teachers. Modern buildings. Good pianos, new $1000 grand for recitals. Correspondence invited. Forty-first session begins Sept. 20, 1911. Write for catalogue. Address W. T. WYNN, Pulaski, Tennessee.

YOU CAN AFFORD a new Song Book in your Church or Sunday School, and one for every person; "FAMILIAR SONGS OF THE GOSPEL." Round or Shaped Notes, for $3 for 100. Words and music. 83 very best songs. Sample copy 5 cents. H. A. K. HACKETT, 100 North Wayne Street, Fort Wayne, Ind.

Methodist Benevolent Association

The Connectional Brotherhood of Ministers and Laymen. Life or Term Certificates for $500 to $2,000. Benefits payable at death, old age, or disability. $100,000.00 paid to widows, orphans, and disabled. $14,000.00 reserve fund. Write for rates, blanks, etc.

J. H. SHUMAKER, Secretary Nashville, Tennessee

FRECKLES TAN, SUNBURN Quickly removed by WILSON'S FRECKLE CREAM. Guaranteed for freckles, sunburn, tan, moth, pimples. Postpaid 50c a box. Trial size 25c—postage 5c. Dealers and agents write for special offer to Wilson's Freckle Cream Co., 236 Meeting St., Charleston, S. C.

Rubber Stamps And Accessories

We are the only firm in Mississippi making a specialty of RUBBER STAMPS and accessories. New equipment. Expert labor. Prompt service and satisfaction guaranteed—All stamps shipped same day order is received.

Write for free illustrated stmap catalog.

SOUTHERN ADVERTISING CO., Inc. Jackson, Miss.

KOGER PEA & BEAN THRESHER

Guaranteed to thresh Cow Peas and Soy Beans from the vines and not break over two per cent of the grain.

WRITE FOR FREE ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE

"DOES NOT BREAK THE GRAIN."

Giving in detail the superior advantages of this machine. Requires the least amount of power, and produces the greatest amount of work. Also threshes Oats, Wheat, Velvet Beans, Rice, Millet and Sorghum.

Write us to day.

Koger Pea & Bean Thresher Co.
Morristown, Tenn.

ROYALINE OIL

Strongest and Best

ANTISEPTIC

Stops Pain Heals Wounds

Use it for Hurts of all kinds, Cuts, Burns, Bruises, Sprains, Aches, Pains, Wounds, Swellings. For outside and inside use. Man or Beast. Pleasant, Clean, Safe.

There is nothing "just as good". Try it and you will use no other. It has stood the test for nearly twenty years.

10c, 25c, 50c, Druggists.

ROYALINE MED. CO., Ltd., New Orleans, Sole Propr.

The Sunday School.

LOUISIANA NOTES.

By Rev. P. O. Lowrey.

The Sunday school at Bernice, though small in numbers, made the record last year of giving $1.15 per member. One Sunday each month is missionary Sunday.

• • •

A home department has been organized at Harrisonburg, with Mrs. C. C. Prichard, superintendent, and a cradle roll, with Miss Josie Mayes, superintendent.

• • •

On the occasion of dedicating the Arcadia Church June 18, Bishop Murrah addressed the Bible class at 11 a. m. Sunday, and was greeted by a magnificent audience.

• • •

Pastor Baker reported to his District Conference that at Benton every Methodist child was in Sunday school, and that everyone stayed to preaching except a few by order of their parents.

• • •

Mrs. W. I. Hargroder, the superintendent of the Sunday school at Church Point, observes that the Children's Day is of inestimable value at that point in reaching non-Protestants, as they have never been used to such delightful exercises by the children.

• • •

Pastor Grice united three of his Sunday schools in a rally at Antioch on the Simsboro Circuit, July 2d, at which time he expected five hundred children present. This is certainly a commendable example of creating an enthusiastic school and class spirit.

• • •

Both young men's and young women's Bible classes have been organized at Harrisonburg with the following officers: Young Men's—F. O. Ellis, president; W. C. Mathews, vice-president; R. E. Jones, secretary and treasurer; H. Taylor, teacher. Young Women's—Mrs. Edna Prichard, president; Miss Cannie McGee, vice-president; Miss Minnie Carter, secretary and treasurer, and Mrs. J. W. Walters, teacher.

• • •

Superintendent A. P. Holt works the home department of the Crowley Sunday school by having each regular scholar look after one home department member. In this way he maintains a membership of 140. Mr. Holt uses a great deal of printer's ink in the work of building up his school, calling on his teachers and members at opportune times by letter for forward moves of various kinds. Thus he has worked up successful Mothers', Children's, and Decision Days, a large Business Men's Class and a Young Men's Class, and an attendance on one Sunday of two hundred and fifty.

• • •

A young people's Bible class has been organized at Mermenteau, with the following officers: Miss Margia Rice, president; Miss Cora Harrington, vice-president; Edwin Rice, secretary and treasurer; Mayol Landry, chairman of the membership committee, and Miss Evie Smith, chairman of the social committee. Brother Hebert, the pastor, preaches here one sermon in French and one in English each Sunday. The most of the people are Creoles. He has a magnificent coworker in Prof. R. A. Smith, who has a state-wide reputation as an educator and as a true and loyal Methodist. At present, the Sunday school uses the United Brethren's literature, they having organized it.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Rev. E. F. Lewis.

The schools at Oakvale and New Hebron are graded as far as practicable and have recently put in Cradle Rolls and Home Departments.

• • •

Why should we neglect the social feature of our organized classes? Why should we not adopt every laudable means of getting hold of our boys? Is not there a weakness in our method of conducting these classes?

• • •

The Sunday school at Monticello has been recently reorganized and graded through the Intermediate Department. They have also introduced the Cradle Roll and Home Department, and in October, the beginning of the year for graded schools, will introduce the new graded literature. Separate rooms have been provided by the use of curtains.

• • •

The summer months are on, the trying time for Sunday school superintendents. Pupils might be held to Sunday school work by announcing that all absent students attending schools where they are summering, will get full credit on their own rolls upon their return by bringing certificates from the superintendents of the schools they attend. This has been done in the past by some schools with fine effect.

• • •

A certain Young Men's Bible Class began to decline in interest and attendance. The teacher, after careful investigation, found the cause—interest in a certain baseball team with a pitcher, who by his characteristics had not only attracted notice, but won for his team constant victories. After deliberation, this teacher decided to introduce an innovation. He proposed to his boys that they organize a baseball nine. This they did. In due time this "crack" team was challenged. Of course, the class was defeated. But the teacher had accomplished his purpose—brought the class to the notice of the "crack" pitcher. In time the pitcher was won to the class, and to Christ. Of course, the boys all came back.

NEWS AND NOTES.

By Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick.

Lets help men to be loving—many hearts are hungry for an expression of genuine Christian love, and we must not withhold it. Christ has given so much to most of us; we should pass it on or receive no more of his joy.

• • •

It is a source of real joy to the Sunday school world to know of the many helpful and really beautiful Children's Day services held all over the country. From shady vale to stately city church these paeons of praise have arisen to high heaven and many hearts have been blessed.

• • •

Many adult classes are helping build churches and parsonages and more commodious Sunday school rooms, and this is such a beautiful and needed service. But the evangelization of every pupil in the Sunday school and every man in town must be the real, vital work aimed at.

• • •

Another fine investment of Bible class activity is to give some deserving girl a scholarship in the training school in Nashville or at Scarritt. A two years' training would be a priceless boon to some heart-hungry girl striving amid great difficulties. The Woman's Home Mission Society is doing great work along this line.

• • •

This month and next, institutes and conventions will be held in many places. Get ready with prayer and Bible and then be ready to get to work at once to use every method and all the inspiration and information available—and not only to use it, but also carry it on and out to some unable to be present.

• • •

Adult classes can help materially these summer days by furnishing ice for the fevered poverty-stricken many, by helping clean up towns and cities, and showing people how to take care of themselves. Flies, mosquitoes and dust are fruitful sources of disease and wickedness, and a concerted effort along these purely physical lines will pave the way for future spiritual progress.

• • •

Don't let your class attendance drop down when you are away for the summer; appoint a Booster Committee to see that the classroom is cool and sweet with flowers, and that every absent fellow is looked up before sunset and reminded to be present next Sabbath.

Help "the weak brother!" Oh, such a fight as he has with temptation and with temperament! Don't be impatient with him, but stand very close to him and help him make the fight.

GRENADA COLLEGE

A CHRISTIAN COLLEGE FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN.

The Property of the Church—Erected and Maintained for Service.

Only One Hundred Boarders Taken. Personal Attention Given Each Student.

A FACULTY OF SPECIALISTS.

THE BEST ADVANTAGES IN MUSIC, ART, AND EXPRESSION

Write for Catalog. REV. J. R. COUNTISS, President. Grenada, Miss.

MEDICAL COLLEGE OF THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA

CHARLESTON, S. C.

MEDICINE AND PHARMACY.

(Session opens Oct. 2d, 1911, ends June 3d, 1912.)

Unsurpassed clinical advantages offered by the New Roper Hospital, one of the largest and best equipped hospitals in the South. Extensive out-door and dispensary service under control of the faculty.

Nine appointments each year for graduates in medicine for hospital and dispensary services.

Medical and Pharmaceutical Laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped.

Department of Physiology and Embryology in affiliation with the Charleston Museum.

Practical work for medical and pharmaceutical students a special feature.

For Catalogue Address ROBERT WILSON, Jr., M.D. Dean, Cor. Queen and Franklin Sts., Charleston, S. C.

THE BRISTOL-NELSON SCHOOL For Feeble Minded BACKWARD AND NERVOUS CHILDREN

Feeble-minded children are developed into useful and often self-supporting men and women. Send for catalog giving full information. Articulation and Physical Culture, Specialties.

Mrs. CORA BRISTOL-NELSON, Supt. - - - - - - Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Ward Seminary FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN Nashville, Tennessee

Literary Department of the highest order. Seminary and Special Courses. French and German spoken. Certification to Wellesley, Vassar, Goucher, Randolph-Macon.

In Music opportunities unsurpassed—nine teachers, eight with the best European training—Winkler, Director Piano; Campobello, Voice; Schmitz, Violin. School Orchestra and Chorus.

Expression, Art, Domestic Science—all in charge of specialists.

City advantages. Accessible to leading churches, libraries, lecture and concert halls. Out-door sports, Tennis, Basket Ball, etc., also beautiful Ward Place campus for recreation.

47th year begins Sept. 21. 175 boarding pupils. Early application is advised

For Catalogue and Other Circulars, Address J. D. BLANTON, LL.D., Prest.

ESCAPE THE HEAT OF SUMMER AND SPEND YOUR VACATION ON THE

PACIFIC COAST

Temperature 50 Degrees to 70 Degrees EVERY DAY

LOW ROUND TRIP RATES NOW IN EFFECT

Via SOUTHERN PACIFIC

Two Strictly First-Class Trains Daily

"SUNSET EXPRESS" and "CALIFORNIA EXPRESS"

Through to SAN FRANCISCO without change

Most Modern Standard and Tourist Sleeping Cars; Electric Lighted—Individual Lights in Berths; Oil Burning Locomotives; Electric Block Signals; Observation Car on Sunset Express; Dining Car Service Best in the World.

Before Deciding on Your Route, see

SOUTHERN PACIFIC REPRESENTATIVE,

City Ticket Office, 225-27 St. Charles Street, New Orleans

PHONE MAIN 4027

Beautifully Illustrated Literature Furnished on Request.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

VOL. 58—No. 30. "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which is Good." WHOLE No. 2893.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, JULY 27, 1911.

CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.
Office, No. 512 Camp St.

AS OTHERS SEE US.

For years we have been persuaded that while all humanly devised systems have their imperfections, we as Methodists have much for which we should be deeply grateful. There are those among us, however, who look at the weak points in their system and only the strong points in that of others, until they come to believe that the imperfections are all theirs and the excellencies of government and usage belong to other ecclesiastical bodies.

In order that our readers may see how others view us in comparison with themselves, we give much of our editorial space to an article from the pen of Rev. Dr. A. S. Fiske, of the Presbyterian Church, in last week's issue of the New York Observer. It occupies a conspicuous page in the central organ of their church, and the views of the writer are entitled to consideration:

Weakness of the Presbyterian System—Vacant Pulpits and Unemployed Ministers.

The first of these is lack of adequate Presbyterial oversight of vacant parishes, and unemployed ministers. The churches are left to their own initiative in seeking and finding candidates for their pastorates, and unemployed ministers are left in idleness except as they may chance to be brought to the notice of seeking congregations. There are reported nearly two thousand of these vacant pulpits and about the same number of waiting ministers within the bounds of our great church. With our enterprising and wise sister denomination—the Methodist Church—there exists no such distressing and disastrous condition. Her authorities see to it that their vacant pulpits are regularly and promptly supplied by men sent them by the presiding elder of the district to serve for some limited period, or more permanently as may be mutually arranged. The result is that no church is left to, or led to, distraction by protracted trials of "candidates" and no minister is subjected to the mortifications of "candidating," and no serviceable preacher is left in wasteful and distressing idleness. Our Presbyteries ought to have like responsibility of effective oversight both of its churches and its ordained ministry. This point of weakness is a point of intolerable waste as well. Our Presbyteries ought to be given the practical powers of the Bishopric, or, at least, those of the presiding eldership, for general superintendency of its vacant churches and unemployed ministry.

A second weakness lies in its settlement of pastors for an indeterminate period—for life, as the presumption runs—which means really for such time as may happen to suit all parties concerned. Result? Ordinarily a shorter period than that of any other denomination except perhaps amongst the Congregationalists. What hurt comes of this? Much every way. No pastor of independence and sturdy character will be likely to get through his first year of ministry without giving somebody or bodies in his congregation occasion for dissatisfaction. I have never known personally and intimately more than, say, 100,000 ministers, who were absolutely without fault in character or inerrant in wisdom, nor more than half that number of congregations that were without some elements of indisposition—some tendency to discovery of fault or failure in the minister, even to the magnifying of it. Or, at any rate, he will have run across some prejudice, or insisted on the adoption of some line of church or personal activity that is distasteful, or has done or left undone something or other—any one of a thousand things, which has touched the sensibility of one or many of his people. A fret begins, gets itself talked over; discontent spreads. Criticism widens and gets keener. The term of settlement is permanent. This sort of thing is not to be forever endured. So fatal faction is afoot. The church is divided in feeling. Parties are in array. One faction getting sharper in opposition, the other more strenuous in support. War is on! The church is split, whether the pastor goes or stays to fight it out. The whole community gets involved and grievous scandal against the very Gospel itself is the outcome!

Remedy? Why, were the pastor settled for but a limited term, his pastorate to close quietly at the end of that term, without any form of ecclesiastical interference or publicity, these dissatisfied people, if they have any Christian temper, would say: "Never mind! We can stand it for the time. We wont stir up a church fight. Keep still and let him go when his term ends." Before his term ends these very people, now his opponents, may become the best friends he has and hearty supporters of a movement for the duplication of his term. So both minister and church will be saved from discredit and disruption. A multitude of church quarrels and of disheartened ministers would be spared for the great work of the Gospel in the world. Yet another thing. A term pastorate would save to the churches the active services of a goodly number of experienced and able men, who, having passed the almanac standard of pastoral efficiency, are yet in perfect health and at the zenith of their potential ability. They are laid aside on the score of age merely while yet their eyes are undimmed and their natural forces are unabated. They ought to be doing the finest service of all their lives.

I know such a man, who at the age of seventy-five occupied the pulpit of one of the largest churches of our denomination in the capital city of one of our largest States for seven months, delivering an average of more than four set addresses a week, and making during that time a thousand pastoral calls over a widely extended parish. The same man has since served for periods of from five to two months four principal churches in as many cities to their enthusiastic satisfaction. This man at the age of sixty-four received two calls to well known and important churches, one of which he accepted and served in it for eight years effectively. He is constantly asked now;

"Why in the world are you not in the active pastorate of some fine church?"

"Why, I'm seventy-eight years old or seventy-eight years young."

That settles it satisfactorily, I hope! Now I do not at all blame any church for not wanting to settle a pastor who is even sixty years young. If it wanted to do so it would desire to do it because there was stuff in him that would attach the people to him tenderly. His powers must fail some time. Meanwhile his people would have become so warmly his friends that they could not turn him out to starve, but would have a salaried pastor emeritus on their hands, an expense which they could ill afford. So the elder, riper, more experienced, broader, more liberal and gentler in judgment in all the ranks of the ministry are laid aside for the years in which they might be of sweetest and fullest use. Had we the habit of a short-term pastorate, these men would, I believe, be eagerly sought for and gloriously used.

Moreover, this short-term plan would tend not to brief ministries in the given church, but would lead oftenest to life-long pastorates. At the close of each limited term it should be the privilege of the church to claim a duplication of it and the pastorate should enter its second or fourth or tenth term without any re-installment or other ecclesiastical intervention whatever, save as Presbytery and neighbor churches should choose to celebrate the success of the venerable life-long minister of a happy, harmonious and devoted church.

Further, about candidates for the ministry. With the present fatal "dead line" of fifty or even sixty years for limit of pastoral eligibility, how has any young man a right to enter it? In any other profession or business he has right to expect that at either of these ages he will be at his best and in greatest demand for the ripeness of his judgment and breadth of his experience. Has he any shadow of right deliberately to propose to cut short his usefulness at the very zenith of his powers? Is not this practical "age limit" the secret of many a strong college man's turning from the blessed work of the gospel ministry to a secular pursuit which will engage him to the very end of his days? Is he not fully justified in such a decision. Has he any right to cut himself off from hope of usefulness for the later and better half of what ought to be his life? Would that our General Assemblies and Presbyteries might have wisdom to remedy these two weaknesses of our Presbyterian polity!—From the Florida Christian Advocate.

We frequently hear it said that the day of the orator has passed, and that the printing press now sways the scepter of power over men. But if this be true, why is it that in political campaigns those who would influence the people betake themselves to the hustings? The truth is, oratory has not lost its power, and will never lose it. True eloquence stirs and thrills the human heart to-day as it has ever done. Two men—Garfield and Bryan—within the past three decades have won the nomination for the presidency of the United States by a single masterful speech. Prentiss, Clay, and Webster would no more lack for listeners now than they did when in the days agone the multitudes hung breathless upon their impassioned words. Who ever saw Charles B. Galloway preaching to empty pews? No, no; the gift of impressive utterance is still a tremendous force in the world, and by all means our young ministers should seek to acquire it. It is well worth striving for.

Christian Advocate.

Published for the Louisiana, Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

DIRECTIONS:

Correspondents will please direct all communications intended for the Editor to 512 Camp St., New Orleans, La. Communications intended for the Business Department should be addressed to the Manager of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if this date is not moved forward after three weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise.

TWO ROADS.

Between the cradle and the tomb
Two roadways lead along.
Oft side by side they seem to glide—
The right way and the wrong.

Each bypath winding in and out,
However wide it strays,
Leads forth or back from one main track—
There are but those two ways

No guide post points the way to go,
But deep within each soul
A knowledge dwells—a sense that tells
The right road to the goal.

It may seem desolate at first,
But when the day slants west,
The road of right floods full of light
The highways are the blest.

—From the Inter-Ocean.

SELF-EXAMINATION.

"Examine yourself, whether ye be in the faith. Prove your own selves. Know ye not your own selves that Jesus Christ is in you." Whenever we find a command in the Scriptures we know that the thing commanded comes within the range of possibility. Every command inspired of God is the equivalent of a promise of God's help and an assurance of divine assistance toward the realization or accomplishment of the thing commanded. Therefore we consider this command to examine ourselves and to know whether Christ is in us or not a sufficient proof that we can examine ourselves and that we can know what spirit is within us. Methodism has never had any doubt on that subject. Her certainty of knowledge in Christian experience has been the secret of her power. Methodists have known that they have passed from death unto life. The first and fundamental and unfailing testimony of Methodism wherever it has gone through the world has been: "The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit that we are the children of God."

There was the old Universalist who said: "Yes, I am pretty sure that I am going to be saved; but I would give my yoke of oxen to be just sartin." Methodists have always been certain about their salvation. A hundred years ago, when Arminianism was battling heroically with the old-fashioned Calvinism and its belief in the eternal decrees, election to salvation, divine sovereignty and human inability, the Methodist preachers used to say, half earnestly and half sarcastically, that the Calvinistic doctrine as to a Christian experience was that if you seek it you cannot find it, and if you have it you will not know it, and if you lose it you never had it. There may have been something of the element of caricature about that description; but from the very beginning Methodism felt warranted in raising its voice in loud protest against all such indefiniteness in Christian experience. Its testimony has always been: "Now are we the sons of God; and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is."

It is possible for a Christian to know that he is in Christ. It is possible for a Christian to examine himself and to prove himself and to know that Christ is in him. He puts to his own soul these examination questions: Am I dead to sin and alive unto God? Is the old man buried and is the old life a thing of the past? Have old things passed away, and are all things now become new? Do I live the new life of a new man in Christ Jesus? Is the water of cleansing now applied to my soul? Is the outpouring of the Spirit upon me the unfailing experience of my walk with God? Has the life everlasting already begun within me? Do I hate that which I used to love and do I love that which I used to hate? Do I find the law of the Lord the delight of my life? Do I find the Word of God a lamp to my feet and a light to my pathway? Do I love the brethren and enjoy the fellowship with the saints? Do I go about doing good, whether I feel good or not? Do I have the fruits of the Spirit in good health and bad health? Is my conversation seasoned with salt and my daily walk a benediction? Do I rejoice in righteousness and never in iniquity? Do I love God with my whole heart and my neighbor as myself?

It is a very searching and a very thorough examination, this testing of his own self which a man may make with the aid of the Spirit of God. It need not be an unpleasant or distressing one. At every step the Spirit itself may bear witness to the divine approval, or to the divine acceptance of repentance and pledge of future better behavior. In this way self-examination may be a means of spiritual strengthening and a surety of spiritual house-cleaning. It may intensify all good desires and help to crucify all evil purposes. It ought to lead inevitably to the full assurance of acceptance in the consciousness of relationship with the Father and with his son Jesus Christ our Lord.—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

THE VALUE OF CHRISTIAN TRAINING.

The Rev. T. W. Lewis, pastor of the First Methodist Church, preached to his congregation yesterday morning (the 16th inst.) on "Religious Training an Essential Part of One's Education." His text was taken from Exodus 11:ix, "Take this child and nurse it for me, and I will give thee thy wages."

Dr. Lewis spoke in part as follows:

"This is the child Moses whose mother desired to protect him from the cruel slave power of Egypt. He had floated on the restless tide in a little ark made by a mother's loving hands and watched by a sister's anxious eyes. When the Egyptian princess saw the ark she sent her maid for it, and she resolved to adopt the child as her own. Moses' mother became his nurse, and thus he became heir to all that was greatest among the Egyptians and all that was best among the Hebrews.

"At that time Egypt was the home of learning. Long before Romulus founded Rome and while Greece was a den of robbers, a great civilization flourished in the valley of the Nile. Moses was taught in all the learning of the Egyptians. Though born in the hut of a slave, he was reared in the palace of a king. The message I desire to bring to you to-day is: God has said to the Church in a significant way, 'Take the child and train it for me and I will give thee thy wages.'

"In the first place, one's efficiency in the world depends upon one's training. This applies to all forms of life. The vine that spreads its green wings over our Southern galleries to protect us from the hot sun reaches its place of service as the result of training. The luscious fruits and vegetables reach our tables for our use as the result of training. It is a long distance from the bitter apple to the luscious wine-sap. It is a long distance from the ferocious savage whose law is might to the Christian gentleman of the Gladstone type.

"Again, education awakens our dormant powers. A man's place in the world is determined by the things he can respond to. If he possesses forty-four faculties as the psychologists claim, and only four of these faculties have been trained, he goes through life hedged about by such limitations as will defeat the great end of his creation. I insist that man possesses certain moral powers which demand training if he would live a well-rounded, noble life. In the period of adolescence the moral nature needs special care. Robert Louis Stevenson calls it 'the distressing malady of being seventeen.'

"Consider here the inadequacy of secular education to meet the demands of these times. That sort of education which trains the intellect and ignores the conscience and the sense of right may be dangerous. Detach religion from knowledge and you have power without a proper regulating force. Knowledge without religion plucked the forbidden fruit from the Garden of Eden and turned our first parents out to wander and to die. Girard College is the type of college which excludes religion, and no great scholar, poet, statesman or philanthropist has ever come from its halls, while Emory College in Georgia has sent forth great men in both State and Church.

"Christian education implies the training of the entire man. Hence it is a completer education than one may find in the secular schools. Here are the two spheres—the mental and the moral. They lie side by side. Mere secular education deals only with the mental sphere, while Christian education goes over into the moral sphere, dealing with motive and giving direction and color to the fountain heads of character. In our progress as a people let us not forget that our great leaders of the past were trained for the most part in colleges founded and taught by Christian ministers. It means the training of the entire man. The strength of a people is not their wealth, nor even in their culture, but in their religion. If we ever give up Christianity we are gone. Then take the child and train it for God, and he will give thee thy wages."—From the Memphis Commercial Appeal.

NIETZSCHE.

By Mr. J. D. Barbee.

If one were full of beer and Limburger cheese (the diet of the Dutch), he might be in a state of mental illumination which would enable him to correctly appreciate the article bearing this title in the current number of the Methodist Review from the prolific pen of Dr. John C. Granbery; but without this stimulant "the reader of average intelligence" is left in a mental fog at the close of its perusal.

Dr. Granbery tells us that "he (Nietzsche) does not deserve to be taken seriously when he tells us that the real fall of man was his redemption, and that the two most noxious corruptions known to history are Christianity and alcohol." These statements are to be received in a Pickwickian sense, it seems. But, despite his powerful and life-long assaults upon Christianity, Nietzsche is dear to Dr. Granbery. Though utterly repudiating the only hope, as we have been taught to believe, of the human race, our reviewer says of Nietzsche: "In spite of all the hard and bitter things that he has said against us, we are almost disposed to claim him." Such welcome to the foes of our religion, both small and great, is one of the alarming facts of the day.

But it is not with Dr. Granbery that I care to deal; I prefer to leave that task to some one who is stronger in his Dutch than I. It is of Dr. Alexander's editorial note on this paper that I wish to make a few feeble remarks.

In a very thinly-veiled thrust at Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, B.D., who recently exercised in a most pointed and helpful fashion his legal right to admonish the gentleman occupying an exalted position on the tripod of the Review, Dr. Alexander says, lest "some friendly friend of the Review, who trembles for the peril of its orthodoxy may feel moved to ask why it was thought proper to devote any of its space to such a character and career as Nietzsche's" * * * "that one of the very functions and ends of a review of this kind and class is to keep its readers informed, as far as possible, of the great currents of thought and the great thinkers of the day; for its readers are supposed to be men of minds sufficiently mature to want to know what is going on in the world and to make the proper use of such knowledge."

On its surface that sounds pretty well and might, perhaps, pass unchallenged. But it seems to me that an element of the highest importance is the MANNER in which this information is imparted. I utterly deny that the Methodist Review was established or is maintained for the purpose of furnishing a lady-like discussion of the teachings of the opponents of the doctrines and discipline of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, or of the generally accepted beliefs of the Christian Church. St. Paul, the greatest of the New Testament writers, is fond of the terms of warfare in describing the advance of the Church. It is the business of the Church to fight error. What would one think of a government that maintained two armies, one to defend it, and the other to continually turn the flanks of the first and shoot it in the back? I agree that it is a true function of the Review to furnish information, but also to assail error with no friendly hand, and to handle "the great currents" without taking cold.

And Dr. Alexander should take nothing for granted concerning the maturity of his readers' minds; for I dare say that the majority of us do not measure up to his standard of one having "average intelligence."

I wish, though somewhat belated, to give my fullest endorsement to the very valuable paper published in the New Orleans Advocate from the pen of Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, B.D., and to call attention to the fact that it is not necessary to travel outside of the pages of the current number of the Review to find the most friendly notices possible of the productions of the higher critics.

If one so stanchly orthodox as Dr. Alexander may thus nod upon the watch-tower he has been appointed to guard, then may the Church well exclaim in the stately language of Dr. Watts.

O God, our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come,
Our shelter from the stormy blast,
And our eternal home!

Under the shadow of thy throne,
Still may we dwell secure;
Sufficient is thine arm alone,
And our defense is sure.

O God, our help in ages past,
Our hope for years to come,
Be thou our guard while life shall last,
And our perpetual home!

Or perhaps it would be better to adopt the martial tone of Charles Wesley:

Hark, how the watchmen cry!
Attend the trumpet's sound!
Stand to your arms, the foe is nigh,
The powers of hell surround.

Who bow to Christ's command,
Your arms and hearts prepare;
The day of battle is at hand!
Go forth to glorious war!

Greenville, Miss.

"LEST PERADVENTURE."

"From Bastrop, we went to Mer Rouge, a nice little town eight miles away, and had an eight-day meeting. There is no Baptist Church at that place, nor has there ever been any Baptist preaching there. As a result of the meeting we had 23 additions to the Baptist Church, 19 for baptism. I baptized 16 at that place last Sunday afternoon in the presence of hundreds of people. That was the first time any white people had ever been baptized in that town."

The above is published in the Baptist Chronicle of May 4, 1911, and signed by E. Stubblefield, who is the Baptist preacher at Bastrop. This is taken from a letter in which he purports to give an account of the meeting held in the Methodist Church at Mer Rouge in April, when, at my invitation, Rev. Sid Williams came to assist me in a meeting.

From the above impartial account you would never guess it. One of the results of the meeting was the addition of 30 people to the Methodist Church, and that at 11 o'clock the same Sunday of which he makes mention I baptized in the Methodist Church 12 white people, who to my knowledge were not the first to be baptized in this town. Now, these were all white people—bear that in mind—"lest peradventure" some may think that the Methodist Church here has joined the Colored M. E. Church.

My memory of things in these parts hardly exceeds thirty years, so can only speak as to that time. As to the statement, "there is no Baptist Church at" Mer Rouge, I can bear witness. I don't know whether there had ever been any Baptist preaching prior to this meeting or not, but I can recall none. But for the past 50 years, yea, for 60 years, the gospel has been preached in these parts by the people called Methodists, by such men as Trippet, Alex Goodwyn, John Pipes, Joseph Stone, J. L. Wright, W. C. Haislip and a long list of others, under the leadership of such eiders as Joel Saunders, R. R. Alexander, J. A. Lay, Samuel Armstrong, W. G. McGoughey, and others, as the record of the Mer Rouge Circuit now open before me shows. This shows the organized work of preaching the gospel in these parts and does not take into account the sporadic incursions made by the ubiquitous circuit rider before the permanent organization of the work. Then, if I mistake not, the Protestant Episcopal Church was here at nearly that same date. So while these parts may have been bereaved of "Baptist preaching," they have not been without the gospel of the kingdom; and in those years gone by many have lived as witnesses of the power of that gospel and been translated by the power of an all-conquering faith from the family on earth to the part of the family of God—which is "in heaven."

That is a rather significant admission the writer makes when he draws a distinction between the gospel and "Baptist preaching." There be many of whom I have heard, not of the "same faith and ardor," who have held that such a distinction is drawable. As you perceive, I have not made such, only call your attention to the claim made by the writer, and allowed by some.

Now, that twaddle about baptism! May I offer this for rumination the next time the writer stands by the water: that if the immersionists would adopt the rule that every immersion must be private: just the to be dipped and the dipper, with one or two friends; that the number of such would in two years fall off 50 per cent. In all seriousness, I ask, has not, not only his, "in the presence of hundreds," but all such, much to do with its continuance?

Do you know of what this attempt of the immersionists to discredit the baptism of the rest of Christendom reminds me? You mind what a small percentage of Christendom practices modern immersion—single immersion—and I am insistent as to its modernity—for it has been established without a reasonable doubt that immersion as now practiced by the two bodies of immersionists in this country, can trace its chain no further than, through Mr. Richard Blunt, who was immersed in Holland in 1641 by the section of the Mennonites called the Collegianten, to 1620, when they began to immerse. All this is made clear by the researches in this country of Dr. Whitsitt, and Dr. Shakespeare in England, both very learned Baptists. By the way, I don't think our American brethren of the "much water" persuasion would have given the descendant of the "Bard of Avon" such a glad hand and so much of "the smile that won't come off," if they had known his standing on the Magna Charter of American Baptists—immersion. You know about five per cent of Christendom practices modern immersion, and want to rule out of the Church the balance. I will tell you what it makes me think of. You remember Paul's imaginary quarrel among the members of the body? There was some show of reason in the various contensions of the varying members, but for this there is none. "It's too much like the tail wagging the dog." This exercise, while engaging to the caudal appendage, and at the same time exhausting thereto, makes no impression on the course of the canine. The caudal appendage of the canine has never yet proved to the body of the dog, or to others, that it ought to be the rudder simply because it is behind. So I am afraid that until the above question is settled contrary to the established conviction of the aforesaid dog and the onlookers, the excited exhortations of our brethren of the "liquid grade" to go by the river route will be politely, but firmly, nayed. No, we will go on in the way in which the Lord leads us, preaching the gospel, seeing the work of the Lord prospering in our hands, counting the recognition of God above any other, singing and making melody in our hearts unto the Lord, and comforted with this great saying: "Doubtless thou art our Father, though Abraham be ignorant of us, and Israel acknowledge us not: thou, O Lord, art our Father, our Redeemer."

No, my brethren, the gospel that will unify human dissensions and make all one in spirit and fellowship, must have a broader base than that rite of the Church which one of its chief men thanked God he had not observed very closely and to which work he thanked God he had not been called. So, the great body of Christendom has heard the larger call, "not to baptize, but to preach the gospel," yet, I would not forbid the smaller work; there be many, I am fully persuaded, who will hear no other than "Baptist preaching," and while blessing them in the name of God for all the good they have done, I will also add the exhortation of one of God's great: "We have opened our heart; there is room there for you, yet there is not room, in your love, for us. Can you not in return, open your hearts unto us?"

BRISCOE CARTER.

SOME VALUABLE SUGGESTIONS.

By Rev. H. P. Lewis, Sr.

On July 2d, I preached morning and evening at Florence for Brother J. S. Purcell, while he was away attending the Seashore Divinity School. It affords me great pleasure, yea, I esteem it a privilege, to be of service in any way to the younger brethren. When I was a young man in the ministry we had not the advantages, in the way of education, etc., that our young preachers have now. It strikes me, if I had had the opportunity to gain scriptural knowledge that our young brethren now have, I should have been much better prepared for the work of the ministry than I ever was. I am too old now to profit much by the Divinity School; yet I enjoyed the lectures, etc., very much last year. My advice to all young brethren in reach is to save up enough money to enable them to attend annually the School at the "Seashore."

But bear in mind that nothing in the way of literary training can possibly take the place of the "baptism of the Holy Ghost" and a "divine call to the ministry." A man, endued with wisdom and power from on high, filled with all the fulness of God, whether he be a theological graduate or not, can hold any ordinary congregation better and accomplish vastly more good in preaching than any of our young, or old, theological students can by reading dry "sermonettes" to a drowsy congregation. He may have D.D. appended to his name, and be proud of it, as some evidently are; yet if God is not with him in the preparation and delivery of his sermon, it is quite probable few, if any, will be spiritually profited by his preaching.

A sermon, preached to a congregation, of ordinary size that does not carry conviction, deep, pungent conviction, to some one, saint or sinner, is not, in the judgment of many, what it ought to be. We are supposed to be "soul-winners." We are supposed to be "preachers and teachers" and pastors as well. How I long to see the younger brethren cut loose from everything that tends to hinder them in the noble work of "preaching the gospel" and winning souls! Let politics alone, unless driven to it as Paul was, and some are. Do not become at all secularized. Keep your mind stayed on God, give yourself fully to the work of soul-saving, and we older brethren, who have been retired from the regular itinerant work, will help you in any way we can. We can see, some of us, where we made mistakes and where we failed to do our whole duty along all lines involving ministerial responsibility. Preach the Word, be in earnest about it. Be burdened with the souls of men. Strive to save one or more souls every time you preach. Work for this, pray for it, expect it, all in a proper spirit; then you may rest assured that God will honor your efforts to save souls.

Jackson, Miss.

WHITWORTH COLLEGE AND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

Session 1910-1911, 250 Students; Twenty Teachers and Officers. Thorough instruction under Christian influences. Courses leading to degrees of B. L. and A. B. Noted teachers in Piano, Voice, Elocution and Art. Forty thousand dollars will be expended in improvements within the next eighteen months.

NEXT SESSION BEGINS SEPT. 14, 1911.

Send for Catalogue. Address

WHITWORTH COLLEGE,

Brookhaven, Miss.

Secular News and Comment

The United Ancient Order of Druids organized their first grove in Mississippi at Gulfport on July 19.

* * *

Captain T. A. McWillie, a leading member of the bar at Jackson, Miss., and a gentleman of wide and varied culture, died suddenly on July 20. He was a son of Governor William McWillie, and was for many years the law partner of the late Col. W. L. Nugent.

* * *

The lower section of Louisiana is reported to be making progress in the cultivation of Sea Island cotton. The boll weevil has not yet appeared in this part of the State, and it is thought that he will not for some time, as there are natural barriers to be crossed between his territory and that now infested by this pest.

* * *

The New York Legislature has recently passed a bill in which provision is made for the organization of a negro regiment as a part of the national guard of that State. It would seem after the experience of the Government with negro troops in Texas and elsewhere that everybody would be content to let the colored brother remain a civilian instead of trying to make a soldier out of him.

* * *

At the recent Mississippi Chess Congress at Brown's Wells the contest for the primacy narrowed down to Judge A. H. Whitfield, of Jackson, and Mr. E. B. Hill, of Cleveland, and the latter finally came off the victor. Mr. Hill is a successful Delta merchant and a prominent and useful member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in the town where he resides. He has for many years been known as one of the finest chess players in the Gulf States.

* * *

The appalling toll of human life exacted by American railroads is reflected in the fact that the Interstate Commerce Commission receives daily from officials of interstate railroads an average of thirty telegraphic reports of accidents involving the loss of one life or more. The reports are received in response to an order of the Commission which became effective July 1. Generally the railroads are complying with it.

* * *

It is estimated that the seventeen-year locusts which appeared this year in Connecticut have damaged trees and vegetables in that State to the amount of $100,000. There is a slightly different variety of these insects which appear in the Southern States every thirteen years. Their proper name is not locusts, but cicadas. They exist in Europe as well as in America, and were frequently referred to in the writings of the classical poets.

* * *

Cholera in epidemic form is prevailing at Palermo and Naples, Italy. The United States quarantine authorities are alert, and will leave nothing undone to guard against letting the disease reach our shores. The health office at Naples has been instructed to send a cablegram every five days setting forth fully the situation. The stream of travel between Italy and the United States is so large and so continuous that there is an imperative need that the utmost caution should be exercised.

* * *

It is reported that the bubonic plague is raging in India, and that the deaths from it for the six months ending June 30 reached the enormous total of 650,690. Indeed, the disease is said to have taken such a hold upon the country that its ravages are little heard of except through the occasional official statistics. Recent communications reaching England from the British India office represent that the malady has been unusually virulent this year, and that the efforts to restrain it have met with little success.

* * *

Some of the Spanish papers are insisting that the United States Government should officially exonerate Spain from the charge of having been responsible for the wreck of the Maine. These journals are hasty, however, as the sunken vessel has not yet been sufficiently exposed for a careful examination to be made. It is thought that their utterances have been inspired by the declaration of General Bixby that in his opinion an internal explosion was the cause of the catastrophe. But that is merely the view of a single individual; others may see it differently when the vessel is more completely uncovered and the official inspection is made.

* * *

It is claimed in Portugal that letters have been found which show that the deposed royal family anticipated the late revolution in that country and corresponded with both the British and German authorities with a view to securing foreign assistance to quell it, but that neither government would consent to become entangled in the impending strife. It is charged that King Manuel offered to surrender Portugnese territory in Africa as compensation for the outside help which he sought to obtain. Rumor has it that these communications will be read before the National Assembly.

* * *

The dispatches from Denver, Col., state that Mrs. Luke Lea has now passed the danger point. The devotion of Senator Lea to his wife during her severe illness seems to have greatly impressed the public. When her condition was most critical he allowed the surgeons to transfuse by means of a glass tube a quart of blood from an artery in his wrist to an artery in hers, thus saving her life when it was about despaired of. The hurried trip from Maryland to Colorado when the physicians declared that she had to have a more rarefied atmosphere if she was to recover was also a feat of much interest. Shakespeare says, "All the world admires a lover." This is not less true of husbands than of single gentlemen. One of the most universally praised characteristics of the late President McKinley was his beautiful and untiring devotion to his invalid wife.

* * *

That China is becoming more and more westernized is evident from the following account of how she is reforming her currency system, taken from the New York Tribune: "The first great step was to establish a single standard, and the question arose what that standard should be. The chief officials, led by the eminent grand counselor, now deceased, Chang Chih-Tung, favored the tael. The reform party urged the adoption of the dollar. There were strong arguments on both sides, but the dollar finally won. Thus the Chinese system is at least nominally conformed with the American, the Japanese and those of other nations using the dollar or decimal system. The Chinese copper cash will correspond with our mill, and the table of currency will run: Ten cash, one cent; ten cents, one dime; ten dimes, one dollar. The advantage of this arrangement is obvious, and it accords with China's policy in adopting Sunday as a day of rest and other measures designed to harmonize with practices of the Western World."

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The Board of Education of the Louisiana Conference met at Mansfield on July 20, with Rev. P. M. Brown, presiding.

The objects of the mid-year meeting were to study existing conditions and to formulate plans for the future. The report of Centenary College was full of encouragement. During the last session they had paid current expenses of $12,000 and closed the session free from debt. They owe about $6,000 on the building, which will be more than taken care of by the Shreveport tax. They have overflowed their present building and are confident they could greatly increase the attendance, if they had sufficient accommodations. An administration building is imperatively needed. When this is built, they will be able to use the present building entirely as a dormitory, thus largely increasing their accommodations and efficiency. They are planning for temporary quarters for next session and will accommodate all students who may come.

A good faculty has been employed for the next session and boys are wanted.

Mansfield is not in such a critical condition as had been supposed and rumored. The most of the indebtedness is secured by mortgage notes; interest has been paid on them, and the parties are carrying them. Of the remainder, part of it will be carried for awhile, and part of it is pressing and must be paid. Plans were formulated whereby it is thought the pressing obligations will be liquidated during the next few months. The last half of the past session was very much more satisfactory than for some time past. President Peters feels confident that during the coming session the college will pay current expenses. There is no doubt that with careful management and with anything like a normal attendance, this can be done. The president and faculty have been elected for the ensuing year and the session will open in September, as usual.

It is the consensus of opinion that the outlook is brighter for prosperous sessions of both colleges than it has been for several years. Preachers and other friends of the institutions are urged to canvass for students, and if donations should come their way, do not decline them.

The preachers of the Conference are urgently requested to secure the assessment for education in full, or as near thereto as possible. There has been an educational revival in our State during the past ten years that is truly marvelous. From public school to university, great progress has been made, and I glory in it. We, as Methodists, need to be revived. An educational spirit should be aroused. We should rally to our colleges, form in solid phalanx and march forward with a banner flung out in advance, upon which is emblazoned, "Christian Education."

M. C. HOLT, Secretary.

PLANNING FOR WORK.

The Men and Religion Forward Movement has already registered more than one hundred men for its conference at Silver Bay on Lake George, Aug. 22 to 30; and expects that almost all cities in which conventions are to be held the coming year will have men there. The conference is to make final plans for what promises to be, it is said, the greatest campaign yet held. This campaign is to be inaugurated in simultaneous meetings to be held in St. Paul and Minneapolis during the first week in October. All members of all three teams of instructors will be present, and from these cities the teams will radiate for a continuous tour that is to last until the following May. A fourth team, chiefly for work in the East, will start with the new year. Committees have been formed in most States, and these are now selecting teams of speakers for conventions in cities not visited by the principal teams. The aim of the whole movement, as has been published, is to increase in the heads and hearts of men and boys of the United States and Canada the amount of old-fashioned religion and its expression in personal work. The teams are experts in many lines and are really faculties for the holding of institutes on work among boys, missions, Bible study, and the like.

The Centenary College of Louisiana
SHREVEPORT
Fall Term will open
Sept. 13, 1911.
For Catalogue or other information write to
FELIX R. HILL, President,
P. O. Box 455
SHREVEPORT, LA.

The AMERICAN PAINT WORKS
——Manufacturers of——
High Grade Mixed Paints; Perfecto White Lead; Nonpareil Carriage Paint; Varnish Stain; Colors in Oil; Wood Fillers; Chemically Pure Dry Colors, Etc.
428-434 JOSEPHINE STREET.....Phone 915
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

SUPPOSE YOU HAVE A FIRE TO-NIGHT?
GET SOLID PROTECTION AND INSURE WITH
LEON IRWIN & CO.
FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.
736 Union Street. Phone, Main 585.

Church News

Bishop E. E. Hoss is booked to preach at the Second Presbyterian Church, of Pittsburgh, Penn., on Aug. 6.

* * *

Bishop Mallalieu is reported to be seriously ill with angina pectoris at his home at Auburndale, Mass.

* * *

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ has issued an appeal to all the churches in the United States to observe the first Sunday in September as Labor Day.

* * *

Dr. J. C. C. Newton will sail for Japan from Vancouver on Aug. 8. He goes to resume his work as Dean of the School of Theology of the Kwansei Gakuin, at Kobe.

* * *

It has been publicly stated that Dr. S. A. Steel has been agreed upon for the presidency of the Methodist Conference Female Institute at Jackson, Tenn. Doctor Steel was slated to preach for Dr. Theo. Copeland at Cabanne Church, St. Louis, last Sunday.

* * *

Rev. C. J. Nugent and his flock at New Castle, Kentucky, have been making extensive improvements on their house of worship. The remodeled structure will be formally opened on Aug. 13, and all former pastors have been invited to be present.

* * *

A person whose name is withheld has recently turned over to the American University at Washington property valued at $200,000. The Methodist Episcopal Church is going gradually forward with the task of endowing this institution which has been projected at the National Capital. It will doubtless be a great school some day.

* * *

The Continuation of the World Missionary Conference, which met last year in Edinburgh, has decided to publish a missionary magazine. Representing so many denominations, it should be a catholic and most interesting periodical. We trust, however, that it will not be so cosmopolitan that it will not stand for the essential truths of Christianity.

* * *

Mrs. Richard Peters, of Atlanta, recently bequeathed $5,000 to the University of the South, at Sewanee, to be used for the education of poor young men desirous of studying for the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal Church. Mrs. Peters requested that the fund should be designated as "The Richard Peters Scholarship," in honor of her husband.

* * *

The only woman delegate to the Ecumenical Methodist Conference from the M. E. Church, South, will be Miss Belle Bennett. The Methodist Episcopal Church will send two women—Mrs. Jane Bancroft Robinson, president of the Woman's Board of Home Missions, and Mrs. Lucy Ryder Meyer, president of the Woman's Missionary Training School of Chicago.

* * *

Prof. J. F. Collins, of Alabama, has been elected principal of the new school which is to be opened this fall at the Seashore Camp Ground. The school is intended to be a preparatory one, seeking to fit its pupils for a creditable entrance into college. The boys attending will have dormitory facilities provided for them. Girls may be admitted, but for the present no arrangement will be made by the authorities to board them.

* * *

The British Weekly has the following personal note of interest on this side the sea: "Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, of Brooklyn, is spending his two months' vacation quietly in London. On this occasion he is accepting no preaching engagements whatever, as his health does not permit, and it is necessary for him to have complete rest before he returns to the work of his church. Doctor Cadman has taken a furnished house on the northern heights, and is much enjoying the change."

* * *

Dr. Charles M. Stuart, editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, who has been chosen to the chair of Christian Ethics and the Philosophy of Religion in the Wesleyan University, will not leave the tripod before the assembling of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church next year. Dr. Stuart wields a vigorous pen, and we regret that he has decided to enter another sphere of service. Good editors are not so plentiful that they can be picked up at any time and just anywhere.

* * *

It was stated in a recent number of the Commercial Appeal that the Methodists of Memphis are planning to have a big rally in that city in the near future in the interest of the Tri-State Hospital. An effort will be made to secure the presence of five or six Bishops and a number of other men of connectional prominence on this occasion. Those having this important enterprise in charge evidently mean to push vigorously the work in its behalf. We heartily commend them for their activity.

* * *

A movement is under way to build a Southern Methodist Church on the Shiloh battlefield. Two old Confederate soldiers visited Memphis a few days since soliciting funds for this purpose. They have already in hand $1,500, and when as much as $2,500 has been secured, work will be begun on the structure. The building is not intended to be used as merely a place for memorials, but preaching services will also be regularly conducted in it. Any Confederate or Federal veteran who participated in the memorable battle fought on this field is especially appealed to for assistance. Contributions may be sent to Mr. G. H. Hurley, treasurer, Michie, Hardin County, Tenn. The First National Bank of Savannah, Tenn., is the depository for the fund.

A TRIBUTE OF LOVING APPRECIATION.

Dear Brother Meek: Will you grant me space for a few words of loving appreciation of that great and good man, so recently removed from Mississippi Methodism to the place prepared for him among the redeemed, Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan?

Not as one competent or sufficiently well informed about the events of his long and useful career to attempt a life sketch, would I speak, but simply as one who knew and loved him in the calm eventide of his beautiful life; for the sunset tints were in the sky, when first it was my privilege to know him; but not as yet the "twilight and evening star, which antedated the "one clear call" to him to come up higher.

During our acquaintance of about twelve years, he has been to my mind the concrete manifestation of our Savior's beatitude, "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." So close and intimate was his own walk with God that, like Moses descending from Sinai's top, his face shone with the divine presence, but he wist not that it was so. Such was the genuine modesty and true humility of his great soul, he never suspected the silent weight and eloquent influence of his consecrated life. At once a mark and test of real greatness, this.

The true [illegible] measured by God's standard, is not an Alexander weeping for further conquest of his fellow-man; not a Napoleon, ruthlessly overrunning two continents in the gratification of personal ambition; not a Julius Caesar, invincible in his own genius for leadership, and in the loyalty of his legions, extending the military supremacy of imperial Rome. But the real hero is God's saint, who, like our dear lamented friend, walks daily in the footsteps of the Master—going ever, and fainting not, in the way the Savior trod—ministering to the spiritual needs of a heart-hungry world—his life an "epistle known and read of men."

Measured by any standard, Dr. Sullivan met the full requirements of a great, a good, and a true man. He was richly dowered by nature with a deeply analytical mind, a profound insight into spiritual truths, a keen discernment of things essential unto godliness, and a Gibraltar-like strength in standing therefor, and withal a purity, modesty, and sweetness passing that of woman. Nothing less than Christ-like, indeed, for the meek and lowly One was its divine source in his gentle life.

As a brother minister, as our presiding elder, and, later, as a superannuate preacher, at all times as our dear friend and honored guest, he was often in our parsonage home, bringing with him the aroma of his saintly life to linger like a heavenly benediction in our hearts forever. Not an inmate of that home, from the baby girl who early learned to lisp the name of our beloved friend, to the servants about the place, but responded to the beauty of his guileless character, and paid silent deference thereto in the fullest measure of respect, admiration and love. We are poorer, indeed, in his loss, but infinitely richer in spiritual treasures for having known, loved and entertained this saintly man. While we shall not look upon his like again in the flesh, we shall be comforted and strengthened by the blessed memories enshrined forever in our hearts, and by the knowledge that such as he have lived and wrought, and died. He has left behind an elect company who are visible, tangible demonstrations of the power of a "life hid with Christ in God," the precious remembrance of which links earth and heaven anew each day.

The influence of his consecrated life and godly example upon all who knew him, but more especially upon his brethren in the North Mississippi Conference, cannot be estimated by the mathematics of time, nor expressed in terms of our finite understanding. Not two weeks ago I heard one of his younger brothers in the ministry say of Dr. Sullivan: "He is the incarnation of my ideal of a knightly Christian gentleman." What a life-history is comprised in those few words!

Had our princely friend lived in the days of King Arthur, he would have been a Percival, bold to declare for the guest of the Holy Grail; and like Sir Galahad, the pure, his vision would have encompassed that blessed revelation of things unspeakably holy. And like that stainless knight of old, even in an age of blatant materialism and rationalism, his rapt soul was so fixed upon the spiritual verities, he could well exclaim: "My strength of ten, because my heart is pure."

Living in such an age, and not in that of legend and romance, he became, not a knight of the mystic Table Round, but a transcendently greater force for good—a soldier of the cross, fighting under the banner of Prince Immanuel.

But he has fallen on sleep; blessed be our Father, who giveth his beloved sleep! Already, we doubt not he has awakened in the perfect likeness of his risen Lord. Though tear-dimmed our vision to-day, the voice of Faith whispers to the bruised, aching heart: "He is not dead, but sleepeth;" and clearer, sweeter still the note, "and lo! he is alive forever more!"

MARY GORE WYATT.

Brookhaven, Miss., July 12, 1911.

A DELIGHTFUL OUTING.

Had you happened to be walking along Esplanade Avenue at 6 o'clock on the morning of July 12, you might have seen a group of fine girls waiting with their friends at the door of St. Mark's Hall, talking of what they would do during the coming week. To-day is the day when their hopes and earnest efforts are to be realized. Since Christmas last the Girls' Club has worked hard on many useful kinds of needlework, which at a recent sale provided them with the money that is to pay for a week's holiday at Long Beach.

Miss Ragland now joins us, whom we all highly esteem, and the girls love her as their own, for they feel that they owe so much to her patience and loving self-surrender. So, with numerous bundles of various sizes, vallses, bat and ball, we go bumping and talking and laughing to the street car on which we are hurried to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad station, where we join the great number who travel on the excursion train, because there is no other way that we can go which will have more regard for our none too opulent purses; tickets are purchased, and we wait for the porter to open the doors of the car, that we may get in first to secure a seat. Thus the initial "fresh air excursion" of St. Mark's Hall is begun.

Travel with me in imagination with the girls under a glorious summer sky. We have arrived at Long Beach, and the distance to our home for the next week is soon covered; the landlady is at the door and welcoming us to her house, which is large and airy, fitted with sanitary fixtures, electric lights; also well screened and only a block away from the beach.

We look around and take possession of our new quarters, when we discover we are hungry, and one of the girls asks Miss Ragland whether we are to eat here. "No," says Miss Ragland; "we eat across the road, at the 'Angel House,' and with a laugh adds: "There's nothing 'tacky' about the Girls' Club." Thus we are installed, and a most happy week follows. One of the girls did not know how to mail a letter at the post office, and another had not seen the country for seven years. She has been working in a sweat shop. How the change has brought back the color to the poor young, sunken cheeks, together with some degree of roundness! But a week is all too short for any lasting benefit.

To the men of New Orleans that dwell in its beautiful homes, may I make a suggestion on behalf of those who eke out an existence not marked by sunshine and fresh air, whose houses are antiquated and unfit for human habitation, and whose chances for making normal men and women are thereby hampered? I suppose no city in the world would get greater returns for less expenditure from a large institution where we could send our poor children, both old and young, for a month once a year to be vitalized and enriched by contact with nature and the beauties of the country. Why not the men of Methodism go to work and build something worthy of the Christ and their Church?

E. E. S. MACKENZIE.

A STRONG ENDORSEMENT.

In his eloquent introduction to The Modes Of The Heavenly Life, by Rev. Walter G. Harbin, Dr. Robt. A. Meek, the editor of the Advocate says of this book:

" * * * It is a popular and practical discussion, designed to be helpful to hungry hearts. The sermons are substantially as they were delivered, and as God has so signally used them in the awakening and upbuilding of his people. They are scriptural, forceful, and appealing, and abound in beautiful passages and apt illustrations. No one can read them without being stirred to holier aspirations."

Cloth and gold, only 50 cents, postpaid.

By the same author: A Man Wanted, paper, 15 cents, postpaid. Of this great sermon to men, Bishop Murrah wrote: "I would be glad if every young man in the land could hear this address."

Order from Chas. O. Chalmers, 512 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

"A LITTLE CHILD SHALL LEAD THEM."

C. E. Strawbridge in the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

It was during a revival held in an Ohio town by "Billy" Sunday that a "pillar" of one of the leading churches said: "The greatest sermon I ever heard was one preached to me last evening in my own home. We had been singing a number of hymns when my little eight-year-old daughter said: 'Papa, don't you know you don't do it right? This is all singing and no praying. That ain't the way we do it at church, is it? Say, papa, why don't you ever pray, anyway?'

"That was more than I could stand; I went to another room and after a while returned, and suggested that we study the next Sunday's Sunday school lesson together. We had not proceeded far when she again exclaimed: 'Papa, you do this so funny. A while ago it was all singing and no praying, and now it is all reading and no praying.'

"Boys, that was more than I could stand. I have listened to sermons by some of the best preachers in the land on the subject of duties of parents, and have raised a family, some of them of age, but the duties resting upon my shoulders as a father were never so vividly pictured to me before as then. This noon for the first time in thirty years I made a stagger at asking a blessing at the table, and to-night we are going to have family prayer at our house if I can't say more than 'Heavenly Father, show this little girl how to teach me to pray.'"

Wondrous are the ways of Providence, and is it any wonder that the old adage is so oft repeated: "A little child shall lead them?"

THE WORK AT GRENADA COLLEGE.

The true status of Grenada College is not understood by many who live within the bounds of the North Mississippi Conference, to which the property, valued at $80,000, belongs absolutely. It is not leased to the president for his personal profit, but his salary, with that of all the faculty, is fixed by the Board of Trustees and he accounts to them for every dollar received and expended. Besides having free use of this splendid property, the school receives each year the equivalent of the income from $50,000 of endowment in the collection taken for education in the Conference. From the foregoing facts, it is obvious that the students of the college receive much more than could be secured for them by the mere cost of board and tuition, having much advantage over those attending private schools operated for dividends, or leased schools run for the profit of the lessees.

In the past few years the curriculum has been raised by at least three years, so that the work required for the A.B. degree is equal to that required by the very best schools for girls in the South. The school does not display an elaborate array of impossible "electives" to deceive the unwary, does not offer degrees by the wholesale, but confines attention to a well-rounded classical course leading to the degree of bachelor of arts. The primary department has been eliminated that there may be more room for other departments of the school. A preparatory department offers four years of work to those not ready to enter the freshman class.

A superb faculty of fourteen members give their entire time to the instruction and development of the students. Four of these teach music, two expression and art. Every teacher in the school is a specialist in her department. They are not content with graduation and experience, but study each year to better equip themselves for their work. This summer two of them are in the University of Chicago, one in the University of Michigan, one in Tulane, New Orleans, one in Cincinnati Conservatory, one in New York City Art School, while the housekeeper is in the University of Tennessee, taking a course in chemistry of foods, food values, and cooking, that she may give suitable nourishment to the body while others train the mind. What small college in the entire South can make a similar showing?

The past session was a great success. An excellent student body did thorough work. The business prospered and the profits of the session are now being expended on the property. There was not a single business dispute or misunderstanding, nor was there a sharp or fault-finding letter received from a patron of the school. "Peace be within thy walls and prosperity within thy palaces." We thank God and take courage. J. R. COUNTISS, President.

WHITWORTH COLLEGE, BROOKHAVEN, MISS.

Whitworth College closed a prosperous session May 15th, 1911, with a registration of two hundred and fifty students, and twenty officers and teachers. The Trustees will make $40,000 or $50,000 worth of improvements within the next eighteen months.

Next session begins September 14, 1911. The following faculty is one of the strongest in the history of the College:

Mrs. B. W. Lipscomb, A.M., Mathematics and Dean of Faculty.

Miss Elizabeth Lusby, Webb School and Agnes Scott, Latin and Greek.

Miss Majorie Chappell Davis, A.B. and A.M., University of Tennessee, English.

Miss Ruby Lawhon, A.B. and A.M., University of Alabama, Science and French.

Mrs. J. M. Wyatt, A.B., I. I. & C., History.

Miss Sadie Matthews, B.L., Whitworth College, Preparatory Department.

Misses Floyce Taylor, B.L., and Ora Neil Moore, Whitworth College, Assistants.

Piano—Miss Elizabeth McVoy, Directress, Conservatories of Cincinnati and Boston.

Miss Lois Wadsworth Cooper, A.B., and M.B., Whitworth College, M.B., Conservatory of Music, Cincinnati.

Miss Sara Stout, Conservatory of Cincinnati, Piano and Harmony.

Miss Courtney Ranch, A.B. and M.B., Whitworth College.

Voice—Miss Carrie Lewis, Cincinnati and New York.

Expression—Miss Dubois Elder, Curry School of Expression.

Miss Sophie Cameron, Monitress.

Mrs. L. S. Burdine, Matron.

Dr. J. T. Butler, College Physician and Manager.

Miss Willie Williams, Housekeeper.

Mr. W. A. Atwood, Night Watchman.

Rev. Paul D. Hardin, Financial Secretary.

Art and Commercial teachers will be named later.

One of the Mississippi State Normals closed a most prosperous session July 7th. Approximately, two hundred were entertained at Whitworth College. The following instructors were entertained at the College: Prof. Woodley, of Hattiesburg; Prof. Windom, of Canton; Prof. Rose, Yazoo City; Mrs. Hardy, Blue Mountain; Mrs. Crawford, Cold Water; Mrs. Topp, Greenwood; Prof. Thames, Picayune; Prof. McClesky, Hazlehurst; Prof. Vandiver, New Albany; Miss Rowan, Wesson; Mrs. Lipscomb, Brookhaven; Prof. Bennett, Brookhaven; Prof. Schumpert, Brookhaven. These instructors unanimously adopted the following resolutions:

Whereas we, the instructors of the Brookhaven Summer Normal of 1911 desire to express our appreciation of the many courtesies shown us, therefore, be it

Resolved 1st. That we commend unreservedly the splendid accommodations, the excellent table fare and the unsurpassed dining-room service furnished us by Whitworth College under the management of President I. W. Cooper.

2nd. That we commend the sanitary conditions of Whitworth College and bear cheerful testimony to the healthfulness of the location.

"INTRODUCING MEN TO CHRIST."

This is the title of an attractive book just off the press bearing the imprint of Smith & Lamar. The author is Mr. W. D. Weatherford, Ph.D., Student Secretary for the South of the Young Men's Christian Association. The volume was prepared at the suggestion of the General Secretary of the Epworth League. It is designed to stimulate young people to do personal evangelism and to aid them in the work by practical directions which are the fruits of the author's ten years' experience in this particular field.

The author succeeds in doing three definite services for his readers. In the first part of the volume Dr. Weatherford gives a fresh and vigorous discussion of a man's personal relation to Jesus Christ. How the relationship is entered upon is described in the old terms of repentance, confession and surrender; but these great soul experiences are illuminated by interpretations of the psychic phenomena involved which are restfully satisfying. Then the author points out the tremendous issue involved in the result. The self-centered life gives way to the Christ-centered life. One set of ideas gives place to an entirely different group. "Others" gradually gain ascendency over "myself." Honesty and kindliness occupy the room hitherto the dwelling place of deceitfulness and rudeness.

The next portion of the book is devoted to a study of the nature of Christianity. Our faith is disclosed to be not an affair of ceremonies and creeds but of a personal friendship. Christ is clearly presented as the available Friend of every man. His superiority to all other religious teachers is shown to be absolute. Buddhism, Confucianism, Mohammedanism, Brahmanism are briefly though sharply analyzed and their appalling insufficiency convincingly demonstrated. The student is made to feel that the Christ friendship is the only power capable of lifting man toward God.

The chosen method by which the kingdom of friendship is to be extended is the theme of the closing pages. Personal testimony is shown to be this method. The subject is treated under the heads: "Why Men Neglect to Bear Personal Testimony," "How to Awaken the Indifferent and Self-Satisfied," "How to Help the Man Whose Faith is Unsettled," "Fundamentals of the Christian Faith," "Helping Men Solve Difficulties about Christ." It will thus be seen that Dr. Weatherford has given his work the additional value of a practical handbook on the art of winning souls.

The author's style is direct, clear and forceful. Scholastic language is avoided. The pages are not burdened with labored definitions or controversial discussions.

The arrangement of the matter is accommodated to the plan of daily reading and meditation. The Scripture basis for each day's study is printed in full at the beginning of the paragraph. Each section is compressed within the limits of three or four hundred words, thus requiring only a few minutes at a sitting in order to complete the volume in the prescribed time of ten weeks.

At the end of the volume occurs a list of twenty-nine books bearing on the subject of soul-winning. Each book has been read by the author of "Introducing Men to Christ," who gives his readers the value of his judgment, written in a paragraph, concerning the relative importance of each several book.

Bound in green cloth with bronze gilt imprint, this volume adds to its other qualities of high merit a pleasingly attractive appearance. Published by Smith & Lamar. Price, 75 cents net.

Geo. W. Riehl. Aug. Rauxet, Jr.

RIEHL & RAUXET,
Successors to Lowengardt & Armstrong,
JEWELERS,
122 BARONNE STREET - - New Orleans, La
(Optical Department: M. F. Fitzgerald, Optician.)
Phone, Main 737.

W. W. Carre Co. Ltd
Manufacturer Exporter of | Lumber
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

THE
Grant Furniture Co.
IS NOW HAVING A
GREAT REMOVAL SALE
PRICES ON EVERY ARTICLE
IN THEIR
ENTIRE STOCK HAVE BEEN REDUCED
OUTFITS ESPECIALLY PRICED
427-429-431 Canal Street, New Orleans

The Home Circle

NIGHT.

Home to her hive now hies the bee,
Home to her underground halls the ant;
Away on the marshes mournfully
The frogs are beginning their mellow chant.

Under a leaf doth the butterfly cling,
Under a leaf doth she sleep,
While moths fly about on noiseless wing
The watch of the night to keep.

Abroad are the bats, flitting to and fro;
Abroad are the whip-poor-wills, too;
And fireflies are shedding their feeble glow,
Rising up from the grass and the dew.

How silent the night, how wonderfully sad!
With midnight all levity flees;
But when the sun rises the whole world is glad,
And then, 'tis but joy that one sees.

—Elizabeth Brazeale, aged 5 years, in the Weekly Witness.

GOOD STILTS.

For most of the day Saturday, Peter had been working on his stilts. Late in the afternoon he tried them. It was a little hard at first to keep his balance on them, but, as we all know, it does not take a lively boy long to master such things.

So, early on Monday morning, mother heard an unusual noise in the back yard. "Stump, stump, stump," it went, along the porch. Mother opened the kitchen door and Peter laugbed in great glee as she had to look up instead of down, to see his face.

"Ho, mother! I'm ready for work and I guess it's just in time. Look!"

He pointed out at the paths. A great deal of snow was on the ground and a sudden thaw had come. Slush and water lay everywhere. Peter proudly stumped and splashed about to show how well he could go.

"Oh, my dear," she said, "I was just wondering how I could get the chickens' breakfast out to them. The water's over shoe for everybody."

"Not for me," said Peter. "Give me tbe stuff."

He fed the chickens and then looked about to see what else he could do. He plied his sled with wood and kindling and drew it to the kitchen door. It was hard work. If Peter had been made to work as hard at anything else he would have thought himself ill-used.

Mother was pleased and said so. She generally spoke of it when she was pleased, which, perhaps, may be a reason why Peter liked to please her. As, after clearing a way for the water to run off the paths, and hauling a box which he later intended to use for a hot-bed, he went in to breakfast, mother said:

"I like it when boys make use of their fun and their plays to be helpful instead of making them an annoyance, as some boys do."

Her words set Peter to thinking how pleasant it was, although he had not given much thought to it. But now he could recall times when he had been tricky and annoying to others. And he argued with himself that doing the helpful things was much pleasanter to himself as to the others.

His little sister Bessie watched him as he started for school, and he waved his hand in good-bye. He found that the streets were full of water and half-melted snow, the sidewalk being built high enough to be just above it. As he, disdaining the walk, tramped happily through the slush and rounded a corner some girls on the walk began screaming at him: "Oh, go away! Go away! Don't come near us!"

Peter stopped in surprise. "Why not?" he asked.

"Because of those stilts. They are hateful things. When our cousin was here last fall and it was rainy and muddy, he used to come around with his stilts and splash us. Now—you keep away!"

"But, said Peter, "I'm not going to splash you. Not a drop. You see if I do."

He walked along beside them so quietly that very soon the girls became interested in his stilts.

"You walk well on them," said one. "Better than my cousin did." And they laughed when he walked into the deepest puddles he could find, and made a great splashing when he was sure it could not reach them.

A little farther on they heard a pitiful call. A small girl stood on the porch of a house which was surrounded by slush, the walk to the gate being so low as to be quite out of sight.

"I can't go to school," she whimpered.

"O Patty—that's too bad! Can't you get out any way?"

Patty shook her head despairingly.

"Oh, I wouldn't dare!" cried Patty.

And even Peter, though so proud of his stilts, felt that he would scarcely dare it himself. "But, wait a minute." Peter splashed around the house. He was gone for a few minutes and came back drawing a sled.

"Get on Patty," he said, "and I'll see you dry to the sidewalk"

With many little squeals and giggles from all the girls Patty was soon safely landed where she could skip along to school, calling behind her: "Peter, you're the very best!"

And Peter more and more agreed with his mother as to the pleasure of doing pleasant things. He kept it up during the day, more than once finding opportunity to lend helpful steps, as well as hands, where opportunity came in his way.

He waited for Patty as she reached home in the afternoon, again drawing her on the sled to her door. As he came back a grocer's wagon was drawn up to the sidewalk. A boy with a basket got out of it and was gazing with perplexity at the place where the path should have been.

"How am I to get this in?" he was grumbling as the boy on stilts came near.

"I'll carry it in for you," said Peter. "No, I won't drop it. I've carried lots of things to-day. See—I'll put it on Patty's sled."

The groceries went safely, and as the basket came back the boy took a big handful of nuts from inside the wagon.

"Here, Peter, don't you like nuts? I do. These are fine mixed. I'll make it right with Mr. Ware when I get back."

Peter's mother stood to welcome him as he reached home. He said to her:

"These are jolly good stilts."

"And it's a jolly good boy on the top of them," she said.

Peter laid them on the porch and went in to give the nuts to Bessie.—Sidney Dayre, in the Northwestern Christian Advocate.

OUR LITTLE TOM.

Little Tom, the third Thomas Moore Biossat, was born in Lafayette, and died after only seven months at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Skipwith, in Baton Rouge, June 13, 1911. So, like a tender little flower which blooms for a single day and fades away at evening, this dear little boy brought happiness for a brief while before joining the angels among the flowers of Paradise.

Ah, the time was all too short, yet long enough to fix memories that will remain through all eternity, long enough to find a place that will never be filled! His winning little smile, his baby voice, his bright blue eyes, and his soft brown hair, are cherished in hearts that were bound together with his.

May all who loved him, though in anguish, bow and say, "Thy will be done." May they realize there was some divine purpose in this, though now they may not understand. May they remember that their lives are better though he had to go away, that 'tis better that he was and is not, than never to have been at all. May they thank God for the love and the heart throbs they never would have known but for the sweet, pure life of little Tom.

Grandparents, may you find comfort in your faith of many years; may your sons and daughters, the uncles and aunts of little Tom, find God a very present help in time of trouble. May you, papa and mamma, cling hard to the kind hand of the Lord, who could weep beside the grave of his friend.

Mamma, may you be comforted in that Savior's love. Papa, strong in your manhood, may you say with suffering David of old, "I shall go to him, but he shall not return to me."

The hope of future years perished with little Tom, fell into ruin like the fabric of a vanished dream. But, as we heard the minister who put little Tom away in Lafayette among the flowers that were so like his pure, sweet life, as we heard him read the words of Jesus, "Suffer little children to come unto me," we knew our Tom belonged to heaven more than earth, that of such indeed is the kingdom of God. And we know that he awaits us in heaven. In that heavenly home may there be no vacant chair! And while still we look on the lowering sky, we see "The rift in the cloud:"

"My arms are empty now, and all my tears
Will ne'er bring back our dear little Tom to me;"
But something sweet will live beyond the years—
Fond memories to bind and heal a broken heart.

Your wearied arms are empty—better that,
Than ne'er to have held little Tom to your heart at all.
'Tis better for sweet-strung lutes to tremble and break,
Than silent lie and mould in a crumbling hall.

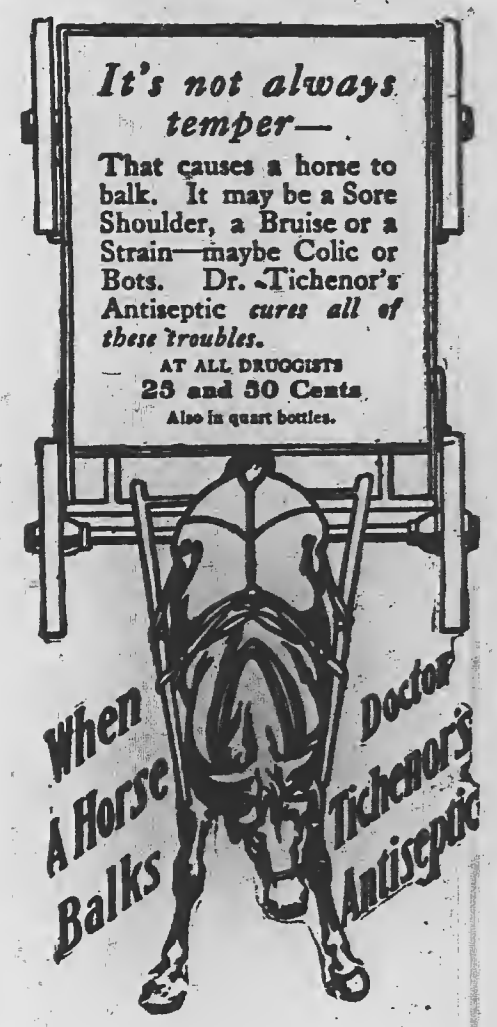
Empty arms and aching hearts—O God!
But may it bring your grief an interlude,
That you are parents here of an angel there
In heavenly fields of bright beatitude.

'Tis not an evil you have suffered so,
For that will bring you nearer to your God;
The fires of pain and anguish forge a link
To draw you where no way of sorrow's trod.

No—little Tom will not return to you,
But you may go to him. In that fair land
You'll see no longer darkly through a glass—
But face to face—and know—and understand.

His uncle,
R. H. HARPER.

THE SAFEST AND QUICKEST WAY
—TO—
TRANSFER MONEY
—IS BY—
Long Distance Telephone
FOR RATES APPLY TO LOCAL MANAGER,
Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co
INCORPORATED.



It's not always temper—
That causes a horse to balk. It may be a Sore Shoulder, a Bruise or a Strain—maybe Colic or Bots. Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic cures all of these troubles.
AT ALL DRUGGISTS
25 and 50 Cents
Also in quart bottles.
When A Horse Balks
Doctor Tichenor's Antiseptic

Christian Advocate.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.
CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

OFFICE: 512 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

TERMS:

One Copy, one year, $1.50; eight months, $1.00. To preachers of all Denominations, $1.00.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE

Louisiana Conference—Rev. N. E. Joyner, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake.

Mississippi Conference—Rev. I. W. Cooper, D.D. Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. D. Ellis.

North Mississippi Conference—Rev. J. T. Murrah, Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. H. S. Spragins.

Editorial.

It takes more than pious airs to make a pious man. Even Satan can quote Scripture and affect to be religious.

* * *

The political pot is beginning to simmer in Louisiana. It is to be hoped that it will not boil over as it has done in Mississippi.

* * *

At a banquet in Loudon on the Fourth of July, Ambassador Reid is said to have referred to Theodore Roosevelt as "a man with a great career behind him." A better thing can be said of every faithful Christian, namely: that he has a great career BEFORE him. In God's service the future is always better than the past.

* * *

Dr. Courtland Myers, in the North Carolina Christian Advocate, says: "God's greatest agency for winning men back to himself is the prayers of other men." This is true most emphatically, but many seem to have forgotten it. More time spent in the closet and less on dress parade, would mightily improve the Christianity of our age.

* * *

Dr. Ivey of the Nashville Christian Advocate and Dr. Gilbert of the Western Christian Advocate have made public acknowledgment that they have gone to sleep in Church. A bad example for ministers and church dignitaries to set! We once read the following story of a somnolent audience in the house of the Lord: The pastor was dragging along through his discourse with soothing tones, when the excited sexton thrust his head through a door and exclaimed, "Parson, the church is on fire." "Very well," responded the clergyman, "I will retire; and you had better wake up the congregation."

* * *

The New Orleans Picayune says: "Visitors to the Mosque of St. Sophia in Constantinople notice immediately upon their entrance a beautiful fragrance pervading the entire building. The explanation lies in the fact that when it was constructed a thousand years ago, the stones and bricks were laid in mortar mixed with a solution of musk. Those who laid those stones have been long forgotten, but the influence and fragrance of their work remain." So may every good man, by wisely investing his energies in the things which endure, leave behind him influences that will bless succeeding generations long after he has vanished into the sphere invisible.

WORTHY OF CONSIDERATION.

We desire to call special attention to the article which appears in this number of the Advocate under the caption, "As Others See Us." Emanating from the source it does, it is well worthy of careful consideration and should carry not a little weight. It is quite the fashion nowadays to find fault with our Methodist polity and to charge up to some phase of it the responsibility for our lack of success. If our work does not prosper in some city, many are quick to say the time limit is the thing that hinders and that it should be dispensed with. If a few of the Conferences do not show a creditable gain in membership, we frequently hear the cry that there is too much despotism in the Church and that we need to curtail the power of the Bishops and make our government more democratic. The connection abounds in would-be reconstructionists. That in many respects we are not accomplishing what we ought, all must admit; but to ascertain exactly what hinders in every instance is not an easy task. The connecting link between cause and effect is often a most difficult thing to trace. Non causa pro causa is the most common of all fallacies. Its sway is world-wide and all men are more or less its victims.

The truth is, the Methodists are giving about as good an account of themselves in the battle to extend the Master's kingdom as any body of Christians on earth. And of all the Wesleyan branches of the Church Militant, none is doing better than ours. To be sure, we have our troubles, but so do all the other denominations. The difference is that we know ours, but theirs we do not. If we could exchange with them and wrestle with their difficulties for a while, it is quite likely that we would be anxious for the old way and thoroughly cured of our discontent. "Candidating" for an appointment would, we feel sure, relieve some of the brethren of their notion that the episcopacy is a needless incumbrance. There are many people who do not know when they are well off. The good thing is always what they haven't got—the desirable place is always elsewhere. As Southern Methodists we are rich in our heritage and possessions, and we should appreciate them and feel grateful for them. Let us not in a fit of folly discard methods which we have tested and know to be efficient, for others which are not as good and of which those who have tried them have grown weary.

OUR POSITION ON THE QUESTION.

We publish in this issue a brief contribution entitled "Nietzsche," from the pen of Mr. J. D. Barbee, of Greenville, Miss. As another communication respectfully criticising the present editorial policy of the Methodist Review appeared in our columns some weeks ago, it may not be amiss for us to say a few words concerning our own attitude toward this scholarly and ably edited journal. Nothing could be further from our purpose in giving space to these communications than to injure this periodical. On the contrary, we read every issue of the Review with interest, and we sincerely wish that its circulation might be many times increased. Certainly it ought to be in the hands of every preacher, and many of our more intelligent laymen would be much profited if they would take it and read it. Let no one think because some have advanced the view that this stately publication is too tolerant of some of the prevailing isms and errors that one should cease to subscribe to it and that it should be boycotted. Such a course would be wholly without justification, and none would condemn it more than Brothers Lipscomb and Barbee. These brethren appreciate the Review and have no notion of doing without it. They recognize the fact that it has too many excellencies to be dispensed with because of what they conceive to be some faults. Their position is that the Review is ours, and that if it is not what it ought to be, it is our duty to seek to make it so. It was with the hope of rendering his great journal more serviceable to the Church that these brethren wrote their articles and that we gave them a place in the Advocate.

In these statements, however, we do not desire to be misunderstood. In the main, we concur in the views advanced by our correspondents. That the Review is under any less obligation to defend the doctrines of Methodism and evangelical Christianity than the other periodicals of the Church, we do not at all admit. That it is to be an open forum where persons of all beliefs and no belief may meet upon terms of equality and set forth their variant teachings, is a conception of its function to which we cannot give endorsement. We concede that the Review should "keep its readers informed, as far as possible, of the great currents of thoughts and the great thinkers of the day," but when the writings of distinguished men are of a skeptical character and conflict with the tenets of orthodox Christianity, in our judgment, it should point out their errors and seek aggressively to counteract their influence. That a periodical of this kind cannot do this and yet measure up to a high standard of excellence, is to us a strange contention. Have the gentlemen forgotten Albert Taylor Bledsoe and the Review which he gave to the Church and the world? No greater journal was ever issued from the American press, and yet with ponderous battle-ax the great thinker of Methodism smote error wherever it dared to rear its horrid head.

A like vigorous championship of the truths of revealed religion by men able to set them forth in their full strength, is one of the imperative needs of this day, when innumerable errors, like Goliath of old, are strutting abroad and seeking to terrorize those who accept the Bible as the Word of God. It is a noble opportunity which the Review has, to take up the gauge of battle against these enemies of the faith and put them to flight. Compared to such a service, the mere promotion of literary and theological culture is of trivial importance.

It is now getting to be quite common to hear a minister say with an air of superior knowledge, "I am not afraid of the higher critics and the apostles of rationalistic thought. Let them alone—they cannot hurt the old Book or overturn the Christian religion." But there is neither wit, nor wisdom, nor worth in such words. That our ministers should continue to be men of sound and simple faith is a matter of the most profound importance. Concerning nothing does the Church need to be more careful and watchful. The Northern Presbyterians listened to this siren song of the so-called progressives until they waked up to the fact that some of their theological schools were turning out young preachers who had repudiated many of the most cherished doctrines of Christianity. And now they are strenuously battling to uproot these heresies and prevent their spread. In clarion tones their papers are calling attention to the gravity of the situation and are seeking to avert the dangers which they now see are imminent. Well may Southern Methodists learn a lesson from their experience. Minimizing the evils of unbelief, even though palliated by an occasional worthy sentiment, may be a pleasant pastime, but it can bring neither profit nor strength to the Church. Christianity is only intolerant—against error of every phase and form it must inflexibly stand. Never will it make any progress toward the fulfillment of its mission by exhibiting a spirit of compromise. By contending unceasingly for truth and righteousness, may it alone hope to triumph.

GRENADA COLLEGE.

The statement from President Countiss concerning Grenada College which appears upon another page is highly gratifying, and will be read with interest by the Methodists of North Mississippi. The fact is, this excellent institution is not appreciated as it should be, either by the constituency which maintains it or the Church at large. In no other school in the connection is more conscientious and painstaking work being done. Despising sham and pretense, the authorities who have control of its affairs decided years ago that they would insist upon the courses of study being faithfully and thoroughly taught, and announced that they would graduate no pupil who failed to measure up to the prescribed standard of efficiency. This rule has been strictly adhered to, and though it has lessened the popularity of the college with certain classes, it has made for it a reputation that is invaluable among those who are capable of discerning between the genuine and the spurious in the work of education.

The editor of the Advocate tries to be honest in what he has to say concerning the institutions of the Church, as well as other things. We have some schools that he would hesitate to commend, but in the case of Grenada College he feels no restraint in giving it his unqualified endorsement. The buildings are well arranged and comfortable, the curriculum is far above the average, and the faculty have been carefully chosen and are competent. Brother Countiss, who is at the head of the institution, is one of the best equipped college presidents that we know. Let the pastors and people of the North Mississippi Conference rally to his support, and fill every room in the college on the opening day of the next session. By so doing, they will render a great service to the Church and the young womanhood of their State.

A MATTER OF IMPORTANCE.

The publisher has recently mailed to the pastors in the Mississippi Conferences lists of the subscribers to the Advocate in the communities in which they (the pastors) reside. Where a charge is made up of more than one church, or where members receive mail at a different post office from the pastor, it is impossible to send the names of those to whom the paper goes at the other places, because it is not known in the office to whose work they belong. It is a matter of great importance that those whose subscriptions are expiring shall, if possible, be induced to renew. Both the interests of the Church and of the Advocate demand this, and we request the brethren to do their best to keep the Conference organ in the homes of the people. Not a few of the preachers have made a creditable showing in this work, and we assure them of our most hearty appreciation of the good service which they have rendered. May we not hope that a faithful canvass for renewals will be made in every appointment at an early date? Where a pastor has several post offices within the bounds of his charge, if he will inform us what they are, we will take pleasure in sending the lists that go into the communities concerning which we have not written him. Help us, brethren, that we may be able to help you in the great work to which the Lord has called you. Our members must be kept informed as to general affairs of the kingdom if they are to attain to the largest measure of usefulness.

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS' ASSEMBLY.

This body assembled at the Seashore Camp Ground on Thursday evening, July 20, with a fairly good attendance. Many of the addresses delivered have been helpful and inspiring, and the interest in the exercises has been well sustained. Dr. F. S. Parker, Epworth League Secretary, and Dr. E. H. Rawlings of the Mission Board, have been present, and their stirring messages have contributed much to the success of the occasion. Other prominent workers on hsnd and taking part are: Dr. C. P. Atkinson, of the Southern University; Mrs. Nelly O'Berne, three years a missionary in Mexico; Mr. Hugh A. Lock, of Birmingham; Miss Florence Granbery, of Jackson, Miss.; Rev. P. O. Lowrey, Louisiana Sunday school missionary; Rev. George D. Booth, pastor of Napoleon Avenue Presbyterian Church, New Orleans; Mrs. A. F. Watkins, of Hattiesburg, and Miss Daisy Davies, who is connected with the Board of Missions. Rev. J. Bruce Airey is the president of the Assembly, and to his enthusiastic efforts in its behalf the success which the organization has achieved has been largely due. The Mississippi Conference Epworth Leagues held their annual meeting in connection with the Workers' Assembly last Friday and Saturday. We hope to publish a full report of the proceedings in our next issue.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Dr. John W. Boswell paid the late Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan a beautiful tribute in last week's issue of the Nashville Christian Advocate. They were Conference classmates and devoted friends.

Mrs. M. L. Myers, of Raymond, Miss., writes requesting that her Advocate be sent to Brevard, N. C., as she expects to remain there for some weeks. We wish her a pleasant sojourn in the "land of the sky."

Rev. N. E. Joyner has been delivering a series of stereopticon lectures before the Christian Workers' Assembly at the Seashore Camp Ground. They have been highly interesting and have called forth many expressions of appreciation.

The Methodist Church at New Hebron was dedicated last Sunday at 11 o'clock a.m. by Dr. I. W. Cooper, president of Whitworth College. This is one of the appointments of the Silver Creek charge, of which Rev. R. A. Sibley, Jr., is the popular pastor.

The Southern Reporter, of Sardis, Miss., says: "Rev. W. M. Young, presiding elder of this district, occupied the Methodist pulpit in this city last Sunday (the 16th inst.), morning and evening, and preached two good sermons to appreciative congregations."

The following brethren have our hearty thanks for having recently sent us lists of subscribers: Rev. A. S. Raner, Taylor, Miss.; Rev. J. O. Winburn, Seminary, Miss.; Rev. S. S. Holladay, Pelican, La.; Rev. J. A. Coleman, Malvina, Miss., and Rev. J. B. Fulton, Greensburg, La.

The singing during the Christian Workers' Assembly at the Seashore Camp Ground is being conducted by Rev. C. N. Guice, of Summit, Miss. Brother Guice succeeded in organizing an excellent choir, and the music and songs have been one of the most inspiring features of the occasion.

Rev. A. I. Townsley preached an eloquent sermon at the Wesley House at Biloxi last Sunday evening. He has been spending some time at the Seashore Camp Ground, where he is chairman of the Entertainment Committee and is contributing much to the enjoyment of the young people.

Rev. E. E. S. Mackenzie, who is now assisting in the work at St. Mark's Hall of this city, reports that the Men's Mutual Aid Club connected with that mission held its first social meeting last Saturday. The occasion is said to have been quite a pleasant one, and eight new members were received.

We are informed that the Brenham District (Texas) Camp Meeting, which was conducted again this year by the Rev. W. G. Harbin, of Haynesville, La., was a marked success. Brother Harbin has unusual gifts as a revivalist, and his labors for the Master are generally fruitful wherever he goes.

Rev. J. M. Wyatt, who is now our pastor at Brookhaven, Miss., in forwarding some names to be placed on our subscription files, adds: "We have a fine people and a delightful church to serve. We hope during the remaining months of the year to be able to do much to promote the Master's cause!"

The Bayou Pierre Charge, Mississippi Conference, is having a good year. The pastor, Rev. Jasper L. Smith, reports the work as progressing smoothly and the outlook as encouraging. We regret to hear that Sister Smith has lately been indisposed, and we hope that she may soon completely recover her health.

A correspondent reports that President J. R. Countiss of Grenada College spent Sunday, July 16, at Greenville, Miss., where he preached two excellent sermons, and was given an enthusiastic reception by his former parishioners. While in that city he was a guest in the charming home of Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Barbee.

Bishop and Mrs. W. B. Murrah left Jackson, Miss., for their long journey to the Orient last Thursday, after taking leave of a host of friends who called to bid them adieu. They will go first to Chicago, where they will tarry for a few days, and thence they will go to San Francisco, the point from which they are booked to sail on August 2.

Rev. H. B. Watkins, our brilliant young pastor at Magnolia, Miss., not only preaches and writes well, but he also looks faithfully after all the interests of the Church. He has lately forwarded to the Advocate a new list of subscribers, which makes 30 that he has sent in during the year. And he states that he yet hopes to secure more.

Dr. F. S. Parker, the accomplished General Secretary of the Epworth League of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, preached a forceful and most impressive sermon at the Seashore Camp Ground last Sunday at 11 o'clock a.m. His text was John iv, 34: "Jesus saith unto them, My meat and drink is to do the will of him that sent me and to finish his work."

Under date of the 22d inst., Rev. E. L. Cargill, of Jena, La., writes: "I have recently organized a new Sunday school at one of my churches with thirty-five pupils, which promises to do good work. We began a meeting here in Jena Wednesday evening last, and the outlook for a successful revival is encouraging. My brother, Rev. E. C. Cargill, is doing the preaching."

We are in receipt of a circular announcing the Topisaw Camp Meeting, which will begin August 11 at 11 o'clock a.m. The services will be conducted by Rev. M. L. Burton, Rev. W. T. Griffin, Rev. H. A. Gatlin, and Rev. J. Loyd Decell The hotel accommodations are said to be good and the prices reasonable. Ministers will be conveyed to the Camp Ground from McComb City.

Our energetic young pastor at Brandon, Miss., Rev. O. S. Lewis, favored us with a fine list of subscribers a few days since—a most appreciated service in this time of financial dearth. He also generously added a few words commending the Advocate. We always feel that we can count on a Lewis. We have never known one of them to fail to give a good account of himself in any field to which he was assigned.

Mr. A. F. Godat, one of the active workers in the Parker Memorial Church, this city, is recreating in the West. Writing to Master Robert Meek, one of his Sunday school pupils a few days since, he said: "I made the ascent of Pike's Peak this afternoon. It was so cold on top that I had to wear an overcoat. Snow was on the ground." This description is somewhat tantalizing to persons sweltering in the torrid heat of South Louisiana.

In a note received on the 12th inst., Dr. J. A. Parker writes from Arizona, La., as follows: "I am still suffering from disturbed action of the heart, but think slight improvement is going on. Experience has convinced me that when an old minister is put on the roll of superannuates, it is not best for him to try to keep on with pastoral work." We regret to know that this worthy veteran continues to be indisposed, and we trust that he will soon find complete relief.

In a personal note to the editor, Rev. J. H. Felts, presiding elder of the Aberdeen district, says: "The new church at Aberdeen is materializing. The foundation is being laid, a full crew of hands are at work, and things will soon begin to look 'churchy' on the corner again. Politics seem to have the right of way in these parts. Prejudice and passion are not wanting in many instances. The influence of the Church was never needed more. Most of our people are behaving themselves. That is saying much."

Rev. J. S. Rutledge, of Indian Bayou, La., has sent us an account of a great meeting recently held at that place, which reached us too late for publication this week, but which will appear in our next issue. He had the valuable assistance of Rev. W. H. Benton, of Crowley, in conducting the services, and the Lord seems to have clothed him with unusual power, as there were a large number of conversions and about fifty additions to the Church. Another interesting feature of the meeting was the baptism of twenty infants.

Two Mississippians were highly honored at the recent International Sunday School Convention. Mr. R. H. Weaver, of Corinth, Miss., was made a life member of the International Association by Mr. W. N. Hartshorn, and was also made chairman of the secretaries of all the states, provinces and islands represented in the great gathering. Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick, who is well known to the readers of the Advocate through her weekly contributions, was placed on the Adult Bible Class Committee of the International work.

The following dispatch from London, England, to The Picayune, on the 24th inst., will doubtless interest many of our readers in Louisiana: "Edward H. Randolph, United States Attorney for the Western District of Louisiana, and Mrs. Henry Youree, of Shreveport, were married to-day at St. James Church, in Picadilly." Mrs. Youree recently sailed from the United States with relatives expecting to make a tour of Russia, and Mr. Randolph had gone to London for the coronation. Their friends in Louisiana are said to have been taken by complete surprise by their marriage.

In remitting for her subscription, Mrs. N. E. Jones, of Hickory Flat, Miss., writes: "Send me the dear old Advocate. I was one of its first subscribers, and I look forward to its coming each week with great pleasure. I do not feel that I could get along without it. I am now 74 years old, and I hope that I shall always be able to take and read it." There are no friends like old friends—those who have been tested and whom we know to be true. We appreciate the kindly words of this long-time reader, and pray that her path may grow brighter until it ends at the Master's throne on high.

Under date of the 22d inst., Rev. J. L. P. Sheppard writes as follows: "The joint meeting of the Louisiana Conference Board of Education and the Trustees of Mansfield College was most gratifying to me. The whole situation here was thoroughly discussed, and measures adopted which, if carried out, will result in placing the college upon a better basis than it has ever been on in its history. With the co-operation of our preachers and people, this institution will become to be what it should be—the place to educate the Methodist girls of Louisiana. With ample surroundings, the most beautiful campus in our Southland, the buildings in a good state of repair, and, above all, a fine faculty, there is no reason why our people throughout the State should not give the college their patronage and support.

There are in the United States 184 theological schools, which are divided among the various denominations as follows: Advent, 1; Baptist, 18; Roman Catholic, 30; Disciples, 17; Church of the New Jerusalem, 1; Congregational, 11; Evangelical, 2; Hebrew, 2; Lutheran, 29; Moravian, 1; Methodist, 22; non-sectarian, 12; Presbyterian, 21; Protestant Episcopal, 12; Universalist, 3; Unitarian, 2. The number of students enrolled in these schools during the year 1910 was 11,012, of which 491 were women. Of these students 8,337 were Protestants, and 2,675 (all men) were Roman Catholics. The average attendance upon each Protestant school was 54, and each Catholic school 89. The Independent thinks many of these schools should unite, but it does not appear to us that this exhortation applies with any force to the M. E. Church, South, as we have only one regular theological seminary and comparatively few schools in which even a course in biblical literature is given. We rather think that the facilities for such work in our Church might be multiplied to an advantage.

The Reformed Churches, the one of Dutch and the other of German origin, have just adjourned their General Synods. The Dutch re-affirmed their adherence to the Heidelberg catechism, an act intended once more to emphasize orthodoxy and taken largely in response to Dutch churchmen resident in Michigan. They also named a deputation to attend a World's Conference on Faith and Order, and authorized the members, between the present and the date of such conference, to represent the Reformed Church in the preparations. The Germans sent to the classes the proposition of the Presbyterian General Assembly looking toward organic unity, and are now saying that the Assembly, at its Atlantic City meeting, misunderstood in some measure the attitude of the Reformed Church. In other words, German Reformed leaders are now saying that union with the Presbyterians is not nearly so much an accomplished fact as has been reported. Asked concerning union of Reformed Churches themselves, one of the Germans replied that the two bodies were never together, and that sentiment in his body is utterly lacking in strength sufficient to open negotiations. The Dutch Reformed body has a membership of 125,000, the German Reformed, 290,000.

YOU NEED IT.

The man who is trying to get along without the Church is making a very great mistake. He is missing some things that most men can ill afford to miss; things that make for the strengthening of life in all that is best. The Church is not perfect; its representatives cannot be defended in all that they do, and every last one of them can be criticised and rightfully charged with many faults. Yet the Church is doing more than any or all other institutions in the world for the happiness and the goodness of men. And no man can really afford to be without the help that it can give him.—The Christian Guardian.

CHURCH EXTENSION NOTICE.

To the Preachers of the Mississippi Conference:

In making your remittance of Church Extension money to me, please have money orders drawn in my favor on the postmaster at Jackson, Miss. This is convenient, as I deposit with the Capital National Bank, of Jackson, Miss.

THOS. A. HOLLOMAN, Treasurer.

A RELIABLE HOUSE.

We desire to call attention to the announcement of a special piano sale by Mr. Philip Werlein, which appears on page 12 of this issue. This firm is thoroughly reliable, and persons contemplating the purchase of an instrument would do well to consider the offers made by this excellent house. We do not believe that more advantageous terms can be procured anywhere. With a long and honorable history behind it, this establishment justly enjoys the confidence of the public to an unusual extent.

DR. H. B. BARTLETT
National Dental Parlors
Cor. Canal & Camp Sts.
ENTRANCE 106 CAMP
Phone Main 2193
NEW ORLEANS
Vitalized Air for Painless Extraction
Crown and Bridge Specialist.
The Largest and Best Equipped Dental Parlors South.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

Miss ANNA S. PIPKIN passed to her reward, Sunday, April 23, 1911. With the passing of this good woman, the community loses one of its most splendid characters and the Darlington Church its stanchest supporter. She was a woman of such remarkable energy and intelligence that she became a leader in her neighborhood in all that was uplifting and righteous. She ministered to the sick, encouraged the faint-hearted and despondent, and was always cheerful and hopeful. She was the daughter of Rev. Barnabas Pipkin, for 60 years an active member of the Mississippi Conference, and one of its pioneers. She joined the Methodist Church, South, when quite young, and until the day of her death was a consistent member. Her home was always wide open for the Methodist Itinerant. She was the eldest of seven children, two of whom survive her, Mr. B. H. Pipkin, of Chipola, La., and Judge L. M. Pipkin, of San Antonio, Tex. For some two years before her death she was a great sufferer from rheumatism, not able to walk. A tower of strength to her brothers and friends, she will be sadly missed. Faithful has been her service, and God, who is faithful, will reward her abundantly.

J. B. FULTON, her Pastor.

LULA BYRON JARVIS was born 33 years ago in Warren County, Miss. She departed this life on July 16, 1911, at her home near Pace, Miss. She has been a consistent member of the Baptist Church since a child and a true, devoted Christian lady in the fullest meaning. She leaves a mother, husband, one brother and five sisters to mourn her loss. Mrs. Jarvis was sick but a few days, and bore her suffering with Christian fortitude. She was ever ready to do her part in any Christian work. She had recently spoken of uniting with the Methodist Church at this place in order that she might be more useful in Christian work, as there isn't a Baptist Church nearby. We know that Mrs. Jarvis was loved and admired by all who were so fortunate as to know her by the large crowd which followed her remains to the last resting place. It is so sweet to say, "I know my Heavenly Father knows the storms that would my way oppose, but he can drive the clouds away and turn my darkness into day." Some day the curtain will be lifted and we will be able to see not dimly, but clearly, why God comes at an unexpected hour and blights our flock by plucking from it the purest roses and seemingly leaves the ugly scars so plain for us to behold with tear-stained eyes and burdened hearts. But let us say "Thy will be done," for we know he doeth all things well.

J. A. COLEMAN.

GEORGE W. GANN, son of Rev. James M. Gann, late of the Mississippi Conference, was born in Alabama, Pickens County, July 24, 1845, and died at his home in Scott County, Miss., January 16, 1911, aged 65 years, 6 months and 22 days. He was first married to Miss Dollie Bell, of Alabama, August 8, 1865. Their union was blessed with eight children—six of them survive him, and are all members of the M. E. Church, South. He was married again September 5, 1893, to Miss Josie Smith, of Scott County, Miss., who survives him. He joined the M. E. Church, South, when a boy. He was a steward in the Church for a number of years, and was one of the best this writer ever knew. It was my good fortune to enjoy a year in his home when pastor of the Harperville Circuit. He was true to his duty and faithful to the responsibilities enjoined upon him. In his home he was social and true. His devotion for his family challenged admiration. He was a true husband, a loving father, and a good neighbor. He had a host of friends. Being of a friendly and social nature, many were attracted to him. His wife says, "he died as he lived, a true Christian." In the presence of a large company of friends, neighbors, and loved ones his body was put away in the Contrell Cemetery to await the resurrection morn. May the Holy Spirit sustain and keep the hearts of the loved ones.

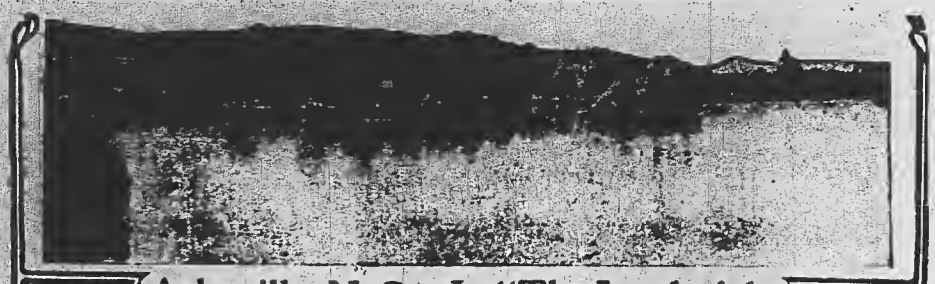
A former pastor,

JAS. V. BENNETT.

The Forest (Scott County) papers please copy.

Little EUPAL, infant daughter of R. L. and R. A. Waters, was born Feb. 10, 1911, and died June 6, 1911. A bright and affectionate little blue-eyed babe has left us. A beautiful little bud has been plucked from the garden of this world to bloom in the Paradise of God. Her stay on earth was short; alas, how soon are the fond hopes of father and mother blighted by the chilly hand of death! She left the impress of her sweet little life on the hearts of her parents. They will never forget the sweet, innocent look. It is hard indeed to give her up, but God's will, not ours, be done. Our sympathies are with the parents. May her going away draw them nearer heaven day by day. We sorrow not as those who have no hope, for we believe Him who "is able to keep that which is committed unto Him against that day." She was laid to rest in Center Star Cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by the family's pastor, Rev. A. S. Brisco.

A. FRIEND.



Asheville, N. C.—In "The Land of the Sky" Is the Ideal Spot to Spend Your Vacation.

The Climate is superb, being 2,250 feet above the sea level, is high above humid, sultry and less favored sections—it is healthful, invigorating and strengthening. Asheville has the purest water and most beautiful scenery in the world. Hotel and boarding house accommodations are unsurpassed. Beautiful roads for motoring and driving, golf, tennis, bowling and every imaginable attraction for recreation and amusement. Biltmore House, the magnificent home of Mr. Geo. W. Vanderbilt, and the finest country estate in existence, is situated here and open to visitors three days each week. Asheville people are hospitable and you'll enjoy every minute you stay here. Make your arrangements to come to Asheville this summer—cheap rates from all points.

For Handsome Illustrated Booklet Describing Asheville, Write

Board of Trade, Asheville, N. C.

Source of Asheville's Water Supply.

It will COOL and SOOTHE

Sunburn and Windburn

As soon as applied on the hot, tender skin. Usually the soreness is entirely gone the next morning, and all danger of blistering or peeling is averted. This is accomplished with a highly refined and delightfully refreshing snow-white liquid complexion cream, that is used by countless thousands of attractive women. It contains no grease, bleach or other harmful ingredients and is positively guaranteed not to grow hair.—It keeps the skin naturally soft and smooth, thereby retarding any tendency to small wrinkles. It makes the skin as clear and fresh as a child's.

HINDS Honey and Almond CREAM

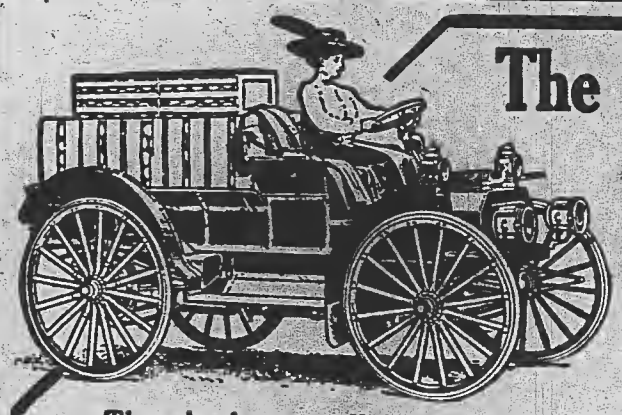
There is only one genuine, original Hinds Honey and Almond Cream;—on the market 35 years and selling throughout the world. Do not accept substitutes, for you will be disappointed.—Price, 50c in bottles. Sold by all dealers.

For Free Trial Bottle write A. S. HINDS, 72 West St., Portland, Me.



The Ideal Car for the Farmer

It means quick trips to town—
More pleasure for your family

THE International auto wagon will take your produce to town, go to mill, haul milk and cream—in fact, do all your light hauling in one-third the time, and at less cost than you can do it with a horse-drawn vehicle.

It never tires—it is ready to travel every day in the year—regardless of weather—over all kinds of roads—no matter whether they are hilly, muddy, or sandy.

The wheels are sufficiently high to give abundant road clearance. This makes it a practical car for all kinds of roads.

The solid rubber tires eliminate tire troubles and expense. There are no delays on account of punctures and blow-outs.

The air-cooled engine does not freeze in winter. There are no delays on account of stopping for water and no water pipe or jacket to freeze or break.

The International auto wagon will give you more service than you could secure in any other way for the amount invested. Evenings, Saturday afternoons, Sundays, or whenever desired, the International auto wagon can be converted into a pleasure vehicle by adding an extra seat and top. It will take you and your family anywhere you may want to go.

There are many International auto wagons in the hands of farmers all over the country. They are giving satisfactory service, and saving their owners time and money every day. Write us for catalogue and full information.

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY OF AMERICA
103 Harvester Building, (Incorporated) Chicago U S A

Tidings From the Field

Iuka, Miss.:

A most successful meeting has recently been held in our church at Iuka, Miss. There were about thirty conversions, several members have been received, and the membership of the church greatly blessed. Rev. J. A. Bowen, Rev. E. B. Ramsey, and Rev. W. M. McIntosh did most of the preaching. Sincereiy,

W. L. GRAVES.

Iuka, Miss.

Buford, Miss.:

Dear Dr. Meek: We have had two revivais on the Buford charge at Knops. Rev. Dan C. Keliy did some work, the results of which eternity oniy can teii. We had the presence of God with us to such an extent that some of the men we least expected to do so turned their faces toward God. Not only did they confess Christ as having power to save, but took hold and went to work. Keily's preaching was wonderful. We had at least twenty conversions. Brother John Keiiy was with us with his cornet, and, of course, he had a hand in the work. We learned to iove both Brothers Dan and John Keiiy very much, for they are congenial and worthy. At Summer Chapel we had Brother H. K. McKee from the Oakvaie charge with us. He labored faithfuiiy. We couldn't see it so well during the meeting, but the pastor has iearned since that Brother McKee got very close to tlfe people. Greater good than we thought has been done. W. B. WALDROP, P. C.

Brandon, Miss.:

I feel greatly encouraged over the present situation in my charge and the prospects for the future. Our membership and that of other churches in the town were wonderfuily revived in a meeting heid in our Church the latter part of June. Rev. J. T. Lewis, of Clarksdaie, did the preaching. Notwithstanding we had rain every day and a disastrous fire destroyed nearly haif the business part of town during the meeting, the attendance was large and the interest intense. A special service for men was held in the afternoon of the fourth Sunday in June, which was one of the best services I have ever attended. The men came in a body at the ciose of the service in response to the proposition to live purer, better lives. We have a splendid Senior Epworth League and a Junior League that are hard to surpass anywhere. The Sunday School is in good shape and doing good work. The two Woman's Missionary Societies have been united and hoid a meeting every week instead of every other week as before. This noble band of women is a great blessing to the Church and community. The people are not forgetful of the needs of the parsonage. We are soon to be in connection with the city water works. Lumber and bricks are on hand for buiiding a bath room with aii modern equipment. The improvements to be made on the parsonage will cost $300.

Our hearts are in the work and our intention is to iive closer to God, and be a greater blessing to the people.

Yours in the Cause,

OSMOND LEWIS.

Homochitto Chapel:

As I haven't seen anything in the Advocate from Homochitto Chapel for some time, I will try to write a few iines. We are stiii trying to build up the Master's cause here. One Sunday school is still going. The only thing we regret is that there are so many of our young people that do not take an active part, and so many of the fathers and mothers that do not come at aii. I was at the Sunday School Institute at Meadville on Juiy 11. Wish more of our peopie couid have been there, and have heard the good advice, especiaiiy that of Brother Fred Long. Our Epworth Leagues at Homochitto are doing very weii at present, but not as well as they could expect. We pray and trust that they will grow in strength and numbers. We heid a sociai meeting in July that was very much enjoyed both by the members and others that were not. The great troubie is we have so many peopie that profess to have the love of God in their hearts, but do not take any part in any church work, except when the preacher of their choice is sent. We can only say that our opinion is that a true Christian wiil help to carry on aii the different kinds of work in the Church. Rev. G. W. Huff gave us a good sermon this morning. It was my intention to drive five miles and reach a school house this evening, but the rain would not permit. As we have started, I wiii teii you a iittie about our work as a iocal preacher. At the District Conference my presiding elder, Rev. H. W. Featherstun, asked me to supply two churches in Wilkinson County, to which I went the fourth Sunday in March. At one we found a nice little congregation, at the other there was no one. The distance to each is more than forty miies, but we have been there each month, except in one instance and that was on, account of rain. We try to preach the gospel and look to the Lord for results. We said at one place there was no one; the first time in April there were three; in May, ten, in June, seven. I went to a schoolhouse eight miles from home this month and preached to a house full of people that hardiy ever heard preaching. They started a Sunday school there. We have aiready found many pleasant, as well as many hard places in the ministry.

A. H. STEELE, L. P.

IN MEMORY OF REV. D. L. MITCHEL.

To the Missionary Society of the M. E. Church, South, Main Street, Biloxi, Miss., June 27, 1911:

Rev. D. L. Mitchel (our departed brother) was an honorary member of our society, one that we loved and reverenced; the cause of missions was dear to his heart. While our dear brother has passed from mortal vision, we feel and realize his power and influence for good is still with us to help and to bless.

He was a faithful man, jealous for his Master's work. He loved the Sunday school and church services.

Brother Mitchel's Bible Class was the delight of his heart; he was always present if it was possible to come. In a last prayer in Sunday school Brother Mitchel uttered these words: "Oh, my Father, may we so teach, as we wish we had, when we get to heaven!" He is missed by his Church and family at every point; but we sorrow not as those who have no hope. We know where to find him, and we expect by the grace of our God to meet him in that world where there is no more sorrow or tears or death.

"But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord, Jesus Christ."

Signed—

MRS. F. G. HOCUTT,
MRS. M. S. BAYLY,
MRS. M. C. HUNT,
Committee.

FOR STRENGTH HEALTH and VIGOR

TAKE W.H.BULL'S HERBS AND IRON

Preserves your health by purifying and enriching your blood. W. H. Bull's HERBS and IRON is different from other tonics in that its benefits are permanent. It is not a stimulant that you have to continue to use, but a REAL TONIC that builds lasting strength and vigor. W. H. Bull's HERBS and IRON iusures perfect digestion; strengthens your heart and muscles, invigorates tired nerves, cleanses the bowels and restores the Liver and Kidneys to normal action.

For Sale by Druggists Everywheer

W. H. Bull's HERBS and IRON is sold on a positive guarantee of "Thorough Satisfaction or your money refunded." Get a bottle from your druggist, use two-thirds of it, and if you are not convinced that it is improving your health, take back the remainder to your druggist and he will refund your money.

Jacobs & Co.

LOUISIANA RAILWAY
(La. R'y & Nav. Co.)

—THE SHORT LINE BETWEEN—
Shreveport; Alexandria;
Baton Rouge; New Orleans.

THE COMFORTABLE ROUTE FOR PASSENGERS
QUICKEST ROUTE FOR FREIGHT

LESS THAN CARLOAD SHIPMENTS HAULED IN PACKAGE CARS IN THROUGH TRAINS.

L & N Louisville & Nashville R.R.

THE DIRECT LINE TO NORTH AND EAST
ELECTRIC LIGHTED STEEL SLEEPERS
DINING CARS, OBSERVATION CARS, CHAIR CARS

Phone M 4093. TICKET OFFICE 201 ST. CHARLES STREET.

Use the L. & A. Railway

When you travel go via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY, The Road That is Always on Time. FIRST-CLASS EQUIPMENT; Gravel Ballasted Track; 75 Pound Steel Rails; The Best of Service in Every Respect. Double Daily Passenger Service; Two Traine Each Way Daily.

OUR FREIGHT SERVICE IS UNEXCELLED.

When you order or ship freight if you want quick and satisfactory service, instruct your shipments routed via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY. Our motto is "EVER ON TIME."

F. W. GREEN, General Superintendent. Stamps, Ark.

S. S. ATKINSON, Gen. Frt. and Pass. Agt., Texarkana, Ark.

You Look Prematurely Old

Because of those ugly, grizzly gray hairs. Use "LA CREOLE" HAIR DRESSING. Price $1.00, retail.

The Sunday School.

LOUISIANA NOTES.

By Rev. P. O. Lowrey.

The Franklin Sunday School, besides using the auditorium of the church and the six regular class rooms, uses the parsonage parlor for its adult class. The teacher of this class (whose name I do not recall) is said by the pastor to be the best in the State. Mr. Brumby, the superintendent, is a young lawyer "of parts," and uses blackboard and chart to effect. The school's motto, drilled into the pupils from the blackboard, is: "Every member a Christian; every Christian a worker; every worker a skilled worker." Something like 110 were present on Sunday, the 9th.

* * *

Mr. C. H. Mayo, a worthy son of a noble Sunday School sire, is the leader of the Boy Scouts of Lake Charles. He put the work before the Lafayette District Epworth League Conference in the best light that we have heard. Although some of us "are from Missouri" and will wait for the other man to do the foundation work, we are going to awake to find something worth while in solving the vexatious "boy problem" in this new organization, classified as "secular." The boy from twelve to eighteen is a "secular" creature in some of his peculiarities, but when understood his heart is warm and subject to spiritual influences. After a while we will all fall in with this movement, and cry: "See what we have done."

* * *

The Adult Bible classes of Lake Charles have formed a federation for closer fellowship and a greater possibility of reaching every young man in town. This is exactly what our Methodist Adult classes should do. The Adult Bible Class movement has such tremendous possibilities for uniting adult Christians in fraternity and good works, that active organizations should be made in towns of more than one Sunday school of our denomination, in circuits, districts, conferences. The step to interdenominational federation will then be easy and the greatest Protestant organization of men on earth can be formed. We suggest that in our denominational meetings in the coming fall interdenominational institutes, this as well as the district Sunday school organizations be looked into. Of the Lake Charles organization, Mr. Herbert E. Hoven, Baptist, is president; Mr. J. M. Wall, M. E. Church, South, is vice-president; Mr. C. H. Mayo, M. E. Church, South, is secretary and treasurer. Each class in the federation (Baptist, Congregational, Christian and M. E., South) elects one vice-president for an executive committee.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Miss Daisy Magee.

In a little schoolhouse in the interior of Kemper County, there is a graded Sunday school—graded according to the International standard. In addition to the grading, plans are being made to introduce a cradle roll and home department at an early date. The superintendents of these departments have already been selected. The superintendent, who is a young lady, is using modern Sunday school methods in her school. What this young lady is doing, other superintendents in rural districts can do. The principles of the modern Sunday school can be adapted to the country schools. We only need the faithful, consecrated men and women who will make an honest effort to do the work.

* * *

The need of the Sunday school today is trained teachers. So often we find in both the towns and the country, teachers who know nothing of modern methods of teaching. Yet they are trying to teach boys and girls who sit for five days during the week under trained teachers in the public schools—teachers who present the lessons of the public school curriculum according to the most approved methods of pedagogy. These Sunday school pupils expect the same intellectual teaching from the Sunday school teachers. The time is fast coming when the untrained teacher cannot hold the boys and girls in the Sunday school. What will be the result? Simply this: The promising boys and girls, young men and young women of our country will be lost to the Sunday school and the Church. Teachers, let me appeal to you to put as much energy, time and thought in the Sunday school work as is put into our efforts for the public schools. Every Sunday school teacher should take a teachers' training course—should read and master books and other literature in their special line of work. God has given the Sunday school teacher the responsibility of winning the souls of his or her class for Christ. This being true, it is the duty of every teacher to prepare intellectually and spiritually to meet this responsibility. Pastors, urge your superintendents to require every teacher in their schools to take a teachers' training course.

NEWS AND NOTES.

By Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick.

Brother Gladney, treasurer of the Conference Sunday School Board, is most anxious that all Children's Day collections be sent him as soon as possible, and that every charge shall observe this day. Brother Gladney is a busy pastor, who is often found assisting the brethren of the Conference, and the sending of these amounts now, will prevent much extra work and a rush at Conference, and thus be of great assistance to him. We believe this request will be granted at once, and are very grateful for all such hearty co-operation as we continuously receive from this best Conference in all of Methodism.

* * *

Sir Edwin Arnold was once asked what he owed to the Bible? His reply was, "Everything," to be brief. "To be serious and comprehensive, I would use reams of paper. As a man of letters, I will say I owe my education as a writer more to the Bible than any hundred books that can be named."

There is no more fruitful source of power than the Bible, and great will be the day when every Sunday school scholar and teacher will have the Book of all books in his hand at the lesson hour, as well as during many study and meditation hours before that strategic thirty minutes of the week. "Persons who do not think for themselves wonder whence ideas are born." A clergyman author, known for his many brilliant aphorisms, was asked by a friend, "Where do you get all those proverbs of yours?" "Most of them," was the prompt answer, "I get from the Bible; I find that more thoughts are suggested by the Bible than by all other books and circumstances combined." This was but one more statement of the old truth that the greatest source of human ideas is Holy Writ. In a thousand ways, a countless company of thinkers are mining its pages. Consider for an instant the diversity of thoughts that the few verses of each week's Sunday school lesson suggest. Then think of the number of sermons that are preached each Sunday, all being drawn, in whole or in part, from the pages of Scripture. And the Bible never gives out. It has fresh truth for every new seeker who approaches it. It gives answer, in better kind, to his profoundest questions. Verily, this is the book that begets wisdom."

Rebuilding Sale of

PIANOS

To Reduce Stock Before Building Our Annex

DETAILS CONCERNING THIS SALE.

A few of this week's bargains are herewith specially listed, and in order that everyone shall have an equal opportunity to participate in the unequaled advantages this sale affords, conditions governing the sale are herewith put down in detail.

Terms will be arranged to suit the convenience of the purchaser. While specific terms are herein set down in a great many instances, yet these will be changed if necessary to meet the demands of the buyer

All prices are quoted boxed and delivered free on board cars at depot here in New Orleans.

Positively no reservations will be made unless the amount covering first payment is remitted at time of writing. It will be understood, however, that money will be refunded if, upon a complete, detailed description of the instrument, it is learned that the instrument will not meet your requirements.

For the fullest protection of every purchaser, we will exchange any instrument purchased at this sale for any new piano of like or greater value in our house up to January 1st, allowing full amount paid to apply upon the purchase price of any new piano or player piano, thus giving the purchaser a four or five months' free use of the instrument now purchased.

SLIGHTLY USED, LOANED AND OTHER PIANOS.

OUT-OF-TOWN PATRONS May Order From This List Without Fear of Disappointment.

No Limit to Easy Terms

(E1) HAINES BROS.—Large size, walnut case, almost like new, perfectly plain panel, 3 pedals; worth new $425, price $295; terms $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E2) WERLEIN—Mahogany finish, regular $400 piano sold under Club Plan $292, used less than one month for school commencement, in every way new and up to date, $280; $5 cash, $5 monthly.

(E3) WERLEIN— Mahogany finish; another of the regular $400 pianos selected for college commencement and used less than a month, practically new; perfect condition, guaranteed, $274; $5 cash, $5 monthly.

(E4) BEER BROS. — Standard size, upright, mahogany case, same as new; worth $550; price $410, terms, $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E5) HAINES BROS.—Medium size, oak case, beautifully carved panel, used only a few months; worth new $425; guaranteed condition; price $325; terms, $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E6) MATHUSHEK — Standard size, upright, walnut case; worth new $425, price $230; terms, $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E7) HAINES BROS. — Medium size, upright, mahogany case, 3 pedals and muffler; worth new $425, price $225; terms, $5 cash and $5 a month.

(E8) WEGMAN—Medium size, upright, mahogany case; worth new $400, price $210; terms, $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E9) WERLEIN—Large size, upright, price new $292, price $235; terms, $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E10) WERLEIN—Large size, upright, mahogany case, case checked; price new $292, price $210; terms, $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E11) WEBER GRAND—Ebonized case, used only slightly for concert purposes; worth new $750; price $560; terms, $10 cash and $10 a month.

Unequaled Bargains in New Pianos

(A) MATHUSHEK—Discontinued style, walnut case, plain panel, dull satin finished, $425; now $340; $10 cash, $10 monthly.

(B) WEGMAN — Discontinued style, mahogany, $450; now $295; $10 cash, $7 monthly.

(C) PEASE—Discontinued style, mahogany, always $375; now $300; $10 cash, $8 monthly.

(D) STORY & CLARK—Discontinued style, mahogany, $425; now $330; $10 cash, $8 monthly.

No Limit to Easy Terms
Hundreds of Others to Select from

New Chickering Grands and Uprights

$10 Monthly for a Short Time Only

In our Player Department we are offering the WERLEIN PLAYER PIANO, as well as the Steinway and Weber Pianola Pianos.

PHILIP WERLEIN, LTD.

NEW ORLEANS.

Weber, Chickering, Mathushek, Werlein Pianos. Steinway and Other Pianola Pianos.

Victor Talking Machines Sheet Music

EDUCATIONAL.

ALABAMA POLYTECHNIC INSTITUTE,
"AUBURN."

The oldest School of Technology in the South. 64 Professors and Instructors. 737 students. 20 well equipped Laboratories. Next session begins Wednesday, Sept. 6th, 1911.

New Buildings: Smith Dining Hall, Carnegie Library, Agricultural Hall, Broun Engineering Hall, Dairy and Horticultural Laboratories and Greenhouses.

Departments: I. College of Engineering and Mines—Civil, Electrical, Mechanical and Mining Engineering, Architecture, Mechanic Arts, Technical Drawing, Machine Design, etc. II. College of Agricultural Sciences—Agriculture, Horticulture, Animal Industry, Botany, Entomology, Chemistry and Metallurgy, Pharmacy. III. Academic College—History, English, Mathematics, Latin, German, French, Physics and Astronomy, Political Economy, Psychology. IV. College of Veterinary Medicine.

Expenses: Free tuition to residents of Alabama; $20.00 to non-residents. Board in dormitory and with private families.

For catalogue and further information, address,

CHAS. C. THACH, LL.D., President, Auburn, Ala.

SCIENCE HILL SCHOOL
SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY.

An English and Classical School for Girls. College Preparatory course with certificate privileges at Wellesley, Vassar, Smith, Leland Stanford, Randolph-Macon and other colleges. 86 years of successful work. College trained teachers. Superior advantages in music. MRS. W. T. POINTER, Principal.

ROANOKE COLLEGE
SALEM, VA.

For Men. 59th year begins Sept. 13th. Courses for Degrees, with Electives; high standard. Also Commercial and Preparatory Courses. Library, 24,000 volumes; working laboratories; good morals and discipline; six Churches; no bar-rooms. Healthful mountain location. Very moderate expenses. Loan Fund. Catalogue Free. Address
J. A. MOREHEAD, President.

RANDOLPH-MACON ACADEMY For Boys and Young Men

Fits for college, scientific schools or business. Work endorsed by over 30 colleges and universities. Beautiful and healthful location. Athletic grounds; gymnasium. Terms, $250. No extras. For catalogue, address
E. SUMTER SMITH, Principal, Bedford City, Va.

VANDERBILT University
1,000 Students 100 Teachers
Campus of 80 Acres
also
New Campus for Departments of Medicine and Dentistry

Expenses low. Literary course for graduates and undergraduates. Professional courses in Engineering, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Theology. Send for catalog, naming department. (1)
J. E. HART, Secretary, Nashville, Tenn.

GALL STONES or any LIVER or Stomach Ailment Cured. AVOID AN OPERATION

Have you Pain or Distress in Pit of Stomach, Pains 2 hours after meals, Right-side pains or Backache? Spells of Indigestion, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Colic, Jaundice, Blues, Constipation, Piles, Soreness, Fullness or Oppression over Liver or Stomach? If you have any of these symptoms you need the "SECRO-SOLVO-TONE" Treatment. Write for FREE Booklet. GALLSTONE REMEDY CO., Sole U. S. Agts, Dept. 19, 296 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.

Secure and Profitable

These essentials of a good investment are combined in

5% Gold Bonds

Paying Interest of 5%

Guaranteed for 10 years, payable every 6 months in coupons attached, which can be collected through your local bank, convertible into cash before that time if you wish. Issued in denominations of $100.00 and $1,000.00 and fully protected by the entire resources of the bank.

Write for full details and booklet.

GUARANTEE TRUST & BANKING CO.
Capital Stock $300,000.00. Atlanta, Ga.

Epworth League Department.

(Edited by Rev. H. B. Watkins, Magnolia, Miss., to whom all communications intended for this Department should be addressed.)

TOPIC FOR JULY 30.

"A CALL TO SERVICE AND ITS RESPONSE."

Lessons: Isaiah 6:6-8. Gal. 1:5.

Our lesson to-day directs us to a contemplation of one of the sublimest passages in God's Word. It is Isaiah's call and his response. Let us notice first that his vision came to him through the ordinary channels of worship. He was in the temple doubtless at prayer. He reminds us of St. John on Patmos, who was "in the Spirit on the Lord's day to whom came a voice, and a vision, and a message. It teaches us that our visions depend rather on our frame of mind and attitude of heart than on anything else. If our spiritual joys have been poor, may it not have been because our faces were turned the other way? There wasn't anything in the barren rocks of lonely Patmos to give St. John his vision. It was that he was "in the Spirit."

Notice again that our vision will follow the trend of our own anxieties. Who can doubt Isaiah's heart was already tronbled over Judah? What should be done for her? Disaster seemed imminent. God doesn't give his sublime visions to a careless soul. To the already anxious young man he gave a vision that enabled him to see the real danger and disease of his people.

Notice again that Isaiah's was a vision upward that he might look downward—a vision of God that he might see men as they are and their needs as God sees them. Don't you think our looking upward to God is all too infrequent, dear Leaguer? Don't you think our passion for helping men would be increased if more often we looked up toward God? The motto of our Sister League of the Methodist Episcopal Church, "Look up, lift up!" gives the matter in a nut shell, for the passion for lifting comes from looking. Let our hearts be more devoted! Be sure that not one of us has left our "first love" or has drifted away from a love that puts Jesus first. Notice, too, that the first result of Isaiah's vision was the realization of his own needs. "Woe is me," he said, "for I am a man of unclean lips!" Do you think a religion that hasn't helped me is really worth giving to others? Therefore, isn't it true that our first need is to see our own need? If Christ had done more for us, wouldn't our missionary zeal be greater? Isn't WHAT HE HAS DONE FOR ME, practically what we measure religion's value by? From the Sunday School Times we take the following:

Are we fit to have an interest in missions? At the last Student Volunteer Convention the chairman, Dr. John R. Mott, said quickly, in a few opening words, that the object of the convention was the making of Jesus Christ known to the world. Then he introduced Mr. George Sherwood Eddy, of India, who, he said, would speak on the theme, "Is Our Christianity Worth Propagating?" Not, "is Christianity worth propagating?" but our Christianity; Christianity is not on trial, nor is it under discussion. Our Christianity is; the kind of Christianity that we have in our North American colleges to-day. Has that any message to a lost world? Have I a salvation that is worth passing on? Have I a power—power for victory over sin—in my own life? And from those opening questions the speaker went on to search out, and probe, and cut deep down into the lives of his listeners. He confronted them with a series of personal questions that were hard to answer, tests that were hard to measure up to, yet without the meeting of which no one has any right to presume to offer help to those who need Christ.

The enthusiastic delegates had forgotten a little of their eagerness to be told how the heathen world needed them, and were thinking seriously, soberly, as the speaker concluded.

After a period of silent prayer, in absolute stillness broken only by searching questions that Mr. Eddy directed to the hearts of those who were praying, the chairman introduced Mr. Robert E. Speer, to speak on the theme, "The Abounding Sufficiency of Jesus Christ to Meet the Needs of All Men." Mr. Speer's familiarity with the foreign fields was well known, and now the audience settled back to hear what they believed would be a masterly presentation of the inadequacy of the ethnic religions, the unmet needs of those who were living in them, and Christ's unique power to meet the soul-hunger of those peoples. But listen: "It does not matter what the needs are with which we have come to this convention; our Lord Jesus Christ is able to satisfy them." There it was again; the speaker was cutting directly into the personal life of his hearers. He assumed that they had needs which were unmet, and which were quite as vital as those of the heathen world. And his listeners knew that he was right.—Sunday School Times.

Notice again that God only makes us conscious of a need, that he may meet that need. When Isaiah's conviction for himself and his people was deep enough God by his angel cured his need. (Have some one read the sixth verse.) So what ever need we have God has made us conscious of it only that he might cure it. He has shown us our impurity that he might make us pure, our poverty that he might make us rich, our abasement that he might exalt us.

Notice again that God's blessing to Isaiah was given that he might bless. His vision wasn't for Isaiah's selfish enjoyment; it was for Judah's good. (Have some one read the eighth verse.) To us whom God has blessed comes no voice to sooth us into further idleness, but a voice exclaiming, "Who will go for us and whom shall we send?" That voice is full of earnestness and urgency because the world is so full of need, and despair, and darkness, and sin. Listen to it as it calls again and again: "Who will go for us? Whom shall we send?"

Notice lastly that the heart really blessed is not disobedient? Hear him: "Here am I, send me!" Indeed, his first impulse was to go bless some one else.

Have you and I responded to that call?

"There's surely somewhere a lowly place,
In earth's harvest fields so wide,
Where I may labor thro' life's short day
For Jesus the crucified;
So trusting my all to thy tender care,
And knowing thou lovest me,
I'll do thy will with a heart sincere,
I'll be what you want me to be!"

Eyes Ruined

By neglect; they get red and sore and you let them go. Don't do it. Leonardi's Golden Eye Lotion cures soreness without pain in one day. Cools, heals and strengthens. Insist on having "Leonardi's"—it makes strong eyes.

Guaranteed or money refunded. Druggists sell it at 25 cts. or forwarded prepaid on receipt of price by S. B. Leonardi & Co., Tampa, Fla.

JEFFERSON MILITARY ACADEMY,
Washington, Miss.

Prepares for Colleges, Universities, Scientific Schools and business. Located in the Hills, six miles east of Natchez, a place noted for its healthfulness, fine climate and historic surroundings. Away from the detractions and temptations of City life, but with all modern convenience. Fine spring water. Personal attention; one teacher for every twelve boys. Eighty (80) acre campus. Large gymnasium. Endorsed and recommended by the presidents of Colleges and Universities. 110th Session begins Sept. 14, 1911. For full particulars apply to
MAJ. R. V. ANDERSON, Supt.

DICKSON COLLEGE,
THE SCHOOL FOR YOUR DAUGHTER.

Located in the Tennessee Highlands. Health unsurpassed. Out-door sports, exercise in the hills among Middle Tennessee's most beautiful springs. A thorough education which prepares for efficiency and gives real culture. Courses complete and advantages superb. Send your daughter to Dickson College and she will return to you stronger in body and mind, thoroughly equipped, cultured and refined, and ready to meet the actual problems of life. For catalogue and all information, address,
T. B. LOGGINS, Dickson, Tenn.

Monument Erected in Honor of the "Women of the Confederacy"

Rome, Ga. Takes Initial Step.

The first monument to the memory of the "women of the Confederacy" has recently heen erected at Rome, Georgia, hy the "Sons of Veterans" of that city, photograph of which we here reproduce. This is the right step, in the right direction, and this move should he a stimulous to other chapters of "Sons of Veterans" to go and do likewise. It is true that the men did the fighting, and they fought like men, but withal, they endured no greater hardships, or rendered no greater service to this grand old Southland than did the nohle women during that great struggle back in the sixties. "In memory of the Women of the Confederacy," this is a noble deed. Sons of Veterans of Rome, Georgia, worthy of the highest praise from every lip, not only for the nohleness of the deed, but also for the appropriate selection in the material and design for this monument.

The group of figures on the right represents a young Southern woman on the battlefield, administering to the suffering, wounded soldiers, with the inscription, "An Angel of Mercy." The group on the left represents the women who remained at home to care for the Old Homestead and the little ones. In her lap is an open letter just received from the front, giving news of her loved ones. The child is kneeling with hands clasped in prayer, praying God to spare papa, and the inscription reads, "News from the front."

The monument is finished entirely of "Silver Grey" Cherokee, Georgia Marhle, from the quarries of the Georgia Marble Company, Tate, Ga., another patriotic feature of this monument—it was erected by Southern men, to perpetuate the sacred memory of Southern women and is of Southern material. This, however, is not the true reason for using Georgia Marble. It was selected because of its superh beauty and unsurpassed lasting qualities. It has been established that Georgia Marhle is entirely free from absorption (the first step towards decomposition) and as for beauty, well, it's just the prettiest thing in existence. If you are interested in a monument of any kind, ask your dealer to show you samples of Cherokee, Creole, Etowah and Kennesaw Georgia Marhle, and if he can't supply you, write to the Georgia Marhle Company, Tate, Ga., and they will put you in touch with a nearhy dealer who can.

HEISKELL'S

Ointment is a wonder worker on a rough and pimply skin. One application soothes and heals, and a few more work a cure.

Heiskell's Medicinal Toilet Soap aids a skin cure by keeping the pores open. If you are troubled by blackheads, tetter, rash or any local inflammation of the skin, use Heiskell's Ointment.

Write for our new booklet, "Health and Beauty."

JOHNSTON, HOLLOWAY & CO., 531 Commerce St., Phila.

OINTMENT

I WILL MAKE YOU PROSPEROUS

If you are honest and ambitious write me today. No matter where you live or what your occupation, I will teach you the Real Estate business by mail; appoint you Special Representative of my Company in your town; start you in a profitable business of your own, and help you make big money at once.

Unusual opportunity for men without capital to become independent for life. Valuable book and full particulars FREE. Write today.

NATIONAL CO-OPERATIVE REALTY CO.
394 Marden Building
Washington, D. C.

RUBBER STAMPS

We make rubber stamps and accessories of every description, autograph stamps, seals, stamp pads and stamp pad inks. New equipment, expert labor and prompt service—satisfaction guaranteed. Orders shipped same day received.

Write for free Illustrated Stamp Catalog!

SOUTHERN ADVERTISING CO., Inc.
JACKSON, MISS.

"CARBOLITE" CALCIUM-CARBIDE

Highest Quality, Lowest Price, carried in stock by

A. T. THOMPSON & Co., New Orleans, La

—We also sell—

DYNAMITE AND BLASTING SUPPLIES.

—Postoffice Box 748—

ESTEY CHURCH ORGANS.

The ESTEY is the world's best Organ. The KOELER & CAMPBELL PIANO is in every particular first class; satisfaction guaranteed in every case; freight paid; low cash price on easy payments without interest. Write for Catalogues.

J. M. BASS, Pastor Meth't Ch'ch.
Brookville, Miss.

VISIT

MINERAL WELLS

—FOR—

HEALTH AND PLEASURE

AND

WEST TEXAS

—For—

FINE AGRICULTURAL LANDS.

REACHED VIA

THE TEXAS AND PACIFIC RAILWAY

EXCURSION TICKETS ON SALE DAILY.

Free Booklet.

E. P. TURNER,

General Passenger Agent.

DALLAS - - - - - TEXAS

DIED AT HIS POST.

Dr. Braxton Wise, the youngest son of Dr. J. S. Wise and Louisa Stewart, of Yazoo City, Miss., was born at Greenwood, Caddo Parish, La., July 29, 1855, his parents having moved to this parish in 1840.

The subject of this notice, after taking two courses in the College of Physicians and Surgeons at Baltimore, graduated at the Medical College of New Orleans in 1878. In June, 1884, he located at Benton, La., where he continued the practice of his profession till he was prostrated by paralysis on Dec. 25, 1910. In 1888 he and Miss Belle Hamilton were united in marriage in the Methodist Church at Benton by Rev. W. S. Penick, of Shreveport, La. No children being born to them, their love was bestowed upon their neice, Miss Grace Larkin, who was reared by them and shared the love and sympathy of his large circle of friends. From his boyhood he had been a consistent member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

At the time the summons came he was conducting the exercises of the Sunday school, as he had been doing for a number of years. He had just spoken to the school of the joyous day—the anniversary of our Lord's birth—and called on the school for a manifestation from each of a purpose to live for Christ. There were many responses—all in the house—which seemed to deeply effect this man of God, so loved by all the Church. Calling on a brother (Larkin) to lead in prayer, his last words were hardly audible. His wife and neice, seeing his condition, rushed to him as he was trying to kneel at the altar. He fell on the chancel and they found him helpless and seemingly unconscious. A physician was quickly summoned and in a short time the church was full of sorrowing friends. Unexpectedly attacked, it was a severe shock to the awe-stricken people of not only Benton, but of all wherever he was known, and expressions of sincere sorrow were heard on every hand.

From his post of duty, he was placed on a cot and borne by friendly hands to his home, where the best available aid was secured, but no relief obtained. He lingered between life and death forty-eight hours after he was stricken, when death ended his active and useful life and his pure soul was wafted home.

The following extract from "The Bossier Banner" gives a correct idea of his life and character: "The hand inexorable has been laid upon the mortal part of Dr. Braxton Wise, who has completed a life of eminent usefulness, of stainless public and private virtue—a life devoted to the service of his Master, to his country and his friends.

"The ever-busy harvester of time has garnered to eternity and its reward no nobler spirit, no purer example of Christian living, no fairer soul. The admiration, the love, the esteem, felt for him by all who knew the integrity, honor and deep piety which marked Dr. Wise's character, compel the universal sorrow which follows his death. His private life was beautiful. To his wife he was loving, kind, patient, indulgent and in every respect a model husband. To his friends, he stood true under all conditions. To the poor and needy, who came to his notice as worthy, he was charitable, kind and helpful. He passed none without an attempt to make life more easy and happy. He did not throw them a crumb but gave bountifully. He never sounded his alms before men—attempting to carry out strictly Christ's instructions to his disciples, never letting his left hand know what his right hand was doing. What he was unable to do himself for the distressed he influenced others to do. He had a pleasant smile for every one. He was whole-souled and big-hearted and he leaves behind him many a sad and bleeding heart. These acts were the elements of his creed, much of his daily life and his religion.

"In making others happy he found his happy moments. The record of his life is pure and spotless, and such without doubt that when his soul shall appear naked and alone before the great white throne as will entitle him to hear from Him who sitteth Judge Supreme the welcome words, "Well done, good and faithful servant; enter thou into the joys of thy Lord." The deceased is survived by his wife; a brother, Dr. George A. Wise, of Vanceville, La.; two sisters, Mrs. E. B. Herndon, of Shreveport, and Mrs. Augusta Wolff, of Dallas, Tex., and other relatives. The funeral services were conducted in the Benton Methodist Church, which he loved so much and served so well, and which overflowed with friends and sympathizers. An appreciative eulogy was delivered by his new pastor, Rev. J. A. Baker.

"His remains were buried with Masonic honors by Cypress Lodge in Cottage Grove Cemetery the day after his demise."

Having served as pastor of this devoted man for two years I could do no less than endorse the above quotations from the Banner. As steward, trustee and superintendent of the Sunday school, his work was never neglected, and as far as possible he conducted his professional duties so as to interfere as little as possible with his Church work.

In a pastorate covering a period of more than half a century, I have not labored with a more consistent or exemplary brother than Dr. Braxton Wise.

Would that all officials of our great Church were such as he!

J. A. PARKER.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children, 50c.

LOUISIANA INSTITUTES.

The Louisiana Sunday School Association has announced a series of institutes to be placed within reach of all the Sunday school workers of the State as follows:

Monroe and Shreveport, Oct. 15-18; Alexandria and Lake Charles, October 19-22; Baton Rouge and New Orleans, October 23-26. It will be noticed that the plan is similar to that followed in our Joint Institute two years ago, having two running at once, with the two sets of workers exchanging the third day and thus making the six institutes in two weeks. Mr. Bulla and Miss Mamie Lee Frazier, of our Methodist connectional force, are to be teachers and lecturers of the faculty, and we urge our people to get ready for this rare opportunity for the best instruction in up-to-date Sunday school facts and methods. The denominational rallies will give the Methodists ample opportunity for organizing their own forces and making such plans of their own as a conference of workers may afford.

A Remedy of Three Generations.

For nearly a century Gray's Ointment has been the standby of thousands of families. Your mother will tell you her mother always kept it in the house. She knew that it was absolutely the best remedy for Boils, Bruises, Cuts, Carbuncles, Fever Sores, Felons, Rheumatism, etc. Follow her example and equip your medicine chest with Gray's Ointment. 25c per box at drug stores, or write Dr. W. F. Gray & Co., 804 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., for a free sample postpaid.

Mr. Parmelia Crow, Aberdeen, Texas, writes: Send me four boxes of Gray's Ointment. My father and grandfather used it, and we can't do without."

TOPISAW CAMP MEETING.

Dear Brother Meek: Please announce that the Topisaw Camp Meeting will begin on Aug. 11, and that the preachers of the Brookhaven District are invited to attend. Conveyance may be had from McComb to the camp ground.

M. L. Burton, W. T. Griffin, H. A. Gatlin, and J. Loyd Decell will conduct the services.

J. W. THOMPSON.

PUDDINGS

made from

JELL-O ICE CREAM Powder

Are the easiest made and most delicious ever served by the finest cooks.

Simply stir the powder into milk, boil a few minutes, and it's done. Any one can do it. Directions printed on the package.

Ice Cream made from Jell-O Ice Cream Powder costs only one cent a dish.

Flavors: Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon, Chocolate, and Unflavored.

At Grocers', 10 cents a package.

Beautiful Recipe Book Free. Address,

The Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

ESTABLISHED 1858

CHURCH AND SCHOOL BELLS

Write for SPECIAL DONATION PLAN Cat. No. 67

THE C. S. BELL COMPANY, HILLSBORO, O.

BEST THING MADE

April 28, 1910, Dothan, Ala.

I began handling Johnston's Tonic in Blakely, Ga., in 1884. In 1892, moved to Dothan, Ala. Have sold more than 1000 bottles. Use it in my family for Colds, Fever and La Grippe. In all the years I have been selling it, never had but 2 complaints. Both parties admitted afterwards they had not used it right.

H. Q. FRAZIER.

April 13, 1910, Greenwood, S. C.

I have used Johnson's Tonic in my family for 9 years. It is all you claim for it and more too. It cured me of Typhus Hemorrhagic Fever. I would have been under the sod 9 years ago but for JOHNSON'S. Tell this to the world. It may save some man's life.

A. P. ALDRICH.

Drives every trace and taint of Malarial Poison from the Blood.

Your Summer Trip,

Whether to the North, East or West, should be made via the

Illinois Central

Low Summer Tourist Fares now in Effect.

Let us assist in planning your trip.

Write or call at

ILLINOIS CENTRAL OFFICE
141 St. Charles St.

W. H. BRILL, Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.
ED RODDY, City Pass. Agt

QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Best & Quickest Service

TO ALL IMPORTANT DESTINATIONS

In the North & East

Summer Tourist Tickets now on Sale to all Mountain, Lake and Seaside Resorts.

—Ticket Office—
211 ST. CHARLES STREET
Phone Main 4482

Terminal Station---Canal Street

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

NORTH MISS. CONFERENCE.

Sardis Dist.—Third Round.

Como	July 30, 31
Tyro, at Mt. Vernon	Aug. 5, 6
Olive Branch, Oak Grove	Aug. 12, 13
Wall Hill, at Grubb Hill	Aug. 15
Long Town, McGee's Chap.	Aug. 17
Oakland, at Bethel	Aug. 19, 20
Courtland, at Shiloh	Aug. 22
Senatobia	Aug. 23
Cockrum, at Independence	Aug. 26, 27
Eureka, at Pisgah	Sept. 2, 3
Arkabutla	Sept. 9, 10
Crenshaw	Sept. 12

W. M. YOUNG, P. E.

Winona Dist.—Third Round.

Schlater	July 29, 30
North Carrollton, at McCarley	Aug. 5, 6
Indianola, at Faisonia	Aug. 12, 13
Moorhead, at Blaine	Aug. 13, 14
Lambert, at Glendora	Aug. 19, 20
Minter City..8 p. m.	Aug. 20
Eupora, at Eupora	Aug. 24
Bellefontaine, at Walthall	Aug. 24
Kilmichael, at Lodi	Aug. 26, 27
Tutwiler, at Marks	Sept. 2, 3
Slate Springs, at Bethlehem	Sept. 9, 10

E. S. LEWIS, P. E.

Corinth Dist.—Third Round.

Rienzi Ct., at Bethel	July 29, 30
Tishomingo Ct., at Paradise	Aug. 4
Bellmont Ct., at Patterson Church	Aug. 5, 6
Booneville Ct., at Shady G.	Aug. 12, 13
Dry Run Ct., at Mt. Carmel	Aug. 19, 20
Hatchie Mission, at Mt. Pisgah	Aug. 21
Ripley Mis., at Black Jack	Aug. 22
Dumas ct., Jacobs Chp	Aug. 23
Sherman Ct., ———	Aug. 25
Myrtle Ct., at Ebenezer	Aug. 26, 27
Kossuth Circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Sept. 2
Guntown and B., at Baldwyn	Sept. 3, 4
Baldwyn Mission, at Palestine	Sept. 9, 10

BEN P. JACO, P. E.

Greenville District—Third Round.

Kuhn	July 29, 30
Hollondale	Aug. 5, 6
Shaw	Aug. 13, 14
Sherard	Aug. 20, 21

Let the pastors take particular note of question No. 17 in the business of the quarterly conference, and make a written report in full of this question, as the Discipline requires.

W. W. WOOLLARD, P. E.

Columbus Dist.—Third Round.

Starkville Ct., at Kilgore	July 29, 30
Sturgis, at Pughs	Aug. 5, 6
Mayhew	Aug. 11
Cedar Bluff, at Pearson	Aug. 12, 13
Cochrane	Aug. 19, 20
Columbus Circuit	Aug. 26, 27

J. E. THOMAS, P. E.

Durant Dist.—Third Round.

High Point, at Mt. Pleasant	July 28
Rural Hill, at Plattsburg	July 29, 30
Chester, at South Union	July 31
Ackerman, at Mt. Airy	Aug. 4
Ebenezer, at Bethany	Aug. 5, 6
Black Hawk, at B. H.	Aug. 12, 13
Sallis, at Salem	Aug. 15
Kossuth Ct., at Salem	Aug. 17
Poplar Creek, at Huntsville	Aug. 19, 20

N. G. AUGUSTUS, P. E.

Oxford Dist.—Third Round.

Pine Valley, at Salem	July 29, 30
Randolph, at Sprg. Hill	July 29, 30
Grenada Circuit, at Holcomb	July 29, 30
Lafayette, at Liberty	July 29, 30
Waterford, at Harris Chp.	July 29, 30
Duck Hill, at Bethel	July 29, 30
Ashland	Sept. 2, 3
Charleston, at Oak G.	Sept. 9, 10
Grenada	Sept. 10, 11

J. E. CUNNINGHAM, P. E.

Aberdeen Dist.—Third Round.

Shannon, at Center G.	July 29, 30
Verona, at Plantersville	July 30, 31
Greenwood Springs, at Friendship	Aug. 2
Prairie, at Prairie	Aug. 3
Wren, at Thompson Memorial	Aug. 5, 6
Okolona Ct., at Egypt	Aug. 6, 7
Okolona	Aug. 7
Nettleton Ct., at New Chp.	Aug. 8
Montpelier, at Palestine	Aug. 9
Derma, at Atlanta	Aug. 10
Pittsboro, at Tabernacle	Aug. 11
Fulton, at Fulton	Aug. 12, 13
Tremont, at Tremont	Aug. 13, 14

JAMES H. FELTS, P. E.

EDUCATIONAL

Wesleyan College

Macon, Georgia

One of the few real colleges for women in the South. Plant worth a half million, with all modern facilities. Faculty of forty. Nearly 3,000 alumnae throughout the nation.

Schools of Literature, Languages, Science, Arts and Music.

A safe institution for young ladies. Nonsectarian, but Christian to the core. Health record without a parallel—not a death for many years. Not conducted for profit, but to bless the world. Rates reasonable. No traveling agents.

For detailed information, address

W. N. AINSWORTH, D. D., President
C. R. JENKINS, Vice President

PEOPLES-TUCKER SCHOOL,
Springfield, Tenn.

Elevation 1200 feet. Superb new buildings with all modern improvements. Beautiful campus. Boys live with the teachers and are under their personal supervision at all times. On account of limited numbers, each boy receives the most careful personal attention of skilled teachers. If you want your boy well cared for physically, mentally, and morally, you will be interested in our catalogue. Send for one, and we will prove our claims. $300 covers all expenses.

Columbia College NEW and FIRE Proof Building Columbia, S. C.

For over half a century ColumbiaCollege has acceptably served those parents who require the best facilities for the men tal, moral and physical training of their daughters. In faculty, equipment, buildings and location, Columbia College presents advantages which are extremely difficult to duplicate. Requirements, those of Class A Colleges.

SPECIAL ADVANTAGES

1. Our central Location-easily accessible from all points of the South.
2. At the seat of the Legislative, Judicial and executive departments of the State, affording object lessons in the science of Government.
3. Visited by distinguished lecturers, musicians, artists and public men, thus constantly brought into touch with the leading men and measures of the day.
4. Access to several large libraries, in addition to its own library and well selected reading table,—especially that of South Carolina College, containing over 30,000 volumes.
5. Columbia is now one of the leading educational centers in the South, and nowhere else in the State can young ladies see and hear so much that they would never otherwise learn.
6. The social advantages of Columbia are unsurpassed in the State.
7. The college is in easy access to all the churches in the City, and is kept in touch with spiritual forces at work here.
8. Columbia is one of the finest winter resorts in the South. The mildness of our climate during the entire winter makes our location invaluable for college work.
9. Our heating apparatus is the product of the world's latest and best thought on the subject. All parts of the building are kept at the same temperature, being regulated by one thermometer, and the atmosphere is kept sufficiently moist to be most conductive to health.
10. Our Sanitary arrangements are the best, and our health record is unsurpassed.
11. The fine natural drainage of the premises.
12. An able faculty of specialists, all thoroughly trained in their departments. Courses leading to the degrees of B. A., B. S., and B. L.
13. The course of study is carefully graded and thorough at every point. It is arranged on the University plan, allowing girls to enter the class they are prepared for, as far as possible, in every department.
14. Our special departments are under the direction of able teachers. Music, art, elocution, and business courses are all extensive and thorough.
15. Our system of physical culture seeks to develop symmetrically every muscle of the body, and correlate it as far as possible with the mind.
16. The elevating and ennobling influence of a Christian environment, which pervades every department of the college.
17. The lyceum brings to our midst lecturers of national renown and musicians of reputation.
18. Our large campus of 20 acres, overlooking the city of Columbia, affords abundant room for all games and exercises.
19. Suburban location gives quietude for study and freedom of country life.

For Descriptive Catalogue Address

REV. W. W. DANIEL, D. D., President, Columbia, S. C.

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

Rev. David Carlisle Hull, M.S., President.

A high grade college, situated at the capital of the State. Location high, dry and healthful.

Entrance requirements and Curriculum same as in other Leading Colleges and Universities North and South.

Separate Preparatory School under Private Dormitory Management.

The very finest Moral and Religious Influences. Extraordinary Advantages in

LITERARY AND LAW DEPARTMENTS.

Courses Leading to A.B., B.S., A. M., M.S., and LL.B. Degrees.

TWENTIETH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 20th, 1911.

For catalog and other information address

E. Y. BURTON, Secretary, Jackson, Mississippi.

The Mississippi Conference Training School,

MONTROSE, MISS.

A unique Preparatory school for boys and girls with wholesome moral surroundings and positive Christian influence.

Our regular literary course is practical, and prepares for taking the A. B. degree in the best colleges. The Bible is included in our daily recitations.

Our extras are: Music, Expression, and a normal course preparing teachers to teach in the public schools.

Special features are: A Mission Study Class, and a conrse preparing teachers to teach in the Sunday school. We also have a farm in connection with the school, and boys of moderate means may have the free use of the land and thereby pay expenses.

Write for catalogue.

(Rev.) WALDO W. MOORE, A. M., President.

MERIDIAN WOMAN'S COLLEGE

Among the Health-giving Pine Hills of Mississippi.

The largest private School for girls in the South, an ideal union of home and school. Non-sectarian, yet Christian, a school where the social and religious welfare of your daughter is carefully guarded and no phase of her education neglected. Beautiful 60 acre campus. Largest conservatory of Music in the entire South; Oratory and Art.

Write for Beautifully Illustrated Catalog No. 4

Meridian Woman's College, J. W. Bacon, A. M. President, Meridian, Miss.

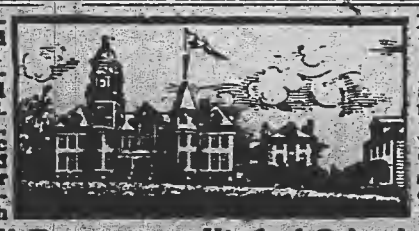
Meridian Male College, a quarter mile distant, is an ideal place for your son. Military discipline. Christian home influences. Operated in connection with the Meridian Woman's College.

BINGHAM, Asheville, N. C., has prepared BOYS for College and for Christian Citizenship for 118 years, and ALONE in the U. S., offers a FREE ROUND TRIP TICKET from anywhere within 1500 miles to any parent who, on inspection, is not convinced that its pairs of ONE STORY brick rooms, separated by a parapet FIRE WALL, are the BEST for Health, Sanitation, Ventilation and safety against FIRE. 1793 Send for Catalogue or come and see. COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt. R. F. D. No. 28 1912

CHAMBERLAIN-HUNT ACADEMY, Port Gibson, Mississippi.

A High Grade Training School for Boys and Young Men.

First class boys wanted. Industrial and Practical in aim. Courses on Agriculture and Manual Training just added. Buildings modern, steam heat, electric lights, etc. In old historic section near Vicksburg. No malaria. Among High Hills. Four Optional Courses. Instructors all College Graduates. No Hazing; Military abolished. Some boys reduce expenses by work. Non-sectarian, but Christian. Bible a Text Book. Last session crowded. Cheapest school of its kind in the South.



$150 Pays all Expenses. Kind of School South Needs.

Mention the Advocate. For Catalog address M. R. MELVIN, A. M., Pres.

Belmont College.

FOR YOUNG WOMEN NASHVILLE, TENN.

IRA LANDRITH, D. D., LL. D., Pres. MISS HOOD AND MISS HERON, Principals.

Environment and equipment ideal. Modern buildings surrounded by a beautiful Magnolia park of 20 acres overlooking Nashville, "The Athens of the South." City advantages and country environment. Outdoor sports, athletics and horseback riding. Delightful climate and unsurpassed health conditions. Every provison for safety, comfort and work. Non-sectarian, but distinctively Christian infinences prevail, with all the refining atmosphere of home life.

Administration and teaching staff include 50 specialists. Experienced teachers trained in leading Universities of America and Europe. Splendid Conservatory under direction of Edouard Hesselberg, pianist and composer. Most expensively maintained music faculty in the South.

Students from over 30 states. 20 per cent Northern girls. Limited capacity, always filled. Early registration advised. For Catalogue, address

Department 34 BELMONT COLLEGE, Nashville, Tenn.

TRINITY COLLEGE

1859 1892 1910-1911

Three memorable dates: The Granting of the Charter for Trinity College; the Removal of the College to the growing and prosperous City of Durham; the Building of the New and Greater Trinity.

Magnificent new buildings with new equipment and enlarged facilities.

Comfortable hygienic dormitories and beautiful pleasant surroundings.

Five departments: Academic; Mechanical, Civil, and Electrical Engineering; Law; Education; Graduate.

For catalogue and other information, address

R. L. FLOWERS, Secretary, Durham, N. C.

GRENADA COLLEGE

A CHRISTIAN COLLEGE FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN.

The Property of the Church—Erected and Maintained for Service.

Only One Hundred Boarders Taken. Personal Attention Given Each Student.

A FACULTY OF SPECIALISTS.

THE BEST ADVANTAGES IN MUSIC, ART, AND EXPRESSION.

Write for Catalog. REV. J. R. COUNTISS, President. Grenada, Miss.

MARTIN COLLEGE,

An Endowed School for Girls and Young Women,

PULASKI, Tenn. Established 1870. W. T. WYNN, President

Located on Main line of the L. & N. R. R., eighty miles south of Nashville, forty miles north of Decatur, in the beautiful "Blue Grass" region so famous for health and the beauty of its scenery. Cultured community. All departments. German Director of Music. Conservatory and University trained teachers. Modern buildings. Good pianos, new $1000 grand for recitals. Correspondence invited. Forty-first session begins Sept. 20, 1911. Write for catalogue. Address W. T. WYNN, Pulaski, Tennessee.

Morgan School Not Better than Some Others

Morgan School has no better building, the health of the school and town is not superior to some, the Dormitory and Gymnasium are not better than some others in the State.

All these are good enough,

But the standard of character and scholarship is equal to the best and superior to many.

If information is desired, write for catalogue.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal.

FAYETTEVILLE, TENN.

DICKSON COLLEGE, Dickson, Tenn.

T. B. LOGGINS, A.M., President.

A school for both sexes; limited numbers; strong faculty; splendid student body; healthful location in the Tennessee Highlands; Christian influences. One of the safest and most practical schools for young men and women, boys and girls. Literary, music, expression, bookkeeping and short-hand courses. 27th year under same management, begins Thursday, Aug. 31, 1911. Before making other arangements, let us send you our beautiful 40-page catalogue. Address, T. B. LOGGINS, Dickson, Tenn.

Ward Seminary FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN Nashville, Tennessee

Literary Department of the highest order. Seminary and Special Courses. French and German spoken. Certification to Wellesley, Vassar, Goucher, Randolph-Macon.

In Music opportunities unsurpassed—nine teachers, eight with the best European training—WINKLER, Director, Piano; CAMPORELLO, Voice; SCHMITZ, Violin. School Orchestra and Chorus.

Expression, Art, Domestic Science—all in charge of specialists.

City advantages. Accessible to leading churches, libraries, lecture and concert halls. Outdoor sports, Tennis, Basket Ball, etc., also beautiful Ward Place campus for recreation.

47th year begins Sept. 21. 175 boarding pupils. Early application is advised

For Catalogue and Other Circulars, Address J. D. BLANTON, LL.D., Prest.

ESCAPE THE HEAT OF SUMMER AND SPEND YOUR VACATION ON THE

PACIFIC COAST

Temperature 50 Degrees to 70 Degrees EVERY DAY

LOW ROUND TRIP RATES NOW IN EFFECT

Via SOUTHERN PACIFIC

Two Strictly First-Class Trains Daily

"SUNSET EXPRESS" and "CALIFORNIA EXPRESS"

Through to SAN FRANCISCO without change

Most Modern Standard and Tourist Sleeping Cars; Electric Lighted—Individual Lights in Berths; Oil Burning Locomotives; Electric Block Signals; Observation Car on Sunset Express; Dining Car Service Best in the World.

Before Deciding on Your Route, see

SOUTHERN PACIFIC REPRESENTATIVE,

City Ticket Office, 225-27 St. Charles Street, New Orleans

PHONE MAIN 4027

Beautifully Illustrated Literature Furnished on Request.

HIBERNIA INSURANCE CO.,

Capital.....$200,000.00
Assets..... 479,860.99

No. 305 Camp Street., New Orleans, L

LOSSES PROMPTLY PAID.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

VOL. 58—No. 31. "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which is Good." WHOLE No. 2894.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 3, 1911

CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.
Office, No. 512 Camp St.

THE DECLINE OF FAMILY RELIGION.

These are ominous words. If they be widely applicable, and it is to be feared they are, they indicate a condition in modern life that is fraught with menace. For it cannot be doubted that in the homes of the nation play the most influential forces that determine the form and direction of life. Compared with the school and the church, the home is first and foremost as the teacher of principles, the custodian of traditions, the furnisher of ideals, the shaper of ends. What is lacking there, is likely to account for the defects in the character of its inmates; what is habitually present there, as the essence of its thought and talk and spirit, is the basis of what they possess in moral values. True, there are many exceptions, but these prove the rule.

These moral acquisitions are liable to waste. Through neglect they suffer slow deterioration; and the finer and more delicate they are the more pronounced is their susceptibility to decay. Now this is just the process that seems to be going on in the religious life of multitudes to-day. Their spiritual inheritance is wasting away. The memory of many goes back to home scenes clothed in an atmosphere of simple piety, strong, quiet trust, devout worship, where God was known as friend, counsellor, and guide. Every morning was greeted with prayer, every meal received with thanksgiving, God's Word was an open book. But the stress and strain of modern life have invaded their homes, and driven out the simpler homely habits of devotion. The impetus felt from the old influences and memories which have proven a spur to the best activities, a solace to the bitterest disappointments, and a defense in the severest temptations, is almost spent. Of the best derived from their fathers there is little left in many homes to-day to be passed on to their children. Prayer is never made, the Bible is a disused and unknown book, even the blessing on the daily bread unsought.

This is one of the fundamental defects of modern life. It is a loss that offsets tremendously the gains that have been made in other less essential things. To it are to be attributed many of the negative features of present day existence: the prevalent restlessness; want of serenity in the face of trials; irreverence and trifling with the most sacred things; absence of conviction, and frequent sacrifice of principle for the sake of advantage; dimness of vision; the widespread scorn for things unseen and the questioning of their reality and worth; the strong infatuation for wealth and pleasure, and the means of show and pride and place; the homelessness of the wandering souls that are content to board, now here, now there, in the lodging houses of all the theories and isms that may be fashionable; the unpopularity and neglect of the house of God; the drift toward seclusion, materialism, heathenism, externalism. Such things feature the personal life of the many to-day, and their marks are familiar upon the body politic. They exist in prevalence and power largely because in so vastly many instances family life is untouched by the spirit of worship. Home is the shelter place of storm-beaten life, and so often it is unalmed by an atmosphere of faith. It is the vision place where the man sees himself naked but not in his relation to the unseen because the religious light burns dim. The house is built without foundations that go down to the rock of the great realities and the soul loses its sense of security. In too many of these modern Edens God does not walk in the cool of the day, and his voice is not heard. And the children of men go out to their toil and their strivings without the old, familiar Friend. The result is visible in the lack of mental poise and moral power. The vaporngs and vices of the world have little power over lives cradled and cultured in homes where the altar fires are kept burning bright.

The church, too, feels the effect of the decline in family religion. It is seen in the passing of the "family pew." The item of the "Number of Families" in the church census has well nigh lost its signlficance in many quarters. It is scarcely possible any longer to conceive of the church as a group of households worshiping. Households do not worship as such. The delightful and dignified sight is seldom possible, now, of an entire family led to church by the head of the house, and seated, father, mother, and children, together in the place of worship, participating together in the service of the sanctuary. The group is broken up, the members are scattered in several parts of the church, perhaps in several churches. This is indicative of the lack of cohesiveness in modern family life. May it not be possible that this lack of cohesiveness is itself the fruit of a weak religious life? At any rate, the modern church is not to be regarded so much as a group of families as an aggregation of individulas.

To some there seems to be a distinct loss in this. It operates to weaken the hold of the church on the devotion of the children of Christian homes. The appeal of the fathers' interests loses its force. One tie that has served to bind the members of the household to the church is broken, or at least weakened. There is a diminution of loyalty on the part of the new generation which the church is apt to suffer from. Without being a sectarian one can see that at the present stage in the development of the religious life the person who has not learned to identify himself with a specific part of the great Church of God loses, and does not gain, in Christian efficiency and definite service. Furthermore, there arises out of this condition in the church life of to-day a weakening of the sense of parental responsibility for the religious life of the youth. The father who has neglected to give expression to the religious element in his family life will be tempted to belittle the effect of his example in regard to church attendance and activity. The church thereby loses the moral support of the home in its work which it is so earnestly trying to do. Its power as an organization is perceptibly affected by the changed attitude toward family religion.

At the same time that it is losing in this way, the decline of family religion is adding to the burden of its work. There is a marked tendency to throw the responsibility for the religous training of the young upon the church—an impossible task without the co-operation of the home, for an institution that has the child one hour out of one hundred and sixty-eight hours in a week. And the church finds its work of Bible instruction nullified in the home where the Bible is seldom opened.

Much is said to-day about the failure of the church to attract and hold men, and about the crudeness of the teaching in the Sunday school. It is more than probable that most of the blame charged against the church is more justly to be laid at the door of the home, where family religion has been allowed to decline.—The Christian Intelligencer.

THE CHILDREN OF KING GEORGE V.

Among the most studious and best brought up boys and girls in all England are the six children of the royal family. Even in the summer, when the family goes to the royal castle at Bienheim, in Scotland, there is a corner of one of the gardens set aside for nature study. Each child has a piece of land with hotbeds and garden tools of his own, where he digs and plants and sows. They are earnest, hard-working little farmers.

When the royal family is at home in London, at Buckingham Palace, the king often goes with the children to a large lake in the park, where they have a fleet of little ships which they learn to manage. King George also frequently accompanies the children on long walks and takes them to see football games. The king loves his family devotedly and they are all very affectionate and happy.

Prince John, the baby of the family, is a sturdy little fellow now almost six years old. Next comes Prince George, nine years, and Prince Henry eleven. The only daughter is Princess Mary, who is fourteen and is said to rule her brothers with a rod of iron. She is described as a fearless little lady, with a strong will of her own, and she is very fond of study. Prince Albert is fifteen and Prince Edward will be seventeen on June 23.

As heir-apparent, Prince Edward is studying very hard to prepare himself for his future duties. For two years he has been one of the best pupils at the naval school at Dartmouth. He fares as do the rest of the students, eating, playing, working just as they do. He is fond of all sports, swims like a fish, boxes and plays football. The prince is a manly young fellow and is said to have "a heart of gold." His kindness toward animals was shown one day when he said, "When I am king nobody shall cut puppies' tails." Edward, who was a great favorite with his grandfather, Edward VII, is altogether a charming young prince, handsome, full of high spirits and good humor. He is extremely popular, for "his kindness, his perfect courtesy and his unaffected way make him loved by everybody."—New York Christian Advocate.

James Whitcomb Riley, the Hoosier poet, has donated to the city lots in one of the most beautiful situations in Indianapolis, and valued at $75,000, for the purpose of the new library building soon to be erected.

Christian Advocate.

Published for the Louisiana, Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

DIRECTIONS:

Correspondents will please direct all communications intended for the Editor to 512 Camp St., New Orleans, La. Communications intended for the Business Department should be addressed to the Manager of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if this date is not moved forward after three weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise.

MY MISSISSIPPI HOME.

By Clara Trotter Shaw.

When oft, in sad imaginings, my thoughts swift backward turn,
And from the buried treasures of memory's funeral urn
There comes before my vision as though on canvas paint
The picture of a homestead in my Mississippi State.
It is no stately mansion with rich and tap'stried walls,
With lofty columned porches and shady spacious halls,
But just a low-roofed cottage, where through the summer's day
The flowers in the meadows with the shadows seem to play.

And I long, with childish longings, once again the woods to roam
That circled round the hillsides of my Mississippi home;
Once again to paddle barefoot in the creek or in the rills,
Or to gather hawthorn blossoms from their homes upon the hills;
Once again to scamper swiftly up the old and gnarled trees
In the ancient apple orchard just below the house's eaves;
Or to listen to the red-bird as he lilts his merry lay,
Telling us the snowy winter to the north had passed away.

Was there e'er a place so pretty as the bank down on the creek,
Where among the beech-nut branches the squirrel his playmates seek,
Where drooping may-apple blossoms hang their white and waxen heads,
Vieing in beauty with the violets in their green and leafy beds?
Can any joy e'er equal that when with our lines and hooks
We sought to coax the finny tribes from their cool and shady nooks?
Or when we tramped the hillside all covered o'er with snow
To trap our first "molly cotton-tail" and take her home "to show?"

Oh, I am homesick for the handshake of the friends of long ago,
For the welcome smile and greeting, for the lack of pomp and show,
For the old Mississippi homestead, for the river flowing near,
Where in spring or dreary winter there's ne'er a place so dear.
I have found in all my wanderings from my home so far away,
That no friends can fill the places of the ones of childhood's day;
No laugh half so hearty, no welcome half so sweet,
No hearts half so true in the people now I meet.

I know there are loving faces, that hearts beat quick and warm,
That some one feeds the robins and keeps the lambs from harm;
But who meets the homesick stranger with friendly, outstretched hand,
And bids him take new courage though in an alien land?
So, I hope that when the summons comes to take my soul to God
They'll carry me back to Mississippi to sleep beneath her sod;
That in the Resurrection morning from my quiet home below
They'll be the first to greet me, those friends of long ago.

THE METHOD OF THE HIGHER CRITICS.

By T. H. Lipscomb, B.D.

Several times of late we have noted utterances, supposed to be conservative, to the effect that the methods of the higher critics are correct and may be approved, though their conclusions are generally erroneous and untrustworthy. Our friend of the Western Methodist, we are informed, retires behind this statement as a refuge in time of trouble. Certainly it is a convenient shelter from utterances rash and indefensible, and it may appear a satisfactory middle ground between the extremes of conservatism and radicalism on either hand. But this is true only so long as the statement is allowed to rest in its learned obscurity; and when the question is further asked, as it was whispered to me recently in such a connection, "What is the method of the higher critics?" what does the statement mean? it will appear that letting the blessed sunlight of analysis in makes even this comfortable nentral ground untenable.

In fact, we are inclined to think that some of those who have accepted this position fail to distinguish between the snbjects with which the higher criticism deals—questions of authorship, date, historical setting, purpose of writing—and the method by which they proceed to a study of these subjects. It will readily be admitted, has been admitted, indeed, on all sides since the days of Archbishop Usher, that the subjects with which higher criticism deals are legitimate and proper subjects of investigation; and that information as to when a book was written, by whom, and the circumstances under which it was written, with what purpose, is an aid and a great aid to a correct interpretation of it.

Bnt to admit that the subjects are worthy and that it is well to consider them is one thing, and to approve of the method of the higher critics is quite another, if we are to be at all exact in our use of speech.

The real question, then, as to method as distinct from the snbject considered, is, How do they go about determining the authorship, date, etc., and, in points of doctrine, the meaning of the writer? Do they appeal to historical documents, archeological discoveries and inscriptions to disprove positions long held by the Church? No, for the testimony of these is against them. While the higher critics would reduce a large portion of Israelitish history up to a short time prior to the Exile to a mass of legends and uncertain traditions, modern archeological research shows that this cannot have been the case, considering the highly developed civilizations round about them and with which they were in continual contact. If the appeal of the higher critics were to newly discovered documents or writings in support of their claims they would deserve a more respectful hearing, but such is not the case.

The method by which they would upturn the accepted results of the Biblical scholarship of centuries is a purely subjective asd speculative treatment of the Holy Scriptures, in which hypothetical documents and writers are conceived, and in which each critic forms his own standard of the characteristic style of, say the First Elohist, Jehovist, and Deuteronomist authors of the Pentatench, Moses being allowed also a small share by some, and then with his self-made standards proceeds to oracularly declare just what D. J. E. or Moses could have written and did write. And so with the remainder of the Old Testament. One great critic affirms that the first part of the Book of Isaiah is a mosaic so badly put together that it has first to be broken in pieces in order that its pieces may be readjusted according to his fancy; another, commenting on the great prophecy of Daniel ix, 24-27, proposes alterations in every clause of the text but one (for none of which any external authority can be adduced); another asserts that "no Davidic Psalm is to be found in the Psalter." So, in the New Testament, a hypothetical document Q, and other documents are conceived—documents never heard of in history or seen by mortal eye—as the "sources," and then the reliability of the various portions of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John are judged accordingly; or, on the basis of purely subjective standards of what Jesus, John, Mark, Luke would say and should say, they decide what each did say.

So the method of the higher critics is purely speculative and snbjective—it is individualism gone to seed. The method is, as we believe Bishop Candler said at the Seashore Divinity School, even worse than the widely divergent outcome; but the outcome is what we might expect from such a method, in which every man's subjective impressions becomes the standard by which he judges all things. As Bishop Mouzon showed, in regard to a critical study of Shakespeare's Henry VII., if you listen to the various critics, eliminating this and that as not Shakespeare's, you will soon conclude that Shakespeare wrote none of it, and leave the critics forever debating what he did and did not write.

The folly of the whole process can be easily illustrated by snpposing that a number of men should agree that the yardstick in common use, accepted by the common sense of men as a good and serviceable standard of measure, is antiquated and rigid, destructive to man's freedom and individuality, and that henceforth every man should make his own yardstick, and measnre all things accordingly. What a medley of discordant estimates would at once appear; and how appropriate would be the enlargement at once of hospitals for the insane! So snrely would the methods of the higher critics, applied in all departments of life, unsettle the foundations of everything and leave us in a blank chaos of donbt and wild disorder. The correctness of the Scripture narrative and its historical accuracy have been by the common sense of most accepted as deserving as much credence and even more than any other records which have come down to us. At this late date to attempt to overhaul and reconstruct them on speculative evidence is irreverence and folly.

But nowhere does the method of the higher critics show up in more arrogant and egotistical form than when it approaches the subject of Christian doctrine, and begins the task of giving ns a new theology. What is the method by which they come to such new and snper-ethical conclusions as to God and his truth? The working principle of it we remember well as stated by Dr. Newman Smyth in his so-called "Christian Ethics." He therein affirms that the first duty of man to God is to believe nothing of God which is contrary to your own inner consciousness of what God ought to be and do; even though, as he adds, you have to tear holes in your creed to behold his loveliness, and even though the devil, as of old, quotes Scripture to the contrary. In other words, your first duty toward God is not to love him, or worship him, or obey him, but to judge him, and the revelation he has given of himself in his Holy Word, by your own standards, in utter forgetfulness that he is the Creator, the Infinite in wisdom, goodness, justice, truth, and that you are the creature, finite, whose reasonable attitude is that of a learner, seeking to understand the revelation of God.

So the new theology is the speculative product of extreme individualism, where a new super-God concludes first, out of the depths of his so-called Christian consciousness, what God ought to be, do, and teach; and then proceeds to wrest the Scriptures (by eliminating much and denying the common sense meaning of more) into harmony with his opinions. Oh, a modest task indeed is this: to reform the theology of heaven concerning redeeming blood, and teach ethics toward the very throne of God, incidentally making benighted fools of all our fathers!

We oppose, then, the method of the higher critics as ardently as we oppose their conclusions, as being, in relation to questions of authorships and dates, a speculative attempt to settle questions which are by such methods insolvable, and in dispute of the accepted evidences upon which all history rests; and as being, concerning questions of theology, a blasphemous attempt to reconstruct God and his truth concerning sin and redemption in harmony with unsanctified human ideas, and then force his Revelation into conformity thereto. As Bishop Candler finely said in a recent address: "I have no respect for your little new gods and your new theologies. They have no power. I can run them out of town any day with a pocketful of rotten apples. But the God who is the Eternal, the same yesterday, to-day, and forever, his name I revere, and his truth I would in humility seek to understand and to defend both now and ever."

And, granting that there is a God, and that he has revealed his truth to man, is it not man's plainest duty and highest wisdom to go to it humbly and seek to comprehend, not judge hy pre-conceived standards, that which is therein contained?

"O Truth is easy, and the light shines clear,
In hearts kept open, honest and sincere."

But the method of the higher critics, and the spirit in which they approach the sacred Word, is, we are convinced, "an abomination unto the Lord." From such, good Lord, deliver us.

Lexington, Miss.

THE COMMANDING POSTS OF METHODISM.

"The ministry is for the Church, not the Church for the ministry." The philosophy of that position is impregnable; and it means that we have not one syllable of ground as conferences to accept or retain a man in the ministry for his own sake—for the sake of giving him a job. The strictly business principle is, can he do the work, and is he the very best material available? When we are loyal to this point we are loyal to the higher interest of the Church; when an appeal to sympathy or policy or personal feeling would cause us to swerve from this point, it is an ad populum argument which we should trample beneath our feet, out of pure love for the interests of Zion. "But, sometimes the second best available man is good, and worthy, and called of God to preach." That may be true, but we are not called of God to offer to the church any less than the best we can find. Our contention, of course, must not be taken too literally; we do not mean that we should expect every applicant for admission to be a model, hut he must not be a doubtful case in point of intellect, piety, morals, gifts, calling, and worldly relationships. He may have many temporary or non-essential defects, for very few preachers come out of the homes of wealth and culture. It is a fact, the cause of which should be sought by our best well-to-do Methodists, that homes of luxury seldom furnish the Church any preachers. The business world and civil service get many men who are polished shafts from the beginning. The Church has many polished shafts in her service, men who are the peers of statesmen and rulers; but the record usually is that she has to make polished shafts out of them after she gets them. Our contention is that the Church ought to be sure as to the kind of stuff a man is made of before she commits herself to the task of shaping him to take a commanding position. Every position in the Methodist itinerancy is a commanding position. It is the most remarkable federation in the world. He is sure of a high position of authority and influence in some community. The appointing powers are compelled by law to see that he always has a job. It is an absurdity to suppose that such a federation as this should take on a man who is not eligible to a goodly fraction of the posts at its command or who would probably leave any of these posts in a worse condition than he found them.

There has been a cry of dearth of men for the ministry; but this should not frighten us into recklessly opening the door. We should forget all these things, and weigh carefully and with charity (toward the Church) the claims of every applicant. To deny a man a place in the itinerancy is not to dispute his call to preach, neither is it to deny him the privilege of going into the harvest field and doing his best. He may he licensed to exhort or preach as a local preacher; and it were far better to be an honored exhorter or local preacher than to be a discredited itinerant. This reminds us that if we would preach annually sermons on the call to preach, backing them with thorough preparation and much prayer, and watching among our choice young men for suitable candidates, we would largely solve this problem of a dearth of preachers without nervously raking in every applicant, regardless of intellectual fitness. The pastor is in a better position than any other man to guard the Church against this affliction; the presiding elder's position is second best, and the District Conference third.

We said regardless of intellectual fitness. This is the point most liable to be neglected. We usually are far from taking a man of doubtful piety, and we are becoming more averse to taking men of doubtful habits. Indeed, we ask a good deal, though not too much, about their basic education; but it seldom occurs to us that simpletons may know grammar, and even carry college diplomas. Probably more men with loose screws in their heads turn toward the ministry than in any other direction, proportionately, and we should for this reason watch this point. Fitness for the task is the standard by which railroad engineers and steamboat pilots are licensed. It is not a question of whose school were they educated in, but are they thoroughly balanced, and can they do the work? Do they know their business? Usually, when one applies for a position where many precious lives are to be in his hands, he is examined by alienists and tested as to his sanity. The United States Army and Navy have their standards, corresponding with the demands that will be made upon the men in service. Had they no drastic standards, they would encounter failure in every conflict, and our nation would long ago have been a hissing and a by-word among the nations. The analogy is true in all branches of the business world. We complain of a lack of success in the Church, and our lack of success and imperfect hold upon society in some quarters is indeed apparent. We can only make the best of the men of to-day, dropping, now and then, one who is clearly inefficient; but let us look out for the men of to-morrow, and they, under God, will look out for the Church of to-morrow.

J. H. P.

ST. LOUIS METHODISM.

By Rev. J. W. Worsnop.

St. Louis Methodism is vitally aggressive. A tent meeting, which ran for two weeks, including three Sundays, closed on the 16th. The average attendance was about eight hundred, except Sunday nights, when it was about fifteen hundred. The preaching, by various local pastors, was of a high order. One hundred signed cards expressing their desire to live Christian lives. Fifty of these were converted. A large number of Christians from the different churches were spiritually benefited by these meetings.

Rev. S. H. Wainright, D.D., is just finishing his quadrennium as presiding elder of the St. Louis District. Before the close of the last District Conference he and his wife were remembered hy a handsome present from the preachers as an expression of their appreciation of them.

Rev. J. W. Lee, D.D., is pastor of St. John's Church. This is the third time he has had charge of this congregation. He is an excellent writer, and according to competent critics, his book on "The Making of a Man," proves that Doctor Lee has a great mind. He is at present in England where he is visiting his son, who is a prominent banker in London.

Rev. L. E. Todd has been two years at Centenary, which is quite an historic church. Mr. Murray Carlton, a prominent business man in this city is one of his official members. It would not surprise me if in the near future Mr. Carlton does not become the Governor of the State of Missouri.

Rev. Paul Linn, D.D., came from Kansas City last October to Scrugg's Memorial. This has nearly become like Centenary, a down-town church. According to reports from his laymen, the congregations and membership have largely increased under his ministry. Dr. J. W. Vaughan, a skilful surgeon and physician and a member of the last General Conference, is the chairman of his Board of Stewards.

Rev. C. M. Hawkins, D.D., who, after a successful four year's pastorate at Cabanne, was appointed to Lafayette Park nearly two years ago. During that time he has accomplished a marvelous work. Besides being an effective evangelical preacher and a good pastor, he is an excellent writer and a very popular lecturer.

Rev. C. C. Selecman took charge of Kingdom House last October, and he and his deaconesses are doing institutional work on a scale second to none. He has held several successful evangelistic meetings for a number of churches in and out of the city.

Rev. Theo. Copeland, D.D., came from one of your New Orleans' churches four years ago last fall to St. Paul's church, where he had a successful quadrennium. Since last October he has been the preacher in charge of Cahanne, one of the best and most important churches in St. Louis. The attendance at all the means of grace has greatly increased under his ministry. Every organization is in good working order. These reports have come to me from some of his own members. I preached for him a few Sundays ago. Notwithstanding the very hot weather there was a large congregation, and I was informed that it was not as large as usual. Dr. Copeland is a fine preacher, an excellent pastor, a prolific writer, and is regarded as an all-round man of affairs. Mr. Lon V. Stephens, ex-governor of Missouri and a millionaire, is an official member of the church.

Rev. Marven T. Haw followed Dr. Copeland at St. Paul's. Brother Haw has gained the reputation of being a church builder. St. Paul's was built during his former pastorate. He was sent to Charleston where he left a beautiful new church. He was appointed to Jackson, where I myself spent four happy years, and at the end of his quadrennium he had erected another beautiful edifice.

I am closing my four years at Grand Avenue. During that time the little frame building, one of the relics of the World's Fair, has been removed, and we have now a beautiful brick church, trimmed with stone, which is admired by all who pass by it on the cars. Mr. Samuel Cupples, a wealthy and influential layman of St. John's church, has been a great friend to this new organization.

Rev. Josephus Stephen is doing well at Mount Auburn. This is his second time at this charge. He and his official members are planning an extension to the building to give them the room they greatly need.

Rev. C. C. Berry removed Oak Hill church to a more desirahle place and had the name changed to Christy Memorial. The growth of his Sunday school and congregation demonstrate the wisdom of the removal to the new location.

Rev. J. T. Martin, at Marvin Memorial Church, is the singing preacher of the district. He has had charge of the singing in a number of revival services. He is in his second year.

Dr. Barnes, ex-presiding elder of the Marshall district in the South West Missouri Conference, was transferred to Wagoner Place last fall. According to reports from his own members he is a scholar and a strong man in the pulpit. He held a protracted meeting and did his own preaching. The chairman of my board and I attended the service one rainy night, and we were surprised at the large number present.

Rev. John McCarthy, who came to us from the Congregational Church, is making a good Methodist. He followed Bro. Stephen at Shaw Avenue. On June 11th, at three o'clock in the afternoon, Bishop E. R. Hendrix dedicated this church. The Bishop preached a great sermon. It will long be remembered.

Rev. I. L. Holt, D.D., who is now traveling in Europe, is preacher in charge at University City, where we have a splendid lot for the erection in the near future of a magnificent edifice.

Rev. T. M. Finley is pastor at Carondelet. This church was organized by the late Rev. D. R. McAnally, D.D., who was well known all over the connection. He was for years before his death the editor of the St. Louis Christian Advocate.

St. Louis, Mo.

One need not run to and fro to seek out God. He is not far away. He stands before our door and waits. To him who is ready and opens to him, he enters in. He delays not.—John Tauler.

Secular News and Comment

Ponchatoula, La., has voted in favor of a tax to construct a $25,000 high school building.

* * *

The candy bill of the United States is said to have reached last year the enormous sum of $78,000,000.

* * *

The City Council of Shreveport has recently let the contract for fifteen miles of additional paving, which is to cost over half a million dollars.

* * *

Edward M. Shepard, famed as a lawyer and Democratic politician, died at his summer home at Lake George, N. Y., on July 28. He was once a candidate for the office of mayor of New York City, and was frequently considered by his party in connection with the highest honors of the State and Nation. He was regarded as a man of exceptionally brilliant intellect and worthy character.

* * *

A publishing company, capitalized at $20,000, has been organized in New Orleans for the purpose of issuing a monthly magazine in Spanish. The periodical will be named "Mercurio," and the first number, containing 44 pages, is expected to appear on August 15. The object of this enterprise is to promote the export trade of the Crescent City with Central and South American countries.

* * *

The United States now has thirty-six battleships in commission, and it is estimated that by 1915 the number will have increased to forty-six. It has been suggested that the Oregon be accorded the honor of leading the great naval parade which is expected to take place in connection with the Panama Exposition at San Francisco, and thus be made the first war vessel to pass from the Atlantic to the Pacific through the canal.

* * *

The papers report that Judge Lurton of the United States Supreme Court is going to England to study the rules of equity practiced in that country. He, Chief Justice White, and Associate Justice Vandeventer, constitute a committee appointed by our national Supreme Court to revise the rules of equity practiced in the federal courts of the United States. The writings of Charles Dickens are said to have brought about a wholesome revision of judicial procedure in Great Britain many years ago.

* * *

The value of the automobiles manufactured in the United States in the year 1909 was $165,000,000. That of the ships built during the same year was $75,000,000; of locomotives about $27,000,000; of carriages and wagons $121,000,000; of bicycles $31,000,000; of typewriters $7,000,000. In the decade from 1899 to 1909, the automobile business increased in this country over 4,000 per cent. From the way such machines are finding their way into popular favor, the "horseless age" may be much nearer at hand than many are disposed to think.

* * *

A slot machine for selling newspapers has been devised in New York. A penny is dropped into a receptacle, a crank is turned, and out comes a paper nicely folded. Three of these contrivances are now in operation, and they are reported to be working nicely. If they stand the test well, it is likely that they will be set up in all the cities and that the newsboys will find their jobs in jeopardy. Many tasks formerly laboriously performed by hand are now quickly discharged by means of mechanical devices. More and more the forces of nature are being harnessed and made to lighten the burdens of mankind.

* * *

Tennessee is to have a juvenile prison reformatory. It is stated that architects have been selected and that the construction of the buildings will be begun at an early date. Governor Hooper is expected to visit institutions of this kind in other States with a view to profiting by their experience in carrying forward this work. It is to be hoped that every commonwealth in the Union will provide similar facilities for trying to reclaim youthful criminals. To confine them in company with those who are confirmed in vicious habits is a course of administration that is justly censurable. Indeed, it is well nigh unpardonable.

* * *

The high cost of living is no myth. An investigation by the Bureau of Labor of the prices of 247 commodities during 1910 shows that wholesale prices in that year were 4 per cent higher than in 1909 and 1.6 per cent above the average of 1907, which was the year of highest prices since 1890. In view of the Canadian reciprocity discussion, an interesting item in the bureau reports shows that the wholesale price of farm products was 7.5 per cent higher in 1910 than in 1909. Prices of lumber and building materials increased 10.7 per cent, farm products 7.5 per cent, drugs 4.1 per cent, foodstuffs 3.2 per cent, clothing 7 per cent, and the miscellaneous group of commodities 5.7 per cent. House furnishing decreased 1.6 per cent. Some extraordinary variations were recorded during 1910. Potatoes increased 300 per cent, eggs 90 per cent, coffee 60 per cent, and mess beef 35 per cent.

* * *

New Orleans is claimed to be the largest manufacturing center of tropical clothing in the United States. Those engaged in this business here are declared to be unequaled in making linen and pongee suits and other kinds of light apparel. The city's trade in such goods is affirmed to be rapidly expanding. The imports of New Orleans for the fiscal year ending June 30 reached the sum of $66,722,395, a gain over the preceding year of more than $13,000,000. Within the past six years the trade with foreign countries has doubled. The commodities chiefly imported are coffee, sugar, molasses, fruits and nuts, creosote, jute bagging, and sisal grass which comes from Yucatan.

* * *

The New York Christian Advocate observes that Mayor Gaynor of that city is a great letter writer. His correspondence is conducted with good taste and a felicity of expression that is remarkable. He is also a brilliant converser, who is seemingly always able to lay hold of an apt and telling phrase. We are considerably inclined to favor Mr. Gaynor for the presidential nomination on the Democratic ticket. At one time, we preferred Governor Woodrow Wilson, but we think he is showing an undue desire to be nominated and that he is exhibiting rather too much demagogism. His sudden conversion to the initiative and referendum is by no means reassuring. Moreover, his public addresses have appeared to us to be commonplace and lacking in originality and force. We think that the president of the United States ought to be a really great man.

* * *

The points at issue in the Moroccan question, which for some days has been attracting world-wide attention and which yet lacks much of being settled, are briefly stated by the New York Independent as follows: "The series of conversations intended to settle the status and future of Morocco was begun in Berlin on July 9 between the French Ambassador, M. Jules Cambon, and the German Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, Herr von Kiderlen-Waechter. Nothing concerning their tenor is officially given out to the public, so the accounts of the progress of the negotiations published in the newspapers are largely speculative. It is said that Germany has made a demand for compensation on an astonishingly liberal scale for relinquishing its claim upon Agadir and other Moroccan territory—nothing less than the cession of the coast of French Kongo as far back as the Sanga River, with the contingent reversion of France over the Kongo State. This would cut off the French possessions from the sea and open the way for an extension of German Kamerun over a large part of central Africa. This demand is regarded as preposterous in England as well as in France, and has revived English sympathy for France, which hitherto has been noticeably less cordial than it was in 1906, when the two countries were prepared to stand together against Germany, even in the event of war."

HOLDS A DIFFERENT VIEW.

Dear Brother Meek: I noticed an editorial in your valuable paper of June 15, on "The Effect of Sin," in which Mr. Nabors is quoted as saying that "even in heaven there will be the vengeance of regret in the midst of our happiness." This seems to me to be a contradiction of terms, and is so foreign to my idea of heaven, that I feel like saying something on the subject, if you will please pardon me, for I am not a scholar and my remarks may be somewhat scattering.

I think if we are saved at all, our salvation will be a perfect salvation. God's work is perfect, but if we carry our regrets to heaven with us, it seems to me our salvation would be far from being perfect. To doubt our unalloyed happiness in heaven would be to doubt God's power to obliterate our regrets, as well as our sins. The precious blood of Christ cleanseth us from all sin. (I. John i, 7). There is no remembrance of former things (Eccle. i, 11.) Read Col. iii, 9; "Seeing ye have put off the old man with his deeds," etc. In putting off the old man, with his deeds, we become new creatures in Christ Jesus, and I do not think the new creature will be responsible for the deeds of the old man. It does not yet appear what we shall be, but we know that we shall be like him when he appears, that is Christ (I John iii, 2). Now, if we shall be like Christ, we will have no regrets to worry over in heaven. Christ is satisfied—he has done the will of his Father and redeemed the world. I shall be satisfied when I awake in thy likeness. (Ps. xvii, 15). If we are satisfied in heaven, I do not think we will have any regrets. The dead shall be raised incorruptible and we shall be changed (I. Cor. xv, 52-53.) Changed from mortality to immortality. If we shall be immortal, we surely will have no regrets in heaven.

Our regrets affect our peace and happiness very seriously in this life, and if it is true that we will carry them to heaven with us, I suppose that they will not disturb any less there. In fact, I think heaven will so far exceed the present world that the saints there will never refer to earth any more. If it were possible for those in heaven to worry over their sins while on earth their happiness would not be complete and then they might remember that some of their loved ones and friends were lost, which would interfere very seriously with their happiness. I do not think that David will ever remember that he had Uriah killed, or that the thief that Christ saved on the cross will ever remember that he was a thief, or that Paul will remember that he persecuted the Christians, or that Peter will ever remember that he denied his Lord. I do not suppose there ever was (or ever will be) a human being that inhabited this earth, Christ excepted, who has arrived at the age of accountability, without something to regret either in word, thought or action, and if they all carry their regrets to heaven, how can they have the fullest peace? I do not believe that God would suffer anything to enter heaven that would have the least tendency to mar the happiness of his saints.

Of course, infants and children that die before they arrive at the age of accountability will have no regrets to worry over in the Father's house. Then there would be a difference between the saints in heaven. Some would have regrets and some would not have any. It seems improbable to me that the saints there will be different except in their capacities for enjoyment. Some, I think, will be able to enjoy more than others, but the cups of joy of all will all be full. There may be some small, some medium, and some large size cups, but they will all be full to the brim.

I am not seeking an argument, but information, and hope the writer will say something more on the subject.

E. STUART.

IN MEMORIAM.

Martha Susan Ellis, wife of Rev. R. A. Ellis, and daughter of Rev. J. E. and Mrs. Jane Hudgins, was born Jan. 10, 1844, ant left us for the good world on the morning of July 12, 1911, at 7:30 o'clock. She professed religion and joined the Church at the age of nine. Nearly thirty-eight years ago she married Rev. R. A. Ellis, and in North Mississippi and North Texas, she toiled and practiced self-denial as a loyal, faithful Methodist preacher's wife. Before the days of her great physical affliction, she was a successful Sunday school teacher and a faithful worker in the Ladies' Aid and Woman's Missionary Societies of the Church. No itinerant preacher ever had a more devoted or loyal helpmeet than she was. No hardship ever extracted a complaint from her lips, and no dark shadow ever drove out the brightness of her heart.

She was an altruist of a pronounced type—a self-forgetful mother who gave her time to the God-given task of training her children. The place where she lived was home to her husband, her children and her friends. Always bright and cheery, always ready to say a kind word of everybody, she never cherished ill-will or hatred or pride, or selfishness. She was my neighbor twenty years ago, and I shall never forget her. For several years she has been a constant sufferer, but no complaint or murmur of resentment passed her lips. Twenty years ago, her only daughter "passed to the other side," and when she drew near the end she was asked if she felt that she would soon be with Alice. She replied, "Yes, yes, and it will be a happy, happy meeting." She knew she was going, and she has gone to live with God. To her husband and two noble sons, who now live at Yazoo City, Miss., I offer my deepest sympathies.

T. W. LEWIS.

Memphis, Tenn.

The Centenary College of Louisiana
SHREVEPORT
Fall Term will open Sept. 13, 1911.
For Catalogue or other information write to
FELIX R. HILL, President,
P. O. Box 455
SHREVEPORT, LA.

The AMERICAN PAINT WORKS
——Manufacturers of——
High Grade Mixed Paints; Perfecto White Lead; Nonpareil Carriage Paint; Varnish Stain; Colors in Oil; Wood Fillers; Chemically Pure Dry Colors, Etc.
428-434 JOSEPHINE STREET.....Phone 915
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Church News

Dr. Wilbur Chapman has been engaged to do evangelistic work in Ireland next October.

* * *

Along with Bishops Vincent, Thoburn, and Berry, Bishop Hoss was complimented with a great reception at Chautauqua, New York, a few days ago.

* * *

Bishop E. H. Hughes of the Methodist Episcopal Church has been invited to conduct the chapel exercises of Harvard University, April 22-27, and to preach on April 28, 1912.

* * *

The law against promiscuous drinking cups in St. Louis has been construed as applying also to the cups used in administering the communion in the churches, and individual cups in celebrating the Sacrament will hereafter be a necessity.

* * *

Rev. George McLuckie, of Yarmouth, England, was recently chosen to become Dr. Jowett's successor at the Carr's Lane Church, Birmingham, but declined in a letter remarkable for the humility which it evinced. Those having the task in charge do not seem to find it easy to procure a pastor for this historic congregation.

* * *

Bishop Luther B. Wilson and Bishop Hartzell, who have been looking after the missionary work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Africa, arrived in England a few days since. Bishop Wilson will tarry for a time with Mrs. Wilson and his daughter who are on a visit to England, but Bishop Hartzell sailed for the United States on July 22 and was expected to reach New York on the 30th ult.

* * *

According to the New York Christian Advocate, only one Methodist—Mr. George Toulmin, of Preston, a journalist and a member of Parliament, since 1902—was remembered by King George when upon the occasion of his coronation he showered honors upon "celebrities and less." It is to be hoped that the followers of Wesley will fare better when the King of the universe shall come in his glory to reward the faithful on the last great day.

* * *

The Rev. F. B. Meyer has expressed a desire that, in spite of the Doctorate of Divinity conferred upon him by MacMaster University, that he shall be known as "Mr." Meyer. Ten years ago Temple University, Philadelphia, made Mr. Meyer a Doctor of Divinity, but he has never used the title, nor does he wish to do so with the MacMaster degree. "It is a very great honor," he says, "but I very much dislike any title that would remove me from my ordinary fellows. Let me be a man among men. I do not pretend to be a great scholar, and I want to retain my simplicity. Still, I greatly appreciate the honor MacMaster has conferred upon me."—Western Christian Advocate.

* * *

The Alumni Association of Emory College, has published a register of the occupations of all of the graduates of this institution, and gives the following statistics: "Educators, 191; ministers, 168; lawyers, 165; mercantile business, 157; physicians, 89; farmers, 53; banking business, 37; insurance 28; United States government service, 22; journalists, 16; railroad business, 11; real estate, 11; county officers, 9; publishers, 9; dentists, 9; civil engineers, 4; architects, 4; unclassified, 96. Total number living, 1,079." The total number of graduates since the establishment of the school is 1,601.—Florida Christian Advocate.

* * *

Doctor Dixon, recently of Chicago, but now of the Metropolitan Temple, London, is attracting considerable attention over there by his unique methods which some one describes as "foot-lights ministry." The British critic was not particularly pleased, evidently, with the sermon he happened to hear. He says: "The argument was less memorable than the illustrations. They were in overflowing abundance, one or two of them powerful, but many quite trifling and banal. The freshest passage in the sermon was the preacher's naive confession that if he were not a preacher of the gospel he would like to be a money-maker. This was typically American and very refreshing in its honesty—especially as Doctor Dixon told the story of John Wesley's advice in a sermon—to 'make all you can.'"—Western Christian Advocate.

G. CAMPBELL MORGAN'S NEW VENTURE.

The Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, of London, well known in this country, who will come to America this autumn for a series of evangelistic and Bible conferences in a dozen principal cities, has founded in England a Summer Conference on Northfield lines, and has established a Bible Study Movement of national scope. Quitting America seven years ago, Mr. Morgan took up work at Westminster Chapel, which is located in the West End, but which was, at the time Mr. Morgan went there, an almost hopeless proposition. Little remained but a great building.

Mr. Morgan has transformed conditions, until now Westminster Chapel is the centre of a great congregational life. So vast is it that the need of larger facilities is apparent, and steps are under consideration to secure them. The new national work is that of sending into other cities of the kingdom Bible teachers of the first rank, Mr. Morgan going himself as much as his London work permits. In summer the new conference, held at Mundesley in Norfolk, and coming to be known as the Mundesley Conference, is the centre of the Bible work. Mundesley is Mr. Morgan's summer home, and like Dwight L. Moody, he turned his acres into a summer headquarters for Bible and missionary instruction.

Now it is proposed, so reports from Mundesley and London just to hand indicate, to perfect what will be, in effect, a college whose faculty has headquarters at Westminster and Mundesley, but whose work is the training of leaders in Bible and evangelistic work in many cities of England. It is said to be Mr. Morgan's ambition to leave, as his life's benefaction, this Bible college in permanent form, having a home in the historic Westminster section of London. Mr. Morgan's tour in the United States will begin in October.

A VISIT TO ENTERPRISE, MISS.

By Rev. H. P. Lewis, Sr.

Well, I am in Enterprise. Haven't been here since October, 1863. When I was here last, paroled soldiers were camped near here, just one mile below town, waiting to be exchanged. Most, if not all, of them were captured at Vicksburg and Port Hudson. Some of them had had almost war enough. Others got enough before the war ended.

What a cruel thing war is! And yet, nation will go to war with nation. The first war we read of was in heaven (Rev. xii, 7-9), when the devil lost his job and was cast out of heaven. It was not long after Adam and Eve were put in the Garden of Eden before the "Old Dragon and Satan" began to show himself the enemy of God and all good.

Sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and sin and death have reigned more or less from that day till this. But for sin, there would be no war and bloodshed.

It is not often a man loses his job by doing his duty. Yet it is sometimes the case. Brother Anding, a Baptist preacher, lost his job in a little town on the I. C. R. R., by preaching a plain, earnest sermon against Sabbath desecration. Brother Anding was right; yet he lost his job. If all our preachers would preach as they might and ought against Sabbath desecration and all other sins, quite likely many others would have to move oftener than they do.

Too many "sugar-coated" sermons are being preached in our day for the spiritual good of the Church. It is seldom one hears a sermon now calculated to make one feel as David did when Nathan stood before him, looking him squarely in the face, and, pointing at him perhaps with his right forefinger, said in unmistakable terms, "Thou art the man" (II. Sam. xii, 7). The first words David said after the sermon were, "I have sinned against the Lord." Read Ps. 51 and see what effect the sermon produced. We need more such preachers as Nathan, Elijah and John the Baptist.

A rich man was dying. He sent for his pastor, desiring him to read and pray. The bewildered preacher opened his Bible and began to read about the rich man lifting up his eyes in hell, etc. The dying man stopped him saying, "You never read that to me before." The preacher saw his blunder, turned hastily to another place and began to read, "Go to now ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that shall come upon you, etc." The dying man stopped him again. The unfaithful pastor was very much confused, and ought to have been.

If all men who claim to be called of God to preach were truly men of God, filled with the Holy Ghost, and would, when necessary, preach like Nathan, Elijah and John the Baptist, we would have fewer wars, less corruption in politics and more of the spirit of forgiveness among nations and individuals. War and vile, corrupt politics are two things to be dreaded.

Well, I was here, as stated above, visiting soldiers in camp. While here I heard Dr. Wm. F. Camp, then a member of our Conference and missionary in the army, preach to the soldiers in the Methodist Church. The old church is still standing, though no longer in use. Our people now have a beautiful church, well furnished, near where the old church stands. I enjoyed preaching in the new church to a good congregation morning and evening on July 9. I presume I was the only one present that heard Dr. Camp on the occasion alluded to above.

An amusing thing occurred at our expense, as we, Brothers Mounger, Jones and I rode into the camp. We were riding along leisurely, wearing high top silk hats called beavers, when some one called out, "Come down out of those camp kettles!" Another said a little louder, "Come down out of those camp kettles, I say!" Then a third said, "Come down out of those camp kettles. I know you are in there, for I see your legs sticking out." We three moved quietly on without saying a word. But I haven't owned a high top beaver hat since. Never expect to.

Enterprise is a nice town—good people live here. But Enterprise lost an "opportunity" when she failed to offer inducements to the Queen and Crescent Railroad to come this way. Lost opportunities are something to think about.

The preacher here, Rev. B. W. Lewis, my eldest preacher-boy, has his work well in hand. He has a good hold on his people. He loves them and they love him. No good reason why he should not succeed well.

I preached at Stonewall the 16th of July. It rained nearly all day, hence the congregation was small. They have a fine Sunday school and church at Stonewall. A Brother Gilmore is superintendent, and a good one. He is a nephew of our precious brother, George M. Gilmore, late of our Conference. Brother Geo. Gilmore died in 1884. He was one preacher nearly everybody loved. Stonewall is only three miles from Enterprise. It is a beautiful, well kept town; and has a lot of moving, hustling people in it. The good people gave me money enough to defray my expenses home. I met Mr. Wadell, archbishop of Mississippi. His home is in Meridian. He told me he knew most of my preacher-boys. I am soon to go to Summit to preach for Brother Guice, then later I go to Raymond to preach, while the pastor, Rev. W. A. Terry, helps in a meeting at Plain, on the Florence charge. I am ready and willing to help my young brethren when and where I can. God bless our young preachers, and make them a power for good in the land!

MIDSUMMER READING.

Shall it be frothy fiction, or blood-heating adventure? Certainly it should not be brain-tiring literature, requiring fatiguing application.

MODES OF THE HEAVENLY LIFE

is a book that you will read with care-forgetting delight, and arise refreshed in faith and zeal. Then you will read it again and again with new appreciation. Cloth and gold, only 50 cents, postpaid.

"To say that I enjoyed reading 'Modes of the Heavenly Life,' is to express my appreciation but mildly. I read it the first time at one sitting and was strengthened in faith and hope. I have read it through again and some of it the third time. My estimate has grown with each reading. It cannot fail to inspire higher aspirations in any one who will read it. I hope it will have a large circulation, and I commend it most heartily to all seekers after the truth concerning the office and work of the Holy Ghost." R. W. Tucker, Presiding elder, Ruston District.

Order from Chas. O. Chalmers, 512 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

WHITWORTH COLLEGE AND CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC

FOR YOUNG LADIES.

Session 1910-1911, 250 Students; Twenty Teachers and Officers. Thorough instruction under Christian influences. Courses leading to degrees of B. L. and A. B. Noted teachers in Piano, Voice, Elocution and Art. Forty thousand dollars will be expended in improvements within the next eighteen months.

NEXT SESSION BEGINS SEPT. 14, 1911.

Send for Catalogue. Address

WHITWORTH COLLEGE,

Brookhaven, Miss.

SUPPOSE YOU HAVE A FIRE TO-NIGHT?
GET SOLID PROTECTION AND INSURE WITH

LEON IRWIN & CO.

FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.

736 Union Street. Phone, Main 586.

THE HATTIESBURG DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Hattiesburg District Conference closed its session at Richton July 14. It will be held in memory a long time by each one that attended it. The most pleasant feature about it was the open armed hospitality with which the Conference was entertained. Richton has a great future before it; we were glad to find its citizenship so progressive. Brother R. P. Fikes, our host, was untiring in his efforts to please and make us all feel at home. The whole Conference is due him thanks.

One of the most encouraging things was that one day every preacher but one was in attendance, who was away in a revival and so could not attend. The laymen for the first time since I have been attending District Conferences took a very active part in the proceedings of the Conference. I think this is one of the best indications of the growth of the Laymen's Movement.

Every session and every service was spiritual to the core. It was evident by the reports of the preachers that the revival spirit of the district was at high tide—a large number of conversions being reported. Some of the brethren reported that they were having conversions at nearly every service.

It was a source of relief to the Conference that the Board of Arbitration had come to a settlement, and the loyalty of the brethren to the ruling of the Church was sweet to look upon.

The preaching was done by Luke E. Alford, H. L. Norton, A. F. Watkins, M. L. Burton, I. W. Cooper, Geo. H. Thompson and Geo. Galloway. It was like a camp meeting and every one thoroughly enjoyed it. I think Dr. Watkins' sermon should be especially mentioned, for it was on the Sacrament of the Lord's Supper, showing the Methodist view of it. At the close of his sermon the Sacrament was administered to a very large number of communicants. Dr. Cooper's sermon was one long to be remembered by all, a regular old time Methodist revival sermon, on Conscience. Every sermon was good and every one should be mentioned; no one could listen to the preaching of the brethren without feeling proud that they were members of the Methodist Church.

Revs. Robert Shelby, G. W. Bachman, W. J. Dawson, Geo. Galloway, visiting brethren, presented the work of education, publishing interests, church extension and missions.

Mrs. A. F. Watkins and Mrs. Geo. H. Thompson presented the work of the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society. They made quite a favorable impression upon the Conference. They secured a scholarship in Whitworth College for a girl preparing for the foreign mission work, Dr. Cooper giving half, the rest to be raised.

Rev. W. M. Williams, in his own way, presented the cause of the Orphanage. He was anxious to send a girl off to college and said he was trusting to God to open the way, and was getting her ready to go. When he finished Dr. Cooper told him to send her to him and he would take care of her.

The reports of the various committees were very fine. Their information was more definite than usual, making them much more interesting and useful.

Mr. H. T. McGehee was elected Lay Leader for the district.

Thanks were due to the emciency of our presiding elder, Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, for the harmony and thoroughness of the work. His opening talk to the Conference will be long remembered. It is needless to say that the whole Conference loves him.

JOHN C. CHAMBERS, Secretary.

RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, our brother, M. H. Moore, has recently been called from his labors among us to his reward in the heavenly kingdom; therefore be it resolved, That in his death we have lost a brother beloved; that while we submit humbly to the providence of our Father, we realize a deep sense of bereavement. That we do hereby express our high appreciation of Brother M. H. Moore as a man of highest integrity—conscientious and faithful as a man and minister of the gospel of our Lord; that we deeply sympathize with Sister Moore and her children in their sore bereavement, and pray the blessings of our Father upon them; that our secretary be instructed to spread these resolutions upon the minutes and communicate same to Sister Moore.

Signed: H. J. Moore, M. L. White, J. C. Chambers.

We your committee on resolutions, having referred to us the subject of religious literature, beg to offer the following:

We are glad to note that many of the brethren have reported new subscriptions to the New Orleans Christian Advocate; but there are many of our people who do not read this or any religious paper. We would commend this Advocate to all our people and urge the more general circulation of the same. We are sorry that the editor, Rev. R. A. Meek, was not permitted to visit our Conference on account of sickness, as we would have greatly appreciated a visit from him.

We recognize the Missionary Voice as an important agent in disseminating information on the all-important subject of missionary work, and urge that it be put into the homes of our people.

The Christian Advocate, published at Nashville, Tenn., is the general organ of our Church and is worthy of a place in the homes of all our people. Dr. Ivy is giving us a most excellent paper.

We are glad to notice the presence of our colporter, Brother Bachman, in the interest of the Publishing House. We heartily commend him and his work to all our people.

Respectfully submitted, H. J. Moore, J. C. Chambers.

Whereas, the Bishops have called the Church to a forward movement of evangelistic work throughout the Church, and whereas the key to the situation is the preacher-in-charge, and that his efforts are greatly increased by the piety of his people, be it therefore resolved,

That we, the preachers of the Hattiesburg District Conference, pledge ourselves to a zealous, wholehearted, consecrated personal work with our people, finding out their spiritual condition and praying with and for them in their homes.

Respectfully submitted, J. C. Chambers, H. J. Moore, M. B. Sharbrough.

Resolved, That it is the sense of the Hattiesburg District Conference that we ask our Book Committee and Publishing House at Nashville, Tenn., to take some steps toward printing for free distribution tracts with reference to the fundamental doctrines of our Church, also tracts on Communion, Baptism, and all disputed points. M. L. White, J. L. Neil.

In view of the above resolution, your committee on Resolutions beg to offer the following:

Resolved, That Dr. A. F. Watkins be appointed to take up this matter with the publishing agents and report to the next District Conference. H. J. Moore, J. C. Chambers.

THE LAFAYETTE DISTRICT EPWORTH LEAGUE CONFERENCE.

In spite of the inclement weather that had prevailed in this part of the State for two weeks or more, the Leagues of the Lafayette district have just held a most successful two days' conference, July 8-10, at Franklin, La. Taking into consideration the youth of this organization, the representation was fine, there being nineteen visiting Leaguers. The program was carried out almost exactly as planned, only one or two slight changes being made necessary by the failure of the speakers to arrive.

On Saturday evening the Conference assembled and opening exercises were held as follows: Invocation, Rev. C. C. Weir; Address of Welcome, Miss Kathleen O'Niell; Response, Mr. James Wall; President's Message, Mr. J. A. Stockwell. After these exercises, a reception was given the visitors by the Franklin League, at which every one got acquainted and a pleasant evening was spent.

The sermon Sunday morning was preached by Rev. P. O. Lowrey, of Mansfield, who has been known for many years as a stanch friend of the League cause in Louisiana. In the afternoon a model Junior League meeting was conducted. In the evening a Senior Devotional Meeting was led by Miss Cora Alpha, of Franklin. Mr. Seaman Mayo's talk, Sunday night, on "The Boy Scout Movement", was indeed a splendid one. Mr. Mayo has a flourishing company of scouts in charge, and is thoroughly familiar with the object and workings of this remarkable organization; moreover, his whole heart is in it, which accounts for the instant and careful attention with which his words were received. Following Mr. Mayo's talk, Rev. H. W. Jamieson, the State League President, gave a brief but very interesting review of the history of the Louisiana State League, and told something of the work that the lately reorganized State League is doing. The program committee was fortunate in securing the presence of Mr. Jamieson at this meeting, for there is hardly a Leaguer in the State who is more familiar with the subject.

Monday was the busy day of the conference, and almost every minute of the time was occupied with round table discussions of the four departments and the League covenants, and a discussion, led by Mr. Lowrey, of some of the practical workings, or "machinery," of local chapters. All of these things were of very great interest, and no doubt each Leaguer will be better equipped for service for having heard them.

A subject near to the hearts of all south Louisianians, that of the French Mission Work, was ably handled by Bro. Martin Hebert. No one is more qualified than he to speak on this theme. Mr. Hebert told of the labors of himself and his fellow-missionaries, and some of their triumphs and some of their difficulties. This talk touched a responsive chord, and when Mr. Hebert had finished a discussion immediately arose as to what the Leagues in Lafayette District could do to help him in this great work. The result of this discussion was that enough money was pledged by different Leagues to enable Mr. Hebert to buy a tent that he has long felt the need of, as a place to hold preaching services.

The visiting Leaguers were given a most delightful launch ride Monday afternoon on the beautiful and historic river Teche. For this excursion, and for the open-hearted cordiality and hospitality of the people of Franklin, those fortunate enough to have been among the visitors will ever be grateful, and will always carry a pleasant memory of their visit to that beautiful little city.

As a final number Monday evening, Rev. C. C. Weir gave a most encouraging address on "The League from the Pastor's Point of View." Would that more of our pastors could gain Mr. Weir's point of view.

Now for a summary of the main things accomplished at this session of conference: The organization of a Junior League at Franklin; the election of a delegate to represent Lafayette District at the Seashore Assembly; ten dollars pledged toward the salary of a Junior League Secretary for the M. E. Church, South; money enough pledged to secure Mr. Hebert's tent, and the "Cuba Special" movement (which means the undertaking by the Leagues of Southern Methodism of the responsibility of financing the entire Cuba mission field), endorsed by this body and recommended to the local Leagues. The conference will be held next year at Lake Arthur.

EVELYN R. PRICE, District Secretary.

WORLD METHODIST CONFERENCE PLANS.

Committees have just concluded the program and other details of the Methodist Ecumenical Conference which is to meet in Toronto next October. Unlike the recent Baptist Alliance, world Methodists will bring together a representative body, designed to fix policies for Methodism in every country, and then to return to their homes and officially to carry such policies into effect.

The program will afford surveys of world Methodism during the past ten years, or since the late Ecumenical Conference, and will then present Methodism in the Church universal, its foreign missionary work, its theological heritage, permanent results of Bible criticism, and methods in Bible study. Live questions will be presented in the relations of the Church to modern thought, to the household, the child, young people, men and women. The temperance question, training for the ministry, Methodist literature, Christian unity and peace, will conclude the program.

The two Sundays covered, October 8 and 15, will for the first time be included in the program. Preachers will be provided for the Toronto churches, the religious aspects of commerce and industry, and observance of Sunday being two of the themes. Former Vice-President Fairbanks of Indiana and Arthur Henderson, M. P., a labor leader and Methodist layman of England, will speak on labor questions, and the Hon. Walter Runciman, a member of the British cabinet, will talk on "International Relations," bringing out, it is expected, the part and place of the churches in the ending of war.

Ecumenical Conferences have the plan of electing four secretaries, the head one to be named by the Methodists of the country in which the ecumenical session is held. Canada has waived its rights and Dr. Henry K. Carroll, the well known American Methodist layman, prominent in United States census and Methodist missionary work, has been chosen for secretary of the Toronto meeting. It is reckoned that three to four thousand Methodists will attend, including local Conference members, and these will represent almost every country and Methodists to the number of many millions.—Church News Association.

Geo. W. Riehl. Aug. Rauxet, Jr.

RIEHL & RAUXET,

Successors to Lowengardt & Armstrong,

JEWELERS,

122 BARONNE STREET - - New Orleans, La

(Optical Department: M. F. Fitzgerald, Optician.)

Phone, Main 737.

W. W. Carre Co. Ltd

Manufacturer Exporter of Lumber

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

THE Grant Furniture Co.

IS NOW HAVING A

GREAT REMOVAL SALE

PRICES ON EVERY ARTICLE IN THEIR ENTIRE STOCK HAVE BEEN REDUCED

OUTFITS ESPECIALLY PRICED

427-429-431 Camp Street, New Orleans

The Home Circle

OUR DEBT TO ANIMALS.

Humanity has every reason to be grateful to animals. They have taught us some of our most useful arts, and have suggested the idea for many an invention.

It was the beaver that showed us the possibilities of building under water, regularity in building; the birds are the oldest masters of basket-work; they, too, have furnished every inventor who has attempted to design a flying-machine with his basic principle; the spiders have taught us the art of weaving and suspending a net.

Man learned how to construct ships from the fish; how to dig holes from the badger, and the frogs gave him his first swimming lessons.—Humane Advocate.

THERE'S ANOTHER SIDE.

"There's another side," said the minister's wife softly.

"How do you know?" asked the visitor who had told the discreditable little tale, strictly in confidence, as she had herself learned it in the bosom of the Wednesday afternoon sewing circle. The minister's wife had not been present, and it was only right that she should be put right about this family of newcomers in the parish. "Some things had come to the ears of the sewing circle that were not—well—not exactly——"

"There's another side!" repeated the minister's wife, not so softly this time. In fact, there was a noticeable little ring of indignation in her tone, which died out in a sort of wondering pity as she noticed the challenging look of her caller. "You're glad there is another side, aren't you? Why, of course you are! And, you see, I know all about it!"

"You weren't at the meeting!" said the other, stiffly. "If you had been, you——"

"No, I was there—at the house! And I saw—I saw—O, Mrs. Babbitt! if you could have seen what I saw!"

"I saw, too—with my own eyes! That daughter of their's is an opium——"

"She isn't their daughter—not any relation; not even a friend or a friend's daughter; just a poor girl who has been sick so long and so terribly that the doctors themselves had made her a victim of the opium habit. And they have undertaken to try and cure her. They have given up their home—their very lives—to it. They don't say a word about it. I just found it out—with the help of the doctor."

The visitor rose suddenly—almost unceremoniously. For a moment the hostess looked troubled and aghast. Had she spoken too sharply, discourteously, even? Her mind fled back over the interview as she faltered:

"You are not going yet! You,—O you aren't offended at anything I've said?"

"Yes, I'm going. Offended—I? I'm going round to see all our ladies, every single one of them!"

"And tell them——"

The minister's wife held her breath for the answer. One may be very bold, but it sometimes means a great deal to offend "the ladies."

"And tell them," said the caller, gathering her wraps about her, "that beautiful 'other side'!"

"O!" breathed the minister's wife, gratefully. "And tell them, won't you, that there always is another side—always—always! And it is our Christian business to try and find it."—Zion's Herald.

THE LAME BOY.

He was little. He was lame. He was only six years old. His mother was a poor washerwoman, and they lived in a tiny room on a narrow street of a great city.

All day long he sat in his high chair, looking down into the narrow street. He could see, by leaning forward, a bit of blue sky over the tall warehouse opposite. Sometimes a white cloud would drift across the blue. Sometimes it was all dull grey.

But the street was more interesting. There were people down there. In the early morning men and women were hurrying to their work. Later the children came out and played on the sidewalk, and in the gutters. Sometimes they danced and sang, but often they were quarrelsome. In the spring came the hand-organ man, and then everybody seemed happy.

The boy's sad little face looked out all day long. Only when he saw his mother coming did he smile and wave his hand.

"I wish I could help you, mother," he said one night. "You work so hard, and I can't do anything for you."

"Oh, but you do!" she cried, quickly. "It helps me to see your face smiling down at me from the window. It helps me to have you wave your hand. It makes my work lighter all day to think you will be there waving to me when I go home."

"Then I'll wave harder," said the little fellow.

And the next night a tired workman, seeing the mother look up and answer the signal, looked up, too. Such a little pinched face as he saw at the high window, but how cheery the smile was! The man laughed to himself and waved his cap, and the boy, a little shyly, returned the greeting.

So it went. The next evening the workman nudged his comrade to look up at the "poor little chap sitting, so patient, at the window," and again the gay smile shone out as two caps waved in the air below him.

Days came and passed, and the boy had more friends. Men and women went out of their way to send a greeting to him. Life didn't seem quite so hard to them when they thought how dreary it must be for him. Sometimes a flower found its way to him, or an orange or a colored picture. The children stopped quarreling when they saw him watching them, and played games to amuse him. It pleased them to see how eager he was to share in their good times.

"Tell the lad we couldn't get on without him," said one of the weary laborers to the mother one night. "'Tis a great thing to have a brave heart. It makes us all brave, too. Tell him that."

And you may be sure she did.—From "First Book of Religion," by Mrs. Charles A. Lane.

THE LAND OF A HUNDRED REVOLUTIONS.

During the last six months we have turned our attention to the Mexican Republic, where armed hostilities have been in constant operation, and it was only a day or two ago we learned that Federal and Rebel leaders had agreed to terms of peace.

We were reminded of a daughter of the American Revolution who, with pardonable pride, spoke to a lady of Mexican origin of the military glory of an ancestor.

"So you are a Daughter of the American Revolution?" "Yes."

"I, dear madam, am the daughter of a hundred revolutions," she exclaimed.

This takes us back to our story.

Very few people know Philadelphia contains the tomb of the first Empress of Mexico, crowned as a result of the first tremor of revolt felt in Mexico against Spain.

Within the busy mart of industrial life, right in the shopping district, where hurried footsteps pass daily within a few feet of her tomb, lies Anna Marie De Yturbide, wife of the "Liberator," Augustin De Yturbide, the fame of whose deeds, although now almost forgotten, once filled the world.

When you visit the "City of Brotherly Love," of course you will go to Mr. John Wanamaker's store. Opposite the Thirteenth street side, is the small churchyard of St. John the Evangelist. Only a flat stone covers the vault where the body reposes; there is no inscription to distinguish this tomb of royalty from many around it save the name carved on the slab, but few know she rests here, and yet her life and that of her husband is closely interwoven with the stormy history of Mexico.

The annals of that turbulent country shows no more striking example of chivalrous conduct than that of Augustin De Yturbide, who rose from a colonelcy in the army to Emperor of Mexico. He was crowned in the Cathedral at Mexico City, July 21st, 1822, as Augustin I. You know that little proverb, "Uneasy lies the head whereon lies the crown." The high estate of the Emperor and Empress was destined to be a short one. All historians agree the execution of this brave man is one of the darkest blots on the escutheon of Mexico. Arrested on a false charge of treachery, he was sentenced to be shot.

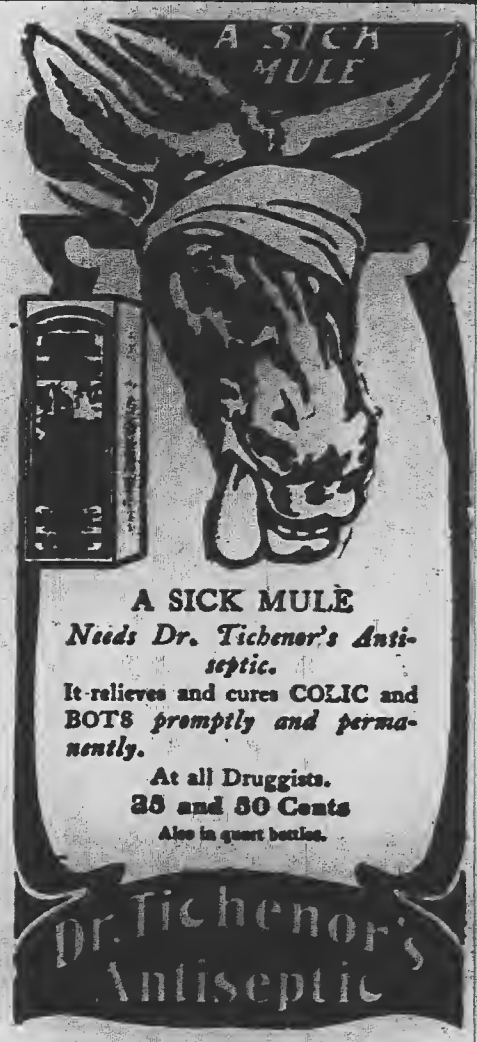
The Empress and her two little children saw him for the last time as he was led out to be executed. Horror stricken at the tragedy that had come into her life, the Empress fled to Philadelphia and lived there in absolute seclusion until she died, March 21st, 1861.

She lived, however, to see justice done the memory of her dear husband. On his tomb the Mexicans have inscribed "Liberator;" his birthday is observed as a national holiday. They further tried to repair the wrong done the Empress by bestowing upon her a pension of eight thousand dollars per year, but all this could not wipe from the mind of the Empress the grief and shock she suffered when she saw her husband led away from her side, to be shot down as a common traitor, and she never returned to her old home, the scene of her former glory.

We cannot make reparation to the dead; neither can we wipe away the bitter memories of wrongs inflicted in ignorance. Let us be very careful before we condemn anyone. The small voice may be a meretricious voice, and not the voice of God, unless it whispers words of love and faith and charity for those about us.

By and by, do go to the tomb of the only Empress buried in America when you are in Philadelphia.—The Weekly Witness.

THE SAFEST AND QUICKEST WAY
—TO—
TRANSFER MONEY
—IS BY—
Long Distance Telephone
FOR RATES APPLY TO LOCAL MANAGER,
Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co
INCORPORATED



A SICK MULE
Needs Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic.
It relieves and cures COLIC and BOTS promptly and permanently.
At all Druggists.
35 and 50 Cents
Also in quart bottles.
Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic

Christian Advocate.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.
CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.
OFFICE: 512 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

TERMS:
One Copy, one year, $1.50; eight months, $1.00. To preachers of all Denominations, $1.00.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE
Louisiana Conference—Rev. N. E. Joyner, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake.
Mississippi Conference—Rev. I. W. Cooper, D.D., Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. D. Ellis.
North Mississippi Conference—Rev. J. T. Murrah, Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. H. S. Spragins.

Editorial.

THE NEED OF EARNEST WORK.

Never has there been worthy achievement without labor. Excellence in any kind of work can be acquired only at the cost of intelligent effort. Not even poets and orators are born. To be sure, they are dowered with gifts which are capable of being developed, but unless this is done, never can the highest order of greatness be reached. It has been suggested that if Byron had been a steady and painstaking student, he might have rivaled Shakespeare. Many a man with superb voice and imposing presence, by his failure to train his intellectual powers, has defeated nature's evident design to give to the world a mighty master of public speech.

This rule of "no excellence without labor" also applies with equal force to the work of the ministry. Proficiency comes only when it is earnestly and continuously sought. If a man would become a great preacher, he must, as Paul wrote Timothy to do, stir up the gift that is within him. He must learn to know the Scriptures in their full meaning and significance. He must acquire the difficult art of so speaking that he can reach and stir the human heart and incite those who listen to noble action. And never can this be done without making it the aim and passion of one's life. Mental indolence upon the part of those divinely called to the work of the ministry is inexcusable. They need to be earnest and unceasing students, with an ever increasing equipment. Let our young preachers procure the best books, and not only read but master them. They must keep abreast of current thought if they would be able to approach and impress men.

But let it not be imagined that all the knowledge a preacher needs may be found in books. He must also know human nature and the practical ways of the world. He must be taught of the Spirit and be informed as to the devices of the wicked one. He must mingle with his people and know their struggles, their sorrows, and their temptations. Herein lies the necessity for fidelity in pastoral work. It discloses the needs of those under his care and enables him to minister intelligently to them. It maintains his point of contact with his fellow-men and keeps alive his sympathies. To live aloof from others is to have one's power to reach and move them lessened. No one was ever made more fit to help uplift the race by dwelling in a cloister.

Every man prompted by conviction to enter the Christian ministry should be fired with a holy ambition to attain to the utmost possible proficiency. To this one work he should address himself with all the ardor of his being, and leave nothing undone that would enlarge the measure of his capacity. Surely he could not have higher incentives than those which should urge him on in this noblest of all callings. Let us strive to give such an account of ourselves in the world's white harvest fields, that the Master may say of each of us when he comes to reckon with his servants: He hath done what he could. Loftier commendation than this not even the divine lips can speak.

IS THE BIBLE BECOMING AN UNKNOWN BOOK?

In the issue of the New York Independent of July 27, Mr. Thomas Ernest Rankin, Assistant Professor of Rhetoric in the University of Michigan, writes a most interesting article on the "Biblical Ignorance of College Students." He thinks that there is a lamentable lack of knowledge of the Sacred Scriptures among the students in attendance upon State universities, and that there is urgent need of elementary instruction in them. He bases his contention upon a test made at the institution with which he is connected, in which a group of seventy-eight students in rhetoric were asked a number of questions relative to the teachings of the Bible and were given fifty-five minutes in which to answer them. The full list of questions propounded and the responses made to them are too long for us to qnote, and we can reproduce only a few of the more striking of them. Of course, quite a number of them answered some of the queries correctly, but it is said that only one, the son of an Episcopal clergyman, ventured to reply to them all, and he was inaccurate in some of his responses. Some of the questions and the erroneous answers made to them were as follows:

In what languages was the Bible originally written?

"Hebrew." "Greek." "Hebrew and Greek." "Hebrew-Greek." "Hebrew and Latin." "Hebrew and Hellenistic Greek." "Hebrew and Arabic." "Hebrew, Greek and Arabic." "Arabic." "Sanscrit." "Sanscript." "Originally in Hebrew, and then in Latin." "Latin, German, Greek, French and Early English; there were also originals in Hebrew."

What names are given to its two main divisions?"

"Old Testiment and New Testiment."

"In which of the two main divisions of the Bible would you look for "The General Epistle of Jude?"

"In the Old Testament." "The Epistle of Jude would probably be found in the Old Testament." "In the epistles of the Old Testament."

In what city was Solomon's Temple located?

"The Temple of Solomon was in Babylon." "In Tyre." "In Asia Minor."

To what things were the following names given? a. Nebo. b. Jordan. c. Sinai. d. Galilee. e. Nazareth. f. Nazarene. g. Nazarite.

a. "To a river." "To a river in Egypt." "To a city." "A mountain where Christ preached." "To a plain." "To a region." "The name of a man." "To a town." "The father of Joseph." "To the grave of Moses."

b. "It refers either to the river Jordan or to the man who took Moses' place as head of the Israelites."

c. "Sinai was a kingdom." "It was the place of the landing of the Ark." "The mount from which Christ spoke."

d. "Galilee was the land in which Christ loved to be." "A country in Asia."

e. "A city in Palestine on the Mediterranean." "A sea." "A province." "A town in Egypt." "A city in Asia." "The Father of Christ."

f. "A race of People." "A woman of Nazareth." "The Mother of Christ."

g. "The birthplace of Jesus." "A name for one of the race of Nazarenes." "A tribe." "The followers of Christ were called Nazarites." "A man of Nazareth." "One who was born in Nazareth." "The speech of the Nazarite was marked in Peter during Christ's trial just before his death. The people knew that Peter was a follower of Christ hv his speech." "I presume it is the name applied to an ordinary inhabitant of Nazareth as compared with the Nazarene, Christ."

a. Who said the following: "Behold the lillies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin; and yet I say unto you that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these.'

b. Who said the following: "O my son Absalom, my son, my son Absalom! Would God I had died for thee, O Absolom, my son, my son."

a. "John." "John the Baptist." "Solomon."

b. "Absalom's Father after he found Absalom hung by his hair." "Abraham." "Abraham quoted these words." "King Saul." "Saul." "St. Matthew." "Elijah." "Mary, on beholding her crucified son."

Of the students thus interrogated, most of them were Freshmen, though some of them belonged to the higher classes, and the latter are said to have made the most unsatisfactory showing in the examination. That such crass ignorance concerning the Scriptures should exist in this day of Sunday schools, the Student Volunteer Movement, the Gideons, the Young Men's Christian Association, and denominational young peoples' societies, is somewhat startling. It is inconceivable that, if a similar test were made in the universities existing in the South, a like result would be disclosed. But it should be remembered that our population is more distinctly Anglo-Saxon and has less foreign admixture than that of any other section of the Union. Much as the religious home life of our people has declined, it is still probably superior to that of the other parts of the country. And the teaching which counts for most in imparting a knowledge of Christian truth is that which is given around the family hearthstone. No matter how well the Sunday school teacher may be trained, she is but a poor substitute as a religious instructor for an intelligent and pious mother. Many children never come within the sphere of the teacher's influence, hut all nestle in the mother's lap and none are beyond the reach of her impress.

We do not believe that ignorance of the Bible is on the increase. It will not do to infer that such is the case from a few tests, such as this made at the University of Michigan. Hasty generalizations, based upon insufficient investigation, is one of the ways in which people most frequently fall into error. In our opinion, while it is yet much neglected, the Word of God is more widely read and studied to-day than ever before in the world's history. Certainly it is more generally circulated than in any former period, and a vastly larger number are studying it in the Sunday school than in any prior decade. Still, as was shown by Professor Rankin's experiment, there are those to whom it is an unknown book, and the task of making all mankind familiar with its blessed pages is yet far from accomplished. In the prosecution of this work all the various Christian organizations may properly seek to have a part. And we believe that in our public and State schools the Bible should at least be taught as an important branch of literature, if in no other way. Its excellence in this respect well merits such recognition. But after all, as is implied in what we have already said, it is to the Christian homes of the land that we must chiefly look to give to the rising generation such a knowledge of the Scriptures as will make them know the will of God, and fit them to perform worthily their part in the busy world. Immeasurably poor is that individual whose mind and heart and life are not enlightened and enriched hy the truths and treasures of the divine revelation.

TWO IMPORTANT CENTERS.

Hurrah for the West and Carroll County! For some time it had been predicted that the center of population of the United States, on account of a recent influx of people into the Middle and Eastern States, would be shown by the last census not to have moved westward since 1900, as it has been doing for many decades. But as is so often the case, the prognosticators missed the mark. The Census Bureau announced a few days ago that instead of remaining stationary or swinging eastward, the center of population within the last decade had gone thirty-one miles farther west, which brings the exact point four and one-quarter miles south of Unionville, Monroe County, Indiana. Thus the West continues to draw the majority of the nation's citizenship toward her lofty plains and broad prairies.

But all the honor does not heiong to the Hoosier State. Far from it. The statisticians at Washington have proclaimed that the center of the cotton producing area of the United States is situated in Carroll County, Mississippi, three miles south of the town of Vaiden. We have long known that Carroll County is the hub, and more and more this fact is being demonstrated. Duluth, Tupelo, and Rankin County are no longer in the race. The long list of distinguished men whom Carroll County has given to the State and Nation is still being added to. Earl Brewer, the next Governor of Mississippi, was born in Carroll County. And in estimating the strength of the candidates for the United States Senate the campaign committees seem to have failed to consider the fact that Major Vardaman has been much about Carroll County and lived a near neighbor to it for many years. It is not easy to beat a man who has the dust of Carroll County on his feet. "Private" John Allen, the inimitable humorist, once said that Mississippi is divided into three parts—North Mississippi, South Mississippi, and Carroll County.

THE REPLY OF THE LOYAL TRUSTEES.

We are in receipt of a copy of the reply of the loyal members of the Vanderbilt Board of Trust to the rejoinder made some time ago by the majority of that body to the bill of injunction filed by the Bishops in the Chancery Court of Davidson County, Tenn. It is a neat pamphlet of 50 pages, and is signed by R. W. Millsaps, W. J. Young, E. B. Chappell, W. D. Bradfield, John H. Dye, John R. Pepper, Joseph S. Key, and Newman Cayce. Many of the contentions of the majority are squarely rebutted, and the discussion throughout is a vigorous and able one. The argument, as two points in particular, seems to us to he quite convincing, namely: that the university is owned by the Church, and that the Trustees have from the beginning acted in a representative, and not in an individual, capacity.

An interesting bit of history is revived in which it is shown that even before the Civil War the Southern Methodists were planning to establish a great central college or university, and that the question was fully discussed at the General Conference of 1858. At that time also representatives were designated, who the year following succeeded in obtaining a charter of incorporation, and who at that early date named the institution which they had in contemplation the "Central University of the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South." The terrible conflict between the States came on and the movement was delayed until the fall of 1871, when it was revived hy a resolution introduced in the Tennessee Conference hy Rev. Wellborn Mooney. As a side-light disclosing the mind and purpose of the Church this antecedent action may exercise, it seems to us, an important hearing on the case.

We have not heen authorized so to state, hut we presume that this interesting pampblet may be obtained by writing to the Puhlishing House at Nashville. This litigation to determine the ownership and control of Vanderhilt University is destined to become historic, and no intelligent Methodist should fail to keep informed concerning every pbase of the great contest. Not since the famous Dartsmouth College case in which the renowned Daniel Webster figured, has there been up for settlement in the courts of the country a lawsuit which more vitally concerned the interests of the educational institutions of the land and which exercised a more far-reaching influence than this one seems likely to do. The legal hattie which impending is certain to attract widespread attention.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

A dispatch from Nashville, bearing date of July 29, reported Bishop O. P. Fitzgerald as seriously ill with an attack of heart troubie at Monteagie, Tenn.

A special meeting of husiness men and the friends of Mansfield College will be held in tbe interest of that institution at Mansfield next Saturday. Rev. N. E. Joyner, of this city, will attend.

Mr. Edmund Taylor, manager of the Goyer Company, and Mr. J. D. Barbee, both of Greenville, Miss., left tbat city in an automobile last Tuesday for Brown's Weils, where they expect to spend a few days.

In a note to the publisher received a few days since, Rev. W. G. Harbin stated that he was holding his first meeting in his new tent at Plain Dealing, La., and that up to that time 26 had joined the church.

It bas been announced that there is a possibility of Chancellor J. H. Kirkland, of Vanderbilt University, accepting the presidency of the University of Alahama. According to report, he will be tendered the place at a salary of $7,500.

President D. C. Hull is prosecuting a vigorous canvass throughout Mississippi in hehalf of Millsaps College. Our information is tbat he is making a fine impression wherever he goes, and that the outlook for the next session is unusually bright.

We are informed that Bishop Candler has transferred Rev. Felix R. Hill, Jr., to the Louisiana Conference, and that Bishop Mouzon has appointed him to the Noel Memorial Church, Shreveport. Rev. M. L. Burton has heen appointed to succeed Dr. Hill at the Twenty-fifth Avenue Church, of Gulfport.

Rev. P. O. Lowrey passed through the city en route home from the Christian Worker's Assembly at the Seashore Camp Ground Monday morning last, and looked in on us at the Advocate office. He was in fine health and spirits, and spoke encouragingly of the progress of the Sunday school work within tbe bounds of the Louisiana Conference.

Mr. Thomas Leachman Boswell and Miss Nan Pascbal Hill were united in marriage at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Fletcher Hill, at 1106 Boscobel Street, Nashville, Tenn., on Wednesday evening, July 28, Dr. J. W. Boswell, the father of the groom, officiating. The Advocate extends congratulations and hest wishes.

Rev. J. G. Johnson recently had an interesting revival at Tula, Miss., in which he was assisted bv his brother, Rev. J. Johnson, and Rev. J. C. Nelson. Three services a day were conducted, and there were a numher of conversions. We have not been informed as to the final outcome of the meeting, which was still in progress when our correspondent wrote.

In a note to the editor, written on July 24, Rev. G. D. Purcell, of Harrisonburg, La., says: "The meeting held at Mt. Hermon hy Rev. H. W. Ledhetter last week was a success. The people were delighted with his strong gospel sermons. The church was revived and seven new members were received. We are making progress along all lines on this charge."

Rev. George H. Thompson, the faithful and popular pastor of Court Street Church. Hattieshurg, recently brought us under ohligation for a fine list of subscribers to the Advocate. We assure him of our hearty appreciation of his good work for the Conference organ, which we hope will prove a hlessing to every home into which he has been instrumental in sending it.

We are indehted to Dr. E. H. Mounger, of Rolling Fork, who is one of the hest equipped Methodist ministers in Mississippi, for a list of nine subscribers and a check to correspond. Other hrethren who have recently obliged us with a simllar service are Rev. T. B. Cottrell, our worthy pastor at Bay St. Louis, and Rev. B. E. Meigs, who is doing a successful work on the Scotland charge.

Rev. J. B. Randolph is having a pleasant and prosperous pastorate at Como, Miss. Brother Young, the presiding elder, was booked to he with him last Sunday and Monday. Brother Randolph assisted Rev. A. F. Moore, of the Arkabutla charge, in a meeting at Harmony Church a few days since. There were during the services 13 additions to the church, nine of them on profession of faith.

Rev. C. A. Northington reports a most satisfactory meeting at South Union on the Belle Fontaine charge. A nnmher of unsaved persons were converted, and many who had hackslidden were revived. The church generallv was quickened and strengthened. The sum of $78 to paint the church was raised. and the pastor who bad done the preaching himself was presented a purse of $15. There were also four children haptized.

We are pleased to he informed that Rev. J. W. Ramsey. of Tupelo, Miss., has sufficiently regained his health to assist the brethren in meetings. He now has engagements as follows: Smithville, the first week in August: Oak Hill, on the Moorsville charge. the third week in August, and at Cochrane, Ala., the first week in September. He is availahle for a few other dates in September and October. and would be pleased to correspond with any brother who feels that be could use him.

After what is said to have been the most successful session in the historv of the organization. the Christian Workers' Assemhlv concluded its exercises last Sunday. Dr. E. H. Rawlins is reported to bave preached an unusually strong and helpful sermon at 11 o'clock a. m., and the last service was conducted in the evening by Miss Daisy Davies. Miss Cora Godat, who has volunteered for the foreign field, made an interesting talk in the testimony meeting with which the Assembly came to a close.

Under date of July 26, Rev. T. V. Peters, of Siidell, La., forwarded the following interesting news from his work: "I have just closed a meeting at Talisbeek, one of the appointments on my charge. with great success. We had 14 conversions and 14 to nnite with our church. This makes 43 members received since the Annual Conference. The spiritual condition of the charge is better than at anv time since I have been connected witb it. The finances are up to date. The pastor is not forgotten, but is well looked after."

A note from Rev. W. L. Duren. of Tupelo, Miss., brings the sad intelligence of the death of little Ruth. the six year old daughter of Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Ramsey, which occurred at that place on July 25, as a result of congestion caused by malaria. Brotber Ramsey was assisting in a meeting at Paine Memorial Churcb on the Smithville charge, and was unable to reach home before the unexpected end came. We deeply sympatbize with the sorrowing parents, and prav tbat God may comfort and sustain them in this trying hour.

Dr. J. M. Sullivan, of Millsaps College, is at the University of Chicago, where he is doing some special work. Under date of the 28th ult., he writes as follows: "I am here pursuing some courses of study, principally field work in geology, and I hope as a result to improve this department at Millsaps. There is much in a great institution like this to interest and enthuse, but much also to emphasize the value of the smaller college. Our people do not rightly appreciate the large place which Millsaps College now occupies as an educational force in Mississippi, nor their exceptional opportunity to enlarge its usefulness."

On a postal, written on the 24th ult., Rev. W. C. Carlisle gives the following encouraging account of his work at Second Church, Columbus: "We have just had our third quarterly conference. Brother Thomas, the presiding elder, preached us an unusually good sermon. The cause here is still prospering. We have received since Conference 71 members, and are still expecting others to join. We are planning for a meeting in October, and are hoping to round out the year's work so as to be ahle to make a good showing when we meet in our annual conclave. We had a fine congregation, two additions, and a good church conference last night. Brotber A. P. Leech had a fall some time ago, but is now about in his usual health. He will preach for us next Sunday at 11 a. m."

President J. R. Countiss bas heen making an active canvass for pupils for Grenada College nearly ever since the close of the last session, and we are pleased to he informed that more girls are registered than at this time last year. This is as it should be. The fine work which Brother Countiss and his assistants are doing certainly demands recognition at the hands of the Methodists of North Mississippi! Let every pastor in the patronizing territory seek to turn the minds of parents in his charge who have daughters to educate toward this excellent institution. Our people who, with such advantages as this school affords within their reach, are sending to inferior colleges under the control of other denominations, are making a grave mistake. In the character of work done, Grenada College easily outranks any denominational scbool in the northern half of the State in which it is located.

CALLED HOME.

Miss Maria Ames, daughter of Brother and Sister Matthew Ames of precious memory, died this morning at the residence of her sister, Mrs. D. A. Saunders, after a iong and painful iiiness. For some time it was apparent to all that the time of her departure was at hand, as her bealth has heen declining for some years.

The home-going of this elect lady is a distinct loss to the Methodism of this town and to the forces of righteousness of this entire community; yet we all rejoice in the heritage she has left us of a life well spent and a nohle Christlike character formed. Hers was the passing away of one for whom heaven was prepared and who gives ample hope in her death.

W. E. M. BROGAN.

July 27, 1911.

The rural free delivery of mail was started fifteen years ago with 83 carriers who received only $200 a year each. On the first of July last, there were 41,562 carriers, with their aggregate pay amounting to $35,793,000. This service is being operated at a loss of $25,000,000 annually. Carriers on standard routes now receive $900 each, and it is the purpose of the postal authorities to increase the sum to $1,000 in the near future. The Postmaster General is strongly advocating the establishment of a parcel post system, which he thinks would soon make the rural service self-sustaining. The record of Mr. Hitchcock as a financier surpasses that of any man who has ever been at the head of the postal affairs of the nation. He has practically wiped out the long-standing deficit in this department of the Government, of which we have been hearing so much for years.

$177.00 pays Board, Tnition, Laundry, Medical, Library and Lyceum fees whole session. Those who wish may reduce this by taking dnties. Apply now to Port Gibson Female College, Port Gibson, Miss.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL ANNUAL CHEAP EXCURSION

SATURDAY, AUGUST 12th.

Chicago $15.00
St. Louis 12.00
Detroit 18.00

Good Returning Until August 27th.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 19th

Louisville $12.00
Cincinnati 14.00
Washington, Richmond, Norfolk, Hot Springs, Va. $18.00

Good Returning Until Sept. 3.

Through coaches, free reclining chair cars, Standard and Tourist Sleepers. Special train service. Dining cars all the way. Children's tickets will be sold at one-half the adult rate.

Buy your Ticket and Sleeping Car Space in advance at

ILLINOIS CENTRAL OFFICE,
141 St. Charles Street,
Phone, Main 3618.

DR. H. B. BARTLETT
National Dental Parlors
Cor. Canal & Camp Sts.
ENTRANCE 106 CAMP
Phone Main 2193
NEW ORLEANS
Vitalized Air for Painless Extraction
Crown and Bridge Specialist.
The Largest and Best Equipped Dental Parlors South.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

Just as the beautiful month of May was waning, a sad and sudden death occurred in Eupora, on Saturday evening, the 27th., when the spirit of ROBERT E. COBURN, the 21-year-old son of Brother E. P. Coburn, was ushered quickly into the presence of his Saviour and King, as a result of heart failure. The funeral services were conducted by Rev. W. D. McCollough, pastor of the Methodist Church, on Sunday evening at 3:30, and the interment took place in the local cemetery, where a large number of friends had gathered to witness the last sad duty to the departed loved one. The number of beautiful floral tributes attested the sympathy of the many friends for the father, sisters and brother left behind. Robert was a noble young man, a consistent member of the Methodist Church, a true and affectionate brother, an obedient son and a kind and generous friend. Weep not dear friends as those who have no hope, but rather rejoice that his life was such as to inspire hope and confidence that we shall meet and see him again in the Father's kingdom. May God in his infinite mercy comfort your hearts, and help you to say: "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord!" MRS. J. T. ANENT.

Mrs. FELICITY O'NEAL PAUL, having lived four-score and ten years, and having seen the fourth generation of her posterity, was borne peacefully home Sunday, May 7, 1911, from Jonesville, La. She was born in Catahoula Parish, in 1823, and was married to John Baptist Paul in 1840. She was the mother of four children, and leaves behind her thirty-nine grandchildren, one hundred and fourteen great-grandchildren, and fifteen great-great-grandchildren. When twelve years old she was happily converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, and lived a loyal, faithful member for seventy-eight years. Her Christian experience stood the test of every day life, and grew richer with increasing years. A week before her departure, while in prayer with her friend, she was so conscious of the presence of God that she became shouting happy. When the veil of mortality was lifted, what a glorious ushering into her Father's presence there must have been. Bereaved ones, look up. She has reached the end of her earthly warfare, received her crown of life, has been reunited with her loved ones on the other shore, and is ready to greet you, if, like her, you are faithful to the end.

GEORGE D. PURCELL.

REV. W. T. J. SULLIVAN, D.D.

Whereas it has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from his association in the visible Church to communion with the redeemed in the Church above, our revered friend, fellow-student, and father in Christ, Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan; and whereas, by his kindly and cheerful spirit, by his sincere and earnest trust, by his faithful and constant attendance upon Sunday school under difficulties which would have hindered one less devoted to the study of God's Word; by his Christlike spirit in which, though a master in Israel, he sat among the learners, he has endeared himself to all, but especially to the members of his own class, and has shown that Christian old age is a dignified and honored state; therefore, be it resolved,

First—That in the death of Dr. Sullivan the ministry of the Church of God has lost one of its most useful members.

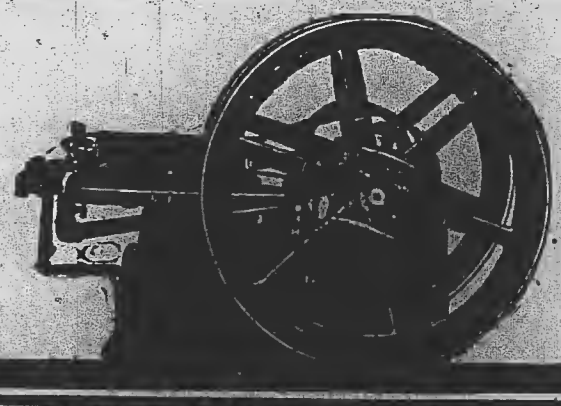
Second—That the Sunday school has lost one of its most faithful attendants, and this class especially, one who was ever an inspiration towards kindly, gentle, Christian living.

Third—That these resolutions be adopted by his class and by the entire Sunday school, and that a copy be spread on the records of this class, another be sent to his bereaved family, and a third sent to the New Orleans Christian Advocate to be printed in that paper.

Signed: Prof. R. S. Rickett, R. P. Moore, J. T. Lowther, Committee.

Mr. JESSIE M. ABNEY was born in Hinds County, Miss., Nov. 7, 1834. He was of Welsh and German parentage, the son of Robert R. and Mary Abney. In the early years of his life he gave his heart to God and kept faithful unto the end. The life of the teacher and afterward the merchant gave place to the call of his country for the soldier, and he found his place in Company F, 12th Mississippi Cavalry, and served from beginning to end of that dreadful war. In the midst of the conflict, in Jasper County, Miss., on Jan. 18, 1862, he married Miss Sarah Crosby. Into their home came ten children; three daughters—Mary C., wife of T. M. Evans, Gulfport, Miss.; Elizabeth C., wife of D. C. Wallis, Fulsome, La., and Miss M. C. Abney, of Claiborne, La., and two sons—Messrs. R. C. and S. C. Abney, of Abita Springs, La., remain to mourn their loss. He has lived in Claiborne for more than thirty years. Here he wrought out the greater part of his life in service to God and his church, as well as to the public. In official capacity and as a private citizen, he commanded the respect of all. He died in what we have every reason to believe a triumphant faith, on May 28, 1911. When the shadows were gathered in the evening, at 9:15 o'clock, the spirit returned back to the Giver. On May 30, 1911, from the Methodist Church, his body was laid to rest in the Covington Cemetery.

His pastor, A. A. BERNARD.



STANDARD OF QUALITY
FOR EVERY FARM POWER NEED

For running the cream separator, churn, feed cutter, woodsaw, fanning mill, thresher, pump, grindstone, electric lighting plant, washing machine—any farm machine to which power can be applied—an I H C gasoline engine is the best investment you can make. It will work steadily and economically, it will last for years, and require less attention and repairing than any other engine made.

The record of I H C engines on thousands of farms is proof positive of their superiority. Their advantages in simplicity, strength, economy, efficiency, and durability are well known.

IHC Gasoline Engines

are built right—of the best materials obtainable—by skilled workmen, in the finest equipped engine factories in America.

When you buy an I H C you know it must be right in order to maintain the I H C reputation for highest quality.

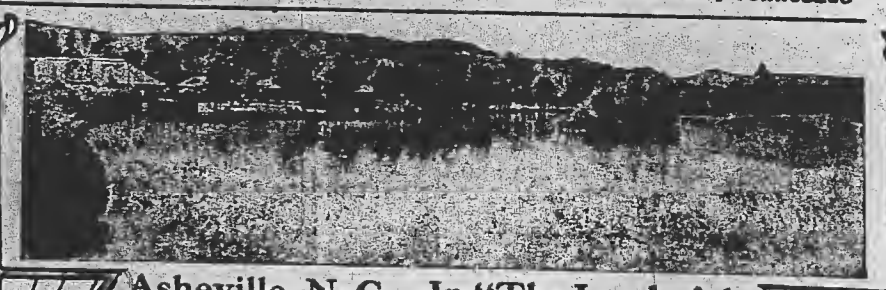
In the I H C line there is an engine that meets your special needs. They are made in the following styles and sizes.

Vertical type—2, 3, 25, and 35-H. P.; horizontal—1 to 25-H. P.; semi-portable—1 to 8-H. P.; portable—1 to 25-H. P.; traction—12 to 45-H. P.; sawing, pumping, spraying, and grinding outfits, etc. Built to operate on gas, gasoline, kerosene, distillate, or alcohol—air-cooled or water-cooled. See the I H C local dealer, or, write us today for our new catalogue.

International Harvester Company of America
Chicago (Incorporated) U S A

I H C Service Bureau
The bureau is a center where the best ways of doing things on the farm, and data relating to its development are collected and distributed free to everyone interested in agriculture. Every available source of information will be used in answering questions on all farm subjects. Questions sent to the I H C Service Bureau will receive prompt attention.

Methodist Benevolent Association
The Connectional Brotherhood of Ministers and Laymen. Life or Term Certificates for $500 to $2,000. Benefits payable at death, old age, or disability. $100,000.00 paid to widows, orphans, and disabled. $14,000.00 reserve fund. Write for rates, blanks, etc.
J. H. SHUMAKER, Secretary
Nashville, Tennessee



Asheville, N. C.—In "The Land of the Sky" Is the Ideal Spot to Spend Your Vacation.

The Climate is superb, being 2,250 feet above the sea level, is high above humid, sultry and less favored sections—it is healthful, invigorating and strengthening. Asheville has the purest water and most beautiful scenery in the world. Hotel and boarding house accommodations are unsurpassed. Beautiful roads for motoring and driving, golf, tennis, bowling and every imaginable attraction for recreation and amusement. Biltmore House, the magnificent home of Mr. Geo. W. Vanderbilt, and the finest country estate in existence, is situated here and open to visitors three days each week. Asheville people are hospitable and you'll enjoy every minute you stay here. Make your arrangements to come to Asheville this summer—cheap rates from all points.

For Handsome Illustrated Booklet Describing Asheville, Write

Board of Trade,
Asheville, N. C.

Source of Asheville's Water Supply.

Marriages.

July 17, 1911, at the residence of the bride's parents in Wilkinson County, Miss., by Rev. E. W. Barrington, Mr. CUBIC C. SIMMONS, of Franklinton, La., to Miss MAY OLIVE STUART.

July 16, 1911, at the residence of the bride's father, Brother W. C. Westerfield, at State Line, Miss., by Rev. I. L. Peebles, Brother JOSEPH ANDREW PACE, postmaster at Petal, Miss., to Miss RUBYE LUCILLE WESTERFIELD.

July 19, 1911, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. M. E. Gray, in Montrose, Miss., by Rev. L. H. McInnis, Rev. CYRIL E. CAIN, of Dead Lake, Miss., to Miss ANNIE R. GRAY.

July 12, 1911, at the residence of the bride's mother, Brookhaven, Miss., by Rev. Jas. G. Galloway. DR. ROBERT LEE FRASER, of De View, Ark., to Miss META SMITH, of Brookhaven, Miss.

Jnly 12, 1911, in the Methodist Church, by Rev. D. W. Babb, Mr. BYRON L. BURFORD, of Independence, Miss., to Miss FLOY EVELYN SMITH, of Coldwater.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Meridian Dist.—Third Round.

Clara, at Goldwood	Aug.	5, 6
Meridian, 5th Street	Aug.	9
Lauderdale, at Marion	Aug.	12, 13
Meridian, Central	Aug.	16
Binnsville and Wahalak, Binnsville	Aug.	20, 21
Meridian, East End	Aug.	23
Porterville, at Porterville	Aug.	26, 27
Daleville, at Andrew's Chp	Aug.	30
Waynesboro Circuit, at Fedora	Sept.	2, 3
DeSoto, at Hopewell	Sept.	9, 10
Meridian, 7th Ave	Sept.	13
Meridian, Poplar Spgs	Sept.	14
Waynesboro	Sept.	17, 18
Bucatunna, at ——.—.	Sept.	19
Meridian, South Side	Sept.	20

W. H. LEWIS, P. E.

Seashore Dist.—Third Round.

Ocean Springs	Aug.	5, 6
Mississippi City	Aug.	9
Vancleave, at Shiloh 11 a. m.	Aug.	10
Mentorum, at Antioch	Aug.	12, 13
Lumberton	Aug.	16
Poplarville	Aug.	17
Derby, at Mill Creek	Aug.	18
Carriere and McNeil, at Picayune	Aug.	19, 20
Gulfport, 25th Avenue	Aug.	23
Wolf River Mission, at Durham's Chapel	Aug.	26, 27
Long Beach	Ang.	30
Biloxi	Sept.	2, 3
Bay St. Louis	Sept.	6
Logtown	Sept.	7
Coalville, at Poplar Head	Sept.	9, 10
McHenry and Wiggins, at McHenry	Sept.	13

W. B. JONES, P. E.

Newton Dist.—Third Round.

Trenton, at Pulaski	Aug.	5, 6
Carthage, at Singleton Friday	Aug.	13
Walunt G., at Freeny	Aug.	19, 20
Homewood, at High Hill Tuesday	Aug.	22
Morton, at Zion Grove, Friday	Aug.	25
Hickory, at Garlandville	Aug.	26, 27
Philadelphia ... Fri.	Sept.	1
Neshoba, at Sand Town	Sept.	2, 3
Hillsboro, at Prairie Hill, Friday	Sept.	8,
Forest, at Lena	Sept.	9, 10
Indian Mission, at Neshoba	Sept.	16
Stallo, at Neshoba	Sept.	16, 17
Newton ....Wed	Sept.	20

T. J. O'NEIL, P. E.

Port Gibson Dist.—Third Round.

Gloster	Aug.	5, 6
Hamburg, at Knoxville	Aug.	11
Sunflower, at Straight Bayou	Aug.	12, 13
Rolling Fork, at Cary	Aug.	15
Mayersville, at M	Aug.	19, 20
Harriston, at Martin	Aug.	25
Washington, at Pine G.	Aug.	26
Natchez, Jefferson St.	Aug.	27, 28
Nebo, at Oak Grove	Sept.	2, 3
Wilkinson, at Mars Hill	Sept.	9
Woodville	Sept.	10
Hermanville, at Sarepta	Sept.	16
Natchez, Pearl St.	Sept.	17
Rocky Springs, at Willows	Sept.	23, 24
Oak Ridge, at Bovina	Sept.	30
Vicksburg, South Washington Street	Oct.	1
Centreville	Oct.	4
Homochitto, at Mt. Vernon	Oct.	6

Will the preachers in charge kindly have a carefully written answer to Ques. 19, as well as to Ques. 18 and Ques. 23? Please have all the items ready to fully answer Questions 8 and 9. We have had some vexations, delays and uncertainties here.

Let all of us bend all energy and faith to the matter of revival.

H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN, P. E.

Brookhaven District—Third Round.

Osyka, at Liberty	Aug.	5, 6
North Wesson, at Providence	Aug.	12, 13
Topisaw, at Topisaw	Aug.	16,
Buford, at Hopewell	Aug.	19, 20
Magnolia	Aug.	26, 27
McComb and Fernwood, at South McComb	Aug.	27,
Wesson	Aug.	30,
Adams, at Ebenezer	Sept.	1,
Meadville, at Ediceton	Sept.	2,
Pearlhaven, at Bethel	Sept.	3,
Brookhaven	Sept.	3, 4
Summit, at East McComb	Sept.	10,
McComb, Centenary	Sept.	10, 11
Monticello, at Georgetown	Sept.	16, 17
Scotland at Bethesda	Sept.	23, 24

J. T. LEGGETT, P. E.

Hattiesburg Dist.—Third Round.

Collins, at Ora	Aug.	6, 7
Magee, at Sharon	Aug.	9,
Silver Creek, at Bethel	Aug.	12, 13
Sumrall, at Sumrall	Aug.	16
Oloh, at Advance	Aug.	17
Prentiss, at Bassfield	Aug.	19, 20
Lucedale, at Shipman	Aug.	27, 28
McLain, at Cross Roads	Sept.	2, 3
Eastabuchie, at McLaurin	Sept.	7
Eucutta, at Broyls	Sept.	9, 10
Sanford, at Sanford	Sept.	16, 17
Seminary, at Bethel	Sept.	20

District Conference at Richton, July 11-14. The conference will organize on the 11th at 8:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present at the organization.

M. B. SHARBROUGH, P. E.

Jackson Dist.—Third Round.

Canton	Aug.	6, 7
Mendenhall, at Holly G.	Aug.	8
Harrisville, at Poplar Springs	Aug.	9
Jackson, Capitol St.	Aug.	13, 14
Jackson, Rankin Street, 7:30 p. m.	Aug.	13, 16
Florence, at Richland	Aug.	19, 20
Eden, at Philips	Aug.	21
Lintonia, at Lake City	Aug.	22
Edwards	Aug.	24
Yazoo City	Aug.	27
Benton, at Tranquill	Aug.	28
Deasonville, at Fletcher	Aug.	29
Flora, at Livingston	Aug.	30
Fannin, at Holly Bush	Sept.	6
Jackson, Galloway Chp	Sept.	10
Yazoo City ..7:30 p. m.	Sept.	13
Bolton, at Brownsville	Sept.	16, 17
Satartia	Sept.	23, 24

J. R. JONES, P. E.

Here it is (By Mahaffey) NEW LIGHT ON BAPTISM — Facts found in the Original Authority under which John first baptized prove that Sprinkling was the Original Mode. No more doubt about it. 68 page book for THE BIBLE MODE CO., Box O, Clinton, S. C. — Only 10c

ROYALINE OIL
Strongest and Best
ANTISEPTIC
Stops Pain--Heals Wounds
Use it for Cramps, Colic, Diarrhoea, Pains and Wounds, Headache, Toothache, Footache, Earache, Sore Throat, Sore Mouth, Sore Chest, Sore Muscles, Sore Feet. Pleasant, Clean, Safe.
There is nothing "just as good". Try it and you will use no other. It has stood the test for nearly 20 years.
10c, 25c, 50c Druggists.
ROYALINE MED. CO., Ltd., New Orleans, Sole Proprietors

KOGER PEA & BEAN THRESHER
Guaranteed to thresh Cow Peas and Soy Beans from the vines and not break over two per cent of the grain.
WRITE FOR FREE ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE

"DOES NOT BREAK ITHE GRAIN."
Giving in detail the superior advantages of this machine. Requires the least amount of power, and produces the greatest amount of work. Also threshes Oats, Wheat, Velvet Beans, Rice, Millet and Sorghum.
Write us to day.
Koger Pea & Bean Thresher Co.
Morristown, Tenn.

ON the can and IN the can
SNOWDRIFT
HOGLESS LARD
SNOWDRIFT is the first hogless shortening product. It is the ORIGINAL article. It has been imitated on the OUTSIDE, in Snowdrift colors and snow-FAKE names, but it has never been imitated INSIDE! They cannot approach its quality! See that you get SNOWDRIFT outside and inside the can, and you will eat the best of shortenings. One-third less expensive, one-third more value.
Buy in tins only. Insist on your rights.
Sold by all leading grocers who avoid Substitution.
Made by
The Southern Cotton Oil Co.
New York, Savannah, New Orleans, Chicago

L&N Louisville & Nashville R.R.
THE DIRECT LINE TO NORTH AND EAST
ELECTRIC LIGHTED STEEL SLEEPERS
DINING CARS, OBSERVATION CARS, CHAIR CARS
Phone M 4093. TICKET OFFICE 201 ST. CHARLES STREET.

Death Lurks In A Weak Heart
If Yours is fluttering or weak, use "RENOVINE." Made by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn. Price $1.00

The Sunday School.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE SUNDAY SCHOOL NOTES.

By Miss Daisy Magee.

The Sunday school at Wahalah, Miss., is making ever effort possible to place itself on the list of modern Snnday schools. It is as well graded as it can be at the present. Home department and cradle roll superintendents have already been appointed. As soon as the literature can be secured these officers will begin work. The school hopes at an early date to organize senior and adult classes.

* * *

The Baptist and Methodist Sunday schools of Oak Vale, Miss., have appointed home department superintendents. These officers have sent their visitors in twos—a Methodist and Baptist together—over the town for a house-to-house visitation in the interest of this phase of the Sunday school work. This is an example that might well be followed by other schools, thus reaching those who cannot and will not go to Snnday school.

* * *

The people of Forest, Miss., are building a new Methodist Church which will have seven Sunday school rooms. We should be glad to know of other churches doing the same. The separate class room is very important. No class can do its best work in a room where there are a number of classes reciting at the same time. In the first place, the attention of the pupils is attracted by the noise and other things that create confusion. It is impossible to prevent this confusion in a room where more than one class meets. In the second place, the teacher cannot do his best work because his time and thought are divided between trying to hold the attention of the pupils and teach the lesson. In a separate room there would be little or nothing to attract the attention of the pupil; therefore, the teacher can give his undivided effort to the teaching of the lesson. The result is, of course, a better taught lesson. In the third place, there are exercises that should be conducted in the class or department rooms that cannot be conducted elsewhere. Every elementary room should have a program consisting of greeting, and song service. These offering, and song service. These services play a very important part in the training of these young minds. How can we have them without class or department rooms? How can the organized classes conduct the devotional exercises and other parts of the organized class work without class rooms?

NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick.

Mr. W. O. Harris, of Chancey, Miss., and the few families about him, have quite broken the record for Children's Day Services. They have four regular members in the Sunday school and two babies on the cradle roll. Some children chanced to be visiting near by, and with a fine eye for the main chance, they utilized them and had a good service and sent in $7 to Brother Gladney, $1.16 2-3 per capita. These friends have no church or society and no preaching unless they go for Brother Sharp, the afternoon of the first Sunday. This is a splendid example of what a rural school can do, without eqnipment or church, but with an enthusiasm for the right and a keen desire to serve God and help support the institutions of the Church. In this day, when the rural schools claim that the lack of development is due to a lack of equipment and of city and town advantages, this example comes as a vivid answer to the fallacy. We can succeed almost anywhere, if we have the vision and are willing to pay the price, and this is done in many instances.

The Sunday school work in the North Mississippi Conference has been making fine progress. Children's Day has been much more generally observed than heretofore, institutes and conventions are being held, and better equipment and more efficient service are found everywhere.

* * *

One of the finest educational exhibits ever shown was that of our own publishing house at San Francisco. It was attractive, helpful in every line of work and arranged so systematically that what any special teacher wanted could be found at a moment's notice. Messrs. French and Smith were there in person, as well as Mr. Everett, of Dallas, and their presence alone signified the success of their undertaking. Every Methodist would have been proud of this up-to-date and splendid exhibit in the interest of progressive Sunday School work.

This great thirteenth International Sunday School Convention was a success in every detail, as well as in its larger and world-wide conceptions.

"The open Bible and uplifted cross," were the sign and symbol, and both were emphasized on every program.

This brief half column can only recount some of our Southern Methodist leaders who were present, and did splendid work. Dr. and Mrs. Hamill, and Dr. Bulla rendered fine service. Dr. Hamill was specially effective in his address entitled, "The Bible and the Common People." The absence of Dr. Chappell was much regretted. Bishop Hendrix made an address on tne "Unification of Protestant Denominations Through the Sunday school." Dr. Downey and Dr. McFarland of the Northern Methodist Church were eloquent along several special lines of church activity. Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman emphasized the open Bible, personal work and spirituality, and his presence, influence, wonderful magnetism and consecration had a great effect npon the waiting throng from all over North America and the islands of the sea. Fifteen thousand men marched with Bibles in their hands in the great Adult Bible Class parade, and these Bibles were placed in the hotels of San Francisco afterward. No finer or more inspiring sight could be imagined than these men of every nation walking under the standard of the "Man of Galilee" to the martial measures of "Onward, Christian Soldiers." The children had many fine hours with Mrs. Byrne, Mrs. Lamoroix, Mrs. Barnes, Mrs. Hamill and Miss Slattery. The teen age or "secondary division" as it is now called, received special attention, and a strong effort will be made to hold in the Sunday school this 75 per cent of our Sunday school pupils we are now so systematically, or rather carelessly, losing The Adult Bible Classes for men have twice the number found in women's classes, and an attempt will be made to remedy this. Women have as many classes, but the memberships are much smaller. A large and attractive campaign has been planned for this department, with Mr. W. C. Pearce's new Standard of Service as its text, and this, with the program of the "Men and Religious Movement," should result in a great harvest of strong men.

4 H. P. Farm Engine Kerosene Gasoline $79.50

Greatest value ever offered in a 4 h. p. water-cooled farm engine. Runs any kind of machinery—pumps—saws—separators—feed grinders—water systems—electric light outfits, etc.

1½ H.P. for $49.50

Very simple. Uses little fuel. Best material and workmanship. Made to last a lifetime. Shipped complete all ready to run. No extras to buy. Guaranteed by a big responsible concern. Write for catalog TODAY and ask about

30 Day Trial Offer

Gray Motor Co.
873 U. S. Motors Building
Detroit, Mich.

Rebuilding Sale of PIANOS

To Reduce Stock Before Building Our Annex

DETAILS CONCERNING THIS SALE.

A few of this week's bargains are herewith specially listed, and in order that everyone shall have an equal opportunity to participate in the unequaled advantages this sale affords, conditions governing the sale are herewith put down in detail.

Terms will be arranged to suit the convenience of the purchaser. While specific terms are herein set down in a great many instances, yet these will be changed if necessary to meet the demands of the buyer.

All prices are quoted boxed and delivered free on board cars at depot here in New Orleans.

Positively no reservations will be made unless the amount covering first payment is remitted at time of writing. It will be understood, however, that money will be refunded if, upon a complete, detailed description of the instrument, it is learned that the instrument will not meet your requirements.

For the fullest protection of every purchaser, we will exchange any instrument purchased at this sale for any new piano of like or greater value in our house up to January 1st, allowing full amount paid to apply upon the purchase price of any new piano or player piano, thus giving the purchaser a four or five months' free use of the instrument now purchased.

SLIGHTLY USED, LOANED AND OTHER PIANOS.

OUT-OF-TOWN PATRONS May Order From This List Without Fear of Disappointment.

No Limit to Easy Terms

(E1). HAINES BROS.—Large size, walnut case, almost like new, perfectly plain panel, 3 pedals; worth new $425, price $295; terms $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E2) WERLEIN—Mahogany finish; regular $400 piano sold under Club Plan $292, used less than one month for school commencement, in every way new and up to date, $280; $5 cash, $5 monthly.

(E3) WERLEIN— Mahogany finish; another of the regular $400 pianos selected for college commencement and used less than a month, practically new; perfect condition, guaranteed, $274; $5 cash, $5 monthly.

(E4) BEHR BROS. — Standard size, upright, mahogany case, same as new; worth $550; price $410; terms, $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E5) HAINES BROS.—Medium size, oak case, beautifully carved panel, used only a few months; worth new $425; guaranteed condition; price $235; terms, $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E6) MATHUSHEK — Standard size, upright, walnut case; worth new $425, price $230; terms, $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E7) HAINES BROS. — Medium size, upright, mahogany case, 3 pedals and muffler; worth new $425, price $225; terms, $5 cash and $5 a month.

(E8) WEGMAN—Medium size, upright, mahogany case; worth new $400, price $210; terms, $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E9) WERLEIN—Large size, upright, price new $292, price $235; terms, $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E10) WERLEIN—Large size, upright, mahogany case, case checked; price new $292, price $210; terms, $5 cash, $5 a month.

(E11) WEBER GRAND—Ebonized case, used only slightly for concert purposes; worth new $750; price $560; terms, $10 cash and $10 a month.

Unequaled Bargains in New Pianos

(A) MATHUSHEK—Discontinued style, walnut case, plain panel, dull satin finished, $425; now $340; $10 cash, $10 monthly.

(B) WEGMAN — Discontinued style, mahogany, $450; now $295; $10 cash, $7 monthly.

(C) PEASE—Discontinued style, mahogany, always $375; now $300; $10 cash, $8 monthly.

(D) STORY & CLARK—Discontinued style, mahogany, $425; now $339; $10 cash, $8 monthly.

No Limit to Easy Terms

Hundreds of Others to Select from

New Chickering Grands and Uprights

$10 Monthly for a Short Time Only

In our Player Department we are offering the WERLEIN PLAYER PIANO, as well as the Steinway and Weber Pianola Pianos.

PHILIP WERLEIN, LTD.

NEW ORLEANS.

Weber, Chickering, Mathushek, Werlein Pianos. Steinway and Other Pianola Pianos.

Victor Talking Machines Sheet Music

EDUCATIONAL.

VANDERBILT University
1,000 Students 100 Teachers
Campus of 80 Acres
also
New Campus for Departments of Medicine and Dentistry

Expenses low. Literary course for graduates and undergraduates. Professional courses in Engineering, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Theology. Send for catalog, naming department. (1)
J. E. HART, Secretary, Nashville, Tenn.

MERIDIAN
MILITARY TRAINING
CHRISTIAN INFLUENCE
MALE COLLEGE
In the Health-giving Pine Hills of Mississippi. Beautiful campus and recreation grounds. Dignified, manly athletics encouraged. Brutal games, secret societies, tobacco, etc., prohibited. Preparatory, Collegiate, Theological and Commercial courses. Commercial School open all the year. Enter any time. An IDEAL HOME SCHOOL for your boy where he will receive thorough instruction, morally, mentally and physically. Write for Catalog No. 4
M. A. Bryson, D. Sc., Pres. Meridian, Miss.
Meridian Woman's College, a quarter mile distant, is an ideal place for your sister. Non-sectarian. Christian Influences. Operated in connection with the Meridian Male College.

SCIENCE HILL SCHOOL
SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY.
An English and Classical School for Girls. College Preparatory course with certificate privileges at Wellesley, Vassar, Smith, Leland Stanford, Randolph-Macon and other colleges. 86 years of successful work. College trained teachers. Superior advantages in music. MRS. W. T. POINTER, Principal.

RANDOLPH-MACON ACADEMY For Boys and Young Men
Fits for college, scientific schools or business. Work endorsed by over 30 colleges and universities. Beautiful and healthful location. Athletic grounds; gymnasium. Terms, $250. No extras. For catalogue, address
E. SUMTER SMITH, Principal, Bedford City, Va.

IF YOU ARE PARTICULAR
SEND YOUR SON OR DAUGHTER TO RUSKIN-CAVE COLLEGE
"The School That Cares"
The college that is religious but non-sectarian. Does not tolerate tobacco, football or baseball. No loafing places, for the college owns the village, making the school the safest place for training men and women. Located in a HEALTH RESORT. Only 200 students accepted. Apply Early.
Write to-day for Free book "Character Talks" which tells all about it.
RUSKIN-CAVE COLLEGE, Ruskin, Tenn.

GEM CITY Business College
Quincy, Ill.
25 teachers, 1400 students, $100,000 School Building. Shorthand and Typewriting, Bookkeeping, etc. 68 page Illustrated Catalogue free.
D. L. MUSSELMAN, Pres't. Box 59, Quincy, Ill.

Epworth League

By Rev. H. B. Watkins.

TOPIC FOR AUGUST 6.

THE DIVINE PURPOSE.

(Eph. ii, 10; Titus ii, 14; Heb. vi, 10-12.)

Every man's advancement depends in large measure upon his being successfully discovered by those who are able to place higher and higher valuations upon his essential worth. Human nature yields a rewarding response to high expectations of its development. The doctrine of predestination contains a truth that cannot be denied. "Inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world" speaks of the destiny which it is possible for all men to enjoy. In its appreciation of man's intrinsic worth Christianity distinguishes itself from all other religions. The secret of its power to lift up the race lies in its spirit of unhesitating hopefulness. Christ knew what was in man; not only the weaknesses he possessed, but the elements of power and of goodness as well. The declaration of the divine purpose implies the high dignity and value of the human life.

Man's essential worth lies in the high and holy thing he is expected to do in the world. His value is indicated in the function he is expected to perform. Concerning this function Jesus made a two-fold statement. He said, "Ye are the light of the world," and he said, "Ye are the salt of the earth." Let us examine these words concerning their deeper significance.

A Light to Lighten the Gentiles.

Think of the things light does. It illuminates, it reveals, it explains, it interprets, it organizes, it analyzes, it reduces to system, it transmutes baser into glorified material. When a man becomes a light to the world, he means to the world all those things and more. His presence brings revealings of truth. His labor establishes relations of enduring reality. His influence transforms low values into values of exalted importance.

There lies Africa. Its fringes have been touched by civilization. But its interior is thought to be a burning desert. Impenetrable jungles cover the huge beast and the serpent. Naked and cruel savages occupy the land. It is indeed the Dark Continent. Enter Livingstone. They that sit in darkness see a great light. The open sore of the world is uncovered. The process of healing sets in. Livingstone obeyed the divine purpose.

The world is puzzled and afraid because a strange, elusive force has been encountered. It brings quick death, flashing and snapping lurid signs of its hidden presence. Faraday appears. His intellect flashes response after response to the challenge of the force. He explores the paths along which the force travels; he observes its behavior; he tests it by repeated experiment; he gains measurable control of its conduct. Light, power, convenient device, wonderful machinery fill the earth. And men play with the force which has been tamed by the mind of man. Faraday functioned properly.

Oppression of disease and fear of death haunted men. The right way to deliverance from dreaded ills did not appear. The darkness was tragic with moans and groans and misshapen forms. Virchow lived and wrought. He was consumed with a passion for learning causes and discovering remedies. In the light of his beacon, later generations have experimented and dissected and achieved. Much darkness fled before the face of Virchow. Mulberry Bend in New York City was a death trap. The stench of filth, the dank of darkness, the scourge of sickness, the pain of poverty, the violence of crime made the quarter hideous. Jacob Riis walked in the street, threaded the alleys, climbed through the gloom of rickety buildings, and strode in the police court crowded with the wreck of human lives. People saw the things his presence revealed. The ax was laid to the foundation of many a building. Parks appeared with trees and sunlight and birds and happy children. Disease retreated, crime abated, poverty diminished; knowledge and health and safety and happiness came. Great illumination came to the worst section of New York through the rightly adjusted life of Jacob A. Riis.

Concerning each of these men the verdict is clear.

"He took the suffering human race;
He read each wound, each defect clear,
And struck his finger on the place
And said: 'Thou ailest here and here.'"

—Epworth Era.

REVIVAL AT MAYERSVILLE.

Dear Editor: On Sunday morning, July 9th, with the eleven o'clock service, there closed, doubtless, the greatest revival ever held in Mayersville. Prof. Chas. H. Lane, of Georgia, that inimitable humorist and preacher, did the preaching, and the results show how faithful was his ministry. Reaching here July 1, he held the first service Sunday morning, July 2d, and preached twice each day until the close. His sermons were powerful presentations of subjects such as "prayer," "faith," "witnessing," etc., and were illuminated by the most pointed illustrations it has ever been the pleasure of the writer to hear. Through all his sermons there runs a vein of humor which is irresistible, but which is so adroitly handled as never to take the attention away from the point illustrated. Of results, I will mention these: Nine accessions to the church on profession of faith, and a decision on the part of the members to have three Sundays here instead of two as was the custom heretofore. Already arrangements have been made to furnish these services until Conference, after which some permanent arrangement will be effected.

That this great man has left with us impressions that will go with us many days, is the belief of all who heard him. He has made our burdens lighter and has brightened the pathway of life for many of us. Glad indeed, are we that he came—more glad that when he went away he left with us a firmer grasp on truth, a greater knowledge of responsibility, and a broader view of life.

ERNEST C. GUICE.

Mayersville, Miss.

How to Succeed.

During the last few years, conditions in all lines of business, even professional life, have changed so completely that every man is waking up to the fact that in order to win success he must specialize and learn to do some one thing and do it well.

So it is with any article that is sold to the people. It must have genuine merit or no amount of advertising will maintain the demand for the article.

For many years we have watched with much interest the remarkable record maintained by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy. From the very beginning the proprietors had so much confidence in it that they invited every one to test it, free of cost, before purchasing.

It is a physician's prescription.

They have on file thousands of letters received from former sufferers who are now enjoying good health as a result of its use.

However, if you wish first to try a sample bottle, address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and mention this paper. They will gladly forward you a sample bottle by mail, absolutely free.

Regular sizes for sale at all druggists—fifty-cents and one-dollar.

CEDAR LUMBER.
ANY QUALITY—ANYWHERE.
AT ONCE.
We pay freight anywhere in the United States.
JORDAN BROS. LUMBER CO., NORFOLK, VA.

TEXAS BERMUDA ONION FARMS
Located in Best Bermuda Onion District in Texas. PROFITS $200 to $600 per acre annually. WE RAISE the crop for SHARE of PROFITS. No PERSONAL ATTENTION nor EXPENSES required from YOU. Easy payments. WE PAID DIVIDENDS 1911 to UNIT HOLDERS. Dividends for You next season. Endorsed by local clergy and bankers. For particulars address, ZAVALA ONION FARMS CO., Gibbs Bldg., P. O. Box 836, SAN ANTONIO, Texas.

GINSENG RAISING is the surest way to make big money on little capital. One acre yields thousands of dollars a year. Sells for $6 to $7.50 lb. Will buy all you raise. Easily grown anywhere. Requires your spare time only. Could you realize how rapidly you can make money honestly, you'd write me today. T. H. Sutton, 406 Sherwood Ave., Louisville, Ky.

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days, usually gives entire relief in 15 to 45 days and effects cure 20 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box X, ATLANTA, GA.

HIBERNIA INSURANCE CO.,
Capital.....$200,000.00
Assets..... 479,860.90
No. 305 Camp Street., New Orleans, La.
LOSSES PROMPTLY PAID.

Rubber Stamps And Accessories
We are the only firm in Mississippi making a specialty of RUBBER STAMPS and accessories. New equipment. Expert labor. Prompt service and satisfaction guaranteed—All stamps shipped same day order is received.
Write for free illustrated stamp catalog.
SOUTHERN ADVERTISING CO., Inc. Jackson, Miss.

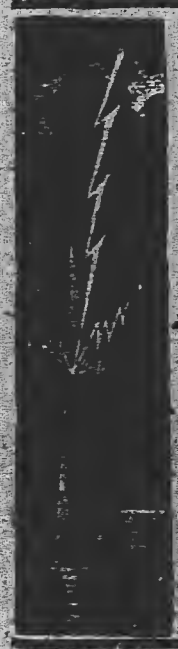
ESCAPE THE HEAT OF SUMMER AND SPEND YOUR VACATION ON THE
PACIFIC COAST
Temperature 50 Degrees to 70 Degrees EVERY DAY
LOW ROUND TRIP RATES NOW IN EFFECT
Via SOUTHERN PACIFIC
Two Strictly First-Class Trains Daily
"SUNSET EXPRESS" and "CALIFORNIA EXPRESS"
Through to SAN FRANCISCO without change
Most Modern Standard and Tourist Sleeping Cars; Electric Lighted—Individual Lights in Berths; Oil Burning Locomotives; Electric Block Signals; Observation Car on Sunset Express; Dining Car Service Best in the World.
Before Deciding on Your Route, see
SOUTHERN PACIFIC REPRESENTATIVE,
City Ticket Office, 225-27 St. Charles Street, New Orleans
PHONE MAIN 4027
Beautifully Illustrated Literature Furnished on Request.

BAUER'S CAPORIC POWDER

A positive cure for excessive prespiration and odors arising therefrom, sore and sweaty feet, prickly heat. Fine after shaving and bath!

We will send full sized package postage paid on receipt of twenty-five cents (25c). We will send you a sample FREE if you will give us the name of your druggist or dealer. We guarantee every package. Your money back if not as represented.

DAVE S. BAUER,
DRUGGIST
Mobile, Alabama.



Destroyed by Lightning, Saved by Insurance

That is the story of many churches, and yet many are damaged or destroyed—and no insurance whatever. This latter number is decreasing and has been since our began to impress upon church officials the importance of insurance and sufficient insurance, and to furnish it on such terms that none could afford to put it off. Just think of it! Protection for a few cents or less a day on easy payments, and no assessments. Write for particulars.

Methodist Mutual, The National Mutual Church Insurance Co., of Chicago

Henry P. Magill, Sec. & Mgr.
184 LaSalle st., Chicago, Ill.

Mrs. Alice H. Barclay
Agent, M. E. Church South
South Brook 1118, Louisville,

Our Copyrighted Book on GALL STONES, DYSPEPSIA AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, Stomach and Bowels FREE Address Gallstone Remedy Co. 225 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. Ask for Book No. 18.

ESTEY CHURCH ORGANS.

The ESTEY is the world's best Organ. The KOHLER & CAMPBELL PIANO is in every particular first class; satisfaction guaranteed in every case; freight paid; low cash price on easy payments without interest. Write for Catalogues.

J. H. BASS, Pastor Meth't Ch'ch.
Brookville, Miss.

VISIT
MINERAL WELLS
FOR HEALTH AND PLEASURE
AND
WEST TEXAS
For
FINE AGRICULTURAL LANDS.
REACHED VIA

THE TEXAS T&P PACIFIC RAILWAY SYSTEM

EXCURSION TICKETS ON SALE DAILY.
Free Booklet.

E. P. TURNER,
General Passenger Agent.
DALLAS - - - - - TEXAS

INDIAN BAYOU, LA.

Our meeting here has come and gone under unfavorable conditions, but with good results. It rained every day and night during the meeting. We began the night of July 1st, and Rev. W. H. Benton, of Crowley, came the evening of the 2d, taking charge of the meeting until the evening of the 9th. We closed out, having had a great number of conversions and more than 50 accessions to the church; also about 20 babies baptized. Upon the whole, our work is doing nicely. The Sunday school has outgrown itself this year and we are planning to start a cradle roll, which we think will mean something here. We are already making inroads on the Catholics here by christening the children, and now and then they are coming in with us. And while our parish (Vermilion) went wet a few months ago to our regret, we are still getting some good out of the earnest campaign that these good people waged. This is our third year here, and all along the way there has been a slow, but steady progress. At the last session of the Annual Conference this was made a station, with a little fear that it might not do perfect justice to its pastor. But because of the pressing need of all a man's time here, the presiding elder thought best to make the venture and appeal to the people to sustain him, it looks as though they are making a good pull and will be victorious. We have been trying to press the claim of the dear old paper, and hope soon to send in some subscribers from every home here.—J. S. Rutledge, P. C.

Good News for the Deaf.

A celebrated New York Aurist has been selected to demonstrate to deaf people that deafness is a disease and can be treated successfully in your own home. He proposes to prove this fact by sending to any person having trouble with their ears a trial treatment of this new method absolutely free. We advise all people who have trouble with their ears to immediately address Dr. Edward Gardner, Suit No. 480, No. 40 West Thirty-third street, New York City, and we will assure them that they will receive by return mail, absolutely free, a "Trial Treatment."

FROM REV. J. H. BASS.

Dear Dr. Meek: Will you kindly allow me space to call the attention of your readers to my piano and organ advertisement found in your columns? Our people in various churches are selling their old organs and buying larger and better ones, and in making these changes, they should be careful and be sure that the new organ is what they want. No mistake can be made in buying the Estey Organ. The tone is sweet, the action is perfect, and all the larger sizes are supplied with blow lever attachment, so that a small boy can operate the instrument and thus save the organist all the hard work of pedaling. I can make terms to suit any church—can sell them at a cash price, and give one, two and three years to pay without interest.

The Kohler & Campbell Piano is one of the highest grade pianos on the market. It is made by one of the largest and best equipped factories in the world and is fully warranted. It is supplied with copper strings and brass hardware throughout. Terms, part cash, balance on time to suit the customer. I shall be glad to correspond with any church or home in need of an organ or piano. In buying your instrument through me, you will not only get the best thing made, but you will help a Methodist preacher to educate a large family of boys and girls. Write me for catalogues, terms and prices. J. H. BASS,
Pastor M. E. Church, South, Brooksville, Miss.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE MEMORIAL.

Mr. Editor: This seems to be the age of "specials," in more ways than I have space to indicate, and as a rule, people respond more generously to special offerings than to the regular collections "ordered by the Conference." This is not as it should be, but the fact remains all the same. "These ye ought to have done, and not to have left the other undone."

We need a representative church building at Washington, D. C., and our great Church ought to build it without much difficulty. We need a representative church edifice in Natchitoches, La., and it seems to me there ought to be available funds to erect this building. Now, in addition to these, I think we should have at Opelousas, La., a nice, neat brick church building to commemorate the organization of the Louisiana Conference, which took place in this beautiful little city over sixty-five years ago. It should be modern in all its apartments, so far as that is needed here, and should cost not less than $10,000. We have, in our membership some of the best people on earth, and while they are not of sufficient financial strength to erect a suitable building, they would give generously toward such an enterprise. Our church and parsonage lot is about 250x600 feet. Of this, more later.

Cordially, I. T. REAMES, Pastor.

LOOK BEYOND THE CLOUDS.

Look beyond the clouds? I'm looking, brother,
Out beyond encircling gloom,
Till my vision pierces through them, brother,
And the sunlight floods my room.

Far away, beyond the darkness shining,
Hope's fair star lights up my way,
For the darkest cloud has silver lining,
Longest nights lead unto day.

Tell me, did you ever notice, brother,
Where the clouds the darkest grew?
Oft along the upper edges, brother,
Shone the fairest bit of blue.

Let us look beyond the clouds together,
You in your place, I in mine,
Try to welcome any kind of weather,
Whether rain or whether shine.

Look beyond the clouds, the dark clouds, brother;
Just a little while, and then
Clouds will break in endless sunshine, brother,
When we join the "grand Amen."

—Lizzie Harding Underwood, in St. Louis Advocate.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children, 50c.

JELL-O
ICE CREAM
POWDER
makes delicious ice cream for 1c. a dish. Nothing to do but put it into milk and freeze it. At grocers, 10 cents a package.

ESTABLISHED 1858
CHURCH AND SCHOOL BELLS
Write for SPECIAL DONATION PLAN Cat. No. 57
THE C. S. BELL COMPANY, HILLSBORO, O.

BEST THING MADE

April 28, 1910, Dothan, Ala.
I began handling Johnston's Tonic in Blakely, Ga., in 1884. In 1892, moved to Dothan, Ala. Have sold more than 1000 bottles. Use it in my family for Colds, Fever and La Grippe. In all the years I have been selling it, never had but 2 complaints. Both parties admitted afterwards they had not used it right.
H. Q. FRAZIER.

April 13, 1910, Greenwood, S. C.
I have used Johnson's Tonic in my family for 9 years. It is all you claim for it and more too. It cured me of Typhus Hemorrhagic Fever. I would have been under the sod 9 years ago but for JOHNSON'S. Tell this to the world. It may save some man's life.
A. P. ALDRICH.

Drives every trace and taint of Malarial Poison from the Blood.

Your Summer Trip,
Whether to the North, East or West, should be made via the
Illinois Central
Low Summer Tourist Fares now in Effect.
Let us assist in planning your trip.
Write or call at
ILLINOIS CENTRAL OFFICE
141 St. Charles St.
W. H. BRILL, Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt. ED RODDY, City Pass. Agt

QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE
Best & Quickest Service
TO ALL IMPORTANT DESTINATIONS
In the North & East
Summer Tourist Tickets now on Sale to all Mountain, Lake and Seaside Resorts.
—Ticket Office—
211 ST. CHARLES STREET
Phone Main 4482
Terminal Station---Canal Street

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

NORTH MISS. CONFERENCE.

Sardis Dist.—Third Round.

Tyro, at Mt. Vernon.....Aug. 5, 6
Olive Branch, Oak Grove.Aug. 12, 13
Wall Hill, at Grubb Hill....Aug. 15
Long Town, McGee's Chap.Aug. 17
Oakland, at Bethel.....Aug. 19, 20
Courtland, at Shiloh .....Aug. 22
Senatobia .. ..Aug. 23
Cockrum, at Independence.Aug. 26, 27
Eureka, at Pisgah .....Sept. 2, 3
Arkabutla .. ..Sept. 9, 10
Crenshaw ....Sept. 12

W. M. YOUNG, P. E.

Winona Dist.—Third Round.

North Carrollton, at McCarley .....Aug. 5, 6
Indianola, at Faisonia....Aug. 12, 13
Moorhead, at Blaine.....Aug. 13, 14
Lambert, at Glendora.....Aug. 19, 20
Minter City..8 p. m.....Aug. 20
Eupora, at Eupora .....Aug. 24
Bellefontaine, at Walthall..Aug. 24
Kilmichael, at Lodi .....Aug. 26, 27
Tutwiler, at Marks.....Sept. 2, 3
Slate Springs, at Bethlehem ....Sept. 9, 10

E. S. LEWIS, P. E.

Corinth Dist.—Third Round.

Bellmont Ct., at Patterson Church ....Aug. 5, 6
Booneville Ct., at Shady G.Aug. 12, 13
Dry Run Ct., at Mt. Carmel ....Aug. 19, 20
Hatchie Mission, at Mt. Pisgah ....Aug. 21
Ripley Mis., at Black Jack.Aug. 22
Dumas ct., Jacobs Chp....Aug. 23
Sherman Ct., ———.....Aug. 25
Myrtle Ct., at Ebenezer...Aug. 26, 27
Kossuth Circuit, at Pleasant Hill .....Sept. 2
Guntown and B., at Baldwyn ....Sept. 3, 4
Baldwyn Mission, at Palestine ....Sept. 9, 10

BEN P. JACO, P. E.

Greenville District—Third Round.

Hollondale .. ..Aug. 5, 6
Shaw .. ..Aug. 13, 14
Sherard .. ..Aug. 20, 21

Let the pastors take particular note of question No. 17 in the business of the quarterly conference, and make a written report in full of this question, as the Discipline requires.

W. W. WOOLLARD, P. E.

Columbus Dist.—Third Round.

Sturgis, at Pughs .....Aug. 5, 6
Mayhew ....Aug. 11
Cedar Bluff, at Pearson..Aug. 12, 13
Cochrane ....Aug. 19, 20
Columbus Circuit .....Aug. 26, 27

J. E. THOMAS, P. E.

Durant Dist.—Third Round.

Ebenezer, at Bethany....Aug. 5, 6
Black Hawk, at B. H....Aug. 12, 13
Sallis, at Salem .....Aug. 15
Kossuth Ct., at Salem....Aug. 17
Poplar Creek, at Huntsville ....Aug. 19, 20

N. G. AUGUSTUS, P. E.

Oxford Dist.—Third Round.

Ashland ....Sept. 2, 3
Charleston, at Oak G.....Sept. 9, 10
Grenada ....Sept. 10, 11

J. E. CUNNINGHAM, P. E.

Aberdeen Dist.—Third Round.

morial ....Aug. 5, 6
Okolona Ct., at Egypt....Aug. 6, 7
Okolona ....Aug. 7
Nettleton Ct., at New Chp..Aug. 8
Montpelier, at Palestine..Aug. 9
Derma, at Atlanta .....Aug. 10
Pittsboro, at Tabernacle..Aug. 11
Fulton, at Fulton .....Aug. 12, 13
Tremont, at Tremont.....Aug. 13, 14

JAMES H. FELTS, P. E.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Monroe Dist.—Third Round.

Waterproof, at Wesley....Aug. 5, 6
Gilbert, Holy Grove.....Aug. 8

Bonita, at Jones.....Aug. 12, 13
Lake Providence .....Aug. 16
Delhi ....Aug. 20, 21
Brooklyn ....Aug. 23
Floyd ....Aug. 26, 27
Downsville ....Aug. 29, 30
Mangham, at Boueff River.Sept. 2, 3
Eros, at Indian Village...Sept. 6
Winnsboro, at Boueff Prairie ....Sept. 9, 10
Rayville ....Sept. 13
Florence ....Sept. 17, 18
Merrouge ....Sept. 20

District Conference will meet in Rayville, July 26, 10 a. m.

S. S. KEENER, P.E.

Baton Rouge Dist.—Third Round.

Ponchatoula, at Sp'gfield.Aug. 5, 6
Amite City .....Aug. 6, 7
E. Feliciana, at Camp G..Aug. 12
Franklinton, at F.....Aug. 16
Mt. Hermon, at Augie....Aug. 19, 20
Bogalusa ....Aug. 20, 21
Wilson, at Manassas .....Aug. 26, 27
St. Helena, at Pine R....Sept. 2, 3
Kentwood ....Sept. 3, 4
P. Grove, at Pipkin's ....Sept. 6
Port Vincent, at Mauripas.Sept. 9, 10
St. Francisville, at Tunica.Sept. 16, 17
N. Roads, at Morganza...Sept. 23, 24

C. C. MILLER, P. E.

Ruston District—Third Round.

Jonesboro, at Jonesboro....Aug. 5, 6
Ringgold, Grand Bayou....Aug. 12, 13
Simsboro, at Antioch.....Aug. 16
Belmville, at Bear Creek...Aug. 19, 20
Boyd Mission, at Chestnut..Aug. 21
Arcadia ....Aug. 26, 27
Ruston ....Aug. 27, 28
Lanesville, at Brushwood.Sept. 2, 3
Lisbon, at New Hope.....Sept. 9,10
Houghton, at Dolline.....Sept. 16, 17
Cotton Valley, Pleas. Val.Sept. 23, 24
Minden .. ..Sept. 24, 25

R. W. TUCKER, P. E.

Alexandria District—Third Round.

Longville and Merryville, at Fields ....August 5, 6
Harrisonburg, at Mt. Hermon ....August 12, 13
Jena, at Jena .....August 15, 16
Trout .....August 17
Columbia, at Stanard..August 20, 21
Marksville, at Bay Hill.August 23, 24
Tioga, at Liberty Chapel..Aug. 27, 28
Alexandria .....Sept. 1
Selma .....Sept. 3, 4
Opelousas .....Sept. 10, 11
Glenmora ..... Sept. 13
Colfax, at Atlanta..... Sept. 17, 18
Melville, at Simmesport..Sept. 24, 25
Bunkie, at Cheneyville....Sept. 26

Special attention will be given to questions 18, 21, and 23.

PAUL M. BROWN, P. E.

CHILDREN'S DAY AT CENTER POINT.

Children's Day was observed at Center Point Church, Bayou Pierre charge, the first Sunday in July. A nice program had been arranged by the ladies of the Sunday school, and the children acquitted themselves admirably. The church, which had been beautifully decorated by the young folks, was filled to overflowing, and every one seemed to enjoy the exercises to the fullest. The singing by the choir also comes in for special mention. Dr. Caldwell, of Hazlehurst, was with us in the afternoon and made a fine talk, taking for his subject "Seek Ye First the Kingdom of God and His Righteousness and All These Things Shall Be Added Unto You." We were indeed glad to have this good man with us, but very sorry, indeed, that our beloved pastor could not be with us. Our little Sunday school is progressing nicely. The pupils and teachers are all faithful.

J. W. FUNCHESS,
Sunday School Superintendent.

Irritated Eyes

Get worse and worse the longer you let them go; Leonardi's Golden Eye Lotion cures inflammation and soreness without pain in one day. Cooling, healing, strengthening. Get "Leonardi's—it makes strong eyes.

Guaranteed or money refunded. Druggists sell it at 25c. or forwarded prepaid on receipt of price by S. B. Leonardi & Co., Tampa, Fla.

EDUCATIONAL

The Mississippi Conference Training School,
MONTROSE, MISS.

A unique Preparatory school for boys and girls with wholesome moral surroundings and positive Christian influence.

Our regular literary course is practical, and prepares for taking the A. B. degree in the best colleges. The Bible is included in our daily recitations.

Our extras are: Music, Expression, and a normal course preparing teachers to teach in the public schools.

Special features are: A Mission Study Class, and a course preparing teachers to teach in the Sunday school. We also have a farm in connection with the school, and boys of moderate means may have the free use of the land and thereby pay expenses.

Write for catalogue.

(Rev.) WALDO W. MOORE, A. M., President.

JEFFERSON MILITARY ACADEMY,
Washington, Miss.

Prepares for Colleges, Universities, Scientific Schools and business. Located in the Hills, six miles east of Natchez, a place noted for its healthfulness, fine climate and historic surroundings. Away from the detractions and temptations of City life, but with all modern conveniences. Fine spring water. Personal attention; one teacher for every twelve boys. Eighty (80) acre campus. Large gymnasium. Endorsed and recommended by the presidents of Colleges and Universities. 110th Session begins Sept. 14, 1911. For full particulars apply to

MAJ. R. V. ANDERSON, Supt.

CHAMBERLAIN-HUNT ACADEMY, Port Gibson, Mississippi.

A High Grade Training School for Boys and Young Men.

First class boys wanted. Industrial and Practical in aim. Courses on Agriculture and Manual Training just added. Buildings modern, steam heat, electric lights, etc. In old historic section near Vicksburg. No malaria. Among High Hills. Four Optional Courses. Instructors all College Graduates. No Hazing: Military abolished. Some boys reduce expenses by work. Non-sectarian, but Christian. Bible a Text Book. Last session crowded. Cheapest school of its kind in the South.

$180 Pays all Expenses. Kind of School South Needs.

Mention the Advocate. For Catalog address M. R. MELVIN, A. M., Pres.

DICKSON COLLEGE,
THE SCHOOL FOR YOUR DAUGHTER.

Located in the Tennessee Highlands. Health unsurpassed. Out-door sports, exercise in the hills among Middle Tennessee's most beautiful springs. A thorough education which prepares for efficiency and gives real culture. Courses complete and advantages superb. Send your daughter to Dickson College and she will return to you stronger in body and mind, thoroughly equipped, cultured and refined, and ready to meet the actual problems of life. For catalogue and all information, address,

T. E. LOGGINS, Dickson, Tenn.

— MEDICAL COLLEGE —
OF THE STATE OF SOUTH CAROLINA
CHARLESTON, S. C.
MEDICINE AND PHARMACY.
(Session opens Oct. 2d, 1911, ends June 3d, 1912.)

Unsurpassed clinical advantages offered by the New Roper Hospital, one of the largest and best equipped hospitals in the South. Extensive out-door and dispensary service under control of the faculty.

Nine appointments each year for graduates in medicine for hospital and dispensary services.

Medical and Pharmaceutical Laboratories recently enlarged and fully equipped.

Department of Physiology and Embryology in affiliation with the Charleston Museum.

Practical work for medical and pharmaceutical students a special feature.

For Catalogue Address ROBERT WILSON, Jr., M.D. Dean, Cor. Queen and Franklin Sts., Charleston, S. C.

BINGHAM, Asheville, N. C., has prepared BOYS for College and for Christian Citizenship for 118 years, and ALONE in the U. S., offers a FREE ROUND TRIP TICKET from anywhere within 1500 miles to any parent who, on inspection, is not convinced that its pairs of ONE STORY brick rooms, separated by a parapet FIRE WALL, are the BEST for Health, Sanitation, Ventilation and safety against FIRE. 1793 Send for Catalogue or come and see. COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt., R. F. D. No. 28 1912

Wesleyan College
Macon, Georgia

One of the few real colleges for women in the South. Plant worth a half million, with all modern facilities. Faculty of forty. Nearly 3,000 alumnae throughout the nation.

Schools of Literature, Languages, Science, Arts and Music.

A safe institution for young ladies. Non-sectarian, but Christian to the core. Health record without a parallel—not a death for many years. Not conducted for profit, but to bless the world. Rates reasonable. No traveling agents.

For detailed information, address

W. N. AINSWORTH, D. D., President
C. R. JENKINS, Vice President

High Grade Medical Teaching

Memphis Hospital Medical College
FOUNDED 1878 2760 GRADUATES.
Modern College Building. Modernly Equipped throughout.
ATTENDANCE SESSION 1910-'11. 380 STUDENTS.
Excellent Hospital and Laboratory Facilities
Thorough and Comprehensive Four Year Graded Course
For Announcement and Catalogue, address
W. B. ROGERS, M.D., Dean. MEMPHIS, TENN.

Marvin University School, CLINTON, KY.

CONDENSED INFORMATION.

LOCATION: CLINTON, KY., a clean town, 125 miles from Memphis; a healthful place, not a death in the student body in 25 years; the first prohibition town in Kentucky.

THE PLANT: Good brick buildings; new brick dormitory, with electric lights, steam heat, shower baths, hot and cold water on each floor; fine athletic field; swimming pool 125 yards long; one of the best plants in the South for a training school.

FACULTY: Trained experts, University men, abreast of the times.

COURSE: Equips for life or leads to the best colleges and universities; graduates receive free tuition in University of Kentucky.

TERMS: $190 pays board and all school fees for the year. Write for catalog to NICHOLS BROTHERS.

SAVE YOUR Complexion

Protect it this summer from the painful and unsightly effects of SUNBURN and WINDBURN; keep it clear, soft, velvety and youthful by using this pure, snow-white

HINDS Honey and Almond CREAM

Always supremely good for dry, rough, coarse skin; for irritated, eruptive, sore skin; for dull, sallow complexions. Soothes and removes babies' skin ailments. It has remarkable antiseptic, cleansing, invigorating properties. You can see the skin become fresher and fairer each week. —It contains nothing harmful; is not sticky, and cannot possibly aid a growth of hair.

There is only one genuine, original Hinds Honey and Almond Cream;—on the market 35 years and selling throughout the world. Do not accept substitutes, for you will be disappointed.—Price, 50c in bottles. Sold by all dealers.

Trial Bottle mailed Free by A. S. HINDS, 72 West St., Portland, Me.

Let ADLER, the Piano Man Save You $122.50 on a Piano

Thousands know me best as the maker of the world-famous Adler Organs—more than 75,000 of which I have placed in happy homes all over the land. I want to tell you now that my Adler Southern Grand Piano offer is creating a tremendous sensation, because my price is just about half what you would expect to pay, and I let you have your Adler Piano on exactly the same wonderfully liberal terms as an Adler Organ—30 days free—all the time you need—money back with 6% interest at end of a year, if not precisely as represented. Read every word below!

Send Me Not One Penny

I do not require a penny in advance. My Adler Southern Grand Piano, like my Adler Organ, must sell itself after a free trial in your home. You, not I, must be the judge, because it is your money that is going to be invested, and I cannot afford to have a single dissatisfied customer. I take all the risk.

Try It A Whole Month Free

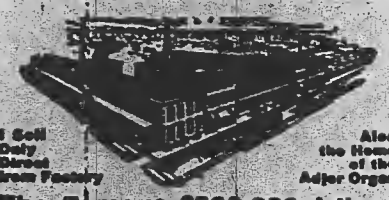
Send for my Piano Catalog. Look it over and tell me the style you like best. Let me ship it to your home at my risk, freight prepaid. Keep it a month. Play on it. Have your neighbors help you decide. When you are convinced that the Adler Southern Grand is the best piano you ever saw at any price, I will arrange for you to pay for it in small convenient amounts and will not even charge you interest on payments. If you are not convinced after 30 days trial, return the piano to me and be out nothing. You take no chances at all in dealing with me!

Adler Pays the Freight

Can you name another Piano Manufacturer who pays the freight? Adler does! Do you know of any piano guarantee for more than 12 years? I guarantee my Adler Southern Grand for 25 years—the longest and strongest piano guarantee ever made. And my $500,000 Adler Factory stands back of this wonderful guarantee.

Adler Southern Grand Piano
Sold from Factory, Freight Prepaid

Now, you want a piano, but before buying one get my plan to save you $122.50 on a magnificent Adler Southern Grand. Write for my free Piano Catalog and learn what my wonderful offer means to you. Mail Coupon now, while you have it before you.



I Sell Only Direct from Factory

Also the Home of the Adler Organ

The Famous $500,000 Adler Factory—Greatest in Existence

C. L. Adler, Pres't, Adler M'f'g. Co.,
3854 W. Chestnut St., Louisville, Ky.

Please send me your Free Piano Catalog and Special Offer.

NAME.....

ADDRESS.....

FRECKLES TAN, SUNBURN

Quickly removed by WILSON'S FRECKLE CREAM. Guaranteed for freckles, sunburn, tan, moth, pimples. Postpaid 50c a box. Trial size 25c—postage 5c. Dealers and agents write for special offer to Wilson's Freckle Cream Co., 236 Meeting St., Charleston, S. C.

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

Rev. David Carlisle Hull, M.S., President.
A high grade college, situated at the capital of the State. Location high, dry and healthful.
Entrance Requirements and Curriculum same as in other Leading Colleges and Universities North and South.
Separate Preparatory School under Private Dormitory Management.
The very finest Moral and Religious Influences. Extraordinary Advantages in LITERARY AND LAW DEPARTMENTS.
Courses Leading to A.B., B.S., A. M., M.S., and LL.B. Degrees.
TWENTIETH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 20th, 1911.
For catalog and other information address
E. Y. BURTON, Secretary, Jackson, Mississippi.

GRENADA COLLEGE

A CHRISTIAN COLLEGE FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN.

The Property of the Church—Erected and Maintained for Service.

Only One Hundred Boarders Taken. Personal Attention Given Each Student.

A FACULTY OF SPECIALISTS.

THE BEST ADVANTAGES IN MUSIC, ART, AND EXPRESSION.

Write for Catalog. REV. J. R. COUNTISS, President. Grenada, Miss.

MARTIN COLLEGE,

An Endowed School for Girls and Young Women.
PULASKI, Tenn. Established 1870. W. T. WYNN, President

Located on Main line of the L. & N. R. R., eighty miles south of Nashville, forty miles north of Decatur, in the beautiful "Blue Grass" region so famous for health and the beauty of its scenery. Cultured community. All departments. German Director of Music. Conservatory and University trained teachers. Modern buildings. Good pianos, new $1000 grand for recitals. Correspondence invited. Forty-first session begins Sept. 20, 1911. Write for catalogue. Address W. T. WYNN, Pulaski, Tennessee.

DICKSON COLLEGE, Dickson, Tenn.

T. B. LOGGINS, A.M., President.

A school for both sexes; limited numbers; strong faculty; splendid student body; healthful location in the Tennessee Highlands; Christian influences. One of the safest and most practical schools for young men and women, boys and girls. Literary, music, expression, bookkeeping and short-hand courses. 27th year under same management, begins Thursday, Aug. 31, 1911. Before making other arangements, let us send you our beautiful 40-page catalogue. Address, T. B. LOGGINS, Dickson, Tenn.

TRINITY COLLEGE

1859 1892 1910-1911

Three memorable dates: The Granting of the Charter for Trinity College; the Removal of the College to the growing and prosperous City of Durham; the Building of the New and Greater Trinity.

Magnificent new buildings with new equipment and enlarged facilities.

Comfortable hygienic dormitories and beautiful pleasant surroundings.

Five departments: Academic; Mechanical, Civil, and Electrical Engineering; Law; Education; Graduate.

For catalogue and other information, address
B. L. FLOWERS, Secretary, Durham, N. C.

Ward Seminary FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN Nashville, Tennessee

Literary Department of the highest order. Seminary and Special Courses. French and German spoken. Certification to Wellesley, Vassar, Goucher, Randolph-Macon.

In Music opportunities unsurpassed—nine teachers, eight with the best European training—WINKLER, Director. Piano; CAMPOBELLO, Voice; SCHMITZ, Violin. School Orchestra and Chorus.

Expression, Art, Domestic Science—all in charge of specialists.

City advantages. Accessible to leading churches, libraries, lecture and concert halls. Outdoor sports, Tennis, Basket Ball, etc., also beautiful Ward Place campus for recreation.

47th year begins Sept. 21. 175 boarding pupils. Early application is advised
For Catalogue and Other Circulars, Address J. D. BLANTON, LL.D., Prest.

Silliman College for Girls
Clinton, La.

An endowed institution of high standard, located in a beautiful hill country. Three handsome Buildings and large, well shaded Campus. Electric lights, steam heat, splendid water supply and sanitary bath rooms.

It offers full classical, scientific and literary courses, with special advantages in music, art, expression and stenography. A diploma entitles holder to first grade teacher's certificate in the public schools of Louisiana.

We emphasize noble and refined Christian womanhood. Individual attention is given to each student's needs by thorough teachers, and we maintain a strict standard of requirements.

Free scholarships are granted a limited number who need financial assistance. Some students pay half expenses by taking duties.

Silliman College is positively unexcelled in its careful and painstaking administration.

Sixtieth year begins Sept. 13th, 1911. Write at once for beautifully illustrated catalogue.

H. H. Brownlee, President, Clinton, La.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

VOL. 58—No. 32. "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which is Good." WHOLE No. 2895.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 10, 1911

CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.
Office, No. 512 Camp St.

Editorial

It is stated that at Bonhur, Texas, an ordinance has been passed to grant license to sell peanuts on the streets only to persons who have lost both legs. It strikes us that this is a wise regulation. The best charity is that which helps a person to help himself. Much of our giving is of a kind which tends to develop mendicancy.

* * *

Does prohibition prohibit? Yes, if the whisky men will let it. For them to do what they can to defeat the enforcement of the law against the sale of intoxicants and then to inveigh against it because of violations of it for which they are responsible, is the very quintessence of inconsistency. But the brazen effrontery of the average saloon advocate knows no limit.

* * *

The noted Chinaman, Wu Ting Fang, is said to have inaugurated a campaign against cigarette smoking in China. We wish him well in the undertaking. The Courier Journal states that there is a story to the effect that tobacco was introduced into China in the sixteenth century from the Philippines, but that the Emperor abolished the traffic by decreeing that whoever sold or used it should be beheaded. But the throne cannot in this day do things in the great empire after the manner of bygone years, and argument must now be resorted to instead of force. It is a pity, however, that the old Chinese method cannot be adopted in our own country in the case of the man who bites off a quid of tobacco and expectorates through the window of a moving street-car and allows the horrible saliva to be blown back into the faces of the people sitting immediately behind him. Anything less than capital punishment is inadequate for such conduct.

* * *

Salt is efficacious to save only when applied. This is equally true of Christianity. Those who have "Christ formed within the hope of glory," must come into contact with others and become the means of conveying his purifying power if they are to be transformed and uplifted. One of the most essential parts of the Master's great commission is the word, "Go!" Amongst the people is the place for the disciple who would extend the kingdom of his Lord. Bishop Galloway used to tell in one of his sermons of an attempt to rescue persons who were drowning in a wreck at sea by means of a speaking trumpet. Much of our so-called Christian work in this day is like that—we are talking and doing little else. We must first secure a grip upon the hearts of men before we can hope to raise them up above the base and low. Such service may be unpleasant; indeed, it may be little less than a living martyrdom, but it is the only method by which the masses of mankind may be reached and elevated. In a sense, every preacher should be a commoner. He should feel that every human being has a claim upon him and that his commission is to minister to each and all. Wherever there is a soul to save, or suffering or need exists, there to him is the Macedonian call.

AN INTERESTING DISCOVERY.

The following statement was sent out from Boston to the leading secular dailies of the United States on August 3:

A new uncanonical gospel of Christ, containing many utterances of Jesus which are unknown to the world, is believed to have been discovered through the work of the Egyptian exploration fund, according to an official announcement issued from the Boston headquarters of this fund.

Enough ancient writings have been dug up to furnish material for twenty large printed volumes.

Prof. Bernard P. Grenfell and Prof. Arthur S. Hunt are engaged in the work of translating the marks of recovered papyrus. Prof. Whittemore went to Egypt several months ago on the strength of subscriptions made by wealthy Bostonians. He succeeded in completing the work of opening and recovering the long hidden treasures from one of the mounds through special permission of the Khedive.

The bulk of the fragment is concerned with a conversation between Jesus and a chief priest, which takes place in the temple at Jerusalem. The translation says:

"But give heed, lest ye also suffer the same things as they; for the evil-doers among men receive their reward, not among the living only, but also await punishment and much torment.

"And a certain Pharisee, a chief priest, met them and said to the Savior: 'Who gave Thee leave to walk in this place of purification and to see these holy vessels when Thou hast not washed nor yet have Thy disciples bathed their feet? But defiled Thou hast walked in this temple, which is a pure place, wherein no other man walks except he has washed himself and changed his garments, neither does he venture to see these holy vessels."

"And the Savior straightway stood still with his disciples and answered him, 'Art thou, then, being here in this temple, clean?'

"He said unto him, 'I am clean; for I washed in the pool of David, and having descended by one staircase, I ascended by another, and I put on white and clean garments, and then I came and looked upon these holy vessels.'

"The Savior answered and said unto him, 'Woe, ye blind, who see not. Thou hast washed in these running waters wherein dogs and swine have been cast night and day, and hast cleansed and wiped the outside skin which also the harlots and flute girls anoint and wash and wipe and beautify for the lust of men; but within they are full of scorpions and all wickedness. But I and my disciples, who thou sayest have not bathed, have been dipped in the waters of eternal life which come from above. But woe unto thee.'"

Here ends the translation.

We reproduce this statement as a matter of news, and not because we think the discoveries therein referred to are likely to prove of any great value, so far as adding anything to the divine revelation is concerned. It is true that some of the manuscripts brought to light by archeological explorers, like that of the finding of the Sinaitic Manuscript in the Convent of St. Catherine, at the foot of Mt. Sinai, by Dr. Tischendorf, have been of great service in the way of furnishing evidence of the canonicity of the books of the Bible which are accounted genuine by the Christian world, and in making certain the exact text of the Holy Scriptures. But it is a striking and significant fact that up to the present time these researches, which have been conducted so energetically, have not added to the Word of God a single passage of consequence, adjudged to be an omitted fragment of the Heavenly Father's original message to mankind. It is, of course, true that there are in the Bible some intimations of other writings by men who are commonly accounted to have been inspired; as for instance, St. Paul's reference to the epistle from Laodicea, and it is within the range of possibilities that some of these may be found in the years to come; but if they are, we dare say that it will be seen that they contain no new truth of essential importance. We do not think that it demands an unreasonable amount of credulity to accept the view that he who thought it necessary to give humanity a revelation, has also thought it worth while providentially to preserve it. At any rate, such is our faith.

Those announcing the discovery in Egypt of a new gospel of Christ scarcely needed to affirm that it is "uncanonical." The brief quotation given is ample proof of that. Never man spake or acted as did Jesus. Napoleon was right: "None else is like him." The attempts of men to duplicate his parables have been positively pitiful. The man-made miracles of the Apocrypha are grotesque and absurd. There are those who tell us that the gospel of John is spurious. If so, who was it that talked with the woman at the well and with Nicodemus? Who spoke the words contained in the fourteenth, fifteenth, sixteenth, and seventeenth chapters of this little book? If they came from human lips, why in the nineteen hundred years that have elapsed since have none like them emanated from the same source? Mighty has been the march of human progress; man stands to-day upon an intellectual eminence far above the past generations. If a mere man wrote the remarkable utterances contained in the Gospel of John in the long ago, why cannot men in the glory of the twentieth century produce something to equal or surpass them?

No, no; the only explanation of the simple grandeur of the New Testament is that Jesus was divine and that the authors of it truthfully recorded his marvelous history. He talked and lived and died like a God, and nothing like his speech and deeds can be found in the annals of the race. The sayings that men have invented and sought to put into his mouth do not fit him—the fictitious performances in which they have tried to make him an actor have invariably failed to harmonize with his lofty spirit and character. Their thoughts are not as his thoughts, nor their ways as his ways.

The editor of the Western Methodist is giving his readers a series of editorials on "The Theological Unrest." We do not think they are much calculated to assist in allaying it.

One of the finest things that the Master said about John the Baptist was that he was no reed shaken by the wind. Pliableness may lead to popularity, but it is incompatible with majestic manhood. He is a weakling who has no convictions, or who, if he has them, lacks the courage to maintain them. There is large merit in standing firmly for what one conceives to be the truth and right.

One has only to love a single creature with all one's heart, and the whole world at once looks lovely.—Goethe.

Christian Advocate.

Published for the Louisiana, Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

DIRECTIONS:

Correspondents will please direct all communications intended for the Editor to 112 Camp St., New Orleans, La. Communications intended for the Business Department should be addressed to the Manager of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if this date is not moved forward after three weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise.

RECOGNITION IN HEAVEN.

Rev. A. H. Bevill.

A mother's smile as heaven's gate
Shall lead me up the way;
A smile like mother used to give
To me, her boy, at play.
A mother's kiss in heaven's gate
Will just as precious be,
As was the parting one she gave
When death tore her from me.

And mother's welcome at the gate
I'll strive to reach and win;
And I shall see her glory there,
All free from pain and sin;
For mother's tears while here on earth,
Shed for her wayward boy,
As stars shine in her diadem,
In that bright world of joy.

THE SOCIAL MESSAGE OF FREDERIC W. ROBERTSON.

By Chas. W. Barnes, D.D., in the Northwestern Christian Advocate.

A discriminating writer says of Frederic W. Robertson: "He was indeed the embodiment of the religious spirit of the end of the century. He exhibited its most striking characteristics; its dependence upon conduct rather than emotion; its glorification of morality; its humanism; its hunger for God, hidden under a pantheistic composure; its adoration for Jesus as the one wholly comforting figure in the bleak perspectives of human history; finally, he held its conception of Christianity as a life, not a creed. The man who wrote, 'The religion of Christ is not a law but a spirit, not a creed but a life,' had felt within him the forces of a new realization of religion as yet unperceived by his generation."

His short life of thirty-seven years (1816-53) made an important contribution in message and leadership to this important and transitional period in England's spiritual development. In Christ's message there are two vitally related elements: The salvation of the individual and the redemption of society. These must receive equal emphasis and move on side by side in the establishment of the Kingdom. Individualism had been preached, but the social message had been neglected. This was emphasized by Robertson, Kingsley and Maurice, and the result was the birth of the social conscience. In considering the social message of Robertson the first element to be mentioned is his attractive personality. His father was a captain in the Royal Artillery and his early ambitions were of a military character. He spent two years in preparation for a military career, and just as he had received his commission there came his decision to enter the ministry. It was a severe test, but he became a militant minister rather than a soldier. His battlefield was in the higher realms of the spirit, where he did yeoman service. The breadth of his interest shows the true democracy of Christian service. He was trained in two great universities, Edinburgh and Oxford, and yet met and moved the workingmen of his age as no other man has done. He ministered with equal success in the abjectly poor parish of St. Mary Kalendar in Winchester, and to the wealthy aristocratic Brighton. He was equally at home in Cheltenham and in the University Church at Heidelberg, and at St. Ebbe he united in one congregation the poor and rich, the uncultured and the flower of Oxford University. He organized workingmen's institutes and lectured to them on Wordsworth. In keeping with his point of view, that Christianity is a life rather than a law, his own sensitive, sympathetic heart was a most efficient factor in the work he accomplished. The first element of Robertson's message was the sincerity and warmth of his social affections.

The second element was his view of the nature and work of Christ. With Kingsley and Maurice, he made religion the spring, the inspiring motive of social action. He describes his message and mission in these words: "The principles on which I taught are, first, the establishment of positive truth, instead of the negative destruction of error; secondly, that truth is made up of two opposite propositions, and not found in a via media between the two; thirdly, that spiritual truth is discerned by the spirit, instead of intellectually in propositions, and therefore truth should be taught suggestively, not dogmatically; fourthly, that belief in the human character of Christ's humanity must be antecedent to belief in his divine origin; fifthly, that Christianity, as its teachers should, works from the inward to the outward and not vice versa; sixthly, the soul of goodness in things evil." It will be seen that in his view humanity and divinity are one in Christ and that true worship of the divine means the practice of all the humanities. It is a noticeable fact that these English preachers, the clerical pioneers of the social movement, never went far afield from the religious center—a worthy example for the leadership of to-day. The channel of world reform is human, but the source of redemption is divine. In St. John's vision the stream which made glad the City of Man proceeded from beneath the throne of God. From that high source the Throne Fountain, flow all the healing streams by whose sweet waters grow the trees of life.

With Robertson the fraternity which is to solve all problems is that of a religious tie—a spiritual union. He says, "Christianity binds up men in a holy brotherhood. It is not sent into this world to establish monarchy or secure the franchise, to establish socialism or to frown it into annihilation; but to establish a charity and a moderation, and a sense of duty and a love of right which will modify human life according to any circumstances that can possibly arise." He thus insists that social redemption is not mechanical, but a vital process. It is not primarily a matter of plan and program, but a matter of life.

It will be seen, however, that Robertson was not a mere doctrinaire. He was ready to take the first practical step in social reform. This with him was the organization of the Workingmen's Institute in Brighton. It was supported by a penny a week from each member. More than one thousand men put down their names. They prepared the house in which they met with their own hands. They bought a library. They did not ask assistance, but were independent. This was accomplished within the first year of the six he spent at Brighton. Robertson gave the opening address. It was a notable deliverance, guarding against radical socialism on the one hand and ultraconservatism upon the other. The Chartist movement at home and the revolutionary agitations on the Continent made the situation very sensitive, and even the careful position sustained by Robertson brought him sharp criticism and bitter feeling from both clerical and political circles. Robertson did not distinctly take his place with Kingsley and Maurice as a Christian Socialist, but this caution was of no avail, for he was classed with them and shared the obloquy they received. This famous address, and those that followed, had the characteristics of mediation. His opposition to socialism was by his emphasis of principles it possessed in common with Christianity. His reproof of aristocracy was by his emphasis of universal brotherhood. He said, "It is just in proportion as men recognize this real original identity of all human nature that it is possible on this earth to attain the realization of human brotherhood."

The message of Robertson may be summed up by the memorials of his life. The flowers upon his grave are kept fresh by a fund furnished by the Mechanics' Institute of Brighton. His tomb, which stands in the Extra-mural cemetary of Brighton, was erected by popular subscription and bears two medallions—one represents him as the minister, Christ's ambassador preaching to the people; the other presents him as the teacher addressing a company of workmen as "Brother Men and Fellow Workmen." In Trinity Chapel, where he preached, there is a series of memorial panels, the inscriptions of which are selected from his words. Under the figure of John the Baptist the inscription is, "Men felt that he was real;" beneath the Apostle Thomas, "When such men do believe, it is with all their heart and soul;" under St. Paul, "Paul's sole weapon was truth;" under the figure of Christ in the temple, "They are thinking about theology, he about religion;" and under the central figure of Christ suffering upon the cross is inscribed, "The sacrifice of Christ is but a mirror of the love of God." This great preacher was real: he believed with all his heart, and his religion was practical and found its central motive in the cross. Such was Robertson—in penetration and suggestiveness the Emerson of the English clergy, and, according to Dean Stanley, the greatest English preacher of his age.

THE NEW EPWORTH LEAGUE.

By Rev. John M. Moore, D.D.

The Epworth League still holds the first place among the agencies of the Church for the winning, training and developing of young people for the higher expression of their religious lives. It has been neglected, discredited, and in some places disbanded because it demanded direction, nurturing, and sympathetic support. The young people who gave the organization enthusiasm, movement and power twenty years ago are now in middle life, and compelled to meet the responsibilities of mature men and women, work in the societies that were organized for their class, and consume their energies in those activities that occupy men and women of their years and experience. Those churches that failed to enlist the on-coming young people while the outgoing mature people went into the larger work have found their Leagues decaying and themselves without the loyal support of the young people in the devotional services of the Church.

The Epworth League by its training produced many of the most efficient men and women at present in the lay and clerical work of the Church. They show intelligence, zeal and ability to bear responsibility. They can lead a prayer meeting, teach a class in Sunday school, give an entertaining and instructive missionary address, organize for a picnic, direct a social, and perform almost any other function connected with a church. The ministry has a large contingent that will give credit to the Epworth League for their practical training, their interest in soul winning, and even their call to preach. No little of the missionary intelligence in the Church is due to the mission classes of the Epworth League. No little of the home mission activity, and especially in the cities, had its beginning with a company of enthusiastic Epworth Leagues. Two of the leading churches in St. Louis were founded as missions by the Epworth League Union fifteen years ago. If one would know the credentials of the Epworth League, let him look around.

The young people need the Epworth League. Neither Sunday school, nor any other organization can take its place. The Sunday school is primarily a place of learning and is not constructed or directed so as to make it an organization for developing the devotional life and religious activity of the young people. The medical colleges teach much by the clinics. The law schools use the "case" system. Normal schools make teaching an art to be practiced as well as a science to be learned. Men learn to do by doing, is a commonplace truism. Public religious speech is a matter of development. The young man needs to give public expression to his religious thought and conviction in order to clearness and forcefulness. Nothing can take the place of the public devotional service of the Epworth League in the establishment of young people in their faith and religious experience. The effort to prepare for the service and the effort to make the meeting interesting, instructive and religiously influential can not fail to produce lasting beneficent results.

The social feature of the League is scarcely less valuable than the devotional meeting. Many young people in the town, as well as in the city, no longer look to the Church as a social and intellectual center. Sunday afternoons and Sunday evenings are given over entirely to social calls. The Sunday night service is neglected. The body of young people that once made up the nucleus of the evening congregation has gradually disappeared. The Church must win back its young people to the night service, if two services a day are to be continued. Young people should not be compelled to seek all their social privileges and pleasures entirely outside the church. The Epworth League is especially constructed to provide such social opportunities in a religious and congenially intellectual atmosphere.

The Epworth League in some places was made a pack-horse and ridden to death. It was not established to be a financial agency. It is a training school in religion, social development, and Christian activities. Its members should give through the church, serve through the church, and connect their social activities with the church. Leaguers should have no financial obligations other than those which come upon them as church members. Church loyalty and efficiency as church members should be for them ideals, and the Epworth League as a society working independently of the church should not be in any sense desired by them. The Church suffers much in this day from the lack of co-operation of its own children. It is sometimes charged with small activities in comparison with those of the societies, leagues and associations, when in fact these organizations depend upon the church for their very breath and the members that make them strong. Jesus Christ established the Church, and said it shall forever prevail, but societies are established of men and change with the generations. The Epworth League should be regarded as the institution for preparing the young people for the largest responsibilities in the life of the church. Bible intelligence, Christian experience, social graces, systematic giving, soul winning, an effective church membership should be kept before them as the real objects to be obtained through the Epworth League.

The Epworth League requires, even demands, much attention from a pastor. Pastoral neglect, indifference or incompetency means decay, and frequently death to the League. Many pastors have said: "I do not know what to do with my League." That is the truth, and the Leaguers know it. Much is the pity. The pastor who has the intelligence, the genius, the skill for developing young people in their religious life, is the need of the hour in our church work. The Epworth League has large possibilities for the church of to-morrow through its equipment for training the youth of to-day, and if pastors do not know how to use it they would serve the church largely by learning the art. Before undertaking to direct the League let a careful study be made of the genius, the purpose, and the plan of the organization. Be thoroughly imbued with its spirit. Then study the young people, get their point of view, their temper of mind, their method of approach to thought and life, their social instincts, their religious aptitudes. Knowledge of these things and a consuming desire to help, direct and develop religiously, socially and intellectually the young people will result necessarily very graciously. The work is worth all it costs. Jesus spent his ministerial life in training twelve men. The training of twelve persons seems small work to many a preacher, and that is why the Epworth League has been allowed to go with meager support. The young people must be reached—the Sunday school and the Epworth League offers the means for reaching them.

The conditions are such in some instances that an Epworth League is almost impossible. The community may be small, the young people few, or the social divisions may interfere. These are great hindrances. Usually the greatest hindrance is the lack of a capable leader. In this case the pastor is compelled to produce a leader, or a set of leaders, before any attempt to organize a League is made. Producing leaders is difficult and tedious work, but it is the work that pays, for once the leaders are made the Epworth League will succeed in reaching all the young people. The leader should know how, what, and where to lead. Every leader should be taught to prepare a successor to himself, for nothing will hurt young people's work more than the continued leadership of old heads. The Epworth League is a training school, and should have a graduating day. Young, buoyant, hopeful, enthusiastic, intelligent, spiritual, capable leadership always produces a strong, vigorous and valuable Epworth League.

Yes, it is worth while. The preacher needs the League for his personal benefit; he needs it for his night services; he needs it for a score of activities. The church needs it to keep it young, joyous, hopeful, optimistic, triumphant. The Sunday school needs it to make its young teachers devout, conscious of soul responsibility, evangelistic, capable of religiously directing young life. The young people need it to strengthen their church ties, to make them conscious of their responsibility to the world and the unsaved, to give them a valuable part in the genulnely Christian activities of the Church, to develop their social gifts upon an altruistic rather than a selfish basis, to direct their intellectual pursuits upon a high plane, to kindle their interest in the great missionary movements of the world. Yes, the League is worth all that it will cost. May its place and service grow with the years!

Nashville, Tenn.

MONROE DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Monroe District Conference of the Louisiana Annual Conference convened in annual session in the Methodist Church at Rayville, La., July 26th, 1911, at 10:30 o'clock, a. m., Rev. S. S. Keener, D.D., presiding elder, presiding. Devotional exercises were conducted by the presiding elder.

A. S. J. Neill was elected secretary. The roll was called and showed the following present, viz: Geo. Fox, W. E. Aiken, W. B. Inabnet, L. E. Crooks, A. S. J. Neili, J. T. Petty, R W. Killingsworth, W. L. Hunter, T. S. Randle, R. H. Wynn, R. O. Randle, C. B. Carter, J. W. Spier, J. B. Reily, W. F. Henderson, S. H. Whatley, C. F. Staples, F. A. Miles, P. H. Fontaine, Wm. Schuhle, S. W. B. Colvin.

The hours fixed for meetings were as follows: Business session from 9 to 10:45 in the morning, and from 2:30 to 5 in the evening; preaching services at 11 in the morning, and 8:15 p.m.

First Day—Afternoon Session.

The Conference convened according to rule at 2:30, Rev. S. S. Keener, presiding. Devotional services conducted by Rev. T. S. Randle. Minutes read and approved. On motion of R. H. Wynn, further calling of the roll was dispensed with. The following arrived since the morning session: S. S. Bogan, J. J. Kelly and E. E. Stodghill. The presiding elder read disciplinary requirements on holding the District Conference, and then began calling the charges for reports from the pastors.

Waterproof—P. H. Fontaine reported as follows: Some fine people; has one regular appointment, where he had only tentative appointment. Had one meeting, and received 17 members; has good Sunday school; work generally improving.

Bastrop—Geo. Fox reported as follows: Work fluctuates. Have worked up some interest in the Sunday school. Seven accession this year; ladies doing good work.

Winnsboro—Reported by J. J. Kelly as follows: Congregations good; three Sunday schools; had three or four accessions.

Bonita—Reported by W. E. Aiken: Have seven appointments; preaches ten times each month; does all the singing, praying and preaching; plan of circuit covers all the territory.

Tallulah—Reported as follows by C. F. Staples: Best charge for opportunity he has ever had; organized Boy Scouts, and had fine Sunday school until advent of infantile paralysis; building up some at present. Have Bible class, which holds spiritual meetings. Sunday school built up at Delhi; one woman converted; received 8 or 10 from other churches at Tallulah; have Ladies' Aid; congregations good.

Downsville—Reported by L. E. Crooks: Charge taking on new life; Sunday school work progressing; four schools; have six appointments; preach at seven places; had two revival meetings; good meeting at Walnut Lane, 15 accessions; meeting at Douglas also good.

Brooklyn—Reported by W. B. Inabnet: Has three schools, doing good work. A written report was read by the Secretary from H. M. Banks.

Eros—Reported by A. S. J. Neill: Most improvement was in Sunday school work; has three schools, and all have made improvement. Spiritual conditions not much improved; held one meeting which helped church.

Florence—Reported by S. S. Bogan: Made some improvements; had two good meetings; have two prayer-meetings; Sunday schools good at Ferriday and Vidalia; three schools run all year. Have a Junior League at Ferriday doing good work; received 23 members this year.

Gilbert—Reported by T. S. Randle: Doing very well; had two meetings; had about 35 accessions. churches quickened; Sunday schools doing well. One school organized at Holly Grove. Work improving at Wisner; going to build church, have secured the lot. Have a Woman's Home Mission Society and a Juvenile Missionary Society. About 75 conversions altogether. Conference adjourned until to-morrow morning.

Second Day, Morning Session.

Conference opened at 9 o'clock with devotional services conducted by J. J. Kelly. Minutes of last session read and approved. Rev. H. O. White, F. E. Bowman, S. B. Shell, A. J. Coburn, W. L. P. Henry, alternate from Downsville, and Prof. A. B. Peters were introduced. The presiding elder reported a letter from L. A. Humphrey who is in Texas at the bedside of his mother. He reports having paid off debt and painting of church at Lake Providence. The call of the charges was renewed.

Floyd—Reported by W. L. Hunter: Some money collected to build two churches; two schools, one each in Floyd and Pioneer; have five congregations, two of which are afternoon appointments; congregations good; some missionary territory.

Mangham—Reported by H. O. White: Congregations good at every appointment; better prospects of doing good; have one fine Sunday school, two others not so good; one prayer-meeting.

On motion of R. H. Wynn, a telegram of sympathy was sent to J. E. Morris of West Monroe, on account of the tragic death of his wife.

Farmerville—Reported by A. J. Coburn: Have received 8 members, 4 by letter; two schools and well attended; an enrollment of 48 at Farmerville, 4 members received from Sunday school, others applied. Congregations one-third more than membership at both places. Have a good union prayer-meeting.

Prof. A. B. Peters, president of Mansfield Female College, addressed the Conference in behalf of the College, which indicated a progressive condition and bright prospects for the future. New arrivals: Wiley Roberts and D. C. Barr. Presiding elder waived the report of Brother Schuhle as he was absent. Recess was then taken until 2:30 in the afternoon.

Afternoon Session of Second Day.

Conference was called to order by the presiding elder promptly at 2:30, W. E. Aiken conducting the devotional service. Minutes of morning session read and approved. On motion of W. F. Henderson, the selection of the next place of meeting was made the special order immediately following the completion of the reports of the pastors of the work of the charges. On motion of R. H. Wynn, the election of delegates to the Annual Conference was made the special order immediately following the Laymen's meeting. Calling for reports was resumed.

Monroe—Reported by R. H. Wynn: 600 members; congregations better this year; 55 added to church roll; school getting to be big thing; doing remarkable work; attendance over 200 this summer, over 50 in one class. Board of Stewards well organized and have adopted the Duplex envelope system and increased assessment for salary. Women's societies combined. One girl for Mansfield. Children's day observed.

D. C. Barr reported as to his work: Preaches for almost everybody; has one appointment, which is missionary; fine congregations, fine prospects. Work of Reform School very important.

Mer Rouge—Reported by C. B. Carter. Doing very well, about 30 members received; school doing good work; good Epworth League and good prayer-meeting. Mer Rouge school doing fine, and good attendance. Missionary societies among ladies and children. The prayer-meeting is the most helpful, attendance growing steadily; now have 40 to 55; men conduct prayer-meeting on Sunday night in church when pastor is away; good school at Collinston.

Rayville—Reported by W. F. Henderson: Sid Williams held good meeting at Oak Ridge. Spiritual condition of Rayville work better than ever before in its history; has been an upward movement in the school. Has fine Home Mission Society; has good society at Oak Ridge also.

S. W. B. Colvin reported that he had been doing some work in his engagements for the summer. Nominations for the next meeting place being in order, Monroe, Bastrop and Caihoun were placed in nomination; Calhoun received a majority, and on motion of Bro. Calhoun, the vote was made unanimous for Caihoun.

At this juncture the presiding elder explained that S. M. Collins, the district lay leader, had gone West, and that he had appointed R. O. Randle as leader and called him to the chair to conduct the Laymen's meeting.

The first speaker was Carl McHenry, who read a paper on "The Movement Itself." Mr. O. B. Morton, a member of the Monroe Baptist Church, was introduced and spoke on "The View-point of the Layman." R. O. Randle explained the organization of the Laymen's movement in the M. E. Church, South, and what to do with it. R. H. Wynn spoke on "What we are trying to do in Monroe." T. S. Randle led in prayer. The presiding elder called for the election of a lay leader and R. O. Randle was elected. The following were elected delegates to the Annual Conference: R. O. Randle, W. L. Calhoun, J. T. Petty, Carl McHenry. J. B. Reily, S. B. Shell and W. B. Inabnet were elected alternates. On motion of W. F. Henderson, Conference adjourned until to-morrow morning at 8 o'clock.

Third Day.

Conference convened promptly at 8 o'clock, Rev. H. O. White conducting devotional services. Minutes read and approved. Reports of various committees read and adopted; after which the Conference adjourned sine die.

A. S. J. NEILL, Secretary.

NEWTON DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

The Newton District Conference, of the Mississippi Conference, was held in the Methodist Church at Union, Miss., July 26-30, 1911. The sessions of the Conference were profitable and interesting throughout. The presiding elder had prepared beforehand a very full and complete program, so that from the opening to the closing there was never an idle or dull moment. Every one given a place on the program had made thorough preparation, and there was no disposition on the part of any one to shirk.

The attendance was large; in fact, the largest I ever saw at a District Conference. The attendance, including traveling and local preachers, lay delegates and connectional visitors, reached 105. The visitors were: Miss Daisy Magee, representing the Elementary Department in the Sunday school; Rev. G. H. Galloway, the Conference Missionary Secretary; Rev. Robt. Selby, the Conference Secretary of Education; Rev. W. M. Williams, in the interest of the Orphans' Home; Prof. M. F. Swartz, of the Millsaps College Faculty; Rev. G. W. Bachman, with the books; Mrs. Reese Price, in the interest of the W. F. M. S.; and Mrs. J. B. Hobbs, in the interest of the work of the W. H. M. S. These all brought helpful and instructive messages to us, each representing the work committed to him. Rev. H. G. Hawkins, president of Port Gibson College, was also present, in the interest of that institution.

This Conference was notable for the large number of young men licensed to preach. The following twelve young men were unanimously granted license to preach: William O. Harvey, Martin W. Porter, Alvin A. Simms, Andrew J. Boyles, William F. McCrory, Frederic S. Jones, Clarence C. Harvey, James F. Boykin, James N. Andrews, James A. McClellan, Mason I. Eubanks and Otto Porter.

William F. McCrory and James H. Moore were recommended for admission on trial into the traveling connection. C. W. Crook, J. N. Ware, T. B. Winstead and T. A. Holloman were elected delegates to the Annual Conference, and S. A. Ferguson and R. O. Boyles were elected alternates.

The Conference adopted a strong report approving the action of the General Board of Missions in opening missionary work in Africa, and in the appointment of John W. Gilbert, the first student to matriculate in Palne Institute at its beginning, as our first missionary. For this new mission a collection amounting to $26.20 was taken. The Conference adopted as its goal for missions $1.00 per member.

The following statistics are of interest: Total membership for the District 9,410, an increase of 938 over the report at the last District Conference. Since the Annual Conference we have received 354 on profession of faith, an increase of 83 over the report submitted to the last District Conference. Baptisms—adults 83, infants 154. Of the 154 infants baptized, Rev. H. P. Lewis, Jr., baptized 89.

The following resolution was adopted:

"Whereas, it appears from a recent editorial in the Nashville Christian Advocate that the commencement exercises of the late session of the Vanderbilt University included a society german as a part of the program; and whereas the dance in all its forms is contrary to the genius and spirit of Methodism and of Christianity, and detrimental to the kingdom of God; therefore, be it

"Resolved by the Newton District Conference of the Mississippi Conference of the M. E. Church,

Board, in session at Union, Miss., July 27, 1911, That we sincerely deplore and condemn the action of those in authority in authorizing or permitting such a feature in the Commencement exercises of the University of our Church.

"Resolved second, That the secretary send a copy of these resolutions to the New Orleans and Southwestern Christian Advocate, and a copy to the Board of Trustees of the Methodist University." Signed by J. A. Moore, M. M. Black and A. M. Bratton.

The Conference was greatly indebted to the good people of Union, who, irrespective of denominational lines, threw open their homes and gave bountiful and generous entertainment. Each thought that he had the best home.

The preaching was done by J. C. Long, H. F. Tolle, F. E. Ormond, J. J. Green, L. W. Cooper, T. J. O'Neil, Robt. Selby and the writer.

The presidency of Bro. O'Neil over the Conference gave perfect satisfaction. He presided with the grace and ease of a veteran in the chair.

Pearl was selected as the place for the next District Conference.

W. J. DAWSON, Secretary.

DURANT DISTRICT CONFERENCE.

Dear Dr. Mack: Brother E. C. Sullivan has already given you a brief account of the Durant District Conference which met at West, June 21-22, but there are some items of interest that be overlooked.

The attendance of laymen was good and but one preacher was absent, and he was detained because of sickness. The thoughtful presiding elder, Rev. M. G. Augustus, according to his custom, had prepared and had printed a very interesting program before the Conference met. Soon after the organization, the several topics were taken up and discussed from time to time with much enthusiasm and profit. The several pastors gave good accounts of their charges, which showed an optimistic spirit and a hopeful future. The District, as a whole, is in splendid condition.

The Conference was honored with the presence of Rev. G. W. Bachman, Conference colporter; Rev. W. M. Williams, manager of the Orphans' Home; Rev. W. L. Duren, president of the Conference Board of Missions; Rev. J. R. Countiss, president of Grenada College; Rev. J. D. Ellis, field agent of the Tri-State Hospital, and Dr. Sturtz, of the faculty of Millsaps College. These brethren gave good accounts of the several causes they represented.

The preaching was of a high order, as you may judge when you note that the following brethren occupied the pulpit: Revs. T. H. Lipscomb, T. W. Dye, W. M. Williams, J. R. Countiss, and D. M. Geddie. The delegates said, "we never heard better."

A memorial was adopted endorsing the action of the Brookhaven and Jackson District Conferences, looking to the establishment of a theological department at Millsaps College.

In the report of the Committee on Books and Periodicals, the New Orleans Christian Advocate received special notice and commendation. While the adoption of this report was pending, some of the leading laymen spoke with special emphasis upon this one item of the report. Though you were not there, you see, you were not forgotten.

A few years ago the district bought a home at Weir Station for superannuate preachers, but lacked $232 of paying the full amount. Through the efforts of Brothers F. A. Howell, Parham Williams and others, the entire amount was provided for.

Samuel W. Vowell was licensed to preach, and Rev. T. L. Oaks was recommended to the Annual Conference for local deacon's orders. The licensing committee for the ensuing year is as follows: Revs. J. D. Simpson, E. C. Sullivan, O. P. Armour and G. W. Gordon. Rev. T. L. Oaks, F. A. Howell, R. P. Johnson and Parham Williams were elected delegates to the Annual Conference, and J. B. Streater and J. L. Porter, alternates.

By unanimous vote Lexington was selected as the next place of meeting. The hospitality dispensed by the good people of West was of that hearty and abundant variety that makes you want to go again. The writer is much indebted to Brother Q. T. Ellis and his interesting family for their many courtesies while he was in their home.

At 9 o'clock p. m., June the 22d, the session, which was pronounced by many of the laymen to have been the best in the history of the Durant District, closed.

V. C. CURTIS, Secretary.

The Commissioners of the National Park at Vicksburg are asking the relatives of the officers, both Federal and Confederate, who participated in that memorable siege to contribute bronze portraits of them that they may be honored by having them exhibited at appropriate places on this battlefield. A striking statue of General Stephen D. Lee has for some time been set up, and contracts have been made for three others, which relations and friends of the distinguished dead will pay for. The Vicksburg National Park is being steadily improved and it is already a place of unusual interest.

Secular News and Comment

Kentwood, La., voted on August 1 to issue $31,000 worth of bonds for water works and sewerage.

• • •

General Wood, who has just returned from Panama, states that in his opinion the canal will be finished before 1915. The work of fortifying the great waterway has already commenced, and will, it is said, be finished within a year.

• • •

There is a prospect of the State capital of Georgia being removed from Atlanta to Macon. The latter city is nearer the center of the State, and it is contended that its location there would make the transaction of the public business much more convenient.

• • •

It is said that the highest paid woman in the employment of the United States Government is Miss Margaret Kelly, who is connected with the Mint Bureau. She was recently appointed examiner and is now second in rank only to G. E. Roberts who is at the head of this department. Her salary is $3,000 per annum.

• • •

Coming from England, Admiral Togo of Japan landed in New York on August 2, and was cordially welcomed by representatives of the United States Government. The Admiral responded to the greeting given him in surprisingly good English. His stay will be brief, as it has been announced that he will leave for Canada by way of Niagara on August 16 or 17. He will return home across the Pacific, sailing from Vancouver.

• • •

Representative Berger, of Wisconsin, who enjoys the distinction of being the only member of Congress elected by the Socialist party, has introduced a bill to establish an old-age pension system. His proposal is to allow persons who have passed sixty years of age and who have an income of less than $6 per month, a pension of from $1 to $4 per week according to their necessities. He does not think the aged poor should be forced to subsist upon private charity or to live in almshouses. In a second measure he provides for the creation of a commission to gather data and give this question careful study. Some of the European countries have already enacted legislation of this kind.

• • •

It is reported that the Connecticut State Grange has announced that it will take no part in the exercises welcoming President Taft when he comes to that commonwealth as a guest of the State Fair Association in September. The Grangers were opposed to reciprocity with Canada, and are out with the President because of his vigorous advocacy of that measure. The interests of the United States are so diverse that any legislation enacted is almost sure to encounter opposition from some quarter. It is generally thought that Mr. Taft's course in this matter has won for him more popularity with the country at large than anything that he has done since he has been at the head of the nation.

• • •

In the primary election held in Mississippi on August 1, Ex-Governor James K. Vardaman was nominated for United States Senator by a majority of approximately 25,000 over both his opponents. Mr. Theodore Bilbo was nominated for Lieutenant-Gov. by a vote very nearly as large as that of Major Vardaman, and Mr. Ross Collins defeated the present incumbent, Mr. S. S. Hudson, for Attorney-General by about 6,000 votes. Senator Percy, whose term of office does not expire until March 4, 1913, has announced that he will tender his resignation when the State Legislature meets next January. It is accepted as a foregone conclusion that Major Vardaman will be elected to fill the vacancy thereby created, and thus enter the Senate a year before the beginning of the full term for which he has been chosen.

• • •

According to the Washington Star, for the first time in nine years the original drafts of the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States were recently brought out of the depository in which they are kept and inspected by Secretary Knox of the Department of State. The Constitution is in a remarkably good state of preservation, the ink fortunately having been of a more durable kind than that now in ordinary use. It is said to be black and not faded, and the writing clear and quite legible. Of the Constitution proper there are only four pages, though there are others containing the resolution submitting the immortal instrument to the States for their ratification. The Declaration of Independence has not, however, fared so well. The text of it is stated not to have lost in clearness recently, but nearly all of the signatures attached are said to be illegible, which is due to the fact that many years ago the only known way of getting a fac-simile of the document was to make a press copy of it, and this absorbed the ink. The body of the instrument for some reason stood this better than the names affixed, though even it is said to be more faint by half than it originally was. The surprising statement is made that these treasures are kept in a steel box capable of offering but little resistance to heat or fire.

THE CHRISTIAN WORKERS' ASSEMBLY.

The Assembly for Christian Workers which closed its session at the Seashore Camp Grounds maintained its record for effective service in acquainting its pupils with a knowledge of comprehensive and intelligent methods in Christian work. The Board of Missions was represented by Dr. Rawlings, the educational secretary, and Miss Daisy Davies, of the Women's Council, and they both did splendid work for the cause of missions. Miss Davies also did good work in leading the vesper services on the beach. Dr. Parker taught the Old Testament and represented the Epworth League work, and it is needless to say that both were well done. Methodism has no broader nor saner teacher than he, and his life is a benediction to any young Christian who has the privilege of his association and instruction.

Dr. C. P. Atkinson, of the Southern University of Alabama, taught the New Testament class. Mrs. Moody, of Montgomery, led the morning devotional service, and the writer had three hours in Sunday school work.

Dr. F. S. Parker was chosen president; Rev. A. I. Townsley, secretary, and Rev. C. D. Atkinson, counsellor from Louisiana. We expect good things another year at the hands of this efficient corps of officials.

P. O. LOWREY.

MIDSUMMER READING.

Shall it be frothy fiction, or blood-heating adventure? Certainly it should not be brain-tiring literature, requiring fatiguing application.

MODES OF THE HEAVENLY LIFE

is a book that you will read with care-forgetting delight, and arise refreshed in faith and zeal. Then you will read it again and again with new appreciation. Cloth and gold, only 50 cents, postpaid.

"To say that I enjoyed reading 'Modes of the Heavenly Life,' is to express my appreciation but mildly. I read it the first time at one sitting and was strengthened in faith and hope. I have read it through again and some of it the third time. My estimate has grown with each reading. It cannot fail to inspire higher aspirations in any one who will read it. I hope it will have a large circulation, and I commend it most heartily to all seekers after the truth concerning the office and work of the Holy Ghost." R. W. Tucker, Presiding elder, Ruston District.

Order from Chas. O. Chalmers, 512 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

THE
Grant Furniture Co.
IS NOW HAVING A
GREAT REMOVAL SALE
PRICES ON EVERY ARTICLE
IN THEIR
ENTIRE STOCK HAVE BEEN REDUCED
OUTFITS ESPECIALLY PRICED
427-429-431 Camp Street, New Orleans

The AMERICAN PAINT WORKS
—Manufacturers of—
High Grade Mixed Paints; Perfecto White Lead; Nonpareil Carriage Paint; Varnish Stain; Colors in Oil; Wood Fillers; Chemically Pure Dry Colors, Etc.
428-434 JOSEPHINE STREET.....Phone 918
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Church News

Dr. Gross Alexander, the accomplished editor of the Methodist Review, is a graduate of the Drew Theological Seminary and is vice-president of its Alumni Association.

* * *

Bishop W. F. Mallalieu of the Methodist Episcopal Church died at his home at Auburndale, Mass., after an illness lasting about a month. He was eighty-three years of age.

* * *

The Baptist Chronicle, of Alexandria, La., will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary on August 20. We congratulate our contemporary, and wish it an ever-enlarging measure of success.

* * *

There is a report current that Pope Pius X will make Archbishop Quigley, of Chicago, a cardinal when the Consistory of the Sacred College meets, which it is expected to do next autumn.

* * *

Dr. J. L. Weber, pastor of the First Methodist Church of Jackson, Tenn., has been elected president of Western College, at Artesia, New Mexico. Whether he will accept, we are not informed.

* * *

Mr. Hamilton McSpadden of Tennessee, aged 85 years, has sold a fine farm which he owned in Monroe County in that State, and donated the proceeds amounting to $12,000 to Carson and Newman College, a Baptist institution located at Jefferson City.

* * *

The churches of North Carolina have quite a problem, social as well as religious, in seeking to reach and help the operatives in the factory towns of the State. Of such employes there are said to be 125,000, the largest number of any commonwealth in the Union.

* * *

Gipsy Smith will do evangelistic work in the United States again this fall. He will open at Spokane, Wash., on September 30, and afterwards will fill engagements at Seattle, Portland, Tacoma, San Francisco, Los Angeles, and Dallas. The New Zealand Methodist Conference has invited him to hold a series of meetings in that country next year.

* * *

The Northern Presbyterian Church now numbers 1,354,543. The net gain last year was 15,500, and their total contributions for 1910 amounted to $25,909,000 the largest of any religious denomination except the Northern Methodists. They gave slightly more than $19 per member, the highest per capita of any Church in the country except the Episcopal Church, in which it averages $20.

* * *

The Book Concern of the Methodist Episcopal Church is offering for sale a volume entitled "Patriotic Oration," which is composed of addresses delivered by the late Bishop Fowler. As an orator this distinguished churchman ranked with the best. Indeed, it is doubtful whether our sister denomination has had any public speaker superior to him since the day of Bishop Simpson.

* * *

The British Wesleyan Conference met at Cardiff, Wales, on July 12. Rev, Henry Haigh was chosen president. He was born fifty-eight years ago, near Leeds, England, being the son of a local preacher. He was for thirty years a missionary in India, where he rendered important service as an evangelist, editor, and translator. He has been engaged in ministerial work in England for the past eight years, and is regarded as one of the most gifted Wesleyan ministers in Great Britain. At the recent session of this Conference women sat for the first time as members.

* * *

The New York Evening Post observes that the difficulty of fighting gambling in China arises from the fact that the practice is so much a part of Chinese nature, so common in every rank and condition of life, that it is unreasonable to expect whole-hearted action against it. Lotteries are legal everywhere; certain provincial yamens depend upon gambling for a part of their revenue; and the officials lack police capable of confronting the well-organized and utterly reckless gambling fraternity. There is, moreover, a deeper reason for it in the blankness of Chinese social life, the want of interesting books, games, and other distractions, the uncomfortable homes, and the consequent necessity for escape from the terrible monotony. "In this cause," says the Post, "lies an indication of the way to abolition. New ideas are being popularized, new standards of amusement are being set up, and, with the increase of these, the evil should more and more rapidly be relegated to the limbo of lawlessness which it occupies in more enlightened countries."—Northwestern Christian Advocate.

SHREVEPORT NOTES.

The people of the Noel Memorial Church are delighted with the appointment of Rev. Felix R. Hill, Jr., to the pastorate of that aggressive young church. The official board met a few evenings ago and reported all financial obligations paid up to date, and increased the assessment for the pastor three hundred dollars, and provided for house rent and moving expenses. Shreveport Methodism never had a more popular pastor than Dr. F. R. Hill, and his son will be warmly welcomed by our entire city Methodism.

* * *

The building committee of the First Church, which was appointed at the recent quarterly conference, and which has in hand the building of a new and modern church building on the old site, is busily engaged in planning the great work. Some of them recently took a trip through Texas, looking at various new churches there for points. An imposing building on the most commanding situation in the city will make this church one of the greatest in the Southwest. Brother Cameron is a man of energy and ability, and is bringing things to pass in historic old First Church.

* * *

Rev. R. J. Harp, one of the old veterans, has lost none of his faith and sunshine since his recent trials. Some weeks ago he stumbled and fell, hurting himself rather severely, and a week or so later, lost everything he possessed in the burning of his home. All his furniture, much of it very valuable for its antiquity, and all his manuscripts, as well as many valuable books, were lost. Some of these were borrowed from friends, and can never be replaced. It is greatly to be regretted that Louisiana Methodism is to lose the history which Brother Harp was writing, and which probably can never be produced, since the destruction of some of the most important papers.

* * *

The foundations of the new Noel Memorial Church are being laid by the contractor, of St. Louis. The building will cost $43,000 exclusive of furnishing, and will be one of the best equipped buildings in the South. It is being erected by Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Noel, in memory of their son, James S. Noel, Jr., a splendid young Christian man, who died a few years ago. The membership of this church is composed of active and aggressive people, and it is located in the choicest residence section of the city, and will be one of the best appointments in the Conference.

* * *

Queensboro is one of the most desirable additions to the city of Shreveport, and is being rapidly built up with comfortable homes. Here we have two lots and a temporary tabernacle, of which Rev. Hugh Jamieson is pastor. There are a good Sunday school and Epworth League, and good congregations at the Sunday services. It is the intention of the presiding elder to organize a City Board of Church Extension and begin to work for new churches for all the suburbs of the city.

* * *

Texas Avenue has prospered under the pastorate of Rev. J. C. Rousseau this year. Good congregations attend the services, and every department of the church is progressing smoothly. This church is not as well located as it might be, and it may be that before long they will be equipped with a better building in a better location.

* * *

The City Epworth League Union has in hand the building of a church in Bossier City, across the river. We have there an organization, with Rev. J. L. Cady in charge. A meeting there was recently held, with Brother Rousseau doing the preaching, which greatly strengthened the church.

* * *

There are twenty-six Southern Methodist preachers living in Shreveport—almost enough for an Annual Conference, in number. A Methodist Preachers' Meeting will be formed as soon as Centenary College opens.

S.

Little faithfulnesses are not only the preparation for great ones, but little faithfulnesses are in themselves the great ones. The essential fidelity of the heart is the same whether it be exercised in the mites or in a royal treasury; the genuine faithfulness of the life is equally beautiful whether it be displayed in governing an empire or in writing an exercise.—F. W. Farrar.

A CONDITION AND HOW TO MEET IT.

By Rev. T. B. Holloman, D.D.

In a recent communication to the Advocate, we suggested the need of a chair in our schools and colleges for instruction in the Bible and kindred literature. In the notes on the Sunday school lessons for July 30th, "The finding of the book of the law," some startling and suggestive statements are made by H. H. S. One is the story of Benjamin Franklin's recital of the book of Ruth before one of the literary societies in Paris, and their utter ignorance of the same; and their innocent request for the manuscript for publication. I dare say that America is not far ahead of Paris in its knowledge of the sacred Book.

Professor Phelps, of Yale University, says, as quoted by the same author: "The ignorance of college students of biblical literature is universal, profound and complete. He further says that "If all the undergraduates in America could be placed in one room, and tested by a common examination on the supposedly familiar stories of the Old Testament, the result would be a magnificent contribution to American humor." After reciting several amusing cases, he says, "Instances like these are of constant and almost daily occurrence in the work of American college teachers." Again, he says, "When we remember that many of the students referred to are from Christian homes of the better class, we realize that the Bible is, indeed, a lost book in many homes."

In her Chit-Chat column in the Times-Democrat of July 26th, Ruth Cameron has some very timely suggestions in reference to the use of the Bible among the people in this day. Among other things, she says, "Not all the homes that lack a Bible are of the poorer class," and she suggests that the Gideons would do a good work to start a crusade for placing Bibles in the homes of the country. In the Saturday Evening Post of July 29th, under the head of "Valuable Reading," the editor has some interesting things to say concerning the Bible.

As a pastor, attending the Sunday school, and serving as supply teacher for more than thirty years, my experience fully corroborates the testimony of Professor Phelps, that the ignorance of the average young man and woman of Biblical literature is at least almost "universal, profound and complete." Further, my experience leads me to conclude that the majority of our Sunday school teachers are sadly lacking in anything like a general knowledge of the literature and the historical value of the Bible. To one who mingles with people on the streets, in the family and in the Sunday school, the condition cannot be otherwise than alarming, and yet we are told by no less authority than Chief Justice David J. Brewer, that "If the teachings and precepts of the Bible could be brought home to the people, the results would be greater than all the victories won in all the years since the beginning of time."

Long since was the statement made that the parents of our country had turned the religious training of their children over to the Church, and the Church in turn had turned them over to the Sunday school. This being evidently true, we contend that it is the duty of the Church to prepare the teachers for the Sunday schools for the work committed to them, and that our church schools can do no better work for the people than to give systematic instruction in Bible literature and kindred subjects. If necessary, give us less of old and classical English, German and French, yea, and even mathematics, to make room for this Book of books, the foundation stone of our national, social and home life. Knowing the parental heart, we are convinced that with this matter properly presented, that it would not be difficult to secure the endowment of a chair in Millsaps College to this end.

One hundred dollars from every pastoral charge or thirty dollars from every Sunday school, or fifty cents from every Sunday school pupil, within the two patronizing Conferences, would easily establish such a chair. Is it not possible, that as pastors and superintendents, we can get together on this proposition; and in the very near future make such an addition to the teaching force at our already famous institution?

The Board of Trustees would gladly co-operate in such a movement and the faculty would welcome such an addition to their number.

The Centenary College of Louisiana
SHREVEPORT
Fall Term will open
Sept. 13, 1911.
For Catalogue or other information write to
FELIX R. HILL, President,
P. O. Box 455
SHREVEPORT, LA.

Mansfield Female College

The friends of this institution will be pleased to know that the Methodists of Louisiana are rallying to its support, and that the outlook for its future is much brighter than it was a few weeks ago. Many of our people do not realize what a fine property we have at Mansfield and what an opportunity we have there to build up a really great school. There are six buildings—two of them three-story brick structures—and all are in excellent condition, with sanitary plumbing throughout. The campus embraces nine acres in the same square with the Methodist Church, and presents a most beautiful and attractive appearance. The accommodations are ample for 125 girls. Plans are being made to float the debt, and relieve the institution of financial embarrassment. Assurance of a fine local patronage has been given, and the indications point to the best attendance from a distance in many years. Let the pastors in Louisiana lend a helping hand in filling the dormitories to overflowing and in placing this worthy school upon a solid foundation. It can be done, if all will assist. Write President A. B. Peters, Mansfield, La., for a catalogue and any desired information.

MR. W. L. YOUNG.

"He saw a hand we could not see
That beckoned him away,
He heard a voice we could not hear
That said he must not stay,"
And so he left us!

As the gold and vermilion of the sunset mingled in the western sky, this crushing bereavement came, which removed from the earth-home the idolized and tenderly devoted brother, father and uncle.

As he closed his eyes upon the natural world they were opened upon the beauties of heaven; the ear, hushed to the agonies of weeping loved ones, was catching the mingled melody of angels' harps, his own voice gaining the acme of his oft-repeated desire as he joined the choir of the saints as they swelled the tender anthems of redeeming love.

William Lafayette Young was the only son of George E. Young, of Orange County, Va., and Julia Hopkins, of Georgia. The family are of Scotch-Irish extraction and have flourished in America since colonial times. The subject of this sketch was born in Holmes County, Oct. 6, 1839, and died in Lexington, Miss., July 10, 1911. He grew to manhood in the pure environment of a country home, and completed a carefully rounded education at the University of Mississippi; from here he promptly enlisted for the Confederate service as a private soldier in the "University Grays." His regiment took part in the first battle of Manassas. In 1862 at the battle of Seven Pines he was wounded and received a furlough for sixty days. After recuperating he rejoined his command and fought in Law's Brigade at the second battle of Manassas and Sharpsburg. In the latter engagement he was again wounded, which necessitated the amputation of the left arm below the elbow and disabled him for life. Thus was his military career ended and he was honorably discharged in April, 1863.

He chose as his life work the exalted profession of imparting to youthful minds the riches of his own for which he was eminently fitted, and he learned and enjoyed the sweet responses of child nature in the fullness of their love and confidence. In 1885, within the classic walls of his own institution, he met and won in marriage Miss Florence Kennard, of Port Gibson, Miss., whose short but well rounded life shed about his unreturning youth a halo of gladness which time had never effaced. The grave as her couch of repose, he bade her a long good-night in the expectation of a glorious reunion at the waking time of immortality. So after twenty-four years of battle he has exchanged the pilgrim warfare for eternal rest, where the spent fury of the chafing waves may reach them no more. She left him the care of two children, a daughter, who died at three years of age; a son, Joseph Kennard, remaining to gather about him the worthy father's laurels and to wear his mantle with becoming grace.

Into this life of honor and usefulness as superintendent of education and cashier of banks, the great lesson of charity towards others had been learned with a proper estimate of self. Of a retiring nature, he learned to differ in opinion without differing in feeling—to oppose with good nature and to suffer opposition without offense. From our community has gone a peerless citizen, from our church an earnest, consecrated, faithful officer. His love for little children was also shown in the Sunday school where he has presided with gentle efficiency for twenty-three years—years of God's peace in the consciousness of duty done, years of simple faith in the divine goodness and a clear outlook toward the heavenly hills; years of sweet communion with Jesus and close following in his steps.

To the bereft we would say, as children of the covenant, your days of mourning are days of privilege, to be frought with blessing—to the believer they are preludes of eternal glory. Soon the long night watch will be over. Soon the windows of the soul will be no more darkened, the present losses and crosses will turn into eternal gains; the dews of the night of weeping will sparkle beauteous gems. Seek ever to regard the lives of our dear ones as a loan. God as the great Proprietor—by him bestowed; by him withdrawn; the most exalted of all consolations that which disarms death and bereavement of all bitterness that the "loved and lost" are the crowned and glorified. Soon the last ripple of sorrow will be heard murmuring on the other side of Jordan, and then every vestige of grief will die away forever, and entering the triumphant arch of heaven you will read in living characters the history of a sinless, sorrowless future.

"Father, hold thou my hands:
The way is steep and tangled;
Make thy way mine!"

MRS. S. D. GWIN.

IMPORTANT LEGISLATION

Relating to Pastors and Presiding Elders.

The last General Conference passed a law instructing every preacher in charge of a circuit, station or mission to report the names and addresses of all candidates for the ministry (i. e., those who feel called to the ministry, but who have not been licensed to preach) to the Annual Conference Board of Education (Discipline, paragraph 140), which in turn is to report them to the General Board of Education (Discipline, paragraph 413). By a similar enactment every presiding elder is required to report the names and addresses of all local preachers in his District to the Annual Conference to be incorporated in its journal (Discipline, paragraph 119).

These enactments, taken alone, seem to have no great significance, but when read in connection with paragraph 420 of the Discipline, the reason for them becomes apparent. There the Board of Education is charged with the task of developing a more efficient ministry, and one of the requirements looking to this end is that the Board shall inspire the young ministers and candidates for the ministry with a high ideal of their work and stimulate them to a thorough preparation therefor. To do this effectively it is necessary for the Board to have the names of the local preachers and ministerial candidates, and so be able to come into direct touch with them. Through the Correspondence School a great work has been accomplished during the past few years for the Conference undergraduates; if now direct personal connection can be made with all local preachers and ministerial candidates who are expecting at some time to enter the itinerancy, a much greater work can be accomplished. The time to do the most effective work in developing an efficient ministry is before the young men have joined the itinerant ranks, while they are yet engaged in their preparation.

In order to carry out the instructions of the General Conference looking to the development of a more efficient ministry, the Board of Education at its last meeting inaugurated the Department of Ministerial Supply and Training. Already the new department is pushing its work and plans are being made for assisting, as far as possible, all young men who are preparing, or ought to prepare, for the ministry of our Church. The success of these efforts for a more efficient leadership for the Church of tomorrow will depend to a considerable degree upon the extent to which the pastors and presiding elders make the reports referred to above. It is hoped that no one will fail in doing this.

J. L. CUNINGGIM, Secretary,
Department of Ministerial Supply and Training.

W. W. Carre Co. Ltd
Manufacturer Exporter of | Lumber
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

SUPPOSE YOU HAVE A FIRE TO-NIGHT?
GET SOLID PROTECTION AND INSURE WITH
LEON IRWIN & CO.
FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.
736 Union Street. Phone, Main 585.

The Home Circle

HOW DO YOU HOE?

Say, how do you hoe your row, young chap?
Say, how do you hoe your row?
Do you hoe it fair,
Do you hoe it square,
Do you hoe it the best you know?
Do you cut the weeds, as you ought to do,
And leave what's worth while there?
The harvest you'll garner depends on you;
Are you working on the square?

Are you killing the noxious weed, young chap?
Are you making it straight and clean?
Are you going straight,
At a hustling gait,
Are you scattering all that's mean?
Do you laugh and sing and whistle shrill,
And dance a step or two,
As the row you hoe leads up the hill?
The harvest is up to you.

—Driftwood.

A PACKAGE OF MIXED SEED.

"Have you any seeds of kindness for sale?" a little boy asked at a seed store.

"Seeds of kindness, what are those?" said the seedsman.

"Why, in our Bible school we sing:

'Then scatter seeds of kindness,
For our reaping by and by.'

I have a little garden, and I want to plant some kindness seeds."

"Oh, those come in a mixed package," said the seedsman, as he took a big book from a shelf.

"That looks like a Bible," the little boy thought, and sure enough it was.

"Let me see; I think I will find that package of seeds in II Peter, chapter one," said the man. "Yes, there it is; see if you can read it for me, beginning with the fifth verse."

So the boy read: "And besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity."

"Eight kinds of seeds in this package, you see," said the man.

"But aren't there any real seeds?" said the boy. "Does it just mean that you are to be kind to folks?"

"Yes, that is what it means," said the man, "but kindness and charity and faith are real things, and if you plant them in your heart they live and grow, just as seeds grow in the garden."

"What is the reaping by and by?" said the boy.

"It means that if you are kind, people will be kind to you," said the seedsman, "and, better than all, it means that God, who is kind to the unthankful and evil, will be pleased with you."

"I shall find that package of mixed seeds in my Bible when I get home," said the boy, "and it may help me to remember to be kind all the time."—Classmate.

WHAT A LITTLE GIRL FOUND.

Once there was a little girl who lived in a big city. Once, also, there was a saucy, perky little wren that lived in the country. The little girl had never seen the wren, and the wren had never seen the little girl, and the story might stop just there if the little girl had not gone to the big farm for a visit.

At first there were so many things to be seen on the farm that the little girl did not notice the wren at all. But the wren noticed the little girl, you may be sure, and flew away very unsociably whenever she came near. There were wonderful things on that farm, things which the little city child never forgot even after she grew up, for this story happened a long time ago. There were dozens of fluffy little chickens and ducks, and velvet-eyed calves and colts, and no end of puppies and kittens, but the happiest day of all to the little girl was the day she found the pretty wren and made her first friend among wild birds.

One morning the farmer's wife called her small visitor to her and gave her a tiny piece of bread. "Go up to that little tree," she said, "and take this piece of bread with you." So the little girl went up to the tree which the farmer's wife pointed out, wondering what was going to happen. It was a hollow tree, and when she looked down into the small hole in the trunk it looked so dark inside that she drew back a little afraid. Then the farmer's wife laughed. "Now," she said, "knock on the trunk of the tree, and see what will happen." "Will fairies come out?" asked the little girl, for she was forever hunting for elves and pixies down by the brook and out in the meadows. "Knock and see," said the farmer's wife.

So the little girl knocked very gently on the trunk, and out popped a saucy little feathered head. "O-h-h!" said the little girl in delight and held out the bit of bread. The pretty wren looked very eagerly at the bread, for it had a nestful of hungry birdies in that hollow tree. "Please take it," said the little girl coaxingly, and the wren must have understood, for it accepted the gift very daintily and disappeared with it. And every morning all summer long the wren appeared whenever the little girl knocked at its door, and they grew to be the best of friends, just as birds and little folks were meant to be, of course.—Picture Lesson Paper.

BACK HOME.

The Memphis Conference Female Institute, located at Jackson, Tenn., has been the property of private individuals. These parties, wishing to dispose of it, the citizens of Jackson purchased it to continue it as a female college, and offered it to the Memphis Conference on certain conditions. The Board of Education met to consider the matter, and continued in session until about half past two o'clock in the morning. There was midnight oratory in the air, and the loud crowing of the neighboring roosters was mingled with a flow of forensic eloquence that stirred the blood of the sleepy solons in "the wee sma' hour" of morn.

The devil is cunning, a pastmaster in the wiles of deceit, but he sometimes overshoots his mark. He has done it in the Vanderbilt matter. Whatever may be the upshot of that unfortunate affair, there will be no more doubtful title to Methodist schools. All of this debate was over technicalities involved in the transfer of the property. When this was satisfactorily settled, it took the Board about five minutes to finish their work by electing me president of the institution, and we went to our several roosts. Ramsey went with me, the Reverend Ed. E. B., and turned in for a few hours' rest. He rose early to catch a Memphis train, and I think he put on his clothes through mere force of habit; at any rate, that is the way it looked. When he got them all on, he put on his hat, came over to my bed and said, "Good-bye, I wish you well." "Much obliged," I said, "but Ramsey, don't you wash your face and hands when you get up in the morning?" "That's a fact," he said, "I believe I will do that!" I was afraid to see him go away, but I reckon he got home safe. Great fellow, if he does get dead asleep sometimes.

So I am now president of the Memphis Conference Female Institute. I find a spacious building, well adapted to its purpose. The Board of Education made a generous appropriation for internal improvements, new furniture, and so on. This will enable us to offer first-class accommodations to a hundred girls. Our faculty will be of the highest order, and our standard surpassed by none. Now, Mississippi has her own schools, and they are good ones. I brag on Beeson's splendid body of students everywhere I go, and so of other schools. But if when you have filled your classic halls you have any girls left over, send them to us here in lovely Jackson. For seventy years this institute has been educating the young women of this central South. It is older than the town, and its location brought the town here in the beginning. It has largely shaped its social and religious life and created an environment in the highest degree favorable to its own work. Jackson is justly noted for the high character of its citizenship and the intelligence, culture and social refinement of its people. Its church life is delightful. The college is located near the First Church, and the Methodist girls attend that church. Dr. J. L. Weber, its present pastor, is one of our ablest men. If I were looking for a school at which to place my own daughter it would mean a great deal to me that she could be under the pastoral care and ministry of such a man as Dr. Weber. The best quality of South Carolina metal rings true in his life, and his experience in educational work and sympathy with young people, make association with him a very attractive feature of my work in Jackson.

The Baptists have their Southwestern University here, and it offers superior advantages. They have built a splendid modern church. We are still in our old one, but Dr. Weber tells me the plans are ready to build a new one after the people rest a little. They are well off, but that magnificent new Baptist Church, a brand new Y. M. C. A. building, the purchase of the college and its gift to the Church, and two new railroads, has made them want to catch their breath. I don't wonder.

I am tuning up by bugle—loading up on Christian education. I put the emphasis on that word "Christian." Neither the Church, nor ministers of the gospel, have any business with education except as it may be Christian education. Forgetting this fact, or not regarding it, has caused all the trouble at Vanderbilt. Fortunately, I have plain sailing here in this course, for Dr. A. W. Jones, the retiring president, as those who preceded him, has fixed the type of this institution. When General Lee took the presidency of Washington College, he said: "My work here will be a failure if all these young men do not become Christians." My first care for the girls who come to this school while I am here is that they shall become Christians. We need nothing in America now so much as a cultured Christian womanhood.

So I am back home, on deck, in perfect health, happy in the Lord, and whether my note be low or high, it will always mean M. C. F. I.

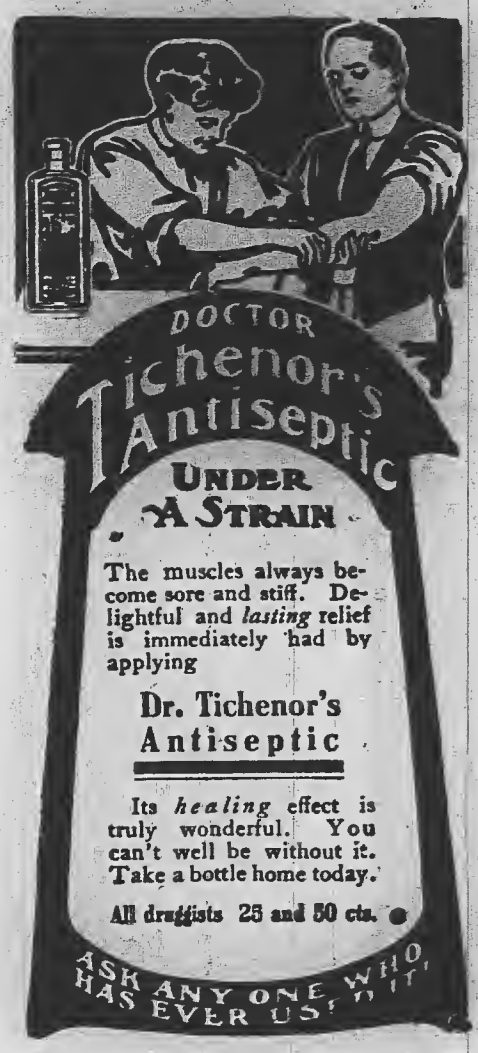
S. A. STEEL.

Jackson, Tenn.

Geo. W. Riehl. Aug. Rauxet, Jr.

RIEHL & RAUXET,
Successors to Lowengardt & Armstrong,
JEWELERS,
122 BARONNE STREET - - New Orleans, La
(Optical Department: M. F. Fitzgerald, Optician.)
Phone, Main 737.

THE SAFEST AND QUICKEST WAY
—TO—
TRANSFER MONEY
—IS BY—
Long Distance Telephone
FOR RATES APPLY TO LOCAL MANAGER,
Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co
INCORPORATED



DOCTOR
Tichenor's
Antiseptic
UNDER A STRAIN
The muscles always become sore and stiff. Delightful and lasting relief is immediately had by applying
Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic
Its healing effect is truly wonderful. You can't well be without it. Take a bottle home today.
All druggists 25 and 50 cts.
ASK ANY ONE, WHO HAS EVER US

Christian Advocate.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. GARLEY, Asst. Editor.
CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.
OFFICE: 612 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS

TERMS:
One Copy, one year $1.50; eight months $1.00. To preachers and Lay Delegates, $1.00

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE
Louisiana Conference—Rev. N. E. Joiner, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Duke.
Mississippi Conference—Rev. L. W. Cooper, D.D., Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. D. Ellis.
North Mississippi Conference—Rev. J. T. Murrah, Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. H. S. Spragins.

Editorial.

BISHOP FITZGERALD DEAD.

After an illness of several days, pronounced neuralgia of the heart, Bishop Oscar Penn Fitzgerald died at Monteagle, Tenn., on the afternoon of Aug. 3. This announcement will carry sadness to thousands of hearts throughout the Southern Methodist Church, of which Bishop Fitzgerald was one of the most widely known and best loved ministers. He was born in Carteret, N. C., Aug. 24, 1843. His middle name was taken from that of Dr. Abraham Penn, who baptized him in infancy, expressing at the time the hope that he might become a preacher. After receiving a common school education in the Old North State, when a mere lad he went to Virginia in search of work, where he was first employed in the composing room of the Lynchburg Republican. Later he was engaged as a clerk in the office of the Lynchburg Post, and was holding that position at the outbreak of the Mexican War. His father having enlisted as a soldier in that memorable conflict, he found it necessary to return to North Carolina to aid in the support of the family, which he did by teaching a near-by school.

After the struggle with Mexico had ended, he again went to Virginia and managed to secure a place with the Richmond Examiner, of which the brilliant John W. Daniel was the political editor, and of which Edgar Allen Poe was then soon to become literary editor when he was stricken down by death. Young Fitzgerald, then about twenty years old, became acquainted with Poe and heard him lecture. He always cherished the recollection of his association with the famous poet as one of the most notable incidents of his long and eventful life.

From Virginia, the young man went to Georgia, where, after a serious spell of typhoid fever, his thoughts turned toward the work of the Christian ministry. At the session of the Georgia Conference at Atlanta, in 1854, under the presidency of Bishop Capers, he was admitted on trial and sent to Sarepta as junior preacher. Shortly afterwards the young itinerant was sent to the far West as a missionary. In 1861, he was made Superintendent of Public Instruction in California, and held that position for four years. He was also for a time editor of the Pacific Methodist and Christian Spectator, and attracted attention on the tripod. In 1875 he was elected editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, the official organ of the M. E. Church, South, succeeding Dr. Thomas O. Summers. After filling this responsible place for twelve years, he was elected to the episcopacy in 1890. Soon after, his health began to fail, and he had been superannuated for the past two quadrenniums. The Bishop's last work was the writing which for some time he had been doing for the Nashville Christian Advocate every week. In 1855 Bishop Fitzgerald was married to Miss Sarah Banks, of Enon, Alabama, who survives him, as also do the following children: Mrs. J. H. Nye and Mrs. J. B. Robertson, of Nashville, Tenn.; W. M. Fitzgerald, of Tullahoma, Tenn.; and Oscar P. Fitzgerald, of Charleston, W. Va. The remains of the distinguished minister were carried to Nashville and laid to rest in Mount Olivet Cemetery, the obsequies being conducted by Bishop Collins Denny, Dr. R. A. Brown, Dr. Fitzgerald Parker, and Dr. G. B. Winton.

Of the personal characteristics of the deceased and the large service which he rendered the Church, we will not now undertake to write at any length. Genial and affable in manner and possessed of a bubbling, overflowing humor that rarely ceased to manifest itself, he made many friends and enjoyed a large degree of popularity. Though not endowed with a high order of oratorical gifts or classed as a great preacher, he was a suggestive and forceful expositor of the Word, whom the people heard with appreciation and profit. It was as a writer that he most excelled and achieved the largest measure of distinction. He had an easy, flowing style which was clear and at times beautiful. As a composer of brief paragraphs and character sketches, it is doubtful whether we have ever had his equal. The General Organ of the Church has never been more popular with the rank and file of our membership than when he was its editor. He was a prolific author and a number of the products of his pen have had a wide circulation. He was never vigorous physically after his election to the episcopacy, and his active work as a chief pastor was of brief duration. His eventide was calm and radiant with light, and, though feeble in body, his mind was bright, enabling him to be useful to the last. Full of years and honors, having wrought with fidelity at many tasks, he has responded to the Master's call and ascended to the Church Triumphant. His name is writ large in the annals of Methodism, and there are many who will long cherish his memory.

A SCHOLARLY VOLUME.

We are in receipt of a copy of the volume entitled, "On the Characteristics and Use of the Old in the Dramas of Euripides," by Professor M. W. Swartz, B.A., M.A., who is in charge of the department of Latin and Greek of Millsaps College. It numbers 111 pages, is neatly printed, and is attractively bound in paper. The author states that this dissertation was presented to the Faculty of the University of Virginia in June, 1904, as a part of the requirement for the degree of Doctor of Philosophy. The discussion throughout is an able and interesting one and fully sustains Professor Swartz' reputation as a classical scholar. He begins by calling attention to the fact that even a hasty reading of Euripides impresses one with the frequency with which old men and old women are introduced into his dramas, and that aged persons appear in all of his works, except the Rhesus and the Taurian Iphigenia, and that his authorship of the former of these is by some called in question. Mr. Swartz conducts his instructive discussion under two general heads: (1) The Personal Characteristics of the Old in Euripides, and (2) Their Dramatic Characteristics. The want of space forbids us to enter upon a detailed statement concerning the many striking observations made in this brilliant essay. The style of the writer is admirable in every respect, and the reader is carried along with increasing interest from the first page to the last. Altogether, the publication is quite creditable to Professor Swartz and the college with which he is connected. We are pleased to know that the book has been issued, and we trust that it will have a wide reading. We should think that every old student of Millsaps in particular would be anxious to procure a copy. We are not authorized so to state, but we presume that it may be had either of Smith & Lamar, at Nashville, Tenn., who are the publishers, or of the author at Jackson, Miss.

DOING A GREAT WORK.

We are pleased to be informed that Whitworth College has the promise of a magnificent opening in September. This historic institution, under the present management, is doing a great work for the young womanhood of south Mississippi. Dr. Cooper, its honored head, is a progressive educator and a capable administrator of large experience. He is a member of the General Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and has recently served on a committee to classify the various schools operated by our denomination. The progress he has made within recent years in building up and equipping Whitworth College justly entitles him to the gratitude of his clerical brethren and of the 54,000 Methodists of the Mississippi Conference. And the prospect is that additional improvements amounting to $40,000 or $50,000 will be made within the next eighteen months, contributing much to the attractiveness of the campus and largely increasing the facilities of this splendid educational plant.

The faculty which Dr. Cooper has engaged for the approaching session is said to be one of exceptional merit. Two of them we know personally; Mrs. Bessie W. Lipscomb, the beloved Dean, and Mrs. J. M. Wyatt, who has charge of the Chair of History. The former is a well qualified instructor and a woman of the noblest Christian character; the latter is an honor graduate of the Industrial Institute and College at Columbus, Miss., and one of the most brilliant teachers in the South. Particular stress is laid upon the musical department, which is considered as measuring up to a very high standard. The truth is, Whitworth College is doing better work now than at any former period in its history, and parents who send their daughters there will make no mistake.

OUR CHURCH EXTENSION HAND BOOK.

We have before us a copy of the "Church Extension Hand Book for 1911," which is a magnificent publication—by far the best that the Board has ever issued. It is attractive in appearance, numbers 384 pages, and is replete with useful information. Indeed, in some respects it is a work of art, giving pictures of a number of the historic churches of the world. The outside cover is adorned with a photograph of the Wesley Memorial Tablet in Westminster Abbey. The work in various mission fields is set forth in a comprehensive and most impressive manner. The volume from beginning to end is remarkably interesting, and eloquently champions the great cause which it is designed to promote. We congratulate Dr. McMurry and his assistants upon the success which they have achieved. This book should have an honored place in every pastor's library. We are requested to state that the Board yet has on hand a limited supply of copies, which will be sent out free upon application. Write Rev. W. F. McMurry, D.D., Corresponding Secretary, 1025 Brook Street, Louisville, Ky.

A WORD OF TRIBUTE.

The tragic death of Mr. J. R. Weissinger, which occurred some days ago near Trail Lake, Miss., was a most deplorable occurrence. Of the details of his violent death and the circumstances which led up to it, we know little. We had a personal acquaintance with the deceased for about fifteen years, and entertained for him a strong feeling of friendship, having often been the recipient of his hospitality and generous favors. A man of more kindly heart than John Weissinger, we have never known. He was a preacher's friend, and during the many years that he resided at Dickerson, in Coahoma County, he contributed largely to the support of the Friar's Point Church, often doing more than his brethren thought he ought. He was never happier than when contributing to the comfort and pleasure of his pastor. Sometimes out of the abundance of things produced on his farm, he would nearly feed the minister's family for weeks and months. His parents before him were ardent Methodists, and he was not less so. When an official, he could always be depended upon to attend the quarterly meeting, and frequently also he was seen at the District Conferences. But he has gone from us, and his familiar voice we shall hear on earth no more. Rev. W. S. Lagrone, one of his warmest and most trusted friends, along with the heart-broken family, accompanied his remains to Friar's Point, which had been chosen as their resting place, and spoke the farewell words above his lifeless form. A profusion of flowers covered the heaped-up grave, attesting the high esteem in which he was held by those who knew him best. May the gracious Heavenly Father comfort the bereaved widow in her sorrow and loneliness, and touch with healing hand every heart made to bleed by his pathetic tragedy!

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Mississippi's foremost Methodist layman, Major R. W. Millsaps, has been spending some time at Hot Springs, Ark.

Rev. N. G. Augustus, presiding elder of the Durant District, is announced to preach at Black Hawk, Miss., next Sunday.

Rev. H. G. Hawkins, president of Port Gibson College, addressed a Jefferson County Sunday School Institute at Harriston, Miss., last Sunday.

A correspondent informs us that Rev. R. P. Goar, of the North Mississippi Conference, is a candidate for the State Senate in Calhoun County, and that he will be in the run-off on Aug. 22.

The New Orleans Protestant Ministers' Association met in the Y. M. C. A. building last Monday morning, with Rev. E. F. Schuessler presiding. Rev. J. C. Duplantis acted secretary pro tem.

The Louisiana Avenue Methodist Church, this city, is having exceptionally good congregations for the summer season. The people are much pleased with Rev. J. L. Sutton, who now has this work in charge.

The Sam Jones Camp Meeting, near Gloster, Miss., is in progress. A dispatch to the Times-Democrat reports the following ministers as present: J. E. Gray, W. H. Huntley, W. H. Saunders, L. L. Roberts, and D. H. Carrels.

While recently in Jackson, Miss., we had the pleasure of a chat with Dr. E. H. Galloway, the only son of the lamented Bishop Charles B. Galloway. He is a young man of accomplishments, and is fast coming to be recognized as one of the first physicians of the State in which he resides.

Bishop James H. McCoy, of Birmingham, has been resting for a few days at the Seashore Camp Ground. We are informed that he preached at the Tabernacle there last Sunday evening, delivering an eloquent and most instructive sermon. Everywhere our Alabama Bishop goes he makes a fine impression.

Dr. Richard Wilkinson, the eloquent pastor of the Fourth Avenue Church of Louisville, Ky., has been granted a vacation by his congregation, most of which he will spend near Newark, Ohio, at the former home of Mrs. Wilkinson. Dr. Wilkinson's work in Louisville is reported to be in a highly satisfactory condition.

On July 31, Rev. Lastie N. Hoffpauir sent to the Advocate the following good news: "We have just closed a great meeting. The church was greatly revived and there were 13 accessions. Brother A. C. Holder, of Shreveport, assisted me. He is fine help. It was the best meeting that I have had for years. Our work is in good shape for the Annual Conference."

The Mississippi Sunday School Association has placed a student worker in Jones County to hold rallies and organize in each supervisor's beat. The man assigned to this task is Rev. R. D. Grantham, of Mississippi College. The secretary, Brother Long, states another worker would be sent forth in the northern part of the State, if the requisite funds were available.

An esteemed correspondent, in a letter received on Aug. 4, writes as follows: "The people of the Capitol Street Church, of Jackson, Miss., under the efficient leadership of their pastor, the Rev. J. M. Morse, are pushing to completion their handsome new church building, which will be one of the finest churches in the Mississippi Conference. It will cost in excess of $30,000."

Rev. J. B. Randolph is keeping busy assisting the brethren in their revivals. He was recently with Rev. J. R. Wilson in a meeting at McGehee's Chapel on the Longtown charge, where large congregations attended the services and there were a number of conversions. Fifteen joined the church on profession of faith. He was slated to assist Brother T. H. Porter in a meeting at Pope's this week.

Rev. C. W. Perkins and Mrs. Perkins, of Aransas Pass, Texas, are visiting relatives in Holmes County, Mississippi. Mrs. Perkins is a daughter of Col. and Mrs. J. M. Johnson, of Acona, Miss., who have long been known for their activity in Christian work in the community in which they reside. Brother Perkins was for several years an esteemed and useful member of the North Mississippi Conference.

Rev. W. G. Evans, formerly a member of the Louisiana Conference, but who was forced by providential circumstances to take a local relation, would be pleased to assist the brethren who need help in their revival services. Brother Evans is a forceful preacher and a successful worker in protracted meetings, and may be depended upon to give a good account of himself wherever he is called to labor. His address is Hammond, La.

A letter from Rev. H. T. Carley, written on July 31, stated that both he and Mrs. Carley had been suffering from a malarial attack, but that they were both improving. Brother Carley wrote from Satartia, Yazoo County, Miss. We hope that the season of rest which he is taking will completely restore the health of this capable young minister, and that the approaching autumn will find him strong and vigorous for the Master's work.

In the State oratorical contest at the Mississippi Chautauqua, at Crystal Springs, on Aug. 2, the medal was awarded to Mr. C. C. Clark, the representative of Millsaps College. His competitors were Mr. J. A. Patrick, of the A. and M. College; Mr. N. G. Mayfield, of Mississippi College, and Mr. J. T. Smith, of the State University. The record of Millsaps College students in winning prizes for oratory has far and away surpassed that of the students of any other college in Mississippi.

The remains of Miss Susan White, a sister of Chief Justice White of the United States Supreme Court, who died at the summer home of the family at Port Hope, Canada, several weeks ago, were brought to New Orleans last Saturday night, and on Monday were carried by a special train to Thibodaux, La., formerly the residence place of the Whites, where they were laid to rest. Judge White accompanied the body on the long journey, and was present at its interment.

Aug. 11 will mark the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Judah P. Benjamin, the great Louisiana lawyer and statesman who won high distinction on both sides of the Atlantic. The Louisiana Historical Society has named a committee, of which Mr. W. O. Hart is chairman, to devise plans for properly celebrating the event. This committee will meet on the 11th inst., but it is said that the exercises commemorative of the birth of the famous jurist will probably be deferred until fall.

Rev. W. Fred Long, General Sunday School Secretary of Mississippi, has made public the following information: "The Committee on Work among the Negroes has selected Reuben A. Scott from among a number of names submitted to advance the Sunday school work among his own race. Our county officers can lend valuable aid in encouraging him and familiarizing the colored pastors with our proposed plans. Mississippi takes the lead in thus placing the first colored secretary in the field."

Rev. A. J. Gearheard, of Gueydan, La., has lately visited his parents at Lutcher, La. En route home last Wednesday, he spent several hours in the city, and honored our office with a call. In addition to being an energetic pastor, Brother Grearheard is a practical newspaer man, and we greatly enjoyed conversing with him concerning matters in which we felt a common interest. He spoke of church work in his present field as difficult, but as being in a better condition than it has been heretofore.

Dr. S. H. Werlein preached to a large gathering of negroes attending the Laymen's Convention under the auspices of the Methodist Episcopal Church, last Sunday afternoon. His theme was "Inter-Racial Co-operation, the Guarantee of Inter-Racial Peace and Progress." The discourse was an able one, and evinced a comprehensive grasp of the perplexing race problem, concerning which so much has been said and written. It is needless to say that Dr. Werlein gave much valuable advice to the great throng of colored people who heard his message.

Dr. F. S. Parker, General Epworth League Secretary, addressed a gathering of Leaguers in this city on Tuesday evening Aug. 1. He dwelt at some length upon the splendid work which the Epworth League has done in training the young life of the Church for service, and affirmed that it yet has a great mission. He explained the plan to have the Leaguers of Southern Methodism raise $50,000 to promote the evangelization of Cuba. Dr. Parker was at home in New Orleans, being a native of the Crescent City, and was given a warm welcome by his many friends.

We were favored last week with an appreciated visit from Rev. R. C. Hicks, of Naples, Texas, who was passing through the city en route to Grove Hill, Ala., his old home, where he was booked to assist the pastor, the Rev. J. O. Lawrence, in a meeting. Brother Hicks' charge is in the Pittsburgh District, which is being served for the second time by Rev. R. A. Burroughs, formerly of the North Mississippi Conference. From what he says, Brother Burroughs has not yet lost the art of giving the interests of Zion wise supervision and leading the hosts of Methodism forward to larger things.

Rev. A. H. Williams, of Shuqualak, Miss., informs us that the superannuate's home of the Columbus District, now occupied by Rev. J. D. Newson who entered the ministry in 1848, has been thoroughly overhauled—painted, papered and screened, and made quite comfortable in every respect. He represents Brother Newson as now being so delightfully domiciled that he is happy, growing in grace, and not anxious "to depart for the city of many mansions." His statement that Brother and Sister Newsom are "very useful and much respected in the community," is only saying what could not be otherwise than true of them.

In renewing her subscription, Mrs. John T. Clark, of Prairie, Point, Miss., says: "I cannot afford to do without the Advocate, for though I do not always have the time to read it, I want it for the good influence it wields upon my dear little girls. The oldest, now twelve, looks forward to its arrival every week with interest, and knows exactly what day it should come. I never want them to think of our home as having no Christian paper come." A noble sentiment it is which is here expressed. The Advocate ever has in mind the children, and we are pleased to know that there are some of them who appreciate it and welcome its arrival.

The Memorial Presbyterian Church, of this city has extended a call to Rev. John W. Orr, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, of Corinth, Miss. Whether he will accept, has not been announced at this writing. Col. Orr, the grandfather of the Rev. Mr. Orr, is said to have been an officer in the famous Battle of New Orleans. The Picayune is authority for the statement that this congregation was desirous of retaining the services of Rev. J. L. Sutton, superintendent of the Orphan Boys' Home of this city, who served the Memorial Church quite a while as a supply, but that with commendable loyalty to Methodism, he refused to change his denominational affiliation.

From Summerfield, Miss., under date of Aug. 4, Brother W. E. Mizell writes: "Rev. J. O. Winburn is holding a series of meetings at the Methodist Church, in which he is being ably assisted by Rev. Dan Kelley, who is a man of power. Much interest is being manifested, and there have been four additions to the church thus far." Referring to the crops in that section, our correspondent adds: "Continued fair weather during the past week has put the young corn in fine condition. Early corn is better than was expected, having been damaged by the severe drought prevailing some weeks ago. Cotton is doing fairly well, though shedding some as a result of the recent rains. The boll weevil is doing considerable damage."

To Dr. A. F. Watkins, the accomplished pastor of Main Street Church, Hattiesburg, we are indebted for the following news items: "Rev. G. A. Guice, the pastor of Howison and Saucier, has been appointed to the Poplarville Church, made vacant by the death of Rev. M. H. Moore, and filled temporarily by Rev. M. L. Burton. Rev. W. W. Moore until recently president of the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose; has been sent to Howison and Saucier. Rev. G. H. Galloway, who at the last session of the Mississippi Conference was appointed Missionary Secretary, has been elected President of the Mississippi Conference Training School. It is understood that Brother Galloway is at this time moving from Jackson to Montrose, and that the changes indicated above will take effect immediately."

Rev. Briscoe Carter, of Mer Rouge, La., calls our attention to some typographical errors in his article entitled, "Lest Peradventure," which appeared in the Advocate of July 27. In enumerating the presiding elders who have had the oversight of the Mer Rouge charge, he wrote the name of "J. A. Ivy," and it was made to appear "J. A. Lay," and where he used the expression "liquid grave," the linotypist got it, "liquid grade." We regret that these mistakes occurred. Like that of the editor, Brother Carter's writing is not always as plain as it might be. Nor are we so circumstanced every week that we can go personally over the proof of every communication which finds a place in our paper. But it always grieves us when violence is done to a contributor's composition, no matter upon whom the responsibility for it rests.

WILL NEGRO METHODISTS WITHDRAW?

There has just been held a conference of recognized leaders among colored Methodists, and from it comes the report, credited very generally, that the negroes now belonging to the Methodist Episcopal Church will withdraw and form a new Colored Methodist organization of national scope and aim. Bishop Scott of Monravia, who represents the colored Methodists in Africa, is known to have attended this conference, but states that the time has not yet come to make the plans public.

Methodist leaders, white, admit that colored Methodists within their body contemplate such action, and say that such a course might not prove wholly unwise. They say, frankly, that were the negro to withdraw, and do so voluntarily, the greater union would follow of the Methodists South with the North and so there would result a Methodist Church of national size, having a membership of 4,500,000. For years it has been acknowledged that white Methodist unity in America is impossible so long as the Northern body contains 300,000 colored members.

Apart from the comparatively small number of colored people in the Methodist Episcopal Church, there are three large Methodist bodies of negroes, the Zion with 545,000 members, the African with 452,000, and the Colored with 235,000. Negroes now in the Methodist Episcopal body will not, they say, unite with any of these three, but form a body of their own. Some efforts are making, however, to bring about union with the Zion body.

White Methodists maintain for their 300,000 negro members twenty-three schools of high grade, at a cost of $360,000 a year. Besides these there are eight other Methodist colleges for colored people. It is declared that not all of this missionary work will be cut off if division comes, but that white Methodists North will continue to help colored Methodists, as they are helping others.

Final action cannot be taken until May, 1912, when the Methodist General Conference meets in Minneapolis. Advance steps to such action can be taken at once, and indications are that such will be taken. Race prejudice does not, however, so much obtain as do the convictions on the part of the colored people that they can work in their own way as they cannot now, and on the part of white Methodists that the larger Methodist union will then be possible. Indeed, so far as can be judged, both sides seem gratified that negroes themselves are likely to act. —(Reported for the Advocate by the Church News Association of New York.)

The population of greater New York is now estimated to have passed the 5,000,000 mark, the gain last year being 230,000. The official figures of the census taken in 1910 showed the number of people in the city to be 4,706,883. Of all the world's great municipalities, London alone has a larger population than this.

$177.00 pays Board, Tuition, Laundry, Medical, Library and Lyceum fees whole session. Those who wish may reduce this by taking duties. Apply now to Port Gibson Female College, Port Gibson, Miss.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL ANNUAL CHEAP EXCURSION

SATURDAY, AUGUST 12th.

Chicago $15.00
St. Louis 12.00
Detroit..... .... 18.00

Good Returning Until August 27th.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 19th

Louisville $12.00
Cincinnati 14.00
Washington, Richmond,
Norfolk, Hot Springs, Va..$18.00

Good Returning Until Sept. 3.

Through coaches, free reclining chair cars, Standard and Tourist Sleepers. Special train service. Dining cars all the way. Children's tickets will be sold at one-half the adult rate.

Buy your Ticket and Sleeping Car Space in advance at

ILLINOIS CENTRAL OFFICE,
141 St. Charles Street,
Phone, Main 3618.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

The gentle, loving spirit of little JOHN EDWIN MADDOX, infant son of John E. and Willie May Maddox, took its flight from this world on the evening of July 3. The next afternoon we laid its remains to rest in Rose Hill cemetery, to await the resurrection morn, services being conducted by Rev. Mr. Barr, pastor of the Presbyterian Church at Sardis, and Rev. J. B. Randolph, pastor of the Methodist Church of Como. All that skilled physicians, trained nurses, devoted parents, sympathizing friends and relatives could do was done for him, but it was of no avail. All had to surrender and submit. While little Edwin lived only about four and one half months, he found his way to the affections of all who knew him. He is safe in the arms of Jesus. He cannot come to us, but we may go to him.

BY ONE WHO LOVED HIM.

Little CARL GOSS was born Sept. 17, 1909, and died June 13, 1911. He was the precious baby-boy of Mr. Dock and Mrs. Lula Hill. His mother writes me: "Carl is dead, and my burden seems greater than I can bear; he was so sweet and kind and had such sweet ways." Then adds: "I cannot see him on earth again, but I am going to try to meet him in heaven. I try to live right and do what is right." I, her brother, know she does, and may God bless her in this sad hour! How blessed is the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ which brings hope and comfort to our weary, broken hearts! His illness was of short duration, but his suffering was intense. When the end came, his spirit winged its way to God, and now Carl is with the angels, and we will patiently wait until God shall call us home.

UNCLE JOHN.

Sulphur, La., July 20, 1911.

Mrs. SARAH ETTA FLURRY (nee Wilson) was born Jan. 1, 1867, and passed to her reward April 23, 1911. She was converted and joined the church in early life, and was faithful and lived near her Lord to her last day. She was married to J. J. A. Flurry, Nov. 3, 1887. Eleven children were born into the home, nine of whom are living to-day. The happiness of the home has been destroyed; sadness and sorrow linger in the hearts of the husband and children. The hands which so tenderly tucked the cover around the little ones, the lips which so lovingly kissed them good-night, are cold in death. Silent is the voice that was as the music of heaven in the home; never again will her footsteps be heard on earth. Mother is gone; heaven is her home. Cheer up, husband and children; lift up your eyes to the God of all; trust in the Savior and live right. Some sweet day you will all meet again. May God's blessings rest upon you!

JAS. M. LEWIS, Pastor.

A NOTE FROM REV. W. J. WOOD.

I am here at Randolph, assisting Rev. W. W. Bruner in a meeting. We have just started and the prospects are fine for a good meeting. I am at home at this place, for I was raised near here. I find several old friends still living, but a great many are dead and have gone to their reward. Some of their children have grown out of my knowledge. I find the young pastor, Brother Bruner, in great favor with his people. I will say in conclusion that we are moving on nicely on Pott's Camp Circuit. I think I have the best work in the Oxford District. Come to see us some time.

W. J. WOOD.

HIBERNIA INSURANCE CO.,

Capital.....$200,000.00
Assets..... 479,860.90

No. 305 Camp Street., New Orleans, La.

LOSSES PROMPTLY PAID.

L&N Louisville & Nashville R.R.

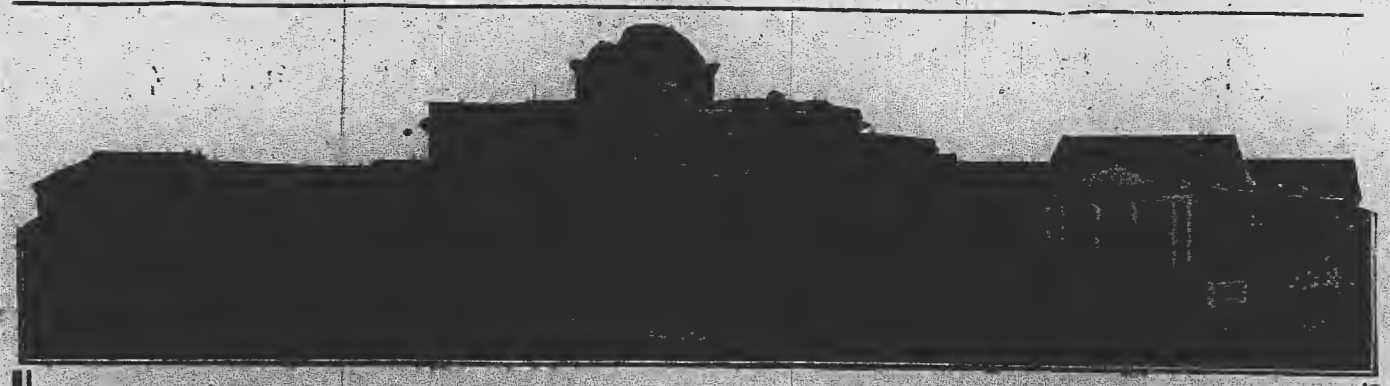
THE DIRECT LINE TO NORTH AND EAST
ELECTRIC LIGHTED STEEL SLEEPERS
DINING CARS, OBSERVATION CARS, CHAIR CARS

Phone M 4093. TICKET OFFICE 201 ST. CHARLES STREET.

PEOPLES-TUCKER SCHOOL,
Springfield, Tenn.

Elevation 1200 feet. Superb new buildings with all modern improvements. Beautiful campus. Boys live with the teachers and are under their personal supervision at all times. On account of limited numbers, each boy receives the most careful personal attention of skilled teachers. If you want your boy well cared for physically, mentally, and morally, you will be interested in our catalogue. Send for one, and we will prove our claims. $300 covers all expenses.



Columbia College NEW and FIRE Proof Building Columbia, S. C.

For over half a century ColumbiaCollege has acceptably served those parents who require the best facilities for the men tal, moral and physical training of their daughters. In faculty, equipment, buildings and location, Columbia College presents advantages which are extremely difficult to duplicate. Requirements, those of Class A Colleges.

SPECIAL ADVANTAGES

1. Our central Location-easily accessible from all points of the South.
2. At the seat of the Legislative, Judicial and executive departments of the State, affording object lessons in the science of Government.
3. Visited by distinguished lecturers, musicians, artists and public men, thus constantly brought into touch with the leading men and measures of the day.
4. Access to several large libraries, in addition to its own library and well selected reading table,—especially that of South Carolina College, containing over 30,000 volumes.
5. Columbia is now one of the leading educational centers in the South, and nowhere else in the State can young ladies see and hear so much that they would never otherwise learn.
6. The social advantages of Columbia are unsurpassed in the State.
7. The college is in easy access to all the churches in the City, and is kept in touch with spiritual forces at work here.
8. Columbia is one of the finest winter resorts in the South. The mildness of our climate during the entire winter makes our location invaluable for college work.
9. Our heating apparatus is the product of the world's latest and best thought on the subject. All parts of the building are kept at the same temperature, being regulated by one thermometer, and the atmosphere is kept sufficiently moist to be most conductive to health.
10. Our Sanitary arrangements are the best, and our health record is unsurpassed.
11. The fine natural drainage of the premises.
12. An able faculty of specialists, all thoroughly trained in their departments. Courses leading to the degrees of B. A., B. S., and B. L.
13. The course of study is carefully graded and thorough at every point. It is arranged on the University plan, allowing girls to enter the class they are prepared for, as far as possible, in every department.
14. Our special departments are under the direction of able teachers. Music, art, elocution, and business courses are all extensive and thorough.
15. Our system of physical culture seeks to develop symmetrically every muscle of the body, and correlate it as far as possible with the mind.
16. The elevating and ennobling influence of a Christian environment, which pervades every department of the college.
17. The lyceum brings to our midst lecturers of national renown and musicians of reputation.
18. Our large campus of 20 acres, overlooking the city of Columbia, affords abundant room for all games and exercises.
19. Suburban location gives quietude for study and freedom of country life.

For Descriptive Catalogue Address

REV. W. W. DANIEL, D. D., President, Columbia, S. C.

Tidings From the Field

Buena Vista, Miss.:

We have recently painted the parsonage here. We have also just painted Macedonia Church. We had a good meeting at Buena Vista week before last. Brother Nebiett was with us, and my people were delighted with him. We closed a fine meeting at Ebenezer last night. Brother H. S. Spragins did most of the preaching to the satisfaction of all who heard him. We had eighteen additions to the church. Praise the Lord!—T. J. Durrett.

Coffeeville, Miss.:

We have just closed a splendid series of revival services at the Methodist Church in Coffeeville, in the result of which we feel great profit and consolation. Rev. T. H. Dorsey, of West Point, did all the preaching, and it was with deep regret that we came to a close after only one week's work. Our people fell very much in love with Brother Dorsey, and would have been happy for him to have continued his splendid work much longer. Brother Dorsey we regard as one of the strong men of Mississippi Methodism, and regard ourselves as most fortunate in having had him with us. His delivery is most pleasing, his statement of the truth is vigorous and fearless, his exposition of the Scriptures is excellent, and withal, he has a great heart which fastens itself irresistibly upon the souls of men. Says the Coffeeville Courier: "The revival services at the Methodist Church are being largely attended, both morning and evening. Some able preaching is being done by Rev. T. H. Dorsey, of West Point, and both pastor and church are being congratulated on securing the services of this very able man."—E. Nash Broyles, P. C.

Grand Cane, La.:

We have just closed two meetings on the Grand Cane mission. We began our first meeting at Benson on the second Sunday in July, which continued eight days. Rev. A. W. Turner, of Mansfield, was with us four days and preached most excellent sermons, which were greatly enjoyed by the people of that community. While we had only one accession to the church, the membership was greatly benefited and gave evidence of living nearer to Christ and trying to be more useful in the future. Our Sunday school at this point is doing a fine work. Ours is the only school in town. Our second meeting began the fourth Sunday in July and continued five days. Rev. W. R. Harvell, of Grand Cane, was with us from Monday until Friday, at which time the meeting closed. He gave the people some good, strong gospel sermons which were well received. We had a most excellent meeting; fifteen old-fashioned conversions. They came to the altar and remained until they were saved. At the close of the last service, eight persons were received into the church. Another result of the meeting was that the people pledged $30 more for ministerial support than they had been assessed at the first quarterly conference. I have not neglected to talk to our people about the New Orleans Christian Advocate. We hope to secure some subscribers soon. —H. J. Boltz, P. C.

Conehatta, Miss.:

I want to tell you of a protracted meeting we have recently had at Conehatta, Miss. Our pastor is Rev. H. F. Tollie, who resides at Lake, Miss., a few miles below here. Brother Golden, from Laurel, assisted Brother Tollie and preached for us some of the best sermons that I have had the pleasure of hearing for some time. It was not so much the quantity, as quality. He just simply told us the plain truth from beginning to end. There was a message for everyone, young and old, great and small. I don't believe anyone could have preached to the point more than Brother Golden did. Wednesday was Children's Day and the sermon that day was simply hard to beat. If we all would practice what Brother Tollie and Brother Golden preached to us, especially fathers and mothers that have small children, twenty years from to-day old Conehatta Church will have better protracted meetings than it has ever known in its history before. The whole community would be better also. I know several persons who have resolved to do better in the future as a result of the services. Though only four united with the church, many were greatly profited. We are grateful to God for the work of these brethren among us.—A Reader of the Advocate.

FROM A LOCAL PREACHER.

I am a preacher, in the local ranks of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in orders, and have been for a little more than a half century. During that long period I have kept up regular appointments in this section of the country. Up to a few years ago, I had regular weekly appointments. Since then I have had semi-monthly appointments—my health and strength not justifying me in preaching oftener. Last November I had a first-class case of la grippe from which I did not recover till about the first of April, this year. Consequently, I was not able to do anything during the winter.

In 1909, I took up an appointment in a neighborhood ten miles from home and kept it up regularly during that year and part of the next year, but, being a member of the State Legislature, I was not there regularly during the year 1910. A local preacher, you know, is considered a "scotch" or a "third wheel to the cart," and is expected to go where the regular pastor doesn't, or can't go.

This neighborhood is thickly settled, but the people as a rule are poor people, not possessing much of this world's goods, but are honorable, high-toned, good Christian people. I went there the fourth Sunday in July, my regular day, and found quite a large gathering of people—something like two hundred or more—and learned that it was the Sunday school Children's Day. Be it said to the credit of the children, and the two good Christian women who had trained them, I never witnessed better order or more interesting exercises than on that occasion.

Our country appointments should not and ought not to be neglected. Some of the brightest gems are in the country, "diamonds in the rough." Some of our purest Christians are in the country. Our churches are supplied from the Sunday schools.

The class of people with whom to begin the moral and spiritual reform, is the children. It is difficult to bring about these reforms after the child has passed its fifteenth birthday, if it has been neglected in the preceding years of its life. The Sunday school is the place to teach the principles of the Christian religion, and it can be effectively done there if the superintendent and teachers have experienced the pardoning love of God in their hearts and their daily lives show to the world that they have. A. W. MOORE.

Winnsboro, La.

EDUCATIONAL

Port Gibson Female College

"The ideal school for girls."

Situated in one of the healthiest sections of the United States—Port Gibson, Miss. Large, comfortable, airy buildings. Beautiful campus, shaded by stately oaks and pecan trees. Everything for the advancement of our students physically as well as mentally. Excellent physical culture course without cost. Unexcelled literary courses. Art, Elocution, Music, etc. Thorough instruction by competent, experienced faculty. The best of foods—milk and butter from herd of Jersey cows.

WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATED CATALOG

PORT GIBSON FEMALE COLLEGE
PORT GIBSON, MISS.

MERIDIAN WOMAN'S COLLEGE

Among the Health-giving Pine Hills of Mississippi.

The largest private School for girls in the South, an ideal union of home and school. Non-sectarian, yet Christian, a school where the social and religious welfare of your daughter is carefully guarded and no phase of her education neglected. Beautiful 60 acre campus. Largest conservatory of Music in the entire South; Oratory and Art.

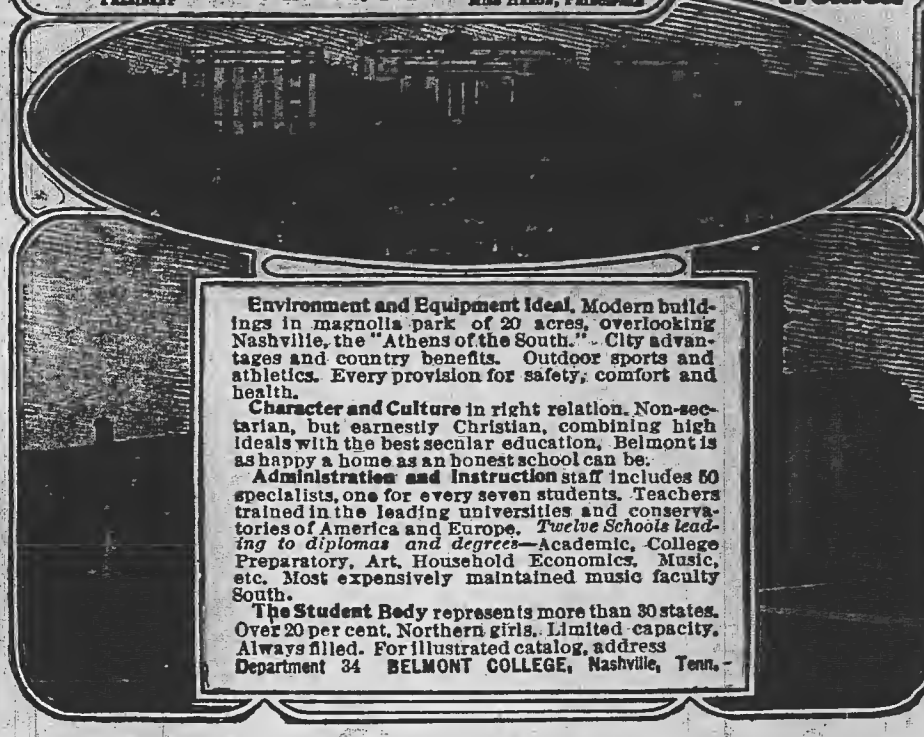
Write for Beautifully Illustrated Catalog No. 4

Meridian Woman's College, — J. W. Beeson, A. M. President, Meridian, Miss.

Meridian Male College, a quarter mile distant, is an ideal place for your son. Military discipline. Christian home influences. Operated in connection with the Meridian Woman's College.

Belmont College — For Young Women

Pres. Lamberth, D.D., LL.D., President — Nashville, Tenn. — Miss Hood and Miss Heron, Principals



Environment and Equipment Ideal. Modern buildings in magnolia park of 20 acres, overlooking Nashville, the "Athens of the South." City advantages and country benefits. Outdoor sports and athletics. Every provision for safety, comfort and health.

Character and Culture in right relation. Non-sectarian, but earnestly Christian, combining high ideals with the best secular education. Belmont is as happy a home as an honest school can be.

Administration and Instruction staff includes 50 specialists, one for every seven students. Teachers trained in the leading universities and conservatories of America and Europe. Twelve Schools leading to diplomas and degrees—Academic, College Preparatory, Art, Household Economics, Music, etc. Most expensively maintained music faculty South.

The Student Body represents more than 30 states. Over 20 per cent. Northern girls. Limited capacity. Always filled. For illustrated catalog, address Department 34 BELMONT COLLEGE, Nashville, Tenn.

DICKSON COLLEGE,

THE SCHOOL FOR YOUR DAUGHTER.

Located in the Tennessee Highlands. Health unsurpassed. Out-door sports, exercise in the hills among Middle Tennessee's most beautiful springs. A thorough education which prepares for efficiency and gives real culture. Courses complete and advantages superb. Send your daughter to Dickson College and she will return to you stronger in body and mind, thoroughly equipped, cultured and refined, and ready to meet the actual problems of life. For catalogue and all information, address, T. B. LOGGINS, Dickson, Tenn.

BINGHAM, Asheville, N. C., has prepared BOYS for College and for Christian Citizenship for 118 years, and ALONE in the U. S., offers a FREE ROUND TRIP TICKET from anywhere within 1500 miles to any parent who, on inspection, is not convinced that its pairs of ONE STORY brick rooms, separated by a parapet FIRE WALL, are the BEST for Health, Sanitation, Ventilation and safety against FIRE. 1793 Send for Catalogue or come and see. COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt., R. F. D. No. 28 1912

You Look Prematurely Old

Because of those ugly, grizzly gray hairs. Use "LA CREOLE" HAIR DRESSING. Price $1.00, retail.

The Sunday School.

LOUISIANA NOTES.

By Rev. P. O. Lowrey.

Mr. V. L. Fulton has his growing class of 43 boys and girls organized for training and service in the advanced division of the Sunday school of the First Methodist Church, of Shreveport.

* * *

Mr. A. F. Godat, superintendent of the Parker Memorial Sunday school, is just back from a summer outing in the West, in which he visited Sunday schools in Galveston and other places en route, and he says that the Louisiana schools (especially Parker Memorial) are equal to any of them. This is an encouraging note from a capable critic, and should encourage our workers to expect nothing but the best of themselves.

* * *

The First Church, Shreveport, has welcoming committees, both for the adult department upstairs and for the elementary department downstairs, who greet all the people and get acquainted with strangers, securing their names and addresses for the pastor, superintendent, and visiting committee. Mrs. S. J. Lingle and Mrs. Chas. Dixon are now serving on the adult committee.

* * *

At Bourg, on the Houma Mission, where Rev. R. E. Martin is junior preacher, there are about one hundred church members and all pray in public except small children, and attend Sunday school. They have prayer meeting Wednesday, and have maintained a teachers' meeting Thursday night for two years. They have established a Sunday school eight miles from Bourg in which the members teach, meeting for the present in a private house; but they hope later to have a chapel. The people are French, and Mr. Delcourt Matherue is the Sunday school superintendent.

* * *

Rev. C. V. Breithaupt is planning to organize Sunday schools at Dulac, where a friend, whose name is withheld, is to build a chapel, and a church is to be organized, and at Mechanicsville, a suburb of Houma, where they are expending $25 to prepare a dwelling house for occupancy. If the latter enterprise is a success, it is thought the house, valued at $600, will be donated to the church.

Since the establishing of the Houma Mission a Sunday school has been organized at Houma, with an enrollment of 40 in the four classes. The pastor, Rev. C. V. Breithaupt, teaches the Bible class, and Mrs. Breithaupt, the beginnners. The new parsonage and the land for the parsonage and church are valued at $3,200.

* * *

The Ida Lee Chapman $1,000 memorial fund of the First Methoidst Church, of Shreveport, which is being raised by the elementary department of the Sunday school on the $100,000 church building in contemplation, has a sweet and touching history. The little 10-year-old girl for whom it was named gave the first dollar to the building fund and died within eight days. Her gift was more than she thought, for led by Mrs. Cameron, the capable and energetic superintendent, the elementary department of the Sunday school to which Ida Lee belonged, has undertaken to raise in her memory $1,000, and $250 of the amount was raised during the first three months, and it is thought that the remaining amount will be forthcoming. In addition to this, the $1 she gave will be placed in the corner-stone of the new church and as long as the building stands this deed of liberality shall be spoken of "as a memorial to her."

NEWS AND NOTES.

By Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick.

One man's class has taken a specific collection nearly every Sunday in one month for some class member, sick and helpless, besides keeping up their regular activities.

* * *

Many are asking, "Can we have a good school this summer?" There is but one answer and it is a question in itself: "Are you willing to pay the price?"

* * *

When one is discouraged and depressed, he can find no better corrective than unselfish activity in the name of the Lord. Let him do something for somebody and at once. Personal work is a great curative, corrective and tonic.

* * *

On the walls of a banquet room where 200 "teen-age" boys were assembled to listen to Mr. W. C. Pearce, on "The Victorious Life," was this pertinent motto: "What shall it profit a community if it gain the whole world and lose its own boys?"

* * *

Letters come by the dozens from all over the Conference and farther, asking help for teachers, superintendents, and for means to interest parents and careless other-folk. With people so eager and willing, surely our Conference should record a Sunday school constituency in December of high and great efficiency.

* * *

Mrs. W. S. Selman, Pittsboro, Miss., writes of the reorganization of a Baracca class into a Young men's Wesley class with 20 members, and the usual officers, a teacher and assistant teacher, and with certificate No. 660. Their Sunday school is doing well along all lines, and a fine enthusiasm pervades the entire church.

* * *

Dr. Bulla, of our Adult Bible Class superintendency, is doing his best to enroll all our classes as they organize, and it seems but a little thing that they should help. Do this much to encourage the work and to put him in touch with the leaders of our adult classes. Let them be "Wesleyan," rather than something else. Enroll with our Board first, and with others later. He will send all necessary information upon application.

* * *

If a Bible class is organized, the very carrying on of its ordinary activities is a training in the virtues and duties of good citizenship. The very essence of the organized Bible class is its self-government. In democracies the question of good citizenship is of immense importance, for with us the real kings are the common people, and it is of prime importance that these people be trained by exercise and authority to realize the highest and holiest aims of their kingship.

* * *

In the lumber town of Marbury, Ala., every man has joined the Bible class except one, and he had to leave town to escape the determined effort to enroll him in this modern fraternity of Bible study and good works. The secret of this unequaled record, so far as we know, is the Christian mill owner, Mr. Marbury, who set his heart on having all the men in his employ members of the Sunday school. "Like proprietor, like employee," is true of more business concerns than this saw mill, and the rule works on either side, the evil alas, as well as the good.

MISS KILPATRICK'S DATES.

Dear Brother Meek: A committee composed of Rev. R. A. Tucker, Rev. W. N. Duncan, and myself have made the following appointments in the Sardis District for Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick, field secretary of the Sunday School Board of the North Mississippi Conference: Olive Branch, Wednesday, Aug. 30; Hernando, Thursday, Aug. 31; Senatobia, Friday, Sept. 1; Tyro, Saturday, Sept. 2; Como, Sunday, 3; See's Chapel, Monday, Sept. 4; Sardis, Tuesday, Sept. 5; Batesville, Wednesday, Sept. 6; Pope, Thursday, Sept. 7; Oakland, Friday, Sept. 8.

Let all Sunday school workers take notice. Each pastor is expected to co-operate and arrange for the services.

J. B. RANDOLPH,
For the Committee.

Como, Miss.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children, 50c.

SCIENCE HILL SCHOOL
SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY.
An English and Classical School for Girls. College Preparatory course with certificate privileges at Wellesley, Vassar, Smith, Leland Stanford, Randolph-Macon and other colleges. 86 years of successful work. College trained teachers. Superior advantages in music. MRS. W. T. POINTER, Principal.

RANDOLPH-MACON ACADEMY For Boys and Young Men
Fits for college, scientific schools or business. Work endorsed by over 30 colleges and universities. Beautiful and healthful location. Athletic grounds; gymnasium. Terms, $250. No extras. For catalogue, address
E. SUMTER SMITH, Principal,
Bedford City, Va.

ROANOKE COLLEGE
SALEM, VA.
For Men. 59th year begins Sept. 13th. Courses for Degrees, with Electives; high standard. Also Commercial and Preparatory Courses. Library, 24,000 volumes; working laboratories; good morals and discipline; six Churches; no bar-rooms. Healthful mountain location. Very moderate expenses. Loan Fund. Catalogue Free. Address,
J. A. MOREHEAD, President.

VANDERBILT University
1,000 Students 100 Teachers
Campus of 80 Acres
also
New Campus for Departments of Medicine and Dentistry
Expenses low. Literary course for graduates and undergraduates. Professional courses in Engineering, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Theology. Send for catalog, naming department. (1)
J. E. HART, Secretary. Nashville, Tenn.

BEETHOVEN
CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC,
St. Louis, Missouri.
The oldest, largest and best music school in the State. All branches of music taught. Send for handsomely illustrated catalogue to the
BROTHERS EPSTEIN,
4503 Olive, Directors.

DR. H. B. BARTLETT
National Dental Parlors
Cor. Canal & Camp Sts.
ENTRANCE 106 CAMP
Phone Main 2193
NEW ORLEANS
Vitalized Air for Painless Extraction
Crown and Bridge Specialist.
The Largest and Best Equipped Dental Parlors South.

Methodist Benevolent Association
The Connectional Brotherhood of Ministers and Laymen. Life or Term Certificates for $500 to $2,000. Benefits payable at death, old age, or disability. $100,000.00 paid to widows, orphans, and disabled. $14,000.00 reserve fund. Write for rates, blanks, etc.
J. H. SHUMAKER, Secretary
Nashville, Tennessee

To Quickly Relieve
SUNBURN
Apply Hinds Honey and Almond Cream gently with the fingers, or, if very tender moisten a piece of old linen or absorbent cotton with this pure snow-white cream and lay it on the inflamed surface. It will cool, comfort and heal the hot, sore skin and prevent blistering or peeling. If you apply
HINDS Honey and Almond CREAM
before exposure to sun and wind and again on returning indoors, there will be only slight tendency to sunburn or windburn. The skin will remain soft, smooth and clear.—This is a non-greasy cream;—guaranteed harmless. It cannot possibly grow hair. It is supremely good for dry, rough, irritated, sore skin. It makes dull complexions clear and attractive.
Price 50c., in bottles.—Sold by 40,000 dealers.
For Free Trial Bottle write A. S. HINDS, 72 West St., Portland, Me.

ESCAPE THE HEAT OF SUMMER AND SPEND YOUR VACATION ON THE
PACIFIC COAST
Temperature 50 Degrees to 70 Degrees EVERY DAY
LOW ROUND TRIP RATES NOW IN EFFECT
Via SOUTHERN PACIFIC
Two Strictly First-Class Trains Daily
"SUNSET EXPRESS" and "CALIFORNIA EXPRESS"
Through to SAN FRANCISCO without change
Most Modern Standard and Tourist Sleeping Cars; Electric Lighted—Individual Lights in Berths; Oil Burning Locomotives; Electric Block Signals; Observation Car on Sunset Express; Dining Car Service Best in the World.
Before Deciding on Your Route, see
SOUTHERN PACIFIC REPRESENTATIVE,
City Ticket Office, 225-27 St. Charles Street, New Orleans
PHONE MAIN 4027
Beautifully Illustrated Literature Furnished on Request.

The Mississippi Conference Training School,
MONTROSE, MISS.

A unique Preparatory school for boys and girls with wholesome moral surroundings and positive Christian influence.

Our regular literary course is practical, and prepares for taking the A. B. degree in the best colleges. The Bible is included in our daily recitations.

Our extras are: Music, Expression, and a normal course preparing teachers to teach in the public schools.

Special features are: A Mission Study Class, and a course preparing teachers to teach in the Sunday school. We also have a farm in connection with the school, and boys of moderate means may have the free use of the land and thereby pay expenses.

Write for catalogue.

(Rev.) WALDO W. MOORE, A. M., President.

JEFFERSON MILITARY ACADEMY,
Washington, Miss.

Prepares for Colleges, Universities, Scientific Schools and business. Located in the Hills, six miles east of Natchez, a place noted for its healthfulness, fine climate and historic surroundings. Away from the detractions and temptations of City life, but with all modern convenience. Fine spring water. Personal attention; one teacher for every twelve boys. Eighty (80) acre campus. Large gymnasium. Endorsed and recommended by the presidents of Colleges and Universities. 110th Session begins Sept.14, 1911. For full particulars apply to

MAJ. R. V. ANDERSON, Supt.

CHAMBERLAIN-HUNT ACADEMY, Port Gibson, Mississippi.
A High Grade Training School for Boys and Young Men.

First class boys wanted. Industrial and Practical in a lm Courses on Agriculture and Manual Training just added. Buildings modern, steam heat, electric lights, etc. In old historic section near Vicksburg. No malaria. Among High Hills. Four Optional Courses. Instructors all College Graduates. No Hazing; Military abolished. Some boys reduce expenses by work. Non-sectarian, but Christian. Bible a Text Book. Last session crowded. Cheapest school of its kind in the South.

$180 Pays all Expenses. Kind of School South Needs.

Mention the Advocate. For Catalog address M. R. MELVIN, A. M., Pres.

High Grade Medical Teaching

Memphis Hospital Medical College
FOUNDED 1878 2760 GRADUATES.

Modern College Building. Modernly Equipped throughout.

ATTENDANCE SESSION 1910-'11. 380 STUDENTS.

— Excellent Hospital and Laboratory Facilities

Thorough and Comprehensive Four Year Graded Course

For Announcement and Catalogue, address

W. B. ROGERS, M.D., Dean. MEMPHIS, TENN.

Marvin University School, CLINTON, KY.
CONDENSED INFORMATION.

LOCATION: CLINTON, KY., a clean town, 125 miles from Memphis; a healthful place, not a death in the student body in 25 years; the first prohibition town in Kentucky.

THE PLANT: Good brick buildings; new brick dormitory, with electric lights, steam heat, shower baths, hot and cold water on each floor; fine athletic field; swimming pool 125 yards long; one of the best plants in the South for a training school.

FACULTY: Trained experts, University men, abreast of the times.

COURSE: Equips for life or leads to the best colleges and universities; graduates receive free tuition in University of Kentucky.

TERMS: $190 pays board and all school fees for the year. Write for catalog to NICHOLS BROTHERS.

Morgan School Not Better than Some Others

Morgan School has no better building, the health of the school and town is not superior to some, the Dormitory and Gymnasium are not better than some others in the State.

All these are good enough,

But the standard of character and scholarship is equal to the best and superior to many.

If information is desired, write for catalogue.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal.

FAYETTEVILLE, TENN.

Wesleyan College
Macon, Georgia

One of the few real colleges for women in the South. Plant worth a half million, with all modern facilities. Faculty of forty. Nearly 3,000 alumnae throughout the nation.

Schools of Literature, Languages, Science, Arts and Music.

A safe institution for young ladies. Non-sectarian, but Christian to the core. Health record without a parallel—not a death for many years. Not conducted for profit, but to bless the world. Rates reasonable. No traveling agents.

For detailed information, address

W. N. AINSWORTH, D. D., President
C. R. JENKINS, Vice President

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.
Rev. David Carlisle Hull, M.S., President.

A high grade college, situated at the capital of the State. Location high, dry and healthful.

Entrance Requirements and Curriculum same as in other Leading Colleges and Universities North and South.

Separate Preparatory School under Private Dormitory Management.

The very finest Moral and Religious Influences. Extraordinary Advantages in

LITERARY AND LAW DEPARTMENTS.

Courses Leading to A.B., B.S., A. M., M.S., and LL.B. Degrees.

TWENTIETH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 20th, 1911.

For catalog and other information address

E. Y. BURTON, Secretary, Jackson, Mississippi.

GRENADA COLLEGE
A CHRISTIAN COLLEGE FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN.

The Property of the Church—Erected and Maintained for Service.

Only One Hundred Boarders Taken. Personal Attention Given Each Student.

A FACULTY OF SPECIALISTS.

THE BEST ADVANTAGES IN MUSIC, ART, AND EXPRESSION.

Write for Catalog. REV. J. R. COUNTISS, President. Grenada, Miss.

MARTIN COLLEGE,
An Endowed School for Girls and Young Women,

PULASKI, Tenn. Established 1870. W. T. WYNN, President

Located on Main line of the L. & N. R. R., eighty miles south of Nashville, forty miles north of Decatur, in the beautiful "Blue Grass" region so famous for health and the beauty of its scenery. Cultured community. All departments. German Director of Music. Conservatory and University trained teachers. Modern buildings. Good pianos, new $1000 grand for recitals. Correspondence invited. Forty-first session begins Sept. 20, 1911. Write for catalogue. Address W. T. WYNN, Pulaski, Tennessee.

DICKSON COLLEGE, Dickson, Tenn.
T. B. LOGGINS, A.M., President.

A school for both sexes; limited numbers; strong faculty; splendid student body; healthful location in the Tennessee Highlands; Christian influences. One of the safest and most practical schools for young men and women, boys and girls. Literary, music, expression, bookkeeping and short-hand courses. 27th year under same management, begins Thursday, Aug. 31, 1911. Before making other arangements, let us send you our beautiful 40-page catalogue. Address, T. B. LOGGINS, Dickson, Tenn.

TRINITY COLLEGE
1859 1892 1910-1911

Three memorable dates: The Granting of the Charter for Trinity College; the Removal of the College to the growing and prosperous City of Durham; the Building of the New and Greater Trinity.

Magnificent new buildings with new equipment and enlarged facilities.

Comfortable hygienic dormitories and beautiful pleasant surroundings.

Five departments: Academic; Mechanical, Civil, and Electrical Engineering; Law; Education; Graduate.

For catalogue and other information, address

B. L. FLOWERS, Secretary, Durham, N. C.

Ward Seminary FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN Nashville, Tennessee

Literary Department of the highest order. Seminary and Special Courses. French and German spoken. Certification to Wellesley, Vassar, Goucher, Randolph-Macon.

In Music opportunities unsurpassed—nine teachers, eight with the best European training—WINKLER, Director. Piano; CAMPOBELLO, Voice; SCHMITZ, Violin. School Orchestra and Chorus.

Expression, Art, Domestic Science—all in charge of specialists.

City advantages. Accessible to leading churches, libraries, lecture and concert halls. Outdoor sports, Tennis, Basket Ball, etc., also beautiful Ward Place campus for recreation.

47th year begins Sept. 21. 175 boarding pupils. Early application is advised

For Catalogue and Other Circulars, Address J. D. BLANTON, LL.D., Prest.

Silliman College for Girls
Clinton, La.

An endowed institution of high standard, located in a beautiful hill country. Three handsome Buildings and large, well shaded Campus. Electric lights, steam heat, splendid water supply and sanitary bath rooms.

It offers full classical, scientific and literary courses, with special advantages in music, art, expression and stenography. A diploma entitles holder to first grade teacher's certificate in the public schools of Louisiana.

We emphasize noble and refined Christian womanhood. Individual attention is given to each student's needs by thorough teachers, and we maintain a strict standard of requirements.

Free scholarships are granted a limited number who need financial assistance. Some students pay half expenses by taking duties.

Silliman College is positively unexcelled in its careful and painstaking administration.

Sixtieth year begins Sept. 13th, 1911. Write at once for beautifully illustrated catalogue.

H. H. Brownlee, President, Clinton, La.

A Box of Relief for Skin Troubles

Heiskell's Ointment will cure erysipelas, eczema, milk crust, tetter, blackheads and lesser evils like sunburn and freckles. Insist on Heiskell's Ointment and take no substitute.

Heiskell's Medicinal Toilet Soap keeps the skin healthy. Heiskell's Blood and Liver Pills keep the liver active. Write for our new booklet—"Health and Beauty."

JOHNSTON, HOLLOWAY & CO.
831 Commerce St., Philadelphia

Secure and Profitable

These essentials of a good investment are combined in

5% Gold Bonds

Paying Interest of 5%

Guaranteed for 10 years, payable every 6 months in coupons attached, which can be collected through your local bank, convertible into cash before that time if you wish. Issued in denominations of $100.00 and $1,000.00 and fully protected by the entire resources of the bank.

Write for full details and booklet.

GUARANTEE TRUST & BANKING CO.
Capital Stock $500,000.00. Atlanta, Ga.

"CARBOLITE"
CALCIUM-CARBIDE

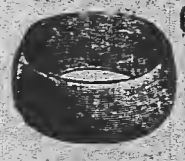
Highest Quality, Lowest Price, carried in stock by

A. T. THOMPSON & Co., New Orleans, La

—We also sell—

DYNAMITE AND BLASTING SUPPLIES.

—Postoffice Box 748—



GOLD WEDDING RING FREE

Send for 10 packages of our beautiful silk and gold embossed post cards to distribute at 10c pkg. Return us the $1 when collected and we will send you by return mail this very fine 14K gold filled heavy band ring, not the cheap kind. Address R. F. MOSER, 311 Household Bldg., Topeka, Kan.

Our Copyrighted Book on GALL STONES, DYSPEPSIA AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, Stomach and Bowels FREE Address Gallstone Remedy Co. 225 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. Ask for Book No. 19.

BETSY CHURCH ORGANS.

The BETSY is the world's best Organ. The KOHLER & CAMPBELL PIANO is in every particular first class; satisfaction guaranteed in every case; freight paid; low cash price on easy payments without interest. Write for Catalogues.

J. M. BASS, Pastor Meth't Ch'ch.
Brookville, Miss.

VISIT

MINERAL WELLS

—FOR—

HEALTH AND PLEASURE.
AND

WEST TEXAS

—For—

FINE AGRICULTURAL LANDS.
REACHED VIA

THE TEXAS AND PACIFIC RAILWAY

EXCURSION TICKETS ON SALE DAILY.

Free Booklet.

E. P. TURNER,
General Passenger Agent.
DALLAS - - - - - TEXAS

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Monroe Dist.—Third Round.

Lake Providence	Aug. 16
Delhi	Aug. 20, 21
Brooklyn	Aug. 23
Floyd	Aug. 26, 27
Downsville	Aug. 29, 30
Mangham, at Boueff River	Sept. 2, 3
Eros, at Indian Village	Sept. 6
Winnsboro, at Boueff Prairie	Sept. 9, 10
Rayville	Sept. 13
Florence	Sept. 17, 18
Merrouge	Sept. 20

District Conference will meet in Rayville, July 26, 10 a. m.

S. S. KEENER, P.E.

Baton Rouge Dist.—Third Round.

Franklinton, at F.	Aug. 16
Mt. Hermon, at Augie	Aug. 19, 20
Bogalusa	Aug. 20, 21
Wilson, at Manassas	Aug. 26, 27
St. Helena, at Pine R.	Sept. 2, 3
Kentwood	Sept. 3, 4
P. Grove, at Pipkin's	Sept. 6
Port Vincent, at Mauripas	Sept. 9, 10
St. Francisville, at Tunica	Sept. 16, 17
N. Roads, at Morganza	Sept. 23, 24

C. C. MILLER, P. E.

Ruston District—Third Round.

Simsboro, at Antioch	Aug. 16
Beinville, at Bear Creek	Aug. 19, 20
Boyd Mission, at Chestnut	Aug. 21
Arcadia	Aug. 26, 27
Ruston	Aug. 27, 28
Lanesville, at Brushwood	Sept. 2, 3
Lisbon, at New Hope	Sept. 9, 10
Houghton, at Dolline	Sept. 16, 17
Cotton Valley, Pleas. Val	Sept. 23, 24
Minden	Sept. 24, 25

R. W. TUCKER, P. E.

Alexandria District—Third Round.

Jena, at Jena	August 15, 16
Trout	August 17
Columbia, at Stanard	August 20, 21
Marksville, at Bay Hill	August 23, 24
Tioga, at Liberty Chapel	Aug. 27, 28
Alexandria	Sept. 1
Selma	Sept. 3, 4
Opelousas	Sept. 10, 11
Glenmora	Sept. 13
Colfax, at Atlanta	Sept. 17, 18
Melville, at Simmesport	Sept. 24, 25
Bunkie, at Cheneyville	Sept. 26

Special attention will be given to questions 18, 21, and 23.

PAUL M. BROWN, P. E.

NORTH MISS. CONFERENCE.

Sardis Dist.—Third Round.

Wall Hill, at Grubb Hill	Aug. 15
Long Town, McGee's Chap	Aug. 17
Oakland, at Bethel	Aug. 19, 20
Courtland, at Shiloh	Aug. 22
Senatobia	Aug. 23
Cockrum, at Independence	Aug. 26, 27
Eureka, at Pisgah	Sept. 2, 3
Arkabutla	Sept. 9, 10
Crenshaw	Sept. 12

W. M. YOUNG, P. E.

Winona Dist.—Third Round.

Moorhead, at Blaine	Aug. 13, 14
Lambert, at Glendora	Aug. 19, 20
Minter City, 8 p. m.	Aug. 20
Eupora, at Eupora	Aug. 24
Bellefontaine, at Walthall	Aug. 24
Kilmichael, at Lodi	Aug. 26, 27
Tutwiler, at Marks	Sept. 2, 3
Slate Springs, at Bethlehem	Sept. 9, 10

E. S. LEWIS, P. E.

Corinth Dist.—Third Round.

Dry Run Ct., at Mt. Carmel	Aug. 19, 20
Hatchie Mission, at Mt. Pisgah	Aug. 21
Ripley Mis., at Black Jack	Aug. 22
Dumas ct., Jacobs Chp	Aug. 23
Sherman Ct.,	Aug. 25
Myrtle Ct., at Ebenezer	Aug. 26, 27
Kossuth Circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Sept. 2
Guntown and B., at Baldwyn	Sept. 3, 4
Baldwyn Mission, at Palestine	Sept. 9, 10

BEN P. JACO, P. E.

Durant Dist.—Third Round.

Black Hawk, at B. H.	Aug. 12, 13
Sallis, at Salem	Aug. 15
Kosciusko Ct., at Marvin	Aug. 17
Poplar Creek, at Huntsville	Aug. 19, 20
McCool, at Shady G	Aug. 26, 27

N. G. AUGUSTUS, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Meridian Dist.—Third Round.

Meridian, Central	Aug. 16
Binnsville and Wahalak, Binnsville	Aug. 20, 21
Meridian, East End	Aug. 23
Porterville, at Porterville	Aug. 26, 27
Daleville, at Andrew's Chp	Aug. 30
Waynesboro Circuit, at Fedora	Sept. 2, 3
DeSoto, at Hopewell	Sept. 9, 10
Meridian, 7th Ave	Sept. 13
Meridian, Poplar Spgs	Sept. 14
Waynesboro	Sept. 17, 18
Bucatunna, at	Sept. 19
Meridian, South Side	Sept. 20

W. H. LEWIS, P. E.

Seashore Dist.—Third Round.

Lumberton	Aug. 16
Poplarville	Aug. 17
Derby, at Mill Creek	Aug. 18
Carriere and McNeil, at Picayune	Aug. 19, 20
Gulfport, 25th Avenue	Aug. 23
Wolf River Mission, at Durham's Chapel	Aug. 26, 27
Long Beach	Aug. 30
Biloxi	Sept. 2, 3
Bay St. Louis	Sept. 6
Logtown	Sept. 7
Coalville, at Poplar Head	Sept. 9, 10
McHenry and Wiggins, at McHenry	Sept. 13

W. B. JONES, P. E.

Newton Dist.—Third Round.

Friday	Aug. 18
Walunt G., at Freeny	Aug. 19, 20
Homewood, at High Hill Tuesday	Aug. 22
Morton, at Zion Grove, Friday	Aug. 25
Hickory, at Garlandville	Aug. 26, 27
Philadelphia	Fri. Sept. 1
Neshoba, at Sand Town	Sept. 2, 3
Hillsboro, at Prairie Hill, Friday	Sept. 8,
Forest, at Lena	Sept. 9, 10
Indian Mission, at Neshoba	Sept. 16
Stallo, at Neshoba	Sept. 16, 17
Newton	Wed Sept. 20

T. J. O'NEIL, P. E.

Port Gibson Dist.—Third Round.

Rolling Fork, at Cary	Aug. 15
Mayersville, at M.	Aug. 19, 20
Harriston, at Martin	Aug. 25
Washington, at Pine G.	Aug. 26
Natchez, Jefferson St.	Aug. 27, 28
Nebo, at Oak Grove	Sept. 2, 3
Wilkinson, at Mars Hill	Sept. 9
Woodville	Sept. 10
Hermanville, at Sarepta	Sept. 16
Natchez, Pearl St.	Sept. 17
Rocky Springs, at Willows	Sept. 23, 24
Oak Ridge, at Bovina	Sept. 30
Vicksburg, South Washington Street	Oct. 1
Centreville	Oct. 4
Homochitto, at Mt. Vernon	Oct. 6

H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN, P. E.

Brookhaven District—Third Round.

Topisaw, at Topisaw	Aug. 16,
Buford, at Hopewell	Aug. 19, 20
Magnolia	Aug. 26, 27
McComb and Fernwood, at South McComb	Aug. 27,
Wesson	Aug. 30,
Adams, at Ebenezer	Sept. 1,
Meadville, at Ediceton	Sept. 2,
Pearlhaven, at Bethel	Sept. 3,
Brookhaven	Sept. 3, 4
Summit, at East McComb	Sept. 10,
McComb, Centenary	Sept. 10, 11
Monticello, at Georgetown	Sept. 16, 17
Scotland at Bethesda	Sept. 23, 24

J. T. LEGGETT, P. E.

Hattiesburg Dist.—Third Round.

Sumrall, at Sumrall	Aug. 16
Oloh, at Advance	Aug. 17
Prentiss, at Bassfield	Aug. 19, 20
Lucedale, at Shipman	Aug. 27, 28
McLain, at Cross Roads	Sept. 2, 3
Eastabuchie, at McLaurin	Sept. 7
Eucutta, at Broyls	Sept. 9, 10
Sanford, at Sanford	Sept. 16, 17
Seminary, at Bethel	Sept. 20

District Conference at Richton, July 11-14. The conference will organize on the 11th at 8:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present at the organization.

M. B. SHARBROUGH, P. E.

Jackson Dist.—Third Round.

Jackson, Rankin Street, 7:30 p. m.	Aug. 13, 16
Florence, at Richland	Aug. 19, 20
Eden, at Philips	Aug. 21
Lintonia, at Lake City	Aug. 22
Edwards	Aug. 24
Yazoo City	Aug. 27
Benton, at Tranquill	Aug. 28
Deasonville, at Fletcher	Aug. 29
Flora, at Livingston	Aug. 30
Fannip, at Holly Bush	Sept. 6
Jackson, Galloway Chp	Sept. 10
Yazoo City 7:30 p. m.	Sept. 13
Bolton, at Brownsville	Sept. 16, 17
Satartia	Sept. 23, 24

J. R. JONES, P. E.

TEN CENTS NOW

Many more people want Ice Cream than we expected, and the price of

JELL-O Ice Cream Powder

has been reduced from 15 cents to 10 cents a package, so that everybody can have it.

Now you can make the most delicious ice cream for 9 cents a quart or 36 cents a gallon with Jell-O Ice Cream Powder.

Vanilla, Lemon, Strawberry and Chocolate Flavors, and Unflavored, as desired.

Each kind 10 cents a package at grocers'.

Beautiful Recipe Book Free.

The Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

ESTABLISHED 1858
CHURCH AND SCHOOL BELLS
Write for SPECIAL DONATION PLAN Cat. No. 57
THE C. S. BELL COMPANY, HILLSBORO, O.

BEST THING MADE

April 28, 1910, Dothan, Ala.

I began handling Johnston's Tonic in Blakely, Ga., in 1884. In 1892, moved to Dothan, Ala. Have sold more than 1000 bottles. Use it in my family for Colds, Fever and La Grippe. In all the years I have been selling it, never had but 2 complaints. Both parties admitted afterwards they had not used it right.

H. Q. FRAZIER.

April 13, 1910, Greenwood, S. C.

I have used Johnson's Tonic in my family for 9 years. It is all you claim for it and more too. It cured me of Typhus Hemorrhagic Fever. I would have been under the sod 9 years ago but for JOHNSON'S. Tell this to the world. It may save some man's life.

A. P. ALDRICH.

Drives every trace and taint of Malarial Poison from the Blood.

QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Best & Quickest Service

TO ALL
IMPORTANT DESTINATIONS

In the North & East

Summer Tourist Tickets now on Sale to all Mountain, Lake and Seaside Resorts.

—Ticket Office—
211 ST. CHARLES STREET
Phone Main 4482

Terminal Station---Canal Street

Marriages.

July 6, 1911, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Jeffries, Barland, Miss., by Rev. W. L. Blackwell, Mr. J. B. McINNIS, of Buckatunna, Miss., to Miss JENNE B. JEFFRIES.

Jan. 26, 1911, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Lord, Hermanville, Miss., by Rev. W. L. Blackwell, Mr. THOS. C. LORD, to Miss RUTH WILLIAMS.

July 6, 1911, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. T. Shaifer, Conn, Miss., by Rev. W. L. Blackwell, Mr. FREDERICK I. CASSIL, of Chattanooga, Tenn., to Miss MARY I. SHAIFER.

July 13, 1911, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willie Young, Conn, Miss., by Rev. W. L. Blackwell, Mr. A. M. SMITH, of Indianola, Miss., to Miss MAMIE A. YOUNG.

April 26, 1911, at the Methodist Church in Como, Miss., by Rev. J. B. Randolph, Mr. VINNIE ROBERT SANFORD to Miss MATTIE MAY PORTER, both of Como, Miss.

July 22, 1911, at the parsonage in Plaquemine, La., by Rev. R. O. Wier, Mr. ROBT. M. NASH, JR., to Miss ETHEL ROBBINS.

July 26, 1911, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Sam Worsham, of Maringouin, La., by Rev. R. O. Wier, Mr. NOEL B. NORWOOD to Miss JOSIE VIOLA WORSHAM.

July 31, 1911, at the residence of the bride's father, Crystal Springs, Miss., by Rev. Jas. G. Galloway, Mr. CARL C. GARTH and Miss MINNIE PALMER.

June 4, 1911, at the residence of the bride's parents, near Ruth, Miss., by Rev. J. W. Thompson, Mr. JAMES BOONE to Miss LEATHIS FELDER.

July 12, 1911, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Ellott, near Sartinvilie, Miss., by Rev. J. W. Thompson, Mr. F. T. DRUMMOND to Miss BEATRICE ELLOTT.

FROM SHUQUALAK, MISS.

The Methodist parsonage at this place has been nearly compieted as per improvement plan some time pending. The debt also has been paid, and the property insured. It is valued at $2,000, besides the furnishing. The Shuquaiak Church has a new bell, which weighs near 1,000 pounds and rings weil. Cooksville now has a beautiful church, and tbe fine pulpit platform and chancel are soon to be put in place. Mohegan, a 3 p. m. church, is in "apple-pie order" as to the house. We enter soon the work of some special meetings. Call up, Doctor, if you can exhort and "call mourners." The very distinguished and scholarly Bishop Granberry, of Virginia, exhorted at a District Conference, and invited penitents. No one came, but he set the pace, and said, "I believe in the old way." A revival sprang up and sixty people joined the church. A good newspaper, however, is gospel truth and often an exhortation.—A. H. Willlams.

Courting Blindness
Is what you are doing when you neglect twitching, watery, bloodshot, sore eyes. Leonardi's Golden Eye Lotion cures nearly every eye disease. Cools, heals and strengthens. Get "Leon ardi's." It makes strong Eyes.
Guaranteed or money refunded. Druggists sell it at 25 cts. or forwarded prepaid on receipt of price by S. B. Leonardi & Co., Tampa, Fla.

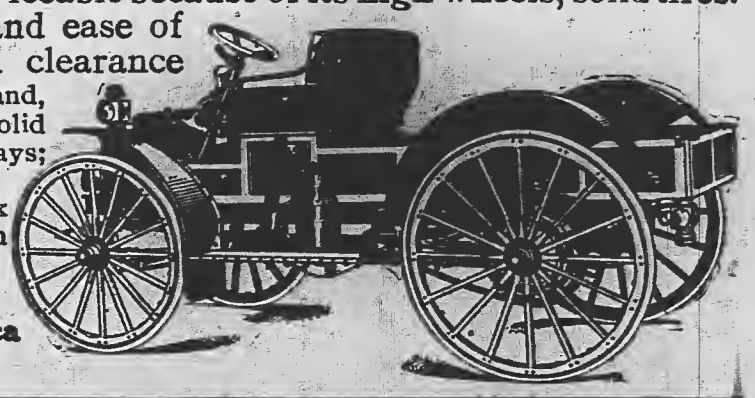
MOTOR CARS have become a factor in modern farming. Farmers recognize the reliable car as one of the greatest savers of time ever provided for their business needs. The quick trip to town in busy seasons without taking horses from work; being able to go anywhere any time; the advantages of getting to markets early and to markets at a distance—these are unanswerable arguments in favor of investing in an

International Auto Wagon

The International is especially serviceable because of its high wheels, solid tires. air-cooled engine, economy of fuel, and ease of operation. High wheels give road clearance and the International will travel through mud, sand, or snow that stalls low-wheeled cars. With solid tires there are no punctures or blow-outs or delays; with the air-cooled engine, no freezing.

And when the International has done its work for the day it is ready to take the family for an evening spin.

Write for catalogue and complete information.



International Harvester Company of America
(Incorporated)
103 Harvester Building Chicago U S A

GEORGIA MARBLE IS SUPERIOR

There is no marble quarry in the whole world that can surpass in magnitude and modern equipment our colossal plant, and no marble in existence that can equal, to say nothing of surpass, the "Cherokee," "Creole," "Etowah" and "Kennesaw" marbles from our quarries. Georgia Marble, because of its exquisite beauty and exceptional lasting qualities, is the aristocrat of all building and monumental stones—none excepted. A monument carved from this celebrated marble will stand century after century as beautiful and unbroken as the day it was erected. It is time and weather proof, and will not discolor from exposure. A building of Georgia Marble is not only the key note to architectural beauty, but is practically indestructible. Georgia Marble is peerless for interior decorating and wainscoting, matching perfectly and harmonizing beautifully in the most exquisite and delicate shades. These are substantial facts, proven by the severest tests of U. S. Government experts. These tests show the crushing strength of Georgia Marble to be upwards of 10,000 pounds per square inch; heat-resisting qualities of upwards of 1,000 degrees Fah. and six one-hundredths of one per cent. absorption. Its chemical analysis shows it to contain 97.32 per cent. carbonate of lime, making it the nearest to purity of any stone in existence used for general purposes. Georgia Marble is a crystalline formation, and it is the closely interlocking of these tiny crystals that makes it the most superior American marble and similar to the Parian marble used in ancient times in building those magnificent palaces and gorgeous temples. There is but one perfect building and monumental stone—Georgia Marble. Ask your dealer to show you samples of "Cherokee," "Creole," "Etowah," and "Kennesaw" Georgia Marble.

If your dealer can't supply you, write us and we will put you in touch with a nearby dealer who can.

The GEORGIA MARBLE COMPANY, Tate, Ga.

Epworth League

By Rev. H. B. Watkins.

TOPIC FOR AUGUST 13, 1911.

"BUSY SERVICE."

Rom. xii, 11; I. Cor. xvi, 58; John ix, 4; Neele. xi, 4-6.

The purpose of this lesson is to show that our service to God and humanity is to be constant, and persistent. If we would follow Christ and the Apostles we must keep busy. In our first reference the Apostle Paul exhorts us to be diligent, fervent, devoted to the Lord's work.

Business and Religion.

Doctor Melvill says: "It is a false opinion which would make labor the consequence of sin. Labor was God's ordinance while man was in paradise. The curse provoked by disobedience was not work, but painful work. Employment is appointed to every living thing. The highest of heaven's angels has his duty to fulfill, and the meanest of earth's insects must be busy or perish. It is the running water which keeps fresh; it is the air fanned by the winds which is wholesome; it is the metal which is in the use that does not rust." The text certainly affirms that our religion and our business are perfectly compatible. We have no scriptural authority for dividing our lives into religious and secular. All duties are sacred. Religion is not so much a duty as something that has to do with all duties, not for one day, but for all days, and, like breathing and circulation of the blood and growth, it may be going on simultaneously with all our actions.

The Work of the Lord.

At the close of a most profound discussion of death and the resurrection, in which Paul tells of the sting of death and victory over the grave through Jesus Christ, Paul's contention is that because of God's goodness in providing so bountifully both for our present and future welfare, we should be steadfast, always abounding in the work of the Lord.

This does not mean that our young people are to be little old men and women. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy." A certain amount of fun and recreation is necessary, but the main object of life should not be merely to have a good time, for "Life is real, life is earnest."

It is said that the Rev. Charles Simeon kept the picture of Henry Martyn in his study. More where he would through the apartment, it seemed to keep its eye upon him, and ever say to him, "Be earnest! don't trifle, don't trifle." And the good Simeon would bow gently to the speaking picture, and with a smile reply, "Yes, I will be in earnest. I will not trifle, for souls are perishing, and Jesus is to be glorified." O Epworthian! look away to the great Master of us all, to the omniscient one, whose eye is ever upon us—to him who said, "I must work the works of him that sent me," and, "Follow me."

Make Your Own Opportunity.

In our last reference we are warned not to wait until some favorable opportunity arises for doing some great work for Christ, but to do well the thing that lies at hand. There is nothing small or great with God, but all service is alike with him, if we put our best into it.

"No service is small:
None great, though earth it fill;
But that is small that seeks its own,
And great that seeks God's will."

The only safe and sane course to pursue is to do our best under all circumstances, and leave the results with God.

The work of the Lord is the same kind of work that Jesus did, who left us an example that we should follow in his steps. "He went about doing good." Every place where Christ was, was sacred. Jesus fed the hungry, comforted the sorrowful, healed the sick, saved the lost. Everything that is for the good of man is the work of the Lord. Dr. Arnold, of Rugby, said that the work of the Lord was to make earth like heaven and every man like God. Some one advises that we all set to work at home, and try to make our homes like heaven; that we practice good temper; that we do everything we can remembering that we are Christ's representatives. Do you know of a young man out of work? Try to get him employment. There is a poor fellow going wrong; try to win him back again.

The Work of Life.

In our third reference a speculative question was brought to Christ, and his answer was: "You may think, talk, and argue; I must work." Every moment of Christ's eventful life was employed in earnest work for others. Like him we too have our lifework to do, and we have only a limited time in which to do it—we may not loiter, we must not be trifilngly employed, for "the night cometh when no man can work." Every life is made up of moments; a kingdom could not purchase one of them. An earnest man will reckon every moment as though it were his last. This view of life may appear too morbid to some of our young people, and yet it is the way Christ himself looked at life, it is the way every earnest follower of Christ has viewed life in the past:

"Not enjoyment and not sorrow
Is our destined end and way,
But to act, that each to-morrow
Find us farther than to-day."

Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

A Frequent Occurrence.

Doctor Arrives Too Late. Boy Sticks Rusty Nail In Foot. Dies From Blood Polson. And another young life is gone because the mother failed to have on hand some reliable antiseptic. Gray's Ointment is a "friend in need" in thousands of homes. The best preventive of Blood Poison, and relief for Poisonous Bites, Carbuncles, Old Sores Boils, etc.

Sold by most druggists for 25c. a box, or a free sample can be had by writing Dr. W. F. Gray & Company, 804 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. W. R. Crise, Detroit, Mich., writes: "It is without doubt the best ointment for healing wounds I ever saw."

Yes or No

There are only two ways about it—either it will or it won't. We say it will, but we leave it to you to judge. You are the one to say YES or NO. We give it to you to try, without a penny, enough to try for a month, and if you try it and say "No" that ends it. If you say "Yes" it means you have found the thing you have been looking for, the right medicine at last; it means you have found new life, new strength, a new joy in living in a new state of health. We want to send you a dollar box of Bodi-Tone on trial in this way. Isn't it fair? We know how Bodi-Tone makes health in the body and think your verdict will be "yes." We want it to be "yes," but you are to be the judge. You are the one to say YES or NO. It is all left to you. When you have tried it you will know why we can make such an offer. When it has cured you you will bless the day you read our offer.

Bodi-Tone

does just what its name means—cures disease by building all the body, and we want you to try a box at our risk and see what it will do for your body. Bodi-Tone is a small, round tablet, that is taken three times every day. Each box contains seventy-five of these tablets, enough for twenty-five days' use, and we send you the full box without a penny in advance, so that you can try it and learn what it is, so you can learn how it works in the body, how it cures stubborn disease by helping nature to tone every organ of the body. Tone is a little word, but it means a great deal, everything in health. When all the organs are doing their part, when each is going in a perfectly natural way, when all the functions are healthy and performed with natural vigor, when the energy, strength and power of resistance to disease are all at a natural point, then the body is in proper tone. When disease has attacked any part, the tone of the entire physical body should be raised to the highest point, to make all the body help to cure. This is the power Bodi-Tone offers you to help you get new health.

Not a Patent Medicine

Bodi-Tone is not a patent medicine, for its ingredients are not a secret. It contains Iron Phosphate, Gentian, Lithia, Chinese Rhubarb, Peruvian Bark, Nux Vomica, Oregon Grape Root, Cascara, Capsicum, Sarsaparilla and Golden Seal. Such valuable ingredients guarantee its merit and power.

When you use Bodi-Tone you know just what you are using, since it is good and safe and know you are taking the kind of medicine to provide real help for the body. It is a pure remedy that satisfies the most exacting. It contains no narcotics or habit-forming drugs, nothing that your own family doctor will not endorse and say is a good thing. It does not depend on killing pain with cocaine, opium, morphine, or other dangerous drugs. It does not excite the body with alcohol, but it tones the body and cures its disorders with remedies Nature intended to tone and cure the body when that power was given them. Bodi-Tone gives life and energy to the blood. Sarsaparilla drives out its impurities, Phosphate and Nux Vomica create new nerve energy and force, Lithia aids in the Kidneys, Gentian does invaluable work for the Stomach and Digestive Tones, Chinese Rhubarb and Oregon Grape Root promote vigorous Liver and Kidney Tone, Peruvian Bark raises the tone of the entire system, Golden Seal soothes the inflamed membrane and checks catarrhal disturbances, Capsicum gives the stomach just the tonic it needs, and Cascara makes all more valuable by insuring their quick absorption into the blood. A remarkable combination that does wonderful work for the body's health.

All For Health

Each ingredient Bodi-Tone contains adds a needed element from nature to the body. Each has work to do and does it well. We claim no credit for discovering the ingredients in Bodi-Tone, each of which has its safe and honored place in the medical books of most of the civilized world. We simply claim the credit for the successful formula which we invented, for the way in which these valuable ingredients are combined, for the proportions used, for the expensive force which chemists of each have found in Bodi-Tone. Many of its ingredients are popularly prescribed by doctors, either separately or in combinations with each other, as each doctor may favor, for there are wide differences of opinion among the doctors of various schools. The exact combination used in Bodi-Tone is what makes Bodi-Tone cure where doctors have failed and gives Bodi-Tone the curative and restorative power that makes possible the remarkable cures experienced by Bodi-Tone users, cures which prove the difference between Bodi-Tone and common remedies. That is why we want to send you a box of Bodi-Tone on trial, as soon as you write for it, for we know you will find it different and superior.

You Need It

If you are tired of ceaseless doctor bills and wearied of continual dosing without results, you need Bodi-Tone right now. If your local doctor is doing you no real good, if you have given him a chance to do what he can and the ordinary medicinal combinations he used have failed, give this modern, scientific combination of special remedies a chance to show and prove what it can do for you. Its greatest triumphs have been among men and women with chronic ailments who had good physicians without lasting benefit, and for this reason all chronic sufferers are invited to try it at our risk.

Bodi-Tone offers its valuable services to you right now. If you are sick, if you need medicinal help, if your bodily organs are not acting as they should, if your body is not in right, natural and normal tone. This is what Bodi-Tone is for, to help Nature restore tone to the body, to restore health, vigor, vitality and strength.

If there is anything wrong with your Kidneys, Bodi-Tone helps to restore tone to the Kidneys, helps to set them right. If there is anything wrong with your Stomach, Bodi-Tone helps to tone the Stomach, helps to set the wrong right. If there is anything wrong with your Nerves, your Blood, your Liver, your Bowels or your General System, the health-making ingredients in Bodi-Tone go right to work and keep on working day after day, producing results of the kind sufferers appreciate. If you have Rheumatism, Bodi-Tone helps to eliminate the Uric Acid from the system while it restores tone to the Kidneys, Stomach and Blood, thereby preventing a continuance of Rheumatic poison and putting new activity into muscles, nerves and joints. Bodi-Tone should be used by all women suffering from any Female Ailment, for its toning properties have been found especially valuable in such ailments.

We Risk All

Why delay another day, when a trial of this proven medicine is yours for the asking? Why keep on suffering, when by clipping the coupon filling in your name and address and mailing it to us, you can get a twenty-five days' treatment of this great remedy which has already restored thousands to health, which thousands everywhere are talking about? It just costs a stamp and you don't pay a penny unless it benefits. The proven of Bodi-Tone have been amply proven by two years of glorious cures. It is no longer a new remedy, but a remedy with a history—a history of cures that has astonished the doctors and delighted the sick.

Tested By Thousands

Bodi-Tone has been tested by many thousands, in a great variety of ailments in both sexes at all ages. Persons suffering from Rheumatism, Stomach trouble, Kidney, Liver and Bladder Ailments, Uric Acid Diseases, Female Troubles, Bowel, Blood and Skin Affections, Dropsy, Piles, Catarrh, Anaemia, Sleeplessness, Lumbago, Pains, General Weakness and Nervous Breakdown, have praised Bodi-Tone and fully proven its remedial value. It will strengthen,

Effect is This Case Almost Magical

HARTFORD CITY, INDIANA.—When I commenced to use Bodi-Tone I had been laid up for about eight weeks with Rheumatism.

Whenever I was able to get around at all, I had to walk with a cane. My flesh was so sore that whenever I would touch it the feeling was just like I was lifting the flesh right off the bone. The effect of Bodi-Tone was almost magical in my case. I had not used it a week before I was able to go back to work. It took all soreness and lameness out of me and I have not since had a Rheumatic ache or pain. I am fifty years of age, but I have never seen a medicine to beat Bodi-Tone. I am a railroad man, and I am recommending Bodi-Tone every where. ABE BRICKER.

Heart Trouble, Smothering, Dropsy

BURNSIDE, KY.—I am fifty-six years old, and for a number of years have been bothered with Heart Trouble, Smothering Spells and Heart Dropsy. I grew very weak, and my legs and arms would swell very much larger than their ordinary size. In fact, my entire body would be swollen, but the swelling was the worst in my limbs. My Kidneys, too, were out of working order and gave me much trouble. My physician treated me and gave me medicine for awhile which seemed to make me worse instead of helping me, and I began to think my case was a hopeless one. But upon seeing the Bodi-Tone advertisement I decided to give it a trial. I got a trial box, and since I took the first dose I have never had a spell with my Heart. I kept it up, and the swelling left me and I continued to get better right along. I am now able to do all my work and am feeling better than I have for years. MRS. WM. VAN HOOK.

Catarrh of Head, Stomach, Bowels

SAN ANTONIO, TEXAS—I had Catarrh of the Head, Stomach and Bowels, and had taken medicine until not a cent was left. I am a war veteran, past 65 years of age, and was a physical wreck when I began to use Bodi-Tone. I had not used all of two boxes when I had regained my appetite, ate heartily and slept well. I thus immediately became an enthusiastic admirer of Bodi-Tone, and have urged its use on everybody I know to clean up the body. This was over a year ago, and my faith in Bodi-Tone grows stronger every day, for its benefits have stayed with me. It regulated my Stomach and Bowels and gave me a good healthy color, so that my friends and associates have remarked at the great change.

W. W. BUCHANAN, 625 Austin Street.

Trial Coupon

Clipped from New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Bodi-Tone Company,
Noyne and North Aves, Chicago, Ill.

I have read your trial offer and want a dollar box of Bodi-Tone on trial. I promise to give it a fair trial and to pay $1.00 for this box if I am benefited at the end of 25 days. If it does not help me I will not pay one penny and will owe you nothing.

Name _____

Town _____

State _____

R. F. D. _____

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

VOL. 58—No. 33. "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which is Good." WHOLE No. 2896.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 17, 1911

CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.
Office, No. 512 Camp St.

Editorial

THE EVANGELISM THAT IS NEEDED.

We believe that men are divinely called and set apart to the office and work of the ministry, and we think it well enough formally to recognize the fact that they have been thus honored by an appropriate ordination service; but the right to proclaim the glorious gospel of Christ does not belong alone to those who in this way have been specially designated and commissioned. The churches are wise in regulating by law the licensing of preachers and in seeking to give them adequate equipment, and never were trained and well furnished men more needed to expound and impress the divine Word than now. The demand for them is widespread and imperative. But, while this is true, let us not forget that it is the duty and privilege of every believer to tell the story of redeeming love. Their recital of it, no conference or synod or convention or ecclesiastical dignitary has a right to restrain. It is too precious and too badly needed by the perishing millions of mankind to be withheld by any artificial restrictions. Democratic in the universality of the blessings which it offers to all alike, the gospel was also designed to have a democratic method of propagation. The good news is for everybody, and everybody is authorized to spread it abroad. In a sense, every disciple should be an evangelist.

A fuller recognition of this common obligation which rests upon all Christians is one of the great needs of the present time. The divine plan is not for the ministry, but for the Church, to save the world. And when the Church perceives this fact and its millions of members begin to pray and work as they ought, mighty and marvelous results will follow. Then will nations be born into the kingdom in a day.

Some denominations have been such sticklers for an educated ministry that seemingly they have been willing to let the gospel go unpreached, if it could not be sounded forth in polished phrases. Though born in a university and numbering among her ministers many eminent for learning and eloquence, Methodism has never been guilty of such stupidity. From the beginning she has had the insight to know that the power of the gospel does not consist in being garnished with the enticing words of men's wisdom, but lies in the great truths which it unfolds and the quickening, life-giving forces which stand behind them and operate through them. To be sure, there is no merit in ignorance, but much of hindrance and weakness. The man who does not seek the utmost possible preparation for the work of the ministry makes a tremendous and censurable mistake. But let us not forget that through the imperfect proclamation of stammering lips Christ had made memorable conquests. It was the crude message of an obscure and unlearned Wesleyan preacher that touched the heart and made a disciple of Charles Haddon Spurgeon. The annals of the churches abound in such instances, and we do not doubt that vastly more, unmentioned by earthly historians, are recorded in the shining Book of Life above.

It is our conviction that the gospel is now too much fettered and restricted by form and ceremony—by improper pride and false notions of propriety. We need to loose it and let it go; or rather, we need to carry it from enclosed walls into the open air and among the people. The world will never be saved in our churches; the preacher in upholstered pulpit cannot reach the masses who never enter the door of a religious chapel. Less concern for a staid respectability, and more anxiety for those who are going down beneath the black waves of sin, would give to our denominations new inspiration and rebaptize them with spiritual power. The tragedy of the age is not that the people are not going to church, but that the Church is not going to the people. O for loving hearts and consecrated lips to talk of Christ everywhere—by the fireside, on the street, in the market-place, in the crowded park, or wherever else there are human ears to listen! How utterly lacking in stiff and stately formality was the Master's ministry when he came to seek and save that which was lost! Neither church, nor pulpit, nor choir had he. Wherever opportunity offered, he opened his mouth and taught. Beside all waters he scattered the precious seeds of truth. None were beneath his notice—he would discourse to a single susceptible soul as readily as he would to the clamoring multitude. Indeed, he was much more of a teacher than a preacher. It was by means of his luminous conversations carried on with one or a few persons, rather than by set and formal sermons, that he appeared to accomplish most. Remarking upon this fact and stressing the point that religious conversation ought to be made more of in our own age, Dr. Lyman Abbott, writing under the caption of "The Master Builder," in The Outlook of Aug. 5, says:

"Christ's greatest work was done by conversation. There are not in his biographies more than four or five addresses which could by any possibility be called sermons or lectures. He talked with the people, rather than to the people. We cannot all be preachers or orators; we cannot all be writers or authors, but we can all talk with our fellow-men; and there is no way to the human heart so direct as the way of conversation, no way in which we exert so great an influence on our fellows, and none concerning which we think so carelessly, so lightly, so almost contemptuously. I write this article, it is printed in The Outlook, and goes out, and I know not who reads it, and, save in an occasional letter, get no answering response from voice or face. The author talks to his audience as one talks through a telephone, and he does not even know whether any one has the receiver at his ear at the other end or not. His personality counts for little. Only his ideas count. The speaker looks into the faces of his audience, gets from those faces an answer to his words, knows, or can know, whether his audience is attending or not attending, whether it welcomes his utterances or is hostile to them. Yet the orator is left largely to surmise or to reading an enigmatical book. The countenances of his auditors are not all tell-tale countenances.

"But in conversation mind meets mind, soul meets soul. You give out your thought; you get back an expression of the understanding or the misunderstanding. If you are understood, you can reinforce your utterance. If you are misunderstood, you can at least try to correct the misunderstanding. The pastorate is not less important than the pulpit, if the minister is a true pastor, if he knows how to conduct a conversation. One great secret of the power of the Roman Catholic Church is the confessional, because in the confessional the priest ministers to the individual, and with at least some understanding of the individual want. Nathaniel Hawthorne, a wonderful reader of the human soul, has interpreted the true value of the confessional in portraying Hilda's anguished secret and the relief she found in her one experience in the confessional.

"It is largely the fault of Christians that society is so idle and inane, a round of fruitless calls and a market-place for the exchange of empty phrases. Had we the spirit of the Master, the receptive sympathy of the Master, and the tact of the Master, we should be able to vitalize these profitless exchanges of empty phrases, and make society a more eloquent minister to real life than either the pulpit or the prayer meeting."

SINS OF DISPOSITION.

It is the inclination of most people to limit sin to the realm of outward conduct. They condemn severely wrong actions, such as swearing, drinking, stealing, gambling, and Sabbath desecration, but if a man is free from such vices they affirm him to be moral and good. Such a view is superficial and erroneous. Sins of the disposition are not less offensive to Him who can read the deep secrets of the human heart than those which express themselves in deeds. Profanity is no worse than envy, or selfishness, or covetousness, or unjust judgments, or unbelief. The Pharisee, proud of his outward morality, was farther from the divine kingdom than the penitent publican. Our Lord when he was upon earth arraigned no class so terrifically as he did those who, while affecting to hold to the forms of religion, were utterly destitute of its true spirit. It is essential that we should be Christlike in conduct, but not less so that we should have the "mind which was also in Christ Jesus."

CAREFULNESS IN WRITING NEEDED.

As he advances in years Mr. Edison seems to increase in talkativeness. This is not unusual. The garrulity of old age has long been a matter of frequent comment. Nor does it always manifest itself in a free use of the tongue. It sometimes breaks out in the form of the "scribbler's itch." We mean no disrespect to those who are far down life's western slope. On the contrary, we reverence and honor them. The speech and writing of many of them are the expressions of garnered wisdom which inspire and bless. It is when they essay to be critics and discuss subjects about which they know little that they do harm. An unkind word spoken is a serious offense in the sight of God—much more so is an unjust thing written for the press, because its influence for evil is vastly more far-reaching. If the Psalmist prayed, "Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth," the man who sits down to write may well ask the divine Father to place a guard before his pen.

Christian Advocate.

Published for the Louisiana, Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

DIRECTIONS:

Correspondents will please direct all communications intended for the Editor to 811 Camp St., New Orleans, La. Communications intended for the Business Department should be addressed to the Manager of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if this date is not moved forward after three weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise.

SOME FURTHER REMARKS APROPOS OF THINGS PREVIOUSLY WRITTEN.

By Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, B.D.

Mr. G. K. Chesterton, in one of his books, "The Napoleon of Notting Hill," pictures a condition in England as existing a hundred years hence in which enthusiasm for anything will be unknown; conviction, faith and all hold upon any spiritual principles, patriotic or religious, for which one is willing to stand, to suffer and to die if need be, will have died out from the hearts of men, if present tendencies come to their ripe flower and fruit. Materialism he pictures thus as reigning complete and undisturbed. But into this world of indifference he introduces first, in a meteor-like flash, a rugged warrior and statesman, the last president of Nicaragua, a little state recently subdued and disrupted for commercial reasons, in whose heart burn the fires of patriotism, who actually still loves his native land, and who protests against the injustice of her subjugation. He passes, and later another character arises who so loves his Notting Hill as to protest resistance to plans which, to conserve a new boulevard, would tear down its buildings and destroy its historic associations. The book is a kind of weird prophecy, in the form of a story, of what will be the outcome of such liberalism and lack of conviction and trust in evolutionary processes as is abroad in the world to-day. It has its message and its warning to our age, and nowhere is it more needed than in the Church.

Not only is the martyr spirit but little known in the Church to-day, it is not even respected by many; convictions which you stand for ardently, to oppose nothing as evil and misleading, but to sit smiling as an onlooker at everything, with a heart loyal to and zealous for nothing, is the approved modern fashion in some ecclesiastical circles.

But such an attitude, while possibly worldly-wise and relieving one from the discomfort and peril of conflict, is utterly unmanly and unchristian. It is, indeed, cowardly and contemptible in a world of sin where so much is at stake, where truth and error, right and wrong are in mortal conflict, to attempt to occupy a neutral ground, to assume an Athenian attitude of an intellectual interest while ignoring the moral interests involved, or complacently saying, "truth is right and will prevail, she needs no defense," is weak excuse for subjecting her to all manner of attack, and failure to vigorously come to her defense.

While in the long run it is true that truth will prevail, both history and common sense reveal that truth will prevail in any given age, Church or place only as she finds human lips through which to speak, and human hearts brave and true to defend her. Truth has gone down many a time before error, but only because those knowing her loved her not, or were too cowardly to proclaim and defend her. She has risen again, after years and centuries, it has often been, only as she has found human voice to give her utterance. So we may well beware of sophistry underlying such shallow and oft-repeated phrases.

Apropos of this we revert to our position taken some months ago in an article in this Advocate entitled "An Uncertain Sound of the Trumpets," to which two indirect replies have been made by Dr. Alexander in the July number of the Quarterly Review. The one is an unworthy fling running thus, to which my attention has been called time and again as alluding to myself. "Now, if some aspiring young newspaper correspondent wants to startle, and frighten the civilized world by writing an alarming article to the effect that the editor of the Methodist Review is now about to become a Jew, let him now write or else hereafter forever hold his peace. Selah." Such an aspersion of my motives as well as misrepresentation of my position I have no desire to answer, except to assure Dr. Alexander that he cannot by such language either disprove my argument or vindicate to the Church his policy of presenting through the Review the higher criticism by its subtlest advocates.

The other allusion to my article bears more the semblance of an answer, and is deserving of more careful consideration. In defending the introduction of an article by Dr. J. C. Granbery, in which the writer's position as well as the position of the author discussed, is as usual far away from Methodism, he says: "Now some friendly friend of the Review who trembles for the peril of its orthodoxy may feel moved to ask why it was thought proper to devote any of its space to such a character and career as Nietzsche's. Perhaps we might throw a little ray of light on the question by observing: 1. That one of the very functions and ends of a review of this kind and class is to keep its readers informed, as far as possible, of the great currents of thought and the great thinkers of the day; for its readers are supposed to be men of minds sufficiently mature to want to know what is going on in the world and to make proper use of such knowledge."

Our reply to this statement is three-fold.

1. We will admit that "ONE of the functions and ends of a review" is, as claimed with emphasis upon the unemphasized one. But we would add that the function stated is a decidedly subordinate function (which Dr. Alexander seemingly forgets) to its one supreme function, to advance the kingdom of God among men (which Dr. Alexander does not mention), and to which the intellectual function must be subordinated. In other words, ethical and spiritual interests and influences must ever be first regarded, and not the intellectual curiosity of "men of minds sufficiently mature to want to know what is going on in the world," and who themselves, supposedly, can "make the proper use of such knowledge."

The Review is certainly not a journal for the "mere promotion of literary and theological culture," and again quoting Dr. Meek in an able editorial on the subject in this Advocate of July 27, "that it is to be an open forum where persons of all beliefs and no belief may meet upon terms of equality and set forth their variant teachings is a conception of its function to which we cannot give endorsement." As truly as through every sermon a moral and spiritual purpose should run, so through every issue of a church periodical, through every article indeed, moral and spiritual purposes, or at least a careful regard for moral and spiritual influences, should unify the whole and make it conserve one great end. Otherwise it falls at the vital point, and becomes a citadel of folly into which enemy and friend alike are admitted to mutually destroy each other. When theology and practical religion become separated each suffers, and theology runs wild, as in Germany to-day. And when a theological journal states its mission in words such as have already been quoted, without such safeguards as we are seeking now to put around it, it is evidence that some utterance is appropriate concerning "An Uncertain Sound of the Trumpet."

Such keeping uppermost the interests of the kingdom of God among men, and the inspiration of our preachers with a greater love and loyalty to the faith through more fully informing them and more deeply grounding them in its unchangeable truths is what I have reason to affirm, the preachers of Southern Methodism (whatever others may prefer) are looking for and wanting in our Review. And tested by this sacred and supreme standard, considerable which has appeared in the Review of late, would not, we believe, have been given a place therein; or its form and spirit would have been materially altered, and without injury to the Review, either.

2. This brings us to our second point in reply to Dr. Alexander's position, a point brought out very clearly by Mr. J. D. Barbee in the New Orleans Advocate of July 27th. "An element of the highest importance is the manner in which this information is imparted," whether as stating it and refuting it, or stating it with qualified or unqualified approval. Is the subject presented from the orthodox evangelical viewpoint and purpose, or from a non-committal or mildly opposing standpoint? Certainly notes partially favorable to even the most radical teaching have been heard in the Review of late, and few vigorous utterances in defense of the faith have we seen.

For instance, on the same page Dr. Granbery says of Nietzsche: "He tells us that as long as the morality of Christianity is not considered the arch crime of life, its defenders (Christians) will have an easy time — the soul of Christianity must be attacked." Still, Dr. Granbery adds: "In spite of all the bitter things that he (Nietzsche) has said against us, we are almost disposed to claim him." Just before, he has quoted this "almost Christian" as having "a contempt for the would-be opponents of Christianity who concede that the morality of Christianity is noble, though somewhat impracticable." We are further informed that "decadent youths and aesthetic apostles preach in his name a brutal immorality," and that "the program of the Congregations of Nietzsche is to overthrow the Christian religion." Nietzsche was, it appears, not only an infidel, but an atheist, a teacher of immoral theories, "a prophet of the anarchists," "a genius of the socialists." In fact, nothing could be baser than the writings and influence of this man, yet Dr. Granbery kindly relieves him of responsibility for this awful progeny, and says: "Do not oppose Nietzsche, only understand him; then it will not be necessary to oppose him." "He was a wounded saint," who was essentially religious, though he repudiated all religion, and whose ideal was in part Christian," because of virtues which even the devil can be shown to possess, if such they may be called. I confess that all such aesthetic attempts to embrace even our worst enemies as our friends appear to me but repulsive ethical twaddle.

Dr. Alexander characterizes this dark prophet of anarchy, immorality, and infidelity by the innocent title of "Freak," (a harmless kind of curiosity), and in his Notes on Contributed Articles cites the fact that he has done vast harm in Germany. (no, such words suggest too clearly the consideration of ethical effects to be in good form now); that "Nietzsche is the sensation of Germany just now," and has many adherents as "a symptom of the unappeasable restlessness that is prevalent in that land of such awful learning, where, to such a large extent, intellectualism is deified and rationalism has gone mad."

Very good, Doctor, and if you want to understand me exactly, I am only trying to restrain tendencies here toward a cold-blooded intellectualism which would make of the Review merely an arena for the exploiting, without reference to moral effects, of every new vagary and theory, unsettling to everything, and leading us toward that "unappeasable restlessness" which you say has made even the "inhuman theories" of Nietzsche acceptable in Germany, and worthy of extended notice in the Methodist Review. You say, secondly, (it is an old excuse) that we may draw useful and powerful lessons from such cases. That we should be moderate in our criticism and unbelief, for instance. The real lesson I see is that having once drawn near a putrid carcass, it is not agreeable to draw near again. I assure you that I want no more of Herr Nietzsche, and shall have nothing to say of him to my congregation. The "unappeasable restlessness" has not reached me yet. Brother Granbery, in his German researches, must have imbibed somewhat of this German spirit if he is "almost disposed to claim him." As Mr. Barbee states, "such welcome to the foes of our religion, both small and great, is one of the alarming facts of the day."

Finally, I would call attention to the fact that the added clause, "for its readers are supposed to be men of minds sufficiently mature," is itself an admission that some of the articles contained in the Review are not suitable for immature minds. Now, Dr. Alexander well knows that our young preachers are required now, in the course of study, to read the Review; and as Brother Barbee says concerning the rest of us, "Dr. Alexander should take nothing for granted concerning the maturity of his readers' minds." In fact, he knows that our ministry as a whole is neither interested in nor capable of handling critical questions and transcendental theology. So, certainly, unless he would ask, "Am I my brother's keeper?" he has no right to subject the Church to perils of doctrinal instability and uncertainty for the mere sake of pleasing the restless ones who are trying to keep up with all the winds and currents which are blowing to-day. When he finds a new, refreshing, invigorating current, let it blow upon us, we pray; but subject us not to every chilling breeze of doubt concerning things indubitable, which approach from the north quarter and across the sea. Under the influence of what icy blasts from the new thought centers could Dr. Alexander have written the following on page 576, supposedly descriptive of conditions to-day: "Nobody is quite sure there is a God. A great host of people are sure the Bible cannot be depended on, either as a correct history of the facts which it purports to record, or the religious truths which it purports to teach. An increasing number of people in and out of the churches accept the Unitarian estimate and theory of Jesus Christ," etc. And under the influence of what counter current could he have written that superficial and unjust arraignment of the ministry on page 570? Surely, in handling the "great currents," our brother has himself "taken cold," and needs to bathe more in the warm atmospheres of faith and hope and love which yet flow outside the critical circles; else, at this rate, he will chill us all.

In conclusion, we repeat the closing paragraph of our former article, which has not yet been refuted, and which is, we believe, self-evident:

"The supposed liberality which opens one's gates to enemies and friends alike, giving hostile forces a chance to propagate their ideas and enlarge their influence through our pages and from our platforms, making our own home a battleground unless we are to surrender our cause, is self-destructive and contrary to both reason and precedent. You will not find orthodox articles accepted and used by 'liberal' journals, nor orthodox and evangelical ministers invited to deliver addresses from platforms devoted to the promulgation of new ideas, nor orthodox books reviewed by them with more than scant courtesy, and flings at their 'traditional viewpoint and failure to grasp the modern spirit.' Every one of us, if we are to be men and are to exert the influence of a man in the world, must choose whom we will serve, and our bias must then be unblushingly acknowledged, and both personally and officially our influence exerted for good or ill. If wise, our choice will be made deliberately and prayerfully."

Lexington, Miss.

DO GOD'S PLANS EVER FAIL?

By Rev. W. S. Lagrone.

It may sound startling with some to say that God's plans often fail, but the Bible is very clear on this point. Most of God's plans in this world are dependent for their complete outworking upon man, and if men fail, God's plans fail. What an awful responsibility we are under to God and ourselves and the world! And the failure is all the greater with us because God has not left us to work out these plans alone. "We are laborers together with God," and if his plans fail, it is not God's failure, but man's. God never fails. Unfortunately, there is a great difference between what men do and what God would have them do. If men were carrying out God's plans, this world would be a paradise. There would be no jails, no penitentiary, no asylums, no saloons, no gambling hells, no vile men or women, no crime, no sin, no heathenism, no idolatry.

"Oh," you say, "this cannot be." Then you are driven to the absurdity of saying all this is God's plan, not one word of which do I believe, nor does his Word teach. Every man has the ability, the opportunity, and privilege of fulfilling God's plans for himself and his work in the world. We dare not say God plans any man's failure. This would be a contradiction of every law of his divine being and attributes. Reason, and judgment, and conscience revolt at such a declaration. God's plan for every man is that he should hold true to the image in which he was created; so the man who has lost that image in eternal death has made a failure of God's plan for his life. Just as it is with the final outcome of an entire life, so it is with every act and detail of life. God never planned that any man should sin. When any man sins, he makes God's plan for him a failure. The very fact that God put a curse upon the first pair in the garden for sinning, is evidence of the fact that it was not his plan.

As the disobedient child spoils the plan of its parent, so men make God's plans a failure. God planned for Moses to lead Israel out of Egypt into Canaan, but he sinned at Meribah and made a failure of God's plan for him. God plainly said that, because of his sin, he should not bring Israel into Canaan. Inasmuch as God himself gave this as a reason for keeping Moses out of Canaan, it would seem to contradict God's own word as evidence that it had been his plan (thwarted by Moses' sin) that he should lead Israel into Canaan. God's plan failed with Saul, the first king of Israel. He did great things for Saul to fit him for carrying out his plans, but his plans failed and he left him to his own undoing. God's plan failed with the Jews, for it is declared that, "He came unto his own and his own received him not." Jesus said, "Your house is left unto you desolate," and so it is until this day. The angels in heaven sinned and God's plan failed with them for it is written, "God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, and delivered them into chains of darkness to be reserved unto judgment." He "spared not the old world, bringing in the flood upon the world of the ungodly." He "turned the cities of Sodom and Gomorrah into ashes, condemned them with an overthrow," showing that his plan had failed, and "making them an ensample unto those that after should live ungodly."

How shall any man escape ruin, failure and death, if he defeats or disappoints God's plans for him. Nothing in all the wide range of revealed truth teaches more clearly man's responsibility, possibility, and capability than this. It is the greatest honor he could have conferred upon us, and nothing should inspire us more than that he has made the working out of his plans dependent upon us.

Greenville, Miss.

ONE SUNDAY AT YELLOWSTONE STATION.

By Mrs. J. R. Ellis.

My husband and I have just returned from a tour through the great West—Colorado, Salt Lake, California and Yellowstone Park. It is of Sunday, July 9, I want to tell you. But I will say before I begin, that we went with one of the "Radnor Parties;" everything, everywhere, was more and better than we had anticipated; although we had studied the literature carefully for months. Radnor does all he promises and more. It is marvelous how he gives those trips, and at the small cost. We attended the First Methodist Episcopal Church in Los Angeles, Rev. C. E. Locke, pastor. At Colorado Springs, we attended the Central M. E. Church, Rev. Merle A. Smith, pastor. At Yellowstone Station there is no house of worship; however, a few of us had been planning all along to have religious exercises of some kind when our train was stationed there, Sunday, July 9. Radnor does not let a wheel of any of his trains turn on the Sabbath; neither do they conduct any sight-seeing tours on that day. On this beautiful Sabbath morning, while we were at breakfast, Mr. J. C. Eshman came into the dining car and requested us to meet at the station, which was only a short distance, at eleven o'clock, and that we would have Sunday school. Radnor has placed a nice, new organ there for the use and benefit of his parties. A little after ten o'clock we began to gather into the large new station, which had been set in order for us. The large room was perfectly clean; a cooler full of ice water was set in a conspicuous place, and there were nice, large oak-colored benches. Some chairs had been brought in and large, beautiful pictures of Yellowstone scenery were hanging on the walls. We were told that some of these cost Uncle Sam more than $100, none less than $50. They were all hand-painted. Long before the hour hand of the big clock pointed to eleven, Bro. Eshman said: "I am glad to see seventy-five of our party present. I hope the others will come in yet." There were 127 in the party and many of them did come before we concluded.

But, kind Editor, it is not every one that attends Sunday school every Sunday, when at home, where there is nothing new and nowhere to go. But this was Yellowstone Park, a place that is read about and dreamed of by many, perhaps all of their lives, even if they never go there. This being the case, it was too much for some of them, who are fine people, too. After breakfast they formed into small parties, many of them no doubt intending to get back in time for Sunday school. They wandered around in "Christmas Tree Park" to take in the beautiful scenery presented to the tourist, with the background of snow-capped mountains. Others strolled still farther away, into the "Very Park," even as far as Madison river, which is one and a half miles from the entrance.

Later in the day, when we were all "at home" on our special, some of us thought we would hold a private conference with those wayward members of our large family. They were all repentant; some declared they didn't intend to go so far, but there was so much to see they forgot all about Sunday school, and when they looked at their watches, it was after eleven o'clock. One bright girl said "she was going to tell the whole truth about it;" she could go to Sunday school every Sunday at home, but that she had never been to Yellowstone Park before, and maybe she would never come again, so she decided to make good use of this Sunday here and go to Sunday school when she went home. Another open-faced, mischievous girl said: "Now, sure enough, we started back and would have been here, but you know the soldier boys live right out there in tents—why it's not half a mile from here; and my crowd met four of them, and we just talked and talked till we forgot about coming back. Oh, those boys are so cute, and have the loveliest horses I ever saw."

These and similar reasons for not answering to "roll call" was all our conference amounted to. Really, if it was to do over, I think it would all be just the same. We must not forget that older people forget sometimes, too, even when they are far away from the world-renowned national park. There were several music teachers in our party, and long before the hour set for our meeting a happy crowd had gathered about the organ, and everybody in the room who could sing was doing the best he could. Only familiar songs were used. It is not often that some of us have the privilege of hearing these sweet songs of Zion sung as they were that morning. At eleven o'clock, Brother Eshman read the lesson for July 9, and made a good talk; then Brother Ellis lead in an earnest prayer, after which Miss Hawkins of Huntington, Tenn, gave a review of the last quarter's lessons. She asked many questions, and we were pleased to see how promptly they were answered, which proved that many present had studied the lessons closely. There were 14 Bibles and two quarterlies counted; this was an evidence that some were thinking of our Lord when packing their suitcases for this great trip. Perhaps others brought Bibles, but we only mention the ones in sight. Miss Hawkins has an organized class of 24 young men in her Sunday school at Huntington. She is a consecrated girl, and her talk at Yellowstone was inspiring. Our Sunday morning service was closed by singing "Nearer, My God, to Thee," and a prayer by Miss Huntington.

Many of us lingered and were loath to leave the spot; our hearts had been "strangely warmed" and we felt that it was "good to be there." We had a real "mountain top experience." We earnestly hope there will be many more Sabbath mornings like this, not perhaps at this particular place, but in our own homes and churches of our own Mississippi Conference.

Mount Olive, Miss.

SUPPOSE YOU HAVE A FIRE TO-NIGHT?
GET SOLID PROTECTION AND INSURE WITH
LEON IRWIN & CO.
FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.
736 Union Street. Phone, Main 585.

Secular News and Comment

Mr. John W. Gates, the well known American financier, died in Paris, France, on Aug. 9. He was born on a farm in DuPage County, Ill., near Turner Junction (now West Chicago), in 1855.

* * *

Farm land in the sixteen States comprised in the territory of the Southern Commercial Congress has doubled in the average value per acre in the past ten years. The increase is from $9.60 in 1900 to $19.71 in 1910.

* * *

Miss Dorothy Jones, of Toledo, Ohio, aged nineteen, has recently been made a Doctor of Philosophy by the University of Michigan, at Ann Arbor. She is believed to be the youngest person in the United States holding this degree.

* * *

A vigorous effort will be made by representatives of New Orleans to prevent the abandonment of the naval station here. President Taft has been waited upon in regard to the matter, and has promised to inquire personally into it. It is Secretary Meyer's opinion that it ought not to be kept up.

* * *

General George W. Gordon, commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans and Congressman from the Memphis district, died in Memphis on Aug. 9. He was born in Giles County, Tenn., Oct. 5, 1836. He was a gallant soldier in the War between the States, and held in the course of his long life many public positions of honor and trust.

* * *

The spread of pellagra in the mountain counties of Eastern Kentucky has become so alarming and deaths from the disease have become so numerous that a state-wide conference was held at Corbin a few days since, which was participated in by medical experts, who discussed the best way of stamping out the disease. At the Eastern Kentucky Insane Asylum alone there have been thirty deaths from pellagra.

* * *

There appears not the slightest chance that Justice Moody of the Supreme Court of the United States will ever be able to resume his seat. Friends who have seen him recently report that he is forced to lie upon air cushions and be wheeled to the porch, where he gets fresh air on pleasant days. It is difficult for him to move his head and he is scarcely able to use his arm to take a cigarette from his mouth. He probably will retire before the next session of Congress.

* * *

Congress passed the measure admitting New Mexico and Arizona into the Union as States on Aug. 7. The feature of the Arizona Constitution providing for the recall of judges, however, is said to be quite obnoxious to President Taft, and it is thought that in consequence of this, he may veto the bill. We have little sympathy with the initiative and referendum, but it strikes us that if the people of Arizona desire such a provision in their Constitution, that they are entitled to have it.

* * *

Governor Dix, of New York, is apparently being thrust into the arena of national politics as a presidential candidate by Tammany. This has put the politicians to speculating, as this organization has generally been supposed to look with favor upon the aspirations of Governor Harmon, of Ohio. Governor Woodrow Wilson is also keeping busy and is allowing no grass to grow under his feet. Evidently this "scholar in politics" does not believe in the old saying, "The office should seek the man."

* * *

Admiral Togo has been kept busy sight-seeing since his arrival in the United States. He has visited Washington, Baltimore, and Philadelphia, looked in on Congress while it was in session, and placed a wreath on the tomb of Washington at Mount Vernon, and on the grave of Admiral Charles S. Perry, whom he met in Japan while he was in charge of the American fleet. Everywhere the great Japanese commander has been accorded an enthusiastic reception. The Emperor of Japan has wired President Taft his appreciation of the manner in which Admiral Togo was received at the White House.

* * *

Dr. Ernst C. Levy, chief health officer of Richmond, Va., states that, though the colored people constitute only 32 per cent. of that city's population, 96 per cent of the deaths occur among them, and that their birth rate is also considerably less than that of the white people. He predicts that the negro race will become extinct in the United States in the twenty-first century. That there is some ground for such a prophecy is perhaps true, but, of course, there is in it a large measure of speculation. It is the black man's vices that are destroying him, and Christianity may yet come to his rescue. Nothing else can.

* * *

The divorce evil is said to be growing in America at an alarming rate. According to report, the number in 1885 was 23,000, and in 1905, 68,000. If this ratio of increase is kept up it is computed that by 1950, one marriage out of every four will thus terminate. From this it would seem that William E. Gladstone was right, when in enumerating the things which most threaten civilization, he mentioned the light regard in which the solemn marital obligations are coming to be held. The family is the unit of society—the only safe foundation upon which governments and the social order can rest, and if that gives way what must result is too frightful to contemplate. Against this growing evil the churches and all good people should resolutely stand, and exercise the full measure of their influence.

A CORRECTION.

Dear Dr. Meek: I write to correct an erroneous statement that appears in the report given by Brother Dawson of the Newton District Conference in last week's Advocate, in which he gives me credit for having baptized 89 infants this year. I do not know how such a mistake could have been made, unless it was by my own hand in filling out the report blank on "the state of the church." In fact, I have baptized only 9 infants this year; but expect that I could find at least 80 more by diligent search who ought to be baptized.

I can say that of the twelve young men who were licensed to preach, six of them were recommended by my quarterly conferences. However, all the credit for sending up so many does not belong to me. Two or three of these young men are attending our Training School here, and placed their membership here in order to get recommendations to the District Conference for license to preach.

Three of my meetings have been held with results as follows: Ten accessions by baptism and eleven by vows. One church has been reorganized at Missionary, four miles west of Rose Hill, with twenty-five members. We are enterprising a new church at Louin, where we have a small society of about thirty members, but no house of worship.

Brother B. W. Lewis assisted in two of the meetings and Brother J. W. Campbell in one. They gave very efficient service and the blessings of the Lord attended their efforts. Fraternally,

H. P. LEWIS, JR.

Montrose, Miss.

FROM THE COLPORTER.

After a strenuous itinerary of several months, I am taking a brief vacation at home for rest, catching up with correspondence and getting affairs in order generally, preparatory to the business of the fall season.

Of the fifteen district conferences, I have attended ten, and would gladly have been with the others but for conflict of dates.

My latest visitations were to the Hattiesburg and Newton District Conferences at Richton and Union. I was also at the Seashore Camp Meeting and spent a few days in Gulfport, Hattiesburg and Laurel. Everywhere and by everybody there was cordial welcome, generous entertainment and every token of brotherly kindness given to the visiting brother and fellow laborer.

On the fourth Sunday in July I was in Gulfport, where I preached in the morning for Bro. J. T. Abney at Twenty-ninth Street Church to a good congregation, and in the evening for Bro. W. T. Griffin at the Sailors' Bethel, to about fifty seamen and a few others. This was an inspiring service. The audience was well behaved and attentive. Nearly all joined in the singing and seemed to be interested in all the exercises.

Brother Griffin is doing a great work in this mission for the seamen by his faithful ministry in preaching, pastoral and social mingling with them, circulating the Holy Scriptures and religious literature in their various languages, and in caring for those in need of help.

The house ("Sailors' Rest") is well arranged and equipped with rooms for religious services, reading, cooking, eating and sleeping.

Annually, there are more than 3500 who attend the gospel services; more than 10,000 visits to the reading rooms and 5000 magazines and other periodicals, tracts, etc., distributed. Thus bread is being cast upon the waters that shall be found in after days (see Eccl. 11:1) and seed are being sown by all waters that shall produce much fruit (see Isaiah 32:20).

I did not visit the "Wesley House" at Biloxi, which belongs to this Gulfport Mission, but Bro. Griffin reports the work there, in charge of Miss Long, as growing in influence and power for good.

Truly this evangelistic and humanitarian work of our Church on the Gulf Coast deserves prayerful and financial support. It is well located and domiciled, and no better man can be found for the place than Brother Griffin, who is fully consecrated to the work, and has wisely chosen helpers. Aid can be afforded not only as above suggested, but also in sending to him laid-aside papers, magazines, books, tracts, etc.

Having done with the district conferences for 1911, and entered upon the last third of the ecclesiastical year, let all, preachers and people, renew their consecrated efforts in the meetings to be held, and by other agencies, for a great revival in the Church and the rescue of the perishing.

For the accomplishment of these ends this writer is with the brethren in spirit and purpose, and is ever ready to aid ministerially, officially or otherwise, as may be desired, for "we are laborers together with God."

G. W. BACHMAN,

Winona, Miss., Aug. 5, 1911.

MIDSUMMER READING.

Shall it be frothy fiction, or blood-heating adventure? Certainly it should not be brain-tiring literature, requiring fatiguing application.

MODES OF THE HEAVENLY LIFE

is a book that you will read with care-forgetting delight, and arise refreshed in faith and zeal. Then you will read it again and again with new appreciation. Cloth and gold, only 50 cents, postpaid.

"To say that I enjoyed reading 'Modes of the Heavenly Life,' is to express my appreciation but mildly. I read it the first time at one sitting and was strengthened in faith and hope. I have read it through again and some of it the third time. My estimate has grown with each reading. It cannot fail to inspire higher aspirations in any one who will read it. I hope it will have a large circulation, and I commend it most heartily to all seekers after the truth concerning the office and work of the Holy Ghost." R. W. Tucker, Presiding elder, Ruston District.

Order from Chas. O. Chalmers, 512 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

THE
Grant Furniture Co.
IS NOW HAVING A
GREAT REMOVAL SALE
PRICES ON EVERY ARTICLE
IN THEIR
ENTIRE STOCK HAVE BEEN REDUCED
OUTFITS ESPECIALLY PRICED
427-429-431 Camp Street, New Orleans

The AMERICAN PAINT WORKS
——Manufacturers of——
High Grade Mixed Paints; Perfecto White Lead; Nonpareil Carriage Paint; Varnish Stain; Colors in Oil; Wood Fillers; Chemically Pure Dry Colors, Etc.
428-434 JOSEPHINE STREET.....Phone 915
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Church News

A Chinese Methodist Church was recently dedicated in San Francisco by Bishop Hughes.

* * *

It is stated that the Northern Baptists will send 33 additional missionaries to the foreign field within the next few months.

* * *

Billy Sunday's revival campaign at Erie, Penn., which lasted six weeks, is reported to have resulted in 5,312 conversions.

* * *

The visitors to the Passion Play at Oberammergau last year numbered 280,000. Of these, eighty per cent are estimated to have been Americans.

* * *

Dr. C. F. Reid has lately been campaigning within the bounds of the Western North Carolina Conference in the interest of the Laymen's Movement.

* * *

It has been announced that the Methodist Episcopal Church will celebrate the silver anniversary of its work in Korea by undertaking to raise $300,000 to extend its operations in that country.

* * *

Bishop James Atkins attended the recent session of the Lake Shore Assembly, near Wichita Falls, Texas, and delivered two addresses upon the subject of education which are said to have made a profound impression.

* * *

A contemporary says: "Three churches in the mountains of the Philippine Islands are composed entirely of people who were formerly bandits. When the missionaries came, whole villages left off robbing and settled down to farming.

* * *

Dr. James Hasting, renowned as a scholar and editor of the famous Dictionary of the Bible which bears his name, will retire from his pastorate at St. Cyr, Scotland, and devote all his time to literary work.

* * *

The Sunday school of the Bethlehem Presbyterian Church, of Philadelphia, is larger numerically than the church membership. It has 1,407 pupils, while the names upon the church register foot only 1,349.

* * *

The Italy Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church has memorialized the General Conference of that denomination, which is to meet next May, to place two resident Bishops in Europe, one of them to be located at Rome.

* * *

The paper which has the largest circulation of all the Advocate family of the Northern Methodists is the Pittsburg Christian Advocate. It closed its fiscal year on May 31 with 39,183 subscribers, a gain of 2,529 over the year preceding.

* * *

The St. Louis Advocate states that Cahanne Church, of St. Louis, of which Dr. Theodore Copeland is pastor, is having the largest congregations in its history. The prayer meeting, Epworth League, and Sunday school are reported as flourishing.

* * *

A movement has been started among the Roman Catholics in England to bring about a revision of the Douay English Bible. This version of the Scriptures is older than the King James Version, the New Testament dating from 1582 and the Old Testament from 1609.

* * *

In the Methodist Episcopal Church, laymen have a place in the General Conference and in the District Conference, but not in the Annual Conference. A vigorous effort will be made when the law-making body meets next spring to introduce them into the latter body.

* * *

Dean Tillett of Vanderbilt University was scheduled to sail for Europe on Aug. 5. He expects first to visit Scotland, and afterwards other countries, and also Palestine and Egypt. Mrs. Tillett and their daughter will accompany the Doctor on the trip. We shall expect some interesting contributions to the press as a result of the Dean's journeying abroad.

* * *

Dr. Rankin, of the Texas Christian Advocate, thus refers to the work done by Dr. J. A. Rice at the Lake Shore Assembly in the Lone Star State: "Dr. Rice was one of the popular attractions of the occasion. His first lecture on 'How to Read the Old Testament,' was a genuine inspiration. It was broad, comprehensive, helpful. It put the Old Testament in the light of a brand-new book to many who heard him. On another occasion he lectured on "Job, the Tragic Idea," and it was one of the greatest deliverances of the Assembly. He was requested by the gathering to put it in pamphlet form and let the Church have the benefit of it."

* * *

Of Bishop Hoss' platform and pulpit work at the Lake Wichita gathering a short time since, the editor of the Texas Christian Advocate says: "Bishop Hoss came in Saturday, fresh and in good case. His address at night on 'Christian Dawn in the Far East,' was a masterful survey of the conditions at the present time in China, Japan and Korea. I never heard a more instructive deliverance on the mission subject. Bishop Hoss is one of the foremost men in our Methodism and he never studies any subject except in the most thorough manner. On Sunday morning he delivered, by request, his wonderful sermon on "What Think Ye of Christ." This is one of the great sermons heard only a few times in the course of one's life."

* * *

Dr. R. H. Pitt, in the Richmond Virginian, thus describes the Mormon plan for propogating their faith: "The Mormons have a missionary method that is, in one respect, in advance of all others. The usual way of the churches is to send out missionaries while the people at home support them. The Mormon way is to draft men for service varying in length from two to four years, making the honor of the "call" to missionary service a high one and leaving missionaries to support themselves out of their own funds, or those of their friends. Training that comes from long service is lacking, but fresh enthusiasm is gained, and expense of collecting money saved. Under this plan the Mormon missionary force at present in the fields, we are told, is about 2,200, of whom more than 400 are on the continent of Europe."

* * *

Very carefully inclosed and guarded are the 200 remaining cedars of Lebanon, those famous trees that once clothed all the sides of the Syrian Mountains. So tall and beautiful were they in comparison with the trees of Palestine that the Hebrew writers celebrated them with extraordinary praise, and from the earliest times their soft, white wood was the glory of Jewish architecture. They were used in Solomon's temple and in its successor, and also in the church that Constantine built at Jerusalem. The surviving trees are called by the Arabs the trees of God, and under their widespreading branches the clergy of the Greek Church occasionally celebrate mass. Several of the trees in the grove are over 1,500 years old, and have a height of 100 feet and a circumference of 50. In appearance they more resemble the aged larch or the majestic oak than the cedar that is known in America."—Harper's Weekly.

REV. BARNETTE WRIGHT.

This gifted young minister ended his earthly career at Lonoke, Ark., Jan. 31, 1911. He was my friend, tender and true, with a love that was expressed and not implied, and our souls were knit together as were the souls of David and Jonathan. We first knew each other as pastors of adjoining circuits in 1897, he being on the Vienna Circuit, and I on the Farmerville Circuit, and afterwards we succeeded each other on three different pastoral charges. He was the greatest young orator that I ever knew, a brilliant, accurate, and discerning scholar, and a born detective of the highest type. He knew what was in man and could read character as no other man I ever knew, and but for a nervous trouble that held him back, he would have filled the place of one of the world's great preachers. But the mind and heart were too great for the frail body, and a life so intense must necessarily be a brief life. But a great deal was lived in a very few years, and he sleeps with his father, with many who knew him to cherish his memory.

From a very beautifully touching letter from his wife, Mrs. Gussie R., I give the following quotations touching his character and home life:

"Mr. Wright died of the worst form of heart trouble known—aortic regurgetation, caused by a lesion of the mitral valve. None of the physicians knew what caused it, and he had the best medical attention in Arkansas. He had known for over two years that he had a heart trouble, but the specialists all told him they thought it was functional and probably caused by indigestion, which he had had more or less since a boy on the farm.

"After this examination, he went to Europe in the summer of 1908, and after reaching the other side was not troubled at all with his heart during the two and a half months of his absence, except that once in the Alps, the altitude affected it.

"We were married a year later, June 23, 1909. We had our own garden and chickens and he took such unusual interest in them, and I think the exercise and mental distraction did him good. I tried in an adroit way to keep him from his books as much as possible, when he was not feeling well.

"There were times I would feel guilty, when he would tell me he regretted that he did not love his books as he had before his marriage—that he did not enjoy studying any more. His physician told me when we were first married that Mr. Wright was studying himself to death. I believe he was very happy in his married life.

"He loved his work and his home—a few days' absence would prove irksome to him. When we would go to the Conference, he would be as eager as a child to get back home.

"A reading of his letters to me before and after our marriage would be a revelation to you of a new and infinitely lovable side of his great soul. I think only one person ever sounded the depth and sweetness and strength and tenderness of his wonderful nature.

"Brother Lowrey, you loved him; you knew he was a man—true, noble and good.. We had the most celebrated physician in Arkansas come down from Little Rock to see him, and as he was leaving, he told me that Mr. Wright was some better, that he might live a year, though that was hardly possible, or six months, or, he quietly and gently said, 'You may find him dead when you go back in the room. He is in danger all the time and with this disease there are no warning symptoms to tell when a spell is coming on.' I marvel now and always at my ability to bear what I did bravely for his sake. I know surely that God held my hand and strengthened me. I went directly back into the room and with smiling lips, told him that the doctor thought he was better. He was so pitifully anxious to get well it would wring our hearts. He said he was willing to die if it was God's will, but he did so want to finish his work he had undertaken for God here. He lived so very near to God and heaven that he had not very far to go when he died, Jan. 31st. His death was sweet and quiet and sacred. His pulse stopped, then his breathing, then his heart. He lay quiet with no movement at all. Dr. Alonzo Monk, his presiding elder, held funeral services in Lonoke. Then we took him to his home in Kentucky to be buried. There was a second funeral service in the church where he was converted and baptized, and preached his first sermon. We buried him at his request in the home cemetery at the crown of the hill.

"It has been your loss not to have known him during the last years of his life. His progress was ever forward; and his development, ever wonderful.

"I count myself at once the most blessed and most miserable of women; blessed—to have possessed his love, and to have been his wife; miserable—to have lost him."

P. O. LOWREY.

$177.00 pays Board, Tuition, Laundry, Medical, Library and Lyceum fees whole session. Those who wish may reduce this by taking duties. Apply now to Port Gibson Female College, Port Gibson, Miss.

The Centenary College of Louisiana
SHREVEPORT
Fall Term will open
Sept. 13, 1911.
For Catalogue or other information write to
FELIX R. HILL, President,
P. O. Box 455
SHREVEPORT, LA.

Geo. W. Riehl. Aug. Rauxet, Jr.
RIEHL & RAUXET.
Successors to Lowengardt & Armstrong,
JEWELERS.
122 BARONNE STREET - - New Orleans, La
(Optical Department: M. F. Fitzgerald, Optician.)
Phone, Main 737.

Concerning Missions.

To the Treasurer of the W. F. M. Society, North Mississippi Conference:

The Board of Missions failed to concur in the memorial from the Missionary Council to allow our fiscal year to remain as it is; so the time for closing our accounts for the year has been changed—the year now closing with the month of December instead of February, as heretofore.

This, I trust, will meet with a hearty response from each auxiliary treasurer, and that active work will be begun at once to collect funds that we may not fall short this year.

I call especial attention to the request of the Council that each auxiliary pay $2.00 for the endowment of Scarritt Bible and Training School; also to the obligation we have assumed of raising funds to complete our scholarship in this school. We still lack $370.00 of the amount necessary for this purpose. May we not hope to receive something from each member, that this debt may be paid this year?

I would suggest a public collection this fall, the funds received to be appropriated to this worthy institution—$2.00 for the endowment of the school and as much as possible on the scholarship.

Yours for service,
MRS. G. C. JONES,
Conference Treasurer.

THE PROPOSED MISSION TO AFRICA.

By Rev. W. W. Pinson, General Secretary, Board of Missions.

The proposed Mission in Africa is bringing inquiries to the office and elliciting action in various quarters which indicate a lack of understanding as to the status of the enterprise, and a plain statement of facts is clearly needed that the Church may proceed intelligently.

At the annual meeting of the Board of Missions in May, 1910, a set of resolutions were adopted in favor of opening a mission in Africa in co-operation with the C. M. E. Church. These resolutions provided for the taking of steps towards the establishment of such a mission, a visit of one of our secretaries to study the conditions, and the raising of a special to secure the funds for such a beginning. A collection was taken on the spot and over one thousand dollars was subscribed.

Before these plans could be inaugurated the Senior Secretary, who was by every token the logical man to visit the field, was elected to the Episcopacy and assigned to Brazil. Owing to this and other circumstances, the visit to Africa was postponed and any further collection towards the special was likewise deferred.

A change in the administration led naturally to a careful survey of the financial condition of the Board of Missions. The financial condition disclosed by this survey raised the question of the wisdom of projecting a new mission at this time. When this question was raised in the annual meeting of 1911, it was suggested by Bishop Lambuth that the matter be allowed to rest where it was, since it would be a year before the Board would be called on to make an appropriation. The suggestion was accepted and no action whatever was taken in reference to the proposed mission.

There was no appropriation made, and it is understood that the money raised in the meeting in 1910 is to pay the expenses of Bishop Lambuth's visit to the field. The Bishop expects to make the visit after holding the Brazil conferences. The attitude of the Board is one of waiting till Bishop Lambuth shall have made his report and recommendations. Then the whole matter will come up for consideration by the Board at its next annual meeting.

These, in brief, are the facts in the case. In view of these facts this year should be given to clearing up the specials ordered by the Board in connection with other fields, and to raising the largest possible surplus on assessments that we may be in financial condition to consider this proposed mission in its relation to the needs of existing missions and the affairs of the Board at that time.

There is no doubt that the heart of the Church turns to Africa, and many, in common with the writer, have long cherished the hope that we might at some early date have a mission in Africa. The determination of the Board to enter that field caused rejoicing to thousands throughout the Church, and when the providential hour shall have struck that shall permit us to enroll the Dark Continent among our mission fields in fact, there will be greater rejoicing still.

ASHEVILLE CONVENTION, 1911.

The Southern Conference of the Missionary Education Movement was held early in July at the Normal and Collegiate Institute, Asheville, N. C., as previously announced. Eleven Southern States and two Northern States were represented by 134 delegates, Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, Lutheran and Episcopal denominations being represented.

The conference was all that the advanced information indicated that it might possibly be. The platform meetings addressed by Dr. Ray, Dr. Williams, Dr. Weatherford, Mr. Gamble, Mr. Logan, Mr. Stevens, Dr. Moore and Mr. Hicks, were fine and gave a splendid presentation of home and foreign missionary topics.

The presiding officer of the Conference was Rev. E. F. Cook of Nashville. Four stereopticon lectures were given by Drs. Ray, Weatherford and Williams.

The Sunday sermons by Dr. Poteat of Furman University, and Dr. Brown of Vanderbilt University, were very helpful.

The study classes were led by a dozen experienced teachers well known for their missionary leadership in the South, and every one present expressed peculiar interest in the meetings of the Conference. The farewell service was one of the most inspiring ever attended by the delegates. Already several mission study classes have been organized as a result of the Conference, and plans are already on foot for the Conference which will be held at practically the same dates in 1912, and many of the delegates made definite plans to secure a larger attendance next year. If the Blue Ridge Association is ready at that time, as it probably will be, it will be held in the new buildings, near Black Mountain, N. C.

H. S. MYERS,
Assistant General Secretary
Missionary Education Movement.
New York, Aug. 3, 1911.

RUTH RAMSEY.

An Appreciation.

About 5 p.m. on July 25, 1911, our sweet little girl, Ruth, aged six years, three months and twenty-nine days, left us for the company of the angels in heaven. Her remains were interred in the cemetery at Fairfield, Union County, Miss. She was a bright, sweet child, and mamma's little helper. Knowing the place for everything about the home, she was asked for everything by every member of the family, and her little feet were continually going, waiting upon some one, and her little hands were constantly in the service of all. She had been to school but little, yet she had learned to read and write real well. I taught her at home, and, being bright, she was making rapid progress, for she loved her books.

Nothing delighted her more than for some one to read to her, and, having a retentive memory, she remembered what she heard read. Recently, I completed the reading of Pilgrim's Progress to my children, and a few days later she repeated, in her own words, the whole story to her mother. She enjoyed the weekly visits of the Advocate, and was glad when her mother could find the time to read the "Home Circle" page.

She loved nature. The song of the bird thrilled her soul, and how she loved flowers! As I write, there is before me a vase filled with withered flowers gathered by her little hands. Daily she roamed the fields and woods, listening to the songs of birds and gathering wild flowers.

She was such an affectionate child. She loved all who showed themselves at all friendly. She loved her Sunday school and was grieved if she had to be absent, sometimes walking one and a half miles to be present. She loved her teacher. She had been a member of the church just one month to the day of her translation.

I was in Monroe County, engaged in a revival meeting, which gave evidence of being a great meeting, when the message came that little Ruth was critically ill. I hurried home on the first train, but before I reached Tupelo, she had gone out of our home forever.

I was in the habit of gathering the children about me every night after supper and singing with them. There was one old song she loved more than any other, the chorus of which is,

"O come angel band
Come, and around me stand;
O bear me away on your snowy wings
To my immortal home."

Every night after supper, she would climb into my lap and say, "Now, papa, sing, "Bear me away on your snowy wings."

Our hearts are broken, and oh, how we miss her! She is gone from us, but not forever. By the help of God we will make an unbroken family in heaven, and I will take our precious darling in my arms again and sing together a new song that the angels do not know. Good-bye, my precious child. By the grace of God, we will meet again. Her father.

JNO. W. RAMSEY.

DR. W. T. J. SULLIVAN.

An Appreciation.

The band of some gifted minister who knew him well and was a comrade in his long service for the Lord Jesus Christ, will doubtless write a memoir of the Rev. Dr. W. T. J. Sullivan, but I ask the privilege of speaking a few words of heartfelt appreciation of my mentor—the dear friend and guide of my youth.

In 1865, Dr. Sullivan was persuaded to take charge of the Woodville Seminary, now Edward McGehee College. He had served for several years as pastor of the Methodist Church in Woodville and had proved himself a man of spiritual and intellectual power. Although he undertook this work when the people were impoverished by the recent war and during the trying period of reconstruction, he succeeded in building up a strong school. He showed his wisdom by the choice of his faculty, both literary and musical, and his culture, by the character and range of the curriculum which he provided for his students. Save that he was hampered by the lack of physical apparatus of all kinds and that the text-books of that day lacked many of the splendid methods of modern pedagogy, his school would rank not unfavorably with the colleges for women in our State at the present day. Mathematics taught through Spherical Trigonometry, the Natural Sciences were taught, History and English Literature, Mental Philosophy, Logic, Butler's Analogy, Latin, Greek as an elective, and French. These subjects were in charge of live teachers, teachers of experience and enthusiasm; but most of all it was a delight to the awakening mind to study under Dr. Sullivan. His culture was broad, his love of learning a passion, and he had to a marked degree the gift of making luminous every subject that he touched. He could make the long, involved sentences of Bishop Butler's Analogy give forth their noble truths and cause the delighted student to feel that she was delving for treasure—a treasure sure to reward the earnest seeker. As a teacher of Latin, he was equally thorough. He insisted on a mastering of forms, constructions, and the rules governing those constructions, so that as the student advanced, the reading of the classics became a pleasure rather than a task. Philology was a favorite study with him, and his lectures on English Grammar and the discussion of some of its intricacies and fine distinctions gave us glimpses into the philosophy of language. The atmosphere of a school presided over by a genuine scholar is an intellectual tonic. This bracing air we breathed in at the Woodville Seminary.

But his intellectuality was not the largest element in Dr. Sullivan's nature. His greatness was in his spirituality. He was a veritable Saint John. He walked as a man who had a daily vision of Christ, leaned upon his bosom and gave his messages to men. "How sweetly flowed the gospel sound from lips of gentleness and grace," might have been said of him as of his blessed Master. Love of Christ and humanity was the keynote of his life and gave that life a divine optimism that cheered and comforted all whom it touched. He loved much, and therefore he hoped much. This spirit of love spoke through his sermons, beamed through all his social intercourse and made his headship of our school an inspiration to all that was high and holy. It is impossible to know how many noble impulses were born, how many high resolves were made through the impress of his life upon our young lives. "He allured to brighter worlds and led the way."

To one he was a spiritual father as well as an intellectual guide, whose hand through faith joined her life to the "Mystical body of Christ." No words of praise can measure the debt of gratitude she owes to his patient teaching, his wise counsel, his loving interest. The memory of these is a priceless possession.

Phillips Brooks says, "You surrender a dear friend and out of his grave the real power of friendship rises stronger and more eternal in your life." Death reaches her hands back into the misty past, brings forth our precious memories from its shadows and makes them clear and luminous. Henceforth they walk with us in a closer companionship and will enter with us into heaven."

My dear friend has passed on before to those blessed realms where all our high company are gathering. There I shall sit at his feet once more and learn of things which earth's philosophies have never dreamed of.

Till then, beloved instructor, shall

"All things through thee take nobler form
And look beyond the earth."

CLARA B. DRAKE.

One of the great lessons of life is to learn not to do what one likes, but to like what one does.—Hugh Black.

W. W. Carre Co. Ltd
Manufacturer Exporter of Lumber
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

The Home Circle

GOD ANSWERS PRAYER.

I know not by what methods rare,
But this I know—God answers prayer.

I know not when he sends the word
That tells us fervent prayer is heard.

I know it cometh soon or late;
Therefore we need to pray and wait.

I know not if the blessing sought
Will come in just the guise I thought.

I leave my prayers with him alone
Whose will is wiser than my own.

—Christian Register.

POPULAR TOM.

I read of a little boy, Tom, who would give his last marble, run errands all day and never grumble, give the best place to somebody else, no matter who, and felt so glad in seeing other folks have a good time that he forgot himself. Everyhody liked Tom. Grandmother smiled all over when she saw him coming. Aunt Laura, who was a busy woman, smiled at him and said: "Just in time, Tom, run and"— When Tom went to spend the day with grandmother or Aunt Laura, the folks at home would miss him. One would say: "Where is Tom? I wish he were at home." And another: "If Tom were only here!" Tom was one of those unselfish helpers. Are there any Toms living at your house? Would you be missed when away from home, as Tom was?—Olive Plants.

THE DANGEROUS DOOR.

"Oh, Cousin Will, do tell us a story! There's just time before the school bell rings." And Harry, Kate, Bob and little Peace crowded about their older cousin until he declared himself ready to do anything they wished.

"Very well," said Cousin Will. "I will tell you about some dangerous doors I have seen."

"Oh, that's good!" exclaimed Bob. "Were they all iron and heavy bars? And if one passed in, did they shut and keep him there forever?"

"No. The doors I mean are pink or scarlet; and when they open, you can see a row of little servants standing in white, and between them is a little lady dressed in crimson."

"What? That's splendid!" cried Kate. "I should like to go in myself."

"Ah! it is what comes out of these doors that makes them so dangerous. They need a strong guard on each side, or else, there is great trouble."

"Why, what comes out?" said little Peace, with wondering eyes.

"When the guards are away," said Cousin Will, "I have known some things to come out sharper than arrows, and they make terrible wounds. Quite lately I saw two pretty little doors, and one opened and the little lady began to talk like this: 'What a stuck-up thing Lucy Waters is! And did you see that horrid dress made out of her sister's old one?' 'Oh, yes,' said the other little crimson lady from the other door. 'And what a turned-up nose she has!' Then poor Lucy, who was around the corner, ran home and cried all the evening."

"I know what you mean," cried Kate, coloring. "Were you listening?"

"Oh, you mean our mouths are doors!" exclaimed Harry, "and the crimson lady is Miss Tongue; but who are the guards, and where do they come from?"

"You must ask the Great King. This is what you must say: 'Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth; keep the door of my lips.' Then he will send Patience to stand on one side and Love on the other, and no unkind world will drive me out."—Southern Churchman.

BOYS AND BOYS.

One day a poor old woman drove into town in a rickety spring wagon. She tied her horse to a post near the school-house. It was about as bad-looking an old horse as you ever saw. The woman hobbled away with feeble steps to sell a few eggs which she had in a basket. Just as she was out of sight, the bell rang for the noon hour, and a crowd of jolly, noisy boys rushed out of the school-house. The air in a moment was full of their shouts and laughter.

"Halloa! See that horse!"

"Ho! ho! ho! Who ever saw such a looking old thing!"

"As thin as a rail!"

"You can count all his ribs."

"He looks as if he hadn't spirit to hold his head up."

"Looks half starved. Say, bony, is there enough of you left to scare?"

Two or three boys squealed in the ears of the horse, and gave him small pokes; others jumped before him to frighten him.

"Let's lead him 'round to the back of the building and tie him there, so that when the folks he belongs to come, they'll think he's run away."

"He run away!"

"Say, boys," put in one boy, in an earnest voice, "there's no fun in tormenting such a poor fellow. He does look half starved—yes, more than half, I should say. And we all know it isn't good to feel that way since the day we got lost in the woods nutting."

Have you ever noticed how easily boys—and men, too, for that matter—are led either into kindness, or cruelty? One word in either direction, and all follow like a flock of sheep. Wouldn't it be good for boys to remember this, and to reflect upon how far they may he called on to answer for the influence they may exert over others?

The boys stopped their teasing and began to look at the horse with different eyes, while one of them brushed the flies off him.

"Let's tie him under that tree," proposed a second; "the sun's too hot here."

"Look here, boys, I wish we could give him something to eat while he's standing."

"Can't we?"

"A real bang-up good dinner, such as he hasn't had for a century, by the looks of him."

"Let's do it. I've got a nickel."

"Ive got two cents."

"I'll give another nickel if you'll come over to my father's feed store."

More cents came in. The man at the feed store contributed a nearly worn-out bag, and in a few moments the poor old horse was enjoying a good meal of first-class oats.

By the time he had finished it, the old woman came back, her basket filled with groceries, for which she had exchanged her eggs. The chord of sympathy and kindness once touched in the careless yet well-meaning hearts continued to vibrate. We all know how one taste of a kind act makes us long to taste more. "I'll lift your basket in," said one, respectfully.

"See, here's a lot of oats left. We'll put 'em in the wagon."

"She looks pretty near as starved as her horse," came in a suggestive whisper.

A few small contributions from lunch baskets were hastily wrapped in a piece of paper and laid on top of the basket.

"Now I'll untie."

The old woman was helped in as if she had been a queen. And every boy's heart glowed as the quavering voice and dim eyes bore a burden of warm thanks as she drove away.

Those were every-day school-boys. There are millions and millions like them, only they do not quite realize what a spirit of loving-kindness dwells in their hearts. Let it out, boys and girls; for it is you who are to lift this whole world into an atmosphere higher, sweeter and brighter than it has known before.—Lutheran Observer.

MISS ELOISE SCOTT BOWMAN.

The many friends of Miss Eloise Scott Bowman were deeply shocked and grieved to hear of her sudden death on Friday, August 4, at 3:30 p.m. At the time of her death Miss Bowman was visiting in the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Adams, at Locust Ridge, La. She was the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Bowman, of Wildwood, La.

This dear young lady was just coming into the dawn of a beautiful womanhood, which made her going unusually sad. She was loved by all who knew her, having many friends among the young and old of both sexes. Her best and most lovable qualities were revealed best in her own home and to those who were with her constantly. She was the brightest ray of sunshine in a bright and happy home, for she truly lived to love and make others happy. Her most beautiful trait was her unbounded love for her family. At Whitworth College, where she would have graduated next year, she was dearly loved and was the most popular girl in her class. A beautiful service in honor of her memory was held in the Sunday school room of the Jefferson Street Methodist Church of Natchez, Miss., of which church she was a true and loyal member. Six of her best friends among the young men were pall bearers. Her grave in the Natchez Cemetery was completely covered with beautiful flowers—the best emblems of her pure and lovable nature and the silent expression of the great love her friends bore her.

O, not in cruelty, not in wrath,
The Reaper came that day;
'Twas an angel visited the green earth,
And took this flower away.

My Lord has need of these flowerets gay,
The Reaper said, and smiled;
Dear tokens of the earth are they,
Where He was once a child.

They shall all bloom in fields of light,
Transplanted by my care;
And saints, upon their garments white,
These sacred blossoms wear.

And the mother gave in tears and pain,
These flowers she most did love;
She knew she would find them all again
In the fields of light above.

A GIRL WHO LOVED HER.

THE SAFEST AND QUICKEST WAY
—TO—
TRANSFER MONEY
—IS BY—
Long Distance Telephone
FOR RATES APPLY TO LOCAL MANAGER,
Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co
INCORPORATED

DOCTOR TICHENOR'S
Antiseptic
Accidents
Will Happen
You cannot prevent that—they "come when least expected."
A bottle of
Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic
kept near at hand is your best safeguard—the cheapest "Accident Insurance" in the world!
It affords immediate and permanent relief from Cuts, Bruises, Burns or Sprains.
Keep a bottle in the house—always.
All Druggists 25 and 50 cents.
ASK ANY ONE WHO HAS USED IT

Christian Advocate.

ROBERT A. WEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.
CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.
OFFICE: 512 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

TERMS:
One Copy, one year, $1.50; eight months, $1.00. To preachers of all Denominations, $1.00.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE
Louisiana Conference—Rev. N. E. Joyner, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake.
Mississippi Conference—Rev. I. W. Cooper, D.D., Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. D. Ellis.
North Mississippi Conference—Rev. J. T. Murrah, Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. H. S. Spragins.

Editorial.

WELL-NIGH GONE.

The era of sectional animosity and bitterness which followed in the wake of the Civil War has all but past. The fire-eater, whether in the North or South, is finding himself more lonely and less appreciated with every fleeting year. Intelligent men in all sections now recognize the fact that the people on both sides of the fateful struggle were honest and patriotic, and that each conscientiously contended for the right as God gave them to see it. With the views they held, had the citizens of either section acted differently, they would have fallen short of their duty. There were Union heroes and Confederate heroes, who are alike entitled to undying honor. That a re-united nation will accord it to them, whether they wore the blue or gray, in the near future we do not doubt. Already Grant and Lee, chosen by an electorate scattered all over the republic, have been given places in the Hall of Fame at the University of New York. Statuary Hall at Washington has also been adorned with a statue of the great Southern soldier. Even Congress, in which the voice of the demagogue is oftener heard than that of the statesman, is not lacking in evidence that the day of peace and a restored national brotherhood is dawning. As proof of this, we quote the following from a recent issue of the Baltimore Sun:

In the Senate the other day, after Heyburn had made the usual exhibition the country expects from him whenever opportunity is given to attack the men who fought the battles of the Confederacy, and after John Sharp Williams had completed the task of hanging the Heyburn hide on the fence, Senator William Alden Smith, of Michigan, paid the following beautiful tribute to the Southern soldiers and the Southern people:

"You on the other side are asked to forget the war, forget what you suffered. Why, Mr. President, I would despise a Southern man who would ever forget the loyalty and the bravery and the daring and the heroism and the sacrifices their people made in a cause they believed to be right. That is part of the history of our country, written by the sword and attested by the gallantry of our own countrymen on every battlefield in the South. * * * I respect the men who wore the gray; I honor the men who wore the blue. I honor their intrepidity and skill, attested on a hundred battlefields, from Bull Run to Appomattox. Sir, their daring touched the highest mark ever attained in patriotic devotion to country, and the valor displayed on both sides is our richest heritage. But, sir, I do not know a soldier in the North, who is not broad and generous and catholic, who does not look upon the Southern soldier living with kindness and sympathy and upon the Confederate soldier dead with affection and good will. Their loyal devotion to a principle which they themselves thought dear will excite the admiration of all future generations of men the whole world round, and is the proud legacy of the sons and daughters of the Southland. Sir, those men have cared for their wounded and suffering; they have asked no pensions from the government against which they fought. With a solicitude which we may emulate, they have bound up their wounds and nursed their own sick and dying and cared for their dead, and rebuilt their own devastated States and voluntarily burdened themselves that we might pension our heroes and house them in comfort in their declining years."

THE TEXAS PROHIBITION ELECTION.

All things considered, the prohibitionists made a wonderful showing in Texas in the recent election, in which an amendment to the Constitution outlawing the saloon was voted upon. About 450,000 votes were cast, and on the face of the returns the antis have a lead of only about 6,000. It has been but a few months since Governor Colquitt was elected chief executive of the State on a wet, or local option platform by a large majority, and it seems a bit surprising to an outsider that public sentiment should have shifted to such a remarkable extent in so short a time. But nothing is more capricious and uncertain than the popular will, and we have learned from observation to be prepared for almost any result when the people go to the polls to cast their ballots.

Our Texas brethren certainly made a great fight, and we congratulate them upon it. That noble gladiator who has been through so many hard-fought battles against the liquor traffic, Dr. G. C. Rankin, was in the thick of the fray in the late struggle. And no paper did more valiant service in the campaign than the Christian Advocate, of which he is the capable editor. Many think if the election had been fairly held that the amendment would have been adopted by a substantial majority. And, indeed, the way the returns were held back in sections of the commonwealth where the saloon influence dominates was, to say the least of it, rather suggestive of corruption. The Legislature, now in session, has taken up the matter and will seek to ascertain whether frauds were anywhere perpetrated. But regardless of how the issue may terminate for the present, it looks as if the saloon regime were nearing its end in the Lone Star State. A righteous cause involving sound principles is not destroyed by defeat. As has been well said, "No question is settled until it is settled right." No governmental policy can be stable and fixed unless its foundation is deep laid in virtue and truth.

A MISLEADING STATEMENT.

We have observed going the rounds of the Baptist press the following statement: "Among the Protestant denominations of the United States, numerically the Baptists rank first. They number 5,383,844." Then follows a long list of other figures intended to impress one with the greatness of the Baptist denomination.

Whence these figures originated, we do not know, as no authority is given for them. But we do know that there is no statisician of recognized standing who has ever represented the Baptists as numerically stronger than the Methodists in the United States. Dr. H. K. Carroll, who was in charge of the Government Census of Churches in 1890, in his summary of religious statistics for 1910, published in January last, gives the Baptists in the United States 5,774,066 members, and the Methodists 6,596,168. The official statistics issued by the Government in 1906 (the latest figures obtainable from that source) also place the Methodists in the lead, as do all of the leading encyclopedias. The Government figures show that the Baptists own property in the United States to the amount of $139,842,656, and the Methodists to the amount of $229,450,996. The seating capacity of the Baptist churches in the United States is 15,702,712; that of the Methodists, 17,053,392. The Baptists have in their Sunday schools 2,898,914 pupils; the Methodists have 4,472,930. These figures may be verified by reference to Bulletin 103 of the Department of Commerce and Labor, at Washington, which furnishes the latest Government statistics of the various religious denominations in our country. We quote them not by way of boasting of our strength, but merely to correct the misleading statement above referred to, which is being scattered broadcast over the land. Our Baptist brethren are growing and we rejoice in their prosperity, but they will yet have to grow a good deal more before they can measure with the Methodists.

Dr. J. W. Boswell, who was for several years editor of this Advocate, sends us a short letter announcing the death of his son, Jno. W. Boswell, Jr., which we publish on another page. Mr. Boswell was a man in the prime of life, with but half the measure of man's days lived out and yet his earthly career is ended. The aged father is left to weep at the grave of the son, when in the usual course of nature, it is the son's lot to stand at the grave of his father. Dr. Boswell and his family know our sympathy goes out to them, and we would gladly help them bear the weight of this burden. They know that every reader of the Advocate sympathizes with them. But more than this, through years of experience, they have learned in whom to trust at such times. Yes, Jesus "died and rose again," that the burdens of this life might be bearable.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. R. T. Nolen, of Harrisville, Miss., says: "We are in the midst of a good meeting. Brother J. S. Purcell is doing the preaching."

Rev. J. H. Hoffpauir, of the Vermillion charge, recently closed a good meeting at Henry, in which he was assisted by Brother Cady, a student of Centenary College.

Dr. J. T. Sawyer has been in North Louisiana helping several of the brethren in meetings this summer. He does not mind the heat, and shows no weariness in the midst of much work.

Rev. T. B. Crews has things well in hand at Jennings, the "city of churches and knotty problems." He felicitates himself that he is at home and belongs to the "Dixie" Methodist Church.

Brother Hilary Westbrook, pastor of our church at DeSoto, Miss., reports a most delightful Children's Day Service. There was a great congregation present, and a good collection was secured.

Rev. J. A. Parker, D.D., is in North Louisiana, where he went the 1st of June for his health, which is very much improved. He expects to resume his work at St. Martinsville in a short time.

Rev. A. J. Gearheard is carefully looking after the Gueydan and Abbeville flocks. The church at Gueydan has recently been treated to a new coat of paint, which adds very much to its attractiveness.

The church at Itta Bena, Miss., under the leadership of the pastor, J. W. Dorman, is making marked progress. Recently the contract was let for a $16,000 church building, to be finished March 1, 1912.

Rev. M. C. Holt is doing a fine work at Jeanerette. His is a difficult field, but by a wise and conservative administration, of which he is eminently capable, the work shows a steady and healthy growth.

Rev. G. D. Purcell, of Harrisonburg, La., reports a good meeting at Little River Church. There were a number of conversions, and thirteen additions to the church. Rev. S. S. Bogan, of Florence, La., did the preaching.

After a visit of several days to relatives and friends in Lake Providence, La., Rev. John Sholars is again at his post. He is among our most efficient young men, and the work shows steady growth under his painstaking care.

The Eunice charge continues to prosper under the pastoral care of Rev. J. I. Hoffpauir, notwithstanding his wife has been in poor health for some months, which made it necessary for him to remove her to their country home.

Sulphur charge, Louisiana Conference, is moving on nicely under the careful pastorate of Rev. J. D. Nesom, who looks after the interests of the kingdom while most of his constituency are mining for sulphur and boring for oil.

Rev. W. L. Doss continues to grow in favor with the Rayne (La.) congregation, and the interests of the Church are carefully looked after. He was assisted recently in a revival meeting by Rev. W. G. Harbin, of Haynesville, La.

Rev. L. N. Hoffpauir, pastor of the Lake Arthur station, is closing up his quadrennium with that enterprising congregation. It is the regret of the people of Lake Arthur that the last General Conference did not remove the time limit.

Mrs. C. F. Emery, the wife of our pastor at Canton, Miss., underwent a severe operation at the Jackson Sanatorium a few days ago. Her many friends will rejoice to know that the operation was successful and that she is improving rapidly.

Rev. C. A. Battle is much in favor with the good people of Lafayette, La., who think they have a Bishop in embryo as pastor. He has just recovered from a three weeks' siege of typhoid fever, and with his family, is recuperating in Alabama.

The Rev. H. G. Gatlin has been appointed junior pastor of the East Feliciana Circuit during the continued illness of Rev. J. P. Haney.

Rev. W. H. Benton has been making full proof of his ministry as an evangelist of late. He is now in Missouri, where he will assist in two meetings.

Rev. H. B. Vandenburg, of the Church Point charge, is much in favor with his people. He reports several good meetings, in which he was assisted by brethren of the district.

Rev. J. S. Rutledge, of Indian Bayou charge, has the distinction of preaching to the largest congregations in the Lafayette District. His is a country station with something over five hundred members.

A good report comes from Moorhead, Miss. Brother W. V. Shearer says: "We are having great meetings in my charge. We have just closed a meeeting at Doddsville, which resulted in putting on foot plans for the erection of a brick church there."

Sister T. S. Randle of Gilbert, La., one of our faithful friends, sends in a number of new subscribers and renewals. We always appreciate such expressions of interest. Rev. L. F. Alford and Rev. J. M. Wyatt, both send lists of new subscribers.

New Iberia Station is steadily advancing in all departments of its work, under the wise and untiring administration of that careful and indefatigable pastor, Rev. K. W. Dodson. He recently closed a good meeting, in which he was assisted by Dr. A. C. Holder, of Shreveport.

Mrs. G. S. Jones, writing from Belen, Miss., says: "Our little church is nearly out of debt, and success is crowning the work of our faithful pastor along other lines." Mrs Jones adds this much appreciated word: "I enjoy the Advocate more than ever, as I personally know the editor."

From far away City of Mexico comes an order for the Advocate. We are glad to know that it has a message for some who dwell there. Miss Belinda Barcroft, who has taught in the Mary Keener Institute for four years, finds the Advocate useful in her talks to the girls in the school.

Our pastor at Morgan City, Rev. H. N. Brown, has been in poor health for some months, but a three weeks' stay at Mineral Wells, Texas, greatly improved his general health, and he is now at his post making full proof of his ministry. His charge shows decided improvement in all lines of work.

The scholarly pastor of our Lake Charles, La., congregation, Rev. W. W. Drake, is much in favor with his people, and is doing fine work in that important field. He has been assisting Rev. Louis Hoffpauir in a meeting at Bell City, and it goes without saying that the community has heen enjoying some fine sermons.

Rev. M. Hevert, our native French missionary, keeps busy in that important field. He has established appointments at several new places, which hitherto have heen destitute of Protestant preaching. Several New Sunday schools have been organized, and a church and school organized at the town of Mermentau.

In a brief note to this Advocate, Brother A. S. Lutz says: "My wife's father, D. A. Simpson, died on Monday last. He was a lifelong Methodist and a faithful steward in the church for thirty-five years. His home was always the preacher's home. He was buried at Greenwood, La." Our sympathy goes out to the bereaved.

Brother J. C. Price, of Bayou Scie, is rejoicing in the fruits of a most successful revival. Rev. H. R. Singleton, the presiding elder, kindled the fire at the third quarterly conference. Rev. J. L. Lay took up this good work, after the presiding elder left. There were many conversions and twenty-four persons joined the church.

Rev. C. V. Breithaupt and Rev. R. E. Martin, of the Houma Mission, are carrying on a summer campaign of revival meetings in Terrebonne and Lafourche parishes with most gratifying results. Brother Breithaupt was recently assisted in a meeting at Houma by Rev. John Sholars, of Patterson, in which the church was greatly revived.

Rev. W. B. Jones, presiding elder, of the Seashore District, Mississippi Conference, writes under date of Aug. 11: "At a special quarterly conference at Biloxi last Tuesday, Miss Capitola Mathias, one of the faithful workers of that church, was recommended for the office and work of a deaconess. She intends going to the Scarritt Bible School this fall."

Brother F. E. Bowman, of Wildwood, La., sends us a short note announcing the death of his daughter, Eloise, a young lady of eighteen. It is sweet, in the midst of such sorrow, to have the many expressions of sympathy, and above all, the assurance of God's love. We add to the many expressions of love and sympathy already given that of our own hearts.

The good people of Franklin think they have the ne plus ultra of pastors in Rev. C. C. Weir. But for the time limit, he would become a permanent fixture in that delightful city. He was assisted in a revival meeting some weeks since by Rev. C. W. Carter, D.D. No more substantial progress has been made in any charge in the district than at this point.

The Rev. S. L. Riggs, of St. Francisville, is looking forward to the dedication of the church at Wilhelm at an early date.

The Rev. J. M. Brown, pastor at Clinton and Jackson, is at his post and has a place in the hearts of his people, who enjoy his clear-cut pulpit utterances.

The Rev. F. N. Sweeney, of Wilson, is meeting with his usual success in the pastorate. A half hundred members have been added to the church through his lahors this year.

The work at Baton Rouge progresses. Prayer meetings are well attended; membership increased more than two hundred and fifty during Brother Warlick's pastorate.

The Rev. S. J. McLean, of Port Vincent, is doing a good work and meeting with success. He has recently increased his working force by having taken to himself a helpmeet.

The Rev. R. V. Fulton, of Denham Springs, Circuit, has held meetings at all points in his work. He has had many conversions and the accessions to the church have been more than seventy.

Rev. W. J. Newsom, with his bride, attended the Bluff Creek Camp Ground. Both added much to the music discoursed by the choir under the management of Miss Hattie Haney, who presided at the organ.

Rev. J. W. Harper, of Mt. Hermon Circuit, is conducting a protracted meeting at Angie. The half dozen Methodist families at Varnado deserve honorable mention for having completed a thousand dollar church there.

The Rev. H. W. Bowman, at Amite City, is in high favor with the good people of that prosperous town. His preaching is vigorous and produces results. He has received about fifty members this year during his regular services. His protracted meeting has not been held as yet.

"The Sixty-Fifth Annual Report of the Board of Missions is now ready for distribution. Copies are being mailed to every presiding elder in the Church. By mistake, not as many copies as usual have been printed, and those preachers desiring to receive the Report should send orders promptly, inclosing 5 cents for postage."

Rev. J. W. McLaurin, an honored member of the Mississippi Confeernce, died Saturday, Aug. 12, at Monteagle, Tenn. He was out walking in the afternoon, and without warning, fell dead. The body was sent to Jackson for interment. Rev. W. L. Duren, who with his family are spending a while in Monteagle, furnished us with the above facts.

A note from Rev. J. W. Ramsey says: "I have just closed a great meeting at Smithville, Miss. The church was revived, large crowds attended the meeting, many of the people coming for miles. There were twenty conversions. The Lord has heen with us in great power. To him we give all the praise. Rev. W. A. Bowlin is in high favor with his people."

The Rev. H. C. Murphy, P. C. at Tickfaw, has heen a local itinerant for twenty years. He is having a good year—some accessions and conversions. He has enterprised and built a neat little parsonage this year in the classically named village of "Tickfaw" which is situated on the I. C. R. R., in the Parish of Tangipahoa, in the midst of the strawberry, cream and milk belt.

The Rev. H. B. Perritt, of Zachary Circuit, has returned to his work after an absence of a month. We are pleased to note that his health is much improved. His presiding elder tells us he brings things to pass. He is a fine pastor, a good preacher, and does things. When he has seated his churches and painted them "within and without" and given the parsonage a summer coat, things will have a good appearance in his charge.

The Rev. G. P. White, at Baton Rouge, Second Church, has won the hearts of all his people, and things there are encouraging. His Sunday school at Antioch is, in one respect, the "banner" Sunday school of the district. It is situated in the country, has an attendance of from fifteen to thirty and has had an exisence of twenty-five years, during which time it has never hibernated nor gone into summer quarters. It has men and women hehind it.

The Rev. C. C. Miller, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, made a call on ye editor pro tem on Tuesday. He was en route to Franklinton, Angie and Bogalusa. He reports the district work progressing nicely. The spiritual condition of the district is encouraging, notwithstanding boll weevils and politics. There have been very many conversions and the accessions this year show a large increase as compared with a corresponding date last year.

The Rev. R. S. Walton, a "four-year man," enjoys the distinction of having the largest Sunday school at Hammond. There are about thirty-five hundred inhabitants in the "milk city." There are thirteen white denominations, eleven of which have resident pastors. Competition in church affairs and especially in Sunday school work is sharp. Some good men and some good women under the direction of the lively Sunday school superintendent, Dr. Lucius McGehee, have placed the Methodists in the lead.

The Bluff Creek Camp Meeting closed on Sunday last. The preaching was done by Brothers R. V. Fulton, J. B. Fulton, W. J. Newsom, H. G. Gatlin, and T. J. Warlick. The weather was ideal, the attendance small because of alleged reports of charbon in the neighborhood of the camp ground. There were fifteen accessions and twenty or thirty conversions.

A CHANGE OF PRESIDENTS OF MONTROSE SCHOOL.

Feeling again the approach of nervous trouble, I asked the Board of Trustees of the Mississippi Conference Training School to relieve me from the presidency and financial agency of the school. They did this. I nominated as my successor Rev. G. H. Galloway, and he was unanimously elected. I hespeak for the school liberal patronage. I believe Brother Galloway will make a great school for the Church. Brethren, let us all help him in this great work. He is the right man in the right place.

WALDO W. MOORE.

A SAD LETTER FROM DR. BOSWELL.

My Dear Brother Meek: I am in great sorrow. My oldest son, Jno. W. Boswell, Jr., left us last Monday morning for the home above. He had heen afflicted and suffered greatly for a long time, and was slowly going down towards the dark valley, hut ahout the 29th of July he was attacked with pneumonia, and hreathed his last on the morning of Aug. 7, in the forteth year of his age. His wife went before him a little more than two years. He leaves five children. I have been expecting this hlow for nearly eighteen months, and thought I was ready for it, hut I was not. It is almost crushing. I sorrow not as those who have no hope, for I believe that Jesus died and rose again, and that those who sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. This faith and this assurance give me comfort. Yours fraternally,

JNO. W. BOSWELL.

Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 10, 1911.

CHURCH EXTENSION.

Dear Brother Meek: In this hot weather and these distressful days, it is well that we can turn to that foundation which standeth sure, against which the gates of heli shall not prevail. The interests of God's kingdom are paramount always, and afford satisfaction which never faileth. To exalt one department of the work over another is never wise. To neglect the foundation is wicked. The building of houses of worship is essential to the success of every part of the varied interests of our wide-extended Zion. That is of the nature of seed-corn to the harvest. Our Church Extension movement has done more to foster and develop that necessary arm of service than any other one agency. No one opposes that movement, yet many of us hinder it by not giving due attention and proper emphasis to its great importance. The Board of Church Extension asks no partiality towards itself, but does insist that no discrimination be made against it. Earnest request is made that due diligence be given hy all in efforts to keep pace with the forward movement and enlarged plans inaugurated by the Board. To do so is to help evangelization, education, foreign missions and everything that pertains to the growth of the kingdom.

J. R. BINGHAM,
Treasurer Board of Church Extension, Miss. Conf.

COMMENDED BY A HIGH AUTHORITY.

CONSCIENCE AND ITS CULTURE. By Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, B. D.

The literature of child training grows more ethical and religious as the subject is more justly appreciated in all its bearings. The Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, of Mississippi, has made a valuahle contrihution to it. He finds people very much at a loss as to the nature of conscience and our duty towards it, while its existence and importance are recognized by all. He accepts the definition that "Conscience is the power to feel the right and wrong, with a sense of personal responsibility, hoth before and after conduct." The larger and more important part of the book is devoted to the discipline of conscience, and its trend may be inferred from the sub-title, "Through Conscience to Christ." It evidently is the fruit of much thought, wide study, and large practical ohservation. (Nashville: Publishing House of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. $1.)—Sunday School Times.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL ANNUAL CHEAP EXCURSION

SATURDAY, AUGUST 19th

Louisville $12.00
Cincinnati 14.00
Washington, Richmond,
Norfolk, Hot Springs, Va..$18.00

Good Returning Until Sept. 3.

Through coaches, free reclining chair cars, Standard and Tourist Sleepers. Special train service. Dining cars all the way. Children's tickets will be sold at one-half the adult rate.

Buy your Ticket and Sleeping Car Space in advance at

ILLINOIS CENTRAL OFFICE,
141 St. Charles Street,
Phone, Main 3613.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

On June 27, 1911, the death angel came and claimed Sister ELIZABETH JONES as its own. She was converted and joined the M. E. Church, South, early in life, and she lived a true and faithful life until the end. She passed away at the age of 84 to join her husband and the redeemed above. For several months previous to her death, she was as helpless as an infant. She leaves one son and three daughters to mourn their loss. Grandma Jones' home life was beautiful, patient and cheerful. The Christian graces shone out in all their beauty during her last illness. She was laid to rest in Center Star Cemetery. The funeral services were conducted by her pastor, assisted by Rev. D. A. McDougal. May God's Holy Spirit conduct and sustain the bereaved ones and bring them at last to a happy reunion in their Father's house!

A FRIEND.

MARGUERITE BLANCHE, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Walker, was born Apr. 30, 1909, and died at her home in Pachuta, Miss., April 3, 1911. The life of this bright little one was like a blushing rose-bud that withers with a dew-drop on its brow; but no life is without purpose. She fulfilled her mission and God called her home. Such dispensations of providence are unexplainable to us now, but in that glad day when we meet him face to face we shall understand. Over against sorrow and suffering, the Master has put Fatherhood and immortality. This should stimulate us to bear our afflictions bravely. Just two years ago, death took the father from this home and it seemed that little Marguerite was sent to dispel the gloom, for she was a veritable sunbeam! The world is a better place by having children live in it, for their pure lives lead us heavenward. The loved ones miss the happy little face that always met them at the gate to welcome them. She will not wait here again. Be faithful, for she's waiting for you by the beautiful gate in the city of God.

Her pastor, E. L. ALFORD.

Mrs. MARY J. JONES was born Dec. 5, 1842, and died at her home at Hurley, Miss., June 4, 1911. She was the daughter of Joseph and Lucinda Carter, of Americus, Jackson County, Miss. Their home was near the historic Salem Campground, and here she was converted and joined the Methodist Church early in life: and from that time was a most devoted and humble Christian. She was married to Alfred F. Jones, Feb. 13, 1857. She was the mother of ten children, eight of whom are still living. Rev. M. R. Jones, of the Mississippi Conference, is her son. She was indeed a faithful wife and devoted mother, and her death was a great bereavement to the family, but I hope, will be in the end a great blessing. She was greatly interested in the spiritual condition of her children; and if there were any of them that were not living as near the Savior as they should, I pray that her death may quicken their spiritual life. Sister Jones not only felt deep solicitude for those of her own household, but she was deeply concerned for the spiritual welfare of her neighbors and friends, and was often known to pray for them. She was one of the most quiet and sweet-tempered persons I have ever known. Brother Jones tells me that during the fifty odd years of their married life, he never knew her to be angry. She had been greatly afflicted in body for ten or fifteen years, but her last sickness was short, and her death was without any seeming pain. I am glad to know Brother Jones, who has been so sadly bereaved in her death, is as comfortably situated as he is in his declining years, and I pray that he may have grace to help in this time of need. May all those that Sister Jones so deeply loved follow her as she followed Christ.

M. J. MARBLE.

LAFAYETTE PITT REYNOLDS was born in Smith County, Tenn. March 6, 1834, and died at Booneville, Miss., July 31, 1911. Col. Reynolds has long been recognized as one of the most substantial citizens of North Mississippi—a man whom to know was to admire. He was educated in the common and high schools, and graduated in law at Lebanon, Tenn. Immediately after graduation he began the practice of law at Jacinto, Miss., and quickly rose to eminence in his profession. He was a member of the Mississippi Constitutional Convention of 1890, and also creditably represented his county in the Legislature one term. At the time of his death he was regarded as one of the strongest legal advisors and wisest of counseliors. The people of his county felt safe with him as president of the board of supervisors up to the day of his death. He was married Jan. 2, 1862, to Miss Emma J. Petty, with whom he lived happily till she left him for her eternal home four years ago. Three sons and two daughters survive. His was a happy home, where love and plenty abounded and hospitality was never stinted. Of the many noble traits of character Col. Reynolds possessed, I can only mention a few in this brief notice. He was notably a public-spirited man. No sacrifice was too great for him, if by it he could secure what he conceived to be the highest good of his community. He wore "the gray" fearlessly, spent his money freely, and gave his time liberally for his country's welfare. He sympathized with the poor and was called "the poor man's friend," often giving his professional services, and otherwise helping them. His efforts in behalf of educational interests were marked—he wanted the boys and girls to have the best advantages and spent himself and his means in this direction, this too, after his own children were educated. Col. Reynolds was a bitter enemy of the liquor traffic, recognizing it as the greatest menace to "God, home and native land." He was a member of the first temperance society in Tennessee, and always opposed the evil of intemperance fearlessly. His funeral, from the Methodist Church in Booneville, which was conducted by the pastor and Presiding Elder Jaco, was largely attended. Hon. J. A. Cunningham, of the local bar, paid him a loving tribute, as did also Hon. T. D. Rees and Prof. D. A. Hill. Peace be to his ashes. May "the God of all grace" be indeed a Father to the sons and daughters!

S. A. BROWN.

Booneville, Miss.

HARVEY C. CARTER, JR., was born at Vossburg, Miss., Oct. 29, 1893, and died at Ellisville, Miss., July 8, 1911. Harvey joined the Methodist Church when he was quite young without the solicitation of anyone, at the close of a regular service by the pastor of his church. Harvey was a good boy. It makes one's heart feel glad in these times, when the dollar seems to be the goal of all our young men, to find one who cares more for character than for money. He was kind and obedient to his parents, never giving them any trouble. During his last sickness he was always wishing for the presence of his father. He was not one to push himself forward, he did not seek the chief seat, but was content to fill the place assigned to him. God called for him when he was yet in the freshness of his young manhood. His last words to me were, "I know I love Jesus." When asked if he knew that Jesus loved him he answered, "Yes"—a testimony we all might envy at the close of life. We laid him to rest in the city cemetery where he awaits the call to come forth from the tomb

(Continued on Page 15.)

HIBERNIA INSURANCE CO.,

Capital.....$200,000.00
Assets..... 479,860.90

No. 305 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

LOSSES PROMPTLY PAID.

L&N Louisville & Nashville R.R.

THE DIRECT LINE TO NORTH AND EAST
ELECTRIC LIGHTED STEEL SLEEPERS
DINING CARS, OBSERVATION CARS, CHAIR CARS

Phone M 4093. TICKET OFFICE 201 ST. CHARLES STREET.

THE BIGGS SANITARIUM,
ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Dyspepsia, rheumatism, paralysis, neurasthenia and other chronic diseases cured. No tubercular cases accepted. Complete equipment; all modern methods; hundreds remarkable cures; personal care and attention; ideal climate; delightful mountain scenery. Twelfth year. Liberal guarantee of satisfaction. Endorsed by hundreds of best people in the South. Comfortable rooms, electric light, steam heat, moderate charges.

References, testimonials and diagnosis blank free.

Use the L. & A. Railway

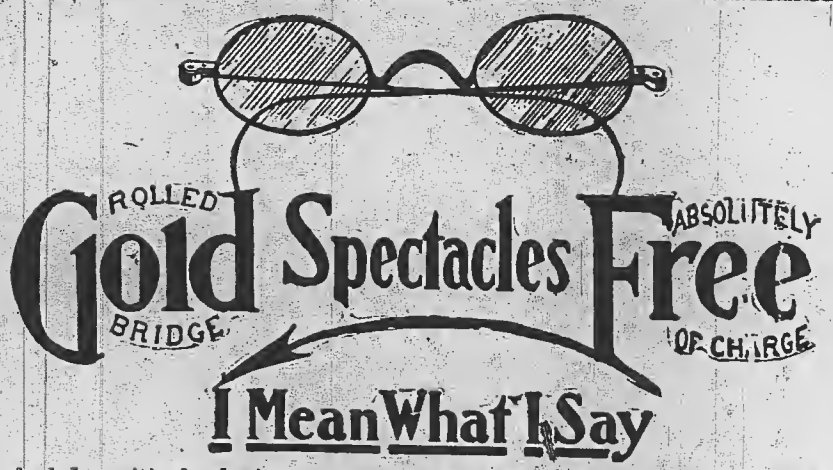
When you travel go via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY, The Road That Is Always on Time. FIRST-CLASS EQUIPMENT; Gravel Ballasted Track; 75 Pound Steel Rails; The Best of Service in Every Respect. Double Daily Passenger Service; Two Trains Each Way Daily.

OUR FREIGHT SERVICE IS UNEXCELLED.

When you order or ship freight if you want quick and satisfactory service, instruct your shipments routed via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY. Our motto is "EVER ON TIME."

F. W. GREEN, General Superintendent. Stamps, Ark.

B. S. ATKINSON, Gen. Frt. and Pass. Agt., Texarkana, Ark.



I Mean What I Say

And I positively don't want you to send me a single solitary penny when you answer this announcement. Why? Because I am now introducing a new kind of Spectacle—my wonderful "Perfect Vision" Spectacles—the latest and most remarkable eyesight protectors and preservers the world has ever seen.

—These latest "Perfect Vision" Spectacles of mine will actually make a blind man see—of course, I don't mean one blind from birth, but blind on account of age.—

—These latest "Perfect Vision" Spectacles of mine will enable you to shoot the smallest bird off the tallest treetops, plough in the field and drive on the brightest, hottest, sunniest days without any danger of your getting cataracts, chronic sore eyes, or granulated lids.—

—These latest "Perfect Vision" Spectacles of mine will enable you to read the very finest print in your bible, and do the finest kind of embroidery and crocheting just as well as you ever did in your younger days, and at one and the same time they will also be protecting and preserving your eyes and be keeping them from getting weaker while doing it.—

And I therefore want you and every other spectacle-wearer in your county (all my old customers also) to get a handsome ROLLED GOLD pair of these very remarkable and latest "Perfect Vision" Spectacles of mine without a single solitary cent of cost; and as a favor—not an obligation, mind you—I will kindly ask you to by showing them around to your neighbors and friends and speak a good word for them whenever you have the opportunity.

Just Do Me A Good Turn

If you want to do me this favor write me your name and address at once and I will immediately mail you my Free Home Eye Tester and latest ROLLED GOLD Spectacle offer. Address:—

DR. HAUX, Haux Building, ST. LOUIS, MO.

NOTE.—The above is the Largest Mail Order Spectacle House in the World and Perfectly Reliable.

Tidings From the Field

South Side, Meridian:

We are still struggling on with the great work of our blessed Lord. We are subordinating all studies and all else to the great work of saving souls, which to us is the greatest work of this life. We have had 44 accessions to our church this year and we have baptized 56 infants. Our finances are in advance of last year. Our Sunday school, under the superintendency of Brother W. D. Hawkins, is averaging every Sabbath above the same Sabbath of last year. We hope to begin our revival services soon, for as yet we have had no protracted meeting. We have not married but eight couples this year.—Isaac Lockhart Peebles.

Oloh, Miss.:

Rev. P. H. Howse has been with me three weeks in meetings at Advance, Oloh, and East Columbia. My work has been greatly strengthened both spiritually and in number. We received a total of 27 members, and baptized 7 infants. The people on my work are very much in love with Brother Howse, and give him credit for doing the greatest work ever done at these places. We had him with us in Oloh ten days and have planned to have him again in the fall. We will always hold a warm place in our hearts for Brother Howse, and will pray that God may continue to use him in the future as he did while among us.—H. C. Norsworthy, P. C.

DeSoto, Miss.:

Dear Editor: We have just closed a successful revival at DeSoto, Miss. The Rev. John Paul, of Poplar Springs, Meridian, did the preaching, and it was to the point and with power. He wrought well with my people. I can safely recommend him as being a good preacher, and a fine revivalist. Brother J. E. Brasher, of Goodwater, Miss., junior preacher of the DeSoto charge, was with us some during the meeting, and we found him to be a faithful preacher and an earnest worker. Our meeting came on in the hottest part of the political campaign, and we feared that this would interfere, and it might have done so to some extent. But amidst all opposition, we had a fruitful meeting. The Holy Spirit was present during the entire time, and I believe that I can safely say that every member of our church received a great blessing out of the meeting. Our next meeting will be at Cooper's Chapel, beginning Aug. 9, and we expect to open fire against sin and Satan. Brother W. W. Hopper is to do the preaching. We are expecting a great meeting. The DeSoto charge is looking up, and the pastor is happy and on his way to the better clime. May God bless the dear old Advocate and all of its readers!—Hilary Westbrook, pastor.

Buford, Miss.:

Dear Dr. Meek: We have just closed a very successful revival at Jamestown, Miss. The spirit of the meeting was just wonderful, and the preaching was very good, indeed. Brother H. Westbrook, from DeSoto, Miss., did the preaching. He is an earnest man in his appeals to men to give God their hearts, and God rewarded him for his work with several conversions and some accessions. Several members were taken in. Then our good men stood by us, and when the meeting was drawing to a close, Brother Broadwater and Brothers John and James Reagan saw to it that the people did not forget Bro. Westbrook, and we made him a present of $22.50. The people of Jamestown, as well as their pastor, learned to love Brother Westbrook. May his life be a success in the service of the Lord, is the prayer of all who met him at Buford. My work is not what it ought to be, but we are trying to come close to the front. Our third quarterly conference will be at Hopewell Church on Friday preceding the third Sunday in August. Pray for us down here, brethren. We are trying to let people know more about us down here.—W. B. Waldrop, P. C.

Clinton, La.:

We have just closed a good meeting at Clear Creek. Some say that it was the best meeting that had been held there in twenty years. Brother F. N. Sweeney came to me on Saturday, July 29, and was with me until the following Thursday. Then the pastor conducted the meeting until Sunday night. Brother Sweeney preached fine sermons and had large congregations. Some of the good Baptist brethren joined in, and were wonderfully blessed, and testified that it was the best meeting they had ever witnessed. Eight were added to the church by baptism. A Sunday school was organized. Several started to praying in public. Many family altars were erected and the church was greatly blessed. I am now in the camp meeting at Bluff Creek. Brother J. B. Fulton and I have been doing the preaching. We are looking for Brother C. C. Miller from Hammond, and T. J. Warlick, from Baton Rouge, to-day or to-morrow. Wish you could be with us. Yours in him.—H. G. Gatlin.

MISSION WORK IN LOUISIANA.

Dear Mr. Editor: When one sees something unusual and of great import to the church at large, even if the tangible results are not to be seen but in the far future, it is proper to bestow praises upon the workers for such achievements. Then spreading flowers upon a man while he is living shows, at least, that his work is appreciated.

So here is the bouquet. Last Friday night, August 5, at the close of a ten days meeting held at Cossinade, La., in a dance hall, conducted by Rev Martin Hebert, assisted by Rev. J. S. Rutledge, the consecrated preacher, and L. L. Spinks, the Sunday school man, about one hundred men, women, boys and girls (Catholics) came to the front and shook hands with Brother Hebert on the proposition to lead a better life. Wonderful, is it not? And more wonderful, a Sunday school was organized—things resulting from three years' work of Brother Hebert.

There are many good people living at Cossinade, and all the Protestant homes are opened to the preachers, and even a few Catholics like to see them come around and partake of gumbo and "cafe noir," especially to the home of Tubb's, a family headquarters for the Methodist preachers. A warm welcome and a bountiful table await them all. The writer spent five days in this family and enjoyed his time to the fullest extent.

It is a pity that we can't have more money to employ more men in the French mission work. Brother Hebert goes there once a month, while he ought to give every Sunday.

Every time a piece of iron is to be fashioned into something, it has to be heated to the red before you can hammer it, and so it is with some people: if you work with them once a month and are then away for three weeks, the work is to be done over.

Let us raise more money, employ more men, and, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit and the leadership of Brother Hebert, results will come.

ORGANIST.

EDUCATIONAL

Port Gibson Female College

"The ideal school for girls."

Situated in one of the healthiest sections of the United States—Port Gibson, Miss. Large, comfortable, airy buildings. Beautiful campus, shaded by stately oaks and pecan trees. Everything for the advancement of our students physically as well as mentally. Excellent physical culture course without cost. Unexcelled literary courses. Art, Elocution, Music, etc. Thorough instruction by competent, experienced faculty. The best of foods—milk and butter from herd of Jersey cows.

WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATED CATALOG

PORT GIBSON FEMALE COLLEGE
PORT GIBSON, MISS.

DICKSON COLLEGE,

THE SCHOOL FOR YOUR DAUGHTER.

Located in the Tennessee Highlands. Health unsurpassed. Out-door sports, exercise in the hills among Middle Tennessee's most beautiful springs. A thorough education which prepares for efficiency and gives real culture. Courses complete and advantages superb. Send your daughter to Dickson College and she will return to you stronger in body and mind, thoroughly equipped, cultured and refined, and ready to meet the actual problems of life. For catalogue and all information, address,

T. B. LOGGINS, Dickson, Tenn.

BINGHAM, Asheville, N. C., has prepared BOYS for College and for Christian Citizenship for 118 years, and ALONE in the U. S., offers a FREE ROUND TRIP TICKET from anywhere within 1500 miles to any parent who, on inspection, is not convinced that its pairs of ONE STORY brick rooms, separated by a parapet FIRE WALL, are the BEST for Health, Sanitation, Ventilation and safety against FIRE. 1793 Send for Catalogue or come and see. COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt., R. F. D. No. 28 1912

KOGER PEA & BEAN THRESHER

Guaranteed to thresh Cow Peas and Soy Beans from the vines and not break over two per cent of the grain.

WRITE FOR FREE ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE

"DOES NOT BREAK ITHE GRAIN."

Giving in detail the superior advantages of this machine. Requires the least amount of power, and produces the greatest amount of work. Also threshes Oats, Wheat, Velvet Beans, Rice, Millet and Sorghum.

Write us to day.

Koger Pea & Bean Thresher Co.
Morristown, Tenn.

Before and After the Fire

Nobody knows when fire or lightning or wind will rage and destroy.

Some church building is being harmed by one of these destroyers somewhere every day. Absolute protection against loss is furnished, and money saved the assured, and Methodism perpetuated, by

The National Mutual Church Insurance Co. of Chicago—The Methodist Mutual

No assessments. All that you have guessed about mutual insurance may be wrong. If you want to KNOW, write for information to HENRY P. MAGILL, Sec'y & Mgr., 184 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

MRS. ALICE HARGROVE BARCLAY, Agent, M E. Church South, South Brook 1116, Louisville, Kentuky.

ROYALINE OIL

Strongest and Best

ANTISEPTIC

Stops Pain--Heals Wounds

Use it for Colic, Thumps, Botts, Foot-evil, Galls, Sprains, Swellings, Bites and Stings, &c. Invaluable in every Stable, in every Home. Pleasant, Clean, Safe.

There is nothing "just as good". Try it and you will use no other. It has stood the test for nearly 20 years.

10c, 25c, 50c Druggists.

ROYALINE MED CO., Ltd, New Orleans, Sole Proprietors

Death Lurks In A Weak Heart

If Yours is fluttering or weak, use "RENOVINE." Made by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn. Price $1.00

The Sunday School.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Rev. B. F. Lewis.

It is pitiful to see Sunday school teachers teaching all they know.

It is pitiful to see a Sunday school superintendent running his Sunday school in the same old rut it ran in twenty-five years ago.

It is more pitiful to see a pastor who doesn't know how to help.

* * *

Most of the charges have by this time observed Children's Day. Will all the brethren please forward to our treasurer, Brother W. H. Morse, Tylertown, Miss., the full amount collected for the purpose? A full meeting of the Sunday School Board will be held early in September, and the data from the treasurer's books will be needed. We will thank you.

* * *

The Field Secretary has submitted her report for July. These are some of the items: Number of miles traveled, 1089; schools visited, 12; district conferences, 1; cradle rolls, 7; home departments, 8; new graded literature, 4; classes to organize, 11; schools to put in separate rooms, 6; schools graded or grading, 4.

* * *

Children's Day at Lorman, Harriston charge, recently observed, was the best in the history of the school. Every department of the Sunday school was on the program—home department, adult Bible class, and on down to cradle roll, where fourteen cradle roll certificates were given. Two most excellent Sunday school laymen were present and took part in the program, Mr. W. W. Ellis, of Fayette, and Mr. H. H. Crisler, of Port Gibson. $15.10 was raised.

In the afternoon, a County Sunday School Convention was held "which was very interesting, and we proved to have the banner Sunday school of the county." Good. May others do likewise.

NEWS AND NOTES.

By Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick.

The interest in teacher-training methods and books is a fine indication of a serious intention to be prepared to meet future contingences and to do good and constructive, intensive, as well as extensive work. A half dozen such study circles were organized last week in Brother Bennett's charge.

* * *

Sad will be the day for any man when he becomes contented with the thoughts he is thinking and the deeds he is doing—where there is not beating at the doors of his soul some great desire to do something larger which he knows he was meant and made to do.—Phillips Brooks.

* * *

Rev. Anderson Bennett is doing good and prophetic Sunday school work on his charge, seeking leaders, organizing classes and holding institutes. Two fine women are superintendents of progressive schools, Mrs. Hudson, at Hind's Chapel, and Mrs. Bennett, at Poplar Corner; but it is to be hoped the splendid manhood of these communities can be awakened to the need of coming to the help of these courageous women and realizing that Sunday school work is a man's job, as well as a woman's.

* * *

A memorial service was held Sunday morning, Aug. 6th, in the First Methodist Sunday school, Corinth, Miss., in honor of Capt. J. P. Collier, who had been superintendent of that school for many years and who "passed over the river" some days ago. From the primary class to the "Guard of Honor" of Confederate Veterans, tributes were paid to his life and influence in upbuilding the Methodist Sunday school and church, and his favorite songs brought back to the crowded Sunday school room the many, many faithful years of his long and useful life.

* * *

The Personal Workers' Testament, compiled by Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman and Mr. Norton, is a great help to the inexperienced but anxious worker, as well as to the trained teacher. No other Testament seems so well to meet the needs of everybody. If every Adult Bible Class worker could be induced to carry one in his pocket, memorize a verse every day, read a chapter every night, mark a passage and hand it to some one seeking the light he has found himself, the work of the Christianizing of the world would soon be accomplished.

* * *

The model Sunday school building to be constructed at Waynesville, N. C., will be of untold value to all workers. It will be a fine object lesson to all contemplating building such a room, and will be an inspiration to better things to those who, as yet, have no such vision. The third Sunday in October is Rally Day, and all Sunday schools are asked to contribute this day's collection to the erection of this building. Dr. Chappell is treasurer of this fund and it is confidently expected that this model Sunday school structure will be completed by next summer, and that ideal, as well as practical and helpful Sunday school sessions will be held there.

* * *

One busy man sent an exquisite cape jessamine to his teacher, and he lived in a climate where care and all sorts of appliances are needed to keep such a plant well. It came at an early morning hour when that teacher chanced to be discouraged, and brought joy and beauty to one heart all day. At twilight time it was taken to a very sick and very old lady whose sorrows, pains and disappointments are many, and what a smile came over her worn, old face at its fragrance and exquisite whiteness and beauty! The next day a sick boy luxuriated in its fading fairness, and the next it found its last glimmer of beauty on the desk of a person who really cared for all flowers, but this one with all the perfume of service seemed unusually sacred, and a leaf rests in a daily read Bible on the text: "As ye have done it unto the least of these, ye have done it unto me." The service of that one blossom, cultivated by a business man with a house full of children and a business which keeps him close, but with the great central idea of his life to help somebody! No wonder he smiles!

* * *

Mrs. J. W. Herring has organized her fine teen-age class of girls in the Sunday school of First Church, Corinth, Miss., under the name of "King's Ambassadors." Miss Katherine Bynum is president and Miss Ida Hendrix, secretary. These girls will have sewing parties all summer and hope to help with dainty needle-work at the annual bazaar to be given by their church.

Some teen-age boys have a clever teacher in this same church, who will take them on a ten days' camp and fish, but they are to meet and build the "house-boat" before starting. This idea of busy fingers building visible helpful things is one of the finest methods of helping the teen-age boy and girl grow, not "a crooked stick" but tall and straight and good to see.

* * *

From all over the Conference comes the plea of superintendents for trained and punctual teachers. One superintendent had to educate two out of his home department, and many are planning and desiring larger things if only they could have a few faithful teachers to assist them. The teacher training course is not difficult or expensive and is eminently helpful. It can be taken by one person and worked out alone, or by a dozen, with interest and inspiration. We sing, "I'll do what you want me to do, dear Lord, I'll go where you want me to go," and then allow a few faithful teachers and a needy superintendent attempt to train our children to become helpful Christians and good citizens. In no department of church work can we confidently look for such large returns and in no department are we needed more.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

New Orleans District, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., presiding elder; residence, 236 Olivier Street; phone, Algiers 76.

First Methodist Church, St. Charles Ave., near Calliope St.; Dr. S. H. Werlein, pastor; residence, 5830 Prytania St.; phone, Uptown 329.

Rayne Memorial Church, St. Charles Ave. and General Taylor St.; Rev. A. G. Shankle, pastor; residence, 1421 Constantinople St.; phone, Uptown 945.

Second Methodist Church, 2531 Burgundy, near Lafayette Ave.; Rev. A. F. Vaughan, pastor; residence, 815 Louisa st. Phone Hemlock 1376.

Parker Memorial Church, corner Nashville Ave. and Perrier St.; Rev. C. D. Atkinson, pastor; residence, 734 Nashville Ave.; phone, Uptown 671.

Louisiana Avenue Church, corner Louisiana Ave. and Magazine St.; Rev. H. T. Carley, pastor; residence, 920 Aline St.; phone, Uptown 756.

Felicity Street Church, cor. Felicity and Chestnut Sts.; Rev. W. W. Holmes, pastor; residence, 1515 Prytania St.; phone, Jackson 1753.

Carrollton Avenue Church, cor. Carrollton Ave. and Elm St.; Rev. J. G. Snelling, pastor; residence, 1125 Fern St.; phone, Walnut 1238.

Algiers, Lavergne Street, cor. Delaronde; Rev. J. W. Booth, pastor; residence, 149 Vallette, St.

Epworth Church, cor. Banks and Scott Sts.; Rev. L. A. Sims, pastor; residence, 3602 Canal St.

Mary, Werlein and McDonoghville; Rev. W. B. Perritt, pastor; residence, No. 1026 Tchoupitoulas St.; phone, Main 412.

Rev. John L. Sutton, Superintendent Orphan Boys' Asylum; residence, 5220 St. Charles Ave.; phone, Uptown 128.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, Superintendent St. Mark's Hall, 619-21 Esplanade. Residence, 1634 Sixth Street; phones: Residence, Uptown 954; St. Mark's Hall, Hemlock 1458.

Rev. R. A. Meek, Editor New Orleans Christian Advocate; residence, 724 Nashville Ave.; phone, Uptown 679.

Rev. John T. Sawyer, D.D., residence, 4429 Howard St.

Methodist Benevolent Association

The Connectional Brotherhood of Ministers and Laymen. Life or Term Certificates for $500 to $2,000. Benefits payable at death, old age, or disability. $100,000.00 paid to widows, orphans, and disabled. $14,000.00 reserve fund. Write for rates, blanks, etc.

J. H. SHUMAKER, Secretary Nashville, Tennessee

Sunburned

FACES, HANDS and

Arms will experience most gratifying relief in the cooling comfort that instantly follows the use of this pure, snow-white lotion,—

HINDS Honey and Almond CREAM

It will heal in 24 hours. A few applications will make the skin soft, smooth, clear and attractive. It will remove dust and other impurities from the pores, and prevent eruptions. It is not greasy nor harmful in the least, and is guaranteed not to grow hair. Best for babies' skin ailments.

There is only one genuine, original Hinds Honey and Almond Cream;—on the market for thirty-five years, and selling all over the world. Do not accept substitutes, for you'll be disappointed.—In bottles at 50 cents. All dealers sell it.

FREE—Trial Bottle mailed free by A. S. HINDS, 72 West St., Portland, Me.

ESCAPE THE HEAT OF SUMMER AND SPEND YOUR VACATION ON THE

PACIFIC COAST

Temperature 50 Degrees to 70 Degrees EVERY DAY

LOW ROUND TRIP RATES NOW IN EFFECT

Via SOUTHERN PACIFIC

Two Strictly First-Class Trains Daily

"SUNSET EXPRESS" and "CALIFORNIA EXPRESS"

Through to SAN FRANCISCO without change

Most Modern Standard and Tourist Sleeping Cars; Electric Lighted—Individual Lights in Berths; Oil Burning Locomotives; Electric Block Signals; Observation Car on Sunset Express; Dining Car Service Best in the World.

Before Deciding on Your Route, see

SOUTHERN PACIFIC REPRESENTATIVE,

City Ticket Office, 225-27 St. Charles Street, New Orleans

PHONE MAIN 4027

Beautifully Illustrated Literature Furnished on Request.

LOUISIANA RAILWAY

(La. R'y & Nav. Co.)

—THE SHORT LINE BETWEEN—

Shreveport; Alexandria; Baton Rouge; New Orleans.

THE COMFORTABLE ROUTE FOR PASSENGERS

QUICKEST ROUTE FOR FREIGHT

LESS THAN CARLOAD SHIPMENTS HAULED IN PACKAGE CARS IN THROUGH TRAINS.

The Mississippi Conference Training School,
MONTROSE, MISS.

A unique Preparatory school for boys and girls with wholesome moral surroundings and positive Christian influence.

Our regular literary course is practical, and prepares for taking the A. B. degree in the best colleges. The Bible is included in our daily recitations.

Our extras are: Music, Expression, and a normal course preparing teachers to teach in the public schools.

Special features are: A Mission Study Class, and a course preparing teachers to teach in the Sunday school. We also have a farm in connection with the school, and boys of moderate means may have the free use of the land and thereby pay expenses.

Write for catalogue.

(Rev.) WALDO W. MOORE, A. M., President.

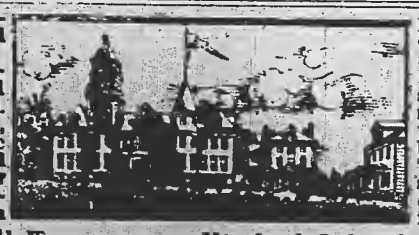
JEFFERSON MILITARY ACADEMY,
Washington, Miss.

Prepares for Colleges, Universities, Scientific Schools and business. Located in the Hills, six miles east of Natchez, a place noted for its healthfulness, fine climate and historic surroundings. Away from the detractions and temptations of City life, but with all modern convenience. Fine spring water. Personal attention; one teacher for every twelve boys. Eighty (80) acre campus. Large gymnasium. Endorsed and recommended by the presidents of Colleges and Universities. 110th Session begins Sept. 14, 1911. For full particulars apply to

MAJ. R. V. ANDERSON, Supt.

CHAMBERLAIN-HUNT ACADEMY, Port Gibson, Mississippi.
A High Grade Training School for Boys and Young Men.

First class boys wanted. Industrial and Practical in aim. Courses on Agriculture and Manual Training just added. Buildings modern, steam heat, electric lights, etc. In old historic section near Vicksburg. No malaria. Among Hills. Four Optional Courses. Instructors all College Graduates. No Hazing; Military abolished. Some boys reduce expenses by work. Non-sectarian, but Christian. Bible a Text Book. Last session crowded. Cheapest school of its kind in the South.



$180 Pays all Expenses. Kind of School South Needs.

Mention the Advocate. For Catalog address M. R. MELVIN, A. M.

High Grade Medical Teaching

Memphis Hospital Medical College
FOUNDED 1878 2760 GRADUATES.

Modern College Building. Modernly Equipped throughout.

ATTENDANCE SESSION 1910-'11. 380 STUDENTS.

Excellent Hospital and Laboratory Facilities

Thorough and Comprehensive Four Year Graded Course

For Announcement and Catalogue, address

W. B. ROGERS, M.D., Dean. MEMPHIS, TENN.

Marvin University School, CLINTON, KY.
CONDENSED INFORMATION.

LOCATION: Clinton, Ky., a clean town, 125 miles from Memphis; a healthful place, not a death in the student body in 25 years; the first prohibition town in Kentucky.

THE PLANT: Good brick buildings; new brick dormitory, with electric lights, steam heat, shower baths, hot and cold water on each floor; fine athletic field; swimming pool 125 yards long; one of the best plants in the South for a training school.

FACULTY: Trained experts, University men, abreast of the times.

COURSE: Equips for life or leads to the best colleges and universities; graduates receive free tuition in University of Kentucky.

TERMS: $190 pays board and all school fees for the year. Write for catalog to

NICHOLS BROTHERS.

NEW ORLEANS COLLEGE OF PHARMACY.

A completely equipped college. A school of Pharmacy, conducted by Pharmacists. Complete course of lectures with laboratory instructions in Pharmacy, Chemistry, Botany, Physiology, Urinology, Materia Medica and Pharmacognosy. Increase in faculty with curriculum. Next session begins Sept. 25th. Fees, $75 per sesison. Write for catalogue.

PHILIP ASHER, Ph.G., M.D., Dean,
1600 St. Charles Ave., New Orleans, La.

Wesleyan College
Macon, Georgia

One of the few real colleges for women in the South. Plant worth a half million, with all modern facilities. Faculty of forty. Nearly 3,000 alumnae throughout the nation.

Schools of Literature, Languages, Science, Arts and Music.

A safe institution for young ladies. Non-sectarian, but Christian to the core. Health record without a parallel—not a death for many years. Not conducted for profit, but to bless the world. Rates reasonable. No traveling agents.

For detailed information, address

W. N. AINSWORTH, D. D., President
C. R. JENKINS, Vice President

CAPITAL FOR CHEMICAL CO.
Virginia-Carolina Stockholders Vote to Sell $2,000,000 Stock.

The stockholders of the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Company, at their annual meeting in Jersey City yesterday, authorized the directors to sell the $2,000,000 unissued preferred stock authorized in 1904. The proceeds will be used as working capital for the increased business of the company. J. N. Wallace, T. S. Young, and J. A. Long were elected directors to succeed J. B. Duke, R. J. Reynolds, and W. N. Reynolds.

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.
Rev. David Carlisle Hull, M.S., President.

A high grade college, situated at the capital of the State. Location high, dry and healthful.

Entrance Requirements and Curriculum same as in other Leading Colleges and Universities North and South.

Separate Preparatory School under Private Dormitory Management.

The very finest Moral and Religious Influences. Extraordinary Advantages in

LITERARY AND LAW DEPARTMENTS.

Courses Leading to A.B., B.S., A. M., M.S., and LL.B. Degrees.

TWENTIETH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 20th, 1911.

For catalog and other information address

E. Y. BURTON, Secretary, Jackson, Mississippi.

GRENADA COLLEGE
A CHRISTIAN COLLEGE FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN.

The Property of the Church—Erected and Maintained for Service.

Only One Hundred Boarders Taken. Personal Attention Given Each Student.

A FACULTY OF SPECIALISTS.

THE BEST ADVANTAGES IN MUSIC, ART, AND EXPRESSION.

Write for Catalog. REV. J. R. COUNTISS, President. Grenada, Miss.

MARTIN COLLEGE,
An Endowed School for Girls and Young Women,

PULASKI, Tenn. Established 1870. W. T. WYNN, President

Located on Main line of the L. & N. R. R., eighty miles south of Nashville, forty miles north of Decatur, in the beautiful "Blue Grass" region so famous for health and the beauty of its scenery. Cultured community. All departments. German Director of Music. Conservatory and University trained teachers. Modern buildings. Good pianos, new $1000 grand for recitals. Correspondence invited. Forty-first session begins Sept. 20, 1911. Write for catalogue. Address W. T. WYNN, Pulaski, Tennessee.

DICKSON COLLEGE, Dickson, Tenn.
T. B. LOGGINS, A.M., President.

A school for both sexes; limited numbers; strong faculty; splendid student body; healthful location in the Tennessee Highlands; Christian influences. One of the safest and most practical schools for young men and women, boys and girls. Literary, music, expression, bookkeeping and short-hand courses. 27th year under same management, begins Thursday, Aug. 31, 1911. Before making other arangements, let us send you our beautiful 40-page catalogue. Address,

T. B. LOGGINS, Dickson, Tenn.

TRINITY COLLEGE
1859 1892 1910-1911

Three memorable dates: The Granting of the Charter for Trinity College; the Removal of the College to the growing and prosperous City of Durham; the Building of the New and Greater Trinity.

Magnificent new buildings with new equipment and enlarged facilities.

Comfortable hygienic dormitories and beautiful pleasant surroundings.

Five departments: Academic; Mechanical, Civil, and Electrical Engineering; Law; Education; Graduate.

For catalogue and other information, address

R. L. FLOWERS, Secretary, Durham, N. C.

Ward Seminary FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN Nashville, Tennessee

Literary Department of the highest order. Seminary and Special Courses. French and German spoken. Certification to Wellesley, Vassar, Goucher, Randolph-Macon.

In Music opportunities unsurpassed—nine teachers, eight with the best European training—WINKLER, Director Piano; CAMPOBELLO, Voice; SCHMITZ, Violin. School Orchestra and Chorus.

Expression, Art, Domestic Science—all in charge of specialists.

City advantages. Accessible to leading churches, libraries, lecture and concert halls. Outdoor sports, Tennis, Basket Ball, etc., also beautiful Ward Place campus for recreation.

47th year begins Sept. 21. 175 boarding pupils. Early application is advised

For Catalogue and Other Circulars, Address J. D. BLANTON, LL.D., Prest.

Silliman College for Girls
Clinton, La.

An endowed institution of high standard, located in a beautiful hill country. Three handsome Buildings and large, well shaded Campus. Electric lights, steam heat, splendid water supply and sanitary bath rooms.

It offers full classical, scientific and literary courses, with special advantages in music, art, expression and stenography. A diploma entitles holder to first grade teacher's certificate in the public schools of Louisiana.

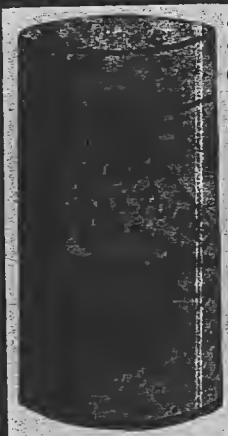
We emphasize noble and refined Christian womanhood. Individual attention is given to each student's needs by thorough teachers, and we maintain a strict standard of requirements.

Free scholarships are granted a limited number who need financial assistance. Some students pay half expenses by taking duties.

Silliman College is positively unexcelled in its careful and painstaking administration.

Sixtieth year begins Sept. 13th, 1911. Write at once for beautifully illustrated catalogue.

H. H. Brownlee, President, Clinton, La.



BAUER'S CAPORIC POWDER

A positive cure for excessive prespiration and odors arising therefrom, sore and sweaty feet, prickly heat. Fine after shaving and bath.

We will send full sized package postage paid on receipt of twenty-five cents (25c). We will send you a sample FREE if you will give us the name of your druggist or dealer. We guarantee every package. Your money back if not as represented.

DAVE S. BAUER,

DRUGGIST
Mobile, Alabama.

Want This Suit?

Show our samples to three of your friends, take two orders easy and make profit enough to get this swell tailored suit free. No trouble, simply show our new up-to-date samples. Everybody surprised, prices so low, styles so beautiful, orders come easy. We pay the express and guarantee perfect fit or no sale. You can make $5.00 a Day Easy. Write quick and get samples and agents' outfit free, everything explained, and special inside price on a suit for yourself. It's a wonderful chance.
BANNER TAILORING CO., Dept. 136 CHICAGO

TEXAS BERMUDA ONION FARMS

Located in Best Bermuda Onion District in Texas. PROFITS $200 to $600 per acre annually. WE RAISE the crop for SHARE of PROFITS. No PERSONAL ATTENTION nor EXPENSES required from YOU. Easy payments. WE PAID DIVIDENDS 1911 to UNIT HOLDERS. Dividends for You next season. Endorsed by local clergy and bankers. For particulars address, ZAVALA ONION FARMS CO., Gibbs Bldg., P. O. Box 836, SAN ANTONIO, Texas.

GINSENG RAISING is the surest way to make big money on little capital. One acre yields thousands of dollars a year. Sells for $6 to $7.50 lb. Will buy all you raise. Easily grown anywhere. Requires your spare time only. Could you realize how rapidly you can make money honestly, you'd write me today. T. H. Sattee, 406 Sherwood Ave., Louisville, Ky.

Our Copyrighted Book on GALL STONES, DYSPEPSIA AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, Stomach and Bowels FREE Address Gallstone Remedy Co., 225 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. Ask for Book No. 10.

ESTEY CHURCH ORGANS.

The ESTEY is the world's best Organ. The KOHLER & CAMPBELL PIANO is in every particular first class; satisfaction guaranteed in every case; freight paid; low cash price on easy payments without interest. Write for Catalogues.

J. E. BASS, Pastor Meth't Ch'ch.
Brookville, Miss.

VISIT
MINERAL WELLS
FOR HEALTH AND PLEASURE
AND
WEST TEXAS
For
FINE AGRICULTURAL LANDS.
REACHED VIA

THE TEXAS AND PACIFIC RAILWAY

EXCURSION TICKETS ON SALE DAILY.
Free Booklet.

E. P. TURNER,
General Passenger Agent.
DALLAS - - - - - TEXAS

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Monroe Dist.—Third Round.

Delhi	Aug.	20, 21
Brooklyn	Aug.	23
Floyd	Aug.	26, 27
Downsville	Aug.	29, 30
Mangham, at Boueff River	Sept.	2, 3
Eros, at Indian Village	Sept.	6
Winnsboro, at Boueff Prairie	Sept.	9, 10
Rayville	Sept.	13
Florence	Sept.	17, 18
Merrouge	Sept.	20

District Conference will meet in Rayville, July 26, 10 a. m.
S. S. KEENER, P.E.

Baton Rouge Dist.—Third Round.

Mt. Hermon, at Augie	Aug.	19, 20
Bogalusa	Aug.	20, 21
Wilson, at Manassas	Aug.	26, 27
St. Helena, at Pine R.	Sept.	2, 3
Kentwood	Sept.	3, 4
P. Grove, at Pipkin's	Sept.	6
Port Vincent, at Maurlpas	Sept.	9, 10
St. Francisville, at Tunica	Sept.	16, 17
N. Roads, at Morganza	Sept.	23, 24

C. C. MILLER, P. E.

Ruston District—Third Round.

Beinville, at Bear Creek	Aug.	19, 20
Boyd Mission, at Chestnut	Aug.	21
Arcadia	Aug.	26, 27
Ruston	Aug.	27, 28
Lanesville, at Brushwood	Sept.	2, 3
Lisbon, at New Hope	Sept.	9, 10
Houghton, at Dolline	Sept.	16, 17
Cotton Valley, Pleas. Val	Sept.	23, 24
Minden	Sept.	24, 25

R. W. TUCKER, P. E.

Alexandria District—Third Round.

Columbia, at Stanard	August	20, 21
Marksville, at Bay Hill	August	23, 24
Tioga, at Liberty Chapel	Aug.	27, 28
Alexandria	Sept.	1
Selma	Sept.	3, 4
Opelousas	Sept.	10, 11
Glenmora	Sept.	13
Colfax, at Atlanta	Sept.	17, 18
Melville, at Simmesport	Sept.	24, 25
Bunkie, at Cheneyville	Sept.	26

Special attention will be given to questions 18, 21, and 23.
PAUL M. BROWN, P. E.

NORTH MISS. CONFERENCE.

Sardis Dist.—Third Round.

Oakland, at Bethel	Aug.	19, 20
Courtland, at Shiloh	Aug.	22
Senatobia	Aug.	23
Cockrum, at Independence	Aug.	26, 27
Eureka, at Pisgah	Sept.	2, 3
Arkabutla	Sept.	9, 10
Crenshaw	Sept.	12

W. M. YOUNG, P. E.

Winona Dist.—Third Round.

Lambert, at Glendora	Aug.	19, 20
Minter City, 8 p. m.	Aug.	20
Eupora, at Eupora	Aug.	24
Bellefontaine, at Walthall	Aug.	24
Kilmichael, at Lodl	Aug.	26, 27
Tutwiler, at Marks	Sept.	2, 3
Slate Springs, at Bethlehem	Sept.	9, 10

E. S. LEWIS, P. E.

Corinth Dist.—Third Round.

Hatchie Mission, at Mt. Pisgah	Aug.	21
Ripley Mis., at Black Jack	Aug.	22
Dumas ct., Jacobs Chp	Aug.	23
Sherman Ct., ———	Aug.	25
Myrtle Ct., at Ebenezer	Aug.	26, 27
Kossuth Circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Sept.	2
Guntown and B., at Baldwyn	Sept.	3, 4
Baldwyn Mission, at Palestine	Sept.	9, 10

BEN P. JACO, P. E.

Durant Dist.—Third Round.

Black Hawk, at B. H.	Aug.	12, 13
Sallis, at Salem	Aug.	15
Kosclusko Ct., at Marvin	Aug.	17
Poplar Creek, at Huntsville	Aug.	19, 20
McCool, at Shady G.	Aug.	26, 27

N. G. AUGUSTUS, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Meridian Dist.—Third Round.

Meridian, East End	Aug.	23
Porterville, at Porterville	Aug.	26, 27
Daleville, at Andrew's Chp	Aug.	30
Waynesboro Circuit, at Fedora	Sept.	2, 3
DeSoto, at Hopewell	Sept.	9, 10
Meridian, 7th Ave	Sept.	13
Meridian, Poplar Spgs	Sept.	14
Waynesboro	Sept.	17, 18
Bucatunna, at ———	Sept.	19
Meridian, South Side	Sept.	20

W. H. LEWIS, P. E.

Seashore Dist.—Third Round.

Carriere and McNeil, at Picayune	Aug.	19, 20
Gulfport, 25th Avenue	Aug.	23
Wolf River Mission, at Durham's Chapel	Aug.	26, 27
Long Beach	Aug.	30
Biloxi	Sept.	2, 3
Bay St. Louis	Sept.	6
Logtown	Sept.	7
Coalville, at Poplar Head	Sept.	9, 10
McHenry and Wiggins, at McHenry	Sept.	13

W. B. JONES, P. E.

Newton Dist.—Third Round.

Morton, at Zion Grove, Friday	Aug.	25
Hickory, at Garlandville	Aug.	26, 27
Philadelphia	Sept.	1
Neshoba, at Sand Town	Sept.	2, 3
Hillsboro, at Prairie Hill, Friday	Sept.	8,
Forest, at Lena	Sept.	9, 10
Indian Mission, at Neshoba	Sept.	16
Stallo, at Neshoba	Sept.	16, 17
Newton Wed	Sept.	20

T. J. O'NEIL, P. E.

Port Gibson Dist.—Third Round.

Harriston, at Martin	Aug.	25
Washington, at Pine G.	Aug.	26
Natchez, Jefferson St.	Aug.	27, 28
Nebo, at Oak Grove	Sept.	2, 3
Wilkinson, at Mars Hill	Sept.	9
Woodville	Sept.	10
Hermanville, at Sarepta	Sept.	16
Natchez, Pearl St.	Sept.	17
Rocky Springs, at Willows	Sept.	23, 24
Oak Ridge, at Bovina	Sept.	30
Vicksburg, South Washington Street	Oct.	1
Centreville	Oct.	4
Homochitto, at Mt. Vernon	Oct.	6

H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN, P. E.

Brookhaven District—Third Round.

Magnolia	Aug.	26, 27
McComb and Fernwood, at South McComb	Aug.	27,
Wesson	Aug.	30,
Adams, at Ebenezer	Sept.	1,
Meadville, at Ediceton	Sept.	2,
Pearlhaven, at Bethel	Sept.	3,
Brookhaven	Sept.	3, 4
Summit, at East McComb	Sept.	10,
McComb, Centenary	Sept.	10, 11
Monticello, at Georgetown	Sept.	16, 17
Scotland at Bethesda	Sept.	23, 24

J. T. LEGGETT, P. E.

Hattiesburg Dist.—Third Round.

Lucedale, at Shipman	Aug.	27, 28
McLain, at Cross Roads	Sept.	2, 3
Eastabuchie, at McLaurin	Sept.	7
Eucutta, at Broyls	Sept.	9, 10
Sanford, at Sanford	Sept.	16, 17
Seminary, at Bethel	Sept.	20

District Conference at Richton, July 11-14. The conference will organize on the 11th at 8:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present at the organization.

M. B. SHARBROUGH, P. E.

Jackson Dist.—Third Round.

Lintonia, at Lake City	Aug.	22
Edwards	Aug.	24
Yazoo City	Aug.	27
Benton, at Tranquill	Aug.	28
Deasonville, at Fletcher	Aug.	29
Flora, at Livingston	Aug.	30
Fannin, at Holly Bush	Sept.	6
Jackson, Galloway Chp	Sept.	10
Yazoo City 7:30 p. m.	Sept.	13
Bolton, at Brownsville	Sept.	16, 17
Satartia	Sept.	23, 24

J. R. JONES, P. E.

Poor, Foolish Woman!

Think of her attempting to make ice cream in the old disappointing way! With JELL-O ICE CREAM Powder she can make the most delicious ice cream in ten minutes, freezing and all, at a cost of about one cent a dish—and never go near the stove.

Your grocer will tell you all about it, or you can get a book from the Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N.Y., if you will write them.

Grocers sell Jell-O Ice Cream Powder, 10 cents a package.

ESTABLISHED 1858
CHURCH AND SCHOOL BELLS
Write for SPECIAL DONATION PLAN Cat. No. 57
THE C. S. BELL COMPANY, HILLSBORO, O.

BEST THING MADE

April 28, 1910, Dothan, Ala.

I began handling Johnston's Tonic in Blakely, Ga., in 1884. In 1892, moved to Dothan, Ala. Have sold more than 1000 bottles. Use it in my family for Colds, Fever and La Grippe. In all the years I have been selling it, never had but 2 complaints. Both parties admitted afterwards they had not used it right.
H. Q. FRAZIER.

April 13, 1910, Greenwood, S. C.

I have used Johnson's Tonic in my family for 9 years. It is all you claim for it and more too. It cured me of Typhus Hemorrhagic Fever. I would have been under the sod 9 years ago but for JOHNSON'S. Tell this to the world. It may save some man's life.
A. P. ALDRICH.

Drives every trace and taint of Malarial Poison from the Blood.

QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Best & Quickest Service
TO ALL
IMPORTANT DESTINATIONS
In the North & East

Summer Tourist Tickets now on Sale to all Mountain, Lake and Seaside Resorts.

—Ticket Office—
211 ST. CHARLES STREET
Phone Main 4482

Terminal Station---Canal Street

INVESTING FOR PROFIT FREE.

FOR SIX MONTHS. It is worth $10 a copy to any man intending to invest any money however small, who has invested money unprofitably, or who can save $5 or more per month, but who hasn't learned the art of investing for profit. It demonstrates the real earning power of money, the knowledge financiers and bankers hide from the masses. It reveals the enormous profits bankers make and shows how to make the same profits. It explains how stupendous fortunes are made and why made; how $1,000 grows to $22,000. To introduce my magazine write me now. I'll send it six months, absolutely FREE. E. L. BARBER, Pub., R. 439, Jackson Blvd., Chicago, Ill

I pack my troubles in as little compass as I can for myself, and never let them annoy others.—Southey.

Sore Eyes

Are cured without pain in one day by Leonardi's Golden Eye Lotion. There is no other eye remedy so soothing, healing, prompt and effective. It makes strong eyes.

Guaranteed or money refunded. Druggists sell it at 25 cts. or forwarded prepaid on receipt of price by S. B. Leonardi & Co., Tampa, Fla.

Obituaries

(Continued from Page 10.)

in that day. Rev. E. B. Witherspoon, pastor of the Presbyterian Church, assisted in the last sad rites.

His pastor,

JOHN C. CHAMBERS.

RESOLUTIONS OF APPRECIATION.

Resolutions adopted hy the Elllsville adult Bible class of the Methodist Church:

Whereas, God in his providence, has seen fit to remove from our midst our beloved fellow-student and classmate, HARVEY C. CARTER, JR., therefore, be it resolved,

First—That in his death we have sustained the loss of a bright and much beloved calssmate.

Second—That his absence from our class will be keenly felt by each member.

Third—That we extend to his bereaved loved ones our healtfelt sympathy and condolence in this, their affliction. JOHN POOL, President.

Mrs. KATIE COOPER, the sweet young wife of Mr. Tom Cooper, was laid to rest a short time ago in the Flurry Cemetery near Vestry, Miss. She was born and raised in Jackson County, but her light step and sweet voice brightened the lives of those she loved for only a few short years. She was the only girl in the home of a father and mother and four brothers. She was the joy and sunshine of that home. She married young, not being quite seventeen, when she became the loving, obedient wife of Mr. Tom Cooper. As a daughter and slster at home, she made the home happy. She wore a sweet smile for everybody, and her voice was never heard, only in a loving, gentle tone. As a wife, In her sweet, simple way, she performed every duty required of a wife. She joined the Methodist Church when she was only nine years old, and lived up till the time of her death a consistent member and a true, devoted Christian. She left a father and mother, four brothers, a hroken-hearted husband and a little baby just a few hours old to mourn their loss. Mrs. Cooper was loved and admired by all who knew her, and while her death caused sorrow, grief and broken hearts in the home she left, we believe she is happy now In heaven, and some day the curtaln will be lifted and we will be able to see not dimly, but clearly, why God comes at an unexpected hour and blights our home by plucking from it the purest rose there. A beautiful flower has been plucked from the garden of earth, to bloom in the paradise of God. Just a short time before she fell asleep she called for her sweet little babe. Death was no struggle for her; she passed away with the same sweet smlle that always lit up her face. She was born June 9, 1893, and died July 9, 1911, aged 18 years. Her sweet young llfe was an example to the world she left hehind her; it was spent religiously, and at its close, we can say she stood up for Jesus, she served her Lord, and is now ready to wear a golden crown and a robe of spotless white in that land where the flowers always bloom, and where sorrow and pain are never known.

A voice we loved is still,
A form so precious gone:
Be it so, 'tis as he will'd,
That she should leave our home
To live in realms of glory bright,
Where come no sorrow, pain or night.

By her cousin,

ALICE ROBINSON.

Anna Bistrup, wlfe of the Danish governor of Greenland, has wrltten for the September "Century," out of the fullness of twenty-five years' llfe in that country, of "Eskimo Women in Greenland." The artlcle will be interestingly illustrated with pictures from photographs furnished by the writer.

TRI-STATE METHODIST HOSPITAL.

Hospital Day Changed From Oct. 8, 1911, to Jan. 28, 1912.

The executive commlttee of the Board of Commissioners of the Trl-State Methodist Hospital met in the office of Mr. T. K. Rlddick, at Memphis, Tenn., Saturday, Aug. 5th, to consider with the Field Secretary, Rev. H. M. Ellls, the prospects for the institution, and to lay plans for the wise prosecution of their work for the immediate future.

The revlew of the work already done was very satisfactory. Though the greater part of the Field Secretary's time has been occupied in visiting conferences, where he could only prepare the way for future collections hy creating sentiment, and the season of the year in which he took charge of the work was the most unpropitious for raising money, the showing in cash and subscrlptions was very encouraging and satisfactory.

Serious objections having been raised to the 8th of October as an impracticable date for Hospital Day, when the pastors and churches will all be in the midst of a struggle to meet their ohligations on the regular Conference assessments and other pledges, the committee concluded that it would be best to change the date from Oct. 8, 1911, to Jan. 28, 1912. This being the fourth Sunday in January, the Conferences will all be over, the preachers settled down to work and the people anxious to begin the new year arlght. With full preparation and thorough co-operation, it is hoped to raise for the Methodist Hosplal on thls fourth Sunday in January next the largest offering ever made In a single day in the South.

H. M. ELLIS, Field Agent.

NOTICE.

To the Pastors of the Mississippi Conference—

My Dear Brethren: It is to be hoped that you will not forget to preach the sermon on "A Call to Preach," as prescribed in the Discipline, before the Conference year has closed.

You will do me a great favor, too, by sending me the names of any in your pastoral charges who contemplate entering the ministry of our Church. This is in compliance with the request for the Board of Education of each Conference.

One preacher has sent me the names of two young men this year, and I hope others will do the same for the young men, as well as the Board.

Hoping to hear from every pastor who has such a young man as suggested in his charge, and with great esteem, I am very cordially,

ROBT. SELBY,
Conference Secretary of Education.
Moss Point, Miss., Aug. 9.

Marriages.

July 24, 1911, at Pelahatchie, Miss., hy Rev. C. McDonald, Prof. J. L. ROBERTS and Miss EVA MYERS.

August 3, 1911, at the home of the bride's parents, at Longview, in Pointe Coupee Parish, La., by Rev. P. A. Swann, Mr. CLINTON J. SEELING, of Brudelouville, La., to Miss KATHERINE JANET KUHLMANN.

August 3, 1911, at the residence of the bride's parents, at Legonier, Pointe Coupee Parish, La., by Rev. P. A. Swann, Mr. W. E. G. CHALMERS, of Houston, Tex., to Miss ELLA D. KUHLMANN.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children, 50c.

Here it is (By Manaffey) NEW LIGHT ON BAPTISM Facts found in the Original Authority under which John first baptized prove that Sprinkling was the Original Mode. No more doubt about it. 68 page book. 10c THE BIBLE MODE CO., Box G, Clinton, S. C. Only 10c

SNOWDRIFT

HOGLESS LARD

E-1

Sold by all Leading Dealers who avoid substitution trade

Snowdrift Hogless Lard goes one-third further, costs one-third less, is three-thirds more healthful and wholesome than hog lard, and produces the most beautiful results known to any shortening. Always call for Snowdrift, the original HOGLESS shortening. Buy in tins only. Snowdrift is imitated but never rivaled.

Made by The Southern Cotton Oil Co., New York, Savannah, New Orleans, Chicago

Cut Down Expenses With An IHC Gasoline Engine

SAVING time and work on the farm cuts down expenses—makes farm life more pleasant and more profitable. Of all modern work and time savers—an I H C gasoline engine stands first. It operates the many machines that now mean hard, disagreeable, expensive hand labor. It solves the "keep-the-boys-on-the-farm" and "hired-help" problem.

Wouldn't you like to have a simple, economical, efficient, durable I H C—the engine that thousands of other progressive farmers are using with such great profit and satisfaction? Wouldn't you like to have it run your cream separator, feed cutter, pump, fanning mill, saw, grindstone, thresher, clover huller, electric light plant, washing machine, and do the other odd jobs around your farm?

An I H C engine costs less than any other if you measure by the years of service. And you can get just the I H C you want. There is

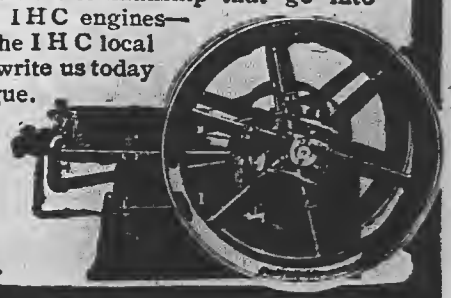
A Style and Size For You

I H C Service Bureau

Bureau is a clearing house of agricultural data. It aims to learn the best ways of doing things on the farm and then distribnte the information. Your individual experience may help others. Send your problem to the I H C Service Bureau.

I H C Gasoline Engines are made in the following styles and sizes:

Vertical type—2, 3, 25, and 35-H. P.; horizontal—1 to 25-H. P.; semi-portable—1 to 8-H. P.; portable—1 to 25-H. P.; traction—12 to 45-H. P.; sawing, pumping, spraying, and grinding outfits, etc. Built to operate on gas, gasoline, kerosene, distillate, or alcohol. Air-cooled or water-cooled. Don't buy any engine till you investigate the I H C line. Learn all the facts about the design, materials, and workmanship that go into the construction of I H C engines—then decide. See the I H C local dealer at once, or, write us today for our new catalogue.



INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY OF AMERICA (Incorporated)

Chicago U S A

Epworth League

By Rev. H. B. Watkins.

TOPIC FOR AUGUST 20, 1911.

"SYMPATHETIC SERVICE."

Rom. xii, 15; Heb. xiii, 1-3; 1 Pet. iii, 8.

Christian Sympathy.

In our present lesson we are taught the duty of sympathy. We are to rejoice with those who rejoice and weep with those who weep. There are too many who only rejoice over their own happiness, and weep at their own miseries. If they are enjoying good health, if they are prospering, if everybody speaks well of them, if everything goes to suit them, they are happy. If they are ill, if they are in poor circumstances, if they are persecuted, or think that they are not appreciated, they are miserable. Some of our young people are always complaining of having their feelings hurt. The real trouble with such young people is selfishness pure and simple. No selfish individual can be of service to humanity. If we would be of any real service to our kind we must have our heart tuned to respond to the great heart of suffering humanity. They say that, if you strike a piano in a room in which are other pianos unopened and untouched, all the other instruments will respond to the same note; so should the strings of one heart vibrate to those of another. O, Epworthians! remember that, "The world is sighing, the world is dying, for a little bit of love."

"Down in the human heart,
Crushed by the tempter,
Feelings lie buried that grace can restore;
Touched by a loving heart,
Wakened by kindness,
Chords that were broken will vibrate once more."

Look Out for the Stranger.

In our second reference we are admonished to look out for the stranger, and to be careful to entertain him. Every member of the League should be on the "lookout committee."

Such a case as is described in "our Printer of Udells," should never occur in one of our leagues or churches. To "entertain the stranger" means that we are to look out for the comfort not only of the clean and well dressed individual who occasionally drops into our league or church services, but also of the men with grimy faces and soiled hands and shabby clothes who do our hard work for us. Do not these people demand our consideration? Should we not try to acquaint ourselves with them so that we may properly sympathize with them?

A Genius for Kindness.

"There is a man," said his neighbor, speaking of a village carpenter, "who has done more good, I really believe, in this community than any other person who ever lived in it. He cannot talk very well in prayer meetings, and he doesn't very often try. He isn't th two thousand dollars, and it is very little that he can put down on subscription papers for any good object. But a new family never moves into the neighborhood that he does not find them out to give them a neighborly welcome and offer any little service he can render. He is usually on the lookout to give strangers a seat in his pew at church. He is always ready to watch with a sick neighbor and look after his affairs for him; and I've sometimes thought he and his wife kept house-plants in winter just for the sake of being able to send little bouquets to invalids. He finds time for a pleasant word for every child he meets, and you'll always see them climbing into his one-horse wagon when he has no other load. He really seems to have a genius for helping folks in all sorts of common ways, and it does me good every day just to meet him on the street."

Be Polite.

It is not only a mark of good breeding to be polite, but it is enjoined as a Christian duty. The Apostle Peter also places emphasis upon compassion and love for one another, but he brings in another grace—courtesy. No selfish individual can be courteous, for true courtesy is of the heart. It is consideration for the feelings of others. It is carrying the injunction "In love preferring one another." It is a winning grace. The young Epworthian who is polite and courteous always has a host of friends and wields a mighty influence for good in his community. It is said that when Zachariah Fox, the great merchant of Liverpool, was asked by what means he contrived to realize so large a fortune as he possessed, his reply was: "Friends, by one article alone, in which thou mayest deal too, if thou pleaseth—civility." During the War of Independence an old lady, who had a store in Philadelphia, used to say that the most profitable thing she kept in her shop was politeness; it drew the very children to her even better than the sweets. Some one asked: "What was it that gave Miss Nightingale such powerful control over the soldiers and seamen in the hospital during the Crimean war, that they would do anything in their power for her, and in her presence they would not utter a single coarse, vulgar, profane or improper word?" It was, no doubt, largely owing to her refined, cultured, polite manner, dominated by a truly Christian spirit.—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

The Cause of Chronic Illness.

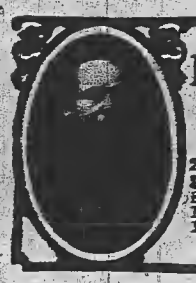
Everybody admires a strong, well developed, good natured man or a bright, energetic and attractive woman with the glow of health in her rosy cheeks. And yet do you know that thousands of people who suffer with chronic ailments which rob them of the joys of health could easily and quickly rid themselves of this condition and know again the pleasure of living?

How? Listen! The blood is the life of the body. Every school boy is taught that fact. You also know that poisoned blood will poison every organ in the body, the brain, the nerves, the heart, the liver, &c, &c. Find a person with impure blood and you have a chronic invalid.

But how does the blood become poisoned? In two ways. First, by imperfect digestion of food, thus taking poison into the body. Second, by failure of the liver and kidneys to throw off the natural poison, thus retaining poison in the body. To regain pure blood and therefore vigorous health you must secure perfect digestion and perfect action of the liver and kidneys. Remember that pure blood and health are natural and that disease is unnatural. You can regain your natural health by regaining your pure blood.

W. H. Bull's Herbs and Iron is a preparation that puts the blood in perfect condition, by freeing it from all particles of impurities, thereby making the blood rich, red and pure and toning up the entire system. It will make you feel like a new person, and you notice an improvement after the first dose. This preparation can be had from your druggist. After using two-thirds of the contents of a bottle, according to the directions, if you do not notice any beneficial effects return the remainder and the money you paid for the entire bottle will be refunded to you.

DR. H. B. BARTLETT
National Dental Parlors
Cor. Canal & Camp Sts.
ENTRANCE 106 CAMP
Phone Main 2193
NEW ORLEANS
Vitalized Air for Painless Extraction
Crown and Bridge Specialist.
The Largest and Best Equipped Dental Parlors South.



GEM CITY Business College
Quincy, Ill.
25 teachers, 1400 students, $100,000 School Building. Shorthand and Typewriting, Bookkeeping, etc. 68 page Illustrated Catalogue free.
D. L. MUSSELMAN, Pres't. Box C9, Quincy, Ill.

OUR VISIONS.

Now what visions have you concerning God's work in your League? Have you never sat and truly gave your mind over to the Master in contemplation of the situation and asked Him to show you what He wanted done? Look at the great workers in your League! Look at those with new ideas on each department work. Where did they get those ideas and plans? They were not all found in books. They have come from communion with the Master and are the visions that He has given to them. The Master will always reveal great things to him who comes to Him in thoughtful conference. When St. John was writing of the vision on the Isle of Patmos, he said it was not well for him to write of all the things that God had showed him, so great were the visions he had received.

A leaguer wrote to us once and told a most heart-breaking story about the condition of the young people in her League. They were given over to all the worldly practices possible and spiritually had no place in their chapter. "What was to be done," she cried! They had lost their vision. They had ceased to have the true insight to God's work. When we lose our mortal vision how soon do we try to mend it with glasses, oculists, operations, etc. But how often when we have lost our spiritual vision do we neglect it? If you have no plans for your League, you are losing the touch with the Master, for surely He has plans to tell you of.—St. Louis Advocate.

RULES FOR MAKING SUNSHINE.

When you rise in the morning, form a resolution to make the day a happy one to a fellow creature. It is easily done, a left-off garment to the man who needs it, a kind word to the sorrowful, an encouraging expression to the striving, trifles in themselves light as air, will do it, at least for the twenty-four hours; and if you are young, depend upon it, it will tell when you are old; and if you are old, it will send you gently down the stream of human time to eternity. By the most simple arithimetical sum, look at the result; you send one person, only one, happy through the day—that is three hundred and sixty-five during the course of the year; and suppose you live only forty years after you commence that practice, you have made fourteen thousand six hundred human beings happy, at all events for a time. Now is not this simple? It is too short for a sermon, too homely for ethics, too easily accomplished for you to say, "I would if I could."—Sydney Lovett.

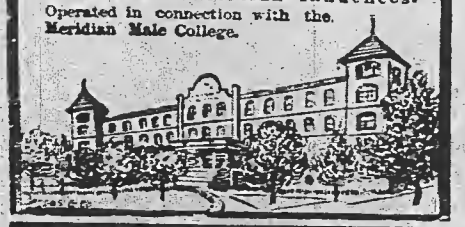
IN THE SEPTEMBER "CENTURY."

An article of unique interest in the September "Century" will be a discussion of "Christian Missions in Japan," by Adachi Kinnosuke—the "impression of an outsider pure and simple." Additional interest is given to Mr. Kinnosuke's presentation of conditions by an additional paper of comment on his statements from William Elliott Griffis.

VANDERBILT University
1,000 Students 100 Teachers
Campus of 80 Acres
also
New Campus for Departments of Medicine and Dentistry
Expenses low. Literary course for graduates and undergraduates. Professional courses in Divinity, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Theology. Send for catalog, naming department. (1)
J. E. HART, Secretary. Nashville, Tenn.

MERIDIAN
MILITARY TRAINING

CHRISTIAN INFLUENCE
MALE COLLEGE
The Health-giving Pine Hills of Mississippi. Beautiful campus and recreation grounds. Dignified, manly athletics encouraged. Brutal games, secret societies, tobacco, etc., prohibited. Preparatory, Collegiate, Theological and Commercial courses. Commercial School open all the year. Enter any time. An IDEAL HOME SCHOOL for your boy where he will receive thorough instruction, morally, mentally and physically. Write for Catalog No. 4
M. A. Bacon, D. Sc., Pres. Meridian, Miss.
Meridian Woman's College, a quarter mile distant, is an ideal place for your sister. Non-sectarian. Christian Influences. Operated in connection with the Meridian Male College.



SCIENCE HILL SCHOOL
SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY.
An English and Classical School for Girls. College Preparatory course with certificate privileges at Wellesley, Vassar, Smith, Leland Stanford, Randolph-Macon and other colleges. 86 years of successful work. College trained teachers. Superior advantages in music. MRS. W. T. POINTER, Principal.

RANDOLPH-MACON ACADEMY For Boys and Young Men
Fits for college, scientific schools or business. Work endorsed by over 30 colleges and universities. Beautiful and healthful location. Athletic grounds; gymnasium. Terms, $250. No extras. For catalogue, address
E. SUMTER SMITH, Principal, Bedford City, Va.

BEETHOVEN
CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC,
St. Louis, Missouri.
The oldest, largest and best music school in the State. All branches of music taught. Send for handsomely illustrated catalogue to the BROTHERS EPSTEIN, Directors.
4503 Olive,

FOR THE GIRL'S SAKE
As well as the Boy's send them to
RUSKIN-CAVE COLLEGE
"The School That Cares"
The college that is religious but non-sectarian. Does not tolerate tobacco, football or baseball. No loafing places, for the college owns the village, making the school the safest place for training men and women. Located in a HEALTH RESORT. Only 200 students accepted. Apply Early.
Write to-day for Free book "Character Talks" which tells all about it.
RUSKIN-CAVE COLLEGE,
Ruskin, Tenn.

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days, usually gives entire relief 15 to 45 days and effects cure 30 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box X, ATLANTA, Ga.

NEW ORLEANS CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

VOL. 58—No. 34. "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which is Good." WHOLE No. 2897.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.

NEW ORLEANS, LA., THURSDAY, AUGUST 24, 1911

CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.
Office, No. 512 Camp St.

WANTED—SPIRITUAL PASSION.

Spiritual passion! This is the term that defines it all. This it is that is the great need of the Methodist Episcopal Church at tbe present time. An all-mastering passion for the things which are of spiritual import—this must be the controlling power of the Church. Possessed in this way, it will be mighty for the conquering of the world. Without it, it can do nothing.

But let it be acknowledged regretfully that all too often this is tbe very thing that is lacking in our churches. We have a kind of a spiritual life. We are interested in the spiritual welfare of folks generally. We want the church to be spiritual, somewhat. But—but tbe passion for the things spiritual is lacking. Yet this is the very thing that consumed Paul and Peter, and the early followers of the Master. "The love of Christ" constrained them. This was the passion that set on fire the heart of Wesley and the souls of his co-workers. "The zeal of the Lord" fairly consumed them, and led them to give themselves to the work in season and out of season. They had spiritual passion.

Is not this the story that is back of our denomination as a whole? Were not the early followers of Methodism "a peculiar people, zealous of good works," because of the intense interest that they took in things spiritual? They faced opposition, they willingly accepted social ostracism, they accepted the opprobrium of their fellows—all of this because they were filled with a love of the things of the Spirit. They believed that above all things else the spiritual life was all important both for themselves and for their fellows. Hence their churches were scenes of great spiritual conquests where young and old learned to love the Lord and serve Him with singleness of heart.

We are inquiring what is the matter with Methodism in these days. We wonder why we are getting such meager returns for the investment that we are making in time and energy and money. Why are we not growing faster? The answer is to be found in this fact: We have lost, too many of us, our spiritual passion.

It is true that the present is not the past, and that we cannot do things to-day as we did them yesterday. But with all that, the need of a love for the things of the Spirit is just as keen to-day as ever it was. We may talk about conserving the child to the kingdom of God as much as we will, and we may speak of the need of reaching out for the down-and-out, but neither the one nor the other will be done to any great extent unless there is in the pastor and in tbe laity of the church a genuine spiritual passion—a desire to make the things of the Spirit the great end of the work of the Church.

We are failing at that very point. Our churches want good preaching, and for the most part they get it. They want good music, and they have it. Tbey want a healthy social life among the people, and our churches are not wanting to any great extent even there. They ask that things run smoothly and harmoniously, and, generally speaking, they do, as smoothly, in fact, as it is possible for any organization to run that has so many human elements in it along with the divine. But when all of this has been said, and much more, we have not touched the great work of the Christian Church. These are all means to an end, that end the saving of the world.

And here is where the failure is all too often How many churches put this before them as the goal, definitely, openly acknowledged, the end for which they will work—namely, the spiritual awakening of the people? This, of course, is generally understood, but—and there's the rub. It is understood. That which is needed is a spiritual passion that will lead official boards definitely with pastors and district superintendents to map out campaigns for this very purpose. Here are the children of the homes; they must be conserved to Christ, brought to a point where openly they will decide for Christ and give themselves over to Him. Here are the careless; they must be awakened, and led to take a stand for the things that are spiritual. Here are those who have gone into the by-ways of sin; they must be reached and reclaimed.

Tbis is the work of the Christian Church, this is the work of our Methodism. But it will never be done to any great extent unless there be spiritual passion in laymen and ministers, an overmastering love for the soul life. When the church realizes this as its chief work, even as did our fathers, then we will meet the conditions that are upon us. When laymen ask the spiritual as the chief work of their pastors, and ministers give themselves over to this as that which is paramount, then glorious indeed will the results be. We will take advantage of the knowledge of the age that we have, we will enter into the community life as social and intellectual centers, we will be all that we ought to be in this twentieth century of the Christian era, and all of this because the love of Christ will constrain us and we are anxious for the spiritual welfare of humanity, young and old. We will be mastered by the great spiritual passion.

Do you not see, brethren of the laity and of the ministry, that is the thing to be desired above all things? It will send us to work among the children and the youth, among the indifferent and the careless, among the sinners of deepest dye and the wrecks of the world. It will make of our churches spiritual centers of mighty power.

Great God of our fathers, Thou who didst make them mighty to the overthrow of the strongholds of sin, give unto us as a church a mighty, overmastering, all controlling spiritual passion!—Zion's Herald.

THE PATHS OF RIGHTEOUSNESS.

The pathway for the children of God is the one which our Saviour, the good Shepherd, trod. Our Lord does not ask us to go anywhere that he did not himself first go.

1. It is the path of righteousness. Christ leads, and the path he travels is always in full accord with his Father's will. This is always righteous, and this alone is righteous, to be in harmony with the Father's will. There are many paths which make connection with this one. These connections are not at right angles. They are acute, so acute that the divergence at first is hardly discernible. One needs to keep close after the leader, or ere he know it, he will be in the wrong patb. Some of these by-paths in the Orient led into morasses, some over precipices, some to the lairs of the wild beast. The end of each was death. So, too, the paths in this life, however fair and promising tbey may be, which are a divergence from the will of God, lead unto death and ruin.

2. It is the path of difficulty. The road lies through the wilderness. In its very nature, it has hills and valleys. There will be obstacles here and there to overcome. This is not all evil. The nature of the sheep needs hill climbing and other hard things for its best development. In its present condition, too much pasture, too much still water, and too much rest, produce disease and destroy thrift. So, too, with human beings. We need trials and difficulties to develop and bring us to our best. He who knows no struggle, will not know strength and growth. Our Savlour does not invite us to luxuries and indulgence. We are to take his yoke and burden upon us. He that does not work shall not eat, and he that does not fight, cannot be crowned.

3. It is the path of sorrow and suffering. Our Shepherd was a Man of Sorrow, and acquainted with grief. He who follows him must pass through like experiences. But sorrow and suffering have their purpose. They enter the innermost heart of man, purifying and softening it. Nothing is so selfish and hard, narrow and miserable, as the heart that has thus far escaped sorrow and suffering. He who fellowships with Christ in tears and pain, has come closer because his heart has been bared. We know each other better as we join in sorrow. Paul desired that he might know the "fellowship of his suffering and the power of his resurrection." Our Lord declared that they who would share his crown must first share his cup. In these days, as with the first disciples in the days of his passion, there is great temptation to follow afar off. Herein is danger. Blessed is he who can sing:

> "I fear no foe, with thee at hand to bless;
> Ills have no weight, and tears no bitterness."

4. It is a path of peace. Peace is not external, it is internal. It does not depend upon environment. It is a gift of God. "Peace I leave with you. My peace I give unto you." It comes day by day. No matter what the difficulty, what the grief, when he dwells within there is a peace "which passeth all understanding." Then the end is peace, and peace everlasting. The Oriental shepherd led his flock to the fold in the evening, only to lead them out in the morning, to meet new trials and griefs. But the Good Shepherd leads his people home to their Father's house, to go no more out; but abide forever in the blessedness of the Father. In these days, smart men are prone to make little of heaven. They magnify peace on earth. But every man knows that the peace of this world is not abiding, but passing away. Life is a battlefield, a struggle; but heaven is the place of peace, as the heart is its abode.—Presbyterian.

Christian Advocate.

Published for the Louisiana, Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

DIRECTIONS:

Correspondents will please direct all communications intended for the Editor to 512 Camp St., New Orleans, La. Communications intended for the Business Department should be addressed to the Manager of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if this date is not moved forward after three weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise.

WHAT'S THE USE OF GOING TO CHURCH?

By Rev. R. H. Bennett, D.D., in the Baltimore and Richmond Christian Advocate.

A Social Privilege.

Because it is an unrivaled opportunity to mingle with the best people of the community. Not all churchgoers are refined and not all non-attendants are boorish, but in most cases this is the rule. A large majority of the cultivated are found at church, and while there may be some few clever and educated ones among the absentees, the great number of the latter are uncouth, ignorant and coarse. Compare the personnel of a church congregation with the crowds drawn together out of the mountain hollow, the swamp, the slum by a hot political campaign the circus day or other unusual excitement. Now it must have a refining influence upon manners and conduct to meet regularly under decorus conditions with the most refined people and take part in ennobling services under the influence of music and the thoughtful discussion of great themes. Many children receive no other training in manners than what comes to them in church and Sabbath school. Degeneracy, a lowering of the standards of manners, and final boorishness have been the result in many instances of families forsaking attendance on church services, and in certain communities in this Union where the church has died, the effect upon the manners and life of the people has been simply appalling. The difference between the brutal coarseness of barbarism and the refinements of our highest civilization lies in the Christian religion, and one of the essential conditions of this religion is public worship.

An Intellectual Profit.

Note the subjects discussed by a complete presentation of the Christian religion: Theism, philanthropy, the State, the family, the personal life of the individual, his spirit with all its hopes and fears and loves, his mind with all its problems, his body in the inculcation of temperance, industry, frugality, chastity—all these with their many ramifications, as they relate to the gospel, are more or less the subjects of pulpit deliverance. What incalculable benefit there must be in listening every year to over one hundred discourses, sound, more or less thoughtfully worked out and oftentimes elegant and eloquent! There are many instances of men of little education astounding their hearers by the power and beauty of their prayers or by their sensible and moving speech. Is there other explanation than that they are thus giving out their unconscious absorption from the pulpits they have heard? Daniel Webster said he acquired his transcendent powers of reasoning by listening to the discourses of his village minister.

If one preacher is feeble, ignorant, indolent, coarse or silly, there is pulpit pabulum to be had somewhere in every community. And even where the hearer knows more than the preacher there is an intellectual stimulus in refreshing the mind by reference to familiar thoughts, and in the calling up of much that the sermon may not mention.

Whether the following be slightly exaggerated or not, it is the statement of one of the most distinguished and highly accomplished of our American citizens:

"For our educational institutions, our common schools, academies, colleges and universities, I have great respect; but here and elsewhere I do not hesitate to state as my opinion that the American pulpit contributes more to the intellectual development and mental culture of the American people than all these literary institutions put together."

A Moral Necessity.

Underneath the structure of civilization lie certain moral principles. They are vital to happy and successful life. Society goes to pieces without their continued observance. They must be taught in turn to every rising generation. The maxims of sound ethical life must be expounded, applied to life and conduct, and their practice urged by every proper motive which has weight with men. All this the pulpit is doing continually. Where else can the young receive this indispensable instruction and exhortation? Or the old either, for that matter? For who is so advanced in years as not to need moral strengthening and guidance? If the study of morals helps character, surely that study can be carried on under no better conditions than in the Church of God on a day of rest fixed by both law and religion, in the presence of the best people of the community, under the instruction of a carefully and earnestly delivered discourse from one who has had special training in the things of which he speaks. Who will be bold enough to dispense with the teaching of the relation between virtue and happiness, vice and misery? Where else than in the Church of God shall we learn that foundation principle of morals, the Golden Rule? All true philanthrophy has its source in the Christian religion. The message of the Bible pulpit year in and year out is meekness, temperance, patience, brotherly kindness, love, knowledge, industry, frugality, fidelity. And who shall say how much of the salt that saves our civilization is thus supplied?

If any one thinks public morality can be maintained from generation to generation without a concerted medium for its dissemination such as the Christian Church furnishes, his theory is contradicted by the history of the human race. It is folly to believe that education without moral teaching can conserve the soundness of our civilization. It is this divorce that is fraught with peril to us as a people to-day.

A Spiritual Benefit.

The supreme utility of church-going is found here. Religion answers to the deepest need of the human spirit. In the depths of that spirit there ever rises a yearning cry for the infinite Presence. A man without the spirit of worship is a malformed specimen of humanity with a distorted intellect and an atrophied soul. Private devotion is necessary, but not sufficient. While there is a rapt abandon, lofty and sweet, peculiar to personal worship, there are also promises reserved for those who meet together "in His name." Just as a mob is worse than its worst member, so there is an added power in the union of worshipping hearts. It is more than psychic waves of sympathy or the generation of good influence by masses of men upon one another. It is that spoken of old by Joel, the prophet, instituted at Pentecost and to be continued to the end of the present dispensation, "I will pour out my Spirit," "for where two or three are gathered in My name there am I in the midst of them."

What can take the place of the song of the congregation, the prayer, the spoken word, the tender appeal, the stirring call to live the life and walk the heights to the seats of the mighty? There, with one accord in one place, we listen to the commandments of God, each with its warning and promise. Our souls are chastened, comforted, fed. The wayward are brought back; the tempted find deliverance; the guilty hear of ransom. The bread of life is offered starving souls, and the water of salvation to them who die of thirst. The weary learn of rest. The eyes, dim with tears, catch a vision of the glory to be revealed. And to those whom disappointment or bereavement has crushed the message comes of that land where there is no death, neither sorrow nor crying.

Worship! What is worship? Unity of thought, purpose and aspiration; adoration waiting for His coming. The things of time and sense are left behind. Our spirits rise above the sordid cares of life. We see His glory fill the temple. We realize His immediate, awful, lovely presence, revealing unto us that with all our weakness and sin we are immortal spirits, His offspring, and, if we will, heirs to all the infinite inheritance of an infinite love.

Not to go to church is (for church members) to trample under foot a most solemn vow so to do ("I will attend upon its ordinances, by the help of God"), to the witnessing of which we called earth and heaven. Not to go to church is to ignore and slight and dishonor God. Not to go to church is to injure others by our example, and to join with the world. "An avoidable absence from the house of God is a sure sign of spiritual decay." And the step from thence to apostasy is short and easy.

Verily, those who would "behold the beauty of the Lord" must "inquire in His temple." There it is that the hallowed influences of the past linger and enter our hearts. There we touch again vanished hands and hear voices now still. Yonder in that pew loved ones, now "lost awhile," joined in holy songs or lowly prayer, and talked face to face with God, while the power fell with tender hush or mighty tempest on our hearts. But dearer than even these dear faces is He "whom not being seen we love." To all who pause and listen, there calls to worship a voice sweeter than all the chimes of silver bells. In every temple, great and humble, there speaks to the worshipper a voice of greater melody than all earth's choirs, more eloquent than any pulpit, calling to the sinning, burdened, careworn children of men: "I am the way, the truth, the life," . . . "come unto me and I will give you rest."

"No words can tell what sweet relief
Here for my every want I find;
What strength for warfare, balm for grief,
What peace of mind."

DOCTOR PARKER AND RELIGIOUS EDUCATION AT TRINITY COLLEGE.

By President William P. Few.

No single problem connected with Trinity College gives the administration so much concern as the religious training of the students, and this is closely connected with the proper teaching of the Christian Scriptures. To carry forward this full education which has always been strongly emphasized at this college, new plans for the next and succeeding years are now under way. First of these in importance comes the bringing of Doctor Franklin N. Parker, of the Louisiana Conference, to the Chair of Biblical Literature.

Doctor Parker was born in New Orleans, May 30, 1867. He attended the schools of that city; his formal education was continued at Centenary College, Tulane University, and the Biblical Department of Vanderbilt University; but like every other growing man he owes most to a process of life-long education by means of close study and intelligent travel. For mature and well-balanced learning, he will at once take rank with the most accomplished scholars of our faculty.

He was admitted on trial into the Louisiana Conference in 1886. The intervening years have been spent in charges and districts of that Conference, mainly in and about the city of New Orleans. He has twice been a delegate to the General Conference and at the session in Asheville he was chairman of his delegation. He was a delegate to the Ecumenical Conference in London in 1901, and has been appointed to attend the Ecumenical to be held in Toronto next October, and has been assigned an important place on the programme. Himself the son of Bishop Linus Parker, from boyhood the intimate friend of Bishop Keener and many another of our Methodist worthies, his whole life has been closely bound up with the great traditions of Southern Methodism.

A profound and reverent student of the Bible, a pastor of many years' practical experience in all grades of work, his feet firmly set in the old paths, understanding and speaking the spiritual language of his time, and yet declaring a positive, authoritative gospel; long practiced in a type of preaching which is itself the best kind of teaching, Dr. Parker is regarded by some of the most competent men in the Church as pre-eminently fitted for the work he is undertaking.

This work will include the pastoral care of the students and the entire college community, carried on by monthly sermons, class meetings, an organized Christian brotherhood, and helpful associations with individual men in all possible ways; the chief responsibility in the general Bible courses for undergraduates which are taught not primarily for cultural and informational purposes, but for moral and religious values; and special care and nurture of the young preachers, by means of classes in Biblical interpretation and kindred subjects, by weekly meetings of the ministerial band, and by personal contact and guidance. In all of this; Doctor Parker will be assisted by Bishop Kilgo, who is a lecturer in the department of Bibilical Literature; by Dean Cranford, whose own department of philosophy has always been an able ally of religious training; at times by outsiders, and by the rest of us here who can share in this part of institutional endeavor which we count the most essential and fundamental service the college can render its students.

Dr. Parker has for many years been an acceptable preacher and has been glad to serve the Church in any capacity. He will be glad now to be of any possible use to his brethren of the two Conferences in North Carolina; and the college will be glad for him, wherever he has the opportunity, to lend a hand to the men who are engaged at the hard task of carrying forward the Lord's work within the borders of the State. Rev. W. W. Peele, who comes to us this year as head master of the Trinity Park School, may also, I am sure, be counted on to help wherever he is needed. The college is very happy to be able to command and to offer the services of such men to the people of the State, both in behalf of the religious well-being of their sons here, and the interests of their churches at home.

THE PSYCHOLOGICAL MOMENT FOR AN ADVANCE.

To the Pastors and Laymen of the Mississippi Conference.

In view of the fact that our Annual Conference session is but little more than three months off, while less than one-fourth of our missionary assessments have been raised to date, it is time for us to bestir ourselves, if we expect to make any improvement in our missionary record. Our Conference last year contributed for foreign missions, on an assessment of $11,250, the sum of $9,714.47; and $9,875.12 for domestic missions on an assessment of $11,100, making a total of $19,589.50 on the regular assessments. This is an average of 36 cents per member for our 54,146 members. Including the $6,895.26 raised by the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society, the average per member is 49 cents, which is less than a cent per week per member for the world's evangelization. Eighty-two out of a total of 168 pastoral charges paid both foreign and domestic missions assessments in full, this being approximately 50 per cent of the whole. Who will be rash enough to say that we are doing our best, that it is impossible to make any advance over last year?

In view of the clarion calls from every mission field for reinforcements, and of the momentous opportunities before the Church in this new century, when the whole heathen world is astir, our General Board last year voted to increase the apportionment to the whole Church for foreign missions from $385,000 to $500,000. Of this increase, $3000 was assigned our Conference.

The vigorous connectional home mission policy recently inaugurated by our General Board through its department of Home Missions, commends itself to the wisdom of every loyal and wide-awake Methodist. In order to maintain this connectional work, and look after the slums of our Southern cities, the thousands of foreigners who are pouring in among us, and also the neglected and needy sections of the South and West, an assessment for home missions was levied on each conference, $1500 being the moderate amount assessed our Conference, every dollar of which ought to be raised. Our Conference is co-operating with the General Board in maintaining the Gulf Coast Mission, particularly the Sailors' Rest at Gulfport, which, under the efficient superintendency of Bro. W. T. Griffin, is doing a work of which we may well be proud. The Southern Baptist Church, which occuples practically the same field as our Church, through its general home mission board, two years ago raised $260,000 for connectional missions in addition to State and associational missions. This is fully five times the amount assessed our whole Church this year for connectional missions. It is high time for us to be moving forward in like manner.'

Fifty-two pastoral charges are this year receiving aid from our Board of Missions. The average salary paid our domestic missionaries last year was $673, the average salary for all the pastors of our Conference being $786. In a number of instances, however, the amount paid the domestic missionary by his charge fell short twenty-five, thirty and even fifty per cent. These faithful brethren receive but a meager amount at least. Let us see to it that every dollar promised them is paid.

If we are to do our part in the great forward movement in missionary enterprise at home and abroad, we must one and all put forth strenuous effort to do greater things than in other years, for our General Board, as just indicated, is counting on an advance along the whole line. To fall behind at this time would seriously cripple the work already undertaken. Let our motto this year be: "A vigorous educational campaign in every charge, an every-member canvass, and overflowing collections; we can do it if we will." The 462 Sunday schools and the 30,692 Sunday school pupils of the Mississippi Conference can render efficient aid in our missionary campaign, and it is "up to" our pastors and Sunday school superintendents to give them a chance.

Our General Secretary, Dr. W. W. Pinson, has recently sent out a stirring appeal to all our pastors, from which we quote as follows:

"Your Board of Missions is being severely tested, and likewise the loyalty of our Methodist people. We are passing through a crucial hour. We shall soon determine whether or not our Church is equal to her share in the common world task, and whether she is capable of holding her place in the ranks, or must be relegated to the rear. Should we fall below our best this year, embarrassment and confusion would be inevitable.

"It is not a time for retrenchment; it is a time for advance. The note of hope is in the air. There is a quickening of the missionary pulse beat. By every token we should move forward."

May we not count on you for prayerful and hearty co-operation in making this the best year in missionary offerings and effort that the Mississippi Conference has yet seen?

Yours fraternally,

M. M. BLACK,
Secretary Board of Missions.

SUMMIT METHODISM.

By Rev. H. P. Lewis. Sr.

Fifty or more years ago, the lot upon which the Methodist Church and parsonage now stands was donated to the Methodist people for church purposes by Colonel Garland, a generous-hearted man, who years ago passed into the "beyond."

Up to the close of the war between the States, we had no place of worship of our own in Summit. Old Bethany Church, a short distance east of Summit, belonged in those days to Pearl River Circuit, which 55 years ago embraced about all of Pike County, a part of Marion and all of Lawrence, west of Pearl River, and south of Monticello, including Brookhaven, now in Lincoln County. There were twelve or fifteen preaching places, and at one time there were 13 local preachers living in the bounds of the circuit, including Rev. J. W. Sandell and myself, the only two of the 13 now living. We two have served our time in the itinerancy, and now are retired from the regular work.

Just when we first organized in Summit, and by whom, I do not know. If I mistake not, Rev. E. R. Strickland, late of our Conference, took the first step towards erecting a place of worship and building a house for the preacher. This was some years after the close of the Civil War. The entire church and parsonage lots were inclosed with a picket fence, the pickets gotten from pine trees that perhaps grew on the lots. Also, Brother Strickland built a good size box house which was used for preaching purposes till 1871, when it was remodeled, cut up into small rooms, and for more than 20 years was used as a parsonage.

For a few years we were without a preaching place of our own. The membership was small and financially weak; but they were a heroic set of men and women. The first regular church built by the Methodists was during the pastorate of Brother Ben Jones about the year 1876 or 1877. In 1893 the old church was torn down and steps taken to build a new one. When I moved to Summit in December 1893, I found lumber had been put on the ground by my predecessor to start the new building. It was the 10th of May, 1894, when we began work on the new church; and by the last of November we were in our new home as happy as we could well be. Our membership was still small, but how our good people, especially the women, worked and toiled to complete the new church!

The first time I preached in the new church, I took for my text Matt. 22:4, using for my subject "The Parable of the Marriage of the King's Son." This was the 4th Sunday in November. I spent two years pleasantly on the work, making many fast friends. My last service in the church during my pastorate was in December, 1894—first Sunday, when in the evening, I spoke on the "Parable of the Lost Sheep" recorded in Luke 15th.

More than 15 years have gone by. Many changes have taken place here and elsewhere. A new parsonage has been built in place of the old one. Many preachers have supplied the pulpit in Summit since my pastorate there. One brother, J. P. Drake, answered to the final roll call while in charge at Summit. I had not seen the inside of the church since December, 1894.

I was delighted when Brother C. N. Guice asked me to fill his pulpit for him the 4th Sunday in July. I knew it would afford me an opportunity to visit old friends. To me it was a pleasant visit in most respects, a sad one in some—so many, both Jews and Gentiles, had been called away. I soon learned that Brother Guice had his work well in hand and was much loved by his people. Brother Guice is a fine singer, a good preacher, and his good wife knows how to make one feel at home. They have several nice children.

We have in our Conference a good number of promising young preachers, graduates of Millsaps College. God be with and bless them all, and give them many seals to their ministry!

I was to have been entertained while in Summit in the home of Brother Wood Atkinson, a son of that noble woman, Mrs. Emily Atkinson, who for many years was one of the main supporters of the church. But Brother Atkinson's wife was quite sick; so I was taken in charge by Miss May Gibson, a distant relative of my wife, also whose grandfather, Joseph Gibson, was a cousin of Rev. Tobias Gibson, first Methodist missionary to Mississippi more than 100 years ago. I was well cared for while in Summit, enjoyed my visit, and was richly paid in various ways for my visit and services rendered.

Before returning home, I made a visit to Holmesville and learned that Brother Decell was doing a good work there. My oldest living sister, more than 81 years old, is living in Holmesville, is about blind, but is "happy on the way." She has one son in the ministry.

Geo. W. Riehl. Aug. Rauxet, Jr.
RIEHL & RAUXET,
Successors to Lowengardt & Armstrong,
JEWELERS,
122 BARONNE STREET - - New Orleans, La
(Optical Department: M. F. Fitzgerald, Optician.)
Phone, Main 737.

SUPPOSE YOU HAVE A FIRE TO-NIGHT?
GET SOLID PROTECTION AND INSURE WITH
LEON IRWIN & CO.
FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.
736 Union Street. Phone, Main 585.

Secular News and Comment

Alabama has recently turned out 89 new physicians. Of these two are negroes—one giving his address as Battle Creek, Mich., and the other at Earley, Ala.

* * *

The employes of the D. H. Holmes Company, of this city, numbering nearly 600, will have their annual outing at Spanish Fort on Saturday, August 26. The store of this large firm will be closed for the entire day, and all the expenses incident to the occasion will be borne by the employers.

* * *

The Southern Commercial Secretaries' Association, composed of the officers of the South's leading civic and commercial bodies, will meet in annual convention in Memphis, October 10 and 11. This gathering was held in New Orleans last year, and was followed by a trip to Panama and Central America.

* * *

Mr. D. H. MacAdam in the Metropolitan Magazine calls attention to the fact that the primeval name of New Mexico was Cibola, and expresses the view that it is a pity that the territory cannot in coming into the Union have its primitive title restored. He thinks it would comport well with the appellations of many of the other States, such as Alahama, Arizona, Arkansas and California.

* * *

It was reported on August 18 that more than 100,000 railroad employes in Great Britain had gone on a strike, and that the greatest industrial struggle in the history of the United Kingdom was impending. Happily, however, the dispatches the next day reported that the points at issue were settled sufficiently for the laborers to resume work and that the threatened disaster will likely be entirely avoided. The value of British railways is estimated at $6,500,000,000; they employ approximately 500,000 men at an average weekly wage of less than $6.

* * *

The capital invested in factories in the South increased between 1900 and 1904 from $968,476,000 to $1,597,637,000, 64.9 per cent; and between 1904 and 1909 the amount grew to $2,403,364,000, a gain of 141.8. The output of Southern factories has more than doubled since 1900 and is now estimated at $3,000,000,000 annually, which is said to exceed by $400,000,000 the value of all the agricultural products of the Southern States. Undoubtedly Dixie is to-day the land of promise, and the amendment of Horace Greely's famous exhoration, "Young man, go West," to "Young man, come South," is fully justified by existing conditions.

* * *

Admiral Togo completed his visit to the United States and left for Canada on August 20. Before leaving he sent to the Hon. Philander C. Knox, Secretary of State, the following message: "On the eve of my departure from the United States, I beg to thank you, and through you the President, for the most cordial and warm reception that the Government and people have accorded to me during my visit. Pray be assured of my carrying home with me a vivid impression of the kind and friendly feelings which have been demonstrated to me by the nation, whose welfare and prosperity are my sincerest wishes."

* * *

More and more as the years pass women are finding their way into the various useful occupations. The statistics are said to show that the number of female breadwinners in the United States has increased 4.1 per cent, while that of male breadwinners has decreased 1.3. Even in the dangerous field of aviation woman is giving a creditable account of herself. Some of the railroads, however, have adopted the policy of employing only males in their offices, giving as a reason that too frequently female employes decide to marry and are lost to the service just when their training has qualified them to be most efficient.

* * *

Justice Lurton, who is in England studying the judical procedure in the courts of that country with a view to making suggestions as to needed reforms in the practice of the federal courts of the United States, has been cordially received by the jurists of Great Britain, who are showing much interest in the work which he has in mind. He sat with the Lord Chief Justice in the Criminal Court of Appeals on the 19th inst, gaining a first-hand knowledge of the proceedings. Most of the English judges are reported to be away on vacations just at present, but they will soon resume work, when Justice Lurton will have a more favorable opportunity to prosecute his investigation.

* * *

There is a new law in New Jersey, which, according to report, is provoking a widespread outcry, such as was never before heard in that commonwealth. This enactment makes it a crime for any woman to appear in public wearing on her hat the feathers of any bird or fowl, and upon conviction the offender may be fined $25, or sent to prison for thirty days, or both. It is allowable, however, to wear the skins of animals, which we think is a proper concession. Furs keep the body warm and leather of various kinds is useful, but this can hardly be said of the plumage of birds as a part of one's wearing apparel. We regard it as a wholesome indication that our people are becoming increasingly averse to the unnecessary destruction of animal life.

* * *

Those who have feared the destruction of the Leaning Tower of Pisa from the ringing of its bells have been reassured by the investigation of Father Alfani, leading Italian authority on earthquake effects. The five bells were rung singly and in pairs on each story, and a pencil resting on a continuously rotating drum gave an automatic record of the towers' movements magnified tenfold. The two largest bells—weighing 5060 and 7568 pounds respectively—swung the entire stone structure like a great inverted pendulum, the effect being greatest when both bells moved together in the same direction. The tower was not only bent, but the lowest story was bulged out, but as the variations reached only about three hundredths of an inch, the building's stability was not endangered.—The Picayune.

* * *

The American Bison Association, of which Mr. J. Albert Loring is the leader, is making a determined effort to prevent the buffalo from becoming extinct in the United States. Two herds have already been established—one near Wichita, Kansas, and another on the Flathead Indian Reservation in Montana—and an effort is now being made to obtain a tract of land for starting a third one in the Black Hill National Forest, where these animals greatly flourished before the advent of the white man in the seventies. It is to be hoped that this Association will succeed in the laudable undertaking to prevent the complete destruction of this species of our American fauna, which was so conspicuous in the early days of our country and which is so often mentioned in our literature.

* * *

The word "dollar" was in our language at least 300 years ago, for it is used by Shakespeare several times. It is supposed that the word was in use in London in the latter part of the sixteenth century, having been brought in by the north German merchants, who managed the trade on the Baltic and in Russia. "Dollar" appeared first in an English dictionary in 1745. It is a borrowed word, being the German "thaler." The coins issued by the mint in Joachimsthal were called "Joachimsthalers." When other mints were established the "Joachims" was dropped and the coins were called simple "thalers." The dollar was adopted by Congress as the unit of our currency on August 5, 1785. It was to contain 375.64 grains of pure silver, but when the mint was established in 1792 the requirement was reduced to 371.25 grains of pure silver. The coinage of dollars began in 1794.—Harper's Weekly.

CHURCH EXTENSION IN THE NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERANCE.

To the pastors and membership of the North Mississippi Conference we make this earnest appeal in behalf of our Church Extention work. We would like to impress upon you the importance of paying the assessment in full.

It is a meager sum when we consider the demands upon us. We have from year to year, with the limited means we had, done a great work in the Conference. Last year we gave $2,265 to twenty-seven churches in our bounds, and we had urgent appeals for twice that amount. Already we find that in addition to the large number we were compelled to turn away for want of funds, the indications are now that there will be many new claims at this Conference. We are building more and better churches than ever before in our history, but still we have in our own Conference sixty-one congregations without houses of worship. More than half of these could be inspired to build next year if we could offer them 20 per cent of the cost of building.

We paid last year 82 per cent of the assessment. As a conference, we stand in the whole Church in percentage paid to Church Extension, twenty-fifth.

In view of what we have done in the Conference in helping churches, we ought to do better than this. There are 551 church buildings in the Conference; of these the Board of Church Extension has helped 304, many of them made possible by the help of this board. With this showing of about three-fourths of the churches helped by Church Extension money, we think no discrimination should be made against this claim in the reports to the Annual Conference. This is the right arm of the Church. A congregation without a house cannot well exist long. It is also the right arm of the preacher, for the reason he can do but little for an unhoused people.

We must have this year the full assessment or be compelled to turn away many applications who are as needy as you were when you came to us for aid. Send in your reports to Brother J. R. Bingham, and he will put you on the honor roll.

W. S. LAGRONE.

Greenville, Miss.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE RALLY.

Sunday, Sept. 10, 1911, has been set apart as a day of special services in the interest of the cause of prohibition in Louisiana. There are several reasons why such a day should be religiously observed: 1. We need united prayer. 2. Our people need information as to our plans and work. 3. If we are to do our best, we must get our contrihutions together. We must spend some money in organizing and campaigning. We need some legislation to aid in hattling against the evils of the liquor traffic. We must separate the restaurants and harrooms. If liquor is to be sold, let it be where there is nothing else to hait the unwary and unsuspecting. Then we should have an effective anti-jug law. The carrying of liquor into dry parishes must stop. A law, making wards in New Orleans units so that there may be effective campaigning in this city, the Gibraltar of the liquorites in the South, is sorely needed. We must fight for all and more, and now is the time to do it.

It is asked that both Sunday schools and churches in regular service observe the second Sunday in September. Sunday schools would do well in connection with a study of the question to use our pledge cards for a Pledge Signing Day. We will send promptly the number of cards desired. We only ask that the collections be sent to us for use in this campaign. Then, also, pastors are asked to preach once that day on some phase of the evils of the liquor traffic, giving information as to the necessity of our fighting, and take a collection for the work we are doing. Letters have been sent to every pastor in the Louisiana Conference, as also have copies of the "Conflict" for August. Will not each one see that the churches of his charge, as well as Sunday schools, help in this work of the united church? It will take us all to win. Yours for victory.

S. A. SMITH.

Superintendent Louisiana Anti-Saloon League.

$177.00 pays Board, Tuition, Laundry, Medical, Library and Lyceum fees whole session. Those who wish may reduce this by taking duties. Apply now to Port Gibson Female College, Port Gibson, Miss.

THE
Grant Furniture Co.
IS NOW HAVING A
GREAT REMOVAL SALE
PRICES ON EVERY ARTICLE
IN THEIR
ENTIRE STOCK HAVE BEEN REDUCED
OUTFITS ESPECIALLY PRICED
427-429-431 Gamp Street, New Orleans

The AMERICAN PAINT WORKS
—Manufacturers of—
High Grade Mixed Paints; Purfecto White Lead; Nonpareil Carriage Paint; Varnish Stain; Colors in Oil; Wood Fillers; Chemically Pure Dry Colors, Etc.
626-634 JOSEPHINE STREET.....Phone 915
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Church News

During the past two years the Christian Endeavor Society gained 10,601 new chapters and 1,009,200 new members.

* * *

The latest news from Pope Pius X is that he is somewhat better; but evidently from the reports which have gone abroad, his health is in a precarious condition.

* * *

There is talk of uniting all the Norwegian Lutherans in the United States in one body. Should this be done, the denomination thus formed would have 1,200 ministers, 3,500 congregations and 300,000 communicants.

* * *

The assessed valuation of the property owned by the Trinity Church Corporation of New York City (Episcopal) is $13,693,500. The income from real estate rents last year was $751,268.

* * *

The Southern Presbyterian Church now has an Endowment Fund for Ministerial Relief of $305,786. A vigorous effort will be made to increase this amount to $500,000 in the near future.

* * *

Rev. H. P. Hurt, pastor of the Bellevue Baptist Church of Memphis, is filling the pulpit of the Temple Baptist Church of Washington, D. C., during the month of August. Mr. Hurt was reared near Winona, Miss.

* * *

Dr. J. B. Game, professor of Latin and English in the Missouri State Normal College and a Methodist minister, has been chosen professor of the same languages in the Florence Normal College of Alabama.

* * *

Irish Methodism is said to have 251 temperance societies, with a membership of 22,211. Such a working force should be able to accomplish much toward the redemption of the Emerald Isle from the curse of the liquor traffic and intemperance.

* * *

The pulpit of the Metropolitan Methodist Church of Toronto will be filled on October 8, the first Sabbath of the Ecumenical Methodist Conference, by Chancellor J. R. Day, of Syracuse University, and Dr. W. H. Fitchett, of Melbourne, Australia.

* * *

Our Church is soon to have an eastern branch of the Publishing House. Dr. A. J. Lamar recently visited Richmond, Va., to consider the question of a location for this new establishment in that city. It is thought that the enterprise will be launched at an early date.

* * *

Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, the distinguished English minister, recently lost his mother, who died at Taunton, England. Dr. Morgan's health is not robust, and his physicians have advised him not to undertake his proposed great missionary tour in India this year.

* * *

Bishop J. H. McCoy spent the fourth Sunday in July at Columbia, Ky., where he preached an eloquent sermon to a large and delighted audience. Following the delivery of his stirring message, a collection of $1,100 was taken to meet the indebtedness on the Southern Methodist Church there.

* * *

Dr. Newell Dwight Hillis, pastor of the Plymouth Church of Brooklyn, is traveling in Europe. It is stated that while abroad he will visit Rome, Athens, Corinth, Delphi, Troy and Constantinople, and that upon his return he will preach a series of sermons on "The Great Cities as Torch Bearers."

* * *

Dr. William Preston Few, President of Trinity College, at Durham, N. C., was married to Miss Mary R. Thomas, of Martinsville, Va., on August 17. Miss Thomas was graduated from Trinity College in the class of 1906, and is reputed to be a young woman of unusual gifts and accomplishments.

* * *

Dr. T. N. Ivey, the versatile editor of the Nashville Christian Advocate, has lately been visiting friends and relatives in the Old North State. The North Carolina Advocate states that he spent a recent Sabbath at Hiddenite, where he preached a fine sermon to a large and appreciative congregation.

* * *

Dr. J. W. Lee, of St. John's Church of St. Louis, was the officiating minister at the funeral service of the noted American capitalist, Mr. John W. Gates, which was held in Paris, France, before the shipment of his remains to the United States. Dr. Lee is unquestionably one of the most widely known ministers in the Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

* * *

An old-fashioned poundcake was presented to Dr. G. C. Rankin and the working force of the Texas Christian Advocate by the ladies of Queen City, Tex., as an expression of appreciation of the great service which that paper rendered in the recent prohibition fight in the Lone Star State. Dr. J. H. Gambrell, the veteran Baptist editor, and his staff were similarly remembered.

* * *

The Rev. Luke Wiseman was chosen by the recent British Wesleyan Conference to be its president in 1912. Dr. Dinsdale T. Young received the next highest number of votes for this distinguished office. Mr. Wiseman visited the United States in 1902 as fraternal messenger to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, and will be a delegate to the Ecumenical Methodist Conference which is to be held in Toronto next fall.

* * *

The money raised by the Young Men's Christian Association for buildings this year is, it is thought, likely to break all previous records. This includes $2,000,000 contributed for housing the Association in the capitals of foreign countries. Some of the cities in the United States in which the largest amounts were raised are as follows: Philadelphia, $1,030,000; Atlanta, $600,000; Brooklyn, $415,000; Reading, Pennsylvania, $217,000; Elyria, Ohio, $127,000; Charleston, S. C., $150,000; Raleigh, N. C., $75,000; Walla Walla; Washington, $48,000 and Ishpeming, Michigan, $22,500.

A LITTLE INCIDENT IN THE LIFE OF BISHOP FITZGERALD.

While Bishop Fitzgerald was editor of the Nashville Advocate, I spent one summer at Athens, Ala., a beautiful little city on the L. & N. Railroad, about one hundred miles south of Nashville. During that summer, I chanced to read his Life of John B. McFerrin. It read like a romance. The writer describes therein the occasion and place of McFerrin's conversion—at old Cambridge Camp Ground, some five miles out from Athens. I took occasion to take my book in hand and ride out to that hallowed spot. The sills and blocks and other evidences of the old "camping house" were plainly to be seen. As I stood there and read that book, I felt an inspiration that came to me "like a whisper from paradise." The next week I boarded the train and went to Nashville. I had the pleasure for the first time of going through our great Publishing House there. I was introduced to Dr. John Boswell, the able assistant editor at that time. But I wanted to see the author of the "Life of John B. McFerrin." I had that pleasure. He was seated at his desk writing. My friend, Cain, introduced me. The venerable editor courteously extended me his hand. I grasped it with pleasure and with honor. He resumed his writing after a moment's talk. I turned to leave. At that time I wore a full suit of Confederate gray—single-breasted, Prince Albert style. I was something over six feet tall and weighed 190 pounds. As I was leaving, he said: "Come here a minute, young man." I turned and stood by his side. With a stroke as gentle as a mother, he rubbed his hand up and down on my coat, and with a sweet voice said: "Young man, I used to wear that; God bless you." His remarks almost brought tears to my eyes.

W. A. BELK.

Holly Springs, Miss.

SOME NORTH LOUISIANA NOTES.

Dear Brother Meek: I have lately returned from North Louisiana, where I have been engaged for some weeks. I assisted Rev. Robert Randle, our pastor at Cotton Valley, in three good meetings, and also had the pleasure of visiting Shreveport and Ruston. Brother Randle is doing a fine work for the Master, and his people love him and work heartily with him in all that he undertakes.

On the Sunday that I spent in Ruston, the pastor, Rev. W. H. Coleman, read the General Rules at 11 o'clock a.m., explaining them fully, and asking that the membership keep them. Nearly the entire congregation indicated a purpose to do this by rising to their feet when an invitation was extended them to do so. At night it was my privilege to preach, and I was pleased to note in the audience many of my former members on the Trenton Circuit, who aided in founding Ruston. Brother Coleman is abundant in labors, and is making full proof of his ministry in this important field.

On Monday, in company with Brother Coleman, I visited the Orphanage, and through the courtesy of Brother and Sister Vaughan, I was allowed to see the building from top to bottom. I was much delighted to observe the fine crops of corn, water melons, and all else needful for the physical man. There were chickens galore, growing pigs, huge hogs, cows, and other animals on the place. The children all looked healthful and happy, and the building and entire premises were as neat as a pin. R. W. Vaughan and his co-workers at our Louisiana Methodist Orphanage are doing a glorious work. Could all our Methodist people drop in upon them, their enthusiasm for the support of this institution would be stirred to a high pitch and they would be glad to give liberally—the rich contributing largely of their ample means, and the rest of our people as God has prospered them, not withholding the two mites, making a farthing. Thus the debt on the plant would be speedily wiped out, and thousands of overplus would remain for any needed improvements. Rev. C. C. Wier, of Franklin, rendered a great service when he gave himself to the work of establishing this splendid home for the orphan children of Louisiana. Wier and Vaughan have made a fine team, and the great results, reaching through time and into eternity, attest their fidelity and efficiency.

While in Shreveport, I was glad to learn that all our churches in that growing city are doing well. The people of First Church have their hearts set upon a $100,000 structure, which they hope to erect soon on the site of the present building at the head of Texas Street, which is not surpassed as a location for a house of worship by any in the State, or, for that matter, in the South. Bishop Wilson laid the corner stone of the present structure on January 8, 1883.

JOHN T. SAWYER.

CARD OF THANKS.

Dear Brethren of the Louisiana Conference:

A few weeks since I put a notice in the Advocate in regard to financial help for Brother J. R. Haney, who has been confined to his bed since January. His expenses during this time have exceeded his receipts by some four hundred dollars. Only a few of the brethren have availed themselves of this opportunity. Those who have contributed have responded liberally, and this is to express thanks from him and the undersigned. If every preacher would collect and send him three dollars, his needs would be met, and no one would be burdened. All may not respond, so a moderate sum from your charge would supply the deficiency. Under the present arrangement he is to receive only 25 per cent of what comes in for pastoral support for the rest of this year. Please remit to Miss Bertie Haney, Clinton, La.

We beg leave to acknowledge receipt of the following amounts: P. H. Fontaine, $5; Ponchatoula, $10.90; Rayne Memorial, $10.25; Wm. Reily, N. O., $5; L. E. Wicht, $2; R. W. Millsaps, $10; Opelousas, $10; Rowan Thayer, $5; Alex McKay, $1; Springfield S. S., $3.35; Keachie, $1; Mrs. Foster, $1; Miss Phillips, $1; Pine Ridge, $3; Steve Ellis, $15; Unknown, $4.

C. C. MILLER.

MIDSUMMER READING.

Shall it be frothy fiction, or blood-heating adventure? Certainly it should not be brain-tiring literature, requiring fatiguing application.

MODES OF THE HEAVENLY LIFE

is a book that you will read with care-forgetting delight, and arise refreshed in faith and zeal. Then you will read it again and again with new appreciation. Cloth and gold, only 50 cents, postpaid.

"To say that I enjoyed reading 'Modes of the Heavenly Life,' is to express my appreciation but mildly. I read it the first time at one sitting and was strengthened in faith and hope. I have read it through again and some of it the third time. My estimate has grown with each reading. It cannot fail to inspire higher aspirations in any one who will read it. I hope it will have a large circulation, and I commend it most heartily to all seekers after the truth concerning the office and work of the Holy Ghost." R. W. Tucker, Presiding elder, Ruston District.

Order from Chas. O. Chalmers, 512 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

W. W. Carre Co. Ltd.

Manufacturer Exporter of | Lumber

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

THE MESSAGE AND PLANS OF THE MEN AND RELIGION FORWARD MOVEMENT HEARD AND DISCUSSED AT SILVER BAY CONFERENCE.

By Mr. H. N. Watts, Secretary of the Memphis Y. M. C. A.

Fifty ministers (of all Protestant Evangelical denominations), forty-seven executive secretaries of the local committee, and two hundred and twenty-one laymen, from various walks of life, gathered at Silver Bay (on Lake George), New York, July 22 (representing ninety-seven cities and thirty-eight states and Canada), to learn of the message and plans of the great Men and Religion Forward Movement, and to participate in the Conference assembled there to more fully develop the message and plans.

Of this number fifty-two (one-sixth) were Methodists, several of whom have prominent places of leadership in this splendid movement, which purposes not a new organization nor added machinery of any sort—particularly none of the "patented, guaranteed to produce results" kind: on the contrary, as has been so admirably said by Mr. Nolan R. Best, of The Continent, the objects of this undertaking are as follows:

> "The result to be aimed at is not leaving a new method with a local church, but leaving a new spirit with it. That new spirit is essentially a superlative sense of the importance of Christianity in the life of individual men and the life of the nation. The laxness of local churches is not due to want of knowledge as to what ought to be done by the Church or how it ought to be done, but it is due to a lack of feeling that the things which the Church ought to do are supremely important. American men are tremendously crowded for time and can only do the things which, in their opinion, are most important to do. The mass of them are now giving their greatest effort to money earning because that seems to them to be the most important thing. What is necessary is to turn upside down their sense of values. Whenever the typical American man gets it into his head and heart that religion is more important than anything else, he will give all the time necessary to it. Moreover, when he feels that the Church's tasks must be done, he will find a way to do them."

Loyalty to the Church.

The keynote to the movement is to be LOYALTY TO THE CHURCH—emphasizing and correlating all the leading elements of religious effort—EVANGELISM, BIBLE STUDY, MISSIONS, SOCIAL SERVICE, COMMUNITY EXTENSION, and a specialized work for boys.

A careful survey of each city will be made to more accurately indicate the great need. It is believed that any man may be convinced that THE JOB IS BIG ENOUGH FOR HIM—that the Church has a task needing all his executive and organizing ability and all the influence of his great personality, no matter who he is, or what his place in the business world he occupies.

Those delegates who were of Methodist persuasion felt so keenly the importance and far-reaching character of the movement that they were eager to have every church lined up with the movement and reap the largest possible results. We, therefore, drafted a letter or statement to be addressed to every church of Methodism. That letter will be found elsewhere in this number of the Advocate.

Among the speakers at the Silver Bay Conference was Dr. Fayette L. Thompson, of the Methodist Brotherhood (who is also associate campaign leader for this movement). Dr. Thompson's special concern in the movement is "conserving results," not only in the campaign at large, but also in each individual church. Dr. J. W. Magruder, a member of the Baltimore Conference, is to be one of the Team Experts on Social Service, being associated in the work with Dr. I. J. Lancing of Washington, and Raymond Robbins and Dr. Graham Taylor of Chicago and Dr. Charles Stelzle of New York.

Dr. William J. Williamson of the Third Baptist Church, St. Louis, gave six splendid addresses on the Epistle to the Philippians. Dr. Williamson will also be an attache of the Team of Experts, and will bear some relation to the local pastors in the cities to be visited.

Those splendid Evangelists, Dr. Biederwolf, Dr. Scoville and Mr. Fred B. Smith, were all present and participated in the Conference. When the great special campaigns open these men will be joined by Mr. Lane of London, and Mr. Russell of South Africa—these five men probably making up the list of experts on Evangelism. But it is expected that, as occasion arises, every member of every team will show himself a true evangelist.

On Bible Study, Mr. W. C. Pearce, of the International Sunday School Association, and Fred S. Goodman, of the International Y. M. C. A., will be leaders.

This splendid group of experts (which is not yet complete, but the character of which is indicated by the names given) will be divided into four teams of from six to twelve men (the number depending on the size and requirements of the particular cities to be visited) and eight days will be spent by each in the seventy-eight centers chosen, beginning October 1, and ending in April next.

Is your church in the movement?

A STATEMENT

From the Methodist Delegates to the Silver Bay Conference of the Men and Religion Forward Movement.

We, the delegates from different Methodist bodies and from different parts of the nation, to the Silver Bay Conference of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, consider it our high privilege and imperative duty to make known as widely as possible to the men of our beloved Methodism our opinion of this movement, after this close contact with it, and to give a few brief suggestions about how our Methodist men may be effectively connected with it.

We are amazed at the wisdom and the amount of work done, which are shown in the program before us, in the reports of the work already done in many centers throughout the nation, and in the great sweep of Christian effort already planned, which is to be carried out over the continent. The phases of the movement—Evangelism, Bible Study, Missions, Boys' Work, Social Service and Community Extension—provide a range of appeal and a range of service which command the assent of our judgments and the enthusiasm of our hearts. This great movement is pervaded with prayer. It is full of intense loyalty to Christ. The Christian Church is exalted.

The ten great Christian Brotherhoods of the nation are all a part of the movement, as are those great and splendid organizations, the Gideons, the Young Men's Christian Association and the International Sunday School Association. Business men, lawyers and physicians are giving their trained ability to help on this movement. A host of men of experience and training in Christian work are giving the whole or a part of their time.

We cordially endorse the Men and Religion Forward Movement. We comemnd it to our Methodism everywhere. In this most general and most widely organized evangelistic movement that our nation has ever known, our beloved Methodism, with her great historic record in evangelistic enterprise and achievement, must take her proper place of cordial co-operation and power. Among the co-operating Christian brotherhoods and other organizations of Christian men, we note with glad appreciation that the Methodist Brotherhood has its proper place.

We earnestly recommend the speedy organization in every church, wherever practical, of a Methodist Brotherhood, or some other organization for men, if none now exists; and that these relate themselves to the movement. Such organizations will greatly help to conserve the results.

Literature about the Men and Religion Forward Movement will be sent to those whose names may be furnished from any Methodist church to the Rev. Fayette L. Thompson, D.D., general secretary of the Methodist Brotherhood, 150 Fifth Avenue, New York. Doctor Thompson is also associate campaign leader of the movement.

We also earnestly recommend that all churches carefully prepare for and observe Rally Day, Sept. 24th. In case it is impossible in any church for a local reason to observe Rally Day, Sept. 24th, we advise such a church to observe Rally Day at a time as near as possible to that date.

We earnestly rejoice in the privilege of delightful fellowship with men of different Methodist bodies, which we have had at the Silver Bay Conference, and we covet for others the privilege of participation in the further progress of the movement.

DOES PROHIBITION PROHIBIT?

The following communication recently appeared in the Baltimore Sun. It is from the pen of J. Bibb Mills, attorney for the Anti-Saloon League of Maryland, and effectually meets a very current false charge concerning liquor drinking in prohibition territory:

"A short time ago I noticed in your news columns the statement that a report of the Inter-State Commerce Commission showed that approximately 20,000,000 gallons of liquor are shipped annually into the prohibition States, and I have repeatedly been asked what is our answer to this; so I am taking the liberty of sending to you for publication an answer which was prepared by Miss Mary F. Balcomb, the secretary of the Young People's Civic League of Chicago, and which appeared in the columns of the Chicago Daily News:

"'The "enormous" shipment of liquors into "dry" territory, as revealed by the Inter-State Commerce Commission in its inquiry into proposed changes in express classification, has aroused comment. It was discovered that approximately 20,000,000 gallons are shipped annually into the nine prohibition states.

"'The quantity really is enormous, and it seems appalling; but, compared with the total consumption of intoxicating liquors in the United States, it becomes insignificant.

"'Approximately 1,900,000,000 gallons—to be exact, 1,935,544,112—according to the United States statistical abstract for 1909, latest report from the abstract at hand, of all kinds of intoxicating liquors were consumed in the United States during the year 1909. Twenty million gallons is less than a ninety-fifth of the total consumption. The nine prohibition States have almost one-sixth the total population of the United States, according to the report of superintendents of the census: Alabama, 2,138,093; Georgia, 2,609,121; Kansas, 1,690,949; Maine, 742,371; Mississippi, 1,797,114; North Carolina, 2,206,287; North Dakota, 577,056; Oklahoma, 1,657,155; Tennessee, 2,184,789; total, 15,602,935.

"'The total population of the United States, including all territories, is 93,346,543.

"'In other words, the people living in "wet" territory drink, per capita, more than fifteen times as much as those living in "dry" territory.

"'This is a very good showing for prohibition, we believe. It shows that prohibition "regulates" about fifteen times better than all the "regulative" measures thus far attempted.

"'The press reported 3,000,000 gallons of beer drunk in Chicago during the three excessively hot days of last May; that is, nearly one-sixth as much of beer alone in but three days was consumed by less than one-sixth as many people under high license regulation as was consumed of all kinds of intoxicating liquors by six times as many people during a period 121 times as long.

"'Evidently prohibition prohibits.'

"I trust that you will be able to find space for this strong reply to the old cry that 'prohibition does not prohibit.'"—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

The Centenary College of Louisiana
SHREVEPORT
Fall Term will open
Sept. 13, 1911.
For Catalogue or other information write to
FELIX R. HILL, President,
P. O. Box 455
SHREVEPORT, LA.

The Home Circle

MY SPLENDID TOYS.

Oh, won't you come and play with me
And with my splendid toys?
The little birds are urging me
To bring the girls and boys.
A million daisies bloom for me,
And nod as I pass by,
I wonder whether there can be
A richer child than I!

The turquoise sky is blue for me
Most every single day;
The emeraid leaflets dance for me,
And join with me in play;
The golden sunbeams search with me
Where jeweled dewdrops lie;
I do not think that there can be
A richer child than I!

The silver moonbeams come to me
When darkness covers things,
And light my little room for me
As bright as any king's.
A thousand stars shine out for me
Like diamonds in the sky.
Oh, I am sure there cannot be
A richer child than I!

—The Continent.

BAD TEMPERED CHRISTIANS.

It is related that a young man went one day to the famous New England preacher, Jonathan Edwards, to ask for his daughter.

"You can't have her," said Mr. Edwards.

"But I love her."

"No matter, you can't have her."

"But she loves me, too."

"I say you can't have her."

"But I am well off and can support her."

"You can't have her, I tell you."

"Why not, Mr. Edwards? What have you against me?"

"Nothing."

"Well, then, why can't I have Emily?"

"Because I think you are a pretty decent sort of a man; too good for her."

"What? Mr. Edwards, what in the world do you mean?"

"She's got a wicked temper, and you wouldn't be happy with her."

"But I thought she was a Christian?"

"So she is, young man, so she is. But before you have lived as long as I have you'll find that there are some people in this world that the grace of God can live with, but you can't."—Christian Intelligencer.

IT KIND O' SPILES YER LIFE.

"Margaret, do you know of any one who wants a place for general housework?" asked Mrs. Williamson stepping out into her sunny kitchen.

"And is it fer wan of yer friends yer askin', Mrs. Williamson?" asked Margaret, looking up from her bread-board, with the smile which always lighted up her face when her young mistress appeared.

"Yes, it is for those friends who dined with me on Wednesday evening. Do you know of any one?"

"Well, if it's fer that young married lady, I think I do. Katie Dunn is looking fer a home; she can't stand her place no longer."

"Oh, that wouldn't do!" exclaimed Mrs. Williamson. "I wouldn't take a servant from anyone else, Margaret, you know I wouldn't."

"No, mum, of course not; but I think Katie's give notice already. She told me she was going to leave."

"Why, is the work too hard for her?"

Margaret laughed her hearty, contagious laugh. "Oh, no, Katie ain't afraid of hard work, no more than I am, but she likes a home. Where she is now, the lady never speaks to her hardly, from morning till night, or if she does, she speaks kind o' cross-like. That friend of yours looks like she was kind, and might take a little interest in a body; yes, I think Katie'd like to work for her."

"Ye know, Mrs. Williamson," she continued, "it ain't that we minds hard work, but when folks never has a kind word for ye all day, somehow it—well, it kind o' spiles yer life."

"Yes," asseuted the young mistress, "I suppose it does;" and she thought to herself, as she went back into her library, that sometimes, even in these days, the servant problem may be solved by the woman who offers a "home" instead of a "place."—The Standard.

THE SACRIFICE OF ELSIE.

By Maude Chace.

It was on Rally Day, 1906, that she became a member of the Mizpah Bible Class. An earnest Christian, and a member of a Methodist Church, she soon found her place of usefulness among us. Sunny, affectionate, unselfish, she won her way into the hearts of all who knew her, and as we learned to know her better we discerned the strength of character lying beneath the loving, clinging exterior, for this sweet young life had a will and a purpose which had carried her through years of struggle without father or mother, and which dominated her life to its close.

About a year after she entered our class it was my great joy, as her teacher, to see her baptized into the Church. Only a few months later the opportunity came to enter training for that which she had hoped to make her life service. In March, 1908, Elsie became a probationer in a hospital in one of our Eastern cities, where for seven long months she served most faithfully. It was a joy to visit her there and, as she led us through the wards, to note the welcome extended her. As often as possible she came to the Sunday evening church service, always happy in the opportunity, and when the message came, as it sometimes did, "Save a seat for me, for I will be up to-night," how gladly we crowded closer in the pew to make room for her!

And so the weeks and months flew by, Elsie becoming more and more capable, until at last she was placed in charge of the contagious ward, which she felt to be quite an honor. Here also the unselfish life left its influence, as she gave herself unreservedly to the needs in that ward. One day, however, the young nurse failed to be at her post, and the word passed from one to another that Elsie lay ill with scarlet fever. What a brave fight it was! but the frail body, weakened through weeks of night duty during the summer, was unable to battle with the disease, and after four days of the most intense suffering the brave soul went home, leaving behind her stunned and almost broken hearts.

It is almost impossible to describe the days immediately following—how the girls gathered together, the wonderful influence of her life, the memories crowding upon us, the effect not only upon our class and the school, but upon the whole church. Never will we forget that October day when, as the autumn's leaves were falling, we stood beside her for the last time, as she lay in her nurse's uniform in that little white casket. As they laid her to rest she was completely covered by a blanket of white carnations, the gift of the nurses. At her head stood a cross of roses bearing the words, "A Sacrifice," and as we stood beside the flower-covered grave one of our girls, who was Elsie's closest friend, voiced the bitter cry of her heart, "If the sacrifice is not in vain!"

Perhaps you wonder if it has been. It could not be, for no real sacrifice is ever in vain. It first welded the girls more closely together, began a wonderful work that will never end in the heart and life of this classmate and friend, and has been touching many other girls who have come to us in the two years since she left us, for the membership of the class was nearly doubled the year after her death.

During these two years a fund has been steadily growing in the class as a memorial to her—just a little sum from each member every week, in which our superintendent has also had a part. Recently eighty-four dollars have been designated to the chapel-car Emanuel, with the hope that through our gift a Sunday school may be organized and other lives touched and thus the influence of Elsie's life may still be felt.

Had Elsie lived she would have become the wife of one of the young men of the Sunday school who is now in training as a medical worker; and the girls, her classmates, feel they want to honor her and to help carry on her work by raising this memorial fund and sending it out with the story of her life for the saving of souls. Do you think the sacrifice was in vain?—World-Wide.

SERMONS THAT SAVE.

Sermons that save must sound an alarm. Knowing the terrors of the law, we persuade men. No glittering generalities now. No rhetorical niceties. The message must ring out like a firebell. It must echo like a drum beat before the battle. It must peal like the shrill blast of the watchman's trumpet when danger is near. It must declare the whole counsel of God. That means denunciation of sin, a clear statement of the necessity of repentance, the certainty of a judgment throne, an eternal hell for the finally impenitent, salvation by faith, and cleansing through the blood of the Redeemer.

Said the late Dr. Dale, of England, in a tone of dismay: "Nobody is afraid of God now." In other words, the true vision of the living God is fading out of sight. Humanitarianism is exalted. Mere morality is emphasized. Hence, the spiritual sense grows dull and the doctrines which center about the atonement, and which once were the power of God unto the salvation of multitudes, are discarded as altogether too crude for these cultured times. Brothers, we must get back to the courage and faithfulness of the fathers. In those days the sword of the Spirit cut its way through to marvelous victories. Conviction was pungent. Mourning for sin meant tears and groans, Repentance involved the surrender of every sin. Conversion was a translation. People were gloriously, gloriously saved! Give us the old doctrines, the old intensity, the old power, the old victories! Give us sermons that save!—Central Christian Advocate.

THE SAFEST AND QUICKEST WAY

—TO—

TRANSFER MONEY

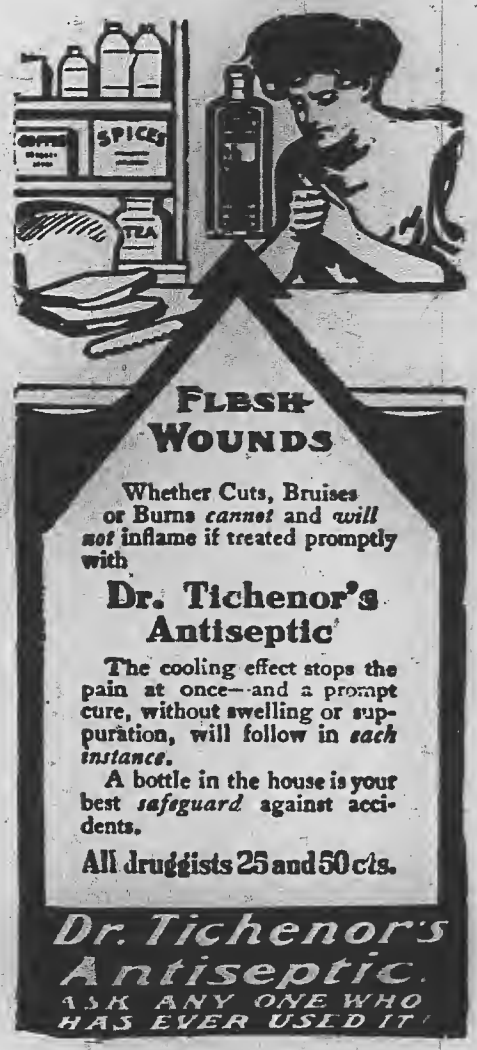
—IS BY—

Long Distance Telephone

FOR RATES APPLY TO LOCAL MANAGER.

Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co

INCORPORATED



SPICES
TEA
FLESH WOUNDS
Whether Cuts, Bruises or Burns cannot and will not inflame if treated promptly with
Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic
The cooling effect stops the pain at once—and a prompt cure, without swelling or suppuration, will follow in each instance.
A bottle in the house is your best safeguard against accidents.
All druggists 25 and 50 cts.
Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic.
ASK ANY ONE WHO HAS EVER USED IT

Christian Advocate.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.
CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.
OFFICE: 512 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

TERMS:
One Copy, one year, $1.50; eight months, $1.00. To preachers of all Denominations, $1.00.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE
Louisiana Conference—Rev. N. E. Joyner, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake.
Mississippi Conference—Rev. I. W. Cooper, D.D., Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. D. Ellis.
North Mississippi Conference—Rev. J. T. Murrah, Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. H. S. Spragins.

Editorial.

A wise pastor seeks to prepare for and magnify his prayer meeting. It ought to be one of the most stirring and helpful of all our church services.

* * *

It is only as it abides in the vine and shares in its life that the branch can grow and come to a rich fruitage. So vital a connection with Christ and a continuous dwelling in him can alone enable the Christian to become strong and useful. And the maintenance of such a relation between the disciple and his Lord is contingent upon obedience. The Master said, "If ye keep my commandments, ye shall abide in my love; even as I have kept my Father's commandments, and abide in his love."

* * *

There can be no constant outflow without a corresponding inflow. But for the replenishing that comes from the clouds and mountains the deepest river would soon run dry. And this is as true in the domain of the intellectual and spiritual as it is in the physical realm. The minister who would send forth in his sermons an ever fresh and quickening stream of thought must be ever filling and furnishing his own mind. In other words, only as a man appropriates the truth and builds himself up may he hope to feed others and promote their mental and religious development.

* * *

Some months ago we wrote for the Advocate a paragraph in which we spoke approvingly of some reforms accomplished in the West by women, and rather jokingly stated that if this good work was kept up, we might cease to be an opponent of woman suffrage. Since then, we have noticed the substance of what we said in the "Woman's Departments" of some of our church papers, with the added comment, "Perhaps he will also look with less disfavor upon the rights of the laity in the Church," by which, of course, is meant the so-called right of women to become members of the Annual and General Conferences, etc. Perhaps, indeed, we may. The privilege of changing our opinion when we are convinced that we are in the wrong we count one of our inalenable rights. A blind worshiper at the shrine of consistency we have never been. We have observed that the men whom we most admire, as Mr. Gladstone, for instance, frequently shifted their positions on public questions, as passing events gave them increasing light. But let not our sisters form their conclusions too hastily. We have no objection to their quoting our utterance, though we think they might have published it as we wrote it, and not in the bungled and incorrect form in which they have seen fit to give it circulation.

ORTHODOXY'S AWAKENING

"We have been drifting in the church too long," is a thoughtful observation of one of the ablest leaders of American Methodism to-day. It is a sentiment which is being echoed and re-echoed on every side. A glance at the religious press of the country from week to week, even a recollection of such editorials from various denominational organs as have been reprinted in this paper of late months, brings to us the cheering consciousness that orthodoxy is awakening.

No finer illustration of the conditions which have existed for many years past could be found than the incident related of Beecher by Dr. Buckley in the New York Advocate. Pointing to a painting upon the wall of a home in which they were being entertained, Beecher said: "That sleeping mastiff is orthodoxy; the little cur stealthily stealing away its treasured food is heterodoxy." Such to-day the Church is beginning to realize has been the case. Under the badge of scholarship and with professions of faith upon their lips, men have come with suggestions that just one little thing after another be given up, or recognized as non-essential to the faith. And the Church, little apprehending the trend of things, and thinking surely that only devout scholarship was behind it all, silently acquiesced and slumbered on. But the more concessions were made, the more were demanded, until it became apparent that the foundations were being assailed. Then the Church began to sit up and take notice and think for herself. "The accepted results of modern scholarship," charmed words, under whose spell she had long bowed her head in submissive reverence, lost their power to command unquestioning submission, until to-day there is a general distrust both of the methods and conclusions of much modern Biblical study as being in spirit unChristian and in substance a flat denial of the most obvious and essential teachings of Scripture. The same sanity which has saved the Church many a time throughout the centuries from equally plausible errors—from Arianism and Gnosticism, from Socinianism and Deism—is again animating her; and she bids fair to go on in her triumphal course, leaving the heresies of to-day as the heresies of yesterday, "sprawling and prostrate, the wild truth reeling but erect." "To the law and to the testimony" is becoming the watchword. Measure every new teaching thereby. "If they speak not according to this word, there is no light in them."

It is well that such should be the case, and we rejoice greatly in the evident intention of the Church to place the sure teachings of Holy Writ above the oracular deliverances of men who disallow and would undermine its authority. Thus only can she keep her hold either upon God or men; for with the fundamental doctrines of sin and redemption, heaven and hell gone, the power of the Church is gone also.

It is well, too, that this awakening should have come before it is too late; before disregard of the authority of Scripture and unbelief in the great fundamentals should have so spread as to render a restoration of the Church itself impossible. We are glad to believe that it is yet overwhelmingly true in Israel, "They that be for us are more than they that are against us." And certainly the power of God is with those only who proclaim his truth as revealed in the Scriptures, in love for the souls of men.

Orthodoxy has been of late years a sleeping giant. Dissatisfaction with the Church, expressing itself often in dissatisfaction with her doctrines as antiquated and unsuited to modern needs, has been at heart in many cases but dissatisfaction with her inertia, her lack of courage and vigor in the proclamation both of her doctrines and morals. Any idea that orthodoxy is "something heavy, humdrum and safe," can only exist where orthodoxy is seen sleeping, instead of awake. Orthodoxy awake is the most life-giving, stirring, inspiring, uplifting, joyous thing the world has ever seen. In fact, it is the only thing that has ever, or can ever, stir and transform the world and bring to it visions of God and glorious hopes of heaven. It is heresy that is dull and lifeless, chilling to men and setting them adrift.

Courage, then, in high places and in low, on the part of those loyal to the faith; courage to proclaim uncompromisingly the old doctrines as God's truth to men is all that is needed, under the blessing of heaven, to rout all enemies, and vindicate the old faith as conquering and to conquer. Onward, Christian soldiers! As Admiral Togo recently said, "It is the soldier in a man that makes him a success. It makes the good shoemaker; it makes the good financier; it makes the great arbitrator; it makes the highest type of patriot," and, may we add, it makes the great Christian. It makes a man who, at the end of his day's work, can go to his Father (and his God) with the realization of a life well spent.

REV. J. W. McLAURIN.

In the death of Rev. J. W. McLaurin, which, as was announced in the Advocate last week, occurred at Monteagle, Tenn., on Saturday, Aug. 12, the Mississippi Conference has lost one of its best informed and most widely known ministers. Viewed from any standpoint, Brother McLaurin was far more than an average man. He belonged to the famous family which has given to Mississippi a Governor and United States Senator, and whose sons and daughters have adorned in that commonwealth practically every worthy occupation in life. By nature the deceased was endowed with a clear and vigorous intellect, which he disciplined and trained by study and wide and varied reading. He was a preacher of unusual force and impressiveness. We have frequently heard him deliver pulpit messages which thrilled and stirred his audiences. For a number of years he was in the employment of the American Bible Society, and represented that great evangelizing agency with notable ability and success. The state of Brother McLaurin's health for some time has been such that he was forced to desist from active work, but he continued to take a deep interest in all the affairs of the kingdom. We saw him at the Jackson District Conference last spring, and though not strong in body, he was cheerful in spirit and much concerned for the welfare and growth of Methodism. But he has passed into the sphere invisible, and until the end of time we shall see him no more. Suddenly the summons came, but we doubt not that it found him ready. To the good man, who lives for God and humanity, death opens the way into the Father's house and into the Master's glorious presence.

Brother McLaurin's sound judgment and wise management made him a success even in a financial way, and in his will he made a generous bequest to the State Charity Hospital at Jackson, which will make his influence felt for many decades to come. Referring to the manner in which his property was acquired and his noble benefaction, the Times-Democrat correspondent at the Mississippi Capital writes as follows:

"Several years ago he invested in vacant lands in and about Jackson, building cottages on some of the lots, all of which greatly increased in value as the city limits were extended, so that his holdings here are worth at least $50,000. One-half of that sum, or $25,000, under the terms of the will received this morning from Monteagle, Tenn., by Watkins & Watkins, attorneys, is bequeathed to the Mississippi State Charity Hospital, now in course of construction. This sum is to be invested and reinvested till the principal amounts to $50,000. That sum is then to be invested and the income therefrom used in equipping, maintaining and supporting a ward or wards in the said hospital for the treatment of poor, sick and afflicted persons. This ward is to be known as the 'J. W. McLaurin Ward,' and the will directs that over the entrance shall be placed the motto: 'In the Name of the Lord Jesus.' The Jackson Bank is made trustee, without bond, and Mr. W. H. Watkins is directed to look after the bequest until it is in the hands of the trustees of the State Charity Hospital."

MISUNDERSTOOD.

An esteemed correspondent takes kindly exception to the statement in our editorial of last week, entitled, "Sins of the Disposition," which reads as follows: "Profanity is no worse than envy, or selfishness, or covetousness, or unjust judgments, or unbelief." The impression seems to have been made that our utterance in some measure minifies the vice of profanity. We do not think the statement warrants such an inference. We were trying to enforce the tremendous truth that the sins which hold sway within the soul are not less heinous in the sight of God and not less destructive to one's character, than those which run riot in the realm of outward conduct. Certainly, we would not offer the least palliation for the inexcusable habit of profane swearing. Time and again through our columns we have expressed in the strongest terms at our command our views concerning this outrageous and indefensible practice, which is far too common. But bad and widespread as it is, it lacks much of being the only evil which evinces regnant depravity within, and which is calculated to wreck the immortal soul. All sin is terrible in the sight of him who can read the deep secrets and weigh the hidden motives of the human heart.

FOUND THEM CLOSED.

A Washington dispatch states that President Taft, Secretary Stimson of the War Deparment, and Major Butt started to church last Sunday, and found the first two places of worship to which they went closed, and that it was only after the third attempt they found a structure with open doors and services in progress. Is there not in this a lesson for our pastors and people? It is well enough for a weary and worn preacher to have a brief season of rest, but that our churches should go into summer quarters and Christian activity be lessened for weeks in our various communities, is, we think, unwise and regrettable. Satan works and death works, and so should the disciples of Christ. Let us keep our houses of worship open at all seasons. We hope to see the time come when the Word will be expounded in every Methodist Church in the United States every Sabbath, as is now said to be done in all the Wesleyan chapels of England.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Rev. R. O. Weir and daughter, of Donaldsonville, La., were in the city last Monday and favored our office with an appreciated call.

Rev. G. W. Bachman was recently with Rev. W. G. Burks, the pastor, in a series of services at New Hope Church, on the Winona Circuit.

Rev. W. H. Saunders, pastor of the Washington Street Church, Vicksburg, assisted Rev. T. E. Gregory in a meeting at North Carrollton last week.

Writing from Winnsboro, La., on Aug. 15, Rev. W. G. Harbin says: "Our meeting here has started well, though the rain is hindering some." No later news from the services has reached us at this writing.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Allen and their two children, of Evansville, Miss., are visiting relatives at Crystal Springs. These are among the most faithful workers that our Church has in the Mississippi Delta.

We acknowledge ourselves indebted to Dr. A. F. Smith, pastor of our First Church at Jackson, Miss., for some subscribers recently sent to the Advocate. No interest of the Church suffers in the hands of this faithful pastor, who is in high favor with his flock.

A note from Rev. D. W. Babb, of Coldwater, Miss., written from Corinth, on the 18th inst., stated that he was with his brother in that city who is seriously ill. Brother Babb asks that prayer be made for the sufferer, and those who are anxious because of his condition.

Rev. B. F. Lewis, of Columbia, Miss., has been resting and recuperating at the Seashore Camp Ground. The readers of the Advocate are indebted to this capable worker for his weekly Sunday school notes, which he has been kindly contributing for some months.

We have received from the facile pen of Mrs. J. M. Wyatt, of Brookhaven, Miss., an interesting discussion of the subject of "Social Service," a new phase of our woman's missionary work to which she desires to direct attention. It will appear in our issue of next week.

Let every pastor get ready to observe the Men and Religion Movement Rally Day, which is to be held on Sunday, Sept. 24. All needed literature may be had by writing Dr. Fayette L. Thompson, General Secretary of the Methodist Brotherhood, 150 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

Dr. H. G. Henderson, pastor of the First Methodist Church, of Columbus, Miss., is spending his vacation with relatives in Kentucky. The Central Methodist Advocate of the 10th inst. announced that he would occupy the pulpit of the First Methodist Church of Lexington, Ky., on Sunday, Aug. 20.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Purcell, of Plain Dealing, La., have been visiting the family of his brother, Rev. J. S. Purcell, of Florence, Miss. Mr. Purcell also spent a few days in the home of his uncle, Mr. George Purcell, of Black Hawk, Miss., and with other relatives at Lexington and Kilmichael.

The many Mississippi friends of the Rev. I. D. Borders will be pleased to know that he is happy in his work at Stockton, Cal., and that success is attending his labors in that responsible charge. Sister Borders has recently spent six weeks in the bracing salt atmosphere of San Francisco, and has returned home much improved.

Mr. J. B. Streater, of Black Hawk, Miss., in order to escape hay fever from which he suffers at this season if he remains in Mississippi, has gone to Petoskey, Michigan, where he will spend three or four weeks. There is no more worthy or useful layman within the bounds of the North Mississippi Conference than Brother Streater.

Col. J. M. Johnson, of Acona, Miss., and his daughter, Mrs. C. W. Perkins, of Texas, spent last Saturday and Sunday in Durant, Miss., on a visit to Mrs. William Herbert, who is reported to be critically ill with tuberculosis. Mrs. Herbert is a daughter of the late Mr. John Clower, who was an esteemed and well known citizen of Holmes County, Miss.

The many friends of Rev. M. L. Burton, who was recently appointed by Bishop Candler to the Twenty-Fifth Avenue Church, of Gulfport, are delighted to see him again able to be active in the work. Brother Burton is a strong and aggressive preacher, and a painstaking and successful pastor. The congregation to which he has been assigned is to be congratulated upon having secured his services.

Rev. J. F. Foster, our pastor at De Ridder, La., writes as follows: "Everything is progressing finely in the Shreveport District and De Ridder is not behind. We have in our Sunday school a class with an enrollment of 117, and we are now planning a campaign for new members. It is our purpose to have a class night in September with a speaker from elsewhere, and in October we hope to have with us Dr. Hamill or Mr. Marion Lawrance."

Rev. J. H. Felts, the aggressive presiding elder of the Aberdeen District, though somewhat hindered by politics and the necessity of being with a sick brother at the Lynn Hunt Sanitarium in Memphis, has been abundant in labors this summer. During the first two weeks in August he drove more than 200 miles through the country, often holding two services a day, and sometimes three. Brother Felts has a well established reputation as a tireless and indefatigable worker.

In renewing her subscription to the Advocate, Mrs. J. F. Mars, of Meridian, adds: "I have never kept house a day without it." Truly, a good example is this which our sister furnishes. A Christian home in the highest and truest sense cannot be maintained without proper religious instruction, and this the church paper helps to provide. A Methodist without a journal to inform him what his Church is accomplishing is to be pitied.

In company with Rev. C. W. Perkins, of Aransas Pass, Texas, who spent the day in the city as a guest of the editor, we worshiped at the First Methodist Church last Sunday, where we heard a forceful and instructive sermon from the pastor, Dr. S. H. Werlein, who discoursed upon the text, "Seek ye first the kingdom of God and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." Dr. Werlein is a vigorous thinker and a preacher of uncommon gifts.

That noble veteran of the Louisiana Conference, Rev. George Jackson, celebrated his 87th birthday on Aug. 9. He is in fine health, is genial and sunshiny in spirit, and states that the way grows brighter as the years pass. He wrote the publisher an appreciated letter on his birthday, which we hope to give a place in our next issue. We pray God's richest blessings upon this long-time friend of the Advocate, who we trust may yet tarry with us for many summers and winters.

We are much indebted to Dr. J. M. Henry, presiding elder of the New Orleans District, for valuable assistance in bringing out last week's issue of the Advocate. The editor was in Mississippi looking after personal matters for a few days, and though burdened with the care of the churches under his supervision, Dr. Henry generously came to the rescue. He is not only an instructive expositor of the Scriptures and an able administrator of the affairs of the Church, but also a fluent and graceful writer. He ought to use his gifted pen more.

Rev. R. V. Fulton has furnished us with an account of his revival campaign on the Denham Springs charge, for which we thank him. It will appear in next week's edition of the Advocate. Brother Fulton was just back from the Bluff Creek Camp Meeting when he wrote. The other ministers in attendance were Brothers Miller, Warlick, Newsom, Gatlin, and J. B. Fulton. The editor acknowledges the reception of an invitation to be present, which his absence from home prevented him from doing at an earlier date. We regret that circumstances were such that we could not attend.

Some persons who have sent us copy for the Advocate may be somewhat disappointed by its failure to appear this week. The editor was out of the city for ten days prior to last Monday, and his absence is responsible for the delay. We have clung faithfully to our post through the weary weeks of the summer, and we feel sure that our constituency will not find fault with us for taking a little time off, which was spent, not in idleness, but in looking after important personal business. We hope to catch up with our correspondence and work in general within a few days, and we ask our friends to exercise a little patience until we can do so.

The Ruston District Epworth League Conference will be held at Arcadia, La., Sept. 5-7. The following are the district officers: Rev. A. I. Townsley, president; Miss Annie Featherstone, Homer, first vice-president; Miss Rubie Jackson, Ruston, second vice-president; Mr. E. W. Gill, Homer, third vice-president; Mrs. Effie Pace, Athens, fourth vice-president; Miss Homie Webb, Athens, secretary-treasurer; Miss Lulu Johnson, Junior League superintendent. Each League Chapter will be allowed three delegates, and both Junior and Senior Leagues are expected to bring written reports of their work. All who expect to attend should send their names at once to Rev. A. I. Townsley, Arcadia, La.

Centenary College will open on Wednesday, Sept. 13. The indications point to the most prosperous session in the history of this worthy institution. As will be noted in his communication which appears elsewhere, Dr. Hill states that two valuable additions have lately been made to the faculty—Dr. Milton H. Harper, of Maryland, who comes highly commended, and Rev. H. T. Carley, who is a graduate of Millsaps College and who took a theological course at Vanderbilt University. We especially congratulate the Trustees upon having secured the services of Brother Carley, whose attainments we regard as most superior. We confidently predict that as an instructor he will prove himself to be a workman that needeth not to be ashamed.

Miss Pagie Bailey, an esteemed and useful member of the Acona Methodist Church, in Holmes County, Miss., writes as follows of a meeting held in that community the week following the first Sunday in August: "We have just closed an interesting revival in which our pastor, Rev. J. H. Bell, was assisted by the Rev. C. W. Perkins, a member of the West Texas Conference, who is now stationed at Aransas Pass, Texas. The Holy Spirit was present in the first service, and the spiritual tide mounted higher each succeeding day. Sinners were converted, backsliders were reclaimed, the church membership in general was quickened, and several new names were added to the roll. Brother Perkins' preaching was with power, and in a number of the services we sat together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus, some manifesting the happiness in their hearts by shouts of praise. The entire community felt the influence of this season of refreshing from the presence of the Lord."

Rev. L. A. Sims, who lacks but a few months of having finished his fourth year as pastor of Epworth Church, this city, has committed his charge to other hands, and, after a brief vacation, will enter Centenary College, where he will both prosecute his studies and do some teaching in the Preparatory Department. During his quadrennium at Epworth, Brother Sims has done a monumental work, and he has a right to be gratified at the marked success which has attended his labors. When he was sent to this pastorate it was a weak and struggling mission, but it is now one of the most promising Methodist congregations in New Orleans and bids fair to become self-sustaining at no distant day. The Sunday school attendance during the summer season has been around the 150 mark, and will doubtless become much larger with the opening of autumn. We are informed that Dr. Henry, the presiding elder of the New Orleans District, will preach once a Sabbath for this growing young flock until Conference, and that he will manage to have the pulpit occupied at the other hour each Sunday by some other pastor in the city.

CENTENARY COLLEGE OPENING.

Dear Dr. Meek: Please permit me to call attention to the opening of the Centenary College of Louisiana, Sept. 13, 1911. We expect a large attendance. We are preparing to accommodate all the students who may come to us. We are better equipped for doing thorough and first-class work in all departments than at any time since this institution was located at Shreveport. Two valuable men have been added to the faculty—Rev. H. T. Carley, your former assistant in the Advocate office, and Dr. Milton H. Harper, of Maryland, who comes to us most highly recommended as a Christian gentleman, an earnest Methodist, and a successful teacher of many years' experience. We appeal to the Methodists of Louisiana, and particularly to our preachers, to rally as never before to their only school dedicated to the noble work of educating the boys and young men of their commonwealth and Conference. Cordially yours,

FELIX R. HILL.

Temporary success is no true measure of greatness. Lowell was right when he said, "Not failure, but low aim is crime."

DR. H. B. BARTLETT
National Dental Parlors
Cor. Canal & Camp Sts.
ENTRANCE 106 CAMP
Phone Main 2193
NEW ORLEANS
Vitalized Air for Painless Extraction
Crown and Bridge Specialist.
The Largest and Best Equipped Dental Parlors South.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

LINDA, daughter of Rev. James E. and Mrs. Callie Burnham Williams, was born at Tylertown, Miss., the 9th day of December, 1909. She went to heaven from her parents' home at Mendenhall, Miss., on the 17th day of July, 1911. In September of last year at Silver Creek, Miss., she was dedicated to God in holy baptism, the sacred rite being administered by the writer. Little Linda was an unusually bright and affectionate child. And even in the few brief months in which she was spared to bless her fond parents' home, she displayed that loveliness of disposition which gave promise of a life of beauty and usefulness in the world. But an all-wise and ever loving Father hath otherwise ordered. The good Shepherd has opened the door and another little lamb has been gathered into the fold of safety. "For of such is the kingdom of heaven." To the bereaved parents, "earth is poorest, but heaven is richer," and they have a greater reason than ever before to inspire them to press forward until the Master says, "Well done." After appropriate services in the Mendenhall Methodist Church, the body was conveyed to Johns, Miss., the mother's girlhood home, where near the sacred dust of loved ones gone before, it sweetly sleeps, awaiting the resurrection morn.

PAUL D. HARDIN.

Brookhaven, Miss., Aug. 11, 1911.

ELOISE SCOTT BOWMAN, youngest daughter of Mr. F. E. and Mrs. Pauline C. Bowman, was born in Rinnels County, Tex., March 6, 1893, and passed out of this life at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Adams, Locust Ridge, La., where she was visiting her friend and classmate, Susie Adams, on the afternoon of Aug. 4. When about six years old, her parents moved to Natchez, Miss., where nearly all her life was spent. In the spring of 1909, she graduated from the High School, and in the fall entered Whitworth College. Had she lived, she would be a graduate of this historic institution next year. It was my privilege to know her for four years as her pastor, and I am glad to say that I knew her as a Christian girl, always attentive to her duties in the church, and especially so in the Sunday school and Epworth League. Her life was always cheery and bright, and her father, writing of her going away, says: "She was the happiest of children and made all happy and cheerful." Of the nine children born in this Christian home, she was the first to leave for the Father's house, and Alphenia plantation, the home of her parents, will not be as it has been because of her absence. She was away from home when taken ill, and was ill only about twenty-four hours, and while everything was done to stay the hand of death, she must change her abiding place, and she responded to the summons without a struggle. After a short service in the Sunday school room of Jefferson Street Church, Natchez, which was conducted by Rev. W. H. Huntley, the body was interred in the beautiful city cemetery to await the resurrection. God bless her parents, and brothers and sisters who mourn the sudden termination of her short life. Eloise was loved because she was a lovable child. Her former pastor,

ROBT. SELBY.

Moss Point, Miss.

Miss RONIE PARKS was born in Lauderdale County, near Jaunita, Miss., Aug. 21, 1869, and departed this life, April 9, 1911. Miss Ronie professed religion and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, under the ministry of this writer in August, 1899, and lived a consistent Christian life until the day of her death. She loved her church and as long as it was possible, she was always present at service, though living four miles from her church. She was always a good girl, and all who knew her loved her. She had a bright, cheerful word for everyone, and though never well, she carried sunshine in her heart and life. She had a childlike confidence in the Lord and her delight was to do his will. Like her Savior she went about doing good, and many hearts were made sad when the news came that Miss Ronie Parks was dead. She was perfectly resigned to the will of her Heavenly Father. For quite a while before her death, she was denied the privilege of sitting with the congregation in worship at her home church, but now, no doubt she is with the congregation of the righteous saying, "Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive power and riches and glory and blessings." Weep not, fond loved ones, but live so as to meet Miss Ronie in heaven.

B. W. LEWIS.

J. H. MAYS was born in Lincoln County, Ga., Nov. 17, 1821, and died at his home in Ruston, La., Aug. 9, 1911, aged 89 years, 8 months and 22 days. He was converted and joined the church when he was 17 years old. For a number of years he served the Church as a local preacher. For forty years he had been a successful merchant of the firm of Mays & Holland, first in Vienna, then in Ruston, coming as one of the first business men of the growing young city. He was always a friend and benefactor to all in need, and many poor men, both black and white, have been relieved in some hard struggle with poverty or misfortune by the generosity of Brother Mays. He was buried by his wife in Vienna Cemetery. His nearest surviving relatives are two grandsons, J. D. Holland and W. F. Pearce, and two sisters, Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Proctor, all of Ruston. Brother Mays requested that the following be placed on his tomb: "Born in Lincoln County, Ga., Nov. 17, 1821. Born spiritually, Oct. 18, 1839. Joined the Methodist Church, Sept. 4, 1839, in which I feel that I have been an unworthy member. But I hope to join the redeemed above in heaven in the First Resurrection." His pastor.

WM. H. COLEMAN.

HIBERNIA INSURANCE CO.,
Capital.....$200,000.00
Assets..... 479,860.90
No. 305 Camp Street., New Orleans, La.
LOSSES PROMPTLY PAID.

Methodist Benevolent Association
The Connectional Brotherhood of Ministers and Laymen. Life or Term Certificates for $500 to $2,000. Benefits payable at death, old age, or disability. $100,000.00 paid to widows, orphans, and disabled. $14,000.00 reserve fund. Write for rates, blanks, etc.
J. H. SHUMAKER, Secretary Nashville, Tennessee

ESCAPE THE HEAT OF SUMMER AND SPEND YOUR VACATION ON THE
PACIFIC COAST
Temperature 50 Degrees to 70 Degrees EVERY DAY
LOW ROUND TRIP RATES NOW IN EFFECT
Via SOUTHERN PACIFIC
Two Strictly First-Class Trains Daily
"SUNSET EXPRESS" and "CALIFORNIA EXPRESS"
Through to SAN FRANCISCO without change
Most Modern Standard and Tourist Sleeping Cars; Electric Lighted—Individual Lights in Berths; Oil Burning Locomotives; Electric Block Signals; Observation Car on Sunset Express; Dining Car Service Best in the World.
Before Deciding on Your Route, see
SOUTHERN PACIFIC REPRESENTATIVE,
City Ticket Office, 225-27 St. Charles Street, New Orleans
PHONE MAIN 4027
Beautifully Illustrated Literature Furnished on Request.

LOUISIANA RAILWAY
(La. R'y & Nav. Co.)
—THE SHORT LINE BETWEEN—
Shreveport; Alexandria;
Baton Rouge; New Orleans.
THE COMFORTABLE ROUTE FOR PASSENGERS
QUICKEST ROUTE FOR FREIGHT
LESS THAN CARLOAD SHIPMENTS HAULED IN PACKAGE CARS IN THROUGH TRAINS.

L&N Louisville & Nashville R.R.
THE DIRECT LINE TO NORTH AND EAST
ELECTRIC LIGHTED STEEL SLEEPERS
DINING CARS, OBSERVATION CARS, CHAIR CARS
Phone M 4093. TICKET OFFICE 201 ST. CHARLES STREET.

Use the L. & A. Railway
When you travel go via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY, The Road That is Always on Time. FIRST-CLASS EQUIPMENT; Gravel Ballasted Track; 75 Pound Steel Rails; The Best of Service in Every Respect. Double Daily Passenger Service; Two Trains Each Way Daily.
OUR FREIGHT SERVICE IS UNEXCELLED.
When you order or ship freight if you want quick and satisfactory service, instruct your shipments routed via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY. Our motto is "EVER ON TIME."
F. W. GREEN, General Superintendent. Stamps, Ark.
S. S. ATKINSON, Gen. Frt. and Pass. Agt., Texarkana, Ark.

NEW IBERIA, LA.

Dear Brother Meek: I want to say a word in your valuable paper about the church at New Iberia, which has a membership of over 250, with accessions for 1911 of 49 members. We have a beautiful church building, of modern construction: brick, tiled roof, memorial windows, large pipe organ, and a fine choir. A large Sunday school, in charge of that peerless worker, Henry N. Pharr. An Epworth League of 40 members. The Rev. K. W. Dodson is our pastor, in his second year. The Episcopalian and Presbyterian organizations have good churches and Sunday schools, also well conducted. New Iberia is called the queen city of the Teche, because of its beauty, size, and importance; being at the head of navigation, there are two lines if steamboats bringing freight and passengers twice each week from New Orleans; there are two trunk lines of railroad—the S. P. and Frisco—besides numerous branches. We are now having a trolley line constructed from Morgan City to Lafayette, with belt line for this city. The population is 10,000, and the parish is well settled up. The schools of the parish are equal to any and give a nine months' session each year. A high school is conducted by a first class faculty, which gives diplomas when the courses prescribed are finished. Agriculturally, we are in the heart of the sugar belt; large central factories give market for all the cane raised. Our soil is rich beyond comparison and produces maximum crops of corn, cane, cotton and rice, vegetables and fruits in profusion; hardly a day in the year that something cannot be taken from the garden. Climate is mild; no extremes of heat or cold; mercury seldom goes below the freezing point. This is a great place for a lot of Methodists to come and make their homes. It is especially pleasant for those in the decline of life. Our mild winters and breezy summers contribute to lengthen our days. I could multiply words in commendation of this section, but will close by quoting Longfellow, who said of this section, "Beautiful is the land; they who dwell there have named it the Eden of Louisiana."—Recording Steward.

THE BIBLE AS A SOCIAL FORCE.

The late Grover Cleveland said that the book which he read oftenest was the Bible. Quotations from it are frequent in his written and spoken words. To a far larger extent than the average person supposes, the Bible is a powerful force in the world's political and social affairs. In his address in the Chicago convention, favoring Congressman Sherman for the Republican candidacy for Vice-President, Speaker Cannon made a quotation from the Scriptures. The "boy Absalom" has often figured in Mr. Bryan's political similes. The familiarity of Garfield and McKinley with the Bible was often mentioned during their lifetime, but especially at their inauguration. The references to the Bible in the addresses of Calhoun, Benton, and Webster, especially of Webster, are many. Who of the schoolboys of forty or fifty years ago does not remember Webster's magnificent peroration in his reply to Hayne, in his "liberty and union now and forever one and inseparable" passage, which opens thus: "When my eyes shall be turned to behold for the last time the sun in heaven." A more familiar passage of the same tenor is that in Garfield's short speech in Wall Street when the news of Lincoln's assasination was flashed across the country: "Fellow-citizens, clouds and darkness are round about him. His pavilion is dark waters and thick clouds of the skies. Justice and judgment are the establishment of his throne. Mercy and truth shall go before his face. Fellow-citizens, God reigns, and the government at Washington still lives!"—Lesley's Weekly.

IF YOU ARE A REFORMER

Hit the church.

Hit it hard.

Hit it often, and repeatedly.

Hit it when you are talking in a church and could not get a roof over your head to talk anywhere else.

Hit it when you are talking to an audience made up of members of the church, and could not get any other audience to listen to you.

Hit it for what it has done.

Hit it for what it has not done.

Hit it for what you think it ought to have done.

Hit it for what it has overdone or underdone, or is going to do.

Hit it because it "don't preach the gospel."

Hit it because it does preach the gospel.

Hit it because it has not converted the whole world.

Hit it because it tries to convert the heathen.

Hit it because hypocrites slip into it.

Hit it because its Christianity is counterfeited.

Hit it because it does not keep its doors open seven days in the week.

Hit it because only a few people enter these doors one day in the week.

Hit it because it is not in politics.

Hit it because it is in politics.

Hit it because all its members are not on the front seat of the "water wagon."

Hit it because some of its members are in the water wagon.

Hit it because somebody smelt liquor on the breath of one of its members several years ago.

Hit it because it is too worldly.

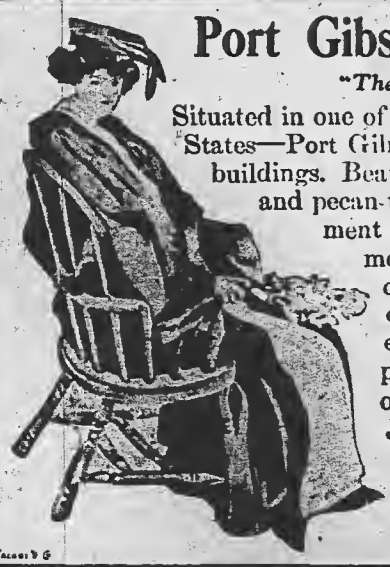
Hit it because it is too "other worldly."

Hit it because it does not settle all labor troubles.

Hit it for everything you can think of, and a lot of things that nobody ever ought to have thought of.—Advance.

When we climb to heaven 'tis on the rounds of love to men.—Whittier.

EDUCATIONAL



Port Gibson Female College

"The ideal school for girls."

Situated in one of the healthiest sections of the United States—Port Gibson, Miss. Large, comfortable, airy buildings. Beautiful campus, shaded by stately oaks and pecan-trees. Everything for the advancement of our students physically as well as mentally. Excellent physical culture course without cost. Unexcelled literary courses. Art, Elocution, Music, etc. Thorough instruction by competent, experienced faculty. The best of foods—milk and butter from herd of Jersey cows.

WRITE FOR ILLUSTRATED CATALOG

PORT GIBSON FEMALE COLLEGE
PORT GIBSON, MISS.

MERIDIAN WOMAN'S COLLEGE

Among the Health-giving Pine Hills of Mississippi.

The largest private School for girls in the South, an ideal union of home and school. Non-sectarian, yet Christian, a school where the social and religious welfare of your daughter is carefully guarded and no phase of her education neglected. Beautiful 60 acre campus. Largest conservatory of Music in the entire South; Oratory and Art.

Write for Beautifully Illustrated Catalog No. 4

Meridian Woman's College, - J. W. Beeson, A. M. President, Meridian, Miss.

Meridian Male College, a quarter mile distant, is an ideal place for your son. Military discipline, Christian home influences. Operated in connection with the Meridian Woman's College.

DICKSON COLLEGE,

THE SCHOOL FOR YOUR DAUGHTER.

Located in the Tennessee Highlands. Health unsurpassed. Out-door sports, exercise in the hills among Middle Tennessee's most beautiful springs. A thorough education which prepares for efficiency and gives real culture. Courses complete and advantages superb. Send your daughter to Dickson College and she will return to you stronger in body and mind, thoroughly equipped, cultured and refined, and ready to meet the actual problems of life. For catalogue and all information, address, T. B. LOGGINS, Dickson, Tenn.

BINGHAM, Asheville, N. C., has prepared BOYS for College and for Christian Citizenship for 118 years, and ALONE in the U. S., offers a FREE ROUND TRIP TICKET from anywhere within 1500 miles to any parent who, on inspection, is not convinced that its pairs of ONE STORY brick rooms, separated by a parapet FIRE WALL, are the BEST for Health, Sanitation, Ventilation and safety against FIRE. 1793 Send for Catalogue or come and see. COL. R. BINGHAM, Supt., R. F. D. No. 28 1912

Morgan School Not Better than Some Others

Morgan School has no better building, the health of the school and town is not superior to some, the Dormitory and Gymnasium are not better than some others in the State.

All these are good enough,

But the standard of character and scholarship is equal to the best and superior to many.

If information is desired, write for catalogue.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal.

FAYETTEVILLE, TENN.

Belmont College

FOR YOUNG WOMEN NASHVILLE, TENN.

IRA LANDRITH, D. D., LL. D., Pres. MISS HOOD AND MISS HERON, Principals.

Environment and equipment ideal. Modern buildings surrounded by a beautiful Magnolia park of 20 acres overlooking Nashville, "The Athens of the South." City advantages and country environment. Outdoor sports, athletics and horseback riding. Delightful climate and unsurpassed health conditions. Every provison for safety, comfort and work. Non-sectarian, but distinctively Christian influences prevail, with all the refining atmosphere of home life.

Administration and teaching staff include 50 specialists. Experienced teachers trained in leading Universities of America and Europe. Splendid Conservatory under direction of Edouard Hesselberg, pianist and composer. Most expensively maintained music faculty in the South.

Students from over 30 states. 20 per cent Northern girls. Limited capacity, always filled. Early registration advised. For Catalogue, address

Department 34 BELMONT COLLEGE, Nashville, Tenn.

You Look Prematurely Old

Because of those ugly, grizzly gray hairs. Use "LA CREOLE" HAIR DRESSING. Price $1.00, retail.

The Sunday School.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Rev. B. F. Lewis.

"God hath given us four inferior teachers, travel, occupation, industry, conversation, and four superior teachers, love, grief, death—but chiefly books."

* * *

Canadian Methodism enrolls 391,426 members for the year just closed, which is an increase of 20,939 over last year. But the Sunday school enrollment is 438,364, which is 46,938 in excess of the membership.

* * *

Poplarville has a Philathea class which has caught the spirit of the organized class. They give lawn parties, thus meeting the social demands; distribute bouquets to the sick and thus minister to those in distress; aid the missionary society, thus familiarizing themselves with church work; and what is of more moment, while the teacher leads, she throws the responsibility largely on the class.

* * *

The purpose of the General Sunday School Board to erect a model Sunday school building at Montreat, N. C., should meet with the heartiest co-operation of pastors and Sunday school workers. One of the great hindrances to modern Sunday school work is suitable buildings. A greater hindrance is not knowing how to adapt the building we have to the work, and, in the construction of new buildings, to adequately plan the Sunday school room. This model Sunday school building will put before the Church just such a building. Rally Day, in October, has been designated by the General Sunday School Board for the taking of a collection for this building. Programs can be had free, by writing to Mr. E. E. French, Publishing House, Nashville, Tenn.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Rev. F. O. Lowrey.

Thre are now 56 pupils in he elementary department of the Pollock Sunday school, with Mrs. J. C. Wallis and Mrs. Backer, teachers. They have had a photo of their department pupils made and sent to the Sunday school editor at Nashville, an example that should be followed by more of our Sunday schools in Louisiana. Who will be next to let others see their good works?

* * *

Mr. W. A. Brown, superintendent of the Pollock Sunday school, reports his attendance still above the one hundred mark and collections improving, and says: "I am always on the lookout for something new to increase the interest and attendance of the school, also anything that I can suggest to the teachers." Such a superintendent does not live, sphinx-like, in the past, but in the ever-growing future.

* * *

The Sunday school at Pelican, under the superintendency of Mr. W. E. Sledge, the local T. & P. railroad agent, has an aggressive spirit and is looking to forward moves in efficiency. The superintendent is planning to hold an annual rally in October, and grade the school and install the graded literature. A teachers' meeting and a teachers' training class are also in contemplation. A home department, with Mrs. W. H. Mason, superintendent, has been organized; also a cradle roll, with Mrs. J. T. Williams, superintendent.

Two Systems of Grading.

To have a first class system of grading, is an important thing for a Sunday school, that due recognition for merited fidelity may be given both to pupils and to classes. The class grade averaging everything by the number of pupils, should be put on the board each Sunday and an honor roll of pupils for longer periods of time. A banner should be given the class each Sunday making the best record.

(1) This system is used by the Dexter Avenue School, Montgomery, Ala., W. F. Feague, superintendent:

Attendance	40
On time	10
Contribution	10
Bible in hand (I would reverse with next)	10
Lesson study	6
Daily Bible reading—2 each day	14
Church attendance—for previous Sunday	10
Total	100

The teacher is graded for attending the teachers' council, 10, instead of church attendance, as that is taken for granted.

(2) This system is used by the Crowley Sunday school, Mr. A. P. Holt, superintendent:

Attendance	10
Punctuality—decreasing to 5 at beginning of lesson study, after that 0	10
Lesson	10
Deportment	10
Missionary work done—kindness to the needy, etc	10
Church attendance	10
Contribution	10
Bible—daily reading and bringing to Sunday school	10
Home department—each pupil looking after a member	10
Singing—taking part	10
Total	100

The teacher is graded on attending the monthly teacher's council instead of deportment.

NEWS AND NOTES.

By Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick.

Anyone may consent to take a class, but it takes some one to teach a class.

* * *

The teacher-training class should magnify, dignify and vitalize the entire Bible study enterprise.

* * *

The ideal of the training class should be to show persons how to lead rather than to offer them information.

* * *

Every Bible teacher should be constantly reminded that the real result of Bible study must be accounted for in terms of life and service.

* * *

No efficiency in method or principle of teaching will suffice to cover a deficiency on the part of the leader in the knowledge of the facts of the lesson.

* * *

A teacher in the middle West spends one hour each day in Bible study, prayer and preparation for his teaching; he has actually discovered the Bible and is giving the revelation to his hungry, waiting men.

* * *

"The ability to teach the Bible involves these things upon the part of the leader: First, a clear understanding of the truth to be taught; second, the mastery of the art of expression and interpretation of that truth; Third, a knowledge of the student and his needs."

* * *

"To recognize with delight all high, generous and beautiful actions; to find a joy even in seeing the good qualities of your bitterest opponents, and to admire those qualities even in those with whom you have lost sympathy—this is the spirit which can heal the love of slander and calumny."

* * *

This text from II Timothy ii, 15, is one every teacher should memorize and repeat over and over again every time a lesson is in process of preparation: "Give diligence to present thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, handling aright the word of truth."

* * *

Service is the very finest inspiration to continued growth—service; not for pay, not for pride, not for selfish love, and personal interest, but the service of unselfish love for one's neighbor, town and generation. When we reach that height of simple Christian altruism, we can begin to see the real ideal blessedness of the Christ-life.

* * *

The consecration of a business to real, genuine, helpful service is beautifully exemplified in the genuine offer of a wagon load of beautiful roses by a nurseryman in North Mississippi. These were to be sent to the sick, and shut-ins, through the sick committee of our adult Bible class of men. They fulfilled their mission on Sunday afternoon, after the regular morning class session. For five years this busy man has scarcely missed a meeting of his class, flower in hand, and a smile on his face, and he has sent joy, sympathy, love and roses into many saddened homes.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM.

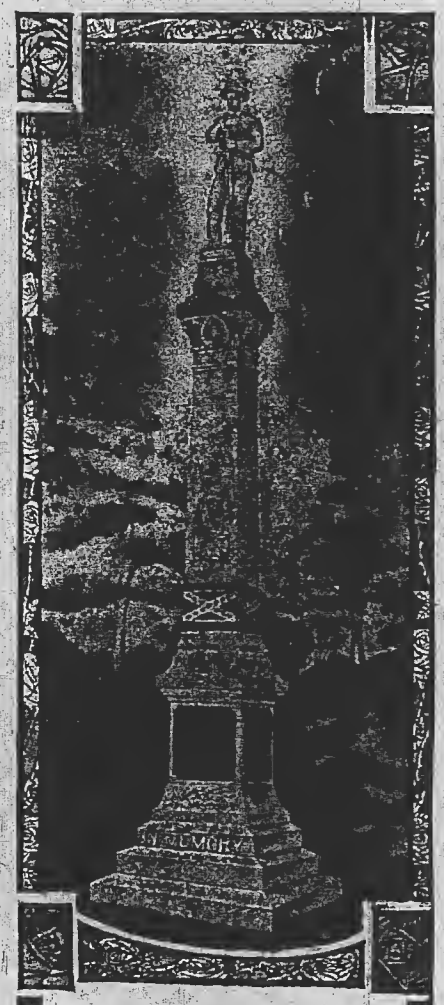
Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children, 50c.

CHRIST IN OUR LIVES.

There are to be found to-day men and women to whom Christ is as real as though they held His fleshy hand and looked into His sweet human face. They are as sure that heaven is around them as that their hearts beat within them. They know that God loves them as certainly as if He awoke them each morning with a kiss. . . Some time ago I saw a picture representing two women in great sorrow. Standing behind the chairs in which they were sitting, there appeared the figure of Christ stretching out his hand over them. They could not see Him, because their eyes were dim; but He was none the less present with them. He was near in all his effulgent brightness, with all His helpful power. At the foot of the picture this verse was written:

Unheard because our ears are dull,
Unseen because our eyes are dim,
He walks on earth—the Wonderful—
And all great deeds are done for Him.

What we need is the power to see—to see chariots and horses on the mountains; to see God all about us; to see the strong right arm of the Almighty stretched out to help us; to see that the darkest clouds and most threatening surroundings are under the all-controlling power of the everlasting Father. And seeing this, we shall have the prophet's trust that they who are with us are more than they who are against us. The prayer, then, that befits our lips day and night continually is: "Lord, we pray thee open our eyes that we may see."—Walker Jubb.



The most substantial monument, the monument that is time-resisting and beautiful beyond comparison, the monument that is a fitting tribute of love and esteem, is made of

GEORGIA MARBLE

It is far superior to granite for monumental work, exterior or interior building, its crystalline formation being so closely interlocked as to prevent absorption or decomposition. It matches up superbly, and the lettering presents a striking contrast to the background, standing out bold and legible from a distance. This makes Georgia Marble the favorite stone for public monuments. "CHEROKEE" is a beautiful silver grey, "CREOLE" a mottled black and white, "ETOWAH" an exquisite pink and "KENNESAW" almost a pure white.

Ask your dealer to show you Samples, and if he can't supply you, write us, and we will put you in touch with a nearby dealer who can.

Georgia Marble Co.
Tate, Ga.

Choice Selections

OPPORTUNITY.

There is a pretty Indian legend of a good spirit who, wishing to benefit a young princess, led her into a golden cornfield and said: "See these ears of corn, my daughter; if thou wilt pluck them diligently, they will turn to precious jewels; the richer the ear of corn, the brighter the gem. But thou mayest only once pass through this cornfield, and canst not return the same way."

The maiden gladly accepted the offer. As she went on, many ripe and full ears of corn she found in her path, but she did not pluck them, always hoping to find better ones further on. But presently the stems grew thinner, the ears poorer, with scarcely any grains of wheat on them; further on they were blighted, and she did not think them worth picking. Sorrowfully she stood at the end of the field, for she could not go back the same way, regretting the loss of the golden ears she had overlooked and lost.

To each of us are golden opportunities offered: let us redeem the time by giving our hearts to Jesus now, for we cannot return again to the days of childhood after we have once passed through the journey of life.—Apples of Gold.

FIND YOUR WORK—THEN DO IT.

Remember, my son, you have to work. Whether you handle a pick or pen, a wheelbarrow or a set of books, digging ditches or editing a paper, ringing an auction bell or writing funny things, you must work.

If you look around you, you will see the men who are most able to live the rest of their lives without work are the men who work the hardest. Don't be afraid of killing yourself with overwork. It is beyond your power to do that on the sunny side of 30. Men die sometimes, but it is because they quit work at 6 p.m. and don't get home until 2 a.m. It is the interval that kills you, my son. The work gives you an appetite for your meals; it lends solidity to your slumbers; it gives you a perfect and grateful appreciation of a holiday.

There are young men who do not work, but the world is not proud of them. It does not even know their names. It simply speaks of them as "so-and-so's boys." Nobody likes them. The great busy world does not know that they are there.

So find out what you want to be and do, and take off your coat and go it. The busier you are, the less harm you will be apt to get into, the sweeter will be your sleep, the brighter and happier your holidays, and the better satisfied will all the world be with you.—Robert J. Burdette.

STAR-GAZING.

In the Bible, the stars are mentioned in many poetic phrases. They are called "the hosts of heaven," as if they were the soldiers of the sky. We read in Job how the "morning stars sang together," a beautiful idea for the praise of God. You will also remember that Abraham was promised that his seed should be as numerous as the stars of the heavens. Other references are also made, and many writers are of opinion that several planets are mentioned in the Scriptures as well as constellations.

A belief arose (and is held in the East by some peoples to this very day), that a close connection prevailed between the position and movement of the stars and the lives of men. Men interpreted the position of the stars at the moment of the birth of a child and foretold his future from them. This is called astrology, and the first astrologers of whom we hear, were called Chadeans or Babylonians, from the country in which they lived. You will understand that this art is opposed to all the teachings of Judaism. No one can foretell the future. God alone knows what he purposes for us, and, in his great mercy, keeps the future hidden from our sight.—Jewish Chronicles.

SEVEN WAYS TO KILL A CHURCH.

1. Don't come, stay at home, or go somewhere, rather than come to church. Staying at home is not only helping to kill the church, but by degrees is killing the spiritual life of the individual.

2. If you do come, come late. The faithful few are generally on time. Getting to church on time shows an interest in the Lord's work that no one can call in question.

3. If you come, come with your mind made up to take a back seat. Act as if you were afraid of the front seats, and afraid to be seen.

4. If you come, come with your mind made up to find fault with the service, the preacher in particular. There are some that never have a good word to say about the church nor the preaching of the Word, though they go to church occasionally.

5. If you come, come determined not to give a cent to any object, not even to keep up the expenses of the church. Many say they would go to church if it was not for the taking of so many collections, and yet such people never give anything. This ought not to keep them away.

6. If you come to church, return to your home without shaking hands with your pastor or with any of the brethren or sisters. The preacher often after a hard effort to reach his people returns to his home with the blues, saying: "I wonder what was the matter with Brother Snider, Brother Snow, Brother Simmons and Brother Smith—not one of them spoke to me."

7. If you come to church, come all alone; don't bring your wife or husband, or children, or neighbors. Many people when they start to the house of the Lord slip off as if they were afraid someone would find out where they were going. "Andrew first findeth his brother Simon, and he brought him to Jesus." (John 1:47.)

The seven things mentioned above will kill any church.—C. C. Haymore, in The Biblical Recorder.

THE FATE OF THE APOSTLES.

The following brief history of the fate of the apostles may be interesting to many. It is tradition and not to be accepted as well-ascertained facts.

St. Simon Zealot was crucified in Persia.

St. Jude was shot to death with arrows.

St. James the Great was beheaded at Jerusalem.

St. Matthias was first stoned and then beheaded.

St. Paul was beheaded at Rome by the tyrant Nero.

St. Barnabas was stoned to death by Jews at Salania.

St. Luke was hanged upon an olive tree in Greece.

St. Philip was hanged up against a pillar at Hieropolis, a city of Phrygia.

St. Bartholomew was flayed alive by the command of a barbarous king.

St. Mark was dragged through the streets of Alexandria, in Egypt, till he expired.

St. Andrew was bound to a cross, whence he preached unto the people till he expired.

St. Thomas was run through the body with a lance at Caromandel, in the East Indies.

St. Matthew is supposed to have suffered martyrdom or was slain with the sword, in a city of Ethiopia.

St. James the Less was thrown from a pinnacle or wing of the temple, then beaten to death with a fuller's club.

St. John was put in a caldron of boiling oil at Rome, but escaped death. He afterwards died a natural death at Ephesus, in Asia.

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

Rev. David Carlisle Hull, M.S., President.
A high grade college, situated at the capital of the State. Location high, dry and healthful.
Entrance Requirements and Curriculum same as in other Leading Colleges and Universities North and South.
Separate Preparatory School under Private Dormitory Management.
The very finest Moral and Religious Influences. Extraordinary Advantages in LITERARY AND LAW DEPARTMENTS.
Courses Leading to A.B., B.S., A. M., M.S., and LL.B. Degrees.
TWENTIETH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 20th, 1911.
For catalog and other information address
H. Y. BURTON, Secretary, Jackson, Mississippi.

GRENADA COLLEGE

A CHRISTIAN COLLEGE FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN.
The Property of the Church—Erected and Maintained for Service.
Only One Hundred Boarders Taken. Personal Attention Given Each Student.
A FACULTY OF SPECIALISTS.
THE BEST ADVANTAGES IN MUSIC, ART, AND EXPRESSION.
Write for Catalog. REV. J. R. COUNTISS, President. Grenada, Miss.

MARTIN COLLEGE,

An Endowed School for Girls and Young Women,
PULASKI, Tenn. Established 1870. W. T. WYNN, President
Located on Main line of the L. & N. R. R., eighty miles south of Nashville, forty miles north of Decatur, in the beautiful "Blue Grass" region so famous for health and the beauty of its scenery. Cultured community. All departments. German Director of Music. Conservatory and University trained teachers. Modern buildings. Good pianos, new $1000 grand for recitals. Correspondence invited. Forty-first session begins Sept. 20, 1911. Write for catalogue. Address W. T. WYNN, Pulaski, Tennessee.

DICKSON COLLEGE, Dickson, Tenn.

T. B. LOGGINS, A.M., President.
A school for both sexes; limited numbers; strong faculty; splendid student body; healthful location in the Tennessee Highlands; Christian influences. One of the safest and most practical schools for young men and women, boys and girls. Literary, music, expression, bookkeeping and short-hand courses. 27th year under same management, begins Thursday, Aug. 31, 1911. Before making other arangements, let us send you our beautiful 40-page catalogue. Address, T. B. LOGGINS, Dickson, Tenn.

NEW ORLEANS COLLEGE OF PHARMACY.

A completely equipped college. A school of Pharmacy, conducted by Pharmacists. Complete course of lectures with laboratory instructions in Pharmacy, Chemistry, Botany, Physiology, Urinology, Materia Medica and Pharmacognosy. Increase in faculty with curriculum. Next session begins Sept. 25th. Fees, $75 per session. Write for catalogue. PHILIP ASHER, Ph.G., M.D., Dean, 1600 St. Charles Ave., New Orleans, La.

PEOPLES-TUCKER SCHOOL,
Springfield, Tenn.

Elevation 1200 feet. Superb new buildings with all modern improvements. Beautiful campus. Boys live with the teachers and are under their personal supervision at all times. On account of limited numbers, each boy receives the most careful personal attention of skilled teachers. If you want your boy well cared for physically, mentally, and morally, you will be interested in our catalogue. Send for one, and we will prove our claims. $300 covers all expenses.

Secure and Profitable

These essentials of a good investment are combined in

5% Gold Bonds

Paying Interest of 5%

Guaranteed for 10 years, payable every 6 months in coupons attached, which can be collected through your local bank, convertible into cash before that time if you wish. Issued in denominations of $100.00 and $1,000.00 and fully protected by the entire resources of the bank.

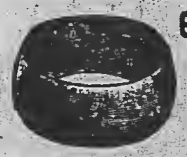
Write for full details and booklet.

GUARANTEE TRUST & BANKING CO.

Capital Stock $500,000.00. Atlanta, Ga.

GALL STONES or any LIVER or Stomach Ailment Cured. AVOID AN OPERATION

Have you Pain or Distress in Pit of Stomach, Pains 2 hours after meals, Right-side pains or Backache? Spells of Indigestion, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Colic, Jaundice, Blues, Constipation, Piles, Soreness, Fullness or Oppression over Liver or Stomach? If you have any of these symptoms you need the "SECRO-SOLVO-TONE" Treatment. Write for FREE Booklet. GALLSTONE REMEDY CO., Sole U. S. Agts, Dept. 19, 225 Dearborn Street, CHICAGO, ILL.



GOLD WEDDING RING FREE

Send for 10 packages of our beautiful silk and gold embossed post cards to distribute at 10c pkg. Return us the $1 when collected and we will send you by return mail this very fine 14K gold filled heavy band ring, not the cheap kind. Address R. F. HOSER, 311 Household Bldg., Topeka, Kas.

"CARBOLITE" CALCIUM-CARBIDE

Highest Quality, Lowest Price, carried in stock by

A. T. THOMPSON & Co., New Orleans, La

——We also sell——

DYNAMITE AND BLASTING SUPPLIES.

——Postoffice Box 748.——

RUBBER STAMPS

We make rubber stamps and accessories of every description, autograph stamps, seals, stamp pads and stamp pad inks. New equipment, expert labor and prompt service—satisfaction guaranteed. Orders shipped same day received.

Write for free illustrated stamp Catalog!

SOUTHERN ADVERTISING CO., Inc.

JACKSON, MISS.

ESTEY CHURCH ORGANS.

The ESTEY is the world's best Organ. The KOHLER & CAMPBELL PIANO is in every particular first class; satisfaction guaranteed in every case; freight paid; low cash price on easy payments without interest. Write for Catalogues.

J. H. BASS, Pastor Meth't Ch'ch.

Brookville, Miss.

VISIT

MINERAL WELLS

——FOR——

HEALTH AND PLEASURE

AND

WEST TEXAS

——For——

FINE AGRICULTURAL LANDS REACHED VIA

THE TEXAS T&P PACIFIC RAILWAY

EXCURSION TICKETS ON SALE DAILY.

Free Booklet.

E. P. TURNER,

General Passenger Agent.

DALLAS - - - - - TEXAS

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Monroe Dist.—Third Round.

Floyd	Aug. 26, 27
Downsville	Aug. 29, 30
Mangham, at Boueff River	Sept. 2, 3
Eros, at Indian Village	Sept. 6
Winnsboro, at Boueff Prairie	Sept. 9, 10
Rayville	Sept. 13
Florence	Sept. 17, 18
Merrouge	Sept. 20

District Conference will meet in Rayville, July 26, 10 a. m.

S. S. KEENER, P.E.

Baton Rouge Dist.—Third Round.

Wilson, at Manassas	Aug. 26, 27
St. Helena, at Pine R	Sept. 2, 3
Kentwood	Sept. 3, 4
P. Grove, at Pipkin's	Sept. 6
Port Vincent, at Mauripas	Sept. 9, 10
St. Francisville, at Tunica	Sept. 16, 17
N. Roads, at Morganza	Sept. 23, 24

C. C. MILLER, P. E.

Ruston District—Third Round.

Arcadia	Aug. 26, 27
Ruston	Aug. 27, 28
Lanesville, at Brushwood	Sept. 2, 3
Lisbon, at New Hope	Sept. 9, 10
Houghton, at Doiline	Sept. 16, 17
Cotton Valley, Pleas. Val.	Sept. 23, 24
Minden	Sept. 24, 25

R. W. TUCKER, P. E.

Alexandria District—Third Round.

Tioga, at Liberty Chapel	Aug. 27, 28
Alexandria	Sept. 1
Selma	Sept. 3, 4
Opelousas	Sept. 10, 11
Glenmora	Sept. 13
Colfax, at Atlanta	Sept. 17, 18
Melville, at Simmesport	Sept. 24, 25
Bunkie, at Cheneyville	Sept. 26

Special attention will be given to questions 18, 21, and 23.

PAUL M. BROWN, P. E.

NORTH MISS. CONFERENCE.

Winona Dist.—Third Round.

Eupora, at Eupora	Aug. 24
Bellefontaine, at Walthall	Aug. 24
Kilmichael, at Lodi	Aug. 26, 27
Tutwiler, at Marks	Sept. 2, 3
Slate Springs, at Bethlehem	Sept. 9, 10

E. S. LEWIS, P. E.

Corinth Dist.—Third Round.

Sherman Ct., ———	Aug. 25
Myrtle Ct., at Ebenezer	Aug. 26, 27
Kossuth Circuit, at Pleasant Hill	Sept. 2
Guntown and B., at Baldwyn	Sept. 3, 4
Baldwyn Mission, at Palestine	Sept. 9, 10

BEN P. JACO, P. E.

Aberdeen Dist.—Fourth Round.

Okolona	Aug. 27
Nettleton Ct., at Shiloh	Sept. 9, 10
Montpelier, at Foster's Chapel	Sept. 16, 17
Smithville	Sept. 23, 24
Amory and Nettleton	Sept. 24, 25
Palestine	Sept. 28, 30
Pontotoc	Oct. 1, 2
Beuna Vista, at Ebenezer	Oct. 7, 8
Prairie, at Prairie	Oct. 8, 9
Verona, at Verona	Oct. 14, 15
Shannon, at S	Oct. 15, 16
Houlka, at Concord	Oct. 21, 22
Houston	Oct. 22, 23
Pittsboro, at Pine R	Oct. 28, 29
V. and C. City, at C. City	Oct. 29, 30
Derma, at Rhodes Chp	Nov. 4, 5
Wren, at Tranquil	Nov. 8
Aberdeen	Nov. 8
Greenwood Springs	Nov. 11, 12
Okolona Circuit	Nov. 12, 13
Tremont, at Asbury	Nov. 18, 19
Fulton, at Vanburen	Nov. 19, 20

No business session of the conference will be held until Sept. 23. Tupelo, Okolona, Amory and Nettleton, Nettleton Circuit, and Montpelier will have their conferences at pleasure.

I will preach on the Wren Circuit, Sunday, Sept. 3, holding their business session as indicated. We are to send to conference the best report in the history of the Aberdeen District. Take due notice, brethren, and govern yourselves accordingly.

JAMES H. FELTS, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Meridian Dist.—Third Round.

Porterville, at Porterville	Aug. 26, 27
Daleville, at Andrew's Chp	Aug. 30
Waynesboro Circuit, at Fedora	Sept. 2, 3
DeSoto, at Hopewell	Sept. 9, 10
Meridian, 7th Ave	Sept. 13
Meridian, Poplar Spgs	Sept. 14
Waynesboro	Sept. 17, 18
Bucatunna, at ———	Sept. 19
Meridian, South Side	Sept. 20

W. H. LEWIS, P. E.

Seashore Dist.—Third Round.

Wolf River Mission, at Durham's Chapel	Aug. 26, 27
Long Beach	Aug. 30
Biloxi	Sept. 2, 3
Bay St. Louis	Sept. 6
Logtown	Sept. 7
Coalville, at Poplar Head	Sept. 9, 10
McHenry and Wiggins, at McHenry	Sept. 13

W. B. JONES, P. E.

Newton Dist.—Third Round.

Morton, at Zion Grove, Friday	Aug. 25
Hickory, at Garlandville	Aug. 26, 27
Philadelphia	Fri. Sept. 1
Neshoba, at Sand Town	Sept. 2, 3
Hillsboro, at Prairie Hill, Friday	Sept. 8,
Forest, at Lena	Sept. 9, 10
Indian Mission, at Neshoba	Sept. 16
Stallo, at Neshoba	Sept. 16, 17
Newton Wed	Sept. 20

T. J. O'NEIL, P. E.

Port Gibson Dist.—Third Round.

Harriston, at Martin	Aug. 25
Washington, at Pine G.	Aug. 26
Natchez, Jefferson St.	Aug. 27, 28
Nebo, at Oak Grove	Sept. 2, 3
Wilkinson, at Mars Hill	Sept. 9
Woodville	Sept. 10
Hermanville, at Sarepta	Sept. 16
Natchez, Pearl St.	Sept. 17
Rocky Springs, at Willows	Sept. 23, 24
Oak Ridge, at Bovina	Sept. 30
Vicksburg, South Washington Street	Oct. 1
Centreville	Oct. 4
Homochitto, at Mt. Vernon	Oct. 6

H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN, P. E.

Brookhaven District—Third Round.

Magnolia	Aug. 26, 27
McComb and Fernwood, at South McComb	Aug. 27,
Wesson	Aug. 30,
Adams, at Ebenezer	Sept. 1,
Meadville, at Ediceton	Sept. 2,
Pearlhaven, at Bethel	Sept. 3,
Brookhaven	Sept. 3, 4
Summit, at East McComb	Sept. 10,
McComb, Centenary	Sept. 10, 11
Monticello, at Georgetown	Sept. 16, 17
Scotland at Bethesda	Sept. 23, 24

J. T. LEGGETT, P. E.

Hattiesburg Dist.—Third Round.

Lucedale, at Shipman	Aug. 27, 28
McLain, at Cross Roads	Sept. 2, 3
Eastabuchie, at McLaurin	Sept. 7
Eucutta, at Broyls	Sept. 9, 10
Sanford, at Sanford	Sept. 16, 17
Seminary, at Bethel	Sept. 20

District Conference at Richton, July 11-14. The conference will organize on the 11th at 8:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present at the organization.

M. B. SHARBROUGH, P. E.

Jackson Dist.—Third Round.

Yazoo City	Aug. 27
Benton, at Tranquill	Aug. 28
Deasonville, at Fletcher	Aug. 29
Flora, at Livingston	Aug. 30
Fannin, at Holly Bush	Sept. 6
Jackson, Galloway Chp	Sept. 10
Yazoo City 7:30 p. m.	Sept. 13
Bolton, at Brownsville	Sept. 16, 17
Satartia	Sept. 23, 24

J. R. JONES, P. E.

ICE CREAM

9 Cents a Quart

A quart of Milk (8 cts.) and a package of

JELL-O ICE CREAM Powder

(which costs 10 cts.) makes 2 quarts of the best ice cream.

There is absolutely nothing else to be added, for everything is in the powder. Dissolve the powder in the milk and freeze it. That is all there is to do.

Think of ice cream at 9 cents a quart!

Flavors: Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon, Chocolate, and Unflavored.

At Grocers', 10 cents a package.

Beautiful Recipe Book Free. Address,

The Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

ESTABLISHED 1858

CHURCH AND SCHOOL BELLS

Write for SPECIAL DONATION PLAN Cat. No. 57

THE C. S. BELL COMPANY, HILLSBORO, O.

BEST THING MADE

April 28, 1910, Dothan, Ala.

I began handling Johnston's Tonic in Blakely, Ga., in 1884. In 1892, moved to Dothan, Ala. Have sold more than 1000 bottles. Use it in my family for Colds, Fever and La Grippe. In all the years I have been selling it, never had but 2 complaints. Both parties admitted afterwards they had not used it right.

H. Q. FRAZIER.

April 13, 1910, Greenwood, S. C.

I have used Johnson's Tonic in my family for 9 years. It is all you claim for it and more too. It cured me of Typhus Hemorrhagic Fever. I would have been under the sod 9 years ago but for JOHNSON'S. Tell this to the world. It may save some man's life.

A. P. ALDRICH.

Drives every trace and taint of Malarial Poison from the Blood.

QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Best & Quickest Service

TO ALL

IMPORTANT DESTINATIONS

In the North & East

Summer Tourist Tickets now on Sale to all Mountain, Lake and Seaside Resorts.

——Ticket Office——

211 ST. CHARLES STREET

Phone Main 4482

Terminal Station---Canal Street

Your Summer Trip,

Whether to the North, East or West, should be made via the

Illinois Central

Low Summer Tourist Fares now in Effect.

Let us assist in planning your trip.

Write or call at

ILLINOIS CENTRAL OFFICE

141 St. Charles St.

W. H. BRILL, Ass't Gen. Pass. Agt.

ED RODDY, City Pass. Agt.

IMPORTANT NOTICE.

To Whom It May Concern:

We, the undersigned members of the Board of Directors of the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage, to-day in session at the Orphanage, take pleasure in making the following statement for the public:

By the invitation of the Superintendent, Rev. R. W. Vaughan, we have made a thorough inspection of the buildings and grounds and investigation of the affairs of the institution.

We find the forty acres of Orphanage land in a very fine state of cultivation and being made to produce a great variety and large quantity of vegetables and food stuff, which the Superintendent is using to supply the Orphanage table with plenty of fresh vegetables in season and canned vegetables and fruits during the winter.

The Orphanage dairy furnishes plenty of milk and a nice lot of hogs are being raised for pork.

The buildings are in an excellent state of preservation and sanitation.

Several of the children of different ages, both boys and girls, were called and questioned as to their treatment, and they all stated that they are being well treated and are happy and contented.

The children—fifty-four in number—look cheerful and show that they are well fed and cared for.

Their training is being well looked after, and is being given in the Home, in the city public schools, and in church and Sunday school. When they attend these latter institutions they are always neatly dressed and well behaved.

Brother and Sister Vaughan are both giving their personal attention to this great work, in which they are proving themselves to be skilled workers.

We appeal to all who may be interested in this benign work to contribute liberally of the means with which God has blessed them, that the unpaid balance on the buildings may be paid this year and that the Superintendent may be left unhandicapped and unembarrassed, to devote his entire time to local work of the institution.

We desire to especially commend to your confidence and support our faithful and capable Superintendent and Manager, Rev. R. W. Vaughan.

Signed: S. D. Pearce, Chairman; Wm. H. Coleman, Secretary; Jas. H. Mays, O. E. Hodge, R. H. Wynn.

MRS. A. E. COLLIER.

Mrs. A. E. Collier, widow of Col. M. T. Collier, was born Oct. 30, 1831, in Culloden, Ga. Her mother was Mrs. Emily Reynolds. Her father was Rev. Charles Hard, who died in Tuscaloosa, Ala., while presiding elder of Tuscaloosa District. He gave liberally to churches and schools—in fact, gave largely to buy the land on which Emory College, at Oxford, Ga., is located.

Mrs. Collier always said she was proud that her parents were Christians and that her father was a Methodist minister. Her uncles, Capt. Tom and Willie Stanford, took an especial interest in her and gave her as good an education as women in that day had. She often spoke of Prof. Darby, of prophylactic fame, as one of her teachers.

She was a Methodist and Christian, and after her marriage her home was ever open to the ministers. Many a young man has had his whole life changed for the better by her teaching and prayers. She was a regular attendent at church and Sunday school and all charitable gatherings till her health was impaired by lateral curvature of the spine.

She had 8 children, all of whom preceded her to the grave, so that in her old age she was left childless.

She spent the last years of her life with her son-in-law in Birmingham, her sister in Bissemer, her son-in-law, the late Rev. Q. A. Oats, and her granddaughter, Mrs. Rowena Thayer House, all of whom loved and cared for her tenderly. She died at the home of her grandson, Morton Thayer, in Vicksburg, Miss.

Thus ended a beautful and well-spent life, the memory of which lingers with those who knew and loved her as a priceless inheritance. No purer saint ever lived. Though her cares and sorrows were heavy, this writer has heard her say over and over, "Though he slay me, yet will I trust him."

She is the child of a King and now dwells in the palace overe there, where there is room and peace and plenty and comfort and happy communion with those "gone before."

Earth is poorer, and we, who are left to mourn, feel the need of the sustaining grace of her prayers, for we know she had power with God in prayer. What a meeting in heaven!

MRS. Q. A. OATS.

Georgia papers and Alabama Advocate, please copy.

"RELIGIOUS FREEDOM" IN JAPAN.

From Adachi Kinnosuke's "Christian Mission in Japan" in the September Century.

Fifty years ago there was no such expression as "religious freedom" in the entire range of Nippon literature. To-day the phrase has been written into the constitution of the land. Less than fifty years ago, if you wished to have a free fight on the spot, without loss of time, all that you had to do was to call a gentleman a "Yaso"—that is to say, "Jesus." And to-day? Admiral Uriu, who battered the fine Russian cruiser Variag in the harbor of Chemulpo, is a Christian; and many other officers of the navy and army of Japan of to-day are proud to be called Yaso. The editors of some of the leading metropolitan dailies are Christians. In 1890, when the Imperial Diet was convened for the first time in the history of Japan, the House of Representatives had a Christian for its president. His Majesty the Emperor of Japan contributes regularly to the funds of the Y. M. C. A. To-day no one can irritate a Japanese by calling him Yaso. These are some of the fruits of the missionary work in Japan. Not the fruits, however.

Strong Eyes.

Made from weak and inflamed ones by Leonardi's Golden Eye Lotion: cures sore eyes without pain in one day. Absolutely harmless. Soothing, cooling, healing, stimulating. It makes strong eyes.

Guaranteed or money refunded. Druggists sell it at 25 cts. or forwarded prepaid on receipt of price by S. B. Leonardi & Co., Tampa, Fla.

EDUCATIONAL

The Mississippi Conference Training School,
MONTROSE, MISS.

A unique Preparatory school for boys and girls with wholesome moral surroundings and positive Christian influence.

Our regular literary course is practical, and prepares for taking the A. B. degree in the best colleges. The Bible is included in our daily recitations.

Our extras are: Music, Expression, and a normal course preparing teachers to teach in the public schools.

Special features are: A Mission Study Class, and a course preparing teachers to teach in the Sunday school. We also have a farm in connection with the school, and boys of moderate means may have the free use of the land and thereby pay expenses.

Write for catalogue.

(Rev.) WALDO W. MOORE, A. M., President.

JEFFERSON MILITARY ACADEMY,
Washington, Miss.

Prepares for Colleges, Universities, Scientific Schools and business. Located in the Hills, six miles east of Natchez, a place noted for its healthfulness, fine climate and historic surroundings. Away from the detractions and temptations of City life, but with all modern convenience. Fine spring water. Personal attention; one teacher for every twelve boys. Eighty (80) acre campus. Large gymnasium. Endorsed and recommended by the presidents of Colleges and Universities. 110th Session begins Sept. 14, 1911. For full particulars apply to
MAJ. R. V. ANDERSON, Supt.

CHAMBERLAIN-HUNT ACADEMY, Port Gibson, Mississippi.
A High Grade Training School for Boys and Young Men.

First class boys wanted. Industrial and Practical in aim Courses on Agriculture and Manual Training just added. Buildings modern, steam heat, electric lights, etc. In old historic section near Vicksburg. No malaria. Among Hills. Four Optional Courses. Instructors all College Graduates. No Hazing; Military abolished. Some boys reduce expenses by work. Non-sectarian, but Christian. Bible a Text Book. Last session crowded. Cheapest school of its kind in the South.

$180 Pays all Expenses. Kind of School South Needs.
Mention the Advocate. For Catalog address M. R. MELVIN, A. M., Pres

High Grade Medical Teaching

Memphis Hospital Medical College
FOUNDED 1878 2760 GRADUATES.
Modern College Building. Modernly Equipped throughout.
ATTENDANCE SESSION 1910-'11. 386 STUDENTS.
Excellent Hospital and Laboratory Facilities
Thorough and Comprehensive Four Year Graded Course
For Announcement and Catalogue, address
W. B. ROGERS, M.D., Dean. MEMPHIS, TENN.

Silliman College for Girls
Clinton, La.

An endowed institution of high standard, located in a beautiful hill country. Three handsome Buildings and large, well shaded Campus. Electric lights, steam heat, splendid water supply and sanitary bath rooms.

It offers full classical, scientific and literary courses, with special advantages in music, art, expression and stenography. A diploma entitles holder to first grade teacher's certificate in the public schools of Louisiana.

We emphasize noble and refined Christian womanhood. Individual attention is given to each student's needs by thorough teachers, and we maintain a strict standard of requirements.

Free scholarships are granted a limited number who need financial assistance. Some students pay half expenses by taking duties.

Silliman College is positively unexcelled in its careful and painstaking administration.

Sixtieth year begins Sept. 13th, 1911. Write at once for beautifully illustrated catalogue.

H. H. Brownlee, President, Clinton, La.

Wesleyan College
Macon, Georgia

One of the few real colleges for women in the South. Plant worth a half million, with all modern facilities. Faculty of forty. Nearly 3,000 alumnae throughout the nation.

Schools of Literature, Languages, Science, Arts and Music.

A safe institution for young ladies. Non-sectarian, but Christian to the core. Health record without a parallel—not a death for many years. Not conducted for profit, but to bless the world. Rates reasonable. No traveling agents.

For detailed information, address
W. N. AINSWORTH, D. D., President
C. R. JENKINS, Vice President

Epworth League Department.

(Edited by Rev. H. B. Watkins, Magnolia, Miss., to whom all communications intended for this Department should be addressed.)

THE DEVOTIONAL SERVICE.

August 27.—"The Debt of the Strong" Rom. 15:1; I Cor. 8:13; 10:31-33

By Daniel Westfall, D.D.

The imparting of power to an individual is a commission to service. Never before has the strong been under such tribute as to-day. The strength of the intellectual giant is challenged by an army of problems seeking solution and by the untutored seeking guidance to the light. The wreck of moral life seeks our strong reformers asking for help, and the awakening world is asking for such spiritual help as their cases demand for salvation from their sins. A great multitude in our churches—some just saved, and others protracted weaklings—look to the strong for training and stimulus. The world was never so small or opportunity so large as now. There is no longer a foreign land. This world-community is calling to the strength of the Epworth League as no other age has called. Secure strength, and administer it.

SOURCE OF STRENGTH

Sin is weakness. Divorce from God is self-defeat. There is no new or novel route to the goal of strength. There is no merely ethical ascent to its heights, neither is there an educational promotion to it. All ethics and school life multiplies and enhances ability without necessarily imparting true strength. In the remaking by justification and regeneration alone are we enrolled in the school of power. Only because we abide in Christ have we any claim to strength reaching to God and man. Divinity is our supply when we have done our best, and the way given to Nicodemus is the only route. Epworthians, we want to rely on the true source of power, and less on clippings and recitations which serve to decorate a devotional service without securing or imparting strength.

Knowledge, strength, culture or art possessed simply as an adornment is an abomination. God gave Moses strength, but charged him with the deliverance of Israel. Jasbua, Gideon, Elijah and the forerunners of Christ were endowed with large measures of power, but the debt to be paid by each was commensurate with their strength and opportunity. To those who have preceded us, building better than they knew, to those who toil with us, and to those who shall follow us, our debt is almost immeasureable. Never was it so sublime to live as now.

CHARITY TOWARDS THE WEAK.

As in the days of Paul, there are many of the flock who need charity and kindliest forbearance. The young disciple needs indoctrinating; the wavering must be led to Pentecost before the "seed" becomes "rock"; doubters must be shown Christ in us before they get the martyr spirit. There's an Epworthian who stumbles over the prohibition of popular amusements; another who can not lead a public service; another who has come out of environments not conducive to Christian character and work. Strong heart, you must be all things to all such, that you may save them to the chapter and the kingdom. Do not quench the "smoking flax," nor break the "bruised reed!"

The strong are to abstain from indulgences for the sake of the weak. Strong Paul was to "eat no more meat," that his weak brother might be saved from offense. This is charity, and charity is greater than knowledge. Lecky, the English writer, said: "Christianity for the first time made charity a rudimentary virtue." Self denial is a true test of character. If drinking wine, playing at cards, attending theatres, dancing, and Sunday excursions "make my brother to offend," or stumble, I will do these no more.

A TRUE TEST

Is it to the glory of God? "Do all to the glory of God." Here are the scales in which we may weigh our motives and conduct. Do you know of any one who does things for his own pleasure or happiness? Have you heard of those whose greatest glory was in their country, or position, or politics, or church denomination?

All legitimate service should be worship before the true God. Eating, drinking, sowing, reaping; at the teacher's, lawyer's or doctor's desk; in the shop or factory, in the store or home, in recreation or in the furnace of temptation, serve to the glory of God. Epworthian, can you command the heights of faith in Romans, fourth chapter, and then by works make God to be glorified in all things? Blessed is such a one!

STRENGTH RETAINED.

Activity is essential to self-preservation. There is a debt which every one owes to himself. "To thine own self be true." With this there is another truth. God has so interlaced our welfare with that of our fellow men that we must save them in order to save ourselves. Seek out what you can do for your chapter, your church, your home, your city, your weakest comrade in life's struggle, and be about it. Pray for a clear vision of your obligation, and then do not be disobedient thereunto. You are still your brother's keeper.

"How many lifted hands still plead
Along life's way!
The old sad story of human need
Reads on for aye.
But let us follow the Savior's plan—
Love unstinted to every man—
Content if at most the world should say;
'He helped his brother along the way.'"

—Pittsburg Advocate.

WHAT CHRIST WANTS.

Is there nothing that Christ, as your friend, your Lord, your Savior, wants you to do that you are leaving undone to-day? Do you doubt one instant that it is his will that you should honor and help and bless all the men about you who are his brethren? And are you doing anything like that? Do you doubt an instant that his will is that you should make life serious and lofty? Do you doubt one instant that he wants you to be pure in deed and word and thought? And are you pure? Do you doubt one instant that his command is for you openly to own him, and declare that you are his servant before all the world? And have you done it? These are questions which make the whole matter clear. No, not in quiet lanes nor in bright temple courts, as once he spake, and not from blazing heavens, as men sometimes seem to expect—not so does Christ speak to us. And yet he speaks. I know what he—there in all his glory, be here in my heart—wants me to do to-day, and I know that I am not mistaken in my knowledge. It is no guess of mine; it is his voice that tells me.—Phillips Brooks.

A Frequent Occurrence.

Doctor Arrives Too Late. Boy Sticks Rusty Nail In Foot. Dies From Blood Poison. And another young life is gone because the mother failed to have on hand some reliable antiseptic. Gray's Ointment is a "friend in need" in thousands of homes. The best preventive of Blood Poison, and relief for Poisonous Bites, Carbuncles, Old Sores, Boils, etc.

Sold by most druggists for 25c a box, or a free sample can be had by writing Dr. W. F. Gray & Company, 804 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Mr. W. R. Crise, Detroit, Mich., writes: "It is without doubt the best ointment for healing wounds I ever saw.'

GENERAL BOOTH AND HIS ARMY.

General William Booth, founder of the Salvation Army and now in his eighty-second year, sends word from London that he will come to America this fall. He writes that he is intensely interested in and busily laboring for London social conditions, especially among the extreme poor, but that he must, once more, inspect his Army in America. Less has been heard of the Army than in former years, but late reports indicate that both its work and its income are larger now than ever before. While neglecting no part of its relief work, the Salvation Army in the United States has developed a remarkable trading business, keeping at the present time thirty men on the road selling goods. These men do not enter regular commercial lines, but trade with Army people. These people are not merely the officers in charge of posts in various cities, but the volunteers who work in the daytime and appear in uniform in street meetings at night, in support of trained officers. Such run into the hundreds of thousands, and it is among them that the trade has been developed. Profits from the trade go, of course, to the Army and its work. Sales last year amounted to $324,000. Army officers on this side fear General Booth will not be able, at his age, and nearly blind as he is, to get here as he plans.—Zion's Herald.

"It is a great thing to see God in the manna; it is greater to see him in the fields. It is a great thing to see God in the miracle; it is greater to see him in the usual. To waken in the dull morning and feel that God is there! to go to our drudgery and have his presence; to live in the faith that the hairs of our head are numbered, and that not one sparrow can fall without our Father, that is the mark of growing trust in God."—Congregationalist.

VANDERBILT University
1,000 Students 100 Teachers
Campus of 80 Acres
also
New Campus for Departments of Medicine and Dentistry
Expenses low. Literary course for graduates and undergraduates. Professional courses in Engineering, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Theology. Send for catalog, naming department. (1)
J. E. HART, Secretary, Nashville, Tenn.

ROANOKE COLLEGE
SALEM, VA.
For Men. 59th year begins Sept. 13th. Courses for Degrees, with Electives; high standard. Also Commercial and Preparatory Courses. Library, 24,000 volumes; working laboratories; good morals and discipline; six Churches; no bar-rooms. Healthful mountain location. Very moderate expenses. Loan Fund. Catalogue Free. Address,
J. A. MOREHEAD, President.

SCIENCE HILL SCHOOL
SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY.
An English and Classical School for Girls. College Preparatory course with certificate privileges at Wellesley, Vassar, Smith, Leland Stanford, Randolph-Macon and other colleges. 86 years of successful work. College trained teachers. Superior advantages in music. MRS. W. T. POINTER, Principal.

RANDOLPH-MACON ACADEMY For Boys and Young Men
Fits for college, scientific schools or business. Work endorsed by over 30 colleges and universities. Beautiful and healthful location. Athletic grounds; gymnasium. Terms, $250. No extras. For catalogue, address
E. SUMTER SMITH, Principal,
Bedford City, Va.

BEETHOVEN
CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC,
St. Louis, Missouri.
The oldest, largest and best music school in the State. All branches of music taught. Send for handsomely illustrated catalogue to the
BROTHERS EPSTEIN,
4503 Olive, Directors.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

New Orleans District, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., presiding elder; residence, 236 Olivier Street; phone, Algiers 76.

First Methodist Church, St. Charles Ave., near Calliope St.; Dr. S. H. Werlein, pastor; residence, 5830 Prytania St.; phone, Uptown 329.

Rayne Memorial Church, St. Charles Ave. and General Taylor St.; Rev. A. G. Shankle, pastor; residence, 1421 Constantinople St.; phone, Uptown 945.

Second Methodist Church, 2531 Burgundy, near Lafayette Ave.; Rev. A. F. Vaughan, pastor; residence, 815 Louisa st. Phone Hemlock 1376.

Parker Memorial Church, corner Nashville Ave. and Perrier St.; Rev. C. D. Atkinson, pastor; residence, 734 Nashville Ave.; phone, Uptown 671.

Louisiana Avenue Church, corner Louisiana Ave. and Magazine St.; Rev. H. T. Carley, pastor; residence, 920 Aline St.; phone, Uptown 756.

Felicity Street Church, cor. Felicity and Chestnut Sts.; Rev. W. W. Holmes, pastor; residence, 1515 Prytania St.; phone, Jackson 1753.

Carrollton Avenue Church, cor. Carrollton Ave. and Elm St.; Rev. J. G. Sneiling, pastor; residence, 1125 Fern St.; phone, Walnut 1238.

Algiers, Lavergne Street, cor. Delaronde; Rev. J. W. Booth, pastor; residence, 119 Vallette, St.

Epworth Church, cor. Banks and Scott Sts.; Rev. L. A. Sims, pastor; residence, 3602 Canal St.

Mary Werlein and McDonoghville; Rev. W. B. Perritt, pastor; residence, No. 1026 Tchoupitoulas St.; phone, Main 412.

Rev. John L. Sutton, Superintendent Orphan Boys' Asylum; residence, 5220 St. Charles Ave.; phone, Uptown 128.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, Superintendent St. Mark's Hall, 619-21 Esplanade. Residence, 1634 Sixth Street; phones: Residence, Uptown 954; St. Mark's Hall, Hemlock 1458.

Rev. R. A. Meek, Editor New Orleans Christian Advocate; residence, 724 Nashville Ave.; phone, Uptown 679.

Rev. John T. Sawyer, D.D., residence, 4420 Howard St.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

VOL. 58—No. 35. "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which is Good." WHOLE No. 2898.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, AUGUST 31, 1911. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

THE SPIRITUAL SIDE OF THINGS.

By Rev. J. H. Jowett, M.A., D.D.

"Who is my mother . . .? For whosoever shall do the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister, and mother."—Mark iii. 33, 35.

This is one saying of our Lord's which sometimes strikes the reader with a certain suggestion of harshness and disrespect. There is an apparent want of tenderness in the words, as though the speaker were half impatient in his speech. But we may always assume that the apparent harshness of the Master is due to the dull appreciation of his readers.

In the first place everybody knows how the meaning of a word can be changed by altering the tone in which it is spoken. By changing the tone we can turn a reproof into an appeal, an imperative into a tender exhortation. A gesture can add the richest suggestion to a speech. Looks and smiles have a language of their own which mingles with the speaker's words. And so it is possible to misquote a man, even when we quote him correctly. The saying may be verbally accurate and yet it may convey an impression the very opposite to that intended by the speaker himself. And so it is with the words I have just quoted and which have frequently stirred people into painful wonder. We must imagine the look of the Master as he turned his eyes toward his mother. We must imagine his tones, and we must try to realize the diffused and sunny sympathy with which he embraced both the members of his family and those of the disciple band.

But what can have been his purpose in speaking these words? It is needful that we should realize the conditions of the people among whom our Master lived. They were becoming, or had become, the victims of a very perilous habit. Their life was running to the outside of things. Their proneness to give exclusive attention to the "outside of the cup" was symbolic of a general tendency in their life. They were becoming more and more superficial and were living on the mere surface of things; they were in danger of taking a shallow view of everything. Their ideal of purity was limited by the conception of "washed hands." Their ideal of a holy Sabbath found expressions in petty restrictions and in inhuman abstentions from service. And so the envelope was becoming more than the message it contained. The letter of the evangelist was treasured more than the spirit. This was true of even the disciples themselves. When our Master spoke to them, they instinctively leaped to some outside interpretation of the words. If he spoke of "bread" they thought of "loaves and fishes." They did not readily respond to the spiritual significance of the Master's words and works.

Now, our Lord had to meet this tendency on every side, and he sought to break the habit and to lead the thoughts of his hearers to the inside of things, to the secret place of the eternal. He was constantly endeavoring to deepen the shallow lives of his hearers. And this is the key to a multitude of things he said and did. If we remember that his purpose was to get away from the husk to the kernel of life, and to get people to live on the inside of things, we shall understand many sayings that are now obscure. And so it is with the saying to which I want to lead our present meditation. Those who were standing about him had just used the words "mother" and "brother" and "sister," and the Master at once apprehended the shallow significance which they attached to the words. So here again he carried out his deepening ministry and led them into more profound relations. He would lead them from the conception of fleshly fellowships to spiritual relations. He would show them that there were deeper kinships than the honored kinships of flesh and blood. Not that he slighted these, or in any way disparaged them, for he always held them in tender and chivalrous regard, but he put them in their right place and gave pre-eminence to communion of spirits, and to family likeness in the realm of the soul. So that what we get out of this habit of Jesus is just this, his purpose to lead us to the spiritual side of things. He wants us so to cultivate the spiritual inwardness of all things that the spiritual side shall at length become magnetic and immediately arrest the interest of mind and soul. Let us consider how the principle will act in the actual fields of life.

There is the spiritual side of "life" itself. The current usage of the great word is frequently thin and superficial. Man speaks of "enjoying a bit of life," or he boasts of having seen "a good bit of life," or when his days have been packed with work or crowded with pleasures, he sums them up and claims to have had "a very full life." And all these phrases are significant of the outside of things and keep us in the circumference of circumstances, and do not take us to the heart and center of the holy thing. Now, if we had been speaking with the Master and had used the word in this way, I think he would have immediately caught our conversation and turned us away to the depths. If we had been speaking about Dives and had hinted that he had enjoyed a "full life," the Master might have answered, "And what is life?" "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth." Real life is not found in things but in relations, and that, not in carnal relations, but in communion with God. And he would tell us that, no matter how vast were our accumulations of earthly treasure, nor how many carnal fellowships we enjoyed, we were dead. "This is life," to "know thee." We are to cultivate the spiritual aspects of common life.

Then consider the matter of worship. All my readers are familiar with the common tendency to dwell on the outside of things when we presume to worship the eternal God. If we could listen to the members of a congregation as they retire from the sanctuary after a Sunday service, we should find that a large proportion of them were concerning themselves with the letter to the ignoring of the spirit. Some would speak of the rendering of the anthem, and never mention the message of God. Others would speak about the oratory of the sermon and never hint at the sacred message from the eternal Father. Others might criticise the grammar and be heedless of "the wind" that "bloweth where it listeth." We so frequently regard our worship as a matter of words, of attitudes and forms. Now the Lord would fasten our eyes on the spiritual aspects of worship. It is not that he despises the ministry of forms, or that he wishes us to confine the form to something unfinished and ugly. He desires "strength and beauty * * * in his sanctuary." But he teaches that a beautiful form may be a minister of death unless it is possessed by the vitalizing spirit of life. And so he would lead us to dwell on the upper side of worship—the spiritual side, the higher sphere, where the soul holds communion with the Eternal. He would have us listen to the anthem from the inside, catching a finer music than ever falls from human lips. He would have us listen to the sermon from the inside and catch the voice whose good news can never be enshrined in human speech. He would have us pray from the inside, spirit with Spirit, not embarrassed by the form, not allowing ourselves to be hindered by any posture, but seeking the secret place where we meet him face to face. And so we are to emphasize, not the beauty of music, but the beauty of holiness; not the amount of the gift, but the spirit of the giver. "For the gift without the giver is bare." "My son, give me thine heart."

And then there is the spiritual side of work. There is nothing more common than the habit of living on the outside of daily labor. We come to regard our ordinary time exclusively as a means of employment, and as a machinery by which we earn our daily bread. And just because we so live on the outside of work, it is often extremely wearying and oppressive. If we lived on the spiritual side of our calling we should find a summer realm, and clearer, finer air. For how does the Lord teach us to regard it? We are to regard it as a means of grace, a ministry by which we are not only to earn our daily bread, but through which we are to grasp the Bread of Life. It is to be a helpmeet, not only for enriching the purse, but for enriching character. The great test when the day's work is done is not the work itself, but the condition of the worker. What is he like at the close of the day? If he has been living on the mere outside of labor he may have enlarged his bank account, while he himself has become a smaller man. If he has been living on the spiritual side of labor, then, even though his purse should reveal a disappointing day, in the eyes of heaven he has been successful and has enlarged his inheritance.

Look again at the spiritual side of nature. Many of us rarely get beyond the realm of the senses. And that realm is not one to be despised. Wonderfully gracious is the ministry of song and color and perfume, but we limit the purpose of the Almighty if we only seek our satisfaction in physical delights. New worlds come into view when we seek the spiritual side of our natural surroundings. It must have been a mighty experience to walk down a country lane with John Ruskin; but what must have been the experience to move among the wonders and beauties of creation in the company of Jesus Christ! What revelations must have come to those who walked with him through the cornfield or among the lilies, on the mountain slope, or stood with him on the shore by a breaking wave! Everything was like an envelope, and he opened it to find the message. And even though we are far from being experts in this gracious art, we all have some power in deciphering the hidden significance of God's world. And it is an art that grows by exercise. Let us confront the things that are about us in eager questioning. Let us ask them to reveal to us their spiritual secrets. The flower, the bird, the evening cloud, the morning dew! "What message do these bright summers tell?" Let us seek their inward treasures and so enrich our souls.

And lastly, there is the spiritual side of death. There are many people who are depressed by the great outside of death, by the fleshly aspects of it, or the dark trappings, or the melancholy graveyards. It is the duty and the privilege of Christians to get above these gloomy tokens and to rise into the light and liberty of the Resurrection. It is my inheritance in Christ Jesus to live and move on the spiritual side of death, and to dwell in a deathless communion with Christ. "He shall never die!" "He shall never see death!" If we get on that side, and live there, we shall attain unto release, promotion, enlargement, and triumph, "While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen."

And so there is a spiritual side to everything. Let us practice it, step by step, moment by moment, until some day it will be the spiritual that will instinctively become our possession and our delight.—Record of Christian Work.

THE BOY.

By Rev. J. M. Weems, D.D.

If criminality had its origin in the brain, the blood, or the environment of man, there might be hope of a universal cure by the application of remedies discovered and applied by man. But the development of crime is so constantly taking place under conditions the most favorable for the best in man, that it is a waste of time and a loss of energy to attempt to account for it on any other hypothesis than that it is a disease of the heart. The Master located the seat of all the evil in man when he said: "Out of the heart proceed evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false witness, blasphemies."

How then can a remedy become efficacious that fails to reach the seat of the disease? If you educate with the hope of a cure, you are only making crime more scientific and the harder to detect and to expose. One has well said on this point: "The educated man will not pick your pocket—he will only forge your name; he will not steal—he will only defalcate." To cultivate the head and neglect the heart, is but to make the man an astute criminal.

And yet the call of conditions is loud and long for aid. Walking the streets of our city this morning, I saw a youth of about 18 years in the chain gang with a lot of hardened criminals, working the streets. I could but ask myself the question, if it would not have been a mercy to the boy, and a deliverance to humanity, if the authorities had hanged him by the neck until he was dead? And then the thought came that it is a shame on the professed Christianity of the age that other provision had not been made for such conditions.

I know the plea for a reformatory has been met with the cry of a lack of funds. Yet no one is impressed with the correctness of this plan, save those who are spending the vast sums of the State's revenue for other purposes. However, no scheme for the salvation of the boy will be worth the effort that does not include the Gospel. Paul affirms that the Gospel is the power and the wisdom of God unto the salvation of man. Can any plan or device of man exceed the wisdom and power of God? And as both are offered to man without money and without price, should man not gladly accept the offer?

Any attempt to reform a degraded humanity that does not re-enforce the inspired impulse, is a failure. Let us have a reformatory and let it be distinctly under the best moral and religious influences. And would it not be a righteous thing to take the income from the labors of hardened criminals to prevent the increase of their class? To me there is something repulsive in the thought that this income is placed in the common fund of the State.

Laurel, Miss.

A GLIMPSE AT A CHINESE FUNERAL.

By Rev. Issac D. Borders.

Some of the dear Advocate family may remember a sketch of a Buddhist funeral which appeared in its columns some months ago. It was eclipsed in some of its details by a Chinese interment which I witnessed to-day. I was not privileged to observe the ceremonies which preceded those at the grave, but these were sufficiently interesting to me to lead to the belief that perhaps my back-home friends would not be averse to hearing of them.

I was just leaving a newly made grave into which had been laid a poor fellow over whom I had said the service, when my attention was attracted to a strange procession wending its way up the avenue, a conspicuous figure in which was an Oriental who was diligently casting out of the carriage bits of paper. These were perforated in numerous places, and I learned that their design was to intercept the evil spirit which was following the hearse. He had to stop, so the theory had it, and go through each one of these holes, and thus would be delayed until the body could be buried beyond his influence.

There is a section of the cemetery devoted to our yellow brethren, and I repaired thither that I might learn more of their peculiar customs. The coffin was taken out, and with it a sealed bottle in which was to be seen a scroll bearing an inscription in Chinese. This I was told was a history of the deceased, a kind of introduction to the spirits he was to join. The body was lowered into the grave, and before it two Celestials took their stand.

One made a bonfire of a batch of papers, which were presumably documents formerly belonging to the departed friend. Another lighted numerous tapers, resembling gaudily decorated Christmas candles mounted on sticks, making them similar in appearance to miniature sky-rockets such as we used to shoot in the long ago. While these were burning, the friends took out of a market basket the viands which had been prepared for the refreshment of the one who had taken up his long journey into the unknown land.

Would you believe it? There was a lovely slab of roast pork, a fine roast chicken, a bowl of rice, a large potato, a vessel of tea, and the inevitable chopsticks. These were spread out carefully before the grave, the tea being poured out around the other food. I saw the ground drink it, but what will eat the edibles remains for conjecture.

The last step in the process was to take all the clothes and bedding, and apparently all the personal effects of the deceased, to a crematory built for the purpose and there reduce them to ashes. This is said to be a regular and unvarying custom, and was certainly not a bad idea in this instance, for without meaning to be offensive to the dead, it was rather an ill looking lot of property which he had accumulated.

I have not before written anything calculated to make my brethren turn their eyes fondly in this direction, but when the report gains circulation back there that good roast chicken goes to waste out in this country, I expect to have a number of inquiries as to whether there are any suitable openings in this Conference. Well, there is at least one heart which would give a very warm welcome.

Stockton, California.

AN EXCURSION AND SOME HAPPENINGS.

By Rev. H. P. Lewis, Sr.

It was in the early autum of the year 1882. For five years I had been pastor of the Adams Camp Ground Church. I had received into the Church not less than 150 and baptized as many children, and had made many fast friends—many of them members of other churches. I had tried hard in the pulpit, and out of it, to teach both by precept and example the unspeakable importance of practicing our religion everywhere—that is, of being just as religious away from home as at home.

A friend of mine, a brother Baptist, arranged to run an excursion from Hazlehurst to New Orleans. He presented free tickets to my wife and myself. Quite a number of my members, together with some Baptists, decided to go on the excursion. We had a nice, jolly crowd of old, young and middle aged people. From some cause, we were delayed on the route, and did not get to the city till between 12 and 1 o'clock at night. Arrangements had been previously made with the proprietor of St. James Hotel to furnish board and lodging for the excursionists. So, by 2 o'clock a.m. we were all in bed, trying to sleep.

The day following, which was Tuesday, we spent in sight-seeing, making some purchases, etc. Late in the day, we all met at the hotel, partook heartily of our evening meal, then went into the ladies' parlor to rest and talk over the experiences of the day.

By some means, I hardly know how, wife and I found ourselves seated at one end of the long sitting-room, while the other members of the party were at the other end, seemingly in close, earnest conversation about something. I said to my wife: "Our party is going to leave us and go to the theater." About that time Mrs. Magee, a good Baptist lady, came to where we were and said, "Brother Lewis, we are going to the theater, and while some of our crowd wanted to slip off from you two, I told them, 'No, I was going to tell you about it.'" In a few minutes they left us, and as they went marching down the stairway and out on the street, my heart was sad within me, and I began to sing a song I had often heard in other years: "O, there will be mourning at the judgment seat of Christ; pastors and people there will part—will part to meet no more." That tune and song rang in my ears for days and weeks afterwards.

Brother W. Y. Webb, now of Gloster, Miss., whose company had deserted him for a similar purpose, heard that we were left alone in the hotel, and came to where we were, and we three talked the matter over and felt so sad, to think that some people were more religious at home than away from home.

Years ago there lived somewhere in the eastern part of our State, perhaps in Perry or Jackson county, a man who was considered a pretty good Methodist at home, but when he went to Mobile on business, it was said of him when he got to the State line he would lay aside his Methodist coat and say, "Stay here till I get back," then go to Mobile, transact his business, get on a big drunk and act ugly in other ways; then return home, putting on his Methodist coat at the State line and resume his pretense at being a Christian.

On Wednesday morning, when we all gathered about the breakfast table, and I had invoked the blessings of God on us and our food, I could but tell our party of my sad thoughts of the previous evening when we had parted. They all knew the stand I took was right. But this was the first chance some of them ever had of going to the theater, and the devil persuaded them that they could not afford to miss the opportunity. I feel sure most, if not all the crowd, saw their mistake and were afterwards sorry.

I have tried both by precept and example to teach my children and others how wrong it is to go where the Lord Jesus would not be a welcome guest. To-day, I have the honor of being the father of six boys, five of whom are doing good work in the ministry.

If you want your children saved, prove to them by your daily walk and conversation that there is something in the religion you profess. "Let your light shine."

$177.00 pays Board, Tuition, Laundry, Medical, Library and Lyceum fees whole session. Those who wish may reduce this by taking duties. Apply now to Port Gibson Female College, Port Gibson, Miss.

SUPPOSE YOU HAVE A FIRE TO-NIGHT?
GET SOLID PROTECTION AND INSURE WITH
LEON IRWIN & CO.
FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.
736 Union Street. Phone, Main 595.

THE MEN AND RELIGION MOVEMENT.

Its Plan And Purposes.

Christianity organized for Sunday school work a century ago. It organized for missionary work seventy-five to one hundred years ago. It got together for work for men in its Christian associations fifty to sixty years ago. Within the last few decades, almost within the last few years, it has organized for social service, including civics, labor, health, child welfare and many other lines.

The latest thing Christianity is organizing for is method. It has often happened in the past that plans have failed and the question has been asked, both by those within and without the churches, if God's cause is failing? If men were no longer religious? The fact was simply that the plan was wrong. There was nothing the matter with men, with their religion, or with God's way of working.

The Men and Religion Movement Campaign, in which organizations of laymen in practically all the churches are joined, will put church economics, the new study in organized Christianity, into effect along seven distinct lines. Here are the seven:

1. Speakers going out will be provided with written lectures. With their aid these lecturers can give, not simply all they know of the subject, but all everybody knows. There will be a common teaching. And there will also be excellent instruction. How often it happens that eminent men, widely heralded, really tell little worth a man's while to go to hear! Many a campaign has left last conditions worse than the first for just this reason.

2. The whole subject will be covered—work for boys, work for men, Sunday school work, mission work, and social service. Unity is a good thing among more things than religious bodies. How long it has taken organized Christianity to learn that in union there is strength!

3. Conferences will follow in one city, then in another. There will be no doubling on the road. Trained men giving six weeks of their time will get in six full weeks of work. What a waste of the time of religious and missionary speakers has heretofore obtained!

4. Leaders from small towns will attend upon the instruction given in large towns and immediately go back and give to others all they learned. What men get to give they get better than when they get to keep. Churches will make a better showing in attendance, and in listeners keeping awake, when they make the rule, and enforce it, that all who come and hear sermons on Sundays must give some part of these sermons to others during the week, or before they come back for more.

5. Not one central committee is arranging conventions in cities, but laymen in the respective cities are arranging them. The order is changed end for end. So is the responsibility, and so is the likelihood of performance. The same body of laymen in a given city that arranged a convention this year can arrange one next.

6. The hymnal has the hymn, "Publish Glad Tidings." The greatest place in the world to do it is the public press, the daily newspapers and the religious weeklies. A good part of organized Christianity has not yet learned the lesson.

7. The campaign is in charge of certain organizations, but these organizations will not go out to advertise themselves, or to get members to make themselves bigger. Strange that it took them so long to learn the simple and economic truth that "he serves his organization best that serves his Christ best." The campaign's work will be for Christ, through the body of Christ, the Church under its various names.

Is the cause of Christ losing its hold on men? The answer is clear and unmistakable. It is not doing so when men of the known character and ability of James G. Cannon, Fayette L. Thompson, Ralph W. Harbison, C. F. Miliken, R. A. Long, F. H. Bonsall, David Russell, Fred P. Tucker, James D. Husted, Frank Harvey Field, Benjamin F. Edwards, J. M. Speers, James H. Post, F. M. McBrier, and men like them give themselves to it—not simply for themselves, but that they may help others—putting into such work all the energy and enterprise with which God endowed them.

In the churches of the land are millions of splendid young men, spiritual, missionary, sacrificing, and clean. The world needs more like them, of course, but we wrong the cause when we forget how many the churches already possess. The campaign is, in its economic and up-to-date methods, to use some of these laymen to get other laymen, making man, moment and money accomplish most possible for Christ and his cause.

THE EDUCATION OF WOMAN AND MANSFIELD COLLEGE.

Dear Brother Meek: I have been requested to say something in the Advocate concerning the work at Mansfield College. It has been my good fortune during the year to spend two weeks at this excellent institution, including Commencement. I have had a good opportunity to inspect the buildings, and it affords me pleasure to state that they are in the very best condition, both as to repairs and sanitation. In the wholesomeness of the surroundings, Mansfield is not surpassed by any educational plant in the country.

Preachers are often asked by parents to recommend a college for their sons or daughters. Being the oldest minister in the Louisiana Conference and having had opportunity to observe the workings of a number of educational institutions, I have no hesitancy in giving Mansfield College my hearty and unqualified endorsement. It is well worthy of the confidence and support of the Methodist people of the State.

Some one has said: "In these years of wonderful development of a multiplicity of schools, offering educational advantages of all sorts and types, the question of where to send our girls is more confusing than in the days of few schools and limited advantages." "An investigation of the psychology of the sexes confirms the fact that woman by nature inspires man and excites him to action." Woman is more religiously inclined than man. "To woman, man will ever look for inspiration and the preservation of his ideals. It appears, then, that the school for girls should first of all, no matter what line of education it may follow, be a school where the girl may come to the fullest realization of her powers and of her duties and obligations as a home-maker. This does not mean a concentration of effort upon the mastery of the industries of the home. These are to the full making of the woman what the rules of syntax are to the philologist, and are best mastered within the home itself."

For the reasonable and sane development and establishment of the religious convictions of the girl, the institution should afford every possible opportunity. This, as far as is possible, should be promoted by both the courses of study arranged and the example of the teachers. Happily, Mansfield College puts commendable emphasis upon this important phase of education, and the religious atmosphere which it maintains leaves nothing to be desired.

It is important also that the patrons of an educational institution should believe that it really gives the advantages which it claims to furnish—that they should have confidence in the honesty and efficiency of the faculty. Could those who send their daughters to Mansfield know the instructors there as I do, they would entertain no doubt on this point. If they could have been present at the recent Commencement exercises, they would have been completely convinced as to the perfect competency of those in charge of the affairs of the college.

Nor must the physical development of the girl be overlooked. Touching upon this, Miss Moore, of Athens, Ala., says: "When we consider that the physical development of the race depends so largely upon the physical development of the mother, a father who fails to satisfy himself as to the condition for wholesome physical development in the school in which he places his daughter, is derelict in his duty." The girl does not need to develop a pugilist's muscle, but she must have plenty of fresh air, ample grounds for outdoor sports, recreation, and clean and wholesome surroundings. All this may be had at Mansfield.

I could not speak too highly of President Peters and his excellent wife. They make everything homelike and attractive. The food served to the pupils is well prepared and excellent. Briefly summarized, the advantages furnished at Mansfield may be set forth as follows: A splendid faculty; course of study modern and up-to-date; discipline wholesome and constructive; the general atmosphere pronouncedly religious; a healthful location, and the buildings and grounds attractive and in fine shape. And in view of the foregoing, I urge Methodist parents to send their daughters to this worthy institution. They may be assured that they will make no mistake in doing so. GEORGE JACKSON.

A WORD FROM THE COUNTRY.

After a pleasant three years spent at Algiers, and eight years at Felicity and Second Church, with a year or two of revival life in between, I am again in the country and quite pleasantly situated. My predecessor, Rev. J. W. Booth, is an excellent pastor, and the aroma of his presence still lingers as a sweet-smelling savor. His work abides and it is due to his exertions that this church, built by Rev. S. L. Riggs under the most discouraging circumstances, was relieved of all indebtedness. His work opened up possibilities of another kind for me which, ladened as he was with money gathering, he could not exploit.

A word concerning conditions may throw light on the situation at this point. In the first place, nearly all this K. C. S. railroad country is supported by large saw mills, and while some of our congregations are old settlers (that is, have lived here eight or nine years), yet a large part of one's audience are here to-day and gone to-morrow. Saw mill people move, travel more and remain in one place less than any other class of people. One's work is built up and promises well, when lo! they are elsewhere, and one must begin anew. Twenty families have left for other parts within the last three weeks (this has been due largely, however, to labor troubles), yet our work goes on, as is evidenced by the fact that last Sunday night the Sunday school room was in demand to seat the audience, while the Sabbath school had an attendance of one hundred and forty-six, and has had as many as one hundred and seventy-eight. The Sabbath school room is regularly opened and to some extent is used every Sunday night.

Church work moves on steadily and the outlook is favorable for a good year. During last year, Brother Booth held two meetings and quite a large number united with the church, leaving but little ingathering for this year; yet twenty-eight have been added thus far since Conference. Of the nine stewards, only two were in the Sunday school until a few months since, while now nine out of nine attend quite regularly. At our board meetings we have six and seven, and sometimes, a full board. This is due to good training in the past. With an increased assessment for current expenses over last year, everything is paid in full to date, and some overpaid. All departments of church work are in excellent shape, save the prayer meeting. The highest attendance here has been fifty-six, but it is not always thus.

The adult Sunday school class has been named "The Jno. F. Foster Wesley Adult Bible Class." Some time since, its attendance was ten; the enrollment to date has been 117, and it is increasing.

The young ladies' class is organized, calling themselves the I. and L. class, while the other classes have class receptions and picnics occasionally. A teacher training class has met regularly since last February.

Brother Harbin was with us in the spring in a union meeting, the services being held in the Baptist Church. He did us good work and all enjoyed having him with us. Brother Singleton, the presiding elder, is in high favor with my people, and all over the district he is likewise popular.

If ever a bachelor minister was comfortably roomed, 'tis your present writer, for he has steam heat for the winter, hot and cold water on tap, tub and shower baths at his disposal and an electric light (forty-eight candle power) in his room, with a negro porter to superintend everything; with roses in the garden and in the room. Fraternally,

JNO. F. FOSTER.

Secular News and Comment

The contract for the buildings of the Mississippi State Normal College at Hattiesburg has been let for $178,591. This does not include the plumbing, heating and lighting, which, it is estimated, will cost $50,000 more.

* * *

It is reported that Mr. J. D. Rockefeller has given an additional million dollars to the Rockefeller Institute for Medical Research. It is doubtful whether the great capitalist could devote his money to a better purpose.

* * *

Chicago's new City Directory estimates the population of that municipality at 2,264,184, a gain over last year of 78,891. The Johnsons in the city are said to number 7,749; the Smiths, 5,315; the Millers, 3,795; the Browns, 2,933, and the Joneses, 2,111.

* * *

The estate of the late John W. Gates is estimated to be worth from $30,000,000 to $40,000,000. It was bequeathed chiefly to his wife and son, Charles G. Gates. The obsequies of the famous financier were conducted in the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal Church of New York City.

* * *

The Lincoln Memorial which Congress has authorized and appropriated $2,000,000 to erect in Washington City will probably be located in Potomac Park. The task of designing it has been committed to Mr. Henry Bacon of New York by the Fine Arts Commission, which has supervision of the work.

* * *

Jefferson County, Alabama, in which the city of Birmingham is located, voted in favor of saloons on the 24th inst. The prohibitionists, however, made a strong and aggressive fight, and there is no cause for discouragement. Despite such temporary reactions, the fight against the licensed liquor traffic will go bravely on. The right must ultimately win.

* * *

Congress adjourned on Tuesday, August 22. The most important measures passed were the Canadian reciprocity bill and the admission of the Territories of New Mexico and Arizona into the Union as States. The attempted tariff legislation amounted to little else than the maneuvering of politicians for party advantage.

* * *

The Mississippi Railroad Commission, in session at Jackson last week, passed an order prohibiting the public drinking cup on trains and in depots. Louisiana has had such a law for some time. But it here applies, as it ought to do, not merely to railroads, but also to hotels, restaurants, schools and all other public places.

* * *

The new chair of Tropical Medicine in Tulane University will be filled by Dr. Creighton Wellman, who is now a member of the faculty of the Oakland School of Medicine, of California. Dr. Wellman is said to have had experience in medical colleges in London, Liverpool and Hamburg, and has held the position of Secretary of the British Society of Tropical Medicine.

* * *

It is stated that Mr. Rodman Wanamaker, of New York, will erect at his own expense in New York harbor a bronze statue commemorating the American Indian. The lower House of Congress passed a measure on August 22, donating, on the government reservation in the harbor, a site for the monument which is considered an admirable one.

* * *

An enumeration just made shows that there are in Louisiana, with three parishes missing—Evangeline, Iberia and Jackson—504,700 children of school age. Of these 288,798 are white, and 215,902 are colored. In the city of New Orleans the white children number 83,755, and the colored children 31,577. Estimating the figures in the three missing parishes, the Times-Democrat fixes the total number of educable children in the State at 525,000.

* * *

Anti-Jewish riots have recently broken out in parts of England, the shops of Hebrews being looted, and, in some instances, women being attacked and driven from their homes. This is something new in Great Britain, which has long been known as the land of law and order. But the spirit of lawlessness seems now to be alarmingly widespread and contagious. Perhaps we are reaping the consequences of the preachment of demagogues, that all who own property are greedy, grasping, and the enemies of those who are less fortunate in life. Such teaching is false and vicious, and is calculated to do vast harm.

* * *

A Washington dispatch states that Secretary Stimson of the War Department and General Wood will begin on September 15 an inspection of the fortifications along the Atlantic Ocean, south of Norfolk, and the Gulf coast to New Orleans. The citizens of the Crescent City are making a vigorous fight against the abolishment of the Naval Station at this place. They have called attention to the fact that there are no fortifications at the mouth of the Mississippi River adequate to stop an enemy desiring to advance up the big stream, and that at present a well armed fleet could easily make its way to St. Louis. They contend that the proper protection of the great Mississippi valley demands that the Naval Station here should be maintained and improved.

* * *

The so-called "House of Governors," which Mr. Roosevelt is said to have been instrumental in calling into existence, will meet at Spring Lake, New Jersey, September 12. According to report, 35 State chief executives have signified their purpose to attend. The Wisconsin Legislature by formal action has authorized the Governor of that commonwealth to represent the State at this gathering and to pledge his people to bear their part of the expenses of such conferences. It is thought that much good will ultimately result from these meetings, which are designed to be held annually. There is talk of asking the forty-eight States for an aggregate appropriation of $50,000 yearly to establish permanent headquarters and keep the various governors in permanent co-operation with one another. This movement has been called the "New Stateism," by way of contrast with the "New Nationalism," of which so much has lately been heard.

* * *

The city of Paris was thrown into a state of excitement on August 22, by the discovery that the great painting, "Mona Lisa," Leonarda da Vinci's masterpiece, had been stolen from the Salon Carre in the Louvre. The valuable frame and the glass which covered the picture were found intact on a back staircase within the building, but a careful search disclosed no trace of the famous portrait. This is said to be the most renowned picture of a woman in the world. It was painted from life, the model being a Florentine woman about thirty years of age who was the wife of Francesco Del Gicondo. It is about four hundred years old, and its most striking characteristic is the smile upon the face. The British Government is reported to have once offered five million dollars for this treasure of art, only to be refused. The French authorities are sparing no effort to discover who has taken it and to regain possession of it.

SERENE AND HAPPY AT EIGHTY-SEVEN.

(The following is part of a letter written to the publisher and editor of the Advocate by Rev. George Jackson, the oldest member of the Louisiana Conference, on August 9, his eighty-seventh birthday.)

Dear Brethren: I am this day eighty-seven years old and in good health for this hot weather. I hope that all your staff are well, having to stay in those hot rooms to get out the dear old Advocate. I feel some signs of old age coming on. I think my eyesight is a little dimmer, and my legs seem to totter some. I cannot walk as well as I did; it takes me longer to walk a mile, and the people pass me on the way. I need not wonder at this when David said: "The days of our years are three score years and ten, and if by reason of strength they be four score years, yet is their strength labor and sorrow; for it is soon cut off, and we fly away."

May our last end be like that of good old Simeon. He saw the child Jesus. "Then took he him up in his arms and blessed God." Not in our arms of flesh may we do this, but in the arms of faith. It is not Christ in the manger, or on the cross, or in heaven, but in the arms of faith and love that can save us and make us happy. Having seen his promised Savior, Simeon desired to leave the world: "Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace." World attraction gone, he could say with Paul: "For I am now ready to be offered and the time of my departure is at hand. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give me at that day, and not to me only, but unto all them that love his appearing." I have not had the visions of Simeon or Paul; but I have the promise, "I will come again and receive you to myself, that where I am, there ye may be also."

The doctors tell me that I am going to live to be a hundred years old. I do not know. "All the days of my appointed time will I wait till my change come."

When the Seashore Camp Meeting was over and I came to New Orleans, because of the very warm weather I left sooner than I intended. However, I preached four times and delivered a Sunday school address in the city. I preached last Sunday at Franklin. I keep busy. I pray God that if I am to live to be a hundred years of age, I may retain all my reasoning faculties and be able to preach his blessed gospel, which is the "power of God unto salvation."

"Happy, if with my latest breath,
I may but gasp his name;
Preach to all and cry death,
'Behold, behold the Lamb!'"

Yours fraternally,

GEORGE JACKSON.

To Whitworth College Students

THE PROSPECTS ARE GOOD FOR THE BEST ENROLLMENT FOR MANY YEARS.

EACH STUDENT SHOULD REACH THE COLLEGE ON Wednesday, Sept. 13th.

It is important that the Students of 1910 and 1911 should be on hand TO GREET THE NEW STUDENTS.

Session 1911-1912 will begin Thursday, Sept. 14, at 10 A. M.

—COLONIST—
ONE-WAY FARES TO CALIFORNIA
AND POINTS INTERMEDIATE VIA SOUTHERN PACIFIC
$32 From New Orleans.
TICKETS ON SALE
September 15 to October 15, 1911.

Two Trains Daily Through to Pacific Coast Without Change. Tourist Excursion Sleepers (1-2 Rate). Oil Burning Locomotives. Electric Block Signals. Chair Cars and Coaches. Dining Car Service (Best in the World).

Before Deciding on Your Route, See SOUTHERN PACIFIC REPRESENTATIVE,
—City Ticket Office—
225-27 St. Charles Street, New Orleans.
PHONE, MAIN 4027.
Beautifully Illustrated Literature Furnished on Request.

THE
Grant Furniture Co.
IS NOW HAVING A
GREAT REMOVAL SALE
PRICES ON EVERY ARTICLE
IN THEIR
ENTIRE STOCK HAVE BEEN REDUCED
OUTFITS ESPECIALLY PRICED
427-429-431 Camp Street, New Orleans

Church News

Rev. John E. Wakerly has been chosen fraternal messenger from the British Wesleyan Church to the next General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

* * *

The following three churches are said to have reported the largest per capita contribution for foreign missions: United Presbyterian, $2.48; Reformed Church in America, $1.77; Southern Presbyterian, $1.60.

* * *

Dr. G. Campbell Morgan has been unanimously elected to the presidency of Cheshunt College, Cambridge, England. It is thought if he accepts the place, that he will not abandon his pastorate at Westminister Chapel, but will fill both positions. Dr. Morgan is expected to set sail soon for the United States.

* * *

The city of Baltimore is said to contain 275,000 Protestants, 150,000 Roman Catholics, 45,000 Jews and 88,485 persons connected with no church. The Protestant population is divided among the several denominations as follows: Methodist, 31.4 per cent; Episcopal, 18.3; Lutheran, 16.8; Baptist, 10.7; Presbyterian, 9.1; others, 14 per cent.

* * *

Dr. T. H. Lewis of the Methodist Protestant Church is booked to deliver an address on "Methodist Union" before the approaching session of the Cincinnati Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He is perhaps the most eloquent platform speaker among the followers of Wesley in America, and has for several years been advocating this cause with conspicuous ability.

* * *

The Disciples of Christ (Campbellites) are reported to be contemplating some aggressive work in New York City, where they have only seven small churches (four of them in Brooklyn) and 2,000 members. There is talk of raising $500,000 for this purpose, though it is stated that the appeals thus far made have not met with a very generous response. A conference on the subject will he held in September.

* * *

The Foreign Mission Board of the Methodist Episcopal Church states that its receipts up to the present have been more than $100,000 in excess of those of last year. This is not an exceptional gain, however, since their yearly increase has several times within the past decade amounted to this much. Both the Home and Foreign Mission Boards of this denomination will meet in Denver this fall, the former on November 10, and the latter on November 16.

* * *

In view of the fact that so much is being written about the salaries of ministers, it is interesting to note the figures which the Lay Association of the Toronto Methodist Conference (Canada) has recommended to the churches as the minimum that should he paid. They are as follows: "Probationers, $600 a year; ordained unmarried men, $900; married men on country or village circuits, from $900 to $1,200; on town circuits, from $1,200 to $1,500; in city charges, $1,500."

* * *

The Christian Guardian, of Toronto, states that the Ecumenical Methodist Conference, which is to meet in that city next October, will probably designate a Sunday when every Methodist congregation in the world will be asked to sing the same hymns and have read an address from the Ecumenical assembly specially prepared for the occasion. Such an arrangement would doubtless prove most interesting and tend to emphasize the oneness in spirit of Methodists in all lands.

* * *

The Baltimore Sun, one of the ablest of American dailies, recently referred to Bishop Wilson and his great work in the following complimentary manner: "Bishop Alpheus W. Wilson, the nestor of Bishops of the Southern Methodist Church, and one of the oldest ministers in active service in this city; has been chosen fraternal delegate to the General Conference of the Wesleyan Methodist Church in England. This venerable minister—he is now seventy-seven years old—has been in the episcopate nearly thirty years, and in that time has risen until he is regarded as one of the most remarkable and able exponents of the Gospel in the whole country. Although for years he has been in feeble health, he has never allowed that to interfere with his zeal for spreading the doctrines of Christianity. Again and again he has forced himself to rise from a bed of sickness, and, urged on by an untiring determination to push the work to which he has given his life, has journeyed from one part of the country to another when apparently physically unable."

* * *

At the recent session of the British Wesleyan Conference the time limit, after discussion, was left unchanged at three years. One reason assigned for this is that the Constitution of the Church is such that it would require action by Parliament to make any alteration possible, and with the Church divided on the subject it is not believed that body would be disposed to take a hand in the matter. Some of the Wesleyans are said to favor the three-year limit; some to desire to lengthen it to five years, while others prefer to do away with it entirely.

* * *

Honors, like calamaties, often come in quick succession. An illustration of this is seen in the case of Dr. Charles M. Stuart, the distinguished editor of the Northwestern Christian Advocate, who recently was chosen to a chair in Wesleyan University, and now has been elected to the presidency of the Garrett Biblical Institute at Evanston, Ill., with which he was formerly connected for thirteen years as Professor of Sacred Rhetoric. Dr. Stuart accepted the professorship tendered him by the Wesleyan Trustees, and whether he will surrender it for the new position offered him has yet not been announced.

REV. JAMES W. McLAURIN.

By Rev. H. M. DuBose, D.D.

My Dear Dr. Meek: While taking a brief vacation in the mountains of Virginia, I received delayed tidings of the death of Rev. James W. McLaurin, my life-long friend and early pastor. These tidings terminate for me a tender earthly fellowship and quench the light of a simple but perfect human joy. What fulness and flow of soul there will be when these are renewed in the house above! The close friends and Conference comrades of my youth have nearly all joined the company of the disciples in the immediate presence of the Master. Galloway, the rapt and eloquent; West, Little, Singleton, Bradford, Ellis, Hunnicutt, Woodward, and now—McLaurin! I would fain write with the name of each of these some one of the scores of the definitive and affection-suggested terms that wait upon my tongue for utterance, but I can best express in these brief lines my heart's true tribute by saying that in life they were loyal, and in death, faithful. These were they who touched my life when, in a tender youth, I struggled with the message in my heart and with the misgivings and self-distrust which beset my goings. From each of these, I received help and inspiration. Blessed were their deeds, and now is their memory also blessed.

Brother McLaurin became my pastor about the time I was a lad in school. His influence over my early walk and thinking was direct and pronounced. Through his solicitation I took up, in my sixteenth year, the work of public prayer and exhortation. There was then no Epworth League, or other responsible organization for the young people of the Church. I trust I do not offend with the slightest suggestion of immodesty, when I say that it has often come to me that the village school-boy prayer meeting in which these things happened to me was one of the potent influences which led to the organization, ultimately, of the young people's society in Southern Methodism. By this, of course, I desire to be understood as meaning only the manner in which this organization came about. No one man is entitled to any large or particular credit for this dispensation given to "the Church of the first born." It was, and is, of God.

But the memory which comes to me as I pen these notes is instinct with the dreams and hopes of youth, and with the intercourse of a youthful pastor with his far more youthful parishioner. What is most distinctly recalled of that pastor's life and ministry is that it met the Pauline injunction: "Let no man despise thy youth." With simple dignity of manner, with blameless walk, with purity of thought and speech, and with a message of faithfulness, he met the demands of his call. I am making no claims of intellectual mastery for him, but his early industry as a student gave him an effective and correct use of language, and an ability and sequential force in reasoning. His sermons throughout his life were studiously and conscientiously prepared. His method in this matter of duty, if imitated by his brethren as a whole, would increase the power of the Methodist pulpit immeasurably above what it is. That too just criticism upon religious America to-day, "A passionless Church and an indifferent world," is at last justified in another "indifference"—that with which too many pulpit messages appear to be prepared. It is a fault which in the end will stifle a passion as intense as that of St. Paul's.

To his carefulness as a preacher, this friend of my soul added the industry and diligence of the apostolic pastor. For a time these excellencies brought him both the attainment and the promise of large success. He filled important posts, and his services were in demand, but in the very first years of his ministry he began to develop those bodily ailments which, rapidly growing into chronic and wasting disorders, drove him from the active ranks of the itinerancy. For more than fourteen years past he has been upon the non-effective list. During all this time his patience in suffering, his loyalty of spirit, have been beautiful. He accepted with submission the providence which made him a broken vessel, and found his joy and honor in his brethren to whom a happy heritage of health and opportunity had been allotted. No man watched the current of affairs in the Church with a keener eye, nor a more sympathetic heart, and few kept their judgments of these affairs in a readier or a sounder summary. Doomed to a wifeless life, he gave the full measure of his affection to the Church and his brethren. To the friend who was nearest him always, his letters were womanly tender and beautiful, and the tithing of his spirit was like the word spicery of the Shulemitess.

And he is gone! Simple, tender, loyal, he is with the now larger circle of those who on earth "spake often one to another," and who "kept a book of remembrance." The years which thus transport our friends and comrades put us "In a strait betwixt two." Fain would we abide, and yet to depart seems good.

SOMEWHAT SUGGESTIVE.

A writer in the London Methodist Times offers this reason for empty churches:

"None of the churches are prosperous, but the Free Church are in difficulties. What is wrong? More than one thing is wrong, but I will name only one. We have blundered with the children; and this is a capital blunder which nothing else has been able to redeem. Look at the people who are outside the churches. Who are they? They are our old Sunday school scholars. These crowds of 'outsiders' have been through our Sunday schools. We had them once, but we did not know what to do with them. And so, like prodigals, we squandered our wealth."

Here, now, is a place to begin. Whatever other reasons may be given for empty pews, this reason obtains. To offset it the Church has only to cultivate more intelligently and more assiduously the interest of the children. And in this the Church must have the reinforcement of parental concern.

The AMERICAN PAINT WORKS
——Manufacturers of——
High Grade Mixed Paints; Perfecto White Lead; Nonpareil Carriage Paint; Varnish Stain; Colors in Oil; Wood Fillers; Chemically Pure Dry Colors, Etc.
428-434 JOSEPHINE STREET.....Phone 915
NEW ORLEANS, LA

W. W. Carre Co. Ltd
Manufacturer Exporter of | Lumber
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Concerning Missions.

Attention, Woman's Foreign Missionary Societies. North Mississipp Conference—

My Dear Sisters: You are aware doubtless of the action of the Woman's Missionary Council, creating the new department of Social Service in our great woman's missionary movement of Southern Methodism. This step only proves anew the wisdom and Christian aggressiveness of our unified Board of Missions.

All the other great Protestant denominations of America have such a movement in active operation; most of them with a sufficient number of years behind them to demonstrate beyond the shadow of a doubt that there is urgent need of such a department of Social Service in our churches, and that it is possible to operate it successfully and beneficiently for the uplift of humanity, both in the home and foreign fields.

Our Board of Missions is making every effort to provide informing and inspiring literature for our guidance in this new, and to us, largely untried field of Christian activity. We are not to be left without wise oversight and intelligent direction in our maiden efforts along this line. But it develops upon us to avail ourselves of the opportunities and helps which are being so carefully and prayerfully provided for us by our faithful, consecrated leaders. It is to this end that I appeal to you to co-operate with me in this important work, as it affects the North Mississippi Conference Foreign Missionary Societies.

At the annual meeting, held in Cleveland, Miss., in June, I was elected fourth vice-president, being thus by your Conference action put in charge of its Social Service work for the ensuing year. In order that anything definite and practical may be done, it is imperative that each auxiliary elect at once a fourth vice-president, to look after the interests of this new department in their respective communities; these vice-presidents being instructed to keep in close touch with me as Conference fourth vice-president, by making at least quarterly reports of their work.

I urge upon each auxiliary the importance of electing its fourth vice-president at the next regular monthly meeting, and beg that I be informed of their action, and be given the name and address of the new officers at the earliest possible date. I, in turn, will make reports to the fourth vice-president of the Council, Mrs. Arch Trawick, of Nashville, Tenn., thus forming an unbroken chain of connection between the local auxiliaries and our Board of Missions. It is only by such concerted action that we can hope to achieve the results which our leaders deem so important, and for which they are planning and praying so earnestly.

Dear sisters, I am enlisted, heart and soul, for the success of this new department of work within the bounds of our Conference, but my hands are tied unless you come to my rescue. I am dependent upon each auxiliary for help—am helpless, indeed, unless all the societies put themselves in touch with me by the election of their fourth vice-presidents, and by furnishing me their addresses at once.

I have, at this writing, a large supply of Social Service literature for distribution among the local auxiliaries. This is just the thing you need to inform, to guide, and to direct you in this new work. But I am unable to mail it to you until you have elected a fourth vice-president to take charge of it, and until I know her name and address.

Truly the King's business requires haste—this part of it, particularly, just now. I shall rely upon each Foreign Missionary Society in the North Mississippi Conference to rally nobly to my help, to the end solely that our Master's work may be prospered in our hands, and his kingdom established in the hearts of men, by the wise use of every means within our power—physical, social, educational and spiritual. Let us realize as never before that we are, in a very vital sense, our "brothers' keeper."

Yours for the work, Mrs. J. M. WYATT,
Fourth vice-president W. F. M. Society, North Mississippi Conference.
Brookhaven, Miss.

"WORK DAY" FOR THE LOUISIANA METHODIST ORPHANAGE.

Following our custom for the past three years, we are requesting that the Sunday schools of the Methodist Church in the Louisiana Conference set apart and observe Saturday, Oct. 7th, as "Work Day" for the Orphanage. The idea is to induce the children to find some work to do and give the proceeds of the labor to the Orphanage. Not only are the children asked to give the proceeds of the day's labor to the Orphanage, but all Methodist people in and out of the Sunday school are requested to give the proceeds of the day's toil to the Orphanage. Individuals, men and women, boys and girls, are all urged to help in this way. Corporations, business concerns of various kinds are asked to join in this beneficent effort to place this worthy institution out of debt and in position to carry forward its great work for homeless children.

We owe a balance on our building debt of $7,000. It will cost us at least $1,500 besides this amount to meet our running expenses to the close of the year. Our object is to meet this debt, which falls due on the first day of December; pay all our expenses and enter the new year unencumbered. We then expect to have the Orphanage dedicated as soon as possible in the first of the new year. Bishop Mouzon has agreed to do it. With one united effort, with all our Methodist people joining in this one attempt, there can be no doubt that we will raise the entire amount. So we urge our preachers to call the attention of their people to this effort. We hope the superintendents of our Sunday schools will keep it before the schools every Sunday until "Work Day." Let committees be appointed. Let Sunday school classes take the lead. Let every Methodist be reached and appealed to by some one in each congregation, and this "Work Day" will be the greatest in the history of our work.

We appeal to our friends inside and out of the Church. Our need is imperative. The work is growing. The demands are increasing. Advancement is necessary. We must be relieved of this debt and reach out to all who, in their helplessness, cry to our Church for a home. Sincerely,

ROBT. W. VAUGHAN, Superintendent.

A STATEMENT FROM BROTHER GALLOWAY.

In accepting the presidency of the Mississippi Conference Training School at Montrose, I am taking up a work that I have been thinking of for some time—a work, too, that can as much be done for the glory of God, as that of any pastorate. I go to no discouraged, run-down institution. Brother Moore has wrought well—his name in the community is "as ointment poured forth."

Two settled purposes are in my heart. First of all, I shall keep in mind the religious life of the students. We will let no pupil come and go away from us unhelped spiritually, unless he refuses to let us aid him.

My second aim is to stand for thoroughness. To build up in Mississippi a school of the character of Bell Buckle is my ambition. Ths we feel our Training School already largely is, but we are going to try to make its advantages more widely known and appreciated.

If you want to send your son or daughter where religion will be first, and education in the subordinate place where it belongs, send them to us at Montrose, Miss. We will do all that we can to help and bless them.

My connection with the school will not interfere with my duties as Missionary Secretary, as I have secured the services of a young man to do the work in the school until Conference.

G. H. GALLOWAY.

PROSPECT BRIGHTENING FOR MANSFIELD.

Dear Dr. Meek: Conditions in Mansfield Female College are much improved. Prospects for a large attendance are very flattering—in fact, it looks now that we shall double the enrollment over last year. A few of the friends of the college have done valiant work and are still working like Trojans for its success, and they are now happy to state that the success of the institution is assured. It should be the pride of every Methodist in the Conference to rally to its support and make it one of the best schools in the South. This can be done; and what a blessing it will be to every one and a joy to every loyal Methodist when it is done!

The members of the faculty have been selected with great care, and their efficiency is unsurpassed; their training and experience recommend them to the public. The faculty is as follows: A. B. Peters, president; Miss Mary Shuler, dean and principal of the normal department; Miss Elia Williamson, teacher of modern languages and Latin; Miss Elain Griffin, teacher of expression and history; Miss Lettie Ensign, teacher in primary department; Mrs. H. T. Liverman, assistant in primary department; Mrs. Irma Egan, directress of music; Miss Margaret Kyle, assistant in music; Mrs M. S. Gill, teacher of art.

With a faculty composed of well trained and experienced teachers, we feel safe in saying that the coming year will be one of the best in the history of the college. Every department is well organized and in the hands of strong teachers. Our friends need not fear to send us their daughters, for the work of each department is of the highest order. The discipline is wholesome, constructive and homelike. While the girls are made to feel at home, a spirit of work and good-fellowship pervades the whole college at all times.

This is a Christian institution and our purpose is to build character as well as to make scholars. In the buildings, on the campus, and on the streets the girls are looked after and cared for with the same attention and devotion as they receive at home.

Those young ladies who wish to become teachers are asked to investigate our Normal Department before going elsewhere. It does not seem to be commonly known that graduates of Mansfield College are not required to take an examination (except in theory and art of teaching) in order to secure a first grade certificate. But this is true. A diploma from this college is accepted by the State authorities.

It will be a pleasure to us to correspond with any young lady about any department of the college.

Very truly yours, A. B. PETERS, Pres.
Mansfield, La.

GRENADA COLLEGE OPENING.

The sixtieth session of Grenada College begins Sept. 13. The buildings were never in better condition for the reception of the student body. Several thousand dollars have been expended the present summer for improvements. Granolithic sidewalks have been laid around the property, the campus has been graded, galleries have been rebuilt, the exterior wood work has been painted, many rooms have been papered, new furnishings have been installed, and other things done to make the buildings both comfortable and attractive.

The faculty is composed of thoroughly equipped women who are specialists in their several departments. Four of the best music teachers in the South have charge of that part of the work. The schools of art and expression are in the hands of experts. No school in the State does a higher grade of literary work.

A full school is assured and a great session is confidently expected. More graduates from the high schools have enrolled than heretofore. This means better work because they are prepared for college classes. Let all students come to Grenada on the 12th and be present at the opening exercises.

J. R. COUNTISS, President.

The Centenary College of Louisiana
SHREVEPORT
Fall Term will open
Sept. 13, 1911.
For Catalogue or other information write to
FELIX R. HILL, President,
P. O. Box 455
SHREVEPORT, LA.

The Home Circle

ONLY A TRAMP.

By Clara Trotter Shaw.

No, he wasn't good to look at, as he slouched along the street,
For his clothes were old and tattered and torn, and his body old and weak.
His eyes as they looked from bushy brows were shifty, sly and shot
With the red of sleepless nights, and the sign of a drunken sot.
The crowd, as it passed in frenzied glee up and down the street,
Took no thought of his trembling limbs or his body, old and weak;
For it was a merry crowd, 'twas Christmas night, you see,
And what time had it to fool away on a creature such as he?

So, slouching along and slinking from the sight of the passers-by,
He wended his way in loneliness, tho' his heart must have heaved a sigh.
And the thought that once in the long ago, he, too, was young and true,
Must have come like the brand of a red-hot iron searing his body through;
For he winced at the sight of a lovely child holding its father's hand,
And he shrunk at the look on a maiden's face, and the clear brave look of a man.
A mother went by, gentle and old, on the stalwart arm of a son,
And the lines that came to his wearied face, a tear from an angel won.

Hark! the alarm of fire rang somewhere in the town,
And the engine bells clanged long and loud as they came rushing down,
Down through the crowd and the wintry street, scattering to left and right,
For ne'er before was there such a fire as on that Christmas night.
The people backed from the horse's hoofs as they went rushing by,
But above the noise and the ringing bells, rang a baby's startled cry;
No one saw the little tot, as it ran across the street,
Or heard its cry as it slipped and fell under the horses' feet.

No one saw but the ragged tramp, and no one heard his cry,
As he snatched the babe from the horses' feet swiftly hurrying by;
He saved the babe from the awful crush and gave his life instead:
As he threw it safe to its mother's arms, the engine struck his head,
And he went down all bleeding and torn; and among the curious throng
Some one whispered, "He's only a tramp," and the crowd went merrily on.
"Only a tramp," but the life he gave was given to save another,
And greater hath no man than to give his life for a brother.
And the Christ who suffered on Calvary's brow to save such as we,
Said, "In as much as ye do it to one of these, ye do it unto me."

Fort Worth, Texas.

SOME LONG WORDS.

"What is the longest word in the English language?" asked Uncle Tom.

"Valetudinarianism, I suppose," replied James, who had taken a prize in spelling.

"No," spoke up Susie; "it's 'smiles,' 'cause there is a whole mile between the first and last letters."

"I know one," said Jack, "that has over three miles between its first and last letters."

"What word is that?" asked Uncle Tom.

"Beleaguered," cried Jack triumphantly.

"I know one," said Phillp. "that is longer than that. 'Transcontinental' has a whole continent between its beginning and ending."

"'Interoceanic' beats them all," exclaimed Elsie, "for it contains an ocean; and an ocean is larger than any continent."—Lippincott's.

WHY CAT FAMILY DIDN'T MOVE.

Mrs. Dappled Gray lived in the barn where the hay was stored, with her three little kittens. One kittie was black and one white and one was gray, just like his mamma cat.

When they got big enough to open their eyes, Mrs. Dappled Gray told her kittens all about the lovely big house and the milk and bread which they should have when they got big enough to go there for their meals as she did.

Every time Mamma Cat came back from the house she told the kittens about the lovely romp she had with the baby and how sunny and nice it was there, till they could hardly wait to go and see it all for themselves.

One day Mamma Cat said: "I have found a nice new house for you in a very large trunk where some old clothes are kept, and I think we will move in at once."

Then she picked up black kittie and walked right out of the barn with him in her mouth. Mamma Cat went into the hall upstairs and dropped black kittie in the open trunk there. Then she started for white kittie.

But what do you think! The lady who owned the trunk came out and seeing it open shut it with a bang. She did not know that a dear little fat kitten was in there.

Oh, how frightened Mamma Cat was when she came back with white kittie! She scratched and clawed the trunk and rushed to the lady who was playing with her baby in another room. "Mee-ow, mee-ow! You have your baby, and I want mine," she cried, and rubbed against her dress.

The lady saw Mamma Cat jump on the trunk and scratch it with her sharp claws. "What can the matter be?" said the lady; and she opened her trunk. There cuddled up in the clothes was black kittie sound asleep.

Before the lady could ask Mamma Cat a single question she had picked up black kittie out of the trunk and started for the old home and the barn.

When she got the three babies back in the hay Mrs. Dappled Gray Cat told them that the house was a very nice place to go, but the barn was the best home to bring up little kitties.—Child's Hour.

THE ART OF TALKING.

Talk is the one social accomplishment to which nearly every human being is eligible; it is the one with which the fewest number of distraining circumstances need interfere. A girl who was tempted once to study the harp, decided not to for this reason: "There are very, very few homes that have a harp. When I wish to give pleasure with my playing I should either have to express my delicate instrument ahead of me, or else confine my playing on it to my own house. Everyone has a piano. If I study the piano I shall be able to serve pleasantly on a hundredfold more occasions."

It is astonishing that in the choice of accomplishments which may tend toward social favor and a happier time among one's fellows, more persons do not elect to study the fine art of talk; for there is almost no place where human beings gather together, in pairs or in groups, that the ability to talk well is not a prized accomplishment.

There was a woman once who loved music very, very dearly, and wished with all her heart she knew how to sing or to play. "How much pleasure I could give my world, if I knew how to sing!" she would say. But she never had opportunity to learn. What she did learn, without cost of money, without interruption of her other businesses, was to talk. And it came about that people used to count it a red-letter day when they met her even for a few moments' chat as she was finishing her luncheon in a restaurant or going home on a car. She had a way of clothing even dull, commonplace subjects with bright raiment of good humor and quaint expressions. "You always put me in love with life again," people would say to her. And she was grateful for her accomplishment. "For I couldn't startle restaurants and street cars with a song," she said. "I guess talk is a pretty happy gift, after all."

Now there is only one school where one can learn to talk, and that is Life's school, to which we all go. Children should be taught conversation at home, from their earliest years; and particularly should they be bred to the fine pleasure of good table talk. Yet in how many homes that any of us know is there table conversation that educates the children to think, to express themselves, to show interest and respect for the opinions of others? Father is lost behind a newspaper. Mother is fussed and fretted by the negligence of the maid or the faults of the children or the extortions of the butcher. And the children chatter among themselves, unless father orders them to make less noise and not disturb his reading. And after an evening meal in most homes, what happens? Is there a general gathering in the living room to talk over the day's events and the topics that take hold on the larger life, on to-morrow? Or is there a scattering, each to his studies or games or novel or magazine?

Out of the homes where the value of talk is never considered, come the multitude of persons we all encounter who can, perhaps, chatter with some one of their acquaintances who is of a familiar age and station and of similar tastes, on a subject familiar to both, but who have no remotest conception of the value of talk as a real social medium, as open sesame to the treasures of other minds, as a never-failing way of sharing with others the treasures of thought and experience that life has brought to them.—Clara E. Laughlin, in Interior.

MIDSUMMER READING.

Shall it be frothy fiction, or blood-heating adventure? Certainly it should not be brain-tiring literature, requiring fatiguing application.

MODES OF THE HEAVENLY LIFE

is a book that you will read with care-forgetting delight, and arise refreshed in faith and zeal. Then you will read it again and again with new appreciation. Cloth and gold, only 50 cents, postpaid.

"To say that I enjoyed reading 'Modes of the Heavenly Life,' is to express my appreciation but mildly. I read it the first time at one sitting and was strengthened in faith and hope. I have read it through again and some of it the third time. My estimate has grown with each reading. It cannot fail to inspire higher aspirations in any one who will read it. I hope it will have a large circulation, and I commend it most heartily to all seekers after the truth concerning the office and work of the Holy Ghost." R. W. Tucker, Presiding elder, Ruston District.

Order from Chas. O. Chalmers, 512 Camp Street, New Orleans, La.

Geo. W. Riehl. Aug. Rauxet, Jr.

RIEHL & RAUXET,
Successors to Lowengardt & Armstrong,
JEWELERS,
122 BARONNE STREET - - New Orleans, La
(Optical Department: M. F. Fitzgerald, Optician.)
Phone, Main 737.

THE SAFEST AND QUICKEST WAY
—TO—
TRANSFER MONEY
—IS BY—
Long Distance Telephone
FOR RATES APPLY TO LOCAL MANAGER,
Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co
INCORPORATED

Christian Advocate.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.
H. T. CARLEY, Ass't Editor.
CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.
OFFICE: 512 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

TERMS:
One Copy, one year, $1.50; eight months, $1.00. To preachers of all Denominations, $1.00.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE
Louisiana Conference—Rev. N. E. Joyner, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake.
Mississippi Conference—Rev. I. W. Cooper, D.D., Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. D. Ellis.
North Mississippi Conference—Rev. J. T. Murrah, Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. H. S. Spragins.

Editorial.

CHRISTIANITY'S EARTHLY TASK.

It is a great mistake to imagine that the mission of Christianity is merely to fit one for a home in the sky and the larger activities of eternity. To be sure, it does that, but it also equips and qualifies man to perform well his part in the present life. It is not so other-worldly that it ignores or belittles the duties and opportunities of earth. Humanity has here a grand theater of action—lofty and ennobling tasks to discharge. From these obligations the Christian religion brings no exemption; on the other hand, it deepens and intensifies them and spurs its votaries on to aid in the great work of advancing human society and uplifting the race. Man needs both time and eternity for his development. The truth that he is an immortal and accountable being and that in the existence beyond the tomb he will be rewarded or punished for his present conduct, furnishes him his most wholesome restraint from wrong action and his mightiest incentive to high endeavor. But while the thought of the unending future steadies and inspires him, it is in the busy world about him that God, for the time being at least, would have him render service. It is by acquitting himself worthily here that he can best prepare himself for what may await him in the hereafter.

As we have before had occasion to say, the crying need of our age is applied religion. The saint in the cloister shows a total misconception of the divine purpose. We are not saved to guard and minister to self, but to rescue the perishing and bless our fellow-men. That which measures the value of any enterprise or institution of the Church is its utility in reaching and helping the people. Striking, indeed, in this respect is the example which the Master set us. No ascetic, dwelling apart from the masses, was he; nor did he allow his superiority to them to form a chasm between them and him. On the contrary, he dwelt among them, sympathizing with them in their struggles and sharing their joys and sorrows. Most significant are the two statements made concerning him: "He went about doing good;" "The common people heard him gladly."

It cannot be too strongly emphasized that the work which we as Christians need to do is that which lies about our very doors. Commonplace it may appear to be, but if done in Jesus' name, we may be assured that it is well worthy of our best efforts. Idle contemplation of the glories of the future ill befits the disciples of him who said, "My Father worketh hitherto and I work." The world's roughest, lowliest tasks belong to us as the representatives of a Lord who lived and died for all men. Christianity must find its way into every sphere of human life and activity and dominate it, if mankind is to be redeemed and uplifted. This earthly mission of the Christian religion was recently stated in the following impressive language by Dr. Charles F. Aked, in a great sermon at Chautauqua, New York: "The world is waiting for a new incarnation—a religion which shall be as good for the polling-place as for the prayer meeting; as good for swapping horses as for saying prayers; as good for the primaries as for the presbytery. We may be thankful for the promise of the mansions on high, but what we need is more decent houses on earth, and more decent people in them. Religion is not a thing of the stars; it is a thing of the streets."

THE VIEWS OF AN OUTSIDER.

The Presbyterian of the South of Aug. 23 contained the following editorial utterance:

"The General Conferences of the two prominent Methodist organizations in this country have committees who are considering the union of the two Churches. There is one barrier which to our Southern brethren may prove insuperable. It is indicated in a statement found in 'Our Hope,' an evangelical magazine. The editor says: 'Departure from the Word of God is widespread among Methodists; indeed the departure from the faith is nowhere so evident as in Methodism.' He then quotes statements from two prominent Northern Methodist ministers. Dr. Luther Freeman, of Kansas City, is quoted as saying: 'I have never preached the entire acceptance of the Bible. * * * It contains many great truths, many great philosophies, and as literature, it has not been excelled. But the Word of God—no. If this kind of preaching is heresy, then I have been a heretic a long time.' A St. Louis pastor of the same denomination is quoted as saying: 'The Bible is a collection of myths, legends, folk-lore, and anonymously written documents by many authors. * * * It should be revised and edited and brought down to the viewpoint of the people of the twentieth century.' These men represent the modern form of infidelity. The more honest and avowed infidelity of former times is now comparatively harmless. It has been thoroughly discredited before the world. The wolf-in-sheep's-clothing method is now in use. The denomination to which these men belong is responsible for their teaching. It endorses their statements as being authorized by the Church. It says these ordained ministers are expounders of the beliefs of the Church and their teaching is to be accepted by the people. In forming a union with the larger body, the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, would become sponsor for the blatant infidelity of the class of men mentioned above. The Southern branch of Methodism is soundly evangelical; they cannot afford to make an alliance which would commit them to approval of the most prominent and destructive form of modern infidelity."

This statement of our contemporary is suggestive and well worthy of consideration. In our opinion, there is more heretical teaching in all the churches of the North than in those of the South. It is that section which has been furnishing most of the sensational pulpit utterances that the secular papers so delight to parade, and also most of the heresy trials which have so excited the religious world. Indeed, what little there is of this so-called new learning among the denominations of Dixie exists chiefly among ministers who have attended Northern institutions of learning. The University of Chicago has perhaps done more to extend the contagion into these parts than any other college in the country.

But while unorthodox views seem to prevail to some extent throughout the North, we do not believe that they are more common among the Methodists than among those of other churches, as is alleged by "Our Hope." So far as our observation extends, both the Presbyterians and Episcopalians have been much more disturbed by doctrinal unsoundness than have they. If there is a Methodist theological seminary anywhere that is as loose in its instruction as Union, we are ignorant concerning it. The cases of the two ministers mentioned in the editorial quoted above (if they are correctly reported) are most reprehensible, and they should be vigorously dealt with; but we do not admit that their attitude is representative of the clergy of the Methodist Episcopal Church. On the contrary, their position is exceptional and commands, we dare say, but little approval.

It is not just to say that the Northern Methodist Church "endorses" the expressions of these men. She may not be sufficiently watchful—she may be censurable for not taking them to task and requiring them either to repudiate these statements or to cease to occupy her pulpits; but to affirm that she sanctions their skeptical declarations is going rather too far. Because of her non-action in handling them, she is to some extent unquestionably responsible for their evil influence; but it should be borne in mind that it is exceedingly difficult to try men for heresy. They usually have a way of showing that they were misunderstood, and thereby escape arraignment and conviction. An eel at his best is not more sleek and slippery than the average advocate of "advanced theological thought." We think it is a Church's imperative duty to do its utmost to guard the doctrinal purity of its pulpit teaching, but that it will be able to hush every discordant and uncertain note is scarcely to be expected. The occasional outburst of such a blast from the trumpet of some erratic brother and the fact that he is not summarily silenced, are not to be construed as meaning that the Church "endorses" his unsound utterance.

The Presbyterian of the South's testimony, "The Southern branch of Methodism is soundly evangelical," we heartily appreciate. We believe that this is really true of our Church to-day, and we trust that it will ever be. But though we have not committed ourself to the advocacy of the union of the two Episcopal Methodisms of the United States, we do not think the doctrinal unsoundness of our sister Church stands in the way of their coming together. That, we think, our contemporary has very much exaggerated. We read every week the press of the Methodist Episcopal Church, and there is none in the land which is abler or truer to the essential doctrines of Christianity. Surely, if heresy were widespread among the Methodists of the North, it would find expression in their periodical literature. The theology of Methodists everywhere is substantially that which Wesley preached, and more and more as the years pass it is leavening and shaping the thought of expanding Christendom.

MAY SOLVE THE PROBLEM.

Nearly ever since the Civil War the race question has been regarded as the South's gravest problem. Remembering the terrible days of Reconstruction and holding the view that the negroes were multiplying at a more rapid rate than the whites, many of our ablest public men have trembled in anticipation of what the future might bring. Observing thousands of negro children learning to read and write in the public schools and viewing them as possible voters in the near future, the danger of domination by the blacks seemed to them to be increasingly threatening. Many different suggestions were made as to what ought to be done to avert the calamity which they considered impending. Some favored the colonization of the negroes; some closing the public schools against them, that they might remain disqualified to exercise the right of suffrage, and others insisted that the only real hope lay in the repeal of the Federal amendments, which prevent the legal disfranchisement of our colored population.

It is not our purpose to enter upon a discussion of these several proposals. We merely wish to remark that to us the outlook seems more encouraging. Years ago, in discussing this question, the lamented Bishop Galloway said: "Let us do our Christian duty to these people as we see it at present, and leave the future to Providence." Already the wisdom of this characteristic utterance is becoming manifest. It is now seen that the percentage of increase of our white population is larger than that of the negroes. And immigration, too, is beginning to exercise an appreciable influence upon the situation. Formerly there were four States in which the blacks were in the majority—Florida, Louisiana, South Carolina, and Mississippi. Of the first two of these, this is no longer true. The excess of negro population disappeared in Florida fifteen years ago; in 1900 the white majority was 67,000, and it has since increased to 140,000. The whites outnumbered the blacks in Louisiana in 1900 by 79,000, and the figures have since increased to 150,000 or 160,000. That South Carolina and Mississippi will likewise become white States in the not far future, is the confident prediction of careful observers. Though the latter commonwealth now has a negro majority of 266,000, the prophecy is being made that this will be wholly wiped out by 1925, if not earlier.

Everywhere the impression prevails that the South is on the eve of the most remarkable industrial development in its history. The tides of immigration are fast turning in this direction, and with the completion of the Panama Canal, it is likely that they will pour in upon us at a much more rapid rate. As this goes on, it is not improbable that the negroes will finally come to form but a small portion of the great population living beneath Southern skies. And with the black man in a hopeless minority, he would no longer be a serious political menace, and the race problem would be vastly simplified. In the great civilization here built up, the colored people may find a useful but not controlling place, and live contented and happy. We believe that such an outcome is far more probable than amalgamation, or colonization, or the reduction of the black race into a state of legal serfdom by legislative enactment. The skies are brightening—let us thank God and take courage.

CALLED HOME.

We regret to chronicle the death of Sister G. W. Gordon, the wife of our pastor at Vaiden, Miss., which occurred in the parsonage at that place on the morning of Aug. 15, at 2:25 o'clock. The remains were carried to Saltillo, Miss., the bereaved husband being accompanied on the sad journey by Rev. N. G. Augustus, Rev. J. C. Park, and other friends. The obsequies were conducted by Brothers Park, Augustus, and Cain, after which the interment took place. Sister Gordon was a noble Christian woman, who lived in conscious touch with Christ. Her faith was strong and ardent, and her consecration was thorough. She was never so happy as when doing something to brighten and bless the lives of others. For thirty-three years she shared with her husband the varying fortunes of a career in the Methodist itinerancy, and exercised a wholesome and helpful influence in every community in which it was her lot to live and labor. Her health for a number of years had been precarious, and for several months she had been growing perceptibly weaker. So the summons which came a few days ago was not unexpected. It found her ready to meet her Lord and dwell with him in the Father's house. Having walked worthy of her high vocation, having kept the faith and finished her course, she has gone to reap the unending reward of the faithful. To the stricken and lonely husband, our sympathy goes out in fullest measure, and we pray that the Holy Spirit may strengthen and enable him to bear bravely up under the weight of this great sorrow.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Dr. T. B. Holloman, of Port Gibson, has lately visited relatives at Ittahena, Miss.

Rev. W. T. Griffin assisted Rev. A. J. Davis in a meeting at Porterville last week.

It has been announced that Bishop Denny will change his place of residence to Richmond, Va., on Sept. 1.

Dr. H. Walter Featherstun requests us to state that hereafter his address will be Port Gibson, Miss., instead of Gloster, Miss.

The meeting at Winnsboro, La., conducted by Rev. Walter G. Harbin, resulted in the accomplishment of much good. There were 23 applications for church membership.

In the absence of the pastor, the pulpit of the First Methodist Church of this city will be filled next Sunday at 11 a. m., by Rev. J. G. Snelling, pastor of the Carrollton Avenue Church.

Rev. T. W. Lewis, pastor of the First Methodist Church, of Memphis, has been spending some days at Chautauqua, New York. Rev. R. A. Clark, of the Second Church of the same city, is recreating at Atlantic City.

The Texas Christian Advocate states that Bishop Mouzon did some brilliant preaching during the recent encampment at Epworth-by-the-Sea. We are informed that the Bishop is expected to visit New Orleans soon.

Rev. C. A. Battle, of Lafayette, La., after a stay of several weeks in Alabama, passed through the city on Thursday, Aug. 24, en route home. He favored our office with a call, but unfortunately we were out and missed seeing him, which we much regret.

A picture post-card from Rev. T. M. Bradley, of Rosedale, Miss., written from Toronto, brings the news that he and Rev. W. H. Mounger, of Hollandale, have wandered north into Canada. He reports that they are seeing the sights and having a fine trip.

The Midland Methodist of August 23 says: "Dr. H. M. Ellis, Hospital Commissioner, is doing a good deal of office work during the heated term and absence of the people, preparatory to a big fall campaign in the interest of the Memphis Methodist Hospital."

Miss Elaine Griffin, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. W. T. Griffin, of Gulfport, has accepted the position of teacher of expression at Mansfield College. We congratulate President Peters and his Trustees upon having secured the services of this capable young instructor.

In forwarding some names to be placed on our subscription files Rev. H C. Gatlin, of Clinton, La., adds: "We began a meeting at Gilead on Sunday, Aug. 20, which is yet in progress. Rev. S. L. Riggs is helping me. I am keeping busy, and am pleased with the outlook."

We take off our hat to Pastor W. B. Ainsworth of the Estabutchie charge, Mississippi Conference, who forwarded us a club of eight subscribers, with a check to match, on the 21st inst. This is refreshing in these days of dearth. We assure our brother of our hearty appreciation.

Our long-time friend, Rev. J. M. Wyatt, now in charge of the church at Brookhaven, Miss., brought us under additional obligations a few days since for a list of subscribers. Brother Wyatt began a meeting Wednesday night of this week, and is being assisted in the services by Rev. C. N. Guice, of Summit.

A card just received from Rev. J. W. Ramsey announces that he has lately held a great meeting on the Moorsville charge, of which Rev. W. W. Hartsfield is pastor. Large crowds attended, the church was revived, several family altars were established, and there were a number of conversions and accessions.

President Countiss is meeting with gratifying success in his canvass for pupils for Grenada College. In a letter received a few days since, he said, "I think we shall have a full school." Let the Methodists of North Mississippi see that he does. There ought not to be a vacant room at this most excellent institution.

The report has reached us of a gracious revival at Tomnolen, on the Bellefontain work, North Mississippi Conference. The pastor, Brother Northington, had with him Rev. W. V. Shearer, whose preaching pleased the people. The church was quickened, the community stirred, and there were a number of names added to the church register.

Mr. E. E. S. McKenzie, who has been assistant to Rev. N. E. Joyner at St. Mark's Hall, has resigned and will enter Centenary College when that institution opens. He has been succeeded in the position vacated by Rev. Thomas Chisholm, a young Englishman who has applied for admission into the Louisiana Conference. Mr. McKenzie also is from England.

The city papers have announced that Dr. David Spence Hill has been elected to the chair of Education and Psychology in Tulane University and Newcomb College, and that he has accepted the position. Dr. Hill is a son of Dr. Felix R. Hill, president of Centenary College, and is an A.B. graduate of Randolph-Macon. He is an educator of distinction, and is well known as a writer on scientific subjects.

Mr. Edward C. Brewer, of Black Hawk, Miss., who was graduated from Millsaps College a year ago with a B.A. degree and who finished his Master of Arts course at Vanderbilt last June, has accepted a position to teach at Covington, Tenn. He is not yet twenty-one years of age, but is possessed of unusual brilliancy and a fine equipment for the work of teaching. The school engaging him has made no mistake.

A card from Mrs. A. J. Foster, whose husband was an esteemed member of the North Mississippi Conference, states that her son has accepted a position to teach in the high school at Burnet, Texas, and that the family will soon take up their residence at that place instead of at Georgetown. Mr. Foster's object in teaching is to earn means to prosecute his studies further, which he expects to do as soon as is practicable.

We were pained to learn of the death of Mr. John DeLoach, of Grenada, Miss., which occurred in Texas a few days since as a result of pulmonary trouble. The remains were brought home for interment. The deceased was a young man of worthy character, and his passing has saddened a wide circle of relatives and friends. We extend sympathy to the sorrowing ones, and pray that divine grace may comfort and sustain them.

A correspondent informs us that the work in the Monroe District is proceeding favorably under the leadership of Dr. S. S. Keener and his faithful band of assistants in that field. Dr. Keener is one of the strong men of the Louisiana Conference, and allows no interest of the Church to suffer in his hands. The charges over which he has supervision have held up surprisingly well, considering the fact that they are in the boll weevil section.

The last charge to join our Honor Roll is Byhalia, Miss., all of the officials of that work now receiving the Conference organ. The energetic pastor of this flock is Rev. J. W. Raper, who is in his third year, and who during his incumbency has liquidated the debt on the handsome new house of worship erected a few years ago and had it dedicated. All departments of the church are represented as being in a good condition.

In a personal note to the editor, President A. B. Peters expresses high appreciation of the excellent service which Rev. N. E. Joyner has been rendering in behalf of Mansfield College. Brother Joyner has not spared himself in seeking, along with others, to place this deserving institution upon a better financial footing, and he has contributed largely to the success which has been achieved. The meed of praise which Brother Peters accords him is well merited.

Rev. J. L. Sutton, superintendent of the New Orleans Home for the Relief of Destitute Orphan Boys, recently carried 45 of the boys under his care to the Seashore Camp Ground for a several days' outing. They report that they were accorded many courtesies by the people along the coast, and that the trip was a most enjoyable one in every respect. Brother Sutton's management of this excellent institution, which is non-denominational, has won him high praise.

Good news comes from Rochelle, La., which is connected with the Pollock charge. The pastor, Rev. A. R. Hoffpauir, has recently held an excellent meeting there, in which the preaching was done by Rev. A. W. Turner, of Mausfield, and the singing was conducted by Rev. F. J. McCoy. As a result of the labors of these brethren, a Methodist Church was organized with 25 members. Brother Hoffpauir is preaching twice a month at this point, and the outlook is promising.

Rev. C. A. Northington, of Bellefontaine, Miss., writes: "Our meeting at Walthall was one to be remembered. It was conducted during election week, yet the congregations were fairly good. The preaching was ably done by Rev. T. J. Halfacre, who has a habit of doing well what he undertakes. Our third quarterly conference was held while the services were in progress. Our beloved presiding elder, Rev. E. S. Lewis, was with us, and delivered a stirring sermon. Our Conference collections are well in hand."

Success is attending the labors of Rev. R. T. Pickett on the Coalville charge. He has been keeping up seven appointments and has held some fine meetings, in which he has had the assistance of Rev. W. T. Griffin, Rev. R. F. Witt, and Rev. R. T. Nolen. He began another series of revival services last Sunday, with Rev W. W. Moore to aid him. He states that the Palmer Creek Camp Meeting will begin on Sept. 30 and last until Oct. 8. Brother Pickett reports that his evangelistic efforts have added 20 members to the church. He has also been mindful of the interests of the Advocate in his rounds, and has sent in 40 subscribers during the year.

Dr. S. H. Werlein, pastor of the First Methodist Church, of New Orleans, accompanied by his son, Philip, took passage on the Steamship Atenas of the United Fruit Company, which sailed Saturday, the 26th inst., for Colon on the Isthmus of Panama. The round trip takes seventeen days, giving a week to visit points of interest and see the work of the canal. The ships of this company are comparatively new, with a uniform tonnage of five thousand, and with every appointment for the comfort of passengers. This is becoming a very popular trip with excursionists, and doubtless thousands will avail themselves of it before the great waterway is completed.

From a recent number of the Carrollton Conservative (Mississippi), we take the following: "North Carrollton has enjoyed a good series of meetings the past week. The people were delighted and benefited by the preaching of Rev. W. H. Saunders, who was pastor of the Carrollton Circuit fifteen years ago. To the freshness of style of those earlier years, Mr. Saunders has added maturity of thought; and this combination makes his sermons a delight and blessing. Mr. Saunders also has rare charm in the social circle. He is now filling an important pastorate in Vicksburg. His visit to our commnnity was an unmixed blessing."

Laying aside the cares of his large pastorate at Augusta, Ga., Dr. H. M. DuBose has been resting for a few days in the Mountains of Virginia. On the 22d inst., he journeyed to Atlantic City to be present at the final session of the Program Committee of the Ecumenical Methodist Conference, of which he is a member. He is much pleased with the order of exercises arranged for the great gathering, and predicts that the session will be a memorable one. For the benefit of Dr. DuBose's many friends in Mississippi, we take the liberty of quoting part of a letter written by him to the editor a few days since: "In Georgia I have found a home and a warm welcome from loyal hearts, but in the joy of new fellowships, I do not forget the old. Mississippi will always be a soil dear to me, and visited in daily dreams and memories. My faith looks forward, but my love will roam backward. I am happy in preaching. Hereafter I shall think only of how to make Christ real to men in a loving message."

As is usually the case during the summer season, the attendance upon the meeting of the Woman's City Board of Missions, which was held at St. Mark's Hall on Wednesday, Aug. 23, was not large. In the absence of the president, Mrs. W. W. Carre, Mrs. J. G. Snelling occupied the chair. Rev. N. E. Joyner, the superintendent, was ont of the city working in the interest of Mansfield College, and Miss Margaret Ragland, the head deaconess was on her vacation in Texas. Miss Roberta Baker and Miss Lottie Keithly were in charge and reported as to the status of the work. The cooking and sewing classes have been discontinned during the hot season, but the other kinds of instruction are going on. The clinic is well patronized, and if occasion requires, the workers at St. Mark's even carry their patients to specialists, that they may have the exact attention needed. The mission is having daily calls for aid from families in which the bread-winners are unable to secure employment, and it is felt that a hureau to help such persons to find work is an urgent necessity. Increased activity in all the enterprises of the mission in the early autnmn are in contemplation.

DR. H. B. BARTLETT
National Dental Parlors
Cor. Canal & Camp Sts.
ENTRANCE 106 CAMP
Phone Main 2193
NEW ORLEANS
Vitalized Air for Painless Extraction
Crown and Bridge Specialist.
The Largest and Best Equipped Dental Parlors South.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary, with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

Just as night had thrown off its dark mantle, and the glory of the day had begun to enlighten this beautiful world, the sainted spirit of DEWITT CRITZ winged its flight to his heavenly home on June 22, 1911. Farewell, dear child! Home is so lonely, so desolate without him! One less at home—one more in heaven. He has gone, but not forever. Yes, I will meet him.

"In that home of many mansions
Dwells my darling, young and fair;
Years of absence cannot change him,
For no changes enter there."

MOTHER.

MISS EMMA E. PACE, the subject of this memoir, was born Nov. 26, 1887, and died Sept. 7, 1910. She was reared in a Christian home. She was converted at home reading her Bible, after a revival meeting had closed in Arcadia some two or three days before. The Spirit of the Lord was doing his office work: "Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me." John v, 39. She joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, the Church of her mother and father, and lived a devoted Christian life until God called her home. How beautiful are the feet of them that preach the gospel! One does not have to have license from a church to preach. We all can preach by living a consecrated Christian life. The best service rendered our God is a consistent Christian life. Such was this young woman's life. To my mind there is nothing more beautiful than a young man or woman whose life is consecrated to the God who gave it. The last words the deceased spoke were, "Father, I want to have my heavenly home," and a few minutes later she fell asleep in Jesus. To her parents, Brother and Sister J. T. Pace, we extend deep sympathy, and pray the God of all grace to comfort them.

A. H. PARKER, P. C.

MRS. S. H. KELLEY (nee Campbell) was laid to rest in White Chapel cemetery, July 12, 1911. Mrs. Kelley was born at Barbrack, and lived there until she married, when she and her young husband moved to Gold Dust. After a few years there, they moved near Eola, La., where they purchased a home and reared a large family of industrious children. Mrs. Kelley joined the Methodist Church in 1883, and from that time until her death the church never had a more faithful member, nor the pastor a more loyal friend. Her home was always open to her pastor, and she loved for him to be one of the family group and mingle with her boys and girls, in whom she was so interested. For the last year of her life, she was a great sufferer, and while her faithful husband did all that one could do for her recovery and comfort, yet God knew best and took her unto himself. May the Father's richest blessings rest upon the lonely husband and children whom she left behind.

F. M. FREEMAN.

Bunkie, La.

CLARA MARTILE KINMAN was born Jan. 12, 1908, and departed this life, July 14, 1911, at 7 p. m. While nothing was left undone that loving hands could do to prolong the life of this precious little jewel, God in his own wisdom saw fit to take her home. As she was the only child of good parents, it was, indeed, hard for them to give her up. I count it a privilege to have known this sweet child. She was too pure and lovely for this world, so the Father transplanted her to his paradise above. The interment took place at New Prospect cemetery in the presence of a host of sorrowing relatives and friends. She was a general favorite, and it was one of the saddest funerals that I have ever conducted. I know that it is hard to have her taken away, but our loss is her gain. We do not sorrow as they who have no hope. Our most profound sympathy goes out to the bereaved and lonely parents, and we pray God's richest blessings upon them. How sweet in such an hour is the hope of meeting our loved ones in the Father's house, to dwell with them evermore! Her pastor,

R. H. BAMBURG.

Mrs. CORA E. WRIGHT (nee Bains) was born in Dallis County, Ala., June 15, 1855, and died at her home three miles east of Quitman, Miss., Feb. 6, 1911. She was the wife of J. Cope Wright. Twelve children were born to them, ten of them yet living to mourn with their father the sad death of a precious mother. She was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, about forty years ago; and has lived a consecrated life since, till her death. Her life was full of service to God and his cause, and to her family and neighbors. She never talked of anyone's faults, but of their good traits. She was untiring in her efforts to help those who needed help. Truly, she was "an Israelite indeed in whom is no guile." She was not sick but a few minutes. How comforting it should be to the relatives and friends that she was ready for the judgment. In the absence of her pastor, Rev. H. S. Westbrook, we, her former pastor, laid her to rest in the Cooper's Chapel Cemetery, in the presence of a host of relatives and friends.

GEO. P. FIKES.

Pachuta, Miss.

Marriages

Aug. 9, 1911, at the parsonage in Harrisville, Miss., by Rev. R. T. Nolen, Mr. R. A. LEWIS, of Pearl, Miss., to Miss FLOID MILEY, of Merritt, Miss.

HIBERNIA INSURANCE CO.,
Capital.....$200,000.00
Assets..... 479,860.99
No. 305 Camp Street., New Orleans, La.
LOSSES PROMPTLY PAID.

SNOWDRIFT
HOGLESS LARD
Snowdrift Hogless Lard is positively the first, the ORIGINAL hogless, digestible shortening. There are imitations on the market, that should be treated AS IMITATIONS! Which would you prefer, steak, or imitation steak? Apply the same preference to shortening. Get "SNOWDRIFT." One-third less expensive, one-third more value. Makes delicious cake.
Snowdrift Hogless Lard is sold by all leading grocers who avoid "substitution" business. Buy in tins only. U. S. Inspected.
Made by
The Southern Cotton Oil Co.
New York, Savannah, New Orleans, Chicago
E-2
THE KIND THEY ALL IMITATE
SNOWDRIFT

LOUISIANA RAILWAY
(La. R'y & Nav. Co.)
—THE SHORT LINE BETWEEN—
Shreveport; Alexandria;
Baton Rouge; New Orleans.
THE COMFORTABLE ROUTE FOR PASSENGERS
QUICKEST ROUTE FOR FREIGHT
LESS THAN CARLOAD SHIPMENTS HAULED IN PACKAGE CARS IN THROUGH TRAINS.

L&N Louisville & Nashville R.R.
THE DIRECT LINE TO NORTH AND EAST
ELECTRIC LIGHTED STEEL SLEEPERS
DINING CARS, OBSERVATION CARS, CHAIR CARS
Phone M 4093. TICKET OFFICE 201 ST. CHARLES STREET.

Use the L. & A. Railway
When you travel go via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY, The Road That Is Always on Time. FIRST-CLASS EQUIPMENT; Gravel Ballasted Track; 75 Pound Steel Rails; The Best of Service in Every Respect. Double Daily Passenger Service; Two Trains Each Way Daily.
OUR FREIGHT SERVICE IS UNEXCELLED.
When you order or ship freight if you want quick and satisfactory service, instruct your shipments routed via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY. Our motto is "EVER ON TIME."
F. W. GREEN, General Superintendent. Stamps, Ark.
S. S. ATKINSON, Gen. Frt. and Pass. Agt., Texarkana, Ark.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

NORTH MISS. CONFERENCE.

Aberdeen Dist.—Fourth Round.

Nettleton Ct., at Shiloh	Sept.	9, 10
Montpelier, at Foster's Chapel	Sept.	16, 17
Smithville	Sept.	23, 24
Amory and Nettleton	Sept.	24, 25
Palestine	Sept.	28, 30
Pontotoc	Oct.	1, 2
Beuna Vista, at Ebenezer	Oct.	7, 8
Prairie, at Prairie	Oct.	8, 9
Verona, at Verona	Oct.	14, 15
Shannon, at S	Oct.	15, 16
Houlka, at Concord	Oct.	21, 22
Houston	Oct.	22, 23
Pittsboro, at Pine R	Oct.	28, 29
V. and C. City, at C. City	Oct.	29, 30
Derma, at Rhodes Chp	Nov.	4, 5
Wren, at Tranquil	Nov.	8
Aberdeen	Nov.	8
Greenwood Springs	Nov.	11, 12
Okolona Circuit	Nov.	12, 13
Tremont, at Asbury	Nov.	18, 19
Fulton, at Vanburen	Nov.	19, 20

No business session of the conference will be held until Sept. 23. Tupelo, Okolona, Amory and Nettleton, Nettleton Circuit, and Montpelier will have their conferences at pleasure.

I will preach on the Wren Circuit, Sunday, Sept. 3, holding their business session as indicated. We are to send to conference the best report in the history of the Aberdeen District. Take due notice, brethren, and govern yourselves accordingly.

JAMES H. FELTS, P. E.

Columbus Dist.—Fourth Round.

Starkville	Sept.	2, 3
Shuqualak	Sept.	10, 11
West Point	Sept.	17, 18
Brooksville	Sept.	23, 24
Macon	Sept.	24, 25
Matbiston	Sept.	30, Oct. 1
Crawford	Oct.	7, 8
Columbus, First Ch	Oct.	15, 17
Columbus, Second Ch	Oct.	15, 18
Mashulaville	Oct.	21, 22
Cochrane	Oct.	28, 29
Cedar Bluff	Nov.	4, 5
Columbus Circuit	Nov.	8
Sturgis	Nov.	11, 12
Starkville Circuit	Nov.	18, 19
Mayhew	Nov.	25, 26

Will the pastors please be ready to answer question 31 and see that the trustees are ready to answer in full question 32? J. E. THOMAS, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Meridian Dist.—Third Round.

Waynesboro Circuit, at Fedora	Sept.	2, 3
DeSoto, at Hopewell	Sept.	9, 10
Meridian, 7th Ave	Sept.	13
Meridian, Poplar Spgs	Sept.	14
Waynesboro	Sept.	17, 18
Bucatunna, at ——.—	Sept.	19
Meridian, South Side	Sept.	20

W. H. LEWIS, P. E.

Seashore Dist.—Fourth Round.

Howison and Saucier, at Lyman	Sept. 24, Nov.	23
Columbia	Oct. 1, Nov.	20
Brooklyn and Bond, at Brooklyn	Oct.	4
Americus, at Salem	Oct.	7, 8
Hub, at Hub	Oct.	14, 15
Mentorum, at Pine G	Oct.	20
Vancleave, at New Prospect	Oct.	21, 22
Gulfport, 29th St	Oct.	25
Lumberton	Oct. 29, Nov.	20
Mississippi City	Nov.	1
Poplarville	Nov.	5, 18
Pascagoula	Nov.	10
Moss Point	Nov.	11, 12
Escatawpa, at Escatawpa	Nov.	11, 12
Biloxi, Main St	Nov.	15
Derby, at Derby	Nov.	7
Carriere and McNeil, at Carriere	Nov.	18, 19
Oakvale, at Oakville	Nov.	21
Long Beach	Nov.	22, Dec. 2
Wolf River Mission 10 a.m.	Nov.	23
Coalville	Nov.	24
Bay St. Louis	Nov.	25, 26
Logton	Nov.	27
Gulfport, 25th Ave	Nov. 29, Dec.	2
McHenry and Wiggins, at Wiggins	Nov.	30

W. B. JONES, P. E.

Newton Dist.—Third Round.

Philadelphia	Fri. Sept.	1
Neshoba, at Sand Town	Sept.	2, 3
Hillsboro, at Prairie Hill, Friday	Sept.	8,
Forest, at Lena	Sept.	9, 10
Indian Mission, at Neshoba	Sept.	16
Stallo, at Neshoba	Sept.	16, 17
Newton	Wed. Sept.	20

T. J. O'NEIL, P. E.

Port Gibson Dist.—Third Round.

Nebo, at Oak Grove	Sept.	2, 3
Wilkinson, at Mars Hill	Sept.	9
Woodville	Sept.	10
Hermanville, at Sarepta	Sept.	16
Natchez, Pearl St	Sept.	17
Rocky Springs, at Willows	Sept.	23, 24
Oak Ridge, at Bovina	Sept.	30
Vicksburg, South Washington Street	Oct.	1
Centreville	Oct.	4
Homochitto, at Mt. Vernon	Oct.	6

H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN, P. E.

Brookhaven District—Third Round.

Adams, at Ebenezer	Sept.	1,
Meadville, at Ediceton	Sept.	2,
Pearlhaven, at Bethel	Sept.	3,
Brookhaven	Sept.	3, 4
Summit, at East McComb	Sept.	10,
McComb, Centenary	Sept.	10, 11
Monticello, at Georgetown	Sept.	16, 17
Scotland at Bethesda	Sept.	23, 24

J. T. LEGGETT, P. E.

Hattiesburg Dist.—Third Round.

McLain, at Cross Roads	Sept.	2, 3
Eastabuchie, at McLaurin	Sept.	,7
Eucutta, at Broyls	Sept.	9, 10
Sanford, at Sanford	Sept.	16, 17
Seminary, at Bethel	Sept.	20

District Conference at Richton, July 11-14. The conference will organize on the 11th at 8:30 p. m. All members are requested to be present at the organization.

M. B. SHARBROUGH, P. E.

Jackson Dist.—Third Round.

Fannin, at Holly Bush	Sept.	6
Jackson, Galloway Chp	Sept.	10
Yazoo City 7:30 p. m.	Sept.	13
Bolton, at Brownsville	Sept.	16, 17
Satartia	Sept.	23, 24

J. R. JONES, P. E

LUTHER'S GREATEST SERVICE.

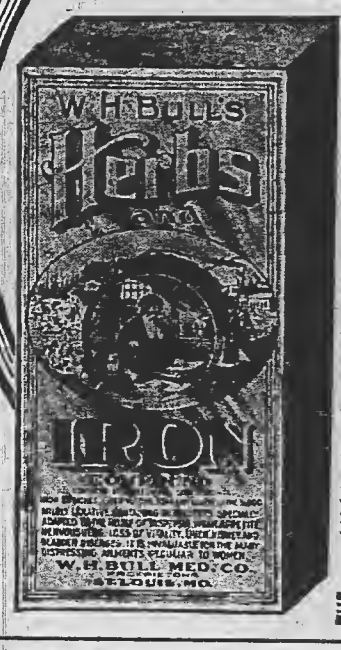
"Luther's greatest service to the modern world," says Dr. McGiffert in the September "Century" chapters of his serial, "Martin Luther and His Work," "lay in his recognition of the normal human relationships as the true sphere for the development of the highest religious, as of the highest moral, character. He performed an incalculable service in dignifying married life and ascribing to it a sacredness above the career of monk or nun. Instead of a temptation to a less perfect way of living, as woman was too commonly represented by the religious teachers of the middle ages, he saw in her one ordained of God to be the companion and helpmate of man, and in their union, not in their separation, he found the ideal life. Religion had been making too much of the abnormal."

PROOF

What better proof of the superior merits of a remedy could you ask for than the fact that druggists use it themselves as well as recommended it to the public.

Danceyville, Tenn. 6-8-10
I recommend Herbs & Iron to anyone for anything you recommed it to do. Especially nervous and broken down people. I felt tired and nervous all the time, until one day thought I would try a bottle of Herbs & Iron. Having it in stock, tried a 50c bottle, and I feel like a new man now. Am not nervous as I was, nor tired, have more life than ever before, and truly think it is due to Herbs & Iron. It is the medicine for anyone.
Yours, D. C. Crawford.

Read What Dr. Crawford Says About
W.H. BULL'S HERBS and IRON



Ninety-nine times out of a hundred, poor health is due to weak, impoverished and impure blood. In fact, the blood is the very life of the body, and it is impossible to be well and strong with bad blood.

W. H. Bull's HERBS and IRON makes pure, rich, red blood. It cleanses the bowels, regulates the Liver and Kidneys, insures perfect digestion, gives you a hearty and natural appetite, steadies the nerves and Gives Health, Strength and Vigor.

Get a bottle from your druggist today, use two-thirds of it, and if you are not thoroughly satisfied that it is improving your health, return the remainder to him, and your money will be refunded.

There is Work for an IHC Gasoline Engine Every Day

It will separate your cream, grind or cut feed, run your wood-saw—pump—fanning mill—thresher—electric light plant—washing machine—save you time and money on all the thousand and one jobs around the place.

A few cents' worth of fuel—a turn of the wheel—and it will work for hours—without watching or bother—taking care of its end of the work and leaving you free to do yours.

An I H C Engine is not only wonderfully serviceable and economical, but with proper care it will last for years. Its construction guarantees smooth, steady running—its few simple parts make it most durable. The perfect accessibility of every part makes it easy to clean and keep in perfect condition. And, just as important, our line guarantees of just the right size and style to do your special work to the best advantage.

An I H C Engine for Your Individual Need

Vertical type—2, 3, 25, and 35-H.P.; horizontal—1 to 25-H.P.; semi-portable—1 to 8-H.P.; portable—1 to 25-H.P.; traction—12 to 45-H.P.; sawing, pumping, spraying, and grinding outfits, etc. —built to operate on gas, gasoline, kerosene, distillate, or alcohol—air cooled or water cooled. See the I H C local dealer, or, write today for catalogue, or any information desired.

International Harvester Company of America
(Incorporated)
Chicago USA

I H C Service Bureau

The purpose of this Bureau is to furnish farmers with information on better farming. If you have any worthy questions concerning soils, crops, pests, fertilizer, etc., write to the I H C Service Bureau, and learn what our experts and others have found out concerning those subjects.

Death Lurks In A Weak Heart

If Yours is fluttering or weak, use "RENOVINE." Made by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn. Price $1.00

"WHERE'S MOTHER."

Bursting in from school or play,
This is what the children say,
Trooping, crowding, big or small,
On the threshold, in the hall—
Joining in the constant cry,
Ever as the days go by:
"Where's Mother?"

From the weary bed of pain
This same question comes again;
From the boy with sparkling eyes,
Bearing home his earliest prize:
From the bronzed and bearded son,
Perils past and honors won:
"Where's Mother?"

Burdened with a lonely task,
One day we may vainly ask
For the comfort of her face,
For the rest of her embrace;
Let us love her while we may,
Well for us that we can say:
"Where's Mother?"

—Western Christian Advocate.

BARLOW CIRCUIT.

Dear Dr. Meek: For several days I've been thinking of writing up this work, but have not had the time until now. Let it be understood in the outset that this is not an obituary; for the Barlow Circuit is not dead. There are many good people here who are still alive to the cause of Christ. On Friday, before the first Sunday in August, they began pounding us thick and heavy, and by the time they had finished, my wife declared that we were better off than the fellow who never had thirty days rations at one time. We started our meeting at old Rehoboth Church the first Sunday in August and closed the following Friday evening. Brother W. M. Sullivan, of McComb City, Miss., did the preaching. Those who have heard Brother Sullivan say that he is a great preacher, and I am disposed to believe that his work here at Barlow was superior to any that he has done before. He was in perfect health and fully equipped with the preparation of the gospel. Eternity alone will give the results of his faithful labors. There were several bright conversions, and six were added to the church on profession of faith. It was not merely a surface work, but a deep and ethical process, a breaking up of fallow ground, and the church was much revived. We start our meeting at Brandywine the fourth Sunday in this month. We are expecting Brother W. J. Ferguson, of Brooklyn, to do the preaching. Our hearts are in the work. C. A. SCHULTZ.

THE REVIVAL CAMPAIGN ON THE DENHAM SPRINGS CHARGE.

We began the work at my home town, Denham Springs, Louisiana, on June 27. Rev. P. H. Howse, of Hattieburg, Miss., came to assist me, and was with us seven days, preaching powerful gospel sermons. The church was much revived. Only one accession.

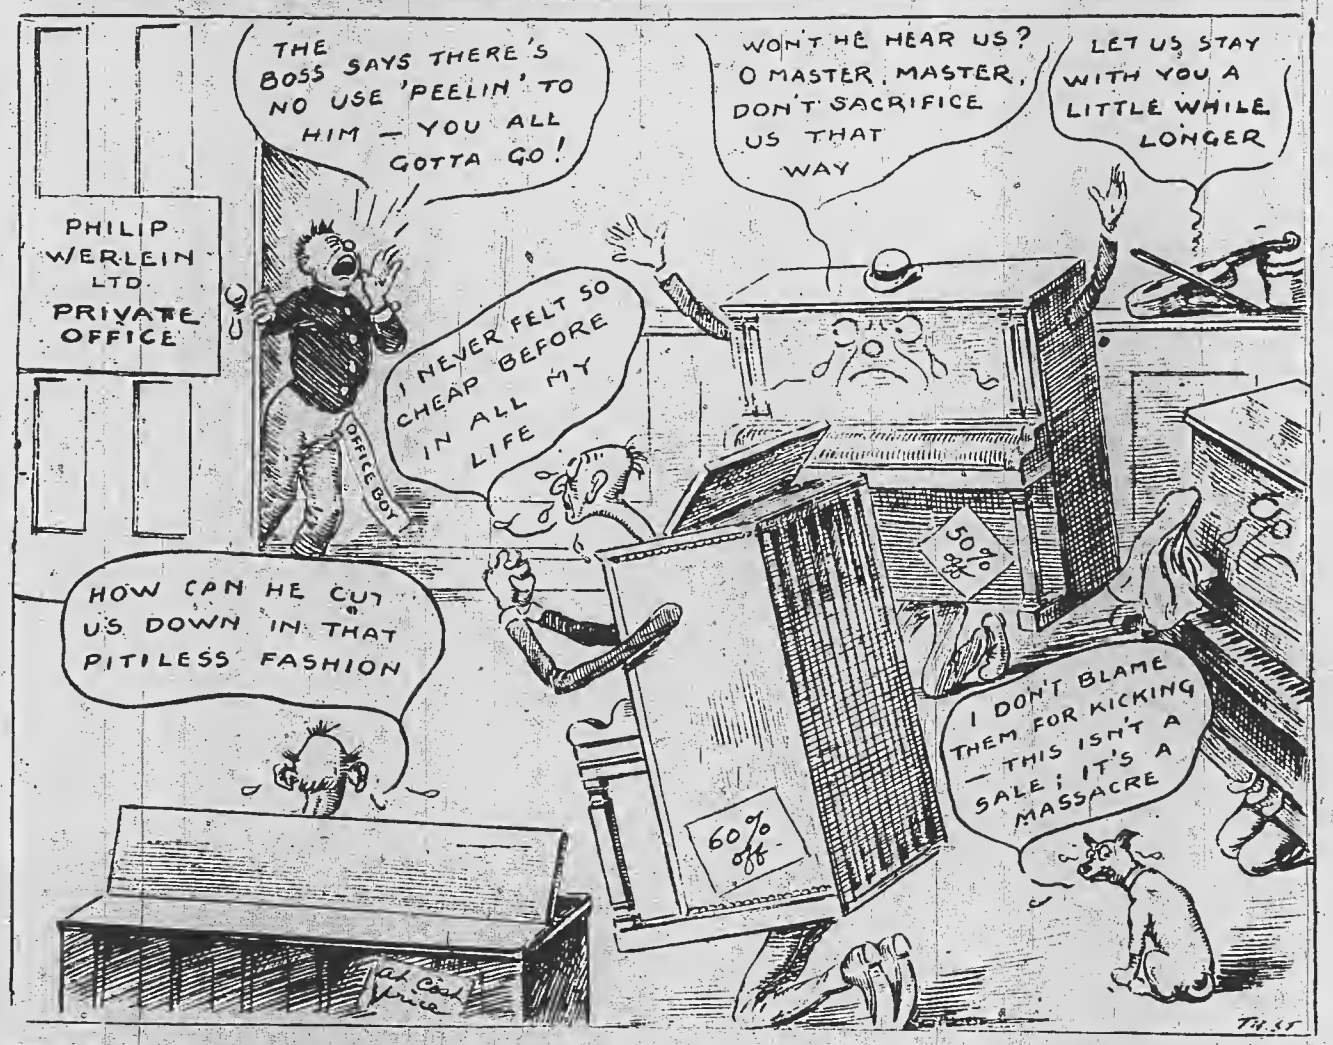
From there we went to Palmetto, where we labored for nine (rainy) days. We had a great outpouring of God's Spirit in the salvation of souls. Twenty were added to the church. Brother Howse is excellent help, and left us in great favor with my people. I heartily recommend him to any brother needing an evangelist.

I next began at Live Oak, Rev. J. M. Alford coming to my assistance on Monday. Though the rains still came in torrents, we had a glorious revival. There were fourteen accessions, twelve family altars were established and a number of infants were baptized. The people were pleased with Brother Alford, and attended every service possible. By the faithful presentation of God's Word, he got the ear of many of our church members and succeeded in causing them to see that their lives were far beneath God's ideal for them. Indeed, he inspired them to seek to become what God would have them be. I feel that much lasting good was accomplished.

Next I opened up at Friendship, where the pastor did the preaching until Tuesday, when Rev. S. D. Howard arrived and preached for four days. Here he was on an old "battlefield" and fought valiantly. We added eleven names to our church roll, and greatly revived the membership. We all love Brother Howard, and pray that God may long allow him to unfurl the banner of Prince Immanuel.

Lastly, my brother, Rev. J. B. Fulton, came to my assistance at Alford's Chapel. From the beginning all went well. Five were added to the church. During the meeting, Brother Miller held our quarterly conference. He gave us one masterful sermon, baptized six children, partook of the excellent repast spread hy the good ladies for the occasion, held the conference and passed on. Brother Miller is well heloved on my charge, due to the excellence of his service and his charming personality.

Thus ended our revival campaign. We have received up to date, altogether, 72 members and baptized 39 infants. I am well pleased, having a loyal, lovable people to serve, and pray that God will continue to shower his spiritual blessings upon them, even more than he has been showering. RALEIGH V. FULTON, P. C.



THE BOSS SAYS THERE'S NO USE 'PEELIN' TO HIM — YOU ALL GOTTA GO!
WON'T HE HEAR US? O MASTER, MASTER, DON'T SACRIFICE US THAT WAY
LET US STAY WITH YOU A LITTLE WHILE LONGER
PHILIP WERLEIN LTD. PRIVATE OFFICE
OFFICE BOY
I NEVER FELT SO CHEAP BEFORE IN ALL MY LIFE
HOW CAN HE CUT US DOWN IN THAT PITILESS FASHION
50% off
60% off
I DON'T BLAME THEM FOR KICKING — THIS ISN'T A SALE; IT'S A MASSACRE

Philip Werlein, Limited, are about to commence work on the extension in their Chartres Street Annex.

There never was a time when you could buy a piano so cheaply as you can now. Price reductions greater than ever before must be made by this firm to move their large stock from risk of damage, and it is advertised that the person who wants a piano within reason can dictate his own price and terms throughout the coming week. The person with cash can make his own price on new and slightly used pianos, and by that is meant that any reasonable businesslike proposition will be considered, and therefore, people who will be interested in the piano proposition within the next year or so will find it advisable to make the purchase now. Those in the city should call at once. Those out of the city should take the matter up by letter, telegraph, or long-distance telephone.

For the protection of out-of-town customers, Philip Werlein, Limited, will exchange any instrument purchased at this sale for any new piano of like or greater value in their house up to January 1st.

It is not necessary to say any more—the whole story has been given, and the careful and prudent buyer will take advantage of this sale.

(E1) Mathushek, standard size, upright, mahogany, worth new $450; price $260; terms, $5 cash, $5 monthly.

(E2) Wegman, standard size, upright, mahogany case, worth new $400; price $220; terms, $5 cash, $5 monthly.

(E3) Werlein, mahogany case, another of the regular $400 pianos, used less than a month, practically new, guaranteed in perfect condition; price $265; terms, $5 cash, $5 monthly.

(E4) Mathushek, large size, ebony case, two pedals, carved desk board, good condition, worth new $500, now $215; $5 cash and $5 monthly.

(E5) Story & Clark, medium size, upright, walnut case, worth new $425; price $280; terms, $5 cash and $5 a month.

(E6) Werlein, medium size, upright, mahogany case; price new $292; now $190; $5 cash and $5 a month.

(E7) Haines Bros., standard size, upright, dark oak case, 3 pedals; price new $450; now $230; terms, $5 cash and $5 a month.

(E8) Steinway, small size, 2 pedals, ebony case, good condition; price new $550; now $170; terms, $5 cash and $5 a month.

(E9) Fischer, medium size, upright, mahogany case, 3 pedals; price new $400; now $175; $5 cash and $5 a month.

(E10) Everett, medium size, ebony case, open fretwork panel, 2 pedals; $350 new; now $135; terms, $5 casn and $5 a month.

Unequaled Bargains in New Pianos:

(1) Mathushek—discontinued style, walnut case, plain panel, dull satin finish, $425; now $340; $10 cash, $10 monthly.

(2) Wegman—Discontinued style, mahogany, $450; now $292; $10 cash, $7 monthly.

(3) Pease—Discontinued style, mahogany, always $375; now $300; $10 cash, $8 monthly.

(4) Story & Clark—Discontinued style, mahogany, $425; now $330; $10 cash, $8 monthly.

PHILIP WERLEIN LIMITED,
605, 607, 609 CANAL STREET.

Weber, Chickering, Mathushek and Werlein Pianos, Steinway and other Pianola Pianos, Victor Talking Machines, Sheet Music.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children, 50c.

A HORSE COLLAR WITHOUT HAMES OR PADS.

Every farmer and teamster, who has suffered annoyance, inconvenience and loss from the use of leather collars with hames that cause sore shoulders on his horses and mules, should send for the book telling how and why Indestructible Hameless Metal Collars not only prevent, but will actually cure while working, the sores on the shoulders and necks of work animals.

There is proof that it is the ideal horse collar in all climates and under all conditions.

That they are cheaper because they can't wear out, and because there are no hames, straps or sweat pads to buy.

That they are better because they are lighter and stronger.

That they save time whenever the team is hooked up or unharnessed.

That they are easily and quickly attached to any style of harness.

No farmer or teamster can afford to use the old style of collar and hames with its drawing, rolling, puckering, pinching motion, which rubs the flesh into sores.

It's economy: it's convenience; it's horse comfort to use a hard, perfectly adjusted and carefully fitted metal collar.

Write to-day for catalog and prices. Johnston-Slocum Co., 615 State Street, Caro, Michigan.

Epworth League Department.

(Conducted by Rev. H. B. Watkins, Magnolia, Miss., to whom all communications concerning League matters should be addressed.)

TOPIC FOR SEPT. 3, 1911.

(Epworth League Rally Day.)

THE SUPREME MOTIVE POWER.

II Cor. v, 13-14; John xiii, 34; John iii, 16.

What Is Motive Power?

"Motive" is defined by the Century Dictionary as "a mental state or force which induces an act of volition; a determining impulse; a gratification contemplated as the final course of a certain action of the one desiring it."

Thus, when Herodias demanded the head of John the Baptist, her motive was not merely to secure the head itself; it was the gratification which satisfied her desire for revenge. "Revenge is sweet," is a common saying, expressing a motive power which has a very strong hold on ordinary human frailty.

Physchologically, motive power has its seat in the affections. It demands that the will gratify its desire. Reason may resist its demand; but too frequently the will surrenders to the affections rather than to the reason.

For this reason our subject is of great practical importance, for if the motives of a man's heart are right his life will be one complete victory; if the impulses of the heart are impure or wrongful, many defeats and a continual warfare will often discourage even the sincere seeker after God.

Guarding the Affections.

Few men have power to resist the impulses of their affections and the demands of their physical appetites. For that reason, a man should begin at the beginning and guard his affections and curb his appetites rather than to attempt, too often ineffectually, to resist them, when, escaping from the seat of the affections, they come charging like hungry lions upon the will of a man demanding gratification.

There are many bad motives that lie dormant in the human heart, waiting the exciting cause to arouse them to action; the human heart is therefore said to be "deceitful above all things and desperately wicked." Many good people seek to elude this declaration as "too extravagant." They say, "surely it is not true of this beautiful little girl of twelve years." And yet, only recently "a beauntiful little girl 12 years old," in a fit of rage at her brother, threw a fork at him and killed him. She was arrested and charged with murder, but the law was lenient in its punishment. And yet hideous murder lurked in that young child's heart. "Whoso hateth his brother is a murderer." 1 John III, 15.

No man or woman, boy (or girl), therefore is safe from these dangerous and hideous impulses that lie dormant in every heart until he has rid himself of them by what is known as the process of displacement—that is, by encouraging stronger and better motives to rule his effections.

Good and Bad Motives.

No better catalogue of good and bad motives could be written than the list Paul gave to the Galatians (v, 19-24) to-wit:

"Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these: Aduitery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, murders, drunkenness, revellings and such like, of which I tell you before, as I have told you in time past, that they which do such things, shall not inherit the kingdom of God."

"But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law."

Think now, think often on this catalogue of the fruits of the Spirit. Open the window of the heart wide and bid every one of them to come in. And then, as sunshine drives out before it the mice and vermin of some dark, damp tenement, so will the hideous monsters and vermin that defile our affections slink away before the Spirit of God.

Expuisive Power of a Good Motive.

The expuisive power of a good motive or a strong affection is now well recognized. The though has inspired many great sermons and some recent books.

But the idea is not a new one. St. Paul understood it when he admonished the Romans to "overcome evil with good."

Negative resistance to evil is doomed to failure. That is why God never said that we must be good in order to be saved. The forces of evil are too powerful for the ordinary human will. St. Paul's will was about as strong as anybody's and yet he records his own dismal failure in "trying to be good," by merely resisting evil. Read Romans vii, 15-25.

But St. Paul finally discovered the secret of victory. Read carefully, Romans viii, 11-13. That secret was surrender of the heart and its affections completely to the Holy Spirit. Remember God does not require us to remove anger, hate, jealousy, etc., but we must be sure that our desire to have them removed is sincere. Then will God's Spirit move in bringing with him the new affection and by the same operations "crucifying the flesh and the lusts thereof." This is the way and the only way that God promises victory over the temptations of the heart. Read Romans viii, 13, over again until the way of victory is clearly comprehended.

The Greatest Motive Power.

Love is the world's greatest motive power. Nothing so satisfies the human heart as love.

Even God cannot think of any higher conception of himself than love. Omnipotent power is not as great as perfect love. God is love and love therefore, what there is of it in this world, is the rarest and most delicate of the flowers of heaven, taking root here and there in human hearts that make a place for it.

Practice love. If love is indeed a passion, a motive so overpowering that every other impulse of the heart withers before it, practice it that it may become the stronger by exercise.

Practice it by loving your child, your father, your mother, your friend, your enemy.

The Love of Christ.

But, above all earthly love is the love of Christ. Not our love for Christ, which is often too weak and vacillating, but God's love for us.

It is this love that attracts the prodigal son who has strayed from the father's house and gone into the far country rather than the fear of punishment.

This love of God, of course, is seen only in Christ, through whom only we have access to the Father, and Paul therefore says, in one of the references given in this topic: "The love of Christ constraineth us."—St. Louis Christian Advocate.

Some League Aims.

Every League chapter should aim at a larger attendance at all its meetings. Empty seats are not very inspiring, and there are a multitude of young people who ought to be at the meetings, and many more who would be there if only they were invited to come.

Aim to secure a larger membership. Not half our young people belong to any Christian organization. It is surely the business of the Epworth League to win the young people of the community, and if they are not in the Church and League, why are they not there?

Aim to build up a more intelligent and loyal membership. Get your members to read, and think, and study. Study our own great church; know what Methodism is; start a mission study class in every chapter. Get in touch with the great world movements of our day.

Aim at more thoroughness in every department of League work. Raise the standard higher. Make each one feel that his work is important work, and that each one is expected to do his best. Aim high!—Pittsburg Christian Advocate.

Here it is (By Mahaffey) NEW LIGHT ON BAPTISM Facts found in the Original Authority under which John first baptized prove that Sprinkling was the Original Mode. No more doubt about it. 68 page book. Only 10c THE BIBLE MODE CO., Box C, Clinton, S. C.

ROYALINE OIL

Stongest and Best

ANTISEPTIC

Stops Pain----Heals Wounds.

Use it for Burns, Cuts, Sprains, Bruises, Headache, Toothache, Earache, Sore Eyes, Sore Mouth, Sore Throat, Sore Muscles, Sore Feet, Sore Joints. For External and Internal use. Pleasant, Clean, Safe.

There is nothing "just as good". Try it and you will use no other. It has stood the test for nearly twenty years.

10c, 25c, 50c Druggists.

ROYALINE MED. CO., Ltd., New Orleans, Sole Proprs.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Monroe Dist.—Third Round.

Mangham, at Boueff River	Sept. 2, 3
Eros, at Indian Village	Sept. 6
Winnsboro, at Boueff Prairie	Sept. 9, 10
Rayville	Sept. 13
Florence	Sept. 17, 18
Merrouge	Sept. 20

District Conference will meet in Rayville, July 26, 10 a. m.

S. S. KEENER, P.E.

Baton Rouge Dist.—Third Round.

St. Helena, at Pine R.	Sept. 2, 3
Kentwood	Sept. 3, 4
P. Grove, at Pipkin's	Sept. 6
Port Vincent, at Mauripas	Sept. 9, 10
St. Francisville, at Tunica	Sept. 16, 17
N. Roads, at Morganza	Sept. 23, 24

C. C. MILLER, P. E.

Ruston District—Third Round.

Lanesville, at Brushwood	Sept. 2, 3
Lisbon, at New Hope	Sept. 9,10
Houghton, at Doilline	Sept. 16, 17
Cotton Valley, Pleas. Val.	Sept. 23, 24
Minden	Sept. 24, 25

R. W. TUCKER, P. E.

Alexandria District—Third Round.

Alexandria	Sept. 1
Selma	Sept. 3, 4
Opelousas	Sept. 10, 11
Glenmora	Sept. 13
Colfax, at Atlanta	Sept. 17, 18
Pelville, at Simmesport	Sept. 24, 25
Bunkie, at Cheneyville	Sept. 26

Special attention will be given to questions 18, 21, and 23.

PAUL M. BROWN, P. E.

Fits We want every person suffering with fits to write for a sample bottle of our remedy, and booklet. Sent by mail FREE. Try it at our expense.
DR. TOWNS MEDICAL CO., Fond du Lac, Wis.

AGENTS WANTED In every town and city, also traveling men, to sell our new line of fine toilet preparations. Part or full time. Good commission. Pleasant work. No experience necessary. One agent sold 144 dozen of the Antiseptic Soap alone within the last week. Write for samples and terms to-day. Fine opportunity for live men and women.
The Liquozone Company,
30-32 W. Kinzie Street, Chicago, Ill.

ESTABLISHED 1858 CHURCH AND SCHOOL BELLS
Write for SPECIAL DONATION PLAN Cat. No. 57
THE C. S. BELL COMPANY, HILLSBORO, O.

BEST THING MADE.

April 28, 1910, Dothan, Ala.
I began handling Johnston's Tonic in Blakely, Ga., in 1884. In 1892, moved to Dothan, Ala. Have sold more than 1000 bottles. Use it in my family for Colds, Fever and La Grippe. In all the years I have been selling it, never had but 2 complaints. Both parties admitted afterwards they had not used it right.
H. Q. FRAZIER.

April 13, 1910, Greenwood, S. C.
I have used Johnson's Tonic in my family for 9 years. It is all you claim for it and more too. It cured me of Typhus Hemorrhagic Fever. I would have been under the sod 9 years ago but for JOHNSON'S. Tell this to the world. It may save some man's life.
A. P. ALDRICH.

Drives every trace and taint of Malarial Poison from the Blood.

A SPLENDID TONIC.

Cora, Ky.—Mrs. Iva Moore, of this place, says, "I was so weak, I could hardly walk. I tried Cardui, and was greatly relieved. It is a splendid tonic. I have recommended Cardui to many friends, who tried it with good results." Testimony like this comes unsolicited, from thousands of earnest women, who have been benefited by the timely use of that successful tonic medicine, Cardui. Purely vegetable, mild, but reliable, Cardui well merits its high place in the esteem of those who have tried it. It relieves women's pains, and strengthens weak women. It is certainly worth a trial. Your druggist sells Cardui.

Dr Tichenor's Antiseptic

WELCOME RELIEF

Follows the use of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic on the face after shaving.

Mix with five parts water and bathe the face well each time—and your shaving troubles will all be over.

No more Chafing, Stinging, Chapping or Soreness if you will do this.

"It's soothing coolness is delightful."

ALL DRUGGISTS - 25 AND 50 CENTS

ASK ANY ONE WHO HAS EVER USED IT!

VANDERBILT University

1,000 Students 100 Teachers

Campus of 80 Acres

also

New Campus for Departments of Medicine and Dentistry

Expenses low. Literary course for graduates and undergraduates. Professional courses in Engineering, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Theology. Send for catalog, naming department. (1)

J. E. HART, Secretary. Nashville, Tenn.

RANDOLPH-MACON ACADEMY. For Boys and Young Men

Fits for college, scientific schools or business. Work endorsed by over 30 colleges and universities. Beautiful and healthful location. Athletic grounds; gymnasium. Terms, $250. No extras. For catalogue, address

E. SUMTER SMITH, Principal, Bedford City, Va.

ESTEY CHURCH ORGANS.

The ESTEY is the world's best Organ. The KOHLER & CAMPBELL PIANO is in every particular first class; satisfaction guaranteed in every case; freight paid; low cash price on easy payments without interest. Write for Catalogues.

J. M. BASS, Pastor Meth't Ch'ch. Brookville, Miss.

QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Best & Quickest Service

TO ALL IMPORTANT DESTINATIONS

In the North & East

Summer Tourist Tickets now on Sale to all Mountain, Lake and Seaside Resorts.

—Ticket Office—

211 ST. CHARLES STREET

Phone Main 4482

Terminal Station---Canal Street

VISIT

MINERAL WELLS

—FOR—

HEALTH AND PLEASURE

AND

WEST TEXAS

—For—

FINE AGRICULTURAL LANDS REACHED VIA

THE TEXAS T&P PACIFIC RAILWAY

EXCURSION TICKETS ON SALE DAILY.

Free Booklet.

E. P. TURNER,

General Passenger Agent.

DALLAS - - - - - TEXAS

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days, usually gives entire relief 15 to 45 days and effects cure 30 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box X, ATLANTA, GA.

The Sunday School.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Rev. P. O. Lowrey.

The Union Sunday school in South Mansfield has organized a cradle roll department, with Miss Gertrude Harris, as superintendent. Mrs. A. J. Shelton is superintendent of the home department, assisted by Mrs. Harris.

* * *

A home department, with Mrs. D. H. Sebastian as superintendent, and a cradle roll, with Mrs. G. B. Heard, superintendent, has been organized at Benson, and in other ways the school is planning to move forward.

* * *

A member of a senior class of young ladies of the Lake Charles Sunday school testifies that she has "the sweetest teacher in the world" in the person of Mrs. Drake, the mother of our pastor there. This spontaneous and sincere tribute to the friendly shepherding and capable teaching of this mother in Israel suggests in a practical way that "it is better to wear out than to rust out"—to be faithful until death.

* * *

A typical illustration of the zeal of the French Protestants is seen in the Sunday school work at Bell City. All the church members are regular Sunday school attendants, the older women who cannot read being the "sisters of charity" who care for the babies, while their mothers recite or teach in the classes. They declare that they need no home department for themselves, but to reach non-Protestants they inaugurated the work, with Miss Katie Gosset, superintendent, and a cradle roll, with Mrs. Isaac Derouel, superintendent.

* * *

The Lake Arthur Sunday school has a Baraca class of 26 members, and an average attendance of 18. Mr. E. E. Baker, is the teacher, and has ordered Trumbull's excellent book on "Teachers and Teaching," and Moniger's book on the organized class, and is making "full proof of his ministry." S. W. Paxon, editor of the Lake Arthur Herald, is the president of the class, with T. E. Brown, secretary and treasurer. Mrs. L. H. Pugh teaches the Philathea class, and Mrs. W. M. Buckman teaches the young ladies' class.

* * *

By invitation of Rev. M. Hebert, who had charge of the services at the Lake Arthur Camp Meeting, the writer was asked to make a Sunday school address at one of the afternoon services, and he found an appreciative and responsive audience. And the next afternoon, upon a similar invitation, we represented our two colleges to the young men and young women present, this being a privilege accorded all Christian school representatives present at the camp meeting. In an afternoon workers' conference, we had present every teacher in the Lake Arthur Sunday school except one. Rev. R. P. Howell, who for a long time was a traveling preacher in Louisiana, is the superintendent and is planning a "Rally Day" and general forward movement this fall. He is especially successful as a local church financier, and hopes in the future to be able to help the brethren in this part of their church work as opportunity permits. The teachers in the elementary department of the Lake Arthur Sunday school are: Misses Eula Shoul and Alice Brown for the beginners; Misses Grace Dyer and Ellice Hoff for the primaries, and Miss Bessie Ingram for the juniors.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Rev. B. F. Lewis.

At Hickory a cradle roll superintendent has been appointed; also a superintendent for the home department. From birth to the grave.

* * *

Oakvale Sunday school has begun grading, curtained the neat little church for class-rooms, and ordered a sufficient number of the "Legion of Honor" books to start a teacher training class. The superintendent says every teacher must be in it.

* * *

The pastor, superintendent and teachers at Chunkey, realizing that the best work in a small school can be well done only when done systematically, are introducing modern Sunday school methods into their Sunday school.

* * *

Oct. 1 is "Promotion Day." Babies three years of age are formally promoted to the beginners' department, and every class in the graded school "moves up one year." This calls for at least two more teachers in the intermediate department—the second year boys and second year girls. Many of the little folks have been looking forward to this day for some weeks. Let's not disappoint them, but have the best promotion day ever held. Do not confound this day with "Rally Day." They are separate and distinct.

Would this not be a good time also to plan special exercises in the organized adult department? The hot summer months have scattered the scholars, depressed the teacher, and demoralized the class. With the return home from vacation, picking up again the threads of life's duties, why should not this be woven in? Possibly we may keep some hesitating one by intelligent, systematic effort.

NEWS AND NOTES.

By Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick.

Mr. A. J. Davis, superintendent at Belden, Miss., writes of a splndid Sunday school picnic he is planning for Sept. 16th, and from which he expects great results.

* * *

Miss Ellie Willingham's fine Morris Class, with their new church responsibilities and much other expense, will give $10 toward the education of a little Cuban girl next year.

Rev. S. A. Neblett, International Sunday School Secretary for Cuba, found this bright-faced little maiden of "the gem of the Antilles" hungry for education and uplift, and some of the Adult Bible Classes of our North Mississippi Conference are trying to make up the $60 a year necessary to give her this much desired good.

* * *

Twenty men from one Adult Bible Class joined the Pocket Testament League on last Sunday. If all the strong men and women of our Church could be induced to read and study the Word of God, great and lasting strides would be made in the elevation of Christian citizenship.

* * *

A party of teen age boys just returned from a ten days' camping and boating trip, took such clever pictures and withal had such amusing and character-building experiences, that the full story of their journey will be given the Sunday school world a little later.

* * *

The constantly reiterated cry is for more and better Sunday school teachers, and it is greatly to be desired that some of our fine, capable young people will decide to help settle this question of crying need by getting under the burden.

* * *

Here are some very pertinent questions discussed at the great International Sunday School Convention in San Francisco: How may we train our teachers to be soul-winners? How may reverence be cultivated in the Sunday school? What special advantages has the country superintendent? How can the highest spiritual atmosphere be attained and maintained? How may the social side of the Sunday school be developed and maintained? How best to introduce and maintain teacher training in our schools? What is the responsibility of a Sunday school to the home life of a community? How can a church be aroused to the tremendous importance of its teaching function? Many other questions of equal importance found vivid interest in every worker's heart and mind. Discuss these problems at the regular teachers' meeting, make their solution an object of real prayer and deep interest, and results will speedily prove the worth of the hours so spent.

A systematic, universal study of the holy Schiptures is fundamental to world-wide Christian conquest, and the Sunday school must bring this vision to the great outside world.

GET READY TO RALLY.

The writer once asked Rev. J. M. Brown, a faithful and tried Methodist preacher of the Louisiana Conference who was doing splendid Sunday school work, the secret of his success, and found that his key to the situation was in the observance of Children's Day and Rally Day. The first of these comes in the spring time, when life is at its most active stage, and allows its expression in the flowers, new dresses, songs and program especially for the children, when they can "say their pieces" before proud and happy parents, reaching a congregation impossible on any other occasion, who go away with a new sense of interest in the Sunday school work. Rally Day comes in the fall—some time in October—after the summer heat has passed, the holidays are over, and the schools are open and the wonted life has returned. This is the time to call all the people together and lay before them the meaning of the Sunday school work, to promote and reward scholars, to organize teacher training, home and cradle roll departments, appoint missionary and temperance committees, organize Wesley adult classes, grade the school, begin a teachers' meeting and everything else that expresses new life. The Publishing House is ready to furnish helpful programs. Now is the time to begin the planning of all our forces. Rally to the highest standards of modern excellence on this coming Rally Day!

P. O. LOWREY.

PUDDINGS

made from

JELL-O ICE CREAM Powder

Are the easiest made and most delicious ever served by the finest cooks.

Simply stir the powder into milk, boil a few minutes, and it's done. Any one can do it. Directions printed on the package.

Ice Cream made from Jell-O Ice Cream Powder costs only one cent a dish.

Flavors: Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon, Chocolate, and Unflavored.

At Grocers', 10 cents a package.

Beautiful Recipe Book Free. Address,

The Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

SHE BROKE DOWN ENTIRELY.

Lantz, W. Va.—Mrs. Tebe Talbott, of this place, says, "I had been troubled with womanly ailments for some time, and at last I broke down entirely. I got so weak I could scarcely walk across the room. Thanks to Cardui, I improved right off. Now I do my housework, and am feeling well." During the past 50 years, more than a million women have been benefited by taking Cardui. You must believe that Cardui will help you, too, since it helped all these others. Cardui is a safe, harmless, vegetable remedy, of positive, curative merit, for women. At drug stores. Try one bottle. It will surely help you.

MARS HILL CIRCUIT, NORTH MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Dear Brother Meek: I will send you a short report of my summer's work so far. I began my first meeting at "Chapel Hill" the fourth Sunday in July with Brother W. V. Shearer, of Moorhead, to help wage the battle against sin. He did valiant service for our King and the cause of righteousness for six days. While the visible results were not what we had hoped and prayed for, yet there was work done that will abide till Jesus comes. The visible results were, six conversions and reclamations, and two accessions to the church. And the church was placed on higher ground spiritually. Our next battle was at old Mars Hill Church, the first Sunday in August. I had with me here that peerless fighter and old veteran of the cross, Brother D. M. Floyd, of High Point, Miss. My, my! How he did fight sin! He knows no compromise when it comes to fighting evil. He let the old gospel plow to the beam and showed up sin in all its hideousness. He showed poor, lost sinners the danger of continuing in sin, and then, with a heart overflowing with love for the lost, he would point them to the "Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world." While Brother Floyd is just a "local preacher," we know no truer man, nor one who will stand by the truth anywhere and at all times more firmly. Pastors will make no mistake in getting him to help them in their work. The last service (on Friday night) be preached to the young people, and that service will never be forgotten. I will never forget Brother Floyd. God bless him and his family. He has been like a father to me. The second Sunday in August I commenced a meeting at "Gore Springs" with Brother Lee Gillon, of Palestine, Tex., to assist me. While he is a Baptist, he did some as good, faithful preaching as has been my good fortune to hear. He is a true yokefellow. God bless him. Lord increase his tribe. The people here at this place have that oneness of spirit for which Christ prayed. There were ten or more accessions, some to the Methodist and others to the Baptist Church. The church was greatly revived. So you see, Mr. Editor, the Lord has been with us. I never was more determined to preach a whole gospel and stand by the truth than at this time. I am for a full, free and present salvation—a salvation from all sin. Oh, for a baptism with the Holy Ghost on us as a Church at this particular time!

THOS. L. PORTER, P. C.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTIONS

Adopted by the Woman's Home Mission Society of the M. E. Church, South, at Valden, Miss.:

Whereas our Heavenly Father, in his wisdom, has removed from time to eternity the spirit of our sister and co-worker, Mrs. GALLIE GORDON, wife of Rev. G. W. Gordon, our beloved pastor, we, the members of the Woman's Home Mission Society, realize that in her death our Auxiliary has sustained an irreparable loss. Although having been a member for only a few months, and being prevented from active work by her affliction, she was ever ready to help by her prayers and good counsel. God in his mercy has dealt kindly with us, and has protected the membership of this Auxiliary against the grim reaper, death, for Sister Gordon has been the first called. Therefore, be it resolved

First, That to the bereaved family the members, individually and collectively, extend our sympathy, and commend them to the Father "who doeth all things well."

Second, That we shall cherish the memory of her faithful and patient life and strive to emulate the example of her devotion and consecration.

Third, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the bereaved husband, one to the Carroll News, one to the Christian Advocate, and that a copy be recorded on the minutes of the Society.

Signed: Mrs. Will M. Armstrong, Mrs. J. W. Conger, committee.

CHURCH EXTENSION LITERATURE.

The Board of Church Extension has just issued the following:

1. "Church Extension and the Representative Church, Washington, D. C.," a twenty-page booklet containing a strong address by Bishop John C. Kilgo, D.D., delivered at the annual meeting of the Board in Richmond, Va., April, 1911.

2. "Our Opportunity in Brazil," a sixteen-page booklet containing a stenographic report of an inspiring address by Bishop W. A. Lambuth, D.D., delivered at the annual meeting in Richmond, Va., April, 1911.

3. "Foreign Missions and the Board of Church Extension," a twenty-page booklet containing a stenographic report of a stirring and instructive address by Bishop W. A. Candler, D.D., delivered at the annual meeting in Richmond, Va., April, 1911.

4. "Let us Build," a twenty-four-page booklet containing a stenographic report of the 250th dedicatory sermon by Bishop E. R. Hendrix, D.D., preached on the occasion of the dedication of the Shaw Avenue Church, St. Louis, Mo., June 11, 1911.

Any one, or all of these booklets will be sent upon request, free of charge. Address W. F. McMurry, corresponding secretary, 1025 Brook St., Louisville, Ky.

Weak Eyes

Are made strong by Leonardi's Eye Lotion. Inflammation is cured without pain in one day. No other eye remedy so pure and healing. Keeps the eyes in working trim. It makes strong eyes.

Guaranteed or money refunded. Druggists sell it at 25 cts. or forwarded prepaid on receipt of price by S. B. Leonardi & Co., Tampa, Fla.

WHAT THIRTY-FIVE YEARS HAVE DONE IN JAPAN.

From Adachi Kinnosuke's "Christian Missions in Japan" in the September Century.

Thirty-five years ago there were eleven baptized Protestant Christians. To-day there are 75,000 of them in Japan; they own 600 churches; in their Sunday schools they teach 100,000 children.

Is this the fruit of the Christian mission in Japan? Certainly. But not the only result, and not the most important.

EDUCATIONAL

JEFFERSON MILITARY ACADEMY,
Washington, Miss.

Prepares for Colleges, Universities, Scientific Schools and business. Located in the Hills, six miles east of Natchez, a place noted for its healthfulness, fine climate and historic surroundings. Away from the detractions and temptations of City life, but with all modern convenience. Fine spring water. Personal attention; one teacher for every twelve boys. Eighty (80) acre campus. Large gymnasium. Endorsed and recommended by the presidents of Colleges and Universities. 110th Session begins Sept. 14, 1911. For full particulars apply to MAJ. E. V. ANDERSON, Supt.

CHAMBERLAIN-HUNT ACADEMY, Port Gibson, Mississippi.

A High Grade Training School for Boys and Young Men.

First class boys wanted. Industrial and Practical in aim. Courses on Agriculture and Manual Training just added. Buildings modern, steam heat, electric lights, etc. In old historic section near Vicksburg. No malaria. Among High Hills. Four Optional Courses. Instructors all College Graduates. No Hazing; Military abolished. Some boys reduce expenses by work. Non-sectarian, but Christian. Bible a Text Book. Last session crowded. Cheapest school of its kind in the South.

$180 Pays all Expenses. Kind of School South Needs.

Mention the Advocate. For Catalog address M. R. McLVIN, A. M., Pres

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

Rev. David Carlisle Hull, M.S., President.
A high grade college, situated at the capital of the State. Location high, dry and healthful.
Entrance Requirements and Curriculum same as in other Leading Colleges and Universities North and South.
Separate Preparatory School under Private Dormitory Management.
The very finest Moral and Religious Influences. Extraordinary Advantages in LITERARY AND LAW DEPARTMENTS.
Courses Leading to A.B., B.S., A. M., M.S., and LL.B. Degrees.
TWENTIETH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 20th, 1911.
For catalog and other information address
E. Y. BURTON, Secretary, Jackson, Mississippi.

GRENADA COLLEGE

A CHRISTIAN COLLEGE FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN.

The Property of the Church—Erected and Maintained for Service.

Only One Hundred Boarders Taken. Personal Attention Given Each Student.

A FACULTY OF SPECIALISTS.

THE BEST ADVANTAGES IN MUSIC, ART, AND EXPRESSION.

Write for Catalog. REV. J. R. COUNTISS, President. Grenada, Miss.

MARTIN COLLEGE,

An Endowed School for Girls and Young Women.

PULASKI, Tenn. Established 1870. W. T. WYNN, President

Located on Main line of the L. & N. R. R., eighty miles south of Nashville, forty miles north of Decatur, in the beautiful "Blue Grass" region so famous for health and the beauty of its scenery. Cultured community. All departments. German Director of Music. Conservatory and University trained teachers. Modern buildings. Good pianos, new $1000 grand for recitals. Correspondence invited. Forty-first session begins Sept. 20, 1911. Write for catalogue. Address W. T. WYNN, Pulaski, Tennessee.

NEW ORLEANS COLLEGE OF PHARMACY.

A completely equipped college. A school of Pharmacy, conducted by Pharmacists. Complete course of lectures with laboratory instructions in Pharmacy, Chemistry, Botany, Physiology, Urinology, Materia Medica and Pharmacognosy. Increase in faculty with curriculum. Next session begins Sept. 25th. Fees, $75 per sesison. Write for catalogue. PHILIP ASHER, Ph.G., M.D., Dean, 1600 St. Charles Ave., New Orleans, La.

Silliman College for Girls
Clinton, La.

An endowed institution of high standard, located in a beautiful hill country. Three handsome Buildings and large, well shaded Campus. Electric lights, steam heat, splendid water supply and sanitary bath rooms.

It offers full classical, scientific and literary courses, with special advantages in music, art, expression and stenography. A diploma entitles holder to first grade teacher's certificate in the public schools of Louisiana.

We emphasize noble and refined Christian womanhood. Individual attention is given to each student's needs by thorough teachers, and we maintain a strict standard of requirements.

Free scholarships are granted a limited number who need financial assistance. Some students pay half expenses by taking duties.

Silliman College is positively unexcelled in its careful and painstaking administration.

Sixtieth year begins Sept. 13th, 1911. Write at once for beautifully illustrated catalogue.

H. H. Brownlee, President, Clinton, La.

OFFICIAL EVANGELISM.

By Rev. John M. Moore, D.D.

The General Conference took the first step toward official evangelism at Birmingham In 1906, when it authorized the employment by the Annual Conference Board of Missions of suitable persons "to hold evangelistic services, to make missionary addresses, and to take collections for the support of the work of the Board at places designated hy the Board." The primary work of such men was "to conduct missionary work under the direction of the Board." These men were at once called "missionary evangelists," and their work soon became evangelistic rather than missionary. The Discipline states that their "support shall he provided from the funds under the control of the Board," but since the Conference Boards have not sufficient funds to meet the claims of their various needy charges, it was generally agreed that the missionary evangelists should he allowed to make their own engagements, take collections for themselves, and turn over to the Boards any surplus which they may have received above the maximum sum which they are to retain as their salary. In some cases the Conference Boards guaranteed the salaries and became responsible for any shortage in the collections, and reserved the right to use the evangelist in any mission territory which the hoard might designate. Those Conferences that gave no guaranty usually removed all restraint from the missionary evangelists, allowing them to accept engagements In other Conferences, or other States, as conditions might warrant. Such men are not missionary evangelists in the disciplinary sense, but independent evangelists who hold Conference membership, and have an appointment from the Bishop in charge upon the recommendation of the Conference Board of Missions. It is very douhtful whether or not strict construction of the law would permit such activities upon the part of missionary evangelists.

The Methodist Episcopal Church has provided for the appointment of "one or more members of an Annual Conference to do evangelistic work on charges within that Conference." It has also said: "No pastor shall engage an evangelist other than one of those appointed hy the Bishop of his own Conference, without first ohtaining the written consent of his district superintendent" (presiding elder).

The Methodist Church of Canada has granted power to its Annual Conference to employ evangelists. The use of evangelists other than those authorized hy the Methodist Church is carefully guarded. "Superintendents of Circuits (that means all preachers-in-charge) employing evangelists other than recognized ministers of the Methodist Church shall engage only those that are amenable to the Church In respect to the doctrines they teach, and labor under the supervision of the pastor, and with the consent of the quarterly board where they are employed." Evangelists other than recognized ministers and local preachers of our Church, who may he employed by the superintendent of a circuit, shall undergo, previously to commencing their work, an examination similar to that provided in the Discipline for local preachers." "No preacher-in-charge shall be permitted to employ any unauthorized evangelist without first ohtaining the consent of the Chairman of the district."

The Wesleyan Methodist Church has granted to its Home Mission Board the power to employ ministers and laymen for general evangelistic work.

Independent or Official Evangelists.

Methodism began as a revival, has won its place in the religious world by its revivals, and it can have no greater purpose or service in the future than that which is possihle through some well directed, divinely empowered revival effort. The Methodist Church, when true to its origin and history, is an organized revival. The Church should not only encourage hut promote revivals, and as a denomination it should feel itself responsible for the revivals which are held within its churches and for the evangelists who are employed. The independent revivalist is not responsible to any ecclesiastical body, and consequently he has sometimes become rash in his speech, unrestrained in his manner, selfish and sordid in his demands, and indifferent as to the effect of his work upon the general growth of the Church. Independent evangelists have been censured because of buffoonery, the wild, irresponsible statements, the reckless criticisms of the Church and the large financial receipts of some of their order. In many places and with many persons the name of evangelist has fallen into disrepute, and all because these men have not been controlled, directed and used as a part of a regular ministry. Such criticisms as these do not apply to many of these conscientious, godly men.

Paul puts the evangelist on the same footing as the pastors, teachers, prophets and apostles. Methodism will do well to follow Paul's example. The evils of independent evangelism can easily he cured, for the evangelists as a class are consecrated Christian men who love God and the Church, and who want to he used hy the church for the promotion and extension of the Kingdom of Jesus Christ. Their work began In a holy passion for the salvation of men. The Church declined to find a legal place for them in the work to which they felt divinely called, and so they began their independent work. As a sreult evangelism has suffered, and the Church has suffered. The evils of independent evangelism can be cured and the virtues of a genuine evangelism can be promoted by an official evangelism.

General Evangelists.

The Methodist Episcopal Church, South, joined her sister Methodisms at the last General Conference in providing for an official evangelism. Paragraph 371 of the Discipline says: "The Board of Missions shall appoint a Committee on evangelism which, under the direction of the Home Department, shall promote revival work throughout the Church. In accordance with the policies of the Board, this Committee shall he authorized to employ evangelists, provide for their support, and conduct evangelistic meetings and campaigns." The Board at its May meeting appointed this Committee, as follows: Bishop E. D. Mouzon, Rev. H. K. Boyer, Rev. U. V. W. Darlington, Mr. John R. Pepper, Mr. J. B. Greene. The Committee met July 25. Believing that it had not only the authority, but that it was its assigned duty under the law to employ, direct and control a sufficient number of evangelists to meet the needs of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, it proceeded at once to adopt plans for discharging its responsibility. In the first place it authorized and empowered the Secretary of the Home Department to act as the administrative officer of the Committee in employing, directing and placing evangelists for evangelistic meetings and campaigns in the Church. It instructed the Secretary regarding the salaries that are to be paid evangelists, whether by the week or hy the year. It authorized the Secretary to employ an evangelist for his entire time, or for a part of the time, as conditions may warrant. The Committee is to he reimbursed by the Secretary's requiring as a minimum contribution from pastors a sum sufficient to meet the expenses and salary of the evangelist. If this rule is strictly enforced there is no danger of any financial loss to the Board, unless the Secretary unwisely employs more evangelists than the Church will use. In case the churches should contribute more money than the salaries of the evangelist shall require, the surplus shall go to a fund for employing ministerial students during the summer months in evangelistic and missionary work.

Evangelistic singers will be enrolled by the Secretary and supplied to pastors, but no financial obligation will he assumed by the Committee.

How many evangelists shall the Secretary employ? That will depend upon the demand of the Church and the co-operation of the pastors. Will the pastors henceforth apply to the Secretary of the Home Department for an evangelist when they want one, and not to the evangelists themselves? When an evangelist is employed hy the Committee his engagements will he made by the Secretary. The list of these employed evangelists will be published in the church papers and pastors can indicate their choices when they file their applications. Many of the leading evangelists of the Church have endorsed the plan outlined and will be employed by the Committee. The Secretary needs some indications from the pastors as to what number of evangelists should he employed, and he would he glad to have applications from pastors who may want to use official evangelists between September 1, 1911 and June 1, 1912. He would be pleased to have pastors designate any evangelists whom they may prefer.

Conference Evangelists.

The Committee does not think it wise to have all the evangelistic work done by general evangelists. There are many men who could be used as evangelists most successfully within thier own Conference who might not be available for general evangelistic work. So the Committee recommends that each Conference Board of Missions appoint a Conference Committee on Evangelism. This Committee should employ, direct and control the Conference evangelists and make engagements for their services with their pastors in the same manner as the General Committee employs, directs and controls its evangelists. That means that the Conference Committee shall pay the Conference evangelist a salary, and reimburse themselves by letting him out to the pastors at such a rate as to insure against loss. The Committee will he wise if it makes a large number of tentative engagements before the evangelist is employed A Conference evangelist is to work within his own Conference, unless he is employed hy the General Committee. The General Committee authorized the Secretary to use Conference Evangelists for a part of their Conference year, after he has secured the consent of the Conference Committee to use said evangelist. During the time he is used by the General Committee his salary will be paid by the General Committee upon the same basis as that upon which he is paid hy the Conference Committee. This plan will allow Conference evaugelists a chance to touch other fields, and at the same time aid the Secretary In finding proper recruits for the general evangelistic work.

Pastoral Evangelists.

Methodist pastors usually have genuine evangelistic gifts. So great have been these gifts that the Church heretofore has refused to set up an order of official evangelists, as they were considered quite unnecessary. While there can he no question as to the need of official evangelists, yet pastors should be employed as never before in revival work, if any great revival movement is to take place in the Church. The Committee said, "We recommend that the Secretary encourage the use of pastors as far as possible in evangelistic work." The Secretary will call on pastors to fill engagements with other pastors. The revival work that should precede an evangelistic effort in most places should be conducted by a pastor. That is, a pastor should prepare the way for the evangelist, so that his coming will be to gather the harvest which has been made ready by the pastor. A Conference Committee that hopes to bring about a general evangelistic campaign within its territory must use pastors, and place them, as well as the Conference evangelist, where there will bring about the largest results. The evangelistic note needs to be sounded ever and anon from our pulpits, for it sounds always with authority. The more pastors exercise their evangelistic gifts, the more professional evangelists will be required. There is no call for evangelists when the revival fires smolder, but let them blaze up, and help is everywhere at once demanded. Emphasis must he put upon pastoral and personal evangelism as never before in the history of our Methodism.

Missionary Evangelists.

Missionary Evangelists, according to Paragraph 376, are to he used largely for missionary purposes and in missionary territory. It is intended that they should be used by the Conference Board, possibly through its Committee on Evangelism, and under the immediate direction of the presiding elders, for reaching and developing those sections of a district which could not be reached and developed by the regular pastoral force. They should report their work to the Committee on Evangelism, in order that the Committee might have full information as to the progress of such missionary work in the Conference. Usually missionary evangelists should he assigned to a district, or group of districts. Through him the presiding elder might be able to use young ministers In the summer, a deaconess, a Sunday school organizer, or visitor, or other Christian workers. His salary should be paid out of a Conference or District Evangelistic Fund, which may be created by private gifts, collections made by the Missionary Evangelists, contributions secured hy the presiding elders, and appropriations from the Conference Board of Missions.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

VOL. 58—No. 36. "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which is Good." WHOLE No. 2899.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1911 CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

Editorial

A Baptist contemporary calls attention to the fact that in giving church statistics the new Encyclopaedia Britannica figures the Baptists and the Disciples of Christ (Campbellites) in together, and proceeds to reproduce some of the tables. It strikes us that this is rather a queer grouping of denominations. Are our Baptist brethren ready to claim a famliy connection with the followers of Alexander Campbell for the privilege of counting them? It seems that some of them at least are. But let not the Disciples become puffed up by this recognition; for, though they may be embraced on enumeration day, they will be shut out on communion Sunday.

* * *

A New Orleans daily that poses as a reform paper has been filling its columns for the past few days with extended accounts of the Beattie trial and flaming pictures of persons and places connected with it—especially with photographs of the accused and the woman in the case. We have also observed in this periodical conspicious advertisements of sales of city lots to be conducted on Sunday. Evidently this journal believes in reformation only in spots, and is not much concerned for any general moral improvement of the city. Its advocacy of any kind of reform is not calculated to have much weight, while it is so glaringly inconsistent.

* * *

Professor Sir John Thompson, in an address to the Associated Booksellers of Great Britain, is represented as having made the following statement: "In the University of Cambridge, I am afraid that the habit of reading is almost extinct, and that it has been replaced by lectures. The undergraduates expect to have the thing digested for them, and many of them read very little. This is a very serious evil and it would be better to encourage reading." We think that there is much sound wisdom in this suggestion. Attending a series of addresses by some eminent man is to some extent helpful, but it cannot take the place of individual application and systematic reading and study. What a chautauqua mostly does is to whet the mental appetite.

* * *

The secular papers report that three thousand persons attended a negro hanging in Mississippi; that a vendor of soda water, lunches and fruit did a thriving business within a few feet of the gallows, and that after the execution was over the rope used was cut into pieces for souvenirs of the occasion. That this account is correct we can scarcely believe. It is inconceivable to us that these things should happen in a State of schools and churches. Surely what transpired must have been highly colored and exaggerated. But why should there be a public hanging at all? We are a firm believer in capital punishment for some crimes, but we are equally strong in the conviction that it should be inflicted by the officers of the law within prison walls, with only a few witnesses present. A spectacular execution upon a gallows erected in the open air, and in the presence of a great multitude, is barbaric and brutalizing. The next session of the Mississippi Legislature should do away with this pernicious practice.

THE COMMERCIAL OUTLOOK IN THIS SECTION.

The arrival of September marks the beginning of a new commercial year, and among business men it is a time both for noting the progress made and estimating the future outlook. Though a religious paper, the Advocate feels a deep interest in the material welfare of the people of Mississippi and Louisiana, and is concerned for the prosperity and growth of New Orleans, which has been for more than a half century the seat of its publication. Indeed, the Church and its institutions are powerfully affected by business conditions. It takes money to carry on religious work successfully, and when the country is prosperous the requisite funds are generally forthcoming; but when a season of financial stringency prevails, it is difficult for the Church to obtain the means to keep her enterprises going. Even the missions in remote China are interested in the crops produced in America and the prices which they bring.

A backward glance at the two States constituting our patronizing territory discloses reasons both for gratitude and encouragement. During the past decade advancement has been made in population and practically every form of industrial effort. The increase in numbers in Louisiana was sufficient to give her an additional congressman. And more than almost any other commonwealth in the South, she still continues to be the beneficiary of immigration from the North. Nor is this surprising, since her soil, climate, and resources are such as to attract the enterprising settler and open wide to him the door of opportunity. Varied, indeed, are the industries and products of this land of plenty and promise. Cotton, corn, rice, sugar cane, oranges, many other fruits, and almost every kind of vegetable are produced in abundance. She is the second lumber State in the Union, possesses some of the largest sulphur mines in the world, has copiously flowing oil wells, is fast forging to the front in the stock-raising industry, and her rivers, lakes, and bays contain a seemingly inexhaustible supply of fish and oysters.

The products of Mississippi are not so diverse as those of Louisiana, and the influences which make for industrial development have not been so generally at work within her borders. But she is a great State, with abounding resources, and should have a bright future. She needs only to find herself, and to get somewhat more into touch with the world, to awaken the music of progress in every community and march abreast of her foremost sister commonwealths. The meetings which were held in the State this year and last year with a view to encouraging immigration were auspicious omens. That is what Mississippi needs. Her lands, considering their quality, are among the cheapest to be found anywhere. They afford rare opportunities for investments. True, the boll weevil must now be reckoned with; but we entertain little doubt that the farmers will soon recover from the disaster inflicted by this pest and be more prosperous than ever. Such has been the history of other parts of the cotton belt infested with the weevil.

New Orleans, the commercial metropolis of Louisiana and South Mississippi, is sharing in the general prosperity and growth of this section. In the decade from 1900 to 1910, the population increased from 287,000 to approximately 340,000. It is now undoubtedly well past the 350,000 mark. A comparative statement of the bank deposits of all the cities of the South (not including Baltimore and St. Louis), made by the Birmingham Age-Herald last January, showed those of New Orleans to be over $90,000,000—more than double those of any other Southern city except Louisville, in which they footed up slightly more than $50,000,000. In both imports and exports during the past twelve months, the city showed a healthful gain; its foreign and coastwise traffic together reached the sum of $360,000,000—reinstating New Orleans as the second American port, it being exceeded in the volume of business done only by New York. The postal receipts were more than a million dollars, and the bank clearings more than a billion. As a market for rice, coffee, sugar, molasses, and fruits, New Orleans is far in the lead. Though the Panama Exposition was lost, the city is the natural gateway to Central and South America, and its trade is already expanding in that direction.

The general business prospect for the fall season is represented as being fully up to the average. The corn crop is better than usual, the rice yield promises to be fairly good, and the sugar planters are expecting a normal harvest, with most satisfactory prices. Cotton is being injured in many localities by the boll weevil, the army worm, and other insects, and there is a widespread impression that the yield has been largely overestimated. The most conservative view is that the crop will be between 12,000,000 and 13,000,000 bales, and that the conditions existing justify better prices than those now prevailing. The other industries of this section are enjoying a reasonable measure of prosperity, and among those engaged in them there is almost without exception a feeling of hopefulness and confidence.

So as we face the autumn of 1911 with its duties and opportunities, we have much to inspire us and incite us to worthy effort. Of all parts of the Union, ours is to-day, perhaps, the richest in undeveloped possibilities. To make these known to the world and to seek their proper realization, is the task to which we now need to turn our heads and hearts and hands. Both self-interest and patriotism demand this. The call of a country for patriotic service comes not only in the time of war, but also in the time of peace. The Confederate soldier in citizen's garb, struggling to rehabilitate the devastated and prostrate South, was not less a patriot and hero than he was when, clad in gray, he charged the foe upon the field of battle. It is only as the various forces of industry are active and progressive, that a State can prosper and move forward to larger and better things.

"Loving words will cost but little,
Journeying up the hill of life;
But they make the weak and weary
Stronger, braver, for the strife."

THE UNITARIAN PROPOSITION IN THE CITY OF WASHINGTON

By Bishop W. A. Candler

The national capital, the city of Washington, is one of the most beautiful cities in the world. In its various avenues the political buildings have and the ecclesiastical structures, a most unfavorable to the other than a city other of the capitals of the great nations.

The reason for this is obvious. We have no religious establishment in the republic and consequently we have no church edifices erected in this from the national treasury, while in other lands there are great structures of that capital built at public cost. Moreover, Washington is unlike such cities as London and Paris in that it is not a commercial center. Its population is drawn mainly by reason of its political importance alone, and many of its people are of a transient or semi-transient character. Few of its permanent residents are people of large wealth.

These facts being at hand are the leading denominations of the republic have built in general splendid representative churches there. If the capital of the nation ever has religious buildings in keeping with the importance of the place. Every great church having congregations there owes it to the nation and to the cause of religion in the nation to build at least one such place of worship in Washington.

This view of the matter is being accepted by many of the churches of the nation, our own Church among the rest. The Roman Catholics have their enterprise well on the way. The Northern Presbyterians and the Episcopalians also have undertaken the erection of such buildings there. Years ago the Baptists, Lutherans and Northern Methodists erected representative churches in the city to appeal to all their people. During the administration of President Roosevelt the Dutch Reformed Church erected and beautified its central church in the capital.

Now, under the administration of President Taft, the Unitarians, taking advantage of similarly favorable conditions, are projecting a great church in Washington. The President is lending active support to this worthy enterprise of the denomination. At the recent annual meeting of the National League of Unitarian laymen Rev. Dr. Long, of Massachusetts, made a strong plea for a general contribution toward the new church, and his appeal met with a hearty response. The Christian Register, the organ of Unitarianism, reports the proceedings in these words:

> There is almost an entire lack of the industrial element there. There are no large factories, there are no large commercial emporiums, there are no imports, there is no foreign trade, there are the usual retail stores that go with the local community. But there is a great city, which is made up of three classes—three or four classes. First are officials of the government, the Executive Department, Congress, with its two houses, the great multitude of employes in the various departments of the United States, intelligent men, well informed, selected (under our present civil service system) from all parts of the country. Then there is the residential population of Washington, people who go there and are engaged in the local business of supply, and especially people who come from all over the country to find the more delightful residences; people of large wealth and great means, who build beautiful homes, who spend their winters and remain part of the year in Washington because there they find political activity, great questions discussed, and also delightful social opportunities. Then we have the scientific men. In addition, there is the great body of colored people who find their way to Washington naturally after the war, looking there as to a Mecca. It is a body of extraordinarily intelligent, cultivated and thinking people. Washington is one of the most beautiful cities in the world, with its fine streets, its new public buildings, its exquisite parks, attracting to it not only our own people, but people from abroad.
>
> Now, how important is it that in a city of that kind, a representative city, there should be the best example we can furnish of our Unitarian faith, of our Unitarian life, of our Unitarian purpose, which is better than faith! As I said, the present church has been outgrown by the extent of its congregation. A movement is on foot to build a new church, still in a central part of the city, where we shall attract people who are at the hotels or about the Houses of Congress or in the busiest part of that great city. It is proposed to erect a large beautiful and impressive structure on such a site as will be in keeping with the requirements and demands of our denomination. It is proposed to connect with that a large building, to adjoin, a great house of worship, large enough for a thousand people, large enough for all the various affiliated societies which are associated with a church, again I say, and I give it the name the endearing name of Edward Everett Hale. That name alone is an appeal to us.

The argument of Dr. Long applies with equal or more force to our enterprise of the same sort in Washington.

The General Conference which met in Birmingham in 1910 recognized the importance of the enterprise and appointed a commission to secure the funds needed for it and erect the house. The General Conference of 1910 continued the commission and added a National Building Committee. We have had the wisdom to see the need of the building and the conference to set in hand the work, but thus far none of our people have failed to give the enterprise the support it deserves. A few substantial men have made liberal subscriptions, one noble man subscribing the sum of $10,000.

It is time now for all hands to rally to the work. Very many people will never have breadth of mind and largeness of heart to care for such a great matter, but surely there are enough of wider vision and more generous spirit among us to carry the enterprise to speedy success. As chairman of the commission I appeal to all such in our wide connection to respond at once to the appeals of the agent, Rev. George S. Benson, D.D., in behalf of this interest.

Further delay discredits us all and discourages our cause in Washington. We ought to have broken ground long ago for this building, and we must do it at an early day. Will not preachers and people send a helping hand to the work now? About four-fifths of the amount required has been subscribed, but the Discipline of the Church, as well as the heart of Church Extension, forbids the beginning of the work until we have more nearly secured the entire amount.

There are, of course, many local enterprises calling for attention. There will always be such if our Church continues to prosper, and if we wait until there are none, our great duty to the nation will never be discharged by us. It might as well mean to do more than any local enterprise just now. The case is urgent. We are a rich people, well able to do what the General Conference has proposed. Let our wise men give now the assistance which is asked, and the thing will be done speedily.

Let the Unitarians, a people far less numerous and wealthy than the Southern Methodists, provoke us to emulation and ardent zeal in the matter.

A PULPIT GIANT OF OTHER DAYS.

By Rev. W. C. Hartz, D.D.

During my youth and early manhood I had the privilege of a close personal acquaintance with a man whom I regarded then and still regard as one of the very greatest preachers whom I have ever known, Samuel L. L. Scott. With the editor's permission I will give the readers of the Advocate a few facts concerning this giant of other days. Let it be understood, however, that I am not writing a biography, but simply a few personal recollections, supplemented at one or two points by the memories of others.

Scott was of Northern birth—a New Yorker, I think—and had served in the traveling connection in that latitude a number of years before coming South. He removed to Mississippi, I think in 1849, having lived the previous year near Baton Rouge, La. During the later years of his life, he owned a modest little home about one mile east of Crystal Springs, and died there near the close of the Civil War. His sister, an elderly maiden lady, kept house for him, he having never married.

From the time of his coming to Mississippi, he was a local preacher in the Southern Methodist Church, and until disabled by age and poor health, occupied his time in doing the work of an evangelist. His success was marvelous. He had not the slightest idea of ostentation in the preaching of himself, and he knew no preacher of the day who could compare with him as a preacher of doctrines and a winner of souls. And his work was no superficial. He preached a thorough gospel that men must be moved to repentance and a joyful salvation, followed by earnest, consecrated service. He reached all classes. He had great success among the children and young people, but not with these alone. The very best citizens of the community, whether living in town or country, were swept into the kingdom under the influence of his marvelous presentation of gospel truth. He sought to make the converts workers for the Lord. Many became preachers. His famous meeting at Pleasant Valley Church on the Baton Rouge Circuit resulted in the licensing of eight preachers, all of whom, with possibly one exception, joined the Itinerant ranks. Bishop Marvin was one of the converts at a meeting in Hinds County. I mean William Nichols, who, while stationed at one of our New Orleans churches, united with the Protestant Episcopal Church, and some years afterwards became a bishop in the Reformed Episcopal Church. And not the ministry alone but all ranks of Christian life received recruits who had surrendered to our divine Lord, not only for salvation, but for service. That princely philanthropist and servant of the Church, Major R. W. Millsaps, was converted and brought into the Church under his ministry.

Scott was a collegian, and his college curriculum had been supplemented by an extensive and varied course of reading. And his vast stores of knowledge were under the control of a remarkably sound judgment, and were always at his command, all being pigeon-holed away in his memory ready for use when needed. Possessed of rare analytical power, he was enabled easily to get at the heart of a passage of Scripture and thus acquaint the people with the deep things of God.

As a preacher, he was especially strong on doctrine. He believed that in his day one of the greatest needs of mankind in general and Methodists in particular was instruction concerning the doctrines of Methodism, and this need he sought to supply in his ministry. And here he showed the wisdom of a master builder. Multitudes of people became Methodists who but for his strong and timely preaching would have swelled the ranks of other communions.

His services to the Church were not confined to the pulpit. In the social circle he was a factor to be reckoned with. In my whole life I think I have not known a man who at his advanced age was so interesting to young folks, especially boys. He had a fund of good anecdotes that seemed absolutely inexhaustible, and he knew how to tell them to perfection. This gave him rare power over boys, and this he wielded skillfully, not only to lead them into the kingdom but into the haunts of learning. He it was who fired the heart of Reuben Webster Millsaps with an invincible purpose to acquire a liberal education as a means of making himself a factor in the world's progress.

As a public speaker, I have always regarded him as standing at the head of the list of those whom I have heard, by which I mean this: That more nearly than any one whom I have known he could hold the attention of every auditor from start to finish for a period of two hours or more. He was small of stature, never weighing, I am sure, more than ninety pounds. His health was poor, and he had an appearance of great feebleness which one does not expect to find in a man whose daily business it is to move a multitude with the skill of a master orator. His voice seemed both low and weak. Yet that apparently feeble frame was adequate to the task of carrying him through two long services a day, week after week, with little apparent hurt. That seemingly low, weak voice was heard clearly by the remotest auditor. He never bawled—just talked. The tone of his voice was decidedly melodious. He gesticulated but little, because he felt that he "did not need to." He was fluent in the superlative degree. No one ever heard him hesitate for a word or recall a word and substitute another. All the words of the English language seemed at his tongue's end, and without apparent effort on his part just the right one came forth. His vocabulary was choice. He could be grandiloquent, if he chose. But his words were usually plain and simple. Coarseness and vulgarity in the pulpit he had a contempt for. His utterance was neither fast nor slow—just that golden medium which the wise covet. During the last two or three years of his life, not being able to carry on his evangelistic work, he took the superintendency of the Sunday school at Crystal Springs, and most admirably did he fill the place. New features were introduced into the work of the school. There was a large increase in attendance and interest, and this continued as long as he was able to attend. Leaving my mother out of the account, there is no one to whom I am so much indebted for mental inspiration and spiritual uplift as to Samuel L. L. Scott. I expect to meet him and greet him "in the sweet by and by." His dust reposes in the Old Crystal Springs Cemetery.

OUR LOAN FUND CAPITAL—CAPITAL THAT "REPEATS LIKE A WINCHESTER."

By Bishop E. R. Hendrix, D.D.

That is always a part of a man's capital that is of the nature of reserve, or that is not consumed in his annual expenses. Happy is he if it is of such a nature that it is constantly dependable, not only in the conduct of his business, but in the increase of his capital from year to year. If by adding to his capital the amount of interest it would earn if loaned out to another, it serves him a most useful turn by its annual and steady increase. A business that can double its capital out of its earnings is regarded as a first-class investment and is always in demand and at a premium. It shows sound methods and wise, energetic and yet conservative management. It has no need to borrow from others, as its increasing capital supplies its needs. That increasing capital is like a magazine gun that always has something in reserve, and so "repeats like a Winchester."

That is the character of the Loan Fund Capital of the Church Extension Board, now aggregating $380,111, of which $107,215 is interest added to the original principal of $272,896, which has been loaned and is loaned without the loss of a dollar, and has done the work, in aiding to build churches, of $1,077,162. The Board of Church Extension not only provides in its constitution for the creation and administration of Loan Funds, but requires that these funds shall be loaned only on adequate security, and to aid in church building. Thus the sacredness of their use and the safeguards which mean absolute security, and even increase in the amount of the capital by adding the interest on loans, make a loan fund a most inviting form of religious investment. It is laying up treasure both on earth and in heaven and where, in neither case, can moth and rust corrupt or thieves break through and steal. It is not strange that there was received on loan funds during the past year the sum of $30,271, when there was added to the principal or capital besides the sum of $10,225 out of the interest account, after deducting all annuities. This increases the loan fund capital by a total of $40,496 in one year.

Mention is made of annuities being annually deducted. Thus persons who would like to give considerable sums to the loan fund, but who need the income for their own use during their lives, receive annuity bonds in exchange for their gifts and an agreed interest rate is paid on such annuity bonds, while the principal becomes a part of the loan fund and begins at once its useful and perpetual mission of help in building churches. The Board is now paying annuities on $39,133. The rate of interest at which the principal is loaned to churches not only safeguards the principal, but is such as to insure the payment of the annuities in full as they fall due. The Board affords the amplest protection for such gifts made on the annuity plan and invites persons advanced in years who need a reliable income, payable semi-annually, during their lives to invest their money in this way and so begin to do the good while living that they desire their money to accomplish when they are gone home.

Most of the present loan fund is made up of memorial loan funds given in honor of some faithful leader of the Church, or of some relative—a father, a husband, a wife or a child. Thus nine of our deceased Bishops have loan funds named for them. The oldest is for Bishop Kavanaugh, in whose memory there was contributed $16,000, which has now grown, by the addition of the interest, to $35,000, and the total loans made from it during twenty-five years amount to $159,742. In Bishop Marvin's memory $7,720 was contributed and it has now grown to $15,656, and has been so managed that the loans from it have aggregated $62,748. A noble layman gave $25,000, with which was established the "Moses U. Payne" loan fund, which now amounts to $41,000 and represents a total of loans amounting to $131,000. Abraham Collett, of Montana, gave $10,000 on the annuity plan, and, while he was receiving semi-annually the annuity on his gift, it was all the time helping to build churches and represents a total of loans of $39,000. The Alert A. Morrison loan fund of $15,593, after yielding a regular semi-annual annuity to his widow, is now $18,204, and has to its credit an aggregate of loans amounting to $33,873. The David Morton loan fund of $22,367 has not only yielded an annuity in part (that part contributed by himself), but now amounts to $35,422, and has done the work of $162,903 in loans.

It is not strange that many Annual Conferences are considering special "named" loan funds of their own to be raised and administered by the Conference Boards through the office of the General Board, in addition to what is done for the General Board. This enables them to suitably honor some worthy benefactor or leader and at the same time do a noble work in aiding churches with loans within the limits of the Conference. In addition to the great work done by the General Board in aiding 2,158 churches with $945,868 in donations and $1,077,162 in loans, the Conference Boards have aided a total of 7,222 churches with $1,020,034 in donations. Hitherto the Conference Boards have aided only by donations, but it will now be possible, by establishing Conference loan funds, to aid by loans as well, and thus, like the General Board, add much to their efficiency.

And there is much to be done in aiding homeless congregations. While our Church has a total of 16,477 church houses, it has also 2,942 homeless congregations. In many instances these are anxious and waiting to build worthy houses of worship. It is poor economy to build cheap and temporary houses, and many of the congregations are not able without aid to erect such houses of worship as they need. There is an increasing demand for loans at a less rate of interest than is obtainable locally. Timely loans, well secured and paying four per cent, will make it possible for many of these worthy people to build. Building a church a day for the next eight years would be necessary to house all these congregations; and long before that time there will be nearly as many more needing to erect houses of worship for our great and growing Church. Growth means need; and only when we stop growing will we stop asking. He that giveth to such a cause, lendeth unto the Lord. "Now, if you like the security, down with the cash."

OLD SHARON.

There is a suggestion to the writer that to most of those who read this sketch there will be little of interest, but perhaps to a few who yet linger there may be some. The title above is both of suggestion and affection. The almost painful evidences of the tooth of time suggests the one, and hallowed memories give birth to the other.

There was a time in the history of our Methodism, in the first half of the century just gone, when this was the rallying ground of her strong men. Here was an educational center for a radius of more than half a hundred miles, and many of Methodism's brightest women went out from this place to grace society and uplift humanity.

Rev. Jno. G. Jones, in his History of Methodism in Mississippi, has much to say of this community, which for years gave its name to one of the districts of the Conference, and over which for a term he was appointed as presiding elder. With his own hands, assisted by kind neighbors, he built the parsonage in which he lived, and in the nearby cemetery there stands a slab marking the resting place of his little son of only three summers. The faithful itinerant is still remembered in kindly deed by some thoughtful friend, for that mound has never been forgotten, but has the same tender care as those about it.

In those days of long ago, we read of Thornton and Pugh, and Fly and Montgomery, and Wiggins, and others of like spirit, who here wrought in pulpit and school room for a greater and a stronger Methodism; and in a later day of Abby, and Johnson, and Hunnicutt, and Pierce, whose names are yet household words. It was here that we first met the gifted Galloway and sat at his feet while he helped us charge the walls of Troy, dissect the horse of wood, and piloted us over the rough seas to the more peaceful shores of Itallum.

Himself just from the recitation room, he knew how to sympathize with the youth in his struggles to unravel those horrid idioms and still more fearful "ablative absolutes." When these come trooping by with uncovered head we reverently repeat, "Old Sharon."

And there are others—the old boys who enlivened the campus of "Madison College," and of the girls on the other hill, who gave charm to the community. Most of these have gone before, yet I needed but to look upon those scenes to quicken within us precious, though sad memories, and again in endearing tones we soliloquized, "Old Sharon!"

Where once were palatial homes and beautiful gardens of roses and rare flowers, are now fields of luxuriant corn and cotton; where was heard the sound of the piano and the voice in training, now feeds the calf on the rich grasses; where stood the two-story brick structure for the aspiring youth seeking preparation for a more useful life, is now a modest building, serving the community for a public school.

The commodious old church facing the east and, with a seating capacity of three hundred or more—my first appointment and where I gathered the first fruit of my ministry (and one worth the work of all these years)—this old temple, hallowed by so many memories, has been replaced by a smaller, more ornate structure, which tells, so saddening in its suggestions, of the changes wrought by time.

Many have gone to nearby towns; some have sought homes in the far West and many are in the churchyard laid, awaiting the time when the great Head of the Church shall "descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel and with the trump of God."

Old Sharon! Yes, dear Old Sharon, where memory loves to dwell, and where forms and faces ne'er to be forgotten have been photographed—where friendships were formed which shall go on throughout the eternities to come.

T. B. HOLLOMAN.

Itta Bena, Aug. 23, 1911.

$177.00 pays Board, Tuition, Laundry, Medical, Library and Lyceum fees whole session. Those who wish may reduce this by taking duties. Apply now to Port Gibson Female College, Port Gibson, Miss.

To Whitworth College Students

THE PROSPECTS ARE GOOD FOR THE BEST ENROLLMENT FOR MANY YEARS.

EACH STUDENT SHOULD REACH THE COLLEGE ON Wednesday, Sept. 13th.

It is important that the Students of 1910 and 1911 should be on hand TO GREET THE NEW STUDENTS.

Session 1911-1912 will begin Thursday, Sept. 14, at 10 A. M.

W. W. Carre Co. Ltd

Manufacturer Exporter of Lumber

NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Church News

The Western Virginia Conference is now in session at Parkersburg, with Bishop H. C. Morrison presiding.

* * *

Dr. S. Parkes Cadman has in the hands of the publishers a new book entitled, "English Thinkers."

* * *

Mr. John D. Rockefeller is said to have given to Baptists of the North $180,000 for foreign mission work during the past year.

* * *

Gipsy Smith, who will be engaged in revival work in the West for several weeks, is expected to arrive in New York on September 17.

* * *

Five of the Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal Church—Hamilton, Berry, Nuelson, Smith and Hughes—are the sons of Methodist preachers.

* * *

Bishop Burt reported the organization of a Methodist Conference in Finland early in August. The work was started in that field by local preachers from Sweden about thirty years ago.

* * *

All the presiding elders of our Church in Texas will come together for a conference about the work at Waco on September 12. We are of the opinion that such a meeting should result in great good.

* * *

The population of Ireland is divided among the religious denominations as follows: Roman Catholic, 73.9 per cent; Episcopal, 13.1 per cent; Presbyterian, 10 per cent; Methodist, 1.4 per cent.

* * *

The Christian Century, one of the organs of the Disciples of Christ (Campbellites), has declared that baptism should no longer be made a barrier between Christians, especially in the foreign field. Truly, the cause of fraternity is progressing.

* * *

Bishop J. C. Kilgo presided at the session of the Lewisburg District Conference at Hinton, West Virginia, last week. He is making a fine impression upon both the preachers and people wherever he goes.

* * *

Dr. Steel states in the Nashville Advocate that while traveling over the country, as he has been doing for many years, he has read the Bible through thirty times. Perhaps this explains why he preaches so charmingly.

* * *

The Central M. E. Church, South, of Raleigh, N. C., celebrated its sixty-ninth anniversary on Sunday, August 27, with elaborate exercises. The anniversary sermon was preached by Bishop E. E. Hoss at 11 a.m., who also delivered an address at the evening hour.

* * *

Mr. Jacob Bernheim, Superintendent of the Polish work of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Chicago, states that there are six hundred Jews or sons of Jews occupying the pulpits of Protestant churches in Europe. Of these 450 are in Great Britain, and 150 in the continental countries.

* * *

Rev. John E. Gunn, of Atlanta, who was recently appointed Bishop of the Natchez Diocese (Mississippi) by Pope Pius, was consecrated to that office in Atlanta on August 29, with impressive ceremonies. He was born, reared and educated in Ireland, and came to the United States in 1892. He is 48 years of age.

* * *

Rev. W. A. Swift, of Texarkana, has purchased an interest in the Central Methodist Advocate, of Lexington, Ky., and will become one of its editors. He will transfer to the Kentucky Conference and take an appointment, as the present circulation of the paper is not such as to justify him in giving to it all his time. Brothers Mann and Batson will continue on the editorial staff as heretofore.

* * *

Rev. Henry Haigh, the president of the British Wesleyan Conference, and Dr. James Hope Moulton, Greenwood Professor of Hellenistic Greek and Indo-European Philology, have gone on a voyage to the West Indies. From thence they will come to New York and see something of the United States, after which Mr. Haigh will proceed to the Ecumenical Conference at Toronto.

* * *

In the death of Sir Percy Bunting, which occured on July 22, British Methodism lost one of its most useful and widely known laymen. For five years following the death of Rev. Hugh Price Hughes, he was editor of the Methodist Times, and since 1882 has edited the Contemporary Review with signal ability. The September number of the American Review of Reviews contains a picture and an extended sketch of this great editor, who has now laid off the harness and passed into that sphere, which Mr. Gladstone said he expected to be one of "enlargement."

DR. PARKER COMMENDED.

At a session of the Third Quarterly Conference, Alexandria Charge, Alexandria District, Louisiana Conference, M. E. C. S., held at Alexandria, August 25, 1911, a committee composed of H. H. White, T. W. Holloman and W. D. Wadley, was appointed to present resolutions expressing the sense of the Conference relative to the departure of the Rev. F. N. Parker, D.D., from the pastorate of this Church, for the purpose of accepting the chair of Biblical Literature at Trinity College, Durham, N. C., to which chair he had been elected.

After deliberation the Committee reported as follows:

"Be it Resolved, That we part, with irreconcilable regret, from our beloved pastor, the Rev. F. N. Parker, because of his engaging qualities as a man, his profound scholarship, his eloquent preaching, his devoted pastoral work, and beyond and above all, his purity of life and exalted Christian character.

"We feel that, like Bayard, he is a knight in Christian warfare

'Without fear and without reproach;'

and that in the fight against everything unholy

'His good sword carves the casques of men,
His tough lance thrusteth sure,
His strength is as the strength of ten,
Because his heart is pure.'

"We feel that he is too large and useful a man to stay in any local surroundings, and that he is needed in a larger sphere of activity, where his great scholarship and abilities can be better made to serve the interest of the church and the world; and we feel that he will be acting in such a sphere when employed in training young ministers for their high and noble calling.

"Be it further resolved, that we commend Dr. Parker as that highest exemplar of civilization—a cultured Christian gentleman—to the people among whom he is to labor in the future, and that we express to him our loving affection and respect, and wishes for abundant usefulness and success, wherever in future he may be; and that in token of same a copy of these resolutions be sent to him, and that they be published in our church papers."

Respectfully submitted,

Signed: H. H. White, T. W. Holloman, W. D. Wadley, Committee.

Alexandria, La., August 29, 1911.

THE
Grant Furniture Co.
IS NOW HAVING A
GREAT REMOVAL SALE
PRICES ON EVERY ARTICLE
IN THEIR
ENTIRE STOCK HAVE BEEN REDUCED
OUTFITS ESPECIALLY PRICED
427-429-431 Camp Street, New Orleans

There is only one way to get ready for immortality, and that is to love this life, and live it as bravely and cheerfully and faithfully as we can.—Henry Van Dyke.

The Carrollton-Cambronne Chapel.

This neat little chapel, situated on Cambronne Street (near Apple), was erected by the Carrollton Avenue congregation of the M. E. Church, South. It is designed to furnish quarters and facilities for the flourishing Sunday school which this church maintains in that community, and which hitherto has been meeting in private houses. The movement which has led to the erection of this structure first began as a prayer meeting, which afterwards developed into a Sunday school. This school has been in operation for about five years, during which time it has exercised a most wholesome influence for good. The formal opening of the chapel took place last Sunday afternoon in the presence of a large audience. Mr. L. Herman presided, and Mr. Matthias Walle, in fitting words, expressing for the community its appreciation of the kindness shown in constructing the house for its benefit. Appropriate remarks were also made by Mr. J. H. Carter, Rev. W. W. Holmes, Rev. Hugh Jamieson, Mr. W. H. Black, Dr. J. M. Henry, and the pastor, Rev. J. G. Snelling. A cash offering of $170 was taken, which is sufficient to pay the balance due on the lot. There yet remains a debt of $900 on the building, which it is hoped can be paid in the near future. Persons desiring to aid a worthy cause, have a fine opportunity to do so in the case of this enterprise. They may feel assured that money contributed to it would be well invested. The superintendent of this Sunday school is Mr. L. Herman, who may be communicated with at his residence at the corner of Oak and Dublin Streets.

Secular News and Comment

Mrs. Elizabeth Akers Allen, author of the poem, "Rock Me To Sleep Mother," died a few days ago at her home, Tuckahoi, N. J.

* * *

Admiral Togo sailed for Japan from Seattle on August 29 on the steamship Tamba Maru. The United States cruisers Colorado and West Virginia accompanied the vessel until she reached international waters.

* * *

The first anniversary of the annexation of Korea to Japan was impressively celebrated on August 30, both the Japanese and Koreans taking part in the ceremonies. In the city of Seoul there was a lantern procession of 10,000 persons, about half of whom were reported to be natives.

* * *

The $5,000,000 industrial school for white children which the Southern Bureau of Education will establish in the South has been located at Ragland, Alabama, that city agreeing to donate to the enterprise 5,000 acres of land for a site and 200 lots within the corporate limits. The money for the launching of this institution is reported to have been contributed principally by Mr. Rockefeller, Mrs. Russell Sage and Mrs. E. H. Harriman.

* * *

The Charity Hospital of New Orleans is planning to celebrate its one-hundredth anniversary with appropriate exercises next October. This is the largest institution of the kind in the South, and its history has been a highly creditable and honored one. It would scarcely be an exaggeration to say that its fame is world-wide, and that its influence for good has reached all civilized lands. We wish for it an even larger measure of usefulness as it enters upon the second century of its existence.

* * *

Members of the British House of Commons will hereafter receive a salary of $2,000. Hitherto the English government has not paid its legislators anything, though some of the Irish members and labor representatives, who were poor, have been supported by subscriptions made by their constituents. We think this change is a good one, though the old system was not without merit. It kept out of parliament the professional politician, who is more concerned for the profits of office than the public weal.

* * *

An 1853 half dollar, lacking the familiar sun and arrows, was collected as fare by a Chicago street car conductor a short time since and turned in along with other receipts. It was first sold for $100; then for $500, and is now in the possession of Mr. H. O. Granberg, of Oshkosh, Wis., who bought it at an unknown price, and is said to value it at $15,000. This coin was recently on exhibition at the annual convention of the American Numismatic Association in Chicago, and attracted much attention. It is said to be the only one of its kind known to be in existence.

* * *

The fight over the question of reciprocity with the United States is waxing warm in Canada. Those opposing the measure are alleging that President Taft and Congress are really seeking in a covert way to start an annexation movement. Truly, the ways of politicans are dark and devious. They are ever ready to conjure up a bugaboo to frighten the people and make them do their way, and far too often they succeed. Not a bad question for debate in our college literary societies would be the following: Resolved that fiction exercises more influence than facts in carrying elections.

* * *

It is stated that the insurgent faction of the Republican Party will actively antagonize the renomination of Mr. Taft for the presidency, and that a campaign bureau for this purpose will be established in Washington. This element is said to favor the candidacy of Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin. President Taft, however, does not propose to be idle, and will soon begin an extended speech-making tour through the West, with a view to straightening his hold upon that section of the country.

* * *

Japan has a new premier in the person of Marquis Salonji, who has succeeded Count Katsura, and announced his cabinet. With the exception of Vice Admiral Salto, who will retain the portfolio of Minister of Marine, every department of the Government will have a new head.

* * *

The failure of Congress to vote an additional sum of $250,000 to clear away the wreck of the Maine, as the President suggested, will, according to report, seriously interfere with the completion of that work. It is said that the burial of the recovered bodies of the unfortunate crew in Arlington Cemetery and the plan to set up there the mast of the ill-fated ship as a monument to them, will have to be delayed until another appropriation is made.

* * *

General Fred Grant states that drinking is decreasing among the officers and men of the United States Army, and that for sobriety they will compare favorably with men in almost any other walk of life. He says, however, that while this is true, most of the court martial trials held are yet caused by the use of intoxicants, though the number of such arraignments is also diminishing. We are pleased to have this encouraging report; and we hope that the day is not far distant when the temperance standard set up in the Army and Navy will be as high as that now maintained by the railroad companies, which insist that their employes shall not drink intoxicating beverages at all. No duties could be more responsible and delicate than those which the soldier and the sailor are at times called upon to perform. They are liable to be sent almost any day where an act of indiscretion might embarrass the government and produce frightful results. Hence, the wisdom of demanding that all who wear our military and naval uniforms shall be men of good habits and clear heads.

KENNETH McLENDON.

Kenneth McLendon, the son of Judge Alexander and Mrs. Jane Fairley McLendon, was born in Jackson County, Miss., November 22, 1829. When he was about six years of age, his father went to live in Clarke County, known at that time as "The New Purchase." Here his youth was passed and here he attended such schools as the time afforded. At that time there were no public schools, and the coming of an itinerant school teacher and the opening of the neighborhood school, lasting two or three months, constituted the extent of the educational advantages that were available. The opportunities thus afforded were eagerly improved by the studious boy, and he accounted as one of the choicest blessings of his life the advent into the neighborhood of a certain "Yankee School-master," who seemed to the appreciative youth, not only the embodiment of all knowledge, but also one of the best of men. By the time he was fifteen years of age, the pupil had become the teacher, and for several years he taught the school of his community. Better advantages came to him when he was able to attend the Salem High School, in Green County, and with this better equipment he resumed his work as a teacher, employing the intervening months with farming and work at the carpenter's and brick-mason's trades, in both of which forms of honest toil he attained great proficiency.

His mother died in his childhood and his father married a second time, and in a happy home, with his own brother and sister and his younger half-brothers and sisters, his years of youth were spent. Early in his manhood, Mr. McLendon was happily married to Miss Rhoda Barlow, of Pierce's Springs, Clarke County, Miss., and into their home were born a family of eleven sons and two daughters. In 1880 he moved to Texas, where, in Milam County, he farmed and worked at his trades for twenty years. Here his wife died, and the old man, thus bereaved and made more lonely by the marriage and scattering of his children, came back to the home of his childhood. August 6, 1903, he came to make his home with the late John Fairley, of Hattiesburg, his mother's brother, and here, in quiet and surrounded by the love and care of his relatives, he spent the last eight years of his life.

Mr. McLendon was a member of the Methodist Church nearly seventy years, having been converted at the old Frost Bridge Campground in Wayne County, where he joined the Church in 1842. He was an active worker in the church in the years of his vigorous manhood, serving as the Sunday school superintendent and in other official positions. His love for the little country church in Milam County, Tex., near which his beloved wife was buried, caused him to leave his membership there, and it was only just before his death that he united with the Main Street Church, Hattiesburg, Miss. He was an enthusiastic Mason, and for fifty-seven years was a devoted and loyal member of this noble order.

He joined the Confederate Army in 1861, being one of the first to respond to the call for volunteers, and served in the 13th Mississippi Regiment under General Beauregard at the first battle of Manassas. After his honorable discharge he joined the cavalry service under General Forrest, and followed that interepid commander in his campaigns in Tennessee and Mississippi. He was an honored member of the Hattiesburg Camp of United Confederate Veterans, and his death is mourned by his surviving comrades of this camp.

Mr. McLendon was unusually well educated for his time, and his superior intellectual gifts made him not only a successful teacher, but a good farmer, a useful citizen, and a skillful workman. He was a man of strong convictions, but quiet of manner and charitable in his judgments of his fellow-men, while his unimpeachable integrity of character commanded the respect of all who knew him.

About the home he was helpful and industrious, and even in the years of lessening strength his skillful hands found constant and useful employment. He was an invalid for several months and suffered greatly; but always with untiring patience, and when the end came it found him ready for its coming. With fervent lips he said to his pastor: "The time is very short now, and I am ready to go; but willing to await the Master's will." The friends and relatives, who for years have ministered to his comfort, will miss the gentle, gracious sufferer, and the wider circle of loved ones will be saddened at his departure. He is survived by his brother, Mr. Franklin McLendon, and his sister, Mrs. Isabelle LaPorchea, and by several half-brothers and sisters, all living in Clarke County, Miss.

A. F. WATKINS.

God may be near us when we are faithful. The man who climbs may have his glimpse of heaven; but so has the man who simply pushes on.—G. R. Morrison.

ORGANS

50 Bargains

SOME AS LOW AS $18

Write for prices and state whether you want one for your home or your Sunday School.

Tell us just what you want it for and we will send description.

PHILIP WERLEIN, LTD.,
605-607-609 CANAL STREET,
NEW ORLEANS.

Concerning Missions.

SOUTHERN METHODISM AND THE HOME FIELD.

By Rev. M. N. Black.

Part 1.

Mr. J. Campbell White, secretary of the Layman's Missionary Movement, rightly says that "the effort to evangelize the world includes the man nearest to us, and also the one farthest away." We cannot be true to the great commission and neglect either the home or the foreign field. The divine plan reads, "Ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost parts of the earth." The work must begin at home, but it must also extend to the very ends of the earth. As Dr. John R. Nelson forcefully puts it: "The territory occupied by the M. E. Church, South, is one of the greatest home mission fields in the world, judged by the three-fold standard of need, difficulty, and opportunity."

1. Spiritual Destitution of the Mountaineers.—There are several hundred thousand white people living in the mountains of north Georgia, east Tennessee, and Kentucky, and western North Carolina who are in the very depths of ignorance and poverty, and who on account of their remoteness from railroads and from the centers of population have been sadly neglected by the Church. One-half of the territory occupied by the Kentucky Conference lies in the mountains, where until quite recently there were no railroads and no turnpikes. The timber and the mineral wealth of the mountains long since passed into the hands of the capitalists.

Bishop E. E. Hoss, who himself hails from the mountains of east Tennessee, says of these mountaineers: "These poor creatures, of whom there may be as many as 300,000 scattered through three or four States, are really objects of sympathy. They live, many of them, in one-room log cabins, and wring a scanty subsistence from the thin and unproductive soil. Like their parents before them, they neither read nor write. In instances not a few, they have sunk below the level of hope, and do not expect to improve their condition. Literally and truly they take no thought for the morrow. It is not uncommon for them after the emotional excess of a revival to lapse back into drunkenness, gambling, and licentiousness."

Railroads are now being built into these mountain fastnesses, and already conditions are rapidly changing. Dr. John M. Moore, secretary of our Home Department, who recently made an extensive tour through the mountains of eastern Kentucky, in an illuminating article in the Nashville Christian Advocate of Aug. 11, says: "The schoolhouse and the church are needed now as never before. Mission schools have occupied almost every county seat, and the State has declared that a public high school must be established in every county. The educational problem will be solved with the incoming generation if the present plans of the State and the churches do not fail. Longer delay will be inexcusable. The people, however, are not heathen. They are as moral as, if not more than, most people of the city. They know very little of the activities of the Church. Their attitude toward the Sunday school in the past has been that of vigorous opposition. They do not believe in a paid ministry. They have built no church houses. The people congregate in schoolhouses, under arbors, or in private houses, and there hear their own preachers."

The United States Census reports show that in the mountain sections of Virginia, North Carolina, Kentucky, and Tennessee there are over 200,000 men, or nearly one-half of all the white illiterates in all of the Southern States, who can neither read nor write. These mountaineers, it should be remembered, are of pure Anglo-Saxon stock, and are capable of high development. Hence, if properly educated and evangelized, they are destined to be a mighty factor in the upbuilding of our Southland. One of the greatest needs of the mountaineers is Christian schools where the young men and women from these cheerless, Christless homes may get new ideals and new ambitions, and where they may learn various crafts and industries that will enable them to better their own condition and that of their brothers and sisters and neighbors.

The Woman's Home Mission Society of our Church some years ago established three schools for the mountaineers, all of which are flourishing and doing noble work. The Sue Bennett Memorial, located at London, Kentucky, is attended by nearly 400 mountain boys and girls annually. Many students from this and other schools have returned home with transformed lives, enriched personalities, and new visions, and in the leaven of their influence have brought about wonderful and gratifying changes in their home communities, so that in numerous instances the mountain wilderness is being made to rejoice and blossom as the rose. A goodly number of the graduates of these schools are teaching in their home communities and elsewhere, while some have heard the call to be missionaries, and have gone to the foreign field.

We have reason to rejoice that our General Board of Missions, through its Home Department, and also our Board of Church Extension, are now undertaking to carry out larger and more effective plans than ever attempted before for the uplifting of the mountaineers.

2. The Problem of the Cities.—Beyond all question, our larger cities, South as well as North, are incubi of vice and crime, and centers of political corruption, and unless the streams of evil influence that emanate from them are checked and purified at their source, our national life will inevitably suffer corruption and decay. While the urban population of every section is rapidly and constantly increasing, it is a lamentable fact that the moral development of our cities has fallen far behind their material development. The slums of our cities, with their congestion of population in overcrowded, unsanitary tenements, where thousands are huddled together in filth and poverty, and ignorance, and disease, and misery, furnish one of the most perplexing problems of our modern civilization.

Says Frederick C. Howe with much truth: "The city has replaced simplicity, industrial freedom, and equality of fortune with complexity, dependence, poverty and misery, close beside a Barbaric luxury like unto that of ancient Rome. Vice, crime, and disease have come in. The death rate has increased, while infectious diseases and infant mortality ravage the crowded quarters. The city has destroyed the home, and substituted for it the hotel, the tenement, boarding-house, and cheap lodging-house. Our politics have suffered, and corruption has so allied itself with our institutions that many despair of democracy. The city exacts an awful price for the gain it has given us, a price that is being paid in human life, suffering, and the decay of virtue and the family." It is evident, then, that if our cities are to be redeemed, and our civilization kept Christian, there must be the most aggressive effort on the part of all the churches to make the cities centers of righteousness, and peace, and happiness. The future of our country depends in large measure upon the future of our cities.

Organized work is being carried on by twenty-eight Methodist City Mission Boards in connection with the Woman's Home Mission Society. Twenty-three Wesley Houses are being conducted in our larger Southern cities by the Society, each of these being in the nature of a "social settlement," the name Wesley House having been adopted to indicate their common purpose, and their relation to the Church. A social settlement may be defined as a home established in a slum or needy and neglected district of a city, where Christian workers reside in order to come into personal touch with the masses or the special classes they desire to reach, social problems being thus studied at close range, and where as a center various practical philanthropies are carried on, as for example, sewing and cooking schools, night schools for working boys and girls, day nurseries, kindergartens, gymnasiums and bathrooms, libraries and reading rooms, etc. In numerous instances the deaconesses hold cottage prayer meetings, and conduct Bible classes for women and children. "At seven Wesley Houses, district nursing and clinics, where the doctors meet the patients, are established. Relief of poverty forms an important part of the work of those in charge of each Wesley House, the special activities of which vary according to the needs of each community. Thus through these various channels the Church is now seeking to save the whole man as well as the whole of society.

3. The Neglected West.—It is a startling fact that evangelistic effort on the part of the Protestant Churches has not kept pace with the rapid development of the great West, into which for a number of years the tides of immigration from other States and from foreign shores have been pouring. Southern Methodism is just awaking to the momentous nature of the opportunity before the Church in the States west of the Mississippi River, where thousands in the home land are without the gospel, and are growing up in semi-heathenism.

It is estimated that in the far West, two-thirds of the people never darken a church door, while young men and women have been found who had never heard a sermon. Dr. John R. Nelson, secretary of our Home Department the past quadrennium, states that he preached in an Arizona town of 1,700 inhabitants, and visited another town in Illinois within thirty miles of St. Louis, fully as large, that had never had a church or a preacher of any denomination. There are mining towns of from five to eight thousand inhabitants where the only evangelistic agency is a small Protestant Mission Church of less than 100 members. A number of the Western States are practically destitute of the Sabbath, and are under the domination of the saloon and gambling evils. It is indeed startling to learn of such spiritual destitution in Christian America. Many Southern Methodists who move to the far West drift to other churches because we have not adequately occupied the field.

Arizona and New Mexico logically belong to Southern Methodism. Huge irrigation projects costing upwards of $40,000,000, are being put through in that arid region, and in the near future a vast wilderness will be redeemed and made to rejoice and blossom as the rose. Already 500,000 acres, chiefly in New Mexico and Arizona, have been transformed into veritable gardens, and it is said that not less than one hundred million more acres of desert land are capable of being thus redeemed. This region is rapidly filling up with immigrants from all quarters who greatly need spiritual ministration and the saving power of the gospel. Shall the Church lose a great opportunity because of neglect or indifference? In Oklahoma, New Mexico, western Texas, and throughout the far West, the fields are "white unto the harvest," and Southern Methodism ought to go up and possess the land.

SUPPOSE YOU HAVE A FIRE TO-NIGHT? GET SOLID PROTECTION AND INSURE WITH

LEON IRWIN & CO.

FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.

736 Union Street. Phone, Main 888.

Geo. W. Riehl. Aug. Rauxet, Jr.

RIEHL & RAUXET,

Successors to Lowengardt & Armstrong,

JEWELERS,

122 BARONNE STREET - - New Orleans, La

(Optical Department: M. F. Fitzgerald, Optician.)

Phone, Main 737.

The Centenary College of Louisiana

SHREVEPORT

Fall Term will open Sept. 13, 1911.

For Catalogue or other information write to

FELIX R. HILL, President,

P. O. Box 455

SHREVEPORT, LA.

The Home Circle

THE LITTLE WATCH.

Within my breast a little watch
Ticks bravely night and day,
And, slow or fast, its steady beat
Marks hours that pass away;
When I am good its tick is loud,
On days of joy and song,
But slowly, drearily it ticks
When I've been doing wrong.
I often wonder when I lie
Upon my bed to rest
Who is it winds while I'm asleep
That watch within my breast.

—Times-Democrat.

WHERE SOAP WAS INVENTED.

When Caesar, the great Roman Emperor, returned with his conquering army from his famous invasion of ancient Gaul, he brought home—as one of the greatest treasures captured during the campaign—a formula for making soap. Rome had palatial baths, but knew nothing of soap. The Gauls were "barbarians," but they were extremely cleanly, and possessed the secret of soap-making. Large quantities of the precious stuff were taken by the soldiers to Caesar, who quickly saw its immense value to mankind, and straightway forced the soap-makers to reveal their secret, rewarding them generously.

AN OVERTURNED INK-BOTTLE.

Who would like to hear how an overturned ink-bottle helped to bring a proud Brahmin of India to accept the "Jesus-religion?" It was not exactly the bottle, but it had something to do with it. Here is the story, and it is true as true can be. The missionary who told it is in India now, but she was in this country not long ago.

There was a rich and proud Brahmin, one of the very highest class in India, you know (but they say caste, not class), who lived as other Brahmins lived, and had no thought of becoming a Christian. He despised the name of Christianity. When he was born, his parents called in an astrologer, to tell what the baby's life should be. An astrologer pretends to tell such things from the stars, and from their place in the sky at the child's birth makes out something called a horoscope, which tells what the future will be. This Brahmin's father gave, in payment for the horoscope, the weight of the baby in silver

The man believed that the horoscope would come true. But he wanted to be a learned man, and because he believed the missionary could teach him some things not to be learned from his own people, he went, as a student, to the good Dr. Newton. He wished to learn English, and the missionary taught him to read, and together they read the New Testament through. Yet the Brahmin was not very much influenced by it, although he could not help knowing more of the Christian religion from having read it.

One day he came into the missionary's study just as a careless servant upset the ink-bottle upon some manuscripts which had just been finished with great care. The idol-worshiper looked to see Dr. Newton rise in anger and punish the careless offender, who had done such mischief. Instead, the Doctor smiled gently and forgave him. Not all the reading of the New Testament had impressed the Brahmin as did this example of forbearance. In Dr. Newton he saw what a Christian was, and said to himself: "If that is Christianity, I want it." He became an earnest Christian, and brought with him his family. He had fourteen children, and one of his daughters became quite a celebrated character. —Julia H. Johnston.

JULIA'S READING.

"Why, I shouldn't feel that I were living without reading!" Julia exclaimed. "I should feel as if I were wasting my life. Think of spending your time like Clara Hayes—just clothes and parties and visits! I don't suppose she opens a book from one week's end to another!"

"It is too bad," Aunt Isabel replied, her eyes upon her embroidery. "One real book a month is an opportunity no girl should miss if she can help it."

"One a month!" Julia echoed. "Why, Aunt Isabel, I read two or three a week right straight along! One isn't anything."

Aunt Isabel was silent while she worked a difficult curve in her monogram. Then she looked up with a smile.

"I said one real book," she answered.

"Oh, yes," Julia replied, vaguely.

Aunt Isabel was spending the winter with the family, to their great joy, for she was a rare and much-appreciated guest. One evening she called Julia into her room. "I have something to show you," she said.

Julia came, wondering. Her aunt handed her a sheet of paper. It looked like the report of the latest additions to the fiction department of the public library.

"What—" Julia began. Then slowly the color surged into her face. The record contained the names of forty-one novels—and nothing else!

"Is it all right?" Aunt Isabel asked.

"I'm—afraid it is," Julia acknowledged.

"How many of them were worth while?"

"About three," the girl replied, frankly.

She stood studying the list. Presently she put it down with an air of determination.

"Hear my vow before I go," she said, laughing and serious at the same time. "Not another novel; not even the most fascinating, for three whole months! But you'll have to help me out, Aunt Bel."

"Agreed," Aunt Isabel responded promptly.

Aunt Isabel's visit ended soon after that. She gave Julia lists of books to read, but heard nothing in regard to them until the next three months were over. Then she received a book list and a note. The list recorded one history, two biographies, two volumes of literary criticisms, one of art criticism, one of poetry, one of essays, and one of sociology. The note was brief: "Miss Julia Roberts, who has been the victim of a serious attack of the fiction habit, is now recovering, after a severe course of treatment."

Aunt Isabel, with a pleased look in her eyes, promptly sent a telegram: "Warmest congratulations. I'm proud of you, my dear."—Youth's Companion.

MOTHERS OF GREAT MEN.

The mothers of men of genius have been frequently somewhat remarkable women, more remarkable than the fathers. Caesar's mother was "a strict and stately lady of the old school, uninfected by the cosmopolitan laxity of her day." Consequently, though the Caesars were wealthy, their household was "simple and severe." Its greatest son "was always passionately devoted to his mother, who shared his house up to the time of her death," when he was forty-six years old. "Her influence upon him was doubtless great and beneficial."

Charlemagne's mother also was "a matron of the old school," and made her mark visibly upon the nature of her son, who "grossly deteriorated" after her death in his forty-second year.

Cromwell's mother was "strong, homely, and keen" of face, "with a firm mouth and penetrating eyes, a womanly goodness and peacefulness of expression." Cromwell "thought more of her than of any other woman, more than of his wife." She survived her husband thirty-seven years, remaining throughout her life to her ninetieth year by her son's side, "was lodged by him in Whitehall Palace, and royally interred in the Abbey."

The mother of William the Silent, who had seventeen children, five by a husband previous to William's father, was devout and affectionate, "enduring a long life of calamity and bereavement with heroic serenity and courage," and died after an honorable career, aged seventy-seven.

Napoleon attributed "his elevation to his mother's training, laying down the maxim that the future good or bad conduct of a child depends entirely on the mother." The only gift which he seems to have received from his father was a tendency to cancer.

Mozart, Goethe, Scott, Leibnitz, Augustine, Gregory and Francis d'Assisi, all these had mothers of some note and fathers of less—Augustine's father was "an unprincipled scamp."

It is quaint to discover that among the ancestors of Goethe—"the most interesting, though not the greatest man that ever lived"—there were three tailors. His mother was eighteen, his father thirty-nine, when he was born. Mozart, who died of tubercular nephritis—"a tubercular or strenuous taint is in some way a favoring condition of certain types of aesthetic and intellectual capacity"—had a lively but delicate mother. The mother of Leibnitz was a peacemaker, like her son.

Augustine's mother was often beaten by her husband, and saw visions and had a dialectical subtlety that is reflected in the immortal "Confessions" with much of the looseness of the saint's own earlier days.

Gregory's mother was a veritable saint. From his mother, Francis d'Assisi inherited "his delicate body, gracious nature, courteous manners, intuitive reverence, and dainty fastidiousness."

Martin Luther took after his mother, who although she had a reputation for mildness, whipped him till the blood came for stealing a nut! Renan mentally was a true son of his Gascon mother—a small tradesman's daughter—although tinged by his father's excessive sensibility, and Emerson was two-thirds his mother, albeit from his father he inherited a trace of eccentricity.—Manchester Guardian.

A lot of men look on home as merely an eating station on life's road.—Christian Index.

A whole lot of us love to lay the blame on "environment" and "heredity."—Christian Index.

The AMERICAN PAINT WORKS
——Manufacturers of——
High Grade Mixed Paints; Perfecto White Lead; Nonpareil Carriage Paint; Varnish Stain; Colors in Oil; Wood Fillers; Chemically Pure Dry Colors, Etc.
428-434 JOSEPHINE STREET.....Phone 915
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

——COLONIST——
ONE-WAY FARES TO CALIFORNIA
AND POINTS INTERMEDIATE VIA SOUTHERN PACIFIC
$32 From New Orleans.
TICKETS ON SALE
September 15 to October 15, 1911.
Two Trains Daily Through to Pacific Coast Without Change. Tourist Excursion Sleepers (1-2 Rate). Oil Burning Locomotives. Electric Block Signals. Chair Cars and Coaches. Dining Car Service (Best in the World).
Before Deciding on Your Route, See SOUTHERN PACIFIC REPRESENTATIVE,
——City Ticket Office——
225-27 St. Charles Street, New Orleans.
PHONE, MAIN 4027.
Beautifully Illustrated Literature Furnished on Request.

THE SAFEST AND QUICKEST WAY
—TO—
TRANSFER MONEY
—IS BY—
Long Distance Telephone
FOR RATES APPLY TO LOCAL MANAGER,
Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co
INCORPORATED.

Christian Advocate.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor.

CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

OFFICE: 512 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

TERMS:

One Copy, one year, $1.50; eight months, $1.00. To preachers of all Denominations, $1.00.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE

Louisiana Conference—Rev. N. E. Joyner, Rev. J M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake.

Mississippi Conference—Rev. I. W. Cooper, D.D., Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. D. Ellis.

North Mississippi Conference—Rev. J. T. Murrah, Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. H. S. Spragins.

Editorial.

THE CHURCH NOT FAILING.

It is quite the fashion nowadays to find fault with the Church and allege that it is failing to fulfill its mission. But with such complaints, whether they come from persons on the inside or outside, we have little sympathy. To be sure, the Church is not wholly what it ought to be, nor is it achieving what it might if all its members were spiritual and consecrated; but notwithstanding its shortcomings, it is the mightiest lifting force upon the planet. Without its moral restraints, its philanthropy, its work of education, its incentives to right action, its noble hymnology and the glorious gospel of Christ of which it is the custodian and vehicle, the earth would be poor indeed. Whatever is highest and best in modern civilization owes its origin, either directly or indirectly, to the teaching and influence of the Christian Church.

It always greatly delights us when we see anywhere a recognition of the debt which the world owes to Christianity, and the Church as its exponent. One of the most striking acknowledgments of this kind which has fallen under our eye in quite a while, appeared not long since in the Pittsburgh Gazette Times, and we take pleasure in reproducing it:

"All will agree that the world is better than it was a few generations ago, and that there are still bad spots here and there. Now, if we take a map of the world we will discover that the comparatively good places are where the gospel is preached and the Bible is taught in the Sabbath school. Possibly the preacher has not been as earnest, and the teacher not as intelligent, as might be desired, yet they have accomplished something worth while.

"Take the Sabbath school, one of the departments of the church. In it we have an army of 16,516,350, showing an increase in three years of 1,507,175 in North America, and the world's Sabbath-schools have increased by more than 30,000 new organizations, and by more than a million attendants. That is, there have been about 200 Sabbath-schools born each week for the last three years.

"As a missionary agency it is growing rapidly. It took ninety years to gain the first million converts, the next million came in twelve years, and the third is reasonably assured in six years. Then, too, in the realms of Great Britain, Germany and North America, and wherever Christ is worshiped, culture is at a premium. Christ and culture are inseparable as cause and effect.

"And it is true that the Church is the leader in everything that has for its object the social betterment of the city, the town and the community. Social workers in this country are about eighty per cent active church members. Of the remaining twenty per cent fully one-half are church members, the other ten per cent having no church relations. Indeed, the Church to-day is dealing (possibly not up to its preaching) not only with spiritual and moral conditions, but with the question of man's health, education, the relation of capital and labor, the slums, and corrupt government. All this the regenerated man is expected to do. Prevention is held by the Church to be better than cure. Its remedy for sin is to go out and fight it."

THE ECUMENICAL METHODIST CONFERENCE.

The Ecumenical Methodist Conference which is to be held in Toronto, Canada, October 4-17, will be the fourth world-gathering of Methodists. The first suggestion of such a meeting was made at the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Baltimore in 1876 by Dr. Augustus C. George, one of the representatives of the Central New York Annual Conference. The General Conference approved of the proposal by the adoption of an appropriate resolution, and through Chancellor E. O. Haven, its fraternal messenger to the British Wesleyan Conference, brought the matter to the attention of that body. There also favorable action was taken, and after five years of planning and work, the first Ecumenical Conference met in the cradle of Methodism, the City Road Chapel of London, on September 7, 1881. It was a great assemblage, composed of the representatives of twenty-eight branches of Wesleyanism, and the opening sermon was preached by that prince of pulpit orators, Bishop Matthew Simpson.

The second Ecumenical gathering was held in the city of Washington in 1891, and the opening sermon was delivered by the great English divine, Dr. William Arthur. The third was held in 1901 and in the same place as the first, the historic City Road Chapel, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, furnished the minister who gave the opening message, in the person of the eloquent Charles B. Galloway.

And now after the lapse of another decade, the hosts of Methodism from all over the world are about to assemble again on this side of the Atlantic. They have pushed forward into new fields within the past ten years, and a larger number of nationalities will be represented in this than in any prior convocation. All the races of mankind will participate in its proceedings. It will not lack much of embracing delegates from "all nations, and kindreds, and peopies, and tongues." They will come together as the representatives of the 7,000,000 Methodist communicants of the United States and Canada, the million and a half in Great Britain and other European countries, and the thousands of India, Australia, the Orient and other lands. The constituency for which they will speak and act numbers not less than 33,000,000 souls.

The Conference itself, however, will not be a very large body. The number of delegates is limited to 500. Of these 200 will come from Great Britain, Continental Europe, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. The other 300 will come from the several Methodist Churches of North America and their widely scattered mission fields. The Methodist Episcopal Church will send 130 representatives; the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, 68; the Canadian Methodists, 24; the Methodist Protestant Church, 9; the United Evangelical, 3; and the three independent Negro bodies, 50. The Conference, of course, can exercise no legislative function, its powers being only advisory and suggestive. But its inspirational value is certain to be very great, and its influence wholesome and far-reaching. The spiritual children of Wesley everywhere should pray that this great assembly may be overshadowed by the Holy Spirit, and that its deliberations may contribute to the strengthening of Methodism all around the globe and the general advancement of our Lord's kingdom.

A CREDITABLE PIECE OF WORK.

For some weeks Dr. H. Walter Featherstun has been contributing to The Epworth Era a series of discussions under the caption, "My Church—A Study of the New Testament Idea of the Church." These articles have been fresh, suggestive and scholarly, and have awakened more than ordinary interest. The author of them is a clear thinker, and writes with enviable fluency and force. He has rendered a valuable service in giving to our young people this wholesome treatise, which we understand is to be issued in book form, that it may have a wider circulation and be preserved for use in the years to come. Dr. Parker is to be commended for seeking to create for the young Methodists of the South a vital and up-to-date Christian literature, and we are pleased to note the success that he is achieving in the execution of his plan.

A NOTEWORTHY PROJECT.

The whole Southern Methodist Church is interested in the Southern Assembly, located on Lake Junaiuska, near Waynesville, N. C., and we are pleased to be informed that good progress is being made in getting this enterprise established and under way. This Assembly is expected to be to the Methodists of the South, what Chautauqua is to those of the North, and there is little doubt that in the years to come it will exert a far-reaching educational and religious influence. The movement could not be in safer or more competent hands. Among those connected with it are Bishop Atkins, Mr. J. R. Pepper, Dr. James Cannon, Gen. J. S. Carr, Judge E. D. Newman, and a number of other leading Methodists, whose very names are a guarantee of wise management and the success of the undertaking.

But it is not so much the enterprise as a whole, but a particular feature of it, to which we now wish to call attention. With a view to facilitating the Sunday school work of the whole Church, our General Sunday School Board has decided to erect on the Assembly grounds a model Sunday school building to cost not less than $30,000, which will serve as an object lesson to the multitudes who go to the Assembly every season. It is believed that in this way a connection-wide interest in Sunday school architecture can be awakened. The Sunday School Board has named a committee, composed of Mr. J. R. Pepper, Mr. M. L. Walton, and Mr. B. M. Burghes, to inaugurate a campaign to raise the money needed for this model building. This committee desires that every Sunday school in the Church shall have a part in the consummation of this enterprise, and they are requested to take offerings for it on Rally Day, Sunday, Oct. 15. Presiding elders, pastors, and superintendents are urged to begin now to bring this important matter to the attention of the people and especially of Sunday school workers. We regard this undertaking as exceedingly wise and timely, and we trust that it will command the hearty support of our people everywhere.

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

The Ruston District Epworth League Conference is in session this week at Arcadia, La.

Rev. L. F. Alford, of Sumrall, Miss., has our thanks for a list of subscribers, recently sent in.

For several weeks Dr. C. W. Carter has been visiting his son, Dr. Thomas Carter, of Nashville, Tenn.

Saturday, October 7, is the Louisiana Orphanage "Work Day." Let every Methodist in the State observe it.

It is less than three months until the meeting of our Annual Conferences. This means that it is time to begin hustling.

After a pleasant stay with relatives in Texas, Mrs. R. G. Porter is again with her daughter, Mrs. Alice Hawkins, at Boyle, Miss.

Rev. and Mrs. C. D. Atkinson, who for the past two months have been keeping house at the Seashore Camp Ground, have returned to the city.

Rev. Paul M. Brown, presiding elder of the Alexandria District, requests us to state that hereafter his address will be Alexandria, La., instead of Tiogo, La.

The delegates from Louisiana and Mississippi to the Ecumenical Methodist Conference are Dr. F. N. Parker, Dr. A. F. Watkins, Mr. J. R. Bingham, and the editor of the Advocate.

Dr. Walter Brewer, a prominent physician of Columbus, Miss., has been in the city for several days. He is taking a special course of study at the Eye, Ear, Nose and Throat Hospital.

A good report comes from the Topisaw Camp meeting held recently. The attendance was large: forty conversions resulted from the services, and fifteen members were added to the church.

We are informed that Rev. J. N. Hall, who was assigned to the Glenmora Circuit as a supply at the last session of the Louisiana Conference, has surrendered his charge, and that Rev. Wilson Moore has been appointed to succeed him.

A gratifying increase in the membership of the Court Street Church, Hattiesburg, has been made this year under the leadership of Rev. Geo. H. Thompson, nearly or quite a hundred new members having been added since the last Annual Conference session.

The work of the Lafayette District is progressing favorably under the direction of the capable presiding elder, Rev. J. E. Denson. Brother Denson is thoroughly loyal to the Methodist doctrine and polity, and the interests of the Church are safe in his hands.

In catching up the threads of their work after the heated term we ask the brethren to remember the Advocate. We ought to secure many renewals and new subscribers within the next few weeks.

The Conference organ in the homes of your people will help you to round out the year's work successfully.

After several weeks spent at Monteagle, Mrs. W. L. Duren and her little ones have returned to their home at Tupelo, Miss. Brother Duren was with his family at this delightful Tennessee resort a part of the time, but was too much concerned for his work to be long absent. His charge is in excellent condition.

The Hattiesburg News states that the ladies of the Main Street Church of that city, of which Dr. A. F. Watkins is the popular pastor, have been bestirring themselves to build up the mid-week prayer meeting, and that their efforts have met with considerable success. Most heartily do we commend their example to others.

Rev. H. P. Lewis, of Jackson, Miss., and his six sons had an interesting family reunion at Mount Olive, Miss., on August 28. Of the six young men, five are itinerant methodist ministers, as follows: B. W. Lewis, O. S. Lewis, J. M. Lewis and H. P. Lewis, Jr., of the Mississippi Conference, and Rev. J. T. Lewis of the North Mississippi Conference.

By request of Brother J. D. Burgess, chairman of the Executive Committee, we make the following announcement: "The camp meeting will begin at the old Shiloh Camp Ground on Friday night before the first Sunday in October. Everybody is invited. All ministers will be taken care of while on the ground, but the traveling expenses of none will be paid except those who come by special arrangement."

Rev. W. H. Coleman and family, of Ruston, La., have been spending some time at Winona Lake, Ind. Brother Coleman is a hard worker and needed this season of relaxation and rest, though he has been turning it to practical account by attending the great Bible Conference at Winona Lake. After sojourning amid such an environment, he will doubtless return to Louisiana in fine condition for the closing work of the year.

Rev. A. G. Shankle and his interesting family spent the month of August visiting relatives at Commerce and Atlanta, Ga. They returned home on Wednesday, the 30th ult. and Brother Shankle occupied his pulpit at the Rayne Memorial Church last Sunday, both at the morning and evening hours. He reports that he had a delightful vacation, and he appears to be in fine shape for the strenuous work which he has ahead.

Rev. W. H. Huntley, D.D., of the Jefferson Street Church, Natchez, has just returned from a pleasant trip to Asheville, N. C. The outing was made possible, and all the more pleasant, by the fact that his appreciative people not only granted him a leave of absence, but also presented him with a purse out of which to pay the expenses of the trip. A popular pastor and a clever people form a very delightful combination.

Rev. J. E. Sampley, of Lorman, Miss., reports that the parsonage at that place was stormed by a pounding party of Cane Ridge people, led by Miss A. P. Jones, on Aug. 24. From the Harriston Church came a nice box and barrel filled to the top; from Mizpeh, a nice basket, and from Martin, a substantial cash contribution. Brother Sampley says: "Altogether, it was one of the finest poundings that we have ever received, and to all who had a part in it, we extend our hearty thanks."

The Midland Methodist, of August 30, says: "Rev. E. A. Tucker will leave Middle Avenue (Jackson, Tenn.) in fine shape for his successor. Everything will be ready for the new preacher to build the new church. Most of the money is not only in sight, but in the bank drawing interest." Brother Tucker is a son of the late Rev. H. R. Tucker of the North Mississippi Conference, and a brother of Rev. R. A. Tucker, now stationed at Sardis, Miss. We are pleased to note his success in the work of the ministry.

From a personal note written to the editor by Rev. T. W. Lewis, the popular pastor of the First Methodist Church South, of Memphis, we take the following: "I spent ten days at Chatauqua, N. Y., and enjoyed every minute. We expect a great work in First Church this fall. I have received 194 members thus far, many of them on profession of faith, though we have had no special revival services." Brother Lewis is one of the most efficient pastors in Southern methodism.

Rev. J. L. Neill, the pastor, and the members of the Broad Street Church, Hattiesburg, are rejoicing over the repairs and improvements being made upon their church building. The auditorium has been enlarged, a Sunday school room is being added and the church repainted, at a cost of more than $600. Revival services are to begin next week, in which the pastor will be assisted by Rev. M. L. Burton, of Gulfport. Already sixty members have been added to the roll since Conference.

Success is attending the labors of Rev. E. Nash Broyles on the Coffeeville charge, North Mississippi Conference. The Courier, a local paper, speaks in high terms of the Children's Day service recently conducted in the Coffeeville Church. At Goshen, another of his appointments, Brother Broyles has just closed a most interesting meeting, in which the preaching was done by Rev. J. H. Bell, of Black Hawk, Miss. The visible results of the labors of these two zealous itinerants are summed as follows: 28 accessions to the Church, 14 infants and 12 adults baptized, and 30 pastoral visits made.

Rev. H. W. Jamieson, pastor of the Bossier City charge, was in the city two or three days last week, and was several times in the Advocate office. He was looking well and gave an encouraging account of the work in the Shreveport District. Brother Jamieson attended the formal opening of Carrollton-Cambronne Chapel (lately erected by the Carrollton Avenue Methodist Church) last Sunday, and took part in the exercises. He assisted in the establishment of this school some five years ago, and its growth and prosperity are to him the source of much gratification.

Dr. J. M. Henry, of the New Orleans District, believes in the Sunday school as an evangelizing and church extension agency. In an address last Sunday at the opening of the Sunday school chapel constructed by the Carrollton Avenue Church, he insisted that every strong congregation, in addition to maintaining its regular Sunday school, ought to establish others in needy places. Dr. Henry has been a close observer of city mission work, and has noted the fact that churches frequently have their beginning with a few persons studying the Word in some private home or a rented room.

Our young friends, Messrs. Norman, Edward and Jack Brewer, of Black Hawk, Miss., were in New Orleans last Monday, and looked in on us at our sanctum. We were delighted to see them. We feel a special interest in young men and boys, and are always glad to be remembered by them. These brothers were having a little trip together on the eve of their impending separation for several months. Norman is in charge of a bank at Black Hawk; Ed, who has just finished his M. A. course at Vanderbilt, will teach in the high school at Covington, Tenn., and Jack will shortly resume his studies at Millsaps College.

In sending in his appointments for the fourth round, Rev. R. W. Tucker, presiding elder of the Ruston District, makes the following brief reference to the work under his supervision: "We have had some fine revivals this summer, one of which resulted in fifty accessions. We are going to try to improve on last year, and bring up a larger percentage of the assessments." The echoes which have reached our office from the territory under Brother Tucker's jurisdiction have been uniformly optimistic, and we shall be surprised if the charges embraced in it do not report general progress at the Conference next December.

Writing from Ittabena, Miss., on August 28, Dr. T. B. Holloman says: "On Sunday, the 27th inst., death came to our circle and the angels carried away our little two-year-old granddaughter, Eleanor Robertson. 'Of such is the kingdom of God.' Death is never welcome, and when he claims one of these jewels, we question why." It is, indeed, hard to give our loved ones up, and why one is taken and another left is a mystery insolvable in the present life. But doubtless all will be made clear in the sweet by and by. We extend sympathy to the parents, grandparents, and all others touched by this sorrow, and pray that the Heavenly Father may comfort and sustain them.

A letter from Rev. W. W. Williams, of Kingston, Okla., brings the sad intelligence of the death of his oldest son, Walton Albert Williams, which occurred at that place on August 23, 1911. Mr. Williams was graduated from Millsaps College in the class of 1902, and for the past seven years has held the office of Superintendent of Education in the Province of Zambales, in the Philippine Islands. He returned to the United States broken in health last June, and continued to grow worse until the end came. His remains were interred at Durant, Oklahoma. Brother Williams and his family will have the sympathy and prayers of many friends in Mississippi, their former home, in their sore bereavment.

Rev. W. D. Dominick is having a prosperous year on the Vossburg and Heidelberg charge. He writes as follows: "We have had a most gracious revival, and have added about 50 names to our membership roll. All the interests of the church are moving upward. We are most delightfully situated among a splendid people, whose kindness has abounded." Among other things Brother Dominick has lately undertaken a house-to-house canvass in behalf of the Advocate, and has already secured 16 new subscribers and 1 renewal. He states that he has his heart set on 50. We are grateful to our Brother for his activity in behalf of the Conference organ, and also for his kindly words of commendation.

We have received a card announcing that a new law partnership has been formed at Clarksdale, Miss., composed of Hon. D. A. Scott and Mr. A. D. Somerville. Mr. Scott has long been a leading lawyer at the Clarksdale bar, with a large and lucrative practice. Mr. Somerville is just entering upon his legal career, after having taken his literary degree at Washington and Lee University and a law course at the University of Mississippi. He is the second son of Mr. Robert Somerville and Mrs. Nellie Nugent Somerville, of Greenville, Miss., and a grandson of the late Col. W. L. Nugent, of Jackson, who was one of the most brilliant and resourceful attorneys in the South. We predict for this new firm a large measure of success.

Rev. L. P. Wasson, of the North Mississippi Conference, was in the city last week and called at the Advocate office, but, much to our regret, we were out and missed seeing him. A letter from Rev. W. W. Woollard, presiding elder of the Greenville District, states that Brother Wasson has surrendered his charge at Friar's Point, and will take up the study of medicine. What considerations led to this action, we are not informed. Brother Wasson was in high favor with his flock, who have given him up with great reluctance. He possesses capacity of a high order, and in his retirement from the itinerancy the Church has sustained an appreciable loss. We pray that God may bless him, and that the divine will may be accomplished in his life.

In a note just received, Rev. R. O. Weir, of Donaldsonville, La., writes: "Bishop Mouzon has transferred me to the Texas Conference, and stationed me at Conroe. I expect to move this week. I regret to leave my friends in Louisiana; I have for several years wanted to go to Texas, but the way did not open until now. I pray God's blessings upon the bretbren in Louisiana. They have been kind to me. I ask an interest in their prayers. And I pray that God may especially bless the good people of this charge. Recently I have received into the church here two bright little girls and a bright boy." The Louisiana Conference has in it no truer and more faithful man than Brother Weir, and we regret to lose him. We commend him to the Methodists of the Lone Star as in every way worthy of their confidence and esteem.

Under date of August 22, Rev. Robert B. Downer, of Jackson, Miss., writes: "I am now at Barlow, Miss., visiting a daughter eighteen miles west of Hazlehurst, quite near the Rehoboth Church. Five times since June 13, I have preached seated in a rocking chair, not being strong enough to walk or stand, or to bend my knees in prayer with comfort. But while heart and throat troubles keep me seated and quiet all day at home, the Lord allows me to preach with considerable energy, which I enjoy doing. I cannot afford to waste time merely dreaming of heaven and its reward; as I want to see the King in his beauty, I must watch for every passing opportunity and be faithful unto death." Most beautiful is this desire of our esteemed friend to be useful to the end. The manner in which those who have long labored for the Master cling to his service certainly ought to commend it to others. It is about the only thing of which men do not grow weary.

We have received a copy of the first issue of the Tulane Graduates' Magazine, which bears the date of July 1, 1911. It is a neat periodical of 104 pages, and will be published quarterly by the alumni of the university. The editor is Mr. Albert C. Phelps, and the business manager is Mr. Herbert W. Kaiser, whose address is 317 Hennen Building, New Orleans. In the opening editorial, the end sought to be attained by the establishment of this journal is stated as follows: "The purpose of the Alumni Association of Tulane University in publishing this magazine is two-fold—to bring all the scattered graduates of all its departments together by giving them an object of common interest and a means of expression for all their needs, and to unite the whole graduate body into one compact organization for the benefit of the university. In a still broader sense, the Association hopes to accomplish even more. It hopes to make this magazine a means of mediation between the general public and the university." Most worthy aims are these, and we trust that they may be fully realized.

WINONA DISTRICT NEWS NOTES.

Dear Brother Meek: The Winona District has done fairly well this year, considering the political excitement. Several good meetings have been held. Rev. W. G. Burks, of the Winona Circuit, had twelve accessions at Salem. Thirteen joined the church last week at Longview on the North Carrollton Circuit, where Dr. H. T. Gaines did the preaching. Many others have had revivals, more or less successful. The new church at Eupora is practically finished, and is a beauty. The contractor is at work upon the Ittabena church. We have new churches at Lambert, Vance, Quiver, Sunflower, Bentley, Longview and New Hope. Our pastors are busy and God is honoring their ministry.

Rev. Jerome J. Baird has been appointed to serve the Mayhew charge till Conference, Brother L. B. Hankins having failed in health. Brother Baird is preparing to join Conference this fall. He relinquishes a lucrative position to go into the ministry and is a most capable young man.

We are enjoying the Advocate. May its shadow never grow less! Fraternally, E. S. LEWIS.

ESTEY CHURCH ORGANS.

The ESTEY is the world's best Organ. The KOHLER & CAMPBELL PIANO is in every particular first class; satisfaction guaranteed in every case; freight paid; low cash price on easy payments without interest. Write for Catalogues.

J. K. BASS, Pastor Meth't Ch'ch.
Brookville, Miss.

WILBUR R. SMITH BUSINESS COLLEGE

Refers to 25 years' experience, 10,000 Graduates in business, and award of World's Fair Medal. Bookkeeping and Business, Shorthand, Typewriting and Telegraphy taught. Notes received. Situations. Begin now. Address WILBUR R. SMITH, Lexington, Kentucky.

The World's Largest Marble Deposits.

It is said that Italy can boast the largest marble deposits in the world, but this is hardly true, especially with reference to the finer grades of marble. As a matter of fact, Italy has hardly sufficient fine marble for the construction of her own and her neighbors' cathedrals, churches and palaces, and it is an unquestioned fact, that no small part of the Italian marble that is sold to the American builder at a high price, crosses the Atlantic in the humble guise of ballast. There are large deposits in New England, but neither this or the Italian deposits of really fine marble can begin to compare with the marble deposits of North Georgia.

One of the greatest industries in the South, is the quarrying of Georgia marble from vast deposits that are practically inexhaustible. The principal formation is a huge deposit located at Tate, Ga., over sixty miles long, from two or three miles wide and about two hundred feet deep, containing at least five billion feet of workable marble. The total quantity of marble used in the construction of the world's greatest skyscraper, the Metropolitan Building of New York, was only 200,000 cubic feet, and yet, there is sufficient marble in that one building alone for the construction of three and a half miles of twenty-five foot, three-story villas, allowing eight houses to a city block, which, analyzed, means that this wonderful deposit of the Georgia Marble Company's contains sufficient fine marble for the construction of 250,000 such skyscrapers, or five hundred million houses—adequate shelter for the entire population of the earth.

Not only is this the largest deposit of marble in the world, but it is of a most superior grade. Marble or stone that will not absorb liquids cannot disintegrate or decompose in any climate, the first process in the disintegration of all stones being absorption. In these Georgia marble deposits in hundreds of places where the projecting points have been exposed to the elements ever since the marble was formed, ages and ages ago, not a single ounce of decomposed marble can be found, and every exposure is free from disintegration or stains of any kind. This is accounted for by reason of the Crystalline formation being so closely interlocked as to prevent any absorption whatever. Georgia marble, by U. S. Government test, is nearest to purity in its chemical properties of any other marble in use for general purposes. Its crushing strength is upwards of 10,000 pounds per square inch and is heat resisting to upwards of 1,000 degrees Fah. The composition is uniform and coloring gorgeously beautiful. There are endless different shades to be found in this vast deposit of the world's finest marble, and any size pattern can be had on short notice. For monumental work, exterior or interior building, Georgia marble will look better, last longer and give better satisfaction all around than any material you can use. Ask your dealer to show you samples of Cherokee, Creole, Etowah and Kennesaw Georgia Marble, and if he can't supply you, write the Georgia Marble Co., Tate, Ga., and they will put you in touch with a nearby dealer who can.

√ Obituaries.

Obituaries not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

NANCY HODGES, daughter of Robert and Elizabeth Hodges, was born near Lebanon, Tenn., May 9, 1826. In 1842 she was married to Nathaniel Allen, and with him moved first to north Alabama, and later to Mississippi, where the principal part of her life was lived. She was the mother of eleven children, nine of whom lived to maturity. After passing her eighty-fifth milestone she died in Tupelo, Miss., June 21, 1911. Sister Allen had the advantage of a pious ancestry, and her father was a local Methodist preacher. And as respects both her religion and her church, she was true to the traditions of her childhood. For seventy-six years she was a faithful member of the Methodist Church; and for more than sixty years of the time, her fidelity was expressed in a consecrated aggressiveness that made her a telling factor for righteousness in her community. Indeed, her Christian life was of that heroic, vigorous, and self-sacrificing type never adequately described in less pregnant phrase than that expression of the great Apostle to the Gentiles: * * * "I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus, my Lord." In the last fifteen years, on account of affliction, she was denied the physical activities of her earlier years, but without the slightest crippling of her spirit. Those cloistered years were lived in the very atmosphere of heaven; and as the shadows lengthened, she was possessed more and more by a passionate yearning to be there. When at last the summons came, it was accepted with a gladness, a radiance, born of the confidence by which she had lived. She wrought well and she rests. Her witness to the world is her family and those whom she touched. The message spoken through her life is: "God in Christ is more than all else." And in her going she inspirits us with assurance that God never forsakes his own. God grant that the type of Christian motherhood which she represented may never expire.

W. L. DUREN.

Miss ANNA DORA DAVIS PALMER was born at Sandersville, Miss., July 17, 1881. She was the daughter of Ely and M. J. Davis; she was married to Edward Harry Palmer, Nov. 29, 1910, and died Aug. 23, 1911. Sister Palmer joined the M. E. Church, South, when nine years of age. She was brought up in the Sunday school, and, consecrating her life to God, she lived to make others happy and the world better. She was forgetful of self, and devoted to her loved ones. She was ever considerate of her parents and was glad to do anything in her power to promote their welfare and happiness. Of her husband, she was thoughtful, and her home life was in every respect beautiful. As a friend she was kind, true, and faithful. Indeed, she so deported herself that all of the Christian graces adorned her character and that in her conduct there were exhibited the richest fruits of righteousness. She traveled much with her husband, and hence was often thrown with strangers, but there were so much love and beauty in her soul, that, no matter where she went, she would soon form about her a circle of friends. How blessed and winsome is a life thus devoted to God. She and her husband were on a visit home, when she was taken ill. In spite of all that could be done, she grew worse, and she was taken to the Mississippi Infirmary at Hattiesburg, where medical skill was exhausted in her behalf, but without avail. The deceased refused to yield to treatment, and she became steadily weaker until she passed away. She was brought to Sandersville and buried, the funeral (in the absence of the pastor) being conducted by Brothers Weems and Evans. A large concourse of friends was present, and laid her away to await the morning of the resurrection.

W. D. DOMINICK.

Mr. WALTER RICHARD WITTY was born at Lodi, Miss., June 10, 1851, and died at his home in Winona, Feb. 3, 1911. At the age of sixteen, he moved to Winona, and engaged in the mercantile business, in which he continued till about seven months before his death. On Sept. 6, 1876, Mr. Witty was married to Miss Minnie Holman. This happy union was blessed with five children, four of whom survive. In 1880, Brother Witty joined the Methodist Church, of Winona, and was a member of the same at the time of his death. He served his church as Sunday school superintendent for eighteen years, and as a member of the board of stewards for a quarter of a century. In the latter capacity, he was serving at the time of his death. He was a careful student of the Word. He read it daily, and was familiar with its teaching. He loved to talk about its great characters. He was a good neighbor, affable, kind, and accommodating; but his virtues shone brightest in the home. It would seem that no man was more devoted to his family than he. As father, he was patient, loving, and considerate; as a husband, he was thoughtful, tender, and affectionate. I am told by her who knew him best that in his home relations the thought of self always came last; that his first and great aim was to make her and the children happy. His attachment to his family, and their attachment to him could not have been more beautiful. Brother Witty had his faults—and who has not? But let us forget them and emulate his virtues. Our hearts go out in deep sympathy to the bereaved wife and children, and our prayer is that the God of all grace may ever bless and comfort them.

J. A. HALL.

On Friday, Aug. 18, the death messenger called for little RAY, the eight-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Land, of this place. She was permitted to live here only for a few short years, but in that time she had become the idol of the home and a blessing to her many little friends. Although she has gone from us, the memory of her life will linger, and the little chair made vacant will not be filled. As we were forced to give this little friend up, we are thankful that God did not permit her to suffer long, but, as a little rosebud of the morning, she was immediately transplanted to the heavenly garden to grow and bloom for him in whose hands we trust her. Ray, although a cripple, was of such a winning disposition that she won many friends, and her death will be a distinct loss to the Sunday school, and the church has lost a future worker. Her funeral service, which was conducted by Rev. N. J. Roberts, was very impressive, and was attended by a large crowd of neighbors and friends. As we stand and gaze at the little mound at the rear of the church, we realize that surely God's ways are mysterious. May his blessings rest richly upon the bereaved ones in this, their sad hour!

FRANK ROBERTS.

Clarence, La.

VANDERBILT University

1,000 Students 100 Teachers

Campus of 80 Acres

also

New Campus for Departments of Medicine and Dentistry

Expenses low. Literary course for graduates and undergraduates. Professional courses in Engineering, Law, Medicine, Dentistry, Pharmacy, Theology. Send for catalog, naming department. (1)

J. E. HART, Secretary, Nashville, Tenn.

RANDOLPH-MACON ACADEMY For Boys and Young Men

Fits for college, scientific schools or business. Work endorsed by over 30 colleges and universities. Beautiful and healthful location. Athletic grounds; gymnasium. Terms, $250. No extras. For catalogue, address

H. SUMTER SMITH, Principal, Bedford City, Va.

DR. H. B. BARTLETT

National Dental Parlors

Cor. Canal & Camp Sts.

ENTRANCE 106 CAMP

Phone Main 2193

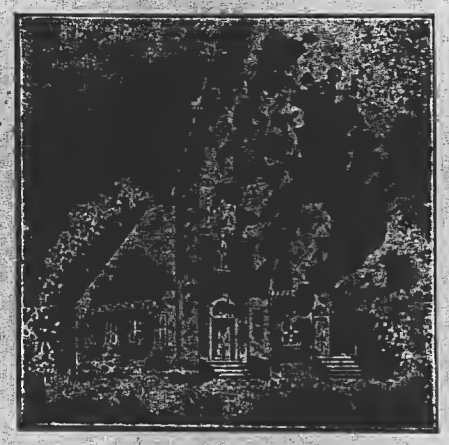
NEW ORLEANS

Vitalized Air for Painless Extraction

Crown and Bridge Specialist.

The Largest and Best Equipped Dental Parlors South.

WHEN IT COMES, BE PREPARED.



The SAFE and SAVING WAY of Insuring Church and Pastor's property is with THE NAT'L MUTUAL CHURCH INSURANCE CO., OF CHICAGO, ILL. THE METHODIST MUTUAL. Now in successful operation for years. Business at highest point ever attained, and constantly increasing. Protects against FIRE, LIGHTNING and TORNADO. No assessments. For particulars, address Henry P. Magill, Sec'y & Mgr., 164 La-Salle St., Chicago.

Mrs. Alice Hargrove Barclay, M. E. Church, South, South Brook 1116 Louisville, Kentucky.

Tidings From the Field

Paris, Miss.:

I want to send greeting to all the brethren and to tell them that a Father's hand still leads. Have just closed a good meeting at Old Sarepta, a very sacred spot to us. The Spirit of the Lord was with us, and such unity, rejoicing, praying and drawing together, I have never seen. This is our fourth year with this good, true people. During this time, they have increased in number, divided the congregation, and built two nice, good churches, one in town, the other four miles out. They have also raised their assessment over five hundred per cent and each time paid an excess. Our meeting at Paris has gone on record as being one of the best in the history of the town for its unifying and establishing results. While not being able to sit up all day much of the time, my dear Heavenly Father has helped me to preach twice a day for nearly four weeks. We begin to-night at Shady Grove. This is one of the best congregations in Mississippi. Pray for us.—D. H. Crowson, P. C.

Lake Cormorant, Miss.:

Seeing the good reports from the different pastoral charges reminds me that as yet you have had no report from the newly formed circuit of Lake Cormorant and Hinds. We are glad indeed to report some signs of progress. Our Sunday school work has grown materially in interest since the beginning of the year. At every church our Sunday school membership far excels our church membership, and we have become so concerned about the preparation of teachers that we are now doing class work among them. The work of our missionary society has improved, and the church membership is some eighteen souls larger than it was on the first of January. We have held only two of our protracted meetings—at Eudora and Hinds Chapel. At Eudora we held union services with the Presbyterians and Baptists, Dr. Potts of Memphis doing the preaching. We had an excellent meeting. There were eighteen conversions and we believe that all the churches, too, were much strengthened. At Hinds Chapel, Brother J. B. Randolph did the preaching, which for logic, practicability, and spirituality, could hardly have been surpassed. We know that lasting good was done in this meeting, the chief demonstration being the voluntary confession of sin on the part of Christians. We had several conversions, however, and eight additions to the church. We are now holding forth at Lake Cormorant, with Rev. A. G. Hall doing the preaching, and trust that the Holy Spirit may honor us with his presence, give us broader visions, and enable us to lead souls to Christ. We serve an excellent people and love them dearly.—Anderson Bennett.

August 28, 1911.

NOTICE.

To the Preachers and Official Members of the Ruston District—

Dear Brethren:

Please suffer a word of exhortation from your co-laborer. We will soon be entering upon the last round for this Conference year—almost ere we know it, we will be answering to the roll call in New Orleans. Let this remind us that the time steadily approaches when we will have to answer the call of the great Commander-in-chief under whose flag we march, and without whose welcome smile at last our lives will have been vain. Are we fully awake to the needs of "the hour?" As water cannot rise above its source, so the rank and file of the Church will not be active with indifferent leaders. O, my brethren, let us pray for the fire of the Holy Ghost to fall upon us! Let us seek a new vision of our Christ! First in his walk among men, and then in the bloody sweat of Gethsemane, and again of his agony on the cross, and also again let us get a vision of him as our blessed and constant Companion, saying "Lo, I am with you alway"—that we may get a fresh conception of duty.

Let me urge you to bring up your assessments in full. It can be done. Will we do it? Will we do our best at it? We have had good revivals, for which we are thankful. Will we be satisfied short of having done our best to raise every dollar assessed against our churches? Many of the preachers will have to do without the actual necessities of life, and some of them be left in debt, unless their salaries are met in full. The institutions of our Church for which the benevolent assessments are made will also greatly suffer unless the claims are paid. My brethren, these assessments can be gotten. Try it—begin now. Let the stewards put their heads together and say, our preacher must have his salary; and let each preacher resolve to do his best to get every dollar of his Conference collections. Oh, how I, for one, would rejoice, if the Ruston District would pay out!

Let us at least do better than we have in the past. We can, and I believe we will. Your brother and fellow-servant,

R. W. TUCKER.

Whatever the present moment may bring, your knowledge that it is his will, and that your future heavenly life will be influenced by it, will make all not only tolerable, but welcome to you, while no vicissitudes can affect you greatly, knowing that he who holds you in his powerful hand cannot change, but abideth forever.—Nicholas Grou.

Nothing can be so perfect while we possess it as it will seem when remembered.—O. W. Holmes.

L. & N. Louisville & Nashville R.R.

THE DIRECT LINE TO NORTH AND EAST
ELECTRIC LIGHTED STEEL SLEEPERS
DINING CARS, OBSERVATION CARS, CHAIR CARS

Phone M 4093. TICKET OFFICE 201 ST. CHARLES STREET.

Use the L. & A. Railway

When you travel go via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY, The Road That is Always on Time. FIRST-CLASS EQUIPMENT; Gravel Ballasted Track; 75 Pound Steel Rails; The Best of Service in Every Respect. Double Daily Passenger Service; Two Trains Each Way Daily.

OUR FREIGHT SERVICE IS UNEXCELLED.

When you order or ship freight if you want quick and satisfactory service, instruct your shipments routed via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY. Our motto is "EVER ON TIME."

F. W. GREEN, General Superintendent. Stamps, Ark.

E. S. ATKINSON, Gen. Frt. and Pass. Agt., Texarkana, Ark.

LOUISIANA RAILWAY
(La. R'y & Nav. Co.)

—THE SHORT LINE BETWEEN—
Shreveport; Alexandria; Baton Rouge; New Orleans.

THE COMFORTABLE ROUTE FOR PASSENGERS
QUICKEST ROUTE FOR FREIGHT

LESS THAN CARLOAD SHIPMENTS HAULED IN PACKAGE CARS IN THROUGH TRAINS.

SNOWDRIFT
HOGLESS LARD

Snowdrift Hogless Lard is positively the first, the ORIGINAL hogless, digestible shortening. There are imitations on the market, that should be treated AS IMITATIONS! Which would you prefer, steak, or imitation steak? Apply the same preference to shortening. Get "SNOWDRIFT." One-third less expensive, one-third more value. Makes delicious cake.

Snowdrift Hogless Lard is sold by all leading grocers who avoid "substitution" business. Buy in tins only. U. S. Inspected.

THE KIND THEY ALL IMITATE

Made by
The Southern Cotton Oil Co.
New York, Savannah, New Orleans, Chicago

E-2

You Look Prematurely Old

Because of those ugly, grizzly gray hairs. Use "LA CREOLE" HAIR DRESSING. Price $1.00, retail.

The Sunday School.

NEWS AND NOTES.

By Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick.

"People may know that we are Christians by the badge which we wear. It is love."

* * *

The constitution of the Business Men's Class of McKendree Church is of the very best—concise, but illuminating.

* * *

"The Bible has an answer for every difficulty and is a secret source of strength to us in all our need." Shall we not only read, but study it, every single day?

* * *

The Men's Adult Classes have a fine opportunity for service in assisting the Men and Religion Forward Movement. Its aim, methods, and workers are all choice, and their campaign is world-comprehensive.

* * *

Some of these busy men's classes who expected to be able to relax a little during the summer time, have really doubled their activities on account of local conditions and needs. It seems the equipment of a loving hand, kind heart and thinking brain are ever in great demand.

* * *

Here are some fine and helpful books for use in teaching boys: "Social Activity for Men and Boys," Chesley; "Boy Training," Alexander; "Boy Life and Self-Government, Fiske; "Camping for Boys," Gibson; "Selected Books for Boys" (a classified list of 200).

* * *

An inscription on the grave-stone of an Alpine guide reads, "He died climbing." It was a noble tribute—his face was forward and upward. We Sunday school folk must live climbing, and heights of rare and perfect beauty and approach very near to heaven are within our reach.

* * *

Our Rally Day suggestions and literature from the Publishing House are very attractive and really tempting, and this special day can be observed with great benefit and uplift to every school. Then, with that model Sunday school building at Waynesville in view, there is a visible and ideal objective for this Rally Day in October, 1911.

* * *

The efforts of skilled speakers and teachers to assist rural schools will prove more effective, if the inspirational hour or afternon were supplemented by real ground-work organization. A fine revival of Sunday school interest is abroad over the country, but it needs to be organized and forced to become the great religious economic force of the coming days.

* * *

Letters have come from superintendents who have been forced by adverse causes to postpone the Children's Day service, suggesting that a special Sunday school service be held and the collection for that day used as a Children's Day offering. Such a plan is permissible, and September will not be an inopportune time to hold a special service of this kind. The point is that every charge and Sunday school in the Conference shall make an effort to help in this work, and all pull together. Team-work counts greatly in final results, and some of the Sunday scool leaders have an earnest desire to see the North Mississippi Conference in the forefront in the use made of Children's Day. The Memphis Conference has not had a school to come up blank for several years, and we are too close neighbors to allow them to so outstrip us.

* * *

One helpless, bewildered superintendent had four large, active and undisciplined classes on his hands a Sunday not long since. Several teachers were absent without notice; three substitutes were available, and in the midst of other class periods, when the interest and teaching were at their height, he plunged these shepherdless classes into regulated lesson-hours, and so disorganized things and spoiled the entire hour for nearly every individual in the school. Thoughtful teachers, with the mail, telephone and small boy messenger service easily available, could have conveyed the information in regard to their absence to the superintendent in time for him to secure outside help. Then a Teacher Training Class could have prepared some extra teachers for this really crying need; a little forethought, a little additional interest and a greater love for the cause could have remedied this chaotic condition of affairs.

GOD MEANS WHAT HE SAYS.

Our sense of obligation to develop in ourselves and others a high ideal of stewardship will deepen as we meditate on, and believe in the promises of God to faithful stewards. Our Lord said: "Give, and it shall be given unto you; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over, shall men give into your bosom. For with the same measure that ye mete withal it shall be measured to you again." Paul writes: "He which soweth sparingly shall reap sparingly, and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." There are many other promises equally direct, but these will suffice. God is the recompenser, the believer's paymaster, and he promises to give to us according to our sowing. George Muller, of Bristol, England, whose long period of faithful stewardship was one of the glories of the last century, gives this striking testimony to the faithfulness of Christ: "I have moved among children of God above forty-eight years; I have become acquainted with many thousands of them, and I have known very many who sowed, and sowed bountifully, and I have not yet met with one single instance in which, even as to this life, the Lord has not acted according to his Word, so that as the sowing was, so was the reaping." Shall we not let the promises of our Lord and the witness of his faithful servant quicken us personally to new faith and to stricter obedience?—D. O. Shelton.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children, 50c.

Danziger & Tessier,

AUCTIONEERS

REAL ESTATE, STOCKS, BONDS AND INVESTMENTS

134 Carondelet Street.

Telephone 204 - - - NEW ORLEANS, LA.

KELLY & ZOELLER

WHOLESALE DEALERS IN

Provisions, Dairy Products, Etc.

Corner Tchoupitoulas and Natchez Sts.

Phone 569 Main. NEW ORLEANS, LA.

A. K. MILLER & CO.,

Steamship and Ship Agents,

317 CARONDELET ST., NEW ORLEANS LA.

AGENTS—Cuban Steamship Co., London and New Orleans; Agar Line to Havre, Marseilles, Barcelona and Spanish ports; Serre Line and Larrinaga Line for Liverpool, Bremen, Hamburg, Rotterdam, Mediterranean and other ports. Also general passenger agents of New York and European Steamship Lines.

M. LEVY & SONS

Cotton Factors

and

Commission Merchants

Liberal Advances Made on Consignments.

No. 830 Gravier St..... NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Mrs. Deborah A. Milliken. Chas. A. Farwell. Henry B. Farwell

MILLIKEN & FARWELL

COMMISSION MERCHANTS

620 CANAL STREET.....NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Epworth League Department.

(Conducted by Rev. H. B. Watkins, Magnolia, Miss., to whom all communications concerning League mat ters should be addressed.)

September 10.—Christian Athletics.

1 Tim. 4. 7; 1 Cor. 9. 24-27

1. A PURPOSE TO WIN. A rellgion that is not in earnest does not commend itself to this bustling age. A race that is not a race does not interest the spectators. The hisses of the crowd will be heard at a ball game if neither side tries to win a victory. Christianity is a serious business, and the world knows it. It is necessary for us to put energy and determination into our Christian life if we are to maintain the respect of our fellowmen and our own self-respect.

2 EXERCISE UNTO GODLINESS. Success in Christian athletics is dependent upon training. We shall pass successfully through the time of testing only by a long and careful preparation. The advice to Timothy that he should exercise himself unto godliness is worth our heed. What kind of exercise will it be? It will be an exercise of thought. In order to secure the training we need we shall have to think long and steadily about those inner and spiritual facts that are at the foundation of the Christian life. It will be an exercise in submission of will. The word "consecration" is often upon our lips. We shall have to make it a real word in our daily living. It will be an exercise in holy endeavor. We must work out the details in daily life. This sometimes requires stern purpose. It involves the daily practice of religious duties. It means the control of life in all its details by religious principle. It means the schooling of ourselves to faith in God, submission to His Providence and contentment under all crosses.

3. THE PROFFERED PRIZE. All our training is for the one end, that we may obtain the crown of life. It is to be an incorruptible crown. Its value will never diminish through all the long reaches of eternity. It is an eternal weight of glory that we are to secure. This crown will be the token of our position and standing in Christ. The earthly crown was only a symbol of the praise and renown which men secured by their athletic triumphs. If we win we shall be placed in a position of eternal triumph. This crown will be glorious with the glory that has been given to Him who triumphs over all His foes. We shall he with Christ and shall be like Him. —New York Christian Advocate.

EPWORTHIANS IN GOOD COMPANY.

By Gideon L. Powell.

No young man to-day needs to apologize for being a member of the church. It is not necessary to take off his hat and beg pardon for either his faith or his life. He can honestly and courageously look the world in the face, and say: "I am at home, and this is my own place. It is my Father's domain. He is a King, and I am his son." Standing firmly and squarely, with head erect, eyes ablaze and heart on fire, he can walk down the streets as if he owned the city and all adjacent territory.

Let every young man rejoice in his heritage for he is in good company. The best men of the Christian ages have been Christ's followers, and their number is increasing with every passing decade. Call the roll of great men, and then see what a distinguished company we belong to:

Scientists—Agassiz, Milles, Proctor, Pasteur, Faraday, Guizot, Sir William Dawson. The last named said: "Every true scientist must believe in prayer."

Astronomers—Copernicus, Kepler, William Herschel, Sir Issac Newton. Kepler said: "I am overawed with a sense of his majesty. In the firmament God is passing before me in the grandeur of his way."

Historians — Bancroft, Ridpath, Green.

Discoverers — Raleigh, Livingston, Stanley.

Statesman — Webster, Gladstone, Bismarck.

Jurists—Blackstone, Hale.

Poets—Tennyson, Browning, Lowell, Whittier.

Philosophers—Bacon, Locke, McCosh, Brown. Locke wrote: "If I had my life to live over again, I would spend it in studying the Epistles of Paul and the Psalms."

Presidents—Washington, Lincoln, McKinley.

Those were all Christians, and the list might be largely increased.—Pittsburgh Christian Advocate.

The Epworth League Needed.

The Epworth League does not ask at the hands of any church, tolerance; it does not ask to be nursed. It simply asks for its rightful place. It does not appeal to your loyalty, it does not appeal to your sympathy; but it does appeal to your wisdom. Wherever the League has received attention at the hands of the pastor and the official board, that church has found in the League a mighty force for good. That church which has not this or some other organization for the training and use of the young is losing the young, and that church is being sapped to the hurt of the future church.—Raleigh Christian Advocate.

Christianity is an everyday religion. This fact should be ever present in the Christian's mind, and distinctly illustrated in his life. If it takes a thorough grip on his soul, it will be his everyday concern to have it sway his every thought and word and deed. These sentences from The Christian Guardian are well put and to the point: "Religion is for every day. Its blessings and benefits, its comforts and consolations, its guidance and its inspiration are for the commonplace men and women. It is something to take with one, something that will never be out of place anywhere, something that will add to life's joy its best touch of sweetness and will mix with all life's sorrows, hope and courage and power. A man who has everyday religion in good, wholesome quantity can easily afford to be without a good many other things."—Christian Intelligencer.

BOHNE & WILT, Booksellers and Stationers, 1328 Dryades St., New Orleans, La. Base Ball Goods, Religious Articles, Fishing Tackle, Periodicals, School Books.

Morgan School Not Better than Some Others

Morgan School has no better building, the health of the school and town is not superior to some, the Dormitory and Gymnasium are not better than some others in the State.

All these are good enough,

But the standard of character and scholarship is equal to the best and superior to many.

If information is desired, write for catalogue.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal.

FAYETTEVILLE, TENN.

Methodist Benevolent Association

The Connectional Brotherhood of Ministers and Laymen. Life or Term Certificates for $500 to $2,000. Benefits payable at death, old age, or disability. $100,000.00 paid to widows, orphans, and disabled. $14,000.00 reserve fund. Write for rates, blanks, etc.

J. H. SHUMAKER, Secretary — Nashville, Tennessee

PETER F. PESCUD

INSURANCE

833-35 Gravier St. - - New Orleans, La.

FIRE INSURANCE—Fire Insurance placed at lowest current rates in leading American and Foreign Companies. Combined Assets, over $80,000,000. Dwelling and Furniture Especially Solicited. Automobile Floaters.

LIABILITY, ACCIDENT, HEALTH, INSURANCE—General Agent for Louisiana and Mississippi of THE EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY ASSURANCE CORPORATION, LTD., Assets $5,000,000, writing Employers' Liability, Public Liability, Elevator, Teams, General Liability, Automobile Liability, Accident and Health Insurance (writing all classifications). Burglary Insurance for banks and residences. Agents and brokers wanted at all points.

SURETY BONDS—General Agent of American Surety Company of New York writing all forms of Fidelity, contract, judicial and official bonds. Agents and Brokers wanted at all points.

BOILER INSURANCE—General Agent for Louisiana, Mississippi and Texas of the Hartford Steam Boiler Inspection and Insurance Company. Boiler and fly wheel insurance, Skilful inspections.

PLATE GLASS INSURANCE—General Agent for Metropolitan Casualty Insurance Company writing plate glass insurance. Agents wanted at all Louisiana points.

LIFE INSURANCE—General Agent of Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company. Old, strong, reliable. Assests fifty-five millions.

"MAKE ASSURANCE DOUBLY SURE"

By Taking Out a Burglary Insurance Policy on Your Residence and Store Valuables, and a Fidelity Bond on Your EMPLOYES, in the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co.

OF BALTIMORE.

EMERY & NORTON,

GENERAL AGENTS

Mechanics' and Traders' Insurance Co. Building, No. 144 Carondelet Street. Phone 210.

FIRE INSURANCE WRITTEN IN THE

National Fire Insurance Co., of Hartford,
Mechanics' and Traders' Insurance Co., of New Orleans,
General Assurance of Paris, France.

Representing Combined Cash Assets Over Ten Million Dollars.

CHURCH DIRECTORY.

New Orleans District, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., presiding elder; residence, 236 Olivier Street; phone, Algiers 76.

First Methodist Church, St. Charles Ave., near Calliope St.; Dr. S. H. Werlein, pastor; residence, 5830 Prytania St.; phone, Uptown 329.

Rayne Memorial Church, St. Charles Ave. and General Taylor St.; Rev. A. G. Shankle, pastor; residence, 1421 Constantinople St.; phone, Uptown 645.

Second Methodist Church, 2531 Burgundy, near Lafayette Ave.; Rev. A. F. Vaughan, paster; residence, 815 Louisa st. Phone Hemlock 1376.

Parker Memorial Church, corner Nashville Ave. and Perrier St.; Rev. C. D. Atkinson, pastor; residence, 734 Nashville Ave.; phone, Uptown 671.

Louisiana Avenue Church, corner Louisiana Ave. and Magazine St.; Rev. H. T. Carley, pastor; residence, 920 Aline St.; phone, Uptown 756.

Felicity Street Church, cor. Felicity and Chestnut Sts.; Rev. W. W. Holmes, pastor; residence, 1515 Prytania St.; phone. Jackson 1753.

Carrollton Avenue Church, cor. Carrollton Ave. and Elm St.; Rev. J. G. Snelling, pastor; residence, 1125 Fern St.; phone, Walnut 1238.

Algiers, Lavergne Street, cor. Delaronde; Rev. J. W. Booth, pastor; residence, 119 Vallette, St.

Epworth Church, cor. Banks and Scott Sts.; Rev. L. A. Sims, pastor; residence, 3602 Canal St.

Mary Werlein and McDonoghville; Rev. W. B. Perritt, pastor; residence, No. 1026 Tchoupitoulas St.; phone, Main 412.

Rev. John L. Sutton, Superintendent Orphan Boys' Asylum; residence, 5220 St. Charles Ave.; phone, Uptown 128.

Rev. N. E. Joyner, Superintendent St. Mark's Hall, 619-21 Esplanade. Residence, 1634 Sixth Street; phones: Residence, Uptown 954; St. Mark's Hall, Hemlock 1458.

Rev. R. A. Meek, Editor New Orleans Christian Advocate; residence, 724 Nashville Ave.; phone, Uptown 679.

Rev. John T. Sawyer, D.D., residence, 1420 Howard St.

A BOY'S ESSAY ON CATS.

A school-boy wrote an essay on cats. The chapter on different breeds supplies the following information:

"Cats that's made for little boys and girls to maul and tease is called Maltese cats. Some cats is known by their queer purrs—these are called Pursian cats. Cats with bad tempers is called Angorrie cats. Cats with deep feelin's is called Feline cats." —Central Christian Advocate.

QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Best & Quickest Service

TO ALL
IMPORTANT DESTINATIONS

In the North & East

Summer Tourist Tickets now on Sale to all Mountain, Lake and Seaside Resorts.

—Ticket Office—
211 ST. CHARLES STREET
Phone Main 4482

Terminal Station---Canal Street

VISIT
MINERAL WELLS
—FOR—
HEALTH AND PLEASURE
AND
WEST TEXAS
—For—
FINE AGRICULTURAL LANDS
REACHED VIA

THE TEXAS T AND P PACIFIC RAILWAY

EXCURSION TICKETS ON SALE DAILY.
Free Booklet.

E. P. TURNER,
General Passenger Agent.
DALLAS - - - - - TEXAS

COLIC,
CRAMPS and DIARRHOEA are both painful and dangerous.

Prompt and permanent relief follows one or two doses of Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic. You should never be without it.

At all Druggists
25 and 50 Cents

Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic

FROM A MILLSAPS STUDENT.

Dear Brother Meek: The boys and the co-eds. will soon turn their faces toward Millsaps College again. Their hearts' longings have been there all during vacation. Of course, it is not the college alone that attracts, but also the love and good-will existing between the members of the faculty and the student body.

The college is just launching out into a broader field of usefulness and accomplishment. With the matchless Dr. D. C. Hull, as president, it is destined to succeed.

The students of last term called Dr. Hull "a man maker." And what he has already done for the institution proves that all that he needs is plenty of raw material to work with. The prospects are good for a full supply next term, as everybody has begun to talk Millsaps. Several new pupils are going from this vicinity, and it is prophesied generally, that the coming term will be Millsaps' banner year. This school stands unparalleled in religious training and influence and its reputation socially is unequaled.

There is another attraction at Millsaps which is, the unrestricted access to the different churches of Jackson. When I entered Millsaps, I was warned by a young man not to place my church letter in the First M. E. Church, South, as its members and pastor were cold and reserved. As a result of this timely warning, I kept my letter in my pocket for some time, until I had met the pastor and some of his members. I then decided that I would make no mistake in placing my letter in the First Church. I never mingled with a people and a pastor with whom I enjoyed associating more than I did those people and their beloved pastor, Dr. A. F. Smith. I am persuaded to believe that the coldness and reserve of which my friend spoke must have been with himself. And my advice to the new student, is to get acquainted with that people and their pastor. They will do you good. Dr. Smith is also a faithful supporter of the college, and often lectures to the boys, giving them valuable advice and information.

The Sunday school at this church is probably the largest, best equipped and most completely organized of any in the State. It is pushed forward by the energetic and enthusiastic superintendent, Mr. J. T. Cavett, and is backed up by a corps of teachers which the superintendent would not exchange for any other in the State.

The Epworth League is also large. It is very helpful, as well as entertaining. It is doing a good work, with its consecrated and enthusiastic membership, led by its president, Mr. John Ricketts. Join this League and take an active part, and you will feel at home.

I must thank the people of Jackson for their kind treatment and cordial reception which they gave me. I went to their city a stranger, but they would not let me remain one.

After the term of school was over, I returned to McComb, and have been studying, and attending revival meetings here and elsewhere. I find the religious side of life greatly revived everywhere. I have made several attempts to preach myself. I would prefer that you make no inquiries as to how well I succeeded, as I am a beginner. I had the pleasure of attending the Topisaw Camp Meeting. It was a glorious success.

I notice that churchanity is fast vanishing in most places. It is hard to distinguish Baptists from Methodists. The M. E. Church, South, of South McComb, with Rev. D. Scarborough as pastor, and the South McComb Baptist Church, with Rev. J. H. Lane as pastor, are as one in the good work. These two pastors are doing a great work, pulling together and winning the people.

I read every copy of the Advocate, and I appreciate the work you are doing. May God's richest blessings rest upon your efforts!

CLEVELAND REGAN.

ORIGIN OF THE JAPANESE JINRIKISHA.

Many of the things in every-day use are of the most whimsical origin Last season the jinrikisha made its appearance at Atlantic City in competition with the familiar and restful wheel chairs. Its success was so marked that it is said five thousand of these odd-looking Japanese vehicles have been ordered for next season. Evidently the jinrikisha has come to Atlantic City to stay. In any event, in coming to America the Japanese jinrikisha is really coming to the place where it belongs. It was invented by an American for the comfort of an American baby. Soon after Perry opened the ports of Japan to the world's commerce there came to the family of one of the American consuls in the kingdom of the cherry blossom the stork. As a matter of course, the fond mother and proud father wanted a baby carriage. To their dismay, they found that there was not a baby carriage nor any other wheeled vehicle in the whole Empire of Japan, with the exception of the mikado's car of state, drawn by a white ox. One day the consul noticed a pair of old buggy wheels in a rubbish heap in a blacksmith shop. On making inquiry he was told that the wheels had been thrown away by the captain of a trading vessel. The blacksmith had no use for them, and the consul made an easy bargain. Then, with the help of a carpenter, he soon rigged up the most remarkable baby carriage ever seen. It was the first "jinrikisha" ever made in Japan. By and by the consul left Japan, giving his baby carriage to the carpenter who had helped him make it. The carpenter enlarged and strengthened the body, adapting it to the use of a grown person, instead of a baby. Every one who saw the vehicle wanted one like it, and the carpenter became one of the great manufacturers of the empire, while the makeshift baby carriage became the universal conveyance throughout that country.—Western Christian Advocate.

A BARGAIN TO SOME PREACHER.

Do you want The New Schaff Herzog Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge? If so, I will make you a good offer for cash. I am not dissatisfied with the books, for nothing will take their place in a preacher's library.

W. W. JONES,
Myrtle, Miss., Box 177.

JELL-O
ICE CREAM
POWDER
makes delicious ice cream for 1c. a dish. Nothing to do but put it into milk and freeze it. At grocers, 10 cents a package.

1½ H. P. Farm Engine Kerosene Gasoline $49.50

Greatest value ever offered in a 4 cycle water-cooled farm engine. Runs any kind of machinery—pumps—saws—separators—feed grinders—water systems—electric light outfits, etc.

4 & 6 h. p. sizes at proportionate prices. Also complete line of 2 cycle engines.

Very simple. Uses little fuel. Best material and workmanship. Made to last a lifetime. Shipped complete all ready to run. No extras to buy. Guaranteed by a big responsible concern. Write for catalog TODAY and ask about

30 Day Trial Offer

Gray Motor Co.
973 I. S. Motors Building
Detroit, Mich.

Good News for the Deaf.

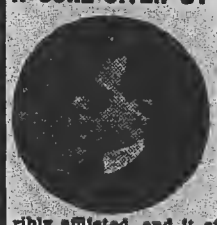
A celebrated New York Aurist has been selected to demonstrate to deaf people that deafness is a disease and can be treated successfully in your own home. He proposes to prove this fact by sending to any person having trouble with their ears a trial treatment of this new method absolutely free. We advise all people who have trouble with their ears to immediately address Dr. Edward Gardner, Suit No. 480, No. 40 West Thirty-third street, New York City, and we will assure them that they will receive by return mail, absolutely free, a "Trial Treatment."

COULD NOT WRITE.

Versailles, Ky.—Mrs. Elischa Green, of this place, says, "I could not write all the different pains I had, when I first tried Cardui. I could scarcely walk. Now I am able to run the sewing machine and do my work; and my neighbors tell me the medicine must be good, for I look so much better." Cardui is a specific, pain-relieving, tonic remedy, for women. In the past 50 years, it has been found to relieve women's unnecessary pains, and female misery, for which over a million suffering women have successfully used it. Try Cardui for your troubles. It will help you. At the nearest drug store.

RHEUMATISM

A CURE GIVEN BY ONE WHO HAD IT



In the Spring of 1898 I was attacked by muscular and inflammatory rheumatism. I suffered as those who have it know, for over three years, and tried almost everything. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely and it has not returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, and it effected a cure in every case. Anyone desiring to give this precious remedy a trial, I will send it free. Address,

Mark H. Jackson, No. 89 James Street, Syracuse, N. Y.
Mr. Jackson is responsible. Above statement true.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

NORTH MISS. CONFERENCE.

Aberdeen Dist.—Fourth Round.

Chapel	Sept.	16, 17
Smithville	Sept.	23, 24
Amory and Nettleton	Sept.	24, 25
Palestine	Sept.	28, 30
Pontotoc	Oct.	1, 2
Beuna Vista, at Ebenezer	Oct.	7, 8
Prairie, at Prairle	Oct.	8, 9
Verona, at Verona	Oct.	14, 15
Shannon, at S	Oct.	15, 16
Houlka, at Concord	Oct.	21, 22
Houston	Oct.	22, 23
Pittsboro, at Pine R	Oct.	28, 29
V. and C. City, at C. City	Oct.	29, 30
Derma, at Rhodes Chp.	Nov.	4, 5
Wren, at Tranquil	Nov.	8
Aberdeen	Nov.	8
Greenwood Springs	Nov.	11, 12
Okolona Circuit	Nov.	12, 13
Tremont, at Asbury	Nov.	18, 19
Fulton, at Vanburen	Nov.	19, 20

No business session of the conference will be held until Sept. 23. Tupelo, Okolona, Amory and Nettleton, Nettleton Circuit, and Montpelier will have their conferences at pleasure.

I will preach on the Wren Circuit, Sunday, Sept. 3, holding their business session as indicated. We are to send to conference the best report in the history of the Aberdeen District. Take due notice, brethren, and govern yourselves accordingly.

JAMES H. FELTS, P. E.

Columbus Dist.—Fourth Round.

Shuqualak	Sept.	10, 11
West Point	Sept.	17, 18
Brooksville	Sept.	23, 24
Macon	Sept.	24, 25
Mathlston	Sept.	30, Oct. 1
Crawford	Oct.	7, 8
Columbus, First Ch.	Oct.	15, 17
Columbus, Second Ch.	Oct.	15, 18
Mashulaville	Oct.	21, 22
Cochrane	Oct.	28, 29
Cedar Bluff	Nov.	4, 5
Columbus Circuit	Nov.	8
Sturgis	Nov.	11, 12
Starkville Circuit	Nov.	18, 19
Mayhew	Nov.	25, 26

Will the pastors please be ready to answer question 31 and see that the trustees are ready to answer in full question 32? J. E. THOMAS, P. E.

Greenville Dist.—Fourth Round.

Rosedale	Sept.	3, 4
Greenville	Sept.	10, 11
Lyon	Sept.	17, 18
Coahoma	Sept.	24, 25
Gunnison	Sept.	30
Evansville	Oct.	1, 2
Arcola	Oct.	7, 8
Leland	Oct.	8, 9
Murphy	Oct.	15, 16
New Salem	Oct.	21, 22
Boyle	Oct.	22, 23
Jonestown	Oct.	29, 30
Cleveland	Nov.	4, 5
Merigold	Nov.	5, 6
Shelby	Nov.	7
Clarksdale	Nov.	12, 13
Friars Point	Nov.	14
Benoit	Nov.	19, 20

W. W. WOOLLARD, P.E.

Oxford Dist.—Fourth Round.

Red Banks, at Wesley	Sept.	16, 17
Taylor, at Andrews	Sept.	23, 24
Paris, at Pleasant R	Sept.	30
Water Valley, First Ch.	Oct.	1, 2
Water Valley, Main St.	Oct.	1, 3
Pine Valley, at Banner	Oct.	7, 8
Coffeeville, at Goshen	Oct.	10
Potts Camp, at Palestine	Oct.	12
Randolph, at Washington	Oct.	14, 15
Tocapola, at Tocapola	Oct.	16
Lafayette	Oct.	17
Holly Springs ct., at Harris Chapel	Oct.	27
Abbeville, at Mt. Zion	Oct.	28, 29
Oxford	Oct.	29, 30
Duck Hill, at Duck Hill	Nov.	3
Charleston, at ———	Nov.	5, 6
Grenada Ct., at Spg Hill	Nov.	11
Grenada	Nov.	12, 13
Ashland, at ———	Nov.	16
Waterford, at Pine Mt.	Nov.	18, 19
Holly Springs	Nov.	19, 20

J. E. CUNNINGHAM, P. E.

Winona Dist.—Fourth Round.

Winona Station	Sept.	17
Carrollton, at Coila	Sept.	23, 24
Greenwood	Oct.	1
Itta Bena ..7:30 p.m.	Oct.	1
Belzoni, at Belzoni	Oct.	7, 8
Ruleville, at Sandy Bayou	Oct.	14
Webb, at Sumner	Oct.	15, 16
Schlater, at Schlater	Oct.	21, 22
Minter City	Oct.	29
N. Carrolton, at Enon Fri.	Nov	3
Eupora, at Maben	Nov.	4, 5
Tutwiler, at Mattson	Nov.	10
Moorhead, at Doddsville	Nov.	11, 12
Inverness, at Inverness	Nov.	12, 13
Bellefontaine, at Long Branch ..Wed	Nov.	15
Slate Springs, at Spring Hill ....Thurs	Nov.	16
Winona Ct., at Bethlehem	Nov.	18, 19
Kilmichael, at Kilmichael	Nov.	19, 20
Mars Hill at M. H. Tues.	Nov.	21
Lambert, at Glendora	Nov.	25, 26
Indianola, at Indianola	Nov.	26, 27

Special attention is called to questions 31 and 32. Let us carry up to the approaching Annual Conference the best report the Winona District ever made. E. S. LEWIS, P. E.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Seashore Dist.—Fourth Round.

Howison and Saucier, at Lyman	Sept. 24, Nov.	23
Columbia	Oct. 1, Nov.	20
Brooklyn and Bond, at Brooklyn	Oct.	4
Americus, at Salem	Oct.	7, 8
Hub, at Hub	Oct.	14, 15
Mentorum, at Pine G.	Oct.	20
Vancleave, at New Prospect	Oct.	21, 22
Gulfport, 29th St.	Oct.	25
Lumberton	Oct. 29, Nov.	20
Mississippi City	Nov.	1
Poplarville	Nov.	5, 18
Pascagoula	Nov.	10
Moss Point	Nov.	11, 12
Escatawpa, at Escatawpa	Nov.	11, 12
Biloxi, Main St.	Nov.	15
Derby, at Derby	Nov.	7
Carriere and McNeil, at Carriere	Nov.	18, 19
Oakvale, at Oakville	Nov.	21
Long Beach	Nov. 22, Dec.	2
Wolf River Mission 10 a.m.	Nov.	23
Coalville	Nov.	24
Bay St. Louis	Nov.	25, 26
Logton	Nov.	27
Gulfport, 25th Ave.	Nov. 29, Dec.	2
McHenry and Wiggins, at Wiggins	Nov.	30

W. B. JONES, P. E.

Meridian Dist.—Fourth Round.
(In Part.)

Meridian, East End	Sept.	24
Meridian, South Side a.m.	Oct.	1
Meridian, Central ..p.m.	Oct.	1
Scooba, at Scooba	Oct.	4
Clara, at Boice	Oct.	7, 8
Shubuta and Quitman, at Quitman	Oct.	15, 16
Meridian, 5th St. a.m.	Oct.	22
Meridian, 7th Ave. p.m.	Oct.	22
Enterprise and Stonewall, at Enterprise	Oct.	25
Matherville, at Andrew's Chapel	Oct.	28, 29

W. H. LEWIS, P. E.

DREAD OF AN OPERATION.

N. Manchester, Ind.—Mrs. Eva Bashore, of this place, says, "I suffered female misery of every description. Two doctors attended me, and advised an operation. I lost weight until I welghed only nlnety pounds. I dreaded an operation, and, instead, began to take Cardui. In a short time, I gained 25 pounds, and feel as well as I ever did. Cardui, I am sure, saved my life." Cardui is to-day used in thousands of homes, where it relieves paln and brings back strength and ambition. It is a woman's medlcine, for woman's ailments, and you are urged to try it for your troubles. Ask your druggist. He will tell you about Cardui.

Earth has nothlng more tender than a woman's heart when it is the abode of pity.—Luther.

EDUCATIONAL

JEFFERSON MILITARY ACADEMY,
Washington, Miss.

Prepares for Colleges, Universities, Scientific Schools and business. Located in the Hills, six miles east of Natchez, a place noted for its healthfulness, fine climate and historic surroundings. Away from the detractions and temptations of City life, but with all modern convenience. Fine spring water. Personal attention; one teacher for every twelve boys. Eighty (80) acre campus. Large gymnasium. Endorsed and recommended by the presidents of Colleges and Universities. 110th Session begins Sept. 14, 1911. For full particulars apply to MAJ. R. V. ANDERSON, Supt.

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.

Rev. David Carlisle Hull, M.S., President.
A high grade college, situated at the capital of the State. Location high, dry and healthful.
Entrance Requirements and Curriculum same as in other Leading Colleges and Universities North and South.
Separate Preparatory School under Private Dormitory Management.
The very finest Moral and Religious Influences. Extraordinary Advantages in LITERARY AND LAW DEPARTMENTS.
Courses Leading to A.B., B.S., A. M., M.S., and LL.B. Degrees.
TWENTIETH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 20th, 1911.
For catalog and other information address
H. Y. BURTON, Secretary, Jackson, Mississippi.

GRENADA COLLEGE

A CHRISTIAN COLLEGE FOR GIRLS AND YOUNG WOMEN.
The Property of the Church—Erected and Maintained for Service.
Only One Hundred Boarders Taken: Personal Attention Given Each Student.
A FACULTY OF SPECIALISTS.
THE BEST ADVANTAGES IN MUSIC, ART, AND EXPRESSION.
Write for Catalog. REV. J. R. COUNTISS, President. Grenada, Miss.

MARTIN COLLEGE,
An Endowed School for Girls and Young Women,
PULASKI, Tenn. Established 1870. W. T. WYNN, President
Located on Main line of the L. & N. R. R., eighty miles south of Nashville, forty miles north of Decatur, in the beautiful "Blue Grass" region so famous for health and the beauty of its scenery. Cultured community. All departments. German Director of Music. Conservatory and University trained teachers. Modern buildings. Good pianos, new $1000 grand for recitals. Correspondence invited. Forty-first session begins Sept. 20, 1911. Write for catalogue. Address W. T. WYNN, Pulaski, Tennessee.

NEW ORLEANS COLLEGE OF PHARMACY.
A completely equipped college. A school of Pharmacy, conducted by Pharmacists. Complete course of lectures with laboratory instructions in Pharmacy, Chemistry, Botany, Physiology, Urinology, Materia Medica and Pharmacognosy. Increase in faculty with curriculum. Next session begins Sept. 25th. Fees, $75 per session. Write for catalogue. PHILIP ASHER, Ph.G., M.D., Dean, 1600 St. Charles Ave., New Orleans, La.

HIBERNIA INSURANCE CO.,
Capital.....$200,000.00
Assets..... 479,360.90
No. 305 Camp Street., New Orleans, La.
LOSSES PROMPTLY PAID.

PARALYSIS, DYSPEPSIA
AND OTHER CHRONIC DISEASES CURED
By our New Natural Methods. No drugs, no surgery. Hundreds of invalids who had suffered for years with dyspepsia, paralysis, rheumatism, sexual disorders, neurasthenia, and other stubborn ailments have been quickly restored to health and strength by our treatment. No tubercular cases accepted. If you are ill, write for a Free copy of our book which tells all about this new and better way.
THE BIGGS SANITARIUM, - - Asheville, N. C.

ORDER NOW

The strongest, truest, and boldest utterances on social and moral problems go to make up

"A Man Wanted"

"A masterly discourse on the evils of the present day."—Rev. T. V. Peters, Slidell, La.

"I have read it with pleasure, and feel that it should do good."—Rev. Jno. F. Foster, De Ridder, La.

"No man can read this sermon without being aroused to earnest thought."—Rev. W. L. Doss, Rayne, La.

"Any pastor is fortunate to have this sermon preached or circulated among the men of his congregation."—Rev. T. J. O'Neil, Newton, Miss.

"I would be glad if every young man in the land could hear this address."—Bishop W. B. Murrah.

"A MAN WANTED is a strong sermon by Rev. W. G. Harbin. Price, 15c postpaid. C. O. Chalmers, publisher, 512 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

IF WE ONLY UNDERSTOOD.

It was on a Pennsylvania sleeping-car coming East. All of the passengers had retired except one man, who, holding a crying baby in his arms, moved wearily up and down the car, kissing the downy head of the child and speaking softly and gently to the troubled little soul, as he sought in vain to quiet it. A man is good for many things, and sometimes good for nothing, but when it comes to tranquilizing an irritable infant he realizes how largely his usefulness is impaired, and his pride is humbled into the dust.

A woman with a falsetto voice, who had just awakened out of slumber, put her head out of a berth and shouted in a tone of the deepest indignation. "Take that child out of the car!" And, as if this was the signal for concerted action on the part of the passenger who had formed a combination of three different keys, and for one hour and fifteen minutes had been making the night hideous with his snoring, he suddenly roused up and snarled: "Why don't you carry that child to its mother?" And then a chorus of emphatic protests echoed along the car. "This is an imposition; where is the conductor?"

The man with the child halted for a moment, his mouth quivered, a sob choked in his throat. He drew the frail body down close against his breast, and kissed with infinite tenderness the tear filled eyes, and then said while the volley of protests was hushed a moment: "I would take it to its mother—God knows how I would like to—the little one has been crying for her ever since we left her; but I cannot take it to its mother, for she is in the baggage car in a coffin, and we are taking her back to her old home where she may sleep until Jesus comes, under the blue sky where she played as a child. The baby misses the touch of her hands and her mouth, and oh, we both miss her so much!" Then the sound of a strong man's sobs unrepressed filled the car.

In five minutes twelve women were in the aisle of the car, headed by the fat man in undress uniform, each woman with a wealth of tenderness in her face, and the fat man sobbing as if he had lost his best friend. "Forgive us; we didn't know. Poor little darling! You lie down and sleep; we will take care of the baby." The tired child laid it's head down on a motherly woman's breast and was soothed to slumber by a lullaby.

How often, in the way of life, our largest pity would be folded all about the broken hearts if we could only understand, and thus the weary way be sweetened to the sons of men by pouring in the balm of God!

Seek, then, to understand,
Be slow to smite or chide;
In patience God has given grace,
So let that grace abide.

—Watchword.

OVERWORKED EYES

Are relieved of blood-shot and inflammation without pain in one day by Leonardi's Golden Eye Lotion, Cools, heals and strengthens. Insist on having "Leonardi's." It makes strong eyes.

Guaranteed or money refunded Druggists sell it at 25 cts. or forwarded prepaid on receipt of price by S. B. Leonardi & Co., Tampa, Fla.

NOTICE.

To the Sunday Schools of the Greenville District.

The Committee appointed by the Greenville District Conference to arrange for a tour of the District in the interest of the Sunday schools by Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick, the Field Secretary of the Conference, have made the following dates, which the pastors are requested to bring to the attention of their schools and their people:

Lula—Oct. 2, at 3 p. m., to Oct. 3, at 12 a. m.

Clarksdale—Oct. 3, at 3 p. m., to Oct. 4, at 12 a. m.

Boyle—Oct. 4, at 3 p. m., to Oct. 5, at 12 a. m.

Leland—Oct. 5, at 3 p. m., to Oct. 6, at 12 a. m.

Rosedale—Oct. 6, at 3 p. m., to Oct. 7, at 12 a.m.

JAS. T. McCAFFERTY,
W. S. LAGRONE,
Committee.

A Doctor's Endorsement.

For three generations the manufacturers of Gray's Ointment have taken filial pride in the fact that qualified physicians have recognized its healing qualities and seen fit to use it in their practice. For Boils, Bruises, Carbuncles, Felons, Old Sores, Rheumatism, Blood Poison, etc., Gray's Ointment is the most reliable remedy. Get a 25c box from your druggist or write Dr. W. F. Gray & Co., 804 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn., for a free sample.

Dr. Jas. R. Phelps, Dorchester, Mass., writes: "Gray's Ointment is my sheet anchor in cases of carbuncles, unhealthy granulations and blood poison. I use it in my practice."

DISTINGUISHING MARKS.

The people of God are readily known wherever they are in the midst of the world's multitudes. They have marks which distinguish them. They are servants of the Lord, but never conscripts. They are volunteers. They are willing—freewill offerings, a marginal reading has it. St. Paul loved to call himself Christ's bond-slave, but he was a willing, joyous slave. Christ asks His people to take His yoke upon them, which means that they shall surrender to Him; but it is not constrained allegiance that He desires; it must be free, glad, loving. God has infinite power, but He never compels obedience in the smallest matter. The feeblest can resist omnipotence. In the day of His power God's people offer themselves willingly. The emblem of the dew suggests the influence of beautiful Christian lives in the world. Dew is refreshing. Those who live a life of love refresh all lives they touch. We know people whose mere "Good morning" it makes us braver and happier to hear.—J. R. Miller, D.D.

Every young man and woman should strive to make his or her life a complete life. Many people only half live. Health without usefulness, intellect without usefulness, pleasure without duty, business success without growth in service to God and man—these are incomplete, unsatisfying elements of living.—Forward.

Be such a man, live such a life, that if all lives were like yours, earth would be paradise.—Philips Brooks.

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Ruston Dist.—Fourth Round.

Vernon, at New Prospect	Oct.	7, 8
Ruston	Oct.	8, 11
Benton ..p.m	Oct.	13
Alden Bridge..11 a.m.	Oct.	15
Plaindealing ..p.m	Oct.	15
Bolinger, 11 a.m., 7:30 p.m.	Oct.	16
Gibbsland	Oct.	21, 22
Arcadia ...7:30 p.m.	Oct.	22
Boyd's Mission, at Boyds.	Oct.	29
Bienville, at Burks. 7:30 Oct. 29. and 11 a.m.	Oct.	30
Lanesville	Nov.	1
Haynesville, at Colquitt.	Nov.	4, 5
Haynesville Mission, at Woodward	Nov.	5, 6
Simsboro, at Pine Grove.	Nov.	11, 12
Ringgold, at Andrew's	Nov.	15
Jonesboro, at Hodge	Nov.	18, 19
Winnfield, ..p.m	Nov.	19
Haughton	Nov.	22
Lisbon, at Arizona	Nov.	25, 26
Homer, ..p.m.	Nov.	26
Minden	Nov.	29
Cotton Valley	Nov.	30
Bernice, at Alabama	Dec.	2, 3

R. W. TUCKER, P. E.

Shreveport Dist.—Fourth Round.

Hornbeck, at H. G.	Sept.	16, 17
Many, at Many	Sept.	17, 18
Grand Cane, at G. C.	Sept.	18, 25
Pleasant Hill, at P. H.	Oct.	6, 8
Pelican, at Bethel	Oct.	9, 10
Lachute, at Lachute	Oct.	14, 15
Lake End	Oct.	15, 16
Zwolle, at Zwolle	Oct.	19, 20
Ida, at Belcher	Oct.	22, 23
Bon Ami, at B. A.	Oct.	28, 29
De Ridder	Oct.	29, 30
Coushatta, at C.	Nov.	3, 5
Campti, at Campti	Nov.	5, 6
Greenwood, at G	Nov.	11, 12
Bossier City ..p. m.	Nov.	12
Logansport, at Longstreet.	Nov.	13
Leesville	Nov.	18, 19
South Mansfield ..p. m.	Nov.	19
Mansfield	Nov.	22
Grand Cane Mission, at Ebenezer	Nov.	23, 24
Grand Cane, ..p.m.	Nov.	24
Vivian, at V ..a.m.	Nov.	26
Oil City ..p.m.	Nov.	26
Mooringsport, at M.	Nov.	27
Queensboro	Nov.	28
Noel Memorial	Nov.	29
Texas Ave	Nov.	30
First Ch., Shreveport	Dec.	1, 3

I hope all the pastors will have their Conference Collections in hand by the time of the fourth quarterly conference, so we can give that occasion to the clearing up of other finances.

Let the brethren study the Discipline to see what questions have to be answered at this conference, especially Question 34.

H. R. SINGLETON, P. E.

A SHORT TALK ON HORSE COLLARS.

Most farmers have a mistaken idea that horses must have soft collars in order to make the team work up to their highest efficiency.

Did you ever try plowing on a hot day with gloves on? If you did you came home in the evening with galled and sore hands. Retaining the sweat under the leather of the gloves is what made it. With your bare hands on the hard handles of the plow your hands became hard and callouse and in no condition for constant use.

A horse's flesh is no different from a man's in this respect. Put a hard, unyielding metal collar on and the flesh hardens. Sweat and its steam are not held because the metal is always cool; the draft is adjusted to the whole neck, the horse is made comfortable, and best of all, loses no time year in and year out, because of sore neck and shoulders.

There is only one metal collar, the Indestructible hameless collar made by Johnston-Slocum Co., 615 State Street, Caro, Michigan. It never gets out of shape, lasts a life time and costs no more than a leather collar with hames. Get their catalogue and see how they are made, how they work and why they are better. It will be the first step in humanity to your most useful and faithful beast, the horse. Ask for free book, "The Horse and His Pull."

Newspaper Advertisement Points Way To Health

I can truthfully say that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is a very good medicine, not alone for kidney trouble, but also for weak and sore back, as well as for rheumatism.

About a year ago I became ill and unable to work, my trouble being a lame back. I read of your Swamp-Root in the newspaper and in an Almance. Believing it would do me good, I went to my druggist, Mr. Skinner, and purchased a bottle. Finding relief in one fifty-cent bottle, I purchased several more and in a short time was able to continue with my work and am to-day feeling well and strong. I always recommend Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root to my friends as I believe it is as good a medicine as can be found.

AUGUST STRONG,
3412 Second Street,
No. Minneapolis, Minn.

Mr. Skinner makes affidavit that he sold the Swamp-Root to Mr. Strong.

Letter to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Prove What Swamp-Root Will Do For You.

Send to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. It will convince anyone. You will also receive a booklet of valuable information, telling all about the kidneys and bladder. When writing, be sure and mention the Christian Advocate. Regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles for sale at all drug stores.

BEST THING MADE

April 28, 1910, Dothan, Ala.

I began handling Johnston's Tonic in Blakely, Ga., in 1884. In 1892, moved to Dothan, Ala. Have sold more than 1000 bottles. Use it in my family for Colds, Fever and La Grippe. In all the years I have been selling it, never had but 2 complaints. Both parties admitted afterwards they had not used it right.

H. Q. FRAZIER.

April 13, 1910, Greenwood, S. C.

I have used Johnson's Tonic in my family for 9 years. It is all you claim for it and more too. It cured me of Typhus Hemorrhagic Fever. I would have been under the sod 9 years ago but for JOHNSON'S. Tell this to the world. It may save some man's life.

A. P. ALDRICH.

Drives every trace and taint of Malarial Poison from the Blood.

IDEAL MAIL BOX.

The best sanitary, approved, endorsed mail box manufactured. New idea, patented. Write for sample and Big Free Catalogue. Unlimited opportunity for agents.

D. C. Word Specialty Co., 148 E. 64th St., Seattle, Wash.

Our Copyrighted Book on GALL STONES, DYSPEPSIA AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, Stomach and Bowels FREE Address Gallstone Remedy Co., 225 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. Ask for Book No. 10.

ESTABLISHED 1858 CHURCH AND SCHOOL BELLS

Write for SPECIAL DONATION PLAN Cat. No. 57

THE C. S. BELL COMPANY, HILLSBORO, O.

THE AMERICAN BOY.

Of course, what we have a right to expect of the American boy is that he shall turn out to be a good American man. Now, the chances are strong that he won't be much of a man unless he is a good deal of a boy. He must not be a coward or a weakling, a bully, a shirk or a pig. He must work hard and play hard. He must be clean-minded and clean-lived, and able to hold his own under all circumstances and against all comers. It is only on these conditions that he will grow into the kind of a man of whom America can really be proud. In life, as in a football game, the principle to follow is: Hit the line hard; don't foul and don't shirk, but hit the line hard.—Theodore Roosevelt.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

VOL. 58—No. 37. "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which Is Good." WHOLE No. 2900.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 14,1911. CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

Editorial

A New Orleans jester says that the painting, "Mona Lisa," has become a "moving picture."

* * *

When Admiral Togo spent Sunday, August 27, in Vancouver, B. C., it was suggested that a public luncheon be given in his honor; but there was such a widespread protest against thus desecrating the Sabbath, that the proposal was abandoned. Good for the Canadians! In more ways than one, they are a great people.

* * *

A Chicago Dispatch states that Lady Cook of that city has abandoned her campaign for woman suffrage to enter upon a crusade for the moral improvement of young men and young women. She says that she still believes that women should vote, but that this work is at present more important. We most heartily concur in Lady Cook's conclusion.

* * *

There are too many in-and-out members of the church. They get into the way of life occasionally and show interest and activity for a little time, and then grow cold and wander back into the paths of indifference and sin. To be a good Christian one must be a "middle-of-the-roader," keeping in the way and pressing ever onward. There is no nobler virtue than faithfulness, and none which is more essential to spiritual progress. Religious "stickability" is what many people need.

* * *

There is no small place in the work of the ministry. The saving of a single soul is a task fit for angels. The world may sneer at the service rendered by the obscure preacher, but in seeking to enrich the spiritual natures of men he labors upon material that is imperishable; and when the achievments of others shall have faded away into nothingness, his will stand unimpaired in the light of the judgment. The highest honor that can come to any human being on earth is to be divinely called to be an ambassador for Christ.

* * *

The earth is a mighty battle ground. The fierce conflict between right and wrong is on everywhere and never ceases. The tremendous struggle affects every human being, and momentous issues are at stake. Some are enlisted on one side, some on the other, and some are striving to be neutral. Often the good soldier, when the tide seems to be against the cause of virtue and truth, becomes weary of the strife and feels like sheathing his sword, putting off his armor, and leaving the contest to be fought out by others. But to such an inclination he must not yield. An unworthy recreant he would be to do so. With a spirit like that of the "Old Guard" of Napoleon, who "could die but never surrender," he must fight on till death. The triumphs of wrong are temporary—the right must ultimately win; possibly not in our day, but, if not, at some other time. And if we remain unconquered and do our duty in the battle, the victory in part will be ours, and also a share of the well-won reward.

HELPFULNESS OF THE HELPLESS.

Everyone may be helpful. One does not need to be rich or learned in order that he may be helpful to his neighbors. A story is told of a young woman who had a trying experience in a hospital. During all the months of her affliction she was greatly comforted and encouraged by a friend who was herself an invalid. She could not visit her friend in the hospital; but she could send messages of comfort and assurances of sympathy and prayer. When at last the young woman was able to leave the hospital she called on her friend and said: "I do not know how I can ever pay you for all you have done for me." The obligation was too great for her to discharge. The help she had received was greater than she could measure, and she had no means of compensating her benefactor. Yet that benefactor was a helpless invalid.

If the story of the helpfulness of invalids could be written and printed in a book it would be one of the most interesting and helpful books in the world. A few days ago a good woman died in one of our cities at an advanced age. For more than seventy years she had been an invalid. Forty years ago she could not walk nor sit in a chair, but lying in bed with the blinds drawn to soften the light, she was busy working for her Master. She was one of the most helpful persons in the city. There were rich people in that city, and educated people, for it was a college town. There were fine preachers there, but no one of them was more useful than this invalid who had not known a well day since she was a young girl. By her faith, by her cheerfulness, by her courage, by her wise counsels, by her earnest prayers, she encouraged and inspired hundreds of weary travelers through this vale of tears.

She was a Methodist, but men and women of different denominatons were partakers of the benefits of her good deeds and helpful counsels. One day a Presbyterian minister, with one of the elders in his church, called on her, and was so inspired by her words of courage and hope that he prepared a sermon on the text, "When I am weak then am I strong," and preached it to his congregation the next Sabbath, and used the beautiful character and life of this Christian woman as an illustration. Thus she preached the gospel of faith and hope and courage and peace to a large congregation of another denomination. Her faith was known afar. Her messages were scattered broadcast over the country. She could not go about doing good as her Master did, but lying in bed and enduring with patience and cheerfulness the affliction which had fallen upon her, and sending out her messages of comfort and peace to many, she did what she could. She was one of the most helpful Christians, and yet she was one of the most helpless creatures.

What a rebuke is such a life as this to others who are always well and strong, but never have time nor strength nor heart to help other people! Surely we think too much of ourselves and too little of others. Not only invalids, but obscure people whose names do not carry much weight in a political or ecclesiastical convention, have been greatly useful. We look to the millionaires and the statesmen as the men who are the makers of the world. But more helpfulness has arisen from the ranks of the lowly than from among the great. Men and women whose names have never been printed in a daily paper and whose deeds have not been paraded and trumpeted have done more to help people than the mighty.

One writer tells of a village carpenter who was one of the most useful men in the community. He was not a scholar. He could not speak well in public. He was not worth two thousand dollars, and could not write down a large subscription to any good cause, but he was helpful. A new family never came into the village that he did not search out and extend to them a neighborly welcome. He was always ready to watch with the sick. He was always on the lookout to give a stranger a seat in his pew. He found time to speak a kind word to the children in the street. Boys and girls might be seen climbing into his one-horse wagon when he had no other load. "He had a genius for helping folks, and it was a joy to meet him in the street." We hear of a genius for making money, a genius for invention, a genius for music, a genius for poetry, a military genius, but above them all shines the genius for helping folks.

We may all have this talent. It is not like the talent for poetry, which must be born with one. This genius may be bestowed in a second birth. One who is truly born again, born from above, and lives close to the throbbing heart of the Master, who "went about doing good," will have this genius for helping folks. By a kind word, by a kind look, by extending a helping hand, by letting the light of a true Christian character shine, we may lift up a fallen brother and open a rift in the dark cloud of sorrow through which the sunshine of glory shall fall on many a broken and fainting heart.—New York Christian Advocate.

FAVORS COLORED BISHOPS.

In an interesting article in a recent number of Zion's Herald, Bishop David H. Moore discusses the qustion of having Negro Bishops in the Methodist Episcopal Church and seems to favor their election. He calls attention to the fact that at their last General Conference they had twenty Bishops, one for every 174,299 members of their Church. He then points out that the Negroes among them have 19 Annual Conferences, with a church membership of 300,454; so that if the matter of ratio were considered they would be entitled to two Bishops. He expresses the opinion that black Bishops could, without a violation of the Church law, be restricted to the colored Conferences in their work, and intimates that because of the absence of race prejudice, they might be able to accomplish more among their people. He advances the view that such an arrangement would not necessarily deprive the colored Conferences of the presence and labors of the white chief pastors, as it would be possible to make occasionally a double assignment of Bishops to them, one white and the other black. Bishop Moore concludes his discussion with the following statement: "We are strongly convinced that domestic tranquility, national welfare, and Protestant supremacy will be subserved by retaining and fostering our colored membership; and not to give them a black Bishop looks like opening the door and bowing them out."

Christian Advocate.

Published for the Louisiana, Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

DIRECTIONS:

Correspondents will please direct all communications intended for the Editor to 512 Camp St., New Orleans, La. Communications intended for the Business Department should be addressed to the Manager of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if this date is not moved forward after three weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise.

MINISTERIAL EDUCATION.

If Bishop Hoss should read these lines I am sure he would recall the following incident. If I mistake not, it was his first district conference, after his election to the Bishopric. The Conference was held in a little village in Oklahoma. It was a big occasion for that section, and the people came in crowds and in all kinds of vehicles from the surrounding country.

My "Elder" and I went down to the Conference on a visit. That night, they put my "Elder," then comparatively a young man, up to preach. His subject was the "Transfiguration." It was a good sermon, and we preachers enjoyed it; but it went over the heads of the general crowd, and fell pretty flat.

The next day at eleven o'clock, the Bishop preached his great sermon on "Love and Obedience." The house was crowded with country people. We sat there and forgot ourselves for an hour, while the "preacher" presented the great thought of that sermon in so simple a manner that a child could follow him.

Well do I remember the close of the service. The whole atmosphere was surcharged with religious feeling. The benediction pronounced, an old "Mother in Israel" from the country began shouting; and as she shouted she made her way through the crowd toward the Bishop. Grasping him by the hand, and slapping him on the shoulder, she cried, "Hallelujah, hallelujah! I couldn't understand that preacher that preached last night, but glory to God, I could understand you!"

The Bishop was tickled; the "Elder" was teased.

Great preaching consists in taking the profound doctrines of Christianity and presenting them clearly and simply. It takes the trained mind to do that. Any man who has a great religious experience, can tell it; and it is an inspiration to others, sometimes, for him to tell it. But for him merely to continue to relate his experience to the same audience becomes monotonous. Now, there is involved in a genuine "experience" of conversion all the great doctrines of our faith. The "preacher" is he who, starting if you please at his "experience," separates, analyzes, studies, and arranges these doctrines in his own mind, then dropping the process, presents the product so simply that a child can understand him. I repeat it takes the trained mind to do this. Paul got his first conception of the great scheme of redemption between Jerusalem and Damascus, but it took his great mind three years to develop the "doctrine" and get it ready to preach. How essential, then, to the highest development in preaching, is the training of the mind. How important that young men called to the ministry should lay the careful foundation of a college education.

There is not much connection, I grant, between the "Binomial Theorem" and the doctrine of the "Vicarious Atonement;" hut he who masters the "Binomial Theorem" will be able to get a clearer conception of the doctrine of the "Vicarious Atonement," and be better able to give a poor, ignorant soul the ground of his "Justification by faith." There has never been so great a demand in the history of the Christian Church as there is to-day for preachers who know the doctrines of our "faith" by experience and study, and who can present them to others with the clearness and simplicity of the trained mind. Then in closing this article I would urge young men who feel called to the ministry by all means to lay the foundation of a finished college education. Don't let any sacrifice that may be demanded turn you aside. God wants you, hut he wants you at your best.

Again, I would urge presiding elders, such influential factors in the lives of young preachers, to see to it that our "preacher" boys go to college. Don't advise them to take permanent work until they are prepared. If they haven't the means, get your districts to raise scholarships for them. We can't make better investments.—J. B. Mitcheli, in the Florida Christian Advocate.

SOUTHERN METHODISM AND THE HOME FIELD.

By Rev. M. M. Black.

Part II.

4. The Factory Settlement.—The factory settlements of the South present another great opportunity for the Church. There are in the South to-day upwards of 850 cotton mills, with not less than 12,000,000 spindles, consuming annually 2,000,000 bales of cotton. Around these mills, in mill settlements—some of them in rural districts, and some in large cities—are more than 200,000 operatives and 500,000 people, namely, the operatives and those dependent upon them. The majority of these mill people are native-born Southern white people of the poorer and more ignorant class. These thousands of uneducated, unevangelized mill operatives are at our very doors, and must be looked after. The nature of their occupation keeps them from being thrown with other classes except to a limited extent, and because of their ignorance and poverty, and because of the failure of the Church to do her full duty by them, they fall easy victims to vice and intemperance. A speaker at our Home Mission Conference at Fayetteville, N. C., last year said: "Other denominations are at work among these people, and the Baptists have perhaps more operatives than we; but no church has so many of the mill owners as the Methodists; and only the Baptists have as many operatives." The opportunity and the responsibility of the Methodist Church is therefore greater for the solution of the problem. Nowhere is there a riper, readier field for the work of the trained deaconess than among this class.

5. The Foreigners at our Door.—To the oppressed peoples of Europe, America is still the land of opportunity and of freedom, and hence vast multitudes continue to flock to our shores in the hope of bettering their condition. They are now coming at the rate of a million or more a year, and the presence of these hundreds of thousands of immigrants, untrained and half-evangelized, is a severe strain upon our republican form of government and a challenge to Protestant Christianity. The vast tides of immigration that have been pouring into our Northern cities during the past twenty-five years have already produced startling changes in population and in municipal conditions, so that the foreigner to-day in every large city north of Mason and Dixon's line holds the balance of power. It is a remarkable fact that Boston, the center of culture, and long the stronghold of Puritanism, is to-day more Irish than Dublin, and is a stronghold of Roman Catholicism. New York, our greatest metropolis, has almost as large an Italian population as Rome itself, and contains more Jews than any other city in the world.

For a number of years the lumber camps of the Alleghanies have received thousands of Italian and Slav immigrants, a large portion of this being Southern Methodist territory. According to a recent report of the United States Commission of Immigration, the foreigners of the Appalachian district live under very undesirable conditions, being badly housed, and manifesting little interest in identifying themselves with our country. In the mining districts of West Virginia there are 100,000 foreigners belonging to twenty different nationalities.

The United States government has recently established immigrant stations at Galveston, New Orleans, Mobile, Pensacola, Savannah and Charleston, shiploads of foreigners being landed at these Southern ports every month, most of them being destined to find homes in the sunny South. The immigrant inspector of Galveston tells us that in a few years 150,000 to 200,000 immigrants will be pouring through that port. Upon the completion of the Panama Canal immigration to our Southern ports is sure to increase enormously. It is said that two-thirds of the immigrants who land at Galveston seek employment or find homes in Texas; so that the Lone Star State is rapidly becoming the home of foreigners. According to reliable statistics, there are now more than three-quarters of a million people in Texas who speak a foreign language. The foreign population comprises 350,000 Germans, 250,000 Mexicans, 75,000 Bohemians, 50,000 Poles, 30,000 Italians, and a considerable sprinkling of other races and nationalities. There are whole counties in Texas settled up by Germans where English is scarcely spoken at all. It is a lamentable fact that the foreign vote of Texas, notably the Mexican vote, has operated to prevent that State from enjoying State-wide prohibition.

In the southern half of Louisiana there are approximately 300,000 French Creoles, a large proportion of whom are descendants of the historic Acadians, so cruelly banished by the English from their home in Nova Scotia, and immortalized by Longfellow in his poem, "Evangeline." These and other French-speaking Creoles are not really foreigners, since they have been born and bred in America, but they have grown up under the influence and domination of the Roman Catholic Church, and retain many of their customs and characteristics. On account of the opposition of the Romish Church to public education and to the circulation of the Bible, the Creoles have been kept in a backward condition until recently, and Protestantism has made but little headway among them. In some parishes, however, great changes have already taken place, splendid public school buildings have been erected, the saloon has been driven out, and the people are thirsting for the Word of God, for the pure gospel.

It is a fact that we must look squarely in the face that most of the foreigners who come to our shores have lax ideas concerning the Sabbath, concerning liberty, and temperance. The majority of the immigrants of to-day, coming as they do from Southern Europe, are either Romanists or infidels, and the percentage of illiteracy among them is high. According to Dr. Josiah Strong, the proportion of illiterates among our foreign-born population (12.9 per cent) is nearly three times as large as among the native whites (4.6 per cent). Again it is a deplorable fact that immigrants furnish 56.81 per cent of the criminal element of our population. In short, the tendency to crime and pauperism in the United States is almost two and a half times as great among those who are foreign by birth as among native Americans. The claims of the gospel and the perpetuity of our civilization make it imperative that vigorous effort be made to educate and evangelize these alien additions to our population.

The foreign immigrant constitutes a large and increasing and valuable asset in the development of our great resources, in the mining of coal and iron, the cutting of timber, in manifold lines of manufacture, and in the cultivation of thousands of now useless acres. The future of our great country rests largely in his hands. Properly placed, utilized, and evangelized, the presence of the foreigner among us will prove a blessing. As one writer puts it: "He with his fellows constitute an element in our civilization which, if assimiliated and leavened by education into harmony with our ideals, will furnish additional strength to us to work out the destiny to which we seem to be set; but if unassimilated and unleavened, will drag us down to lower levels, and render abortive all our hopes of future attainment and glorious world-wide service." He is a spiritual Lazarus whose needs we cannot neglect without peril to society and to ourselves. In the providence of God, the foreigner is here in vast numbers to be evangelized, uplifted and assimiliated into our national life. Shall we as a Church do as did the priest and the Levite in the parable, "pass by on the other side," or shall we perform the part of the Good Samaritan to these Christless aliens?

It is cause for congratulation that our General Board of Missions, in co-operation with the Woman's Home Mission Board and our Conference Board of Missions, three years ago enterprised work among the foreigners and sailors who come to our Gulf Coast. Mission stations have been established at Galveston, where last year the Immigrants' Home cared for over 2,000 of the immigrants who landed at that port; at St. Mark's Hall in New Orleans, and at Gulfport, where a splendid work among the sailors is being done by Brother W. T. Griffin, of our own Conference. Thousands of sailors come to Gulfport every year, this being the largest lumber port in the United States, and remain in port from one to ten days. Ten thousand of them registered at the Sailors' Rest last year, and 2,500 attended religious services.

We are face to face with new and rapidly changing conditions. Expansion is the watchword of the hour. Shall the Church lag behind? Let us not be content with merely holding our own. Southern Methodism, if true to her mission and her history, must ever be an aggressive force. The new fields of conquest before us should arouse the Church to renewed diligence and to larger plans and efforts for the extension of the Master's kingdom.

IN "GOD'S COUNTRY" AGAIN.

Leaving Manila early in the spring on the English ship "Empire," our first stop was at the big city of Hong Kong, where we remained from Sunday to Tuesday night. This enabled all the passengers to visit many of the quaint scenes of this city, and also to take a trip to the top of the peak that is behind the city. It is a wonderful sight, and the night view of city, harbor and bay from the mountain is scarcely equaled by the view of the mountain from the bay. Both are sights not to be easily forgotten. Imagine if you can see a peak rising about 2,000 feet, and covered with hundreds of lights clear to the top. It is more like a picture from fairyland than anything else. By day, the green slopes are wonderfully fresh looking, after days at sea.

Hong Kong has many beautiful stores, and the peddlers are very eager to sell on all occasions. The English language is spoken quite well, and we had no trouble in trading. Our ship anchored out in the bay, and all the freight was shipped on lighters, owned and manned by Chinese. The families live on the boats, and we enjoyed watching the queer family life from our decks.

On the ship was only one other American—my room-mate, who is a minister. The other passengers were either from Manila, Australia or England. Among the latter was his Royal Highness, Prince Leopold of Battenburg, a brother of the Queen of Spain. He was traveling for his health, and did not leave his cabin often. I have never traveled with a more pleasant crowd, and the Captain did all in his power to render our trip agreeable. One thing I specially noted about the Australians was the fact that each one felt it his duty to "boost" his home land. They are all firm friends of the "States," and think our country is "next best" in the world.

Another thing I noted while listening to the cabin talk, and also in the conversations of those who lived or had business in the Orient. I heard it wherever I went—so much that it became an "oft-told tale." People seeing me in my uniform, and never suspecting that I had any sympathy with missionaries, talked freely about them. They had only kind things to say about the medical men, and wondered why more are not sent. When I see every village and town in this country over-crowded with men trying to make a living practicing medicine, I wonder why the churches do not send more men to the Orient. They are needed by thousands in China and many parts of the Philippines—but not in Manila.

Running along the shores of Corea and China, we dropped anchor in the river at Shanghai three days after leaving Hong Kong. This is the Paris of the Orient, and well worth a visit. The newer part is like any modern city, except for the curious signs on all sides, and the crowds of rickshaws and sedan chairs on the streets. It has electric cars and lights. But in the old walled city, one is ushered into ancient China with a few steps across a bridge. It is all as it was 700 years ago, and cannot be described. Even a picture would fail to convey any real idea of this curious old city. The guide showed many interesting things, among them an old garden built nearly 800 years ago by a Mandarin for his five wives, also the house they occupied. It was built in five separate sections, each with a tiny balcony. "They all very fine lady—all have small feet," is the way the guide described them.

The trip down the river—about 15 miles—from Shanghai to the sea is more than interesting. The river is full of boats and ships of all nations and countries. Great German and English merchantmen, liners and warships were most in evidence. There were several little snow-white American gunboats, but I saw no others flying the starry flag. About the most amusing thing in the river was a fleet of old-fashioned Chinese gunboats. They were sailing vessels, armed with muzzle loading cannons, and of a pattern used 300 years ago. Each had two large eyes of china on the bows, and one of the Chinese cabin boys said it was "so ship can see."

Crossing the Japan sea, we entered the famous "Inland Sea," and landed at Shimoneseki, where I spent a day looking around. Crossing this sea we landed at Moji, and a trip of eight hours by rail brought us to Nagasaki, where I waited for the transport that was to land me in the "home land." The trip from Nagasaki of more than six thousand miles was uneventful, and we made only one short stop—at Honolulu. This is the prettiest city in the world, I believe, and the climate is about as nearly perfect as possible.

One week from Honolulu, and we went into a fog. Shortly after lunch the fog in a measure lifted, and we saw the land in the distance. It was the shore line of California, and it is impossible to describe the feelings with which we viewed the distant mountains. It was "our country" and we were all happy to see it once more.

Upon reaching the docks, and seeing the customs officials, our first pleasure was to get the letters waiting, and then to forward a few telegrams. It is curious that no one ever thinks to send a home paper for a returned traveler. But they never do it.

This letter is too long already, so I will not speak of the conditions here, but relate them in a later letter. My post is about five miles from the center of the city. It is at least four miles from Centenary Church, but being on the car line, we get around easily. I have had the pleasure of hearing Bishops Hendrix, Murrah and Waterhouse preach since I came here. They met fully the expectations of the crowd, as they always do.

Trusting that the friends will not forget us, and that I may be able to attend Conference this winter, I am, fraternally, J. C. BALLARD.

Fort Miley, San Francisco, Cal., August 12, 1911.

SOME MEDITATIONS.

Mr. Editor: For a long time I have not written to the dear old Advocate, not because I no longer love it, nor feel interested in its success; neither can I claim want of time or opportunity. While in Mexico, I wrote often, yet the days were not long enough in which to accomplish the work we had to do.

When death took away my brother, it took from me all desire to write, and many other things I once loved. I know full well he is happy in that goodly company surrounding him in the heavenly home, yet he is missed still from the church and the earthly home.

In the parsonage home are many things that demand the attention of a preacher's wife—many calls on her sympathies, and things that try the soul and that sap the strength. Yet, after all, it is a blessed life. In these latter days, I see many changes—some of them for the better, and there are some I feel doubtful about.

The mail brings us weekly an appeal from some Board, or urgent special endorsed by one of our Bishops, calling for special efforts to raise special funds for the cause represented. Sometimes I wonder how it can be possible for a preacher who must preach to dying men every Sabbath to prepare for the pulpit as he ought to do, then visit the sick, bury the dead, minister to the sorrowing, and look after all the interests of his church, and act as agent for all these causes.

Can he be a successful soul-winner without giving his time and thought to this all-important work? I had hoped the great "Laymen's Movement" would solve this problem, by the laymen taking charge of all these financial affairs, and leaving the pastor to do the work of an evangelist, build churches and parsonages. But as yet they have not done so. Is there no remedy?

We are trying to build a church here, and every one who has knowledge of Laurel, knows we are in sad need of an up-to-date building, if Methodism is to grow and fulfill its mission in this growing city.

These things press hard on the heart and conscience of the faithful pastor.

MRS. S. G. WEEMS.

Laurel, Miss.

A MATTER OF HISTORY.

By Mr. J. D. Barbee.

In a recent issue of your excellent journal you commented briefly on the reply of the loyal trustees to the bill of injunction filed by the College of Bishops in the celebrated Vanderbilt University case. Following the legal documents in the case, you stated, among other things, that the movement which resulted in establishing Vanderbilt University originated in a resolution introduced by Rev. Wellborn Mooney in the Tennessee Conference. This statement is technically correct; but it is embraced in a larger fact which I will proceed to set out in the interest of historical accuracy, and that justice may be done to one whose tremendous service to the Church has been strangely overlooked by the press and those who have in recent times discussed the great institution which is now in the limelight.

Rev. W. C. Johnson, D.D., who graduated at an early age from the University of Tennessee, was a member of the General Conference of 1858, representing in part the Tennessee Conference, of which he was first a member. In view of his life-long devotion to the cause of education, it is fair to assume that he took an active interest in the legislation of that body which resulted in obtaining a charter from the Legislature of Tennessee for the first Central University, which came to naught because of the Civil War. At any rate, when he later became editor of the Western Methodist, published at Memphis, he became the apostle of education in the Memphis Conference and remained such until his death.

Several years before his departure, while visiting in his home, he told me at length about Vanderbilt University and its history. He told me of his having inaugurated the campaign in his paper, which he outlined in detail. Continuing, he said: "With my own fingers I wrote the resolutions and mailed them to the Secretaries of the various Annual Conferences whose co-operation was sought. In the case of the Tennessee Conference I mailed it to Dr. R. A. Young, who subsequently told me that when he received my letter and resolution he was so busy with his duties as Secretary that he turned both over to Dr. D. C. Kelley, who signed the resolution with Rev. Wellborn Mooney. The resolution was sent to the Tennessee Conference first because it was the first to meet of the group I wished to include in this movement, and that is the reason why it, instead of the Memphis Conference, secured the honor of leadership in the great movement. Since the university has become an accomplished fact, a man of eminence, and later of notoriety, has seemed to be very industrious in depriving me of whatever credit I may be due in the origin and on-going of the university."

Nothing could be clearer to my mind than the fact that in a very real sense Dr. Johnson was the father of the movement which brought the university into being. In his brain the scheme was born; through the colums of his paper it was placed before the Church; his fingers wrote the resolutions which formed the basis of action for the patronizing Conferences; he was an active member of the Memphis Convention which set the plan on foot, and he was a member of the Board of Trust from the beginning until within a few years of his death.

Greenville, Miss.

$177.00 pays Board, Tuition, Laundry, Medical, Library and Lyceum fees whole session. Those who wish may reduce this by taking duties. Apply now to Port Gibson Female College, Port Gibson, Miss.

Church News

The First Methodist Church, of Akron, Ohio, valued at $125,000, was destroyed by fire on August 30. It was insured to the amount of $51,000.

• • •

The individual communion service is winning its way into popular favor. There are now said to be 15,000 churches in the United States using it.

• • •

A million dollar Y. M. C. A. building has recently been completed in London, England. It will be called the "George Williams Memorial," in honor of the founder of the Association.

• • •

The present enrollment of the Salvation Army is said to be 250,000, one-half of which is in England. The enrollment in the United States and Canada is reported to be 50,000. The organization seems to be losing strength numerically in Great Britain.

• • •

The widely known evangelist, Dr. Torrey, has been appointed Dean of the International Bible Institute at Los Angeles, Cal. He is abroad now on an extended evangelistic tour, but it is understood that he will take up the new work upon his return.

• • •

Evans Robert, who attracted world-wide attention during the famous Welsh revival in 1906, and who, because of overwork, suffered a physical and mental collapse, has now partially recovered, and is conducting a school of prayer at the house of a friend.

• • •

Judge J. Crawford Biggs, formerly professor in the University of North Carolina and for the past five years one of the judges of the Superior Court of the Old North State, has resigned his judgeship to become a member of the law faculty of Trinity College.

• • •

The dedicatory exercises of Dr. L. G. Broughton's handsome Tabernacle, just completed, at Atlanta, began last Sunday and will continue through this week. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, of London, England, is delivering a series of discourses in the new structure.

• • •

The Christian Guardian, of Toronto, will publish a daily during the session of the Ecumenical Methodist Conference, which is to be held in that city, Oct. 4-17. The price of it will be $1. Why not keep up with the proceedings of this great world-gathering? Now is the time to subscribe. Remittances should be made to The Christian Guardian, 29 Richmond Street, West, Toronto, Canada.

• • •

The South Atlantic Quarterly, published at Trinity College, is perhaps the ablest journal issued by any educational institution in the South. It has been accorded high praise by The Independent, the Review of Reviews, Harper's Weekly, Collier's Weekly, and many of the more scholarly American dailies, such as the New York Times and the Baltimore Sun.

• • •

The Pacific Methodist Advocate says: "A church in Wales, founded in 1590, has had only four ministers in 218 years. Pastorates were long there." Our contemporary fails to state whether this church is in a good or bad condition. We have seen some congregations in the United States that did not change pastors for thirty-five or forty years, and they had little left except the aged parson, a few amen-corner members, and a weather-beaten building.

• • •

The Rev. Dr. Cornish, statistician of the General Conference of Canadian Methodism, has submitted in part his report for the past year. It shows that the Church now numbers 305,088, a net increase over the year preceding of 4,997. The number of Sunday school scholars, exclusive of the Home Department and Cradle Roll, is 353,936, a gain of nearly 20,000. It will be observed that the Sunday school membership is larger than that of the Church, which is as it should be.

• • •

A Correspondence School of Theology, with a capital stock of $50,000, has been incorporated under the laws of New Jersey. Its headquarters will be at Madison, N. J., and the Rev. S. G. Ayres, formerly librarian of Drew Theological Seminary, will be its president and manager. It will have, however, no connection with Drew, though located in the same town. The school will be interdenominational, and will principally aim to help those in the ministry who have not had the advantage of a theological course at a seminary.

• • •

A special meeting of the House of Bishops of the Protestant Episcopal Church will be held in New York, October 26. It is thought that this body may constitute as many as ten new Bishops for dioceses at home and in foreign lands. There is talk of creating an independent episcopal jurisdiction for the Indians in the West, though the proposal is said to be opposed by the high church party, on the ground that such action would be violative of the constitution of the Church. The creation of a missionary district in the Panama Canal Zone is also one of the things in contemplation.

• • •

In sending out information concerning the approaching Ecumenical Methodist Conference, among other things the Church News Association says: "In contributions for foreign missions the Methodists lead the whole world, the Church of England, possibly excepted; while in educational and many other lines of work they are in the forefront. Their growth on the continent of Europe—in Italy, Russia, Sweden, and even Roumania and Austria—has been marked and steady, and lately they have set out to regain that once Christian territory, Northern Africa."

• • •

The second volume of the standard edition of the "Journal of the Rev. John Wesley, M. A.," edited by Mr. Nehemiah Curnock, who is being assisted by numerous experts, has made its appearance. This edition will be much more complete than the preceding ones. It will number, when finished, six volumes, and will be sold only in sets at a cost of $16, with carriage extra. In discussing the preparation of this work, which it thinks will be regarded in after years as one of the great events of Methodist history, the Christian Guardian calls attention to the fact that John Wesley wrote both journals and diaries. The former, though not intended for publication, were designed to be read by his friends, but the latter, in which many abbreviations were used, were intended only for his own eye. These diaries will not be published in the forthcoming work, but will be drawn upon much more freely than has been done heretofore.

SOME REFLECTIONS.

By Rev. Robt. B. Downer.

Far down life's western slope, I find a clear sky, not a shadow, doubt or fear. "Beulahland," is almost in sight; yet I long not to be there—until needed. I feel sure that the angels are loyal and quick to do God's will in heaven, and while they are debarred from earth's activities, I must show equal zeal and loyalty to God by doing his will on earth—even to my latest breath crying

"Behold, behold the Lamb!"

I feel burdened for the welfare of Zion. My prayers ascend daily for wisdom, love and grace to be poured out upon our Bishops, editors, connectional officers, school men, presiding elders, pastors, Sunday school workers, missionaries, leaguers and all others, who are helping our great Southern Methodist Church to spread scriptural holiness over God's earthly domain. Very much isolated from the activities of ministerial life by bodily infirmities and old age, I welcome the coming of tidings on the printed page. "The Twice Born Men" furnished a royal feast of fat things for my soul. May God abundantly honor the faith and zeal of "The Salvation Army." Some articles and editorials of our Quarterly Review, I am sorry to record, have sorely troubled my heart, and made me doubt the wisdom of requiring our under-graduate ministers to read it. Dr. Granbery's article in the July number on "Neitzsche" I consider unfortunate; it will fail in leading a soul "hungering and thirsting after righteousness to be filled." Dr. Alexander, I think, made a mistake when he failed to bury "Nietzsche" in the waste basket.

What is called "Higher Criticism" may not be altogether a hindrance, yet provocative of an eclipse of faith. Christ says, "Have faith in God," not in higher criticism, rationalism, infidelity or atheism. When our Lord was extended on the cross, deserted by friends, and surrounded by the cohorts of hell, doing their utmost to destroy him, and also with twelve legions of angels ready to answer his summons, anguished beyond our capacity to comprehend, apparently abandoned by God, "treading the wine press alone," there came from his lips the paean of victory, "It is finished." Glory to God! life's battle was won.

Why waste time contemplating the fulminations of 20th century adversaries of the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ, when the Bible says, "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit," final victory is to be won. Have ye not read: "Be filled with all the fullness of God?"

To overwhelm the powers of darkness of every shade and description, our need as Christian warriors is to put on the whole armor of God, "be cleansed from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in the fear of God," because "the weapons of our warfare are not carnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds." We need to "know Christ, in the power of his resurrection and fellowship of his sufferings." It will be a great day for our Methodism when her ministers obtain the "Isaiah vision," or, Saul-like, meet Christ at noon, on the public highway, beholding his radiant glory, which eclipses that of the sun. As the contest now appears to me, we are found quailing before alleged opposing intellectual giants, in whose sight we are but as grasshoppers, while we forget the loyal heart of the shepherd boy David and his consecrated sling, likewise forgetting that "Christ is enthroned in heaven on the right hand of God; angels, and authorities, and powers being made subject unto him."

The education and training needed, is to learn how to lay hold of God's wisdom and strength, how to become "wholly the Lord's, to live spotless, blameless lives, wholly sanctified, continually employed in soul saving, preaching a free and full salvation unto the uttermost.

An intellectual ambition that has for its aim exact knowledge of divine equipment and the possibilities of the discipleship of our Lord Jesus Christ in ushering in "the coming kingdom," is quite laudable; but, when the ambition aims at pre-eminence among men, and produces an unconcern for the saving of souls, then shipwreck of faith and loss of soul may be the expected fruit that will materialize. Let the whole Church pray for the editors of our Advocates and Quarterly Review, that they may become "wholly the Lord's," and be made wise to write, select and reject that which ought to be printed and recorded for eternity.

Barlow, Miss.

O God! vouchsafe to me of your infinite all that is possible of light and of love!—Victor Hugo.

THE
Grant Furniture Co.
CORDIALLY INVITES YOU TO VISIT
THEIR NEW STORE
527-29-31 BARONNE STREET
(SHUBERT ARCADE)
—WHERE THEY ARE SHOWING A—
Handsome New Line of Fall Goods.

W. W. Carre Co. Ltd
Manufacturer Exporter of | Lumber
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Secular News and Comment

The press dispatches report that a terrible flood has been prevailing in the Yangtse-Kiang River valley (China), and that thousands of persons have been drowned. The crops also are said to have been largely destroyed.

* * *

The thirty-first birthday of Queen Wilhelmina was celebrated by the people of the Netherlands on August 31. Messages of congratulation were received by her Majesty from all parts of the world.

* * *

A twelve-roller sugar mill, which, it is estimated will cost $500,000, is being erected at Adeline, La. According to report, it will be almost exclusively for the manufacture of white sugar, and will have capacity for producing 20,000,000 pounds a year.

* * *

A six-pounder gun, specially designed to destroy aeroplanes and balloons if brought into service in the time of war, has been perfected for the United States Army. It will shoot either projectiles or shrapnel shells, can be elevated at an angle quickly, and has an effective range of seven miles.

* * *

The Hon. George B. McLelland, formerly mayor of New York City, has been elected to the newly-established chair of Public Affairs in Princeton University. An endowment of $50,000 has been raised to maintain this department, the purpose of which is to train men adequately for various positions in the public service.

* * *

The contract has been let for grading the roadbed of the Iberia, St. Mary and Eastern Railway from New Iberia to Charenton, La., a distance of 21 miles. It is announced that the line will ultimately be extended to Berwick, La., which means that it will contribute largely toward the further development of the Bayou Teche country.

* * *

Race suicide does not seem to be in vogue in New Orleans. Eighty-four infants were born in the city on Monday, August 28, according to the announcement of the Board of Health. Nor did this break the record, as the number one day some time ago reached the hundred mark. The Crescent City should be a favorite with Mr. Roosevelt.

* * *

The replica of the Washington statue of Baron Von Steuben, of Revolutionary fame, which the United States had made to donate to Germany, was formally presented at Berlin on September 2. The presentation speech was delivered by Congressman Bartholdt, and Emperor William made a fitting response. The statue occupies a prominent site in front of the Kaiser's palace.

* * *

The Royal Frederick's University, the leading educational institution of Norway, celebrated its centenary with elaborate exercises, which began on September 2 and continued for several days. Distinguished educators from various countries were in attendance. The United States Government was officially represented by Dr. Leonhart Stejneger, of the Biological Department of the Smithsonian Institute.

* * *

It has been announced that the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Mississippi will have introduced into the Legislature of that State, which will meet next January, a bill requiring the teaching of scientific temperance in all grades of the public schools. It is now taught only in the fourth and eighth grades. We hope that they will succeed in procuring the passage of the measure, as such instruction is one of the great needs of the age.

* * *

It is stated that practically all of the more prominent speakers in the strenuous political campaign now on in Canada have been more or less shelved by sore throat or hoarseness except Sir Wilfred Laurier, the Premier, who is seventy years of age. Perhaps Mr. Laurier's immunity is due to the fact that his large experience in making public addresses has taught him how to use, and not abuse, his vocal powers.

* * *

The Progressive Union of New Orleans now has a membership of more than 2,000, which makes it the largest commercial organizaton in the South, and the third largest in the United States. The two which exceed it are in Boston and Chicago, which are very much larger than the Crescent City. The object of the Progressive Union is to promote the growth and general prosperity of New Orleans, and its efforts in this direction in the past have been crowned with a large measure of success.

* * *

Senator Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, has announced that at the expiration of his present term, on March 4, 1913, he will retire from the United States Senate. After ten years' experience in the lower House of Congress, Mr. Bailey was elected to the senate to succeed the Hon. Horace Chilton in 1901, and was re-elected in 1907. He is universally conceded to be one of the ablest men in public life, being both a great lawyer and an eloquent orator. It is reported that after his retirement Mr. Bailey will become a member of the New York City bar.

* * *

A steady and increasing stream of immigration continues to pour into Canada. In May, 1910, the number of such arrivals was 47,589; the same month this year it was 61,475. Of the latter 15,414 were from the United States, as against 14,194 for the same month last year. Of the immigrants coming from across the seas by far the larger portion are said to be English, Irish and Scotch. Evidently the foundations of a great empire are being laid in British North America. Indeed, no territory over which the English flag waves is richer in promise than this.

* * *

One of the most remarkable collections of Indian relics in the entire country is the Butler collection at Lake George, Yazoo County, Mississippi. It represents the life work of Mr. Brevort Butler, deceased, and contains 14,000 specimens, which are all named and classified. Dr. Dunbar Rowland, superintendent of the Mississippi Department of Archives and History, recently made a trip to Lake George to inspect this collection, and was greatly impressed by it. He is anxious for the State to own it, and has arranged for 500 specimens to be sent to Jackson that the Legislature, which will meet next January, may see what it represents. The Smithsonian Institute also is said to be after the collection; but we hope that the Mississippi solons will arrange for its purchase and transport to the State capitol. They should not think of letting it be carried elsewhere.

* * *

We hear much in this day about preventing the slaughter of birds, and laws looking to the promotion of this end are being enacted in many places; but there is one species of the feathery tribe for which nobody seems disposed to speak a kindly word—the English sparrow. For twenty-five years the Agricultural Department of the Government has been seking to rid the country of this pernicious little foreigner, but has met with small success in the undertaking. And now an Ohio farmer is reported to be sending out a circular letter, endeavoring to start a general crusade for the extermination of this pest. It is said that these sparrows literally revel in filth; that they gather up manure and various kinds of rotten waste and fill their habitats with it, the females laying their eggs and rearing their young amid this fermenting mass. Their destruction of gardens and the way in which they ruin choice buildings by making them their roosting places, have long been engaging serious attention. These birds were first introduced into the United States by Mr. Nicholas Pike and other directors of the Brooklyn Institute in 1850, who brought over eight pairs. These did not thrive, but others were imported two years later and at frequent subsequent dates. By 1886 they had spread very generally over the nation and their depredations began to evoke a general outcry against them, which has gone on unceasingly ever since.

THE SARDIS DISTRICT.

Dear Brother Meek: I send herewith fourth round for the Sardis District. The work is moving on well in this territory. Two new churches are being built, one at Nesbit, under the leadership of Rev. W. D. Wendel, of Hernando, and the other out from Sardis, under the leadership of Rev. R. A. Tucker and other friends. Some of the preachers have held splendid revivals in spite of politics, heat and rain. The outlook is good for the best financial report we have ever made from the Sardis District. Our people at Batesville had the misfortune to lose their church by fire, not insured, but they saved the pews and furniture. They very much needed a new church, as they are a plucky little band. I am sure that the pastor, Brother Duncan, will have the co-operation of his entire congregation in building in the near future. With the leadership of such whole-souled, liberal men as T. T. O'Bryant and several others there, they will build for the future as well as meet the need of the present.

The New Orleans Advocate gets better, it seems, with each issue. Oh, that all our people would read it!

W. M. YOUNG, P. E.

THE EDITOR ENDORSED.

Dear Brother Meek: What you said in last week's Advocate in reference to the public execution of criminals is wise and pertinent, and I feel sure is approved by most, if not all who read it. We believe in the death penalty for some crimes, but are opposed to the public execution of it before great multitudes of men, women, and children of all races and classes. It should be inflicted by officers of the law only, and within prison walls with only a few witnesses present.

You truly say: "A spectacular execution upon a gallows erected in the open air, and in the presence of a great multitude, is barbaric and brutalizing." It is consequently demoralizing (and only so) in its effect upon the minds of the youth and young manhood and womanhood of the country.

It is to be hoped that the matter will be seriously considered by the preachers and people of Mississippi and taken up with our legislators with a view to having the pernicious practice done away by the next session of the Legislature.

G. W. BACHMAN.

ORGANS

50 Bargains

SOME AS LOW AS $18

Write for prices and state whether you want one for your home or your Sunday School.

Tell us just what you want it for and we will send description.

PHILIP WERLEIN, LTD.,
605-607-609 CANAL STREET,
NEW ORLEANS.

SUPPOSE YOU HAVE A FIRE TO-NIGHT?
GET SOLID PROTECTION AND INSURE WITH
LEON IRWIN & CO.
FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.
736 Union Street. Phone, Main 585.

Geo. W. Riehl. Aug. Rauxet, Jr.
RIEHL & RAUXET.
Successors to Lowengardt & Armstrong,
JEWELERS,
122 BARONNE STREET - - New Orleans, La
(Optical Department: M. F. Fitzgerald, Optician.)
Phone, Main 737.

Concerning Missions.

TO THE LOUISIANA WORKERS.

Dear Friends of the Missionary Society: I shall take this means of expressing my thanks and appreciation, not only for the many kind letters received, but for good news of the work in Louisiana. I am sure you know of the change of date for closing our fiscal year—that the Executive Committee has decided that the second quarter of this year shall cover June, July, August and September, and that all reports must go from the auxiliary officers to the Conference secretaries, treasurer and other officers October 1st, instead of September 1st. Send in your quarterly report for every department, if possible by October 1, and not later than the 15th. January, 1912, will mark the beginning not only of a new calendar year but, let us hope, the beginning of a new year in zeal and devotion to the Master's cause. With perfect assurance of his strength, let us each one aspire to have a little part in the great conquest of the world in which He is engaged.

Not long since, when reading a letter from Mrs. A. P. Holt, our secretary of the Foreign Department in Louisiana, a feeling almost of dismay came over me at the greatness of our mission work. She said: "The need is great and the time is short," and my doubting heart added, "yet there is so much to do and so few to do it." But Phillips Brooks says: "Every experience is a new opportunity of knowing God." A message came the following Sunday from my favorite Bible verse (Phil. 4, 19): "My God shall supply all your needs according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus." The minister was a stranger, but I think his glowing words revealed to many hearts that day, besides my own, the fullness of the divine supply for every human need. Oh, friends, we can always rely on the Master's strength—not on our own, and fellowship with Him impels us into service.

There are some special items to be emphasized by the auxiliaries before the year slips behind us. There is a clarion call to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of organized work for foreign missions by the women of the United States. "More than forty-two million dollars have been raised by the Women's Boards during these fifty years." Let every auxiliary plan for a jubilee meeting some time during the fall. Our offerings are to go to a school for girls in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. Read of its crowded condition in the September Missionary Bulletin and let us act according to that knowledge.

A little leaflet by Mrs. A. L. Marshall, entitled "What I Owe to My Heathen Sister," has impressed me very much. The measure of our debt to them: "All that the knowledge of healing owes to the suffering, all that the knowledge of salvation owes to the perishing we owe to the heathen. And may God help us to feel the obligation!" Our Week of Prayer for the Home Mission Department is fixed for October 22. Let us hope this season of united prayer will be observed by every auxiliary and its uplifting influence felt in every individual life throughout the membership. The offerings this year will help to build a chapel and class room for Brevard Institute. Let us remember there can be nothing but success in every good cause in the hand of Christ.

A note of cheer comes to us from Mrs. MacDonell's report for the quarter ending June 1, 1911. Compared with collections of same quarter last year, there is an increase of $13,502.73. Subtracting from this the $5000 donation from the General Educational Board, the actual increase over last year is $12,502.73. Let us do as well this quarter and the next.

Send to Mrs. A. L. Marshall, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn., for the Booklet "Helps," price 5 cents per copy, or 35 cents per dozen. It contains much needed information. I would call special attention to the "Quiz" on the report of the First Annual Meeting in Monroe of our united Society, so ably prepared by Mrs. A. P. Holt, of Crowley. If every question has been asked and answered in every auxiliary, I am sure there will be corresponding advance in interest and membership. Another important item is the Endowment Fund for Scarritt Bible and Training School. Each auxiliary in the Conference is requested to raise $2 for this purpose, and this amount should be collected at once, as the need is imperative. It is hardly necessary to say that "The Missionary Voice" should be in the home of every member of the Missionary Society. Information is needed for intelligent service, and this valuable periodical is published monthly at only 50 cents per year. There are now 50,000 subscribers, and 100,000 are needed to make the paper self-supporting. Shall we fail to do our part in this matter?

A great membership campaign is being planned during the fall. Shall not our women fall in line and win new members into both departments of missions? The time is short and the need is great. Every day the power that we will not use is failing from us. Every day the God whose voice speaks through all the inevitable necessities of our moral life is saying of those who keep their talents wrapped in napkins, "Take the talent from him." May God help us to use our "talents" whether one, two or five, for the advancement of his kingdom in the world, and his honor and glory. I hope to be at home in Lafayette, La., after September 20, and I shall be glad to hear from you, one and all. My address is 228 Rich Avenue, Mount Vernon, New York.

Lovingly yours,

MRS. E. R. KENNEDY.

Mount Vernon, N. Y., Sept. 1, 1911.

A VISIT TO THE HOMER TOBERMAN DEACONESS HOME.

By Mrs. J. B. Ellis.

We can learn a great deal about our church institutions by reading of them, and it is a treat to hear anyone who has visited or lived at places where they exist tell about them, sometimes so clearly that they seem in our imagination right before us.

I heard Dr. C. F. Reid tell most impressively about the Homer Toberman Deaconess Home and Hospital last March in Dr. Watkin's church at Hammesburg, and greatly enjoyed his description of it. But there is nothing like seeing such an institution and going within the walls one's own self. And the privilege is also much enhanced by meeting those who are abiding there, and have them to show you through the building, and tell about everything, even the pictures and mottoes hanging on the walls. At once all that we have read and heard of the place becomes more real and seems closer. I shall always count myself fortunate in having taken advantage of the opportunity to visit the Scarritt Bible and Training School and the Homer Toberman Deaconess Home and Hospital.

We spent Sunday, July 2, in Los Angeles, and in the afternoon we took a car for "Homer Toberman," just as we had planned to do before leaving home. It is quite a distance from the large and beautiful Hotel Rosslyn, where we were staying while in the city. However, it seemed only a "short ways," as our car whirled along the lovely streets with rows of stately palms and other kinds of trees on either side, and just back of these the palatial homes, all hedged in with flower yards artistically laid out in beds and hedges, all running over with flowers, it seemed, of every hue and color. We were soon at the "Home," and as we walked up the broad walk, how familiar the building seemed, for the photographs of it are good. One of the nurses, Miss Anderson, gave us a warm welcome, and led us into one of the reception rooms. There we found Miss Ara Riggins, one of our missionaries in Chihuahua, Mexico. She spoke sweetly of Miss Wilson, her co-laborer in that field, and how anxious she was to get back to help her, as there is much to do. She does not feel that she has finished all that God wants her to do. She is having her eyes treated now, and hopes soon to undergo an operation that will restore her sight. She is very hopeful and courageous. She repeated passage after passage, containing God's promises, and showing his care and love for his children. She is sure he will restore her eyesight, and that she can yet do much work for his cause. Such faith and trust, we seldom find. I felt that I would love to kneel at her feet and ask a blessing. Miss Riggins said she had a Bible with raised letters, and that she spent most of her time committing passages to memory. These she expects to use when she returns to the field.

I thought what a fitting climax is this meeting with this child of God, to the past few days we have spent passing through the mountains, valleys and plains, watching and admiring the grandeur and beauty of nature—God's handiwork. We felt ourselves nearer to God.

It had been more than an hour since Miss Anderson went to the hospital "to see after" her patients, but the time had seemed much shorter. When she came in, she said that she would like to "show us" through the house, if we would like to go through. Miss Elliot and her sister were out visiting the patients who had been in the hospital. Homer Toberman is perhaps the best furnished and equipped building of the Woman's Home Mission Society (or the Missionary Society now, since they have been united). The cozy furnishing and its beautiful cleanliness make the interior of the house attractive. The lower floor serves for reception rooms, two bed rooms, a dining room and kitchen. The second furnishes hospital quarters for ten patients, operating room, and sun parlor. On the third floor one deaconess, the nurses and other helpers have rooms. There were eight patients in the hospital, two had just come in and were to be operated on the next day. Two had left a few days before. Every door bears the label in burnt wood of the person or auxiliary that furnishes it. This hospital has the rare experience of making ends meet, though, of course, the Board provides for the salaries of the workers, and the City Mission Board of Los Angeles bears the current expenses of the home. We were told that if anyone more than another is due more credit for this work, it is Mrs. C. S. Jackson, who is the president of the City Mission Board, and who has for years given her time and talent unstintingly to the Home. We learned also that the workers make a happy family, and that the individuality of each is a factor in the life of the "institution." Miss Maria Elliott's sweet charity and wise direction of the Home, Miss Mozelles Elliott's cheery, competent direction of the hospital, and Miss Fannie Mann's faithful and ready willingness to co-operate wherever there is need, make a happy combination of forces. Then the nurses in training and the young students who makes his way through college by tending the flowers and vegetables, etc., with the faithful housekeeper, fill out the setting of this happy home.

Not soon can we forget with what enthusiasm Miss Riggins told us of the morning prayer, when "the family," as she called the workers, gather into the room where we were sitting and sing several songs before the Bible lesson, in order that the patients upstairs may hear and join in the worship. The patients listen for the songs every day, and miss them if a chance interruption breaks the habit. We thought, if one is so unfortunate as for it to be necessary to go to a hospital, what a privilege to must be to be brought here to this bright, cheery place, and into this atmosphere of Christian love. There were pictures and mottoes on the walls everywhere, and in the reception room where we sat, in large handsome frames, were pictures of Major and Mrs. Toberman. Just above these was one of their son, Homer, for whom the Home was named. It was also in this room that the remains of Mrs. Toberman lay until after the funeral service was held. This was an inspiration, and the memory of this ideal Sabbath afternoon will ever be a bright spot on memory's page.

Mount Olive, Miss.

The Centenary College of Louisiana
SHREVEPORT
Fall Term will open
Sept. 13, 1911.
For Catalogue or other information write to
FELIX R. HILL, President,
P. O. Box 455
SHREVEPORT, LA.

The Home Circle

GET A TRANSFER.

If you are on the Gloomy Line,
Get a transfer.
If you're inclined to fret and pine,
Get a transfer.
Get off the track of Doubt and Gloom,
Get on the Sunshine Train; there's room,
Get a transfer.

If you are on the Worry Train,
Get a transfer.
You must not stay there and complain;
Get a transfer.
The Cheerful Cars are passing through,
And there is lots of room for you—
Get a transfer.

If you are on the Grouchy Track,
Just take a happy Special back;
Get a transfer.
Jump on the train and pull the rope,
That lands you at the station, Hope—
Get a transfer.

—Ladies' Home Journal.

WHY POPCORN POPS.

Why does popcorn pop? The Department of Agriculture answers the question, which was propounded to it by a small boy. Popcorn pops by reason of the volatilization of the oil contained in the kernel by heat. Field corn does not pop because the outer portion of the kernel is more porous, permitting the escape of the oil as it volatilizes, while in the case of popcorn, a great pressure is developed in the kernel by the confined oil and the kernel is suddenly exploded and turned wrong side out.—Boston Herald.

A DUSTY PRAYER.

A little 3-year-old boy in New Hampshire, living but a few miles from the home of the well-known author, Mr. Winston Churchill, was put to bed one night by his aunt. After saying his "Now I lay me down to sleep," he looked up and said: "Auntie, would you like me to say my other prayer, too?" "Have you another prayer?" "Yes, but it must be pretty dusty, so long since I've used it." The dear boy had probably heard of dust gathering on Bibles not used often, and applied the same idea to his long unused prayer. It is to be feared there are older people whose prayers have become pretty dusty, though they may not confess it as readily as did this boy.

A HANDY TREE.

Did you ever hear of a thread-and-needle tree? It is rather a handy tree to have growing in the back yard, don't you think? Especially when there are boys in the house with buttons coming off about every other minute.

This strange tree grows in nearly all tropical countries, and in some places nearer home where the climate is warm. It gets its name by which we know it from the curious formation of its leaves. At the tip of the leaf there is a sharp thorn, which is the needle. If you grasp it firmly and pull it out, there you are with a needle already threaded for your sewing. This fiber thread is very strong and the Mexicans use it for weaving a coarse kind of cloth, as well as for sewing.

The leaves of the tree they use for roofing their houses, instead of tiles, and a fine roof it makes them, strong and waterproof—just the sort of roof they need when the rain comes down in sheets.—The Young Evangelist.

YOUNGEST MEMBER OF THE LIBRARY.

To "join the library" is one of the highest ambitions of the girls and boys in New York. The youngest member of any Carnegie library in the city is said to be Charlie Mulhane, of Flatbush, L. I. He is only five years of age. When he was two and a half years old he went with his mother to the library one day and asked to take out a book for himself, but the librarian said he would have to wait until he could write his name in order to take out a card. The little boy felt so disappointed that his mother made out an application blank and left it with the librarian, saying in fun that Charlie might come in and sign his name when he learned to write it. Of course his mother forgot all about the incident, but Charlie had never forgotten, and the other day he surprised his family by carrying home a library book full of gay pictures of Indians in all the glory of paint and feathers. The boy had been to the library, signed his name and taken out the book on his own card.—New York Christian Advocate.

ANT NEIGHBORS.

Doubtless you've used the expression, "as busy as a bee"? If you should say, "as busy as an ant," it would be just as truthful, for nothing could be busier than these little brown neighbors of ours.

You have seen an "ant-hill," perhaps, but not the inside, so I'll tell you a few of their ways and customs.

Ants live together in large numbers, in arched nests underground. Passages lead from these chambers to the surface of the ground, and at night they close the doors with bits of wood or leaves. "Soldier ants" keep guard near the doors, and when it is morning, they get up and wake up all the others. Some ants may be sleepy-headed, like yourself, but they have to get up, or they get a sharp bite.

All hands then go to work—without any breakfast, like as not—cleaning out the passages, making things tidy, building, mending, etc. The baby ants are fat, white grubs, and these are carried by their nurses out into the sunshine for an airing. The babies are hatched from eggs, and they turn to crysalises. When these break open, the full-grown ants come forth.

Some ants are said to keep "cows"—small plant-sucking insects that are full of sweet juice. When an ant wants a drink of "milk" he presses it from the "cows."

Ants teach us many lessons besides the one of industry. They are neat and orderly in their ways, and they help each other perform difficult tasks. They work peaceably together and thus accomplish so much more than if they quarreled and disagreed. They are kind and gentle with their sick, and nurse them back to health when possible.

As you've noticed, perhaps, ants like sweet things best of all, but they also eat other insects, grain, and almost any kind of food.

Now, don't you think your ant neighbors interesting little people?—The Child's Gem.

BE KIND.

Nothing beautifies character like kindness. It is a grace which angels love, and which God approves. It softens the asperities of human lot and "shows the heavens more just." The bitterness of life largely arises from our conduct toward each other.

"Man's inhumanity to man Makes countless thousands mourn."

If you want to live a life at once noble and happy you must do something to sweeten the lives of others. "Those who bring sunshine to the lives of others," says J. M. Barrie, "cannot keep it from themselves." The miserable and ignoble people in the world are those whose hearts are narrow and hard; the happy and fruitful lives are those which bless. The way to lighten your own sorrow is to endeavor to lighten those of your human sisterhood and brotherhood whose trials are probably more grievous than your own. "At the end of life," says Hugh Black, "we shall not be asked how much pleasure we had in it, but how much service we gave to it; not how full it was of success, but how full it was of sacrifice; not how happy we were, but how helpful we were; not how ambition was gratified, but how loss was served." In His teaching concerning the final issues of human destiny, the approval or condemnation of the Judge of all, service as distinguished from selfishness is made the hinge on which human destiny will turn.

In every age the human heart has hungered for heroes. It is the glory of our age that the modern hero stands forth, armed, not with sword or rifle, but weaponed with love and kindness. O, be swift to love, make haste to be kind.

"Only a word of sympathy spoken
To hearts overburdened with care;
Only the clasp of a hand as a token
That we in their trouble would share;
Only a pause to render assistance
To those overcome by the way—
These are the deeds that ennoble existence,
And turn the world's darkness to day."

—Great Thoughts.

WHY HE WAS NOT PROMOTED.

He watched the clock.
He was always grumbling.
He was always behindhand.
He asked too many questions.
His stock excuse was, "I forgot."
He wasn't ready for the next step.
He did not put his heart in his work.
He learned nothing from his blunders.
He was content to be a second-rate man.
He chose his friends among his inferiors.
He ruined his ability by half-doing things.
He never dared to act on his own judgment.
He did not think it worth while to learn how.
He thought it clever to use coarse and profane language.
He imitated the habits of men who could stand more than he could.
He did not learn that the best part of his salary was not in his pay envelope.—Success.

The AMERICAN PAINT WORKS
——Manufacturers of——
High Grade Mixed Paints; Perfecto White Lead; Nonpareil Carriage Paint; Varnish Stain; Colors in Oil; Wood Fillers; Chemically Pure Dry Colors, Etc.
428-434 JOSEPHINE STREET.....Phone 918
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

——COLONIST——
ONE-WAY FARES TO CALIFORNIA
AND POINTS INTERMEDIATE VIA SOUTHERN PACIFIC
$32 From New Orleans.
TICKETS ON SALE
September 15 to October 15, 1911.
Two Trains Daily Through to Pacific Coast Without Change. Tourist Excursion Sleepers (1-2 Rate). Oil Burning Locomotives. Electric Block Signals. Chair Cars and Coaches. Dining Car Service (Best in the World).
Before Deciding on Your Route, See SOUTHERN PACIFIC REPRESENTATIVE,
——City Ticket Office——
225-27 St. Charles Street, New Orleans.
PHONE, MAIN 4027.
Beautifully Illustrated Literature Furnished on Request.

THE SAFEST AND QUICKEST WAY
—TO—
TRANSFER MONEY
—IS BY—
Long Distance Telephone
FOR RATES APPLY TO LOCAL MANAGER,
Cumberland Telephone & Telegraph Co
INCORPORATED.

Christian Advocate.

ROBERT A. WEEK, Editor.

CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

ENTERED AT THE POSTOFFICE AT NEW ORLEANS AS SECOND-CLASS MAIL MATTER.

OFFICE: 512 CAMP STREET, NEW ORLEANS.

TERMS:

One Copy, one year, $1.50; eight months, $1.00. To preachers of all Denominations, $1.00.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE

Louisiana Conference—Rev. N. E. Joyner, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., Rev. W. W. Drake.

Mississippi Conference—Rev. J. W. Cooper, D.D., Rev. C. W. Crisler, Rev. J. D. Ellis.

North Mississippi Conference—Rev. J. T. Merrah, Rev. W. W. Woollard, Rev. H. E. Spracher.

Editorial.

THE WORK OF THE AUTUMN.

The arrival of September and the publishing of the fourth rounds of the presiding elders forcibly remind us that the end of the Conference year is again near at hand. With startling rapidity the seasons come and go, and with them pass away opportunities that will never return. Success or failure in life depends to a considerable extent upon whether it is one's habit to do to-day's work to-day, or to procrastinate and leave it to be performed in the future. The man who waits for the propitious hour often discovers, when too late, that he has let it speed by unrecognized. We have no excess of time even when every swift-flying moment is properly improved. No matter how long deferred, death usually finds even the busiest toilers with tasks unfinished. To be a good Christian and a good Methodist, one must have the spirit of urgency in service—the constraining sense of obligation that impels one to be up and doing. As has been often observed, the Master called and commissioned no idler to be his representative among men. From those engaged in the active walks of life came the apostolic twelve and all the others that he sent forth to prepare the way for his coming kingdom. There is little hope for a lazy man either in time or eternity. Refusing to trade with the talents given him, how can he hope for much reward in the day of reckoning? If saved, it will be "as by fire"—there will be for him no "abundant entrance," no thronging multitude of those whom he has blessed to greet him, no starry crown.

The fall work of the average Methodist pastor is manifold and taxing. Usually there has been a declension in the various departments of church activity during the heated term, and he must seek to revive interest and bring things up to a normal state of efficiency. Those who have had the harness off and are somewhat disposed to keep it off, must be again enlisted. Machinery that has been standing still must be geared up and set to going. This will require pastoral visiting, personal appeals, and rally days to generate enthusiasm. Fortunate is the preacher whose charge is in as good condition on the first of October as it was on the first of May.

Another burdensome autumn task which generally devolves upon the pastor is that of raising the Conference collections. This work should not be left principally to the fall season, but usually, from various causes, it is. And though we have the Laymen's Movement, the raising of these assessments in the majority of the charges must yet be done by the preacher. This is regrettable, and it is to be hoped that the day is not far distant when it will not be so. It is a matter of the highest importance that these connectional claims shall be paid in full. Every dollar is needed if our various church enterprises are to be maintained upon a satisfactory basis and the work even conservatively extended. Never were there so many open doors as now. Everywhere opportunity challenges, and the very success of the Church is her greatest embarrassment. Let our people in every appointment co-operate with the pastor in raising these funds. They are not excessive, as is frequently alleged. They may seem so when the willingness of our members is considered, but not so when their ability—the true measure of obligation—is taken into account. If there is a congregation anywhere that is asked for more than it should pay to these causes, it has not come within the range of our observation.

And also the pastor has before him in this, as well as in all other seasons, his supreme work—that of winning men to Christ and building up spiritually those who are of the household of faith. Numerous and pressing as are his other duties, he must not let them interfere with this noblest function of his ministry. The early and middle autumn is not a bad time for special revival work. Or if a meeting is not deemed expedient, great good may be accomplished by making the evening services pronouncedly evangelical. It is well to sow, but the reaping time should also come. A fruitful pastorate must be characterized by expectancy. And as Conference approaches, the preacher's concern for the spiritual state of his people should be heightened by the reflection that his opportunity to labor among them may soon be ended by a mandate to go elsewhere.

Each succeeding year—divinely measured by revolving worlds—is God's call to bestir ourselves in the white harvest fields, while lasts the day and ere the night cometh. To carry a good report to Conference, is an achievement worth striving for; but infinitely more important is it to be adjudged faithful when we stand before the Lord of the harvest in the last great day. Nothing will pass muster then that is not genuine—pure gold. Glitter and show will count for nothing; unselfish service rendered and sacrifices made with a view to blessing others will alone command the Master's approval. Knowing that he finally must pass upon it, we cannot afford to do shoddy work, nor to fall below the measure of our capacity. Our honest best is what the Church and her divine Lord expect of each of us. Let us see that they are given this during the remaining weeks of the far-spent year.

IMAGINARY THINKERS.

It is not a little amusing to hear some of the disciples of the so-called "new theology" sputtering about the right to think and the duty of thinking, as if somebody were trying to abridge that right and defeat the performance of that duty. We know of no one who objects to these gentlemen exercising their reasoning faculties. The intellect was given man to use, and undoubtedly he should make the most of it. What these complainants can demonstrate to be true, will find ready acceptance throughout the Christian world. Men everywhere are hungry for facts. But they do not like to feed upon the empty husks of speculation; they are not willing to fling away the reasoned convictions of a lifetime, which were also held by their fathers, for mere theories, backed by nothing but bald assertions. They are not disposed to embrace every unsupported vagary that is put forward, simply because it is newly hatched. They view theological fiction in the same light, whether it be covered with the moss of centuries, or has just fluttered forth from a German university.

The trouble with these brethren is that they fancy they are doing all the thinking of the age. There are two suggestions that we should like to make to them. One is that it is possible for others to think and not view things as they do. The other is, that echoing the superficial utterances of faddists is not thinking. The thinker keeps his feet upon solid ground—step by step he goes from foundation premise to domed conclusion. He does not chase widly after wil-o'-the-wisps, and dignify the performance by calling it reasoning.

The following incident is related of the great Southern statesman and orator, L. Q. C. Lamar: He was seated in the Senate Chamber, with a colleague near by. Some distance across the room, sat J. S. C. Blackburn of Kentucky, who was apparently absorbed in profound reflection. Knowing the Kentuckian's superficiality—that he was a man of words and of but little thought power—Lamar's eye twinkled and he said: "Look at Blackburn; he thinks he is thinking." Blackburn is now no more, but the world yet has its imaginary thinkers—men whose craniums have never bred a new or original idea, but who affect large intellectuality and make a great noise about "advanced thought." Their very swaddle classifies them, because persons who really and truly think are too much engaged with their mental processes to be posing and making an ado about it.

THE CHANCELLOR'S ATTITUDE.

The last number of the Vanderbilt University Quarterly contains an article dealing with the amusement question at that institution, which concludes as follows: "The Chancellor is placed in charge of the University buildings, and has never allowed any of the buildings to be used by the students for dancing. This he has done out of respect to the feelings of a large number of the trustees and friends that he knows to be opposed to this form of amusement. He has also for the same reason steadily refused to attend student dances wherever given, but has never felt that he had any right to interpose by forbidding such entertainments to those who were disposed to enjoy them."

The action of Dr. Kirkland in refusing to allow the University buildings to be used for dancing and his course in refraining from attending dances given elsewhere, we most heartily commend. But why does he so strongly emphasize the fact that in doing this he has been governed by a consideration for "the feelings of a large number of trustees and friends that he knows to be opposed to this form of amusement?" Has the attitude of the Church toward the dance, as officially expressed in the Discipline, weighed nothing with him, and has he himself no conviction that a Church institution should not recognize or encourage this practice? Are we to understand that personally he would have no objection to having the property of the University used for such entertainments, or to honoring them with his presence? Such would seem to be the logical inference from his statement.

Let it not be thought that we have a disposition to meddle with the distinguished Chancellor's private views. It is he who has obtruded them upon the public attention. It seems to us that by his utterance he has virtually declared that he is not in harmony with the Church on the subject of the dance. That one who occupies the position which he does in the service of the Church should even impliedly assume such a position is, we think, most regrettable. If his language is not to be thus construed, we hope that Dr. Kirkland will publicly so state. No one would be more pleased than we by his disavowal of the view to which his language by implication seems to commit him.

A MODERN CHURCH PROBLEM.

That the Sunday school children to-day do not generally attend the preaching services in our churches, is a fact which must impress every careful observer. The complaint of this is well-nigh universal, yet apparently little effort is being made to bring about a different condition of things. There can be little doubt that to allow the present generation of our youth to grow up confirmed in the habit of not going to hear the Word preached, must exert an unwholesome influence upon the religious work of the future. Important as the Sunday school is, it cannot take the place of the Church as a potent spiritual force in the world, and is not designed so to do.

But why do not our children attend public worship? The time at which the Sunday school is held may have something to do with their failure to do so. Many of our schools do not adjourn until the preaching service is ready to begin. They allow no intermission, and having already been engaged for an hour or more, it is asking rather too much of children to insist that they shall enter at once into another service equally as long. It has also been suggested that the reason that so many of the little folk march away from the church to their homes when the Sunday school is over is that the average sermon is above their comprehension and that there is nothing in it that is calculated to entertain or instruct them.

But what is the remedy for this conceded weakness in our church work? Some have been bold enough to affirm that the exercise of a little parental authority would quickly correct the evil. It would no doubt greatly help, but that is a power which apparently is little in evidence in this day, and to which it is seemingly well-nigh useless to appeal. The view has also been advanced that the pastor should devote the initial part of every 11 o'clock service on Sunday to the children, preaching to them a five or ten-minute sermon and then allowing them to go. Others insist that ministers need to preach more simply to all the people, and that their discourses would be more effective generally, as well as more attractive to the young, if they would strive to acquire the art of presenting the truths of the gospel in a manner plainer and more comprehensible. They would have the children remain throughout the service, and the pastor to preach so that they can understand him and be profited by his message. In some of the European countries, to obviate this tendency of the children to drift away from the Church, there has been created an organization known as the League of Worshiping Children, which seeks to awaken among them a sentiment in favor of church attendance.

As to the merits of these different expedients, we will now express no opinion. It is our purpose merely to emphasize the importance of this problem and to direct attention to it. We claim no superior wisdom as to how it may best be solved. But that it demands serious and earnest attention upon the part of our pastors and people, we are fully convinced.

REV. J. P. HANEY DEAD.

Rev. C. C. Miller, of the Baton Rouge District, has informed us of the death of the Rev. J. P. Haney, an esteemed member of the Louisiana Conference, which occurred at his home at Clinton, La., on last Saturday, Sept. 9, 1911. Brother Haney had been in failing health for some time, and last fall, though he had been on the Ponchatoula charge only one year and was in good favor with the people, on account of his physical condition, he asked for a lighter work, which the Bishop and presiding elder took pleasure in providing for him by assigning him to the East Feliciana Circuit. But his condition did not improve as it was hoped it would, and he had been able to render little active service since the last Annual Conference. Some months ago he had the misfortune to lose his beloved wife, whose decease greatly saddened and depressed him. Thinking that the change and water might help him, he made a trip to Brown's Wells late in the spring, but returned no better than when he went. Since then his strength has steadily declined, and his end was not unexpected. We are not informed as to the particulars attending his translation, but doubtless a full account will be furnished the Advocate at an early date by some friend who was with him in his closing hours. The interment took place in the cemetery at Greensburg, La.

Brother Haney had been a member of the Louisiana Conference since 1894, and was a faithful and effective itinerant preacher. He wrought well wherever he was sent by the authorities, and was thoroughly loyal to the doctrines and polity of Methodsm. He had the gift of making friends, and was held in loving remembrance in all the charges that he served. Unselfishly he spent his strength to establish the Master's kingdom, and we doubt not that he has entered upon a rich and unfading reward. Brother Haney left five daughters, one of whom is married and resides at Greensburg, La. They are young ladies of noble Christian character, and too much could not be said in praise of their loving and unwearying ministry to the stricken, suffering ones of their family during a long period of unusual affliction. Four times within the past two years death has invaded this household—thrice within the past twelve months—finally bereaving it of both the mother and the father. Through this succession of trials, they have nobly discharged the duties devolving upon them, ever manifesting a beautiful faith and devotion. May the Heavenly Father abide with them consciously in their loneliness and grief, and gently lay his healing hand upon their bleeding hearts!

PERSONAL AND OTHER NOTES.

Bishop Mouzon has called the presiding elders of the Louisiana Conference to meet him at Alexandria, La., on Oct. 4.

Sunday, Sept. 24, is the Rally Day of the Men and Religion Movement. It is to be hoped that it will be generally observed.

Rev. Theo. Copeland is rounding out the year's work in fine shape at the Cabanne Church, St. Louis. His officials have unanimously requested his return to this growing pastorate.

Rev. K. W. Dodson, of New Iberia, La., had 75 at prayer meeting on a recent Wednesday evening. Evidently his church is alive and active, when the mid-week service is thus attended.

Rev. W. A. Borum, the popular pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Jackson, Miss., has recently conducted a meeting at Corinth, Miss., in which the secular papers report there were a number of conversions.

After a pleasant vacation, Dr. A. F. Smith is again at his post in Jackson, Miss. He occupied his pulpit at First Church last Sunday, preaching to appreciative congregations at both the morning and evening hours.

Rev. J. D. Wroten, the pastor, reports a successful meeting at Duck Hill, Miss., in which the preaching was done by Rev. O. L. Savage. He is having a prosperous year in this charge. One new church has been built and improvements made upon another.

Rev. G. P. McKeown, of Edwards, Miss., informs us that Miss Florence Hacker, who taught in Monterey, Mexico, last year, left on Saturday, Sept. 2, for Cuba, where she goes to teach in the school at Matanzas. She is a niece of the Rev. M. B. Sharbrough, presiding elder of the Hattiesburg District, Mississippi Conference.

We are informed that Rev. Paul Brown, the presiding elder of the Alexandria District, with such assistance as he can command from other brethren, will supply the Alexandria Church until Conference. Brother Brown's family have moved to Shreveport, in order that the children may have the educational advantages afforded by Centenary College.

Rev. Abe Mulkey, the noted Texas evangelist, will begin a series of revival services at the Carrollton Avenue Church of this city on Oct. 27. Brother Mulkey is a practical and resourceful preacher, and has been instrumental in leading thousands of souls to Christ. He has conducted some of the greatest meetings ever held in the Lone Star State.

The Jackson News states that Mr. D. H. Streetman, one of the representatives-elect to the Mississippi Legislature from Monroe County, will move to Jackson, and, in addition to discharging the duties of his office, will take a law course at Millsaps College. Mr. Streetman is married and has one child. He has taught in the public schools, and is regarded as a young man of promise.

We are indebted to Brother T. S. Randle, of Gilbert, La., for three new subscribers secured from among the members of the Magnolia Church on that charge. He also reports a gracious season of refreshing at that place. The meeting was begun by Rev. W. G. Harbin, but he was called home by illness in his family, and the services were continued by his assistant, Brother Boddy, whose ministrations greatly pleased the people.

Rev. C. C. Miller, presiding elder of the Baton Rouge District, was in the city last Monday, and called at our office. He has been quite unwell lately, and was here for the purpose of securing medical treatment. Brother Miller was summoned to Clinton last Saturday to attend the obsequies of the late Rev. J. P. Haney, but, much to his regret, was physically unable to go. We trust that his indisposition will be of brief duration.

The home of Rev. and Mrs. W. G. Harbin, of Haynesville, La., has lately been honored by a new arrival in the person of Dudley Pope Harbin, who is said to be quite a fine fellow. Brother Harbin suggests that he may be an editor or publisher, as he is so obstreperous. We congratulate the happy parents, and pray that a kind Providence may watch over both the babe and mother, preserving them and shielding them from all harm.

We regret that our personal references in the Advocate to Rev. I. D. Borders, of Stockton, Cal., have been misunderstood by some of the brethren, who construed them as indicating a purpose upon his part to return to Mississippi this fall. Brother Borders loves the State of his nativity and holds in affectionate remembrance the scores of friends he has among its citizens, but at present has no purpose to leave the West, where he has an appreciative people and a field abounding in opportunities.

As one of the results of the fine meeting recently held at the Columbiana Church, on the Vaiden charge, by Rev. G. W. Gordon, the pastor, and Rev. T. H. Lipscomb, of Lexington, Miss., the former sent us a list of seven subscribers to the Advocate. There is no better time to press the claims of the church paper than during the days of a revival. The editor once served this congregation, and some of the names sent in had to him quite a familiar appearance and brought into his mind a flood of pleasant memories.

Rev. C. C. Gibson, of Carthage, Miss., continues to bring us under obligations for good work done in behalf of the Conference organ. We are pleased to be informed that his round of protracted meetings has resulted in the accomplishment of much good. He has recently closed a most successful series of services at Rocky Springs, where the congregations were large and appreciative. There were a number of conversions and eight additions to the church. With the exception of one sermon delivered by a local preacher, the preaching was done entirely by the pastor.

Under date of the 5th inst., Rev. J. B. Randolph, of Como, Miss., writes: "I have been engaged in revival work for the past two weeks. We had a good meeting at Hind's Chapel, where Rev. A. M. Bennett is the pastor. There were a number of conversions and nine accessions. Last week I was with Rev. R. I. Collins, at Palestine, where we had twenty conversions at the altar and twenty accessions to our church. Everything is moving on nicely at Como. We had the largest attendance at Sunday school last Sabbath that the church has ever had, and every officer and teacher was in place."

Dr. G. C. Rankin, the veteran editor of the Texas Christian Advocate, paid our General organ the following well merited compliment a few days since: "Dr. Ivey is giving to the Southern Methodist Church a most acceptable church paper in the Christian Advocate. His editorials are lofty in tone, appropriate in subject matter, and thoroughly in accord with the doctrines and usages of Methodism. Not only this, they are fervently evangelical and it is an inspiration to read them. They bring to the Church edification throughout all its borders. Such a paper as the official organ of the Church is worthy of the most widespread patronage. It ought to be generally taken by our people."

From the Texas Advocate of Sept. 7 we take the following: "Bishop Mouzon on last Sunday officiated at the opening service in our handsome new church edifice at Palestine. He preached to great congregations and they were greatly edified by his ministrations. Rev. J. B. Turrentine and his good people deserve great credit for their enterprise in this matter. Palestine has long needed just such a building as the Methodists now have, and it will add to their growth and efficiency. While in that city, Bishop Mouzon was entertained by Ex-Governor and Mrs. Thomas M. Campbell. They are Presbyterians —Cumberland—but they often worship with the Methodists."

In forwarding his fourth round of appointments, Rev. B. P. Jaco, who is winding up his quadrennium on the Corinth District, thus refers to his work in that important field: "Many have been the cares, sorrows, and successes of these years. What revelations of grace, love, and power we have had! Thousands have been added to the church, a score and a half ministers have been started out in the service of the Master, fifteen churches have been organized, whole charges have been carved from unoccupied territory, and the finances for all purposes largely increased. The preachers and lamen of this district have done heroic work." So they have, and so has Brother Jaco. He has magnified his office, and is one of the elders who had "obtained a good report."

In a note to the editor under date of the 9th inst., Rev. D. W. Babb, of Coldwater, Miss., writes as follows: "My last own brother, Rev. J. G. Babb, left us from his home at Corinth, Miss., last Sunday evening at 8:45 o'clock, in obedience to the Master's summons. It was my mournful pleasure to see him pass over the last river without a struggle. He was nearly 62 years of age. I spent almost six weeks with him during the period of his affliction—three last spring when he underwent a serious operation, and three lately. How precious they were to me, though I lingered by his side in much suspense! He will be waiting and watching for us at the beautiful gate." We deeply sympathize with Brother Babb and all others touched by this sorrow, and pray that divine grace may comfort and sustain them. Those who go from us trusting in Christ are only lost awhile—soon we shall reclaim them, to be ours forevermore.

DEATH OF REV. J. P. HANEY.

Dear Dr. Meek: Rev. J. P. Haney, a member of the Louisiana Conference, and pastor of the East Feliciana Circuit, was buried here yesterday. The writer, with the assistance of Rev. H. G. Gatlin, officiated at the funeral. After the service at the church, the members of the St. Helena Lodge No. 96, F. and A. M., of which Brother Haney was a member, carried the body to the grave, where it was interred according to their ritual.

J. B. FULTON.

Greensburg, La., Sept. 11, 1911.

NEW ORLEANS PREACHERS' MEETING.

The New Orleans Methodist Preachers' Meeting met in First Church Monday morning, Sept. 11, Rev. J. M. Henry, D.D., presiding. All the preachers were present with the exception of S. H. Werlein and J. W. Booth.

Dr. Henry stated that the commission appointed by the Board of Missions at its last session would meet here on the 27th of October and would be in session one day. In view of the fact that they would have but little opportunity to study the conditions of our work in the city, he suggested that the preachers might be able to assist the commission by making a careful study of our needs and discussing certain phases of the work at the regular weekly meetings. A program committee was appointed, consisting of J. M. Henry, W. W. Holmes and A. F. Vaughan.

Several of the preachers announced that they were planning to hold revival services during the fall. Rev. Abe Mulkey, the evangelist, will begin a meeting at Carrollton Avenue on the 27th of October, and will go from there to Louisiana Avenue. Brother Atkinson will also hold a meeting, but has not yet made definite plans.

Reports were made by all of the preachers present. Several have just returned from their vacations and have entered into the fall work with zeal. All of the churches have made commendable progress during the year, and while the attendance has not been large during the hot weather, the prospects for the fall work is full of encouragement.

A. F. VAUGHAN, Secretary.

Obituaries.

Obituaries not over two hundred words in length will be published free of charge. All over two hundred words will be charged at the rate of 1 cent a word. Count the words and send the amount necessary with the obituary. That will save trouble all around.

Mrs. WHITEHEAD died at the Natchez Sanitarium, August 26, 1911. She was the wife of V. H. Whitehead. Six children were born to them, all of them yet living to mourn with their afflicted father the sad death of his dear and precious loved one. She was in bad health for a long time, and her sufferings were great, yet you never heard her complain. It is hard, so hard, to give up our loved ones, but weep not, dear children; your mother is not dead, but only sleepeth. The funeral services were conducted by her old pastor from Woodville, Miss., in the presence of many sad relatives and friends. My heartfelt sympathy I extend to the bereaved. Weep not dear ones; your mother is not dead, but has only been laid to rest to await the resurrection morn. Our loss is her eternal gain. A FRIEND.

Mrs. REBECCA BYRD HARPER, widow of Jesse J. Harper, was born July 29, 1833, and died at the home of her son, J. W. Harper, at Thomasville, Miss., August 20, 1911. She had been a great sufferer for several years, and death to her was only the releasing of the spirit from the aged and worn body. She was a devout member of the Methodist Church, and during her days of actual service she loved to attend upon its ordinances, and the ministers always found in her a loving, helpful friend. She was familiar with the doctrines of her church, and God's Word to her was a daily companion. Doubtless, through the long hours of suffering, she found solace in the Father's message to his earthly children. For several years prior to her death she was denied the privilege of worshiping in his sanctuary, but the sacred flame in her heart was ever alive to her Father's goodness and love. She knew in whom she had trusted and was not discouraged, though trials and suffering beset her pathway. She was the mother of six children, two of whom have long since "crossed over the river." Those remaining are A. E. Harper, of Thomasville, Miss.; J. W. Harper, of Peet, Miss.; E. B. Harper, of Star, and Mrs. Joe Tucker, of Plain, Miss. One of the results of the sainted mother's life is the stamp and impress of noble character that she has left on the lives of her offspring. At 10 a.m., August 21, her remains were interred in the Wesleyana cemetery by the side of her kindred, Rev. J. S. Purcell, officiating. "Dust to dust, ashes to ashes," can be said of the body of clay—but thanks be to our God, not so of the immortal spirit. Heaven is nearer, for there is another tie—one more dear one is "at home over there," and soon for us the "pilgrimage will cease," and among the redeemed host in the new Jerusalem, I believe we shall see and know again the dear grandmother who fought the good fight of faith, of which St. Paul gave witness.

MRS. L. H. PURCELL.

Florence, Miss.

MISS OLIVIA D. IRELAND.

An Appreciation.

Miss Olivia Ireland was born near Church Hill, Jefferson County, Miss., Nov. 24, 1856, and at the age of ten years moved with her parents to Adams County, near Pine Ridge, where she spent most of her life.

She was a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, most of these years, and her Church was uppermost in her mind, always ready to do what she could to advance its interest. Her membership was for nearly all this time in the church at Washington, and it was here that I first knew her during the years of 1889 and 1890. She was zealously affected for the spiritual and material growth of the kingdom, and as an evidence of this what she had to contribute of prayer, service, and means, she gave unstintedly. Her life was an open book to those who knew her, and her sincerity as a Christian was as manifest as could be.

It was again my pleasure and profit to be her pastor for four years in Natchez, during which time she was in very bad health, and notwithstanding this, she was as often in the church as her health would permit. She was the same devoted woman to her Lord and his cause that I had known her to be before. She was one of the most helpful hearers that any pastor ever had in a congregation, and when she was helped by a message she was not slow to express it to her pastor. Frequently, there were gleams of joy expressed in her countenance at the pronouncement of the gospel of peace, and it was evident that she was in the enjoyment of that peace which passes all understanding.

During the first days of August she grew worse, and it was not long before the members of her family were called to her bedside, though before they could reach her she was no more. Her release from suffering was a boon to her, for she had suffered much for several years. I am sure that she has entered the Father's house and is in the enjoyment of the blessedness of that place where she will not suffer again. She will be missed by those who knew her, but it is their privilege to go to the place where she has gone.

ROBT. SELBY.

Moss Point, Miss., Sept. 7, 1911.

On the old home place in East Feliciana Parish, Nov. 9, 1898, SAMUEL JAMES, youngest son of Willie E. and Bettie White Fienniken, was born. On Aurelia Farm, near Baton Rouge, La., at 10:30 p.m., July 6, 1911, he passed from this life. Death is always sad—we can never be so prepared that it is not a shock; but when it comes to the young with all life's hopes and promises unfulfilled—when it comes suddenly and in a tragic way, how "we faint and fall beneath it in alarm." The dispensations of Providence are mysterious to our finite minds, but he supplies grace to those whose hearts are open to him; then are we enabled to say: "I know my Father knows what is best; some time we will understand." Sam was devoted to those enshrined in his heart; he was continually saying, "Papa, let me do that for you." He was so thoughtful of his mother; if she was ill, he wanted to minister to her needs. What meant so much to her, too, was the loving caresses he failed not to bestow. When his only brother came home from town at night, Sam was first to greet him, and the last to bid him good-by when he departed in the morning. Many hearts are sad because his cheery presence is missed from earth. He gave evidence of a regenerated heart and joined the First Methodist Church, of Baton Rouge, under the ministry of Rev. E. K. Means. He delighted in Bible stories, especially those of Moses and Samuel. He has returned to his Maker with his scroll folded, without spot or blemish. Triumphantly we ask, "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" F. I. W.

AN APPRECIATION.

The subject of this sketch, DE ARCY A. SIMPSON, was born near Keatchie, DeSoto Parish, La., April 9, 1844. His father, J. A. Simpson, was a wealthy planter. His mother, Ann Tharp Simpson, the daughter of a local Methodist preacher, impressed upon the son in his early childhood something of her own faith in God, and confirmed the genuineness of that faith, when at the age of seventeen he was ready to take his place in his command, the 27th Louisiana Regiment. She laid her hand gently on his arm and led him to a quiet retreat in the garden, and there, as they knelt together, she gave him afresh to God and to his country, sending him away to the defense of his country and his home with a mother's benediction His service included the historic siege of Vicksburg. There he was noted for his gallantry, and his four surviving comrades crowned his brow with the chaplet most cherished by a soldier, "the bravest of the brave." His envious record was further honored by a few old Confederate Veterans who attended his last tattoo, by placing the "Stars and Bars" he so gallantly defended on his bosom, that the warrior's banner might rest with the warrior brave.

After the war the family moved to Caddo Parish; here DeArcy became a successful farmer. He was happily married to Miss Mary Jackson, of Austin County, Texas, who was as the keeper of his home and mother of his children always that for which God had made her, an "helpmeet for him." Through the many years the writer was privileged to visit that home as a friend or pastor, he felt it to be one of the sweetest he has ever known. If there ever came a cloud, its bosom was lighted up with the beautiful rainbow or love, good cheer and the promise of brighter days. His home was noted for the hospitality characteristic of ante-belium days. In 1878 or 1879, God took back to himself a beautiful little girl whom he had sent on a mission to that home. On the way back from where they had laid her to rest, the thought came to the father's heart, "She has gone where I can never come;" but the answer came from that manly soul as from David of old, "She cannot come to me, but I can and by the grace of God will go to her."

Soon afterwards he gave his life to God and his service to the Methodist Church, joining at old "Friendship," ever after taking an active and prominent part in all church affairs. During the months of his declining health he was tenderly nursed by his devoted family. Could love and woman's skill have availed, how speedily he would have been restored to health! But he grew weaker from day to day, and as the evening brought lengthening shadows, and the sun sank behind the western hills, leaving a smile in the rich halo of his departing glory, prophetic of a better, more glorious day; so our brother and friend, on Monday, August 7, 1911, left his earthly home and friends near Greenwood, La. On Tuesday afternoon, August 8, the sad procession wended its way through the leafy shades of the quiet country roads to the Greenwood Cemetery, where the writer, a life-long friend and former pastor, assisted by Rev. S. J. Davies, the present pastor, laid him to rest beside the daughter he loved so well, whose going away near three years ago had left such a vacancy in his life. His devoted wife, with four children, Dr. E. E. Simpson, DeArcy A. Simpson, Jr., Mrs. S. A. Alexander and Mrs. A. S. Lutz; one sister, Mrs. Dr. H. S. Dennis, and one brother, Geo. T. Simpson, remain to cherish tenderly the memory of that life which sought their happiness here, "allured to brighter worlds and led the way." His end was peace, and the evening twilight amid the somber shadows of the towering oaks surrounding his grave, will ever sing a requiem: "He sleeps well. Asleep in Jesus; blessed sleep, from which none ever wake to weep."

W. F. HENDERSON.

RANDOLPH-MACON ACADEMY For Boys and Young Men
Fits for college, scientific schools or business. Work endorsed by over 30 colleges and universities. Beautiful and healthful location. Athletic grounds; gymnasium. Terms, $250. No extras. For catalogue, address
E. SUMTER SMITH, Principal, Bedford City, Va.

DR. H. B. BARTLETT
National Dental Parlors
Cor. Canal & Camp Sts.
ENTRANCE 106 CAMP
Phone Main 2193
NEW ORLEANS
Vitalized Air for Painless Extraction
Crown and Bridge Specialist.
The Largest and Best Equipped Dental Parlors South.

GEMS OF THOUGHT ON TITHING Compiled by George W. Brown
A comprehensive statement of the scriptural basis for tithing. A summary of the best that has been spoken and written by 350 prominent laymen and ministers. A compendium of information regarding the experience of individuals and churches in financing the Master's work. Non-sectarian, sane and lucid. Ministers and official laymen who are struggling with the problem of church finance will find much valuable help in this work. One whole chapter on how to do it.
12mo, cloth, 225 pages. Price, 75c (net).
SENT POSTPAID ON RECEIPT OF PRICE BY
JENNINGS & GRAHAM, Publishers
Cincinnati, Chicago, Kansas City, San Francisco
EATON AND MAINS
New York, Boston, Pittsburgh, Detroit
And at Denominational Book Stores

Tidings From the Field

Tiogo, La.:

I wish to write a short letter concerning my work. The revival season has passed with some good meetings. We have had 11 additions since Conference. As the mill here was burned in May, the people all left except a few. However, the mill is being rebuilt now, but will not be as large as formerly. This, of course, has had its effect on the church. Many of the best members left. I have dismissed about 40 by certificate and action of the church conference. My last meeting was held at Liberty Chapel Church. Brother May came Monday and left Thursday. The meeting closed on Thursday night with a sermon by the pastor. Twelve were converted. The people pleaded for the meeting to continue, but we could not go on. I, for one, feel the great need of conference evangelists; three would be needed for the seven districts to be used by the presiding elders.—F. J. McCoy, P. C.

Monticello, Miss.:

Dear Brother Meek: Please allow me a small space in the Advocate to give an account of myself. I have held all my meetings with very good results. The church was greatly revived, and there were several conversions and 16 accessions. The Lord has greatly blessed us this year. We are moving along very nicely with our work. We have an excellent people to serve, and a very appreciative people, too. We hope to make a good report at Conference. We are praying and expecting great things by then, and if the Bishop will let us alone, we expect to do greater things another year. I have just held a meeting at Sandy Hook for Brother Waldrop, which resulted in the breaking up of a blind tiger and one of the men joining the church. The Lord was with us there, for victory was ours. Brother Waldrop is doing good work on the Buford Circuit. I will say while speaking of Sandy Hook, that while there, I visited the old home of "John Ford," where the second Conference was held in Mississippi on Nov. 14, 1814. Samuel Sellers was president and William Winans, secretary. The old house is still standing. Mr. Ford settled there in 1808, making the house 103 years old. It has been owned by Methodists ever since it was built. The material was hand-sawed and hand-dressed. The nails were made in a blacksmith shop. It looks as sound to-day as when put up. It is quite a historic old place. General Jackson had his headquarters there when on his way to the great Battle of New Orleans. He was there three weeks. The old Indian, "Talapoose," was hid in that old building from his own tribe because he befriended the whites when they were threatened by the Indians. I felt that it was a sacred place, and that it was good to be there. All in all, the Lord has been good to us this year. God bless you in your work.—H. E. Carter.

Monticello, Miss., Sept. 5, 1911.

Arkabutla, Miss.:

Dear Brother Meek: I will now send you a short account of our summer's work on Arkabutla Circuit. We began our first meeting on the fourth Sunday in July. Brother J. B. Randolph, of Como, was with us and did some excellent preaching. The result was thirteen accessions to the church, nine of them on profession of faith. Brother Duncan, of Batesville, was with us in our next meeting, and preached with great earnestness some great sermons, but the congregations were small. The result was two accessions to the church. In our third meeting, which was at Arkabutla, we had with us that tireless worker, Brother S. L. Pope, of Senatobia, but on account of the continuous rain and mud, the people could not attend with any regularity. However, those that heard him got an uplift. Two persons joined the church. We have just closed our fourth meeting with good results, considering the fact that there were so many sick ones in the community. Brother W. V. Shearer did the preaching. He was merciless in his denunciation of sin, and earnest and tireless in his efforts to hold up Jesus Christ, the Redeemer. Six came into the church on profession of faith, and there were also other conversions and reclamations. We have one other meeting to hold on the charge. Pray for us, that God may open the hearts of the people to receive his gospel. Notwithstanding the political excitement, we have had more people to come into the church than came in last year when the revival season was over. Yet, I am not satisfied so long as there is a sinner left in the church or out of it. Oh, for a baptism of the Holy Ghost, that the church may do the work that Christ commanded it to do.—A. F. Moore, P. C.

"IT IS BEAUTIFUL."

The passers-by cannot help making the remark, "it is beautiful," when they behold the roses, lilies, and many other beautiful flowers too numerous to mention, sending their fragrance out to sweeten the air they breathe as they drive by our church at Oloh.

This beautiful flower garden was planted many years ago by "Grandmother Lott," and she takes pleasure every spring in replanting and beautifying it. She is one of those who wants in some way to make the path of the wayfarer pleasant.

Sister Lott is a dutiful member of our church here in Oloh, and though reaching the seventies, she can be found in her flower garden in front of the church most any day. That God's grace may make her life pleasant as she nears the end of her earthly journey, is the prayer of her host of friends. A FRIEND.

Use the L. & A. Railway

When you travel go via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY, The Road That Is Always on Time. FIRST-CLASS EQUIPMENT; Gravel Ballasted Track; 75 Pound Steel Rails; The Best of Service in Every Respect. Double Daily Passenger Service; Two Trains Each Way Daily.

OUR FREIGHT SERVICE IS UNEXCELLED.

When you order or ship freight if you want quick and satisfactory service, instruct your shipments routed via the LOUISIANA & ARKANSAS RAILWAY. Our motto is "EVER ON TIME."

F. W. GREEN, General Superintendent. Stamps, Ark.

B. S. ATKINSON, Gen. Frt. and Pass. Agt., Texarkana, Ark.

LOUISIANA RAILWAY
(La. R'y & Nav. Co.)

THE SHORT LINE BETWEEN

Shreveport; Alexandria; Baton Rouge; New Orleans.

THE COMFORTABLE ROUTE FOR PASSENGERS
QUICKEST ROUTE FOR FREIGHT

LESS THAN CARLOAD SHIPMENTS HAULED IN PACKAGE CARS IN THROUGH TRAINS.

STANDARD OF QUALITY
FOR EVERY FARM POWER NEED

For running the cream separator, churn, feed cutter, wood-saw, fanning mill, thresher, pump, grindstone, electric lighting plant, washing machine—any farm machine to which power can be applied—an I H C gasoline engine is the best investment you can make. It will work steadily and economically, it will last for years, and require less attention and repairing than any other engine made.

The record of I H C engines on thousands of farms is proof positive of their superiority. Their advantages in simplicity, strength, economy, efficiency, and durability are well known.

IHC Gasoline Engines

are built right—of the best materials obtainable—by skilled workmen, in the finest equipped engine factories in America.

When you buy an I H C you know it must be right in order to maintain the I H C reputation for highest quality.

In the I H C line there is an engine that meets your special needs. They are made in the following styles and sizes.

Vertical type—2, 3, 25, and 35-H. P.; horizontal—1 to 25-H. P.; semi-portable—1 to 8-H. P.; portable—1 to 25-H. P.; traction—12 to 45-H. P.; sawing, pumping, spraying, and grinding outfits, etc. Built to operate on gas, gasoline, kerosene, distillate, or alcohol—air-cooled or water-cooled. See the I H C local dealer, or, write us today for our new catalogue.

International Harvester Company of America
Chicago (Incorporated) U S A

IHC Service Bureau

The bureau is a center where the best ways of doing things on the farm, and data relating to its development are collected and distributed free to everyone interested in agriculture. Every available source of information will be used in answering questions on all farm subjects. Questions sent to the I H C Service Bureau will receive prompt attention.

Death Lurks In A Weak Heart

If Yours is fluttering or weak, use "RENOVINE." Made by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Co., Memphis, Tenn. Price $1.00

The Sunday School.

LOUISIANA NOTES.

By Rev. P. O. Lowrey.

At Vivian a Home Department has been organized with Mrs. Row Crawford as superintendent, and a Cradle Roll with Mrs. R. T. McDuff, superintendent.

* * *

At Campti a Home Department with Mrs. J. R. Adams, proprietress of the Mill Company's hotel, as superintendent, has been organized, and a Cradle Roll with Misses Margie Hammett and Jo Mayben, superintendents. Money is being raised also for a $2.50 blackboard and a wall map of Palestine.

* * *

In the absence of a suitable man for superintendent, the Campti Sunday school is fortunate in having a capable woman in the person of Mrs. W. L. Bishop, who leads with intelligent zeal a well organized and growing body of consecrated teachers and pupils. Plans are on foot for a big rally day program and for installing the graded literature, an elementary department, a teacher training class, organizing the adult classes, etc.

* * *

Mr. T. S. Matthews, the "woods foreman" of the Brown Lumber Co., of Shamrock, La., has been chosen superintendent of the Robeline Sunday school. Having been his pastor some years since and tried his fidelity as a steward and loyal member generally, I expect prosperity to characterize his administration as a leader in the Sunday school. The same business methods and judgment used in managing his department of saw mill work will insure a successful Sunday school leadership. The Robeline Sunday school is planning a Rally Day, at which time the Sunday school is to be graded, a teacher training class inaugurated with Mr. F. S. Matthews as leader, a young people's Bible class with Mr. Charlie Yarbrough as teacher, a home department with Miss Allie Hughes, superintendent, and a cradle roll with Mrs. L. G. Greer, superintendent. A nice nucleus for a teachers' library has been secured and plans are on foot to repair the church.

* * *

The writer had a pleasant experience at Campti recently in meeting a young lady who fifteen years ago joined the church at six years of age in a revival meeting he held at Davis' Springs. After a children's service and several days of protracted meeting, the church doors were opened and as others came forward this little girl walked back to a kinslady and whispered in her ear and then turned to the preacher and stood with the others who were being received into the church, answering the vows with as much seeming intelligence as they. Now, after these fifteen intervening years, to meet this same once little disciple in the person of Miss Mae Hammett, the church organist, the teacher of the Junior Sunday school class, the newly elected superintendent of the elementary department and teacher in the Campti High School, makes a pastor's heart glad and strengthens the faith to believe that we shall reap in one season, if we faint not in well doing.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE NOTES.

By Rev. B. F. Lewis.

Do not forget that the first Sunday in October is Promotion Day. Many of the little folks have been looking forward to this day for months. Do not disappoint them. Let it be the greatest day of the year.

* * *

The Sunday school at Morton is being graded, will put in three years of the graded lessons this fall, and introduce other helpful features.

* * *

Lindsay Chapel has a small Sunday school, but is doing good work, introducing, as far as is practicable, the best features of work. A Home Department and separate rooms are planned.

* * *

Brandon is an old town, more intimately connected with State and Church history than one would think. A charming community! The Sunday school (Rev. O. S Lewis, pastor, and W. G. Barnes, superintendent) is graded and using the new course of study.

* * *

Rev. M. M. Black, at Philadelphia, has a large Sunday school, well organized, with separate class rooms, and is preparing to introduce every feature of the up-to-date Sunday school as rapidly as possible. Philadelphia overlooks the valleys, and will be a light set on a hill.

* * *

The monthly report of our field secretary is on our table. It summarizes as follows: Number of miles traveled, 1,222; schools visited, 16; schools introducing cradle rolls, 12; home departments, 14; organized classes, 10; teachers' training courses, 2; graded or grading, 10; new course of study, 9; providing separate class rooms, 21. This closes the three months' campaign planned early in the year. We regret to give Miss Magee up, but other duties call imperatively, and we must yield. We take this opportunity of expressing our great appreciation of the faithful and efficient work done. We are sure our pastors and superintendents voice this sentiment.

NEWS AND NOTES.

By Miss Elizabeth Kilpatrick.

There are 20,950 adult Bible classes, with a membership of nearly a million.

* * *

Thirty-four thousand Home Daily Bible Readings have been issued during the past year.

* * *

"The Christian home is the only foundation upon which we can build an everlasting Christianity."

* * *

More than 18,500 of the blue and white Advanced or Secondary Division buttons have been sent out by the International office.

* * *

The Adult Bible Class teacher's chance is to set the current of the soul toward God and the service of the hand toward his brother man.

* * *

Religion is not a lot of things a man does, but a new life he lives; not a thing for weak souls, but a thing for the manliest soul. Just because of its manliness it is easy.

* * *

English statistics show that 90% of a child's actions are due to imitation or example—hence the character, manner and heart of a child's teacher should nearly approximate the ideal.

* * *

Out of our ninety million people, there are twenty million who go to church regularly, and twenty more million who go irregularly. Are we a religious people, in the real sense of the word?

* * *

Calmness is a fine attribute of the really successful Bible class. Such classes, like most boats, sail best on an even keel. Some teachers bring this spirit of peace and deliberation as they enter the room.

* * *

Bishop Hughes says: "There is no automatic machinery to do the teaching work of the Sunday school for us. Christ won the world by way of the cross, and if we wish to win this world, we must all bear our crosses. There is no easy way to reach children in the teen age."

* * *

"It is almost better to be lost than to be saved all alone; and it is a wrong to one's kind to wish to be wise without making others share our wisdom. It is an illusion to suppose that any one can think at all except by means of the general store of thought, accumulated and refined by centuries of cultivation and experience."

* * *

Canada is foremost in the manner of educating her Sunday school teachers. The subject is taken up in the normal schools there, and those who are qualifying as public school teachers take up a course in preparation for Sunday school teaching as a part of their work. A certificate given them for proficiency in this work is considered by public school trustees when the teachers apply for a school.

* * *

Miss Golding's Adult Bible Class at Walthal is increasing finely. Twenty-six were present last Sabbath, out of an enrollment of twenty-nine. Their first social meeting was a real success. Miss Golding presented a Testament to the class member reciting best a certain choice passage of Scripture. This taking of time by young men to learn and recite the inspiring and helpful Word of God, and also taking pride in delivering it well at a social function, is one of the most helpful signs of the times.

* * *

The secretary of an Adult class is an officer of strategic importance. Some one must look after the machinery, and this offical, as he makes out the weekly reports, can follow up through correspondence, telephone and personal calls, delinquent or sick and needy members, and can keep the teacher well informed as to attendance, helpful criticism and suggestions. This secretary can and must do many things not on any program, provided he is sensitive to conditions, tactful in emergencies, and keen to discern the signs of the times.

A REMARKABLE WOMAN.

Old age, after all, is not a thing to be looked forward to with fear and trembling, as the majority of us are inclined to do; that is, if old age is to deal as leniently with us as it has with Mrs. Francis P. Bowers, of Laneville, Texas.

While Mrs. Bowers is a remarkable woman, and unusually well preserved, there is no reason why everybody should not be equally so. Mrs. Bowers is now in her seventy-sixth year, is the mother of eleven children, the oldest being fifty odd years of age and the youngest thirty. She does all of her own house work, washing and ironing, works her own garden and flowers and attends to her chickens; can sew with a fine needle without glasses and walks three miles a day.

Mrs. Bowers attributes her present remarkable good health to the use of W. H. Bull's Herbs and Iron and justly so, because it is the very best blood purifier in the world to-day, and has been for the past thirty years. W. H. Bull's Herbs and Iron makes pure blood, invigorates the nerves, restores all organs to normal health, insures proper digestion, creates a hearty appetite, is laxative in its effects and can be had from your druggist in 50c and $1.00 size bottles.

Get a $1.00 bottle of W. H. Bull's Herbs and Iron and if you can't see any improvement in your general health after using two-thirds of it, return the remainder to your druggist and he will refund your money on the whole bottle.

If your druggist's supply is exhausted ask him to order it for you from his jobber.

Foley Kidney Pills

TONIC IN ACTION—QUICK IN RESULTS.

Give prompt relief from BACKACHE, KIDNEY and BLADDER TROUBLE, RHEUMATISM, CONGESTION of the KIDNEYS, INFLAMMATION of the BLADDER and all annoying URINARY IRREGULARITIES. A positive boon to MIDDLE AGED and ELDERLY PEOPLE and for WOMEN. The dollar bottle contains 2 1-2 times as much as the 50c. For sale by all dealers or postpaid on receipt of price.

ARE YOU A WOMAN?

Baltimore, Md.—Mrs. W. H. Ison, at 1419 East Madison street, writes, "For several years, I suffered, off and on, from female troubles, until finally I was taken down and could do nothing. The pains I experienced, I shall never forget. I lost weight till I was only skin and bones. I believe I would have been in my grave, if I had not tried Cardui. I shall praise it as long as I live." Many women, like Mrs. Ison, are weak and discouraged, on account of some painful ailments. Are you one of these sufferers? Cardui will help you. Try it to-day. Any druggist.

BEST THING MADE

April 28, 1910, Dothan, Ala.
I began handling Johnston's Tonic in Blakely, Ga., in 1884. In 1892, moved to Dothan, Ala. Have sold more than 1000 bottles. Use it in my family for Colds, Fever and La Grippe. In all the years I have been selling it, never had but 2 complaints. Both parties admitted afterwards they had not used it right.
H. Q. FRAZIER.

April 13, 1910, Greenwood, S. C.
I have used Johnson's Tonic in my family for 9 years. It is all you claim for it and more too. It cured me of Typhus Hemorrhagic Fever. I would have been under the sod 9 years ago but for JOHNSON'S. Tell this to the world. It may save some man's life.
A. P. ALDRICH.

Drives every trace and taint of Malarial Poison from the Blood.

Epworth League Department.

(Conducted by Rev. H. B. Watkins, Magnolia, Miss., to whom all communications concerning League matters should be addressed.)

TOPIC FOR SEPTEMBER 17, 1911.

THE PERILS OF SPIRITUAL IGNORANCE.

Rom. x, 1-1; II Pet. iii; 16.

(Bible Study Rally Day)

1. The Peril of Personal Failure. This is Bible Study Rally Day, and we plead for close attention to the Holy Scriptures for two reasons. The first is the personal danger that comes from the perversion of the truth. Peter tells us that the ignorant and unsteadfast wrest the Scriptures unto their own destruction. Every age has furnished examples of this. We see to-day some who with evil skill are continually making the Bible a defense for wicked practices and unholy ambitions. None of us are secure from failure, except through the truth which God has given to us; and our own spiritual safety demands that we give special heed to the Bible and its teachings.

2. The Peril of Misleading Others. The other reason for Bible study is the danger of our leading others into falsehood and error. The amount of false teaching that overlies the truth is appalling, and a part of our work to-day is to free the Scriptures from this incubus. But the greater part of this error has come about through ignorance and the passing on from one to another of that which is erroneous. Men accept statements and do not attempt to verify them. A little searching of the Word would show how false some of these interpretations are. We need familiarity with the Bible, that we may not become channels through which false doctrine shall perpetuate itself.

3. The Way of Escape. Such perils as we have looked at we may escape through an honest endeavor to know and understand the Holy Scriptures. If false doctrine has come through the perversion of the Bible, the way to correct the error is to give more of the Scriptures. The way to make true interpreters of the Bible is to give the Bible to everybody. Its power lies in the character of its teachings. It is inspired of God, and it is profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness. Let us in the Epworth League, whatever else we do, see that we become better acquainted with the divine Word.

Rev. C. A. Battle, of Lafayette, La., "organized an enthusiastic band of young people into a League chapter on the evening of Sept. 10. Thirty-five were present and joined. There is promise of great success."

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE EPWORTH LEAGUE.

By Mrs. T. B. Clifford.

The ninth annual session of the Mississippi Conference League met at Seashore Campground, Biloxi, Miss., July 21-23. What a disappointment that more of our Leaguers did not take advantage of this opportunity to get the benefit of hearing trained workers along all lines! Great emphasis was placed upon evangelistic work, which was in charge of Miss Davies and Mrs. Moody. The study of missions (Home and Foreign) conducted by Dr. Rawlings and Mrs. O'Beirne; the Bible studies in Old Testament, conducted by Dr. F. S. Parker, and in the New Testament, by Dr. C. P. Atkinson, of Greensboro, Ala., were very interesting. We also had Mr. Locke, of Birmingham, Ala., and our own Mrs. A. F. Watkins, on League methods. We also had Sunday school work under Messrs. Holt and Lowrey of Louisiana. Miss Granbery, of Jackson, Miss., had charge of the children. We should have had a representative from each League in the Mississippi Conference, and each Junior superintendent should have been present. Now, please plan to send the best worker you have next year to get the training.

On Friday afternoon, July 21, at 3.30, the following met under the beautiful new Tabernacle to transact the business and plan for next year's work. Only three officers were present: Mr. Clifford R. Field, first vice-president; Miss Laura Rankin, second vice-president; Mrs. T. B. Clifford, Junior Superintendent. After prayer by Rev. L. E. Alford, of Sumrall, Mr. Clifford Field took the chair, and called Mrs. Clifford to act as secretary, and the following names were enrolled: Rev. Robt. Selby, Moss Point; Rev. L. E. Alford, Sumrall; Rev. C. N. Guice, Summit; Dr. F. S. Parker, Nashville; Mr. Clifford R. Field, Natchez; Mr. C. S. Elliott, Meyersville; Mr. C. M. Allen, Silver Creek; Mr. A. R. Campbell, Sumrall; Miss Laura Rankin, Gulfport; Mrs. Florence Granbery, Jackson; Mrs. Kittie Cottrell, Port Gibson; Mrs. Mary Francis Muse, Yazoo City; Mrs. T. B. Clifford, Yazoo City; Mr. A. F. Watkins, Hattiesburg.

After this enrollment, the acting president, Mr. Clifford Field, made a fine report as first vice-president, showing excellent work done all over the Conference. The president moved away in the middle of the League year; so Mr. Field has labored under some disadvantage, but he has done fine work.

The second vice-president reported that it had been almost impossible to get responses to her letters, and therefore, had very little to report.

No report was made from the third vice-president.

The fourth vice-president made a report as to the missionary money collected, but none as to mission study.

The Junior Superintendent reported 36 Leagues, a membership of 1095, and 2 new Leagues just organized. Had written 40 or more letters and postals with gratifying results.

Only one District Secretary made a report, and that was Mr. A. P. Holt, of Jackson District. He showed the district well organized. A very successful district meeting had been held last September at Florence. A very pleasing feature of his report was a correct list of all Junior and Senior Leagues in his district, with their presidents and Junior superintendents.

A very fine report was also read from the delegate to the Assembly at the Campground last year, but it was too late to do any good. It should have been published or scattered among the Mississippi Conference Leagues in time to have influenced them to attend this Conference.

The treasurer also sent an itemized report, but it was turned over to the new treasurer; therefore, I have no new items to report.

We were delighted to have with us our General Secretary, Dr. F. S. Parker, who made a talk on the importance of quarterly reports.

After some little discussion, Rev. Robert Selby moved that the local chapters send quarterly reports to the District Secretaries, by whom the several items shall be transmitted to the proper Conference officers. This motion prevailed and was tabulated in the policy.

A motion also prevailed that the $25 held by the treasurer on the Korean fund he paid, and the new treasurer instructed to complete the amount.

The following committees were then appointed:

Nominations—Mrs. A. F. Watkins, Miss Laura Rankin, and Rev. L. E. Alford.

Policy—Mrs. T. B. Clifford, Mrs. A. F. Watkins, and C. S. Eliott.

Publication—The president and secretary.

A motion prevailed that a directory be published, and the matter was left entirely with the publication committee.

The next Conference will be held at Silver Creek, Aug. 8-11, 1912. A full attendance is urged and the following policy recommended and adopted for another year.

Policy.

1. That the League Chapters of the Mississippi Conference adopt the Cuban Mission as an object of special support, and that this Conference commit itself to raising not less than $1,000 for this purpose.

2. That every chapter organize a class for the study of the Cuban Mission field, using as a text-book, "Advance in the Antilles;" and, if possible, a second course in "Conservation of National Ideals."

3. That each District Secretary be charged with the responsibility of holding district institutes or conferences within his district, giving especial attention to personal work, and the missionary policy of the League.

4. That it be the duty of each chapter secretary to send a quarterly report to the District Secretary, by whom its several items shall be transmitted to the proper Conference officers.

5. That the Conference, through its Junior Leagues, commit itself to raising $50 to aid in the employment of a Junior League secretary, to be under the direction of the central office.

6. That we heartily endorse the Seashore Assembly, and recommend that our Leaguers attend its sessions and avail themselves of its opportunities.

7. That the Conference League hold its next session during August 8-11, 1912, and that a special effort be made to make it as inspirational as possible.

8. That the Executive Committee begin at once to prepare for the next annual session by the appointment of committees and making all necessary arrangements.

9. That the publication committee provide all the Conference officers with printed stationery, giving prominence to the organization and the coming Conference.

A motion prevailed that this policy be published in the Era and New Orleans Advocate.

The officers elected for the coming year are: President, Mr. Clifford R. Field, Natchez; first vice-president, Mr. C. H. Poythress, Meridian; second vice-president, Miss Laura Rankin, Gulfport; third vice-president, Bertie Mitchell, Laurel; fourth vice-president, Rev. H. B. Watkins, Magnolia; secretary, Mr. A. P. Holt, Vicksburg; treasurer, Augustus Campbell, Sumrall; Era Agent, Miss Maggie Crawford, Hattiesburg; Junior Superintendent, Mrs. T. B. Clifford, Yazoo City. Miss Bertie Mitchell, of Laurel, was chosen as the representative to the Christian Workers' Assembly at Seashore Camp Ground for 1912.

The following Senior and Junior Leagues sent reports to this Conference:

Seniors—Central, Meridian; Lumberton, Montrose, Silver Creek, Kingston, Laurel, and Port Gibson.

Juniors—Fayette, Silver Creek, Yazoo City, Port Gibson, Lumberton, Wesson, Richton, Kingston, Laurel, and Biloxi.

BOY SCOUTS DOING USEFUL THINGS.

Edward Spanhoofd, teacher in St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H., and Scoutmaster, registered with the Boy Scouts of America, has got the boys interested in clearing and conquering brown tail moths. Prominent citizens of Concord, who are interested in forestry, gladly have furnished the money to pay the boys, and already thousands of the moths' nests have been destroyed.

The Boy Scouts of Chicago are aiding the city authorities in a fight against the tussock moth. J. H. Prost, city forester of Chicago, has made arrangements with H. H. Simmons, field secretary of the Boy Scouts of America, by which the boys will be organized into a systematic search for the pests. The boys will be supplied with handsprayers and will hunt for the insects and the cocoons on the trunks of the trees.

The Boy Scouts in Jersey are fighting the mosquitoes. Out in Kansas they are trying to clear off the flies. In New Hampshire and Ohio the Scouts are doing everything possible to protect the birds. In almost every State in the Union they are planting trees. Boys like to help the firemen and the police, and in various cities the chiefs of police, realizing that a boy's help is much better than his annoyance, are training the boys in police work and various activities. The firemen are training the boys how to act quickly in case of fire, and many instances have been recorded of the catching of thieves and the saving of lives of people by Boy Scouts.—New York Christian Advocate.

WILBUR R. SMITH BUSINESS COLLEGE
Refers to 25 years' experience, 10,000 Graduates in business, and award of World's Fair Medal. Bookkeeping and Business, Shorthand, Typewriting and Telegraphy taught. Notes received. Situations. Begin now.
Address WILBUR R. SMITH, Lexington, Kentucky.

QUEEN & CRESCENT ROUTE

Best & Quickest Service

TO ALL IMPORTANT DESTINATIONS

In the North & East

Summer Tourist Tickets now on Sale to all Mountain, Lake and Seaside Resorts.

—Ticket Office—
211 ST. CHARLES STREET
Phone Main 4482

Terminal Station---Canal Street

VISIT
MINERAL WELLS
—FOR—
HEALTH AND PLEASURE
AND
WEST TEXAS
—For—
FINE AGRICULTURAL LANDS.
REACHED VIA

THE TEXAS T&P PACIFIC RAILWAY

EXCURSION TICKETS ON SALE DAILY.
Free Booklet.

E. P. TURNER,
General Passenger Agent,
DALLAS TEXAS

It's not always temper—

That causes a horse to balk. It may be a Sore Shoulder, a Bruise or a Strain—maybe Colic or Bots. Dr. Tichenor's Antiseptic cures all of these troubles.

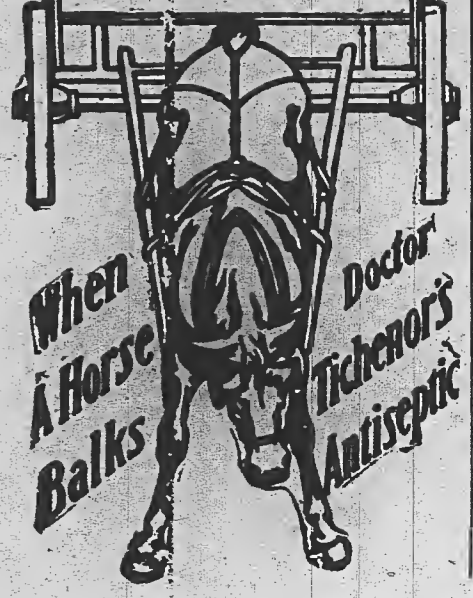
AT ALL DRUGGISTS
25 and 50 Cents
Also in quart bottles.



INFIDEL BOOKS.

By E. B. Partin, M.D.

Should Christians read infidel books? Mr. Spurgeon said he was asked sometimes to read a heretical or infidel book. "Well," said he, "if I believed my reading it would help its refutation, and might be an assistance to others in keeping them out of error, I might do it as a hard matter of duty; but I shall not do it unless I see some good will come from it. I am not going to drag my spirit through a ditch for the sake of having it washed afterward, for it is not my own. It may be that good medicine would restore me if I poisoned myself with putrid meat, but I am not going to try it. I dare not experiment on a mind which no longer belongs to me. There is a mother and a child, and the child has a book to play with and a black lead pencil. It is making drawings and marks upon the book and the mother takes no notice. It lays down one book and snatches another from the table, and at once the mother rises from her seat and hurriedly takes the book away, saying: 'No, my dear, you must not mark that, for it is not ours.' So with my mind (intellect and spirit); if it belonged to me, I might or might not play tomfool with it, and go to hear infidels and such like preach, but as it is not my own I will preserve it from such fooleries, and the pure Word of God shall not be mingled with the errors of men." "Every age," says the same writer, "produces a new crop of heretics and infidels. Just as the current of the times may run, so doth the stream of infidelity change its direction. We have lived long enough, some of us, to see three or four species of atheists and deists rise and die, for they are short-lived, an ephemeral generation. We have seen the Church attacked by weapons borrowed from geology, ethnology and anatomy, and then from the schools of criticism fierce warriors have issued; but she survives all her antagonists. She has been assailed from almost every quarter, but the fears that tarry in the church to-day are blown to the winds to-morrow; yea, the church has been enriched by the attacks, for her divines have set to work to study the points that were dubious, to strengthen the walls that seemed a little weak, and so her towers have been strengthened and her bulwarks consolidated."

Reading good books is like being in good company; it does us good. And reading bad books is like associating with bad company; they do us harm. And so Mr. Wesley realized the helpfulness of reading good books, when he forbade "the taking such diversions and the reading of those books which do not tend to the knowledge and love of God."

Chunkey, Miss.

FROM BROTHER GORDON.

Dear Brother Meek: The Lord hath done great things for us, whereof we are glad. We closed a meeting at Columbia on Sept. 3, resulting in settling differences among some of the people, the establishing of several family altars, a revival in Sunday school work, an increase of the circulation of the Conference organ, and the addition of 36 members to the church. Truly, it was a great meeting, and one of the greatest blessings to my sad and lonely heart I have ever experienced.

Brother Thos. H. Lipscomb, of Lexington, did the preaching from the first service to and including the Friday night following, and it was well done. His trumpet never once gave an uncertain sound. I have never heard the fundamental doctrines and principles of the gospel of Jesus Christ proclaimed with greater clearness, force and power than was done by him. What we need above all things in this age of skepticism is to cling with unwavering faith and fervent zeal to the truth as revealed in the Word of God. And just to the extent we drift from this divine guide will we fail in the accomplishment of the high purposes of our ministry. Brother Lipscomb is sound in his views on the great vital truths of our holy religion and is not afraid to preach them, and the best of all is, he has a genuine conscious experience of salvation. We have one other meeting to hold, and I am confidently expecting success.

I wish to thank all the brethren who have assisted me so brotherly and sympathizingly since the ascension of my precious wife. They are so sweet and comforting to my sad and lonely heart. These letters have come from Mississippi, Tennessee, Arkansas and Louisiana. Heaven is sweeter and nearer to me than ever before. It will be glorious when we meet in heaven.

G. W. GORDON.

Vaiden, Miss., Sept. 5, 1911.

BOHNE & WILT, Booksellers and Stationers, 1328 Dryades St., New Orleans, La. Base Ball Goods, Religious Articles, Fishing Tackle, Periodicals, School Books.

DEATH OF SISTER GORDON.

On the morning of August 15, I was called upon to go with Brother G. W. Gordon to assist in the burial of his wife. At Oxford, we were joined by Brother J. C. Park, who went on with us and joined in the burial service. After long continued suffering, Sister Gordon passed away about 2 a.m., Tuesday, Aug. 15, 1911, at Vaiden, Miss., where she had made her home since the last session of the North Mississippi Conference. She was buried at 10:30 a.m., at Saltillo, her old home, where numerous friends and relatives joined in tribute of love and sorrow.

She was a most gentle and lovable Christian woman, loved and honored by all who knew her. She was ever interested in the work of the church and was a true and faithful coworker with her husband in his ministerial labors. She labored with him thirty-three years. This tells what is his loss in the severing of the holy relations so long continued. In his sore bereavement, let us give him our love and sympathy.

N. G. AUGUSTUS.

Durant, Miss.

TO DRIVE OUT MALARIA AND BUILD UP THE SYSTEM.

Take the Old Standard GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILL TONIC. You know what you are taking. The formula is plainly printed on every bottle, showing it is simply Quinine and Iron in a tasteless form, and the most effectual form. For grown people and children, 50c.

TEN CENTS NOW

Many more people want Ice Cream than we expected, and the price of

JELL-O Ice Cream Powder

has been reduced from 15 cents to 10 cents a package, so that everybody can have it.

Now you can make the most delicious ice cream for 9 cents a quart or 36 cents a gallon with Jell-O Ice Cream Powder.

Vanilla, Lemon, Strawberry and Chocolate Flavors, and Unflavored, as desired.

Each kind 10 cents a package at grocers'.

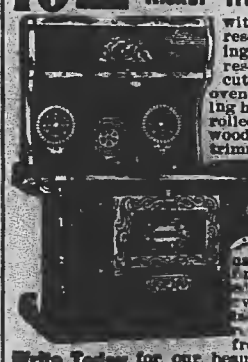
Beautiful Recipe Book Free.

The Genesee Pure Food Co., Le Roy, N. Y.

Fits We want every person suffering with fits to write for a sample bottle of our remedy, and booklet. Sent by mail FREE. Try it at our expense.
DR. TOWNS MEDICAL CO., Fond du Lac, Wis.

DROPSY Treated. Quick relief. Removes swelling and short breath in a few days, usually gives entire relief in 15 to 45 days and effects cure 30 to 60 days. Write for trial treatment Free. Dr. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box X, ATLANTA, GA.

10.95 Buys This Large, Handsome Nickel Trimmed Steel Range



without warming closet or reservoir. With high warming closet, porcelain lined reservoir, just as shown in cut, $17.75; large, square, oven, wonderful baker, 6 cooking holes, body made of cold rolled steel. Duplex grate; burns wood or coal. Handsome nickel trimmings, highly polished.

OUR TERMS are the most liberal ever made. You can pay after you receive the range. You can take it into your home, use it 30 days. If you don't find it exactly as represented, the biggest bargain you ever saw equal to stoves retailed for double our price, return it to us. We will pay freight both ways.

Write Today for our beautifully illustrated Stove Catalog No. 311 41; a postal card will do. 150 styles to select from. Don't buy until you get it.
MARVIN SMITH & CO., CHICAGO, ILL.

Secure and Profitable

These essentials of a good investment are combined in

5% Gold Bonds
Paying Interest of 5%

Guaranteed for 10 years, payable every 6 months in coupons attached, which can be collected through your local bank, convertible into cash before that time if you wish. Issued in denominations of $100.00 and $1,000.00 and fully protected by the entire resources of the bank.

Write for full details and booklet.
GUARANTEE TRUST & BANKING CO.
Capital Stock $500,000.00. Atlanta, Ga.

A buggy that's rain-proof —wind-tight in 30 seconds

With three, simple, one-hand movements, in just thirty seconds time, this light, easy-pulling buggy can be made a wind-tight, rain-proof Cozy Cab.

Inside it's light and roomy, with a special ventilating system to provide plenty of air without draft. And you have a good view of the road on all sides.

Sent anywhere for thirty days' free trial and fully guaranteed.

Write today for our catalogue and factory-to-buyer prices. 16 models—$67.50 up—25 per cent less than dealers prices.

This is the only factory that makes the Cozy Cab. We sell direct to you.

Write today for our big, free catalogue and free trial offer.

Fouts & Hunter Carriage Mfg. Co.
Dept. C A 2
Terre Haute, Ind.

BETTER PARSONAGES NEEDED.

We have a Laymen's Movement. Why not have a parsonage movement? Is there any material thing more needful within the bounds of our own North Mississippi Conference? Ask yourself a few questions and see.

Is your pastor's home one to which you can point with pride and say, "there is our pastor's home?" Does it compare favorably with the homes of those he serves? Is it convenient and comfortable? Is it decently furnished, screened and ventilated? Has it been neatly fenced, and is it located where there are congenial neighbors? or are there some of another color next door, or are the neighbors of the kind that a decent negro would be more desirable? In some of our wealthiest towns the parsonages are a disgrace to the people. Still they think it is good enough. If any do not believe this, just go to a dozen or two of our parsonage homes, and if you don't see sights to make you weep in sympathy for the inmates, your heart is indeed hard.

We do not ask for palatial residences, but we do ask for neat and inexpensive cottages, built with an eye to comfort and convenience, kept fresh by painting often, etc. Well, really any one knows how nice it would be to move into a nice, well-cared for home when Conference says, "Go," instead of having to take our trunks to some of the old, dilapidated shacks we learn to love by the love that dwells thereln. I'm quite sure we could do better work were we better cared for by our people. Hoping your pride will come to our ald and provide homes of which we will not be ashamed, I am,

A MINISTER'S WIFE.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES.

MISSISSIPPI CONFERENCE.

Seashore Dist.—Fourth Round.

Howlson and Saucier, at Lyman .....Sept. 24, Nov. 23
Columbia ..... Oct. 1, .Nov. 20
Brooklyn and Bond, at Brooklyn ....Oct. 4
Americus, at Salem .....Oct. 7, 8
Hub, at Hub .....Oct. 14, 15
Mentorum, at Pine G....Oct. 20
Vancleave, at New Prospect ....Oct. 21, 22
Gulfport, 29th St.....Oct. 25
Lumberton ....Oct. 29, Nov. 20
Mississippi City .....Nov. 1
Poplarville ....Nov. 5, 18
Pascagoula ....Nov. 10
Moss Point .....Nov. 11, 12
Escatawpa, at Escatawpa.Nov. 11, 12
Biloxi, Main St.....Nov. 15
Derby, at Derby .....Nov. 7
Carriere and McNeil, at Carriere ....Nov. 18, 19
Oakvale, at Oakville ....Nov. 21
Long Beach .....Nov. 22, Dec. 2
Wolf River Mission 10 a.m.Nov. 23
Coalville ....Nov. 24
Bay St. Louis .....Nov. 25, 26
Logton ....Nov. 27
Gulfport, 25th Ave..Nov. 29, Dec. 2
McHenry and Wiggins, at Wiggins ....Nov. 30

W. B. JONES, P. E.

Meridian Dist.—Fourth Round.
(In Part.)

Meridian, East End.....Sept. 24
Meridian, South Side.a.m..Oct. 1
Meridian, Central ..p.m...Oct. 1
Scooba, at Scooba.....Oct. 4
Clara, at Boice .....Oct. 7, 8
Shubuta and Quitman, at Quitman ....Oct. 15, 16
Meridian, 5th St..a.m....Oct. 22
Meridian, 7th Ave..p.m..Oct. 22
Enterprise and Stonewall, at Enterprise .....Oct. 25
Matherville, at Andrew's Chapel ....Oct. 28, 29

W. H. LEWIS, P. E.

Newton Dist.—Fourth Round.
(In Part.)

Rose Hill, at Pleasant Grove ..Mon .....Sept. 25
Chunkey, at C....Wed..Sept. 27
Montrose, at Montrose....Oct. 7, 8
Decatur, at D..Wed.....Oct. 11
Homewood, at Carr Ch....Oct. 14, 15
Walnut Grove, at Zion.Fri.Oct. 20
Carthage, at Bethel.....Oct. 21, 22
Bay Spgs. at P. Hill.....Oct. 28, 29
Hickory, at Hickory.Wed.Nov. 1
Pachuta, at Adams Chp..Nov. 4, 5

Let the pastors be prepared to answer Questions 30 and 31, and see that Question 32 is properly answered.

T. J. O'NEIL, P. E.

Port Gibson Dist.—Fourth Round.

Port Gibson .....Oct. 7, 8.
Vicksburg, Crawford St..Oct. 15
Silver City, at Midnight...Oct. 21, 22
Sunflower, at Bethel.....Oct. 24
Angulla, at A.....Oct. 25
Rolling Fork, at R. F.....Oct. 26
Utica, at U.....Oct. 28, 29
Fayette ....Oct. 30
Hamburg, at H.....Oct. 31
Nebo, at Providence.....Nov. 4, 5
Washington, at W.....Nov. 8, 11
Natchez, Jefferson St.....Nov. 12
Natchez, Pearl St .....Nov. 12, 13
Centreville, at C.....Nov. 18, 19
Woodville ....Nov. 20
Wilkinson, at ———.....Nov. 21
Gloster ....Nov. 22
Homochitto, at ———....Nov. 23
Oak Ridge, at ———....Nov. 25, 26
Vicksburg, Washington St.Nov. 26
Mayersville, at Fitlers....Nov. 27
Rocky Spgs, at ———....Dec. 1
Hermanville, at ———....Dec. 2
Harriston, at ———.....Dec. 3

Let the preachers-in-charge see to it that full reports from Boards of Trustees are ready.

H. WALTER FEATHERSTUN, P. E.
Port Gibson, Miss.

Strained Eyes
Quickly recover their strength if treated with Leonardi's Golden Eye Lotion. Bloodshot, Inflammation and soreness are relieved without pain in one day. Cools, heals and strengthens. Insist on having "Leonardi's." It makes strong eyes.
Guaranteed or money refunded. Druggists sell it at 25 cts. or forwarded prepaid on receipt of price by S. B. Leonardi & Co., Tampa, Fla.

Marriages.

March 5, 1911, near Carthage, Miss., by Rev. C. C. Gibson, Mr. LOUIS B. BARNES and Miss LUDA WILLIANKS.

Aug. 3, 1911, at Hotel Arlington, Carthage, Miss., by Rev. C. C. Gibson, Mr. J. A. KEA and Miss MARY WILLIAMS.

Aug. 1, 1911, at the home of the bride's parents in Natchez, Miss., by Rev. W. W. Cammack, Mr. C. H. WHITEHEAD and Miss MYRA BREHM, both of Natchez.

5 Fine POST CARDS FREE
Send only 2c stamp and receive 5 colored Gold and Embossed Cards FREE, to introduce post card offer.
Capital Card Co., Dept. 146, Topeka Kan.

Our Copyrighted Book on GALL STONES, DYSPEPSIA AND ALL DISEASES OF THE LIVER, Stomach and Bowels FREE Address Gallstone Remedy Co. 225 Dearborn St., Chicago, Ill. Ask for Book No. 10.

ESTABLISHED 1858
CHURCH AND SCHOOL BELLS
Write for SPECIAL DONATION PLAN Cat. No. 67
THE C. S. BELL COMPANY, HILLSBORO, O.

EDUCATIONAL

JEFFERSON MILITARY ACADEMY,
Washington, Miss.
Prepares for Colleges, Universities, Scientific Schools and business. Located in the Hills, six miles east of Natchez, a place noted for its healthfulness, fine climate and historic surroundings. Away from the detractions and temptations of City life, but with all modern convenience. Fine spring water. Personal attention; one teacher for every twelve boys. Eighty (80) acre campus. Large gymnasium. Endorsed and recommended by the presidents of Colleges and Universities. 110th Session begins Sept.14, 1911. For full particulars apply to
MAJ. R. V. ANDERSON, Supt.

Millsaps College, Jackson, Miss.
Rev. David Carlisle Hull, M.S., President.
A high grade college, situated at the capital of the State. Location high, dry and healthful.
Entrance Requirements and Curriculum same as in other Leading Colleges and Universities North and South.
Separate Preparatory School under Private Dormitory Management.
The very finest Moral and Religious Influences. Extraordinary Advantages in LITERARY AND LAW DEPARTMENTS.
Courses Leading to A.B., B.S., A. M., M.S., and LL.B. Degrees.
TWENTIETH SESSION BEGINS SEPTEMBER 20th, 1911.
For catalog and other information address
E. Y. BURTON, Secretary, Jackson, Mississippi.

NEW ORLEANS COLLEGE OF PHARMACY.
A completely equipped college. A school of Pharmacy, conducted by Pharmacists. Complete course of lectures with laboratory instructions in Pharmacy, Chemistry, Botany, Physiology, Urinology, Materia Medica and Pharmacognosy. Increase in faculty with curriculum. Next session begins Sept. 25th. Fees, $75 per sesison. Write for catalogue.
PHILIP ASHER, Ph.G., M.D., Dean,
1600 St. Charles Ave., New Orleans, La.

Here it is (By Mahaffey) NEW LIGHT ON BAPTISM Facts found in the Original Authority under which John first baptized prove that Sprinkling was the Original Mode. No more doubt about it. 68 page book. 10c
THE BIBLE MODE CO., Box G, Clinton, S. C. Only 10c

HIBERNIA INSURANCE CO.,
Capital.....$200,000.00
Assets..... 479,366.90
No. 305 Camp Street., New Orleans, La.
LOSSES PROMPTLY PAID.

ROYALINE OIL
Strongest and Best
ANTISEPTIC
Stops Pain Heals Wounds
Use it for Hurts of all kinds, Cuts, Burns, Bruises, Sprains, Aches, Pains, Wounds, Swellings. For outside and inside use, Man or Beast. Pleasant, Clean, Safe.
There is nothing "just as good". Try it and you will use no other. It has stood the test for nearly twenty years.
10c, 25c, 50c, Druggists.
ROYALINE MED. CO., Ltd., New Orleans, Sole Propr.

L & N Louisville & Nashville R.R.
THE DIRECT LINE TO NORTH AND EAST
ELECTRIC LIGHTED STEEL SLEEPERS
DINING CARS, OBSERVATION CARS, CHAIR CARS
Phone M 4093. TICKET OFFICE 201 ST. CHARLES STREET.

ORDER NOW
The strongest, truest, and boldest utterances on social and moral problems go to make up
"A Man Wanted"
"A masterly discourse on the evils of the present day."—Rev. T. V. Peters, Slidell, La.
"I have read it with pleasure, and feel that it should do good."—Rev. Jno. F. Foster, De Ridder, La.
"No man can read this sermon without being aroused to earnest thought."—Rev. W. L. Doss, Rayne, La.
"Any pastor is fortunate to have this sermon preached or circulated among the men of his congregation."—Rev. T. J. O'Neil, Newton, Miss.
"I would be glad if every young man in the land could hear this address."—Bishop W. B. Murrah.
"A MAN WANTED is a strong sermon by Rev. W. G. Harbin. Price, 15c postpaid. C. O. Chalmers, publisher, 512 Camp St., New Orleans, La.

THE MODEL SUNDAY SCHOOL BUILDING.

To the Pastors and Superintendents of the North Mississippi Conference—

Dear Brethren: You have doubtless observed that our Church has settled upon a great annual rallying place for its various arms of service and that the Southern Assembly, Lake Junaluska, near Waynesville, N. C., a regularly incorporated company of prominent Methodist ministers and laymen, is now getting the beautifully located place in that "Land of the Sky" in readiness for the work.

This summer assembly will be to Southern Methodism what Ocean Grove and Chautauqua is to the Methodist Episcopal Church and what Winona Lake is to the Presbyterian Church, U. S. A.

Among the many kinds of work to be carried on each year will be a Model Sunday School with its sessions as object lessons to thousands of our Sunday school workers present, together with conferences, institutes and all kinds of meetings for helpful service.

In view of the splendid possibilities in this undertaking it is necessary to erect a model Sunday school building, and the Southern Assembly has already given ample ground for that purpose.

Our General Sunday School Board has accepted the ground proffered and passed a strong set of resolutions asking that every Sunday school in our Church give its next Rally Day offering to the erection of the said model building, and the Sunday School Board of each Annual Conference is earnestly asked to urge every preacher and superintendent in the Conference to heartily co-operate in order to raise an aggregate of not less than $30,000.

If all our Sunday schools will help to the extent of their ability there will be no difficulty in raising this amount and even more. Nothing will thrill the Church deeper than the monumental success of this undertaking as a magnificent demonstration of what a combined effort of the whole Church can do.

Therefore our Conference Sunday School Board, being in the utmost accord with this fine task, calls upon every pastor and superintendent to co-operate without fail. Rally Day Programs can be had free of charge from E. E. French, Superintendent of Supplies, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn., by all schools that will observe the day and take the offering.

The fund collected should be sent at once to Rev. E. B. Chappell, treasurer, 810 Broadway, Nashville, Tenn.

Invoking your very best assistance and thanking you in advance,

Yours sincerely,

R. P. NEBLETT,
For the Sunday School Board.

QUARTERLY CONFERENCES

LOUISIANA CONFERENCE.

Monroe Dist.—Fourth Round.

Bastrop, at De Siard	Sept.	24
Farmerville	Sept.	24
Tallulah	Oct.	1
Brooklyn, at Sardis	Oct.	7, 8
Girard	Oct.	8
Lake Providence	Oct.	15
Bonita, at Bartholomew	Oct.	21, 22
Floyd, at Pioneer	Oct.	28, 29
Waterproof	Oct.	30
Downsville, at Willhite	Nov.	4, 5
Oakridge	Oct.	11, 12
Collinston	Oct.	12, 13
Eros	Oct.	18, 19
Florence	Oct.	25, 26
Mangham	Oct.	26, 27
Monroe	Oct.	29
Winnsboro	Dec.	2, 3
Gilbert	Dec.	3

S. S. KEENER.

Shreveport Dist.—Fourth Round.

Hornbeck, at H. G	Sept.	16, 17
Many, at Many	Sept.	17, 18
Grand Cane, at G. C	Sept.	18, 25
Pleasant Hill, at P. H	Oct.	6, 8
Pelican, at Bethel	Oct.	9, 10
Lachute, at Lachute	Oct.	14, 15
Lake End	Oct.	15, 16
Zwolle, at Zwolle	Oct.	19, 20
Ida, at Belcher	Oct.	22, 23
Bon Ami, at B. A	Oct.	28, 29
De Ridder	Oct.	29, 30
Coushatta, at C	Nov.	3, 5
Campti, at Campti	Nov.	5, 6
Greenwood, at G	Nov.	11, 12
Bossier City	p. m.	Nov. 12
Logansport, at Longstreet	Nov.	13
Leesville	Nov.	18, 19
South Mansfield	p. m.	Nov. 19
Mansfield	Nov.	22
Grand Cane Mission, at Ebenezer	Nov.	23, 24
Grand Cane,	p.m.	Nov. 24
Vivian, at V	a.m.	Nov. 26
Oil City	p.m.	Nov. 26
Mooringsport, at M		Nov. 27
Queensboro		Nov. 28
Noel Memorial		Nov. 29
Texas Ave		Nov. 30
First Ch., Shreveport		Dec. 1, 3

I hope all the pastors will have their Conference Collections in hand by the time of the fourth quarterly conference, so we can give that occasion to the clearing up of other finances.

Let the brethren study the Discipline to see what questions have to be answered at this conference, especially Question 34.

H. R. SINGLETON, P. E.

NORTH MISS. CONFERENCE.

Durant Dist.—Fourth Round.

Pickens, at Pickens	Sept.	3
Chuler, at Pisgah	Sept.	16, 17
West, at Bowling Green	Sept.	23, 24
Sallis, at Bethel	Sept. 30	Oct. 1
McCool, at McCool	Oct.	1, 2
Kosciusko Ct., at Ethel	Oct.	7, 8
Kosciusko Station	Oct.	8, 9
Ebenezer, at Liberty Chp.	Oct.	14, 15
Sidon, at Cruger	Oct.	15, 16
Rural Hill, at Macedonia	Oct.	22, 23
High Point, at Center Ridge	Oct.	29, 30
Poplar Creek, at Wesley	Nov.	4, 5
Black Hawk, at Acona	Nov.	11, 12
Lexington	Nov.	12, 13

N. G. AUGUSTUS, P. E.

Sardis Dist.—Fourth Round.

Sardis	Sept.	16, 17
Hernando, at Horn Lake	Sept.	23, 24
Senatobia	Oct.	7, 8
Como	Oct.	8, 9
Coldwater, at Love	Oct.	14, 15
Mt. Pleasant, at New Salem	Oct.	17
Olive Branch, at O. B	Oct.	18
Pleasant Hill, at P. H	Oct.	19
Cockrum, at Green Leaf	Oct.	20
Tyro, at Free Spgs	Oct.	21, 22
Byhalia, at Byhalia	Oct.	26
Wall Hill, at Marvin	Oct.	28, 29
Crenshaw	Nov.	4, 5
Lake Cormorant, at Lake Cormorant	Nov.	11, 12
Eureka, at Mt. Olivet	Nov.	15
Oakland, at Enid	Nov.	17
Courtland, at Courtland	Nov.	18, 19
Batesville	Nov.	19, 20
Arkabutla, at Brooks Chp.	Nov.	23
Long Town, at Davis Chp.	Nov.	25, 26

We call the licensing committee to meet at Sardis the fourth day of October. W. M. YOUNG, P. E.

Corinth Dist.—Fourth Round.

Booneville Station, at B.	Sept.	17, 18
Iuka Ct., at Spring Hill	Sept.	23
Iuka Station, at Iuka	Sept.	24, 25
Corinth Ct., at Box Chp.	Sept.	30
Corinth, First Ch'	a.m.	Oct. 1
Corinth, South Side, at South Side	p.m	Oct. 1
New Albany Ct., at Erin		Oct. 7
New Albany Sta., at N. A.		Oct. 8, 9
East Booneville, Circuit, at Nebo		Oct. 14, 15
Booneville Ct., at Blackland		Oct. 17
Mooreville Ct., at Andrews Chapel		Oct. 21
Mantachie Circuit, at Mantanchie		Oct. 22, 23
Jonesboro Ct., at Mount P.		Oct. 27
Dumas Ct., at Dumas		Oct. 28, 29
Ripley and B. M. Circuit, at Ripley		Oct. 29, 30
Kossuth Circuit, at Pleasant Hill		Nov. 4
Dry Run Mission, at Paul's Chapel		Nov. 5
Rienzi Ct., at Rienzi		Nov. 8
Guntown and B Ct., at G.		Nov. 9
Sherman Ct., at Liberty		Nov. 10
Myrtle Ct., at Hickory Flat		Nov. 11
Ripley Mission, at Rainey Chapel		Nov. 12
Belmont Ct., at Belmont		Nov. 18
Tishomingo Ct., at Tishomingo		Nov. 19
Baldwyn Ct., at Wheeler		Nov. 23
Hatchie Mission, at El Bethel		Nov. 25, 26

The pastors will be expected to see that trustees make their reports, to have a complete list of the names of all trustees in answer to Question 31, and to have a list of names to be nominated in answer to Questions 25, 26, 27, 28, and to keep within the law as to number.

BEN P. JACO, P. E.

Aberdeen Dist.—Fourth Round.

Chapel	Sept.	16, 17
Smithville	Sept.	23, 24
Amory and Nettleton	Sept.	24, 25
Palestine	Sept.	28, 30
Pontotoc	Oct.	1, 2
Beuna Vista, at Ebenezer	Oct.	7, 8
Prairie, at Prairie	Oct.	8, 9
Verona, at Verona	Oct.	14, 15
Shannon, at S	Oct.	15, 16
Houlka, at Concord	Oct.	21, 22
Houston	Oct.	22, 23
Pittsboro, at Pine R	Oct.	28, 29
V. and C. City, at C. City	Oct.	29, 30
Derma, at Rhodes Chp	Nov.	4, 5
Wren, at Tranquil	Nov.	8
Aberdeen	Nov.	8
Greenwood Springs	Nov.	11, 12
Okolona Circuit	Nov.	12, 13
Tremont, at Asbury	Nov.	18, 19
Fulton, at Vanburen	Nov.	19, 20

JAMES H. FELTS, P. E.

Columbus Dist.—Fourth Round.

Shuqualak	Sept.	10, 11
West Point	Sept.	17, 18
Brooksville	Sept.	23, 24
Macon	Sept.	24, 25
Mathiston	Sept. 30,	Oct. 1
Crawford	Oct.	7, 8
Columbus, First Ch	Oct.	15, 17
Columbus, Second Ch	Oct.	15, 18
Mashulaville	Oct.	21, 22
Cochrane	Oct.	28, 29
Cedar Bluff	Nov.	4, 5
Columbus Circuit	Nov.	8
Sturgis	Nov.	11, 12
Starkville Circuit	Nov.	18, 19
Mayhew	Nov.	25, 26

Will the pastors please be ready to answer question 31 and see that the trustees are ready to answer in full question 32? J. E. THOMAS, P. E.

Greenville Dist.—Fourth Round.

Rosedale	Sept.	3, 4
Greenville	Sept.	10, 11
Lyon	Sept.	17, 18
Coahoma	Sept.	24, 25
Gunnison	Sept.	30
Evansville	Oct.	1, 2
Arcola	Oct.	7, 8
Leland	Oct.	8, 9
Murphy	Oct.	15, 16
New Salem	Oct.	21, 22
Boyle	Oct.	22, 23
Jonestown	Oct.	29, 30
Cleveland	Nov.	4, 5
Merigold	Nov.	5, 6
Shelby	Nov.	7
Clarksdale	Nov.	12, 13
Friars Point	Nov.	14
Benoit	Nov.	19, 20

W. W. WOOLLARD, P.E.

Oxford Dist.—Fourth Round.

Red Banks, at Wesley	Sept.	16, 17
Taylor, at Andrews	Sept.	23, 24
Paris, at Pleasant R	Sept.	30
Water Valley, First Ch	Oct.	1, 2
Water Valley, Main St	Oct.	1, 3
Pine Valley, at Banner	Oct.	7, 8
Coffeeville, at Goshen	Oct.	10
Potts Camp, at Palestine	Oct.	12
Randolph, at Washington	Oct.	14, 15
Tocapola, at Tocapola	Oct.	16
Lafayette	Oct.	17
Holly Springs ct., at Harris Chapel	Oct.	27
Abbeville, at Mt. Zion	Oct.	28, 29
Oxford	Oct.	29, 30
Duck Hill, at Duck Hill	Nov.	3
Charleston, at ———	Nov.	5, 6
Grenada Ct., at Spg Hill	Nov.	11
Grenada	Nov.	12, 13
Ashland, at ———	Nov.	16
Waterford, at Pine Mt	Nov.	18, 19
Holly Springs	Nov.	19, 20

J. E. CUNNINGHAM, P. E.

Winona Dist.—Fourth Round.

Winona Station	Sept.	17
Carrollton, at Colla	Sept.	23, 24
Greenwood	Oct.	1
Itta Bena	7:30 p.m.	Oct. 1
Belzoni, at Belzoni	Oct.	7, 8
Ruleville, at Sandy Bayou	Oct.	14
Webb, at Sumner	Oct.	15, 16
Schlater, at Schlater	Oct.	21, 22
Minter City	Oct.	29
N. Carrolton, at Enon	Fri. Nov	3
Eupora, at Maben	Nov.	4, 5
Tutwiler, at Mattson	Nov.	10
Moorhead, at Doddsville	Nov.	11, 12
Inverness, at Inverness	Nov.	12, 13
Bellefontaine, at Long Branch	Wed	Nov. 15
Slate Springs, at Spring Hill	Thurs	Nov. 16
Winona Ct., at Bethlehem	Nov.	18, 19
Kilmichael, at Kilmichael	Nov.	19, 20
Mars Hill at M. H. Tues.	Nov.	21
Lambert, at Glendora	Nov.	25, 26
Indianola, at Indianola	Nov.	26, 27

Special attention is called to questions 31 and 32. Let us carry up to the approaching Annual Conference the best report the Winona District ever made. E. S. LEWIS, P. E.

AL-E-THE-IA.

"One of the most terrific arraignments of the whisky traffic we have ever seen is contained in the little book under the title which heads this article, which is from the strong pen of Mrs. Martha Carolyne Keller Miller, and is published by the New Orleans Christian Advocate. The scene is laid in the extreme South and the story from preface to finish moves with a momentum and moral force which is wonderful."

The above lines are copied from an editorial in the St. Louis Christian Advocate. The book can be had from the N. O. Christian Advocate, or from Mrs. C. C. Miller, of Hammond, La. Price, 25 cts., postpaid.

SITUATION WANTED.

A young woman, experienced in book-binding, desires a position in city or country town. Can furnish references. Address Miss A. B., care New Orleans Christian Advocate.

Unsolicited Praise

is the most convincing. Read the following from a far-off Texas reader of

Modes of the Heavenly Life.

"I have read and thoroughly enjoyed MODES OF THE HEAVENLY LIFE. A long and tedious railway journey was made pleasant because I had this book with me. I have re-read it since that time, and have gained new inspiration from it. The chapter on the Spirit of Prayer I found especially helpful. It is such a readable, understandable, Spirit-filled book."—Reader in Carthage, Texas.

A TOUCHING TESTIMONIAL is this from St. Alham, West Virginia: "I have read and re-read the book, and then I sent it to my cousin who is an invalid. He had his back broken in a coal mine and has not left his room for ten years. He was delighted."

MODES OF THE HEAVENLY LIFE, by Walter G. Harbin. Cloth and gold, 50c., postpaid. Order from C. O. Chalmers, publisher, 512 Camp St., N. O., La.

NEW ORLEANS
CHRISTIAN ADVOCATE

VOL. 58—No. 38. "Prove All Things; Hold Fast That Which is Good." WHOLE No. 2901.

ROBERT A. MEEK, Editor. NEW ORLEANS, THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 21, 1911 CHAS. O. CHALMERS, Publisher.

Editorial

THE RESULT IN MAINE.

After numerous claims and counter-claims, it is now announced (September 19), that the anti-prohibitionists have carried the election in Maine by a majority of twenty. These figures are declared to be official and dependable. This does not mean, however, that saloons will at once be licensed in the commonwealth. As we understand it, the vote was to determine whether the constitutional provision outlawing the sale of intoxicants should be allowed to stand, or the question opened for readjustment. The Legislature must yet take action, and another election may be held before the matter is settled.

It is stated that the whole liquor strength of the United States was directed against prohibition in the contest which took place on the 11th inst. This is doubtless true, but we confess to a distinct disappointment as to the outcome. That a State where the law has forbidden the sale of intoxicants for so many years and where the good effects of such a policy ought to be generally recognized, should fail to give a substantial majority in favor of prohibition is, we think, a serious blow to the cause. As we see it, there are two things which tend to produce a reaction against state-wide prohibition: One is, that, having triumphed, the temperance forces cease to agitate the question and educate the people on the subject. In consequence, a generation soon arises who know little of the evils of the legalized whisky traffic.

The other trouble is that the law is not enforced. Perhaps it is at first, but it soon ceases to be. The forces of civic righteousness grow weary in the struggle, worn out by the sheer persistency of the forces of evil. A few days since, we were in a leading Mississippi county, where a couple of years ago a blind tiger was not allowed to exist, and a prominent citizen told us that they now abound on every side. This lack of enforcement of the law is one of the great weaknesses of prohibition. Whether with any show of justice or not, it is charged up against the cause, and many begin to say if intoxicants must be sold anyhow, the State and municipality might as well license the traffic and derive some revenue from it. Of course, such reasoning is wholly unsound, but it undoubtedly influences a large number of people.

That the failure to execute the law had much to do with the result in Maine, we do not at all question. A writer in the September number of Hampton's Magazine stated that there were 2,000 drinking places in the State and that for some years from 500 to 1,400 federal licenses have been issued annually to its citizens. We believe heartily in the cause of prohibition and in its ultimate triumph; but it must be enforced if its beneficent results are to be seen and appreciated. Nowhere has real prohibition been tried and found wanting. It is where it exists only in name and an illicit rum traffic is carried on that it disgusts the public and breaks down. The problem which those who would promote this greatest of modern reforms most need to solve is that of adequately enforcing the law. When this is done effectively, it is our conviction that nothing can turn the tide of battle against us.

NEW ORLEANS AS A MISSION FIELD.

The Southern Methodist Church has no greater mission field in its entire home-land territory than New Orleans and South Louisiana. The population of the Crescent City is now well past the 350,000 mark, and is perhaps more cosmopolitan than that of any other municipality in the South. It is in touch with all the leading ports of the world, and with the opening of the Panama Canal is destined to become the gateway to all Central and South America. That Southern Methodism should be strongly entrenched and aggressive in this great center of commerce and travel, is a matter of the utmost importance. We, therefore, are gratified to know that the attention of the General Board of Missions is still turning in this direction, and that a Commission has been appointed to visit this city on October 24, with a view to inspecting conditions and seeing what can be done to facilitate the work.

At present we have in New Orleans ten churches and the mission at St. Mark's Hall. Most of these require assistance either from the Conference or General Board of Missions to keep in operation. But they are plucky, and, all things considered, they have made a remarkable record. In the face of conditions the most adverse—conditions such as those living in a different atmosphere can little understand—they have more than held their own and made perceptible progress. A more stalwart Methodism than that which exists in New Orleans and Louisiana can nowhere be found. It has given to the Church many of its ablest and most useful men, and is to-day doing more with the resources at its command than any other band of workers within the range of our observation.

But though our people in this territory may be counted upon to do their full share, the task of establishing Methodism in this great mart of commerce and of evangelizing the populous French parishes contiguous to it, is one which should enlist the energies of the whole Church. The undertaking is too great for a single Annual Conference. The other denominations are re-enforcing the efforts of their local membership in this field, and the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, should do likewise. Not to do so will be to lose a great opportunity and forfeit the place of leadership won by the splendid service of McTyeire, Keener, Parker, and their worthy associates and successors.

AN OCTOBER OPPORTUNITY.

By Dr. Charles D. Bulla, in The Adult Student.

A great change has taken place in Sunday school methods, and church architecture should be so modified as to meet the requirements of present-day work. Whether the edifice be a combination church and Sunday school room or a separate building for the Sunday school, it should be properly arranged and equipped for the work of a modern school. A building dedicated to God should be adapted to the purpose for which erected. Due attention should be given to outward forms. Heating, ventilating and lighting are matters of primary importance. Provision should be made for the several departments of a graded school; rooms large enough for adult Bible classes of fifty, one hundred, and two hundred members will be needed in many places.

In 1904 a Sunday school house was built on a lot adjoining the church in Winchester, Va. Instead of holding the Sunday school in the auditorium and dark basement of the church, the sessions are now held in a building adapted to down-to-date methods. That school is a new creation; it is carefully graded; the men's Bible class has increased in membership from about twenty to over two hundred; a young women's Bible class of seventy members has been formed; and the building meets the needs of the Church for social purposes. The Baltimore Southern Methodist, issue of July 27, 1911, has this to say editorially concerning the Sunday School House: "The people of Braddock Street Church builded better than they knew when they erected the Sunday School House with its superb equipment. It is a potent factor in the large and successful Sunday school, which is the pride of the Church."

The General Sunday School Board has undertaken to erect a Model Sunday School Building at the Southern Assembly, Lake Junaluska, Waynesville, N. C., where in years to come Sunday school workers in great numbers will meet. The best design that can be furnished by architect specialists will be secured, and pastors, superintendents and building committees will be provided with a modern plan that may be adapted to the needs of the churches throughout the connection.

The Board has issued a call for a building fund of not less than $30,000. A prompt and cheerful response is expected. Every school in Southern Methodism should have a part in this commendable work. Do not allow this October opportunity to pass without making an offering. The Model Building is an assured fact, but the work may be retarded by indifference on the part of pastors and superintendents. Give the movement a helping hand, and do it in October.

TWO CLASSES.

In the divine kingdom, as well as in the visible Church, there are persons who are effective and non-effective in service. Note the words of St. Paul: "Brethren, if a man be overtaken in a fault, ye which are spiritual restore such an one." Only the man who is "spiritual" is in a position to help the weak and erring. The blind cannot lead the blind; nor can he whose own footing is not firm do much toward lifting up the fallen. Those who would be used by the Master must keep themselves clean and pure and wholly in his hands.

Christian Advocate.

Published for the Louisiana, Mississippi and North Mississippi Conferences, Methodist Episcopal Church, South.

DIRECTIONS.

Correspondents will please direct all communications intended for the Editor to 711 Camp St., New Orleans, La. Communications intended for the Business Department should be addressed to the Manager of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Write with ink, and only on one side of the paper. No attention will be paid to rolled manuscripts.

The Printed Label on a paper shows the date to which a subscription is paid. It is as good as a written receipt. When renewal is made, if this date is not moved forward after three weeks, notify us, and we will make it right. Papers will be continued unless subscribers order otherwise.

DON'T BELIEVE IN A DEVIL?

By Alfred J. Waugh.

Men don't believe in a devil as their fathers used to do.
They've turned the door of the broadest creed to let his majesty through.
There isn't a print of his cloven foot, or a fiery dart from his bow,
To be found in earth or air to-day, for the world has moved it so.

But who is using the fatal draught that poisons heart and brain,
And leads the host of each passing year with ten hundred thousand slain?
Who lights the hearts of the land to-day with the fiery breath of hell?
If the devil isn't and never was, won't somebody rise and tell?

Who digs the steps of the reeling soul, and digs the pits for its feet?
Who sows the tares on the fields of time wherever God sows its wheat?
The devil is dead and so he is, and of course the thing is true;
But who is doing the kind of work the devil alone should do?

We are told that he goes not as a roaring lion now,
But whom shall we hold responsible for the ever-raising vow?
To be heard in home, in Church and State as the earth's remorse bound,
If the devil, by a unanimous vote, is nowhere to be found?

Won't somebody step to the front forthwith, and make his bow and show
How the deeds and crimes of a single day spring up? We want to know.
The devil was fairly voted out, and of course the devil's gone;
But simple people would like to know who carries his business on?

IS YOUR CHURCH MISSIONARY?

It is a better than many—indeed than almost any other church in our Methodist borders. A few earnest men and women and a few young people are genuinely concerned. But a few are actually opposed—yes, even in this year of grace, opposed to the very things that our Lord was most in favor of. Then, the large mass of men and women who make the majority of our people—well, they do not care very much, if at all. Unless your church is much better than the average Methodist church, I am afraid you could not say that it the real end for of its membership it is missionary.

How will you make it missionary?

In two ways. 1. Some people will have to be converted, and others greatly revived before they are much interested in missions. You will have to wake up and improve your church's spirit. But if there are many good people in the Church who do not believe in missions, or at least are indifferent because they do not know the facts of missions. These, hundreds, thousands of them, must be educated.

The most delightful and perhaps the best single missionary method.

Now there are many ways of giving people the facts and principles of missions, but none is proving quite so popular and thorough-going as mission study—the method of finding a group somewhere in the church, getting an earnest leader, not a teacher necessarily, and going through one of these fascinating and impressive missionary books. I know that anything that has the word study in it is a little formidable to most people, but really it is nothing like so difficult as it looks. Indeed, it is being done in hundreds of churches, thousands, all over this country, and is proving the most helpful and the most delightful means of missionary awakening.

Nobody will study with you!

It is a great mistake. There is perhaps not a church in our connection in which at least one group of people could not be brought together and organized into a Mission Study Circle. The plan is so simple that you need not call it "organize." Just get together by a simple little plan in use in all the churches, and meeting once a week for five, six or eight weeks, go through one of these great books.

Try it in One of the Following Groups.

1. The Woman's Missionary Society. Literally thousands of societies are doing it, and some are using the book in their regular meetings.

2. In the Epworth League. The Missionary Committee of the League is responsible for this group, and this year especially, when the League proposes to raise $50,000 for the evangelization of Cuba, it is eminently appropriate that some group in the League should take the book on Cuba, namely, "The Advance in the Antilles." The Epworth Era for October 1st will tell about it.

3. The Church Committee. If the Men's Committee would take Mott's book, "The Decisive Hour," and prayerfully study it for a few weeks there would be no trouble about the Every Member Canvass in the congregation.

4. A Circle in the Sunday School. If the teachers took one of these books in a circle of their own what a difference it would make in their missionary teaching! How admirably it would have fitted into our plan as we have studied Korea in the missionary lessons all this year for the members of the school to have organized a class and called "Korea in Transition" or even now it is not too late, since the study of Korea runs in our Sunday school literature to December. But any class in the Sunday school might, and especially any great, organized class. There is a special plan for these organized classes just now being prepared.

5. The Official Board. "Why not?" If the pastor should get his stewards to agree he could finish the routine work of the board meeting in half the time, and taking the other half for mission study would not only make up the official meeting and get its business done better, but might simply revolutionize the leadership of its church for missions in due course with them.

6. The Mid-Week Prayer Meeting. If a wide-awake pastor has the courage to try and would get ready for it he might redeem his prayer meeting and do a great thing for the missionary atmosphere of his church.

Then Are You Wise.

Or it may be the women. I am writing this hybrid for any earnest, loyal, believing Christian whose eyes may fall upon it, but especially for any pastor, superintendent, teacher, leader, president of the Women's Missionary Society or fourth vice-president of the League that might choose to read it. It is easy not to try; it is almost as easy to try. Not much difference now, but in the end it will make all the difference between a church not missionary and one that is missionary.

How To Go About It.

Write us and we will furnish you all the helps and suggestions necessary, and for all we are in personal correspondence to make your efforts a great success. At least write us.

Yours for a missionary church,

E. E. HAWKINS,

Secretary Educational Department of the Board of Missions, 161 Eighth Ave., Nashville, Tenn.

A CALIFORNIA CAMP MEETING.

By Revl I. D. Borders.

Few associations are dearer to my heart than those which cluster around some of the camp meetings which it has been my privilege to attend in the home country. Having just returned from one which met about a hundred miles down the valley from Stockton, I thought possibly there would be a few friends who would be interested in knowing that this institution is still maintained out here, and in reading of the points of resemblance and difference as seen in the light of those with which we are familiar.

About twenty miles from the railroad in Mariposa county there is a lovely vale, hemmed in on one side by enchanting foot hills and on the others by the mountains which guard the approach to the rugged Sierras. Half a hundred miles further on is the world famed Yosemite Valley, where are to be found towering peaks and sublime waterfalls which form a combination which is said to be unsurpassed elsewhere in the world. There grow another group of the big trees concerning which reference was made in a previous article, and some of the campers attending our meeting live hard by these forestal majesties.

It was not unpleasant to be met at the train by a new automobile, and to be whirled over a splendid, though constantly ascending roadway. It is a digression—we preachers must be allowed liberty to branch—but I will chronicle the license number of the machine, which was 54,140, the largest I have seen. This indicates that there are this number of licensed automobiles in the State, said to be second only to New York. The journey was delightful, none the less so because my host stopped as we passed his home and bade me help myself freely to the delicious figs and muscat grapes, whose prolific bounty embarrassed the trees and vines to the point of burdensomeness. If I should venture to tell how large the fig trees were, I should risk my reputation for veracity. I think the trunks must have been eight or ten inches in diameter, and their tops overhung the roof of the house.

When we had presently come to the valley above located I saw a large arbor or tabernacle not unlike those which most of my readers have seen, only smaller, and I should say somewhat rougher. Instead of the permanent cabin tents grouped around it I had expected to see, I saw numerous board arbors located irregularly under the kindly shade of the large oaks which dotted the meadow. These were without other roofs than the pine boughs afforded, and the walls were sheets or quilts hung so as to form curtains. There are two reasons why such houses as we usually have are both unnecessary and undesirable, to begin with. It never, never rains in August, nor for that matter in all the long summer except for an occasional sprinkle not worthy to be mentioned. Thus there is absolutely no reason why Jupiter Pluvius should be reckoned with, a course which would be very unwise indeed in a country where the most torrential rains sometimes come at this very season. Again, the air is most exhilarating and tonic, and when one sleeps out in the open with the stars peeping through the pine ceiling one awakens with an appetite which is positively formidable, and with nerves that have been soothed indescribably.

A feature which I had not often encountered before was the co-operative restaurant, which relieved the ladies of any culinary duties and enabled them to get the fullest rest and enjoyment out of the occasion. The cooking was all done by two Chinamen, who possessed involved, though euphonious names, but were called "John" and "Charlie" indiscriminately. I have never eaten more toothsome food. The meat, which was of the most excellent quality, was roasted in a manner which was novel to me, and there may be some canny cooks back home who will appreciate a lesson in simplified cookery. A pit was dug, not greatly different from a diminutive barbecue trench, and into its bottom were put a number of rocks, forming a bed upon which was built a hot fire. Presently the rocks became thoroughly heated, and the meat, enclosed in an iron receptacle which may have been the oven of an abandoned stove, was lowered onto the stones when it had become hot, earth was thrown over the surface and it was allowed to remain until dinner time. It was an improvised "fireless cooker," and well did it serve its purpose, for the meat was delicious. The cost of conducting the kitchen is divided out pro rata among the campers, each keeping account of the meals consumed.

The services were quite such as we used to have, except that I regarded the preaching as distinctly inferior to most that I have heard back home. I think this was principally due to the fact that by an unfortunate circumstance which kept away other ministers who had planned to come, the pulpit was occupied by the estrayed Mississippian not unknown to some charitable friends who read these lines. Other preachers came in as he was leaving (having been called home to attend a funeral of one of his members), but the campers were subjected to his rather strenuous ministrations for three days, including the first Sabbath. The worshipers were as earnest and reverent as any like body in the East, and one could very easily have imagined himself back home except for the utterly unfamiliar landscape.

Three unusual incidents must be briefly narrated, and I shall trespass on your patience no more. The first night I was waked up by the coyotes barking and yelping as they prowled about the hills. They are said rarely if ever to attack man, but their noise did not conduce to repose. Then Sunday afternoon a young man rode up near a crowd of young people sitting about on the camps, and was asked to allow another youth to mount behind him on the broncho. Permission was reluctantly given, and at once upon being doubly burdened the broncho began to buck, and such cavorting as then ensued I never saw before. Finally the young men were thrown to the ground, and the pony dashed away riderless, but meantime people had been scattered precipitately as the horse dashed about heedless of what or whom he encountered. To cap the climax, just as dusk was gathering Sunday evening, a large crowd of people being assembled on the edges of the arbor, some one cried out in alarm, and lo! a monster rattlesnake was wriggling through the crowd. He was quickly dispatched, and was found to be about four feet long and about as thick as my wrist at his largest. The rattlers here are pudgier and shorter than the denizens of the swamps, but equally venomous. Fortunately, however, they are said to be very cowardly and will rarely show fight when it is possible for them to make an escape. I do not know a more appropriate ending for a tale of paradise than to conclude with a snake story. And my prayer for you all is the unique phrase of my little boy, who used to pray, "God bless all bodies."

Stockton, California.

A SAN FRANCISCO LETTER.

By Rev. W. P. Andrews.

Our M. E. Church, South, headquarters were visited last week by Bishop Waterhouse and the Church Extension Secretary, Rev. Dr. W. F. McMurry, representing the committee of three, appointed by the Board of Missions to select a site for a new church in San Francisco. However, it became necessary for them to leave with this duty only half performed. A selection was made of a lot, or rather two were agreed upon, either of which it was believed would be almost, if not quite, an ideal location. They are in the very heart of the city, very near the proposed "civic center," and a creditable building upon either of them would be "like a city set on a hill"—it could not be hid.

The location of our present Centenary Church is the opposite of this—it is difficult to find. It is in the middle of the block, out of sight of a street car line, and with a steeple at the rear end. Then, it is not up-to-date. It is said to be of 16th century architecture, and one can easily believe it. Bishop Waterhouse characterizes it a sepulcher, and says the Church must have had a great deal of vitality to have any life at all after having been incarcerated in it so many years. Further, in keeping with the architecture of the building, it is now in the center of an Oriental quarter, our Japanese friends having taken possession of that part of the city.

So a new church is needed, and badly needed. Without one we must give up San Francisco, and the sooner the better, though to do so would be a great calamity. It would have a deleterious effect upon the Church throughout the State, and would detract from our influence in the Orient; yet the effect would not be quite so detrimental as to remain in our present dying, and almost buried, condition. The seriousness of the situation was recognized by the committee, yet they were compelled to leave without having secured a site, for the reason that no funds were available. We are hoping to be able to dispose of the property we now hold, or that the Boards will in some way come in possession of the needed cash before the desired lots are taken by others, or prices soar beyond our reach. Unfortunately, there is litttle demand for realty where our holdings are located; but we are firmly persuaded that a better day is dawning.

Recently a young man just from the East was asked to fill our Centenary pulpit on a certain Sunday. I told him what he might expect in the way of a congregation. It amused me to hear him tell how he could by advertising, etc., fill the house. I told him of a certain eminent D.D., one of the giraffes we read about, who, being transferred to take charge of this church, soon after his arrival wrote to the church papers telling of the failure of his predecessors, and how easily the empty pews could have been filled, and would be by him. He "got cold feet," concluded that the climate did not agree with him, and returned to the East at the expiration of six months. While not all have been of that class, our Church in this city has been served by good preachers and men of note, among them O. P. Fitzgerald, W. M. Prottsman, T. H. B. Anderson, E. E. Hoss, Howard Henderson, C. B. Riddick, et al. We have ever been handicapped by an out-of-the-way location, and an unsatisfactory building. If there ever was a city on this continent that above others should have houses of worship conveniently located and attractively built, that city is San Francisco. When conditions are most favorable it is hard enough to induce people to attend church. We ought to do our part toward evangelizing this city—aye, we must do it. We should build an attractive house on one of the lots selected by the committee, give the pastor an adequate support, and when one is found to be a fit, keep him in charge indefinitely. This done, we can next afford to give our attention to establishing churches in different parts of the city.

Bishop Waterhouse and Dr. McMurry left this city last Thursday night for the seat of the Montana Conference, and were followed on Monday evening by the editor of the Pacific Methodist Advocate, Rev. W. E. Vaughan, who will attend the Columbia and East Columbia Conferences as well, before returning home. While in the city the Bishop did some preliminary work, anticipating the approach of the Pacific Conference by conferring with the presiding elders. He has purchased a home in Los Angeles.

Bishop Murrah spent almost a week in this city while en route to the Orient. He preached for Brother Batchelor at Centenary, where it was my pleasure to hear him. The sermon was better than the congregation. All who met him and his cultured wife were much pleased with them. Both expressed themselves as captivated by California, though they really saw but little of it, and not the most attractive parts. They promised to come again, tarry longer, and see more.

It is needless to say that multitudes in the bounds of this Conference sincerely mourn the death of Bishop Fitzgerald. Unless we except J. C. Simmons, no preacher ever had a greater hold upon the affections of this people. No sweeter spirited men ever lived than these two California pioneers. They were among the first to greet me on my arrival in 1875. I shall ever cherish their memory, and hope ere long to be welcomed by them to the New Jerusalem Conference.

At last, the Fair site has been chosen, and seems to give general satisfaction. It is quite comprehensive, taking in the whole of one of the rival sites and parts of others, "and then some." It embraces the city's greatest attractions. Taken altogether, I dare say the world cannot beat it. Many permanent improvements are contemplated, which are expected to add to the city's attractiveness for all time, or as long as it is suffered to stand. Work, if present plans are carried out, will be begun October 15th, President Taft inaugurating it. A number of states and several nations have spoken for space, and it will undoubtedly surpass all the great expositions that have gone before it.

San Francisco is on the eve of a municipal election. While there have not been the evidences of corruption that were found during the Smitt administration, the present McCarthy administration is a disgrace to the city, and is not creditable to the Labor party. It is opposed by a clean non-partisan ticket, and the indications are that decency will triumph. If so, we anticipate a forward movement on every line, and it will doubtless contribute largely to the success of the great exposition.

We have suffered a great loss in the recent death at the home of his father in North Carolina of Rev. Grover C. Neill. He was a young man of great promise, who came to us a year ago last fall, and was appointed to the Gridley charge. Shortly after Conference last fall he had an attack of la grippe, which went into quick consumption. He was popular as preacher and pastor, one of the very kind of young men we need in this section.

After Conference last fall Norman Burley was transferred by Bishop Waterhouse from the Los Angeles Conference, and appointed to Oakland. He had been a Wesleyan Methodist and a missionary to Africa. While in Africa he was thrown from a horse and suffered severe injury of his spine. Physicians regarded it as miraculous that he survived, but survive he did, and in a measure recovered. But his trouble returned recently, and he has had to give up his charge, and has returned, or is about to return, to his friends in England. He is a good preacher, and a consecrated and spiritual man. Like Brother Neill, he has a wife and a small child. Rev. J. C. Williams, a young man just out of college, has been employed to fill the vacancy created by the removal of Brother Burley. He tarried to take unto himself a wife, and will preach his first sermon next Sunday.

948 Market St., San Francisco, August 24, 1911.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK AT MANSFIELD.

Dear Brother Meek: The Mansfield Female College has opened the 1911-12 term. The prospects are very bright. Our enrollment already is far ahead of last year, both in the boarding department and in the number of pupils from town. Every member of the faculty is on hand and at work. More scholarly and devoted Christian ladies cannot be found anywhere. They have the spirit of work and the student body is entering into the work with a zeal and enthusiasm which cannot be surpassed.

From present prospects we shall double last year's enrollment, but we have more room. We nrge upon the pastors to send us pupils and let us make Mansfield College the best girl's school anywhere. Our music class is large, but we want to make it larger. Do not hesitate to send here because of the quality of work or the doubtfulness of the college keeping open its doors. The quality of work is unexcelled and the permanency of the college is a settled fact. Give us your prayers and energies, and Mansfield College will grow and prosper as never before.

Very sincerely yours,

A. B. PETERS, President.

Mansfield, La., Sept. 15, 1911.

THE
Grant Furniture Co.
CORDIALLY INVITES YOU TO VISIT
THEIR NEW STORE
527-29-31 BARONNE STREET
(SHUBERT ARCADE)
—WHERE THEY ARE SHOWING A—
Handsome New Line of Fall Goods.

Church News

Among the lay delegates from the Methodist Episcopal Church to the Ecumenical Conference we note the names of Ex-Vice President C. W. Fairbanks, Ex-Governor J. F. Hanly, of Indiana, and Dr. John R. Mott.

* * *

The religious population of the world is estimated as follows: Christianity, 477,000,000; Confucianism, 256,000,000; Hinduism, 207,000,000; Islamism, 177,000,000; Buddhism, 148,000,000; Polytheism, 118,000,000; Taoism, 43,000,000; Shintoism, 14,000,000; Indaism, 7,000,000.

* * *

Of the 90,000 white population of Atlanta, Ga., 20,000 are said to belong to the M. E. Church, South. We have thirty churches in the city, one of which, Wesley Memorial, is valued at $300,000. The pastor of this church is Dr. Frank Siler, who has added 300 to the membership within the past three years.

* * *

The Northern Baptists have organized a Ministers' Benefit Fund Society, the object of which is to raise money to provide for the aged ministers of that Church. They will seek for this purpose $1,000,000, $250,000 of which they hope to secure by Christmas. The sum of $50,000 has already been pledged.

* * *

The American Bible Society Agency in Korea is now an independent one, and its first year's report shows the sale of 116,492 copies (in whole or in part) of the Scriptures, an increase of 66 per cent over the previous year. The Koreans now have the whole of the Divine Revelation in their own tongue, and its circulation is effecting marvelous changes in the Hermit kingdom.

* * *

The Southern Presbyterian Church has sent out 130 new missionaries within the past five years, and their total contribution to foreign missions has increased from $276,000 in 1907 to $452,000 in 1911. Notwithstanding this growth in the amount given for the spread of the gospel, the indebtedness of their foreign mission committee has advanced during these years from $27,618 to $121,871.

* * *

Dr. George A. Simons, superintendent of the Russian Mission of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in a letter to the Western Christian Advocate, states that of the 162,000,000 people of the Russian Empire, less than 10,000,000 have ever heard a gospel sermon. Our sister Church has in St. Petersburg a Book Concern, a thriving deaconess work, and a church with a constituency of 500 and a Sunday school of 300.

* * *

Bishop McCoy has recently been visiting some of the charges of the Lousville Conference. On Friday, Sept. 1, he preached at Corydon; the next day he occupied the pulpit at 11 a. m. at Antioch, on the Morganfield Circuit, and proceeded in the afternoon to Smith Mills, where he spent the Sabbath and dedicated a church. Bishop McCoy believes in going among the people, and that such work by a chief pastor does great good, there is not the slightest doubt.

* * *

There are six Southern Methodist Churches in Waco, Texas, two of which were organized this year. One of the new houses of worship, Herring Avenue, was constrncted in a single day last January. The Northern Methodists formerly had a building in this city, but disposed of it to our people a few months ago and retired from the field. This fraternal act is to be commended. Harmful competition between Methodist bodies should as far as possible be done away with everywhere.

* * *

From the Central Christian Advocate of Sept 13 (Kansas City), we clip the following: "Hon William Jennings Bryan, in an address Sunday evening, September 3, in Grace Methodist Church, New York City, on 'The Old Religion,' strongly denounced all games of chance. His face lighted up with a broad smile as he continued: 'During the three campaigns when I ran for the presidency I always advised my friends not to bet.' And, he added, amid a shout of laughter from the congregation, 'they always appreciated the advice after the election.'"

* * *

Officers of benevolent organizations report this year to be the hardest for the securing of money gifts, small and large, that they have ever known. Some say it surpasses any of the panic years of recent times. The income of many benevolences is far behind. Development is not thought of, and nine in ten institutions are bending their entire efforts to get funds for absolute necessities. The condition came in early last winter, reached bottom at the beginning of summer, and is expected to continue at least until the end of the current year. Most officers of benevolent boards admit that they see no improvement likely for some time to come.

* * *

Rev. W. B. Corder writes as follows in the Central Methodist Advocate concerning the late session of the Western Virginia Conference: "Matters of routine were dispatched with speed, yet with proper deliberation, by Bishop Morrison, and not a jar was heard throughout the entire session. All spoke in the highest terms of the great regard in which the Bishop is held in this Conference. It was a pleasure to note the reports of the presiding elders as they showed unusual achievements in every district, the number of converts reaching 4,000, and the accessions to the Church 3,000. Their reports with reference to the finances showed a decrease in the indebtedness on churches and a large increase in the value of church property."

* * *

Nine men representing the Northern Baptist Convention and nine representing the Southern Baptist Convention will meet on September 27 at Old Point Comfort to discuss questions of comity and co-operation between Baptists, North and South. Difficulties growing out of recent New Mexico organizations are the acute reason for the conference, but there are other difficulties to be adjusted. Some New Mexico congregations withdrew from the Northern Baptist Convention, and joined the Southern, with, it is claimed, the co-operation of some Southern ers. Not a little friction has resulted, which it is admitted may disturb the pending negotiations. Among the Southern men to confer will be Dr. J. B. Gambrell, of Texas; the Rev. Dr. Lansing Burrows, of Georgia, and the Rev. Drs. E. Y. Mullins and J. M. Prestridge, of Kentucky. Northern representatives include the Rev. Dr. W. C. Bitting, St. Louis; the Rev. Dr. J. W. Conley, of California; Mr. J. S. Dickerson, of Chicago, and the Rev. Drs. Henry L. Morehouse and Frank M. Goodchild, of New York.—Church News Association.

AN APPEAL TO OUR PRESIDING ELDERS.

Dear Brethren; I am sure you realize quite as fully as I do the importance of our Sunday school work and that it is your purpose to do everything you can to aid in extending and upbuilding it. It may be possible, however, that you do not altogether realize how necessary it is that both the Conference Sunday school boards and the General Board be furnished with the names and addresses of all our superintendents. If our own literature is to be put into our schools, if they are to be furnished with leaflets suggesting improvements in organization and methods, and if they are to be brought into co-operation in carrying out such plans for development and extension as may from time to time be set on foot, then we must be able to reach them through their superintendents, and the only way to secure lists of our superintendents is through the presiding elders.

Because I know something about the heavy burdens our presiding elders are compelled to carry, I regret the necessity for calling upon them for this extra service. But because in this instance I am absolutely dependent upon you and because the matter is of such great importance to our Church, I am sure you will agree that my insistence is justified. Will you please, therefore, try to find time to fill out and return at once to the chairman of your Conference Sunday school board the blank directory that has been or will be furnished you.

Many of our presiding elders who have been rendering this service promptly and faithfully may wonder why this appeal is necessary. The explanation is simple. Out of our forty home Conferences there are fourteen from which we have received no report at all this year. Some of these have sent in no reports for several years. Then there is one Conference with six districts which has sent in a report from one out of the six, and still another which has failed to report for three districts out of nine. In quite a number of cases reports have come in so late as to be practically useless. It is easy to see that so long as this state of things is allowed to continue, we shall find it exceedingly difficult to carry out successfully any large plans for the development of our Sunday school work. Fraternally,

E. B. CHAPPELL.

REV. D. L. MITCHELL.

(Memoir adopted by the quarterly conference of the Main Street Church, of Biloxi, Miss., Sept. 4, 1911.)

Rev. David L. Mitchel, the son of F. F. and Mrs. Adeline Mitchel, was born in Ashford, Conn., March 6, 1833. When about ten years of age he came South, where he made his home and spent his long and useful life.

When very young, he gave his heart to the Savior and faithfully served him for more than sixty years. Just when he was licensed to preach we do not know, but he was elected to deacon's orders in December, 1877, while a member of Felicity Street Church, New Orleans, and on Dec. 7, 1890, in Monroe, La., he was ordained elder by Bishop A. G. Haygood. For a number of years Brother Mitchel was the publisher of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. While occupying this position he became widely and favorably known throughout the patronizing territory.

He was a man of culture and refinement and deeply pious. He was a good preacher, and had he entered the itinerant ranks, no doubt he would have stood among the very best.

His influence among the people of Biloxi, where he spent the last eighteen years of his life, was great. The community misses him as does the church. He was deeply interested in the church—often talking to his pastor concerning the welfare of our Zion. His class in Sunday school he met regularly except when too weak to attend. He missed the two Sundays immediately preceding his departure for heaven, on May 30, 1911. His family and friends, while sorrowing over his going, rejoice that he had a peaceful hour in which to die and a triumphant entrance into the upper and better kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Signed: O. G. Swetman, H. B. Rush, J. L. Jordan, W. L. Linfield, committee.

CENTENARY STARTS WELL.

Dear Dr. Meek: Centenary College has opened finely. Already, the dormitories are nearly filled. We are much encouraged and are better equipped for first-class work than at any time since this institution was moved to Shreveport. Fraternally yours,

FELIX R. HILL.

The Centenary College of Louisiane
SHREVEPORT
Fall Term will open
Sept. 13, 1911.
For Catalogue or other information write to
FELIX R. HILL, President,
P. O. Box 455
SHREVEPORT, LA.

W. W. Carre Co. Ltd
Manufacturer Exporter of | Lumber
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

Secular News and Comment

President Taft set out from Boston on his 13-000-mile speaking tour through the West on September 15. He is expected to visit twenty-four States before his return.

* * *

The Hon. Champ Clark, speaker of the National House of Representatives, has been engaged to deliver an address at Meridian, Miss., on the occasion of the Mississippi-Alabama Fair, which will be held in that city the third week in October. Mr. Clark is booked to speak on October 20.

* * *

There seems to be no scarcity of oil in western Louisiana. New wells have been opened in Caddo Parish which have a remarkable flow, and which are yielding a product of most superior quality. One near Vivian was brought into use on September 10, which is estimated to have a daily capacity of 25,000 barrels.

* * *

Prof. H. Garmon, Federal entomologist and bacteriologist at the Kentucky Experiment Station at Lexington, after a tour of inspection through the counties of that State in which pellagra has been prevailing to such an alarming extent, has advanced the view that the disease is caused by the buffalo gnat. He also thinks that the malady is infectious.

* * *

Cholera is still prevailing to a distressing extent in Eastern Europe and Western Asia. At many points in Asia Minor it is reported that the population is dying by the thousands. In Constantinople there recently occured 850 deaths within two days. England is said to be quite apprehensive lest the disease should reach London and the British Isles.

* * *

At the meeting of the Board of Directors of the New Orleans Public Library last week, the reports showed that during the month of August 16,150 books were borrowed from the main library; 4,967 from the Royal Street branch; 3,118 from the Algiers branch, and 4,198 from the Napoleon Avenue branch. The additions to the library amounted to 1,217 volumes.

* * *

The press dispatches state that the United States government has purchased 35,000 acres of Georgia mountain land, rich in forests and minerals, which will be added to the Appalachian Forest Reserve, recently provided for by Congress. The tract is located in Fannin, Union and Lumpkin counties, and the price paid for it by the government is said to have been more than $200,000.

* * *

It has been announced at Washington that the Roosevelt expedition to Africa under the auspices of the Smithsonian Institute cost $80,000. Of this amount the Institute paid three-fifths and the Ex-President two-fifths. It is said, however, that the $57,000 furnished by the Institute was raised by private subscriptions (contributed by personal friends of Col. Roosevelt), and that not a dollar of the amount used came out of the public treasury.

* * *

The third annual Governors' Conference which met at Spring Lake, N. J., on September 12, adjourned on the 15th inst. The chief executives of 29 States were in attendance. Many subjects of importance were discussed, among them the question of a uniform divorce law for all the commonwealths of the Union. Perhaps the most interesting feature of the meeting was the clash between Governor O'Neal and Governor Woodrow Wilson over the "initiative and referendum," in which the Alabamian more than held his own.

* * *

For some days Mount Aetna, Sicily, has been in eruption, sending down the mountain slope a stream of lava 2,000 feet wide and four feet deep. Groves of trees have been uprooted and set on fire and many fields have been laid waste. There have also been earthquake shocks of great violence, and the terrorized peasants have fled from their homes, carrying with them such of their belongings as they were able to get together. Up to the 15th inst., the destruction of property was estimated at $20,000,000.

* * *

It is stated that for purely strategic reasons the famous naval station at Port Arthur in Manchuria will be abandoned by the Japanese. This station was built by the Russians at a cost of many millions of dollars when they were in control of the Liao Tung Peninsula, and Japan has since expended vast sums of money upon it; but now since the acquisition of Korea it is considered too far inland to be of any material assistance in the defense of the Mikado's new possessions; so a site for a new fort has been selected at Chin Hai Bay on the coast of Korea, a position that will command the entrance to the Yellow Sea and the Straits of Korea. Great docks will be constructed at this place, much of the material at Port Arthur will be transported to it, and it will be reserved exclusively for naval purposes.

* * *

The Russian Premier, P. A. Stolypin, while attending a theatrical performance at Kiev, was fired upon by an attorney named Dmitri Bogroff, and received two wounds—one in the right breast, and the other in the wrist of the right hand—from which he died Monday evening, Sept. 8. The assailant was apprehended and almost lynched before the police could rescue him. The cause of his attack is unknown. This is not the first attempt which has been made to take the life of Premier Stolypin; twice, before he became the head of the Russian Government, efforts were made to assasinate him, once by hurling at him a bomb which killed 32 persons. The Premier was born in 1863, and was graduated from the University of St. Petersburg in 1884. He had exercised a strong hand in suppressing all forms of lawlessness, and some think that this aroused the enmity which seemed to exist against him among the radicals. Emperor Nicholas and his daughters were at the theater in Kiev when Premier Stolypin was shot, and a number of his associates in the cabinet were seated in the same box with him.

* * *

For the past ten days dispatches have been reaching the United States concerning a rebellion in the Sze Chuen Province of China, which is said to be due to the Government's disposition to permit foreign participation in railway financing in that country. The information as to the situation is quite conflicting, and it is impossible to form any clear idea of the condition existing. The city of Cheng Tu, the capital of the province, is in a state of siege, and a number of British and American missionaries are reported to have taken refuge in it, probably entering the Canadian Methodist compound, which is so constructed as to afford strong resistance to an outside assailing force. The city is garrisoned by 1,800 Chinese troops, which have thus far repulsed the insurgents, but some doubt is entertained as to the continued loyalty of these soldiers. Though in no wise responsible for this outbreak, because of the hostility to foreigners which characterizes it, the missionaries are liable to become the victims of it, and an effort is being made to get them to places of safety where they can be adequately protected. No violence has been inflicted upon any of them at this writing. A dispatch to the Times-Democrat on the 16th inst. contains the following somewhat reassuring statement: "Many of the mission centers throughout the provinces report no disturbance, and a majority of the mission schools are continuing their sessions."

OPENING OF VANDERBILT UNIVERSITY.

It is announced that unusual preparations are being made at Vanderbilt University this year to take care of students, as the enrollment promises to be greater than ever before. Very large improvements have been made in the Medical and Dental Departments with the three hundred thousand dollars given for this purpose recently by the Vanderbilt family and the Rockefeller fund. Up to the present the advance enrollment in the Medical and Dental department has been about double that of previous years. The new departments are located on the former campus of Peabody College.

The Theological Department is having an unusual expansion. The attendance of seventy-nine last year has grown already to an advance enrollment of one hundred and forty, including about eight natives from foreign missions in Japan, Korea, China and Mexico. Many of these students are working their way through the University.

The course in the Law Department has been extended from two to three years, as the Vanderbilt Law School has been elected a member of the National Association of Law Schools.

New Academic professors at Vanderbilt are: Herbert Charles Sanborn, Philosophy, formerly professor in Washington College, Maryland: Frank Holt, Romance Languages, formerly professor in the University of Oklahoma; Fred R. Bryson, of Harvard University, will take charge of work in the Department of English; Dr. Henry Meier, German, formerly professor in the University of Oklahoma.

Chancellor J. H. Kirkland, who it was thought for some time would go to another university, has declined the call and will remain at Vanderbilt.

Judge J. M. Dickinson, former Secretary of War of the United States, is a new member of the Law Faculty, thus filling the loss sustained when Judge H. H. Lurton was appointed to the Supreme Court by President Taft.

Numerous new professors who were formerly connected with the Medical Department of the University of Tennessee, which has discontinued at Nashville, have been added to the Medical Faculty.

THE WORK AT BROOKHAVEN.

Dear Brother Meek: On Wednesday night, August 30th, I began a revival in our Church here, preaching at nights only until Monday, September 3d; then our faithful presiding elder, Rev. J. T. Leggett, reached us for the evening service. He preached with great power to a packed house, setting the standard of preaching for the revival on a high plane. On Monday afternoon, Brother C. N. Guice, of Summit, as per arrangement, came to our assistance and continued to give us the gospel both in sermon and song until Wednesday night, September 13th. In both he was highly effective, under God, in reaching the hearts and lives of our people. The congregations were good at all times, but at night they taxed the utmost seating capacity of our church building—in a few instances there was an overflow. It has never been my good fortune to have better help than this gifted young preacher in a meeting, nor more loyal support from a responsive church membership. The community was reached, touched and benefited; members of the various churches were edified and greatly blessed, while not a few rejoiced in God's love and saving grace. We had fifty or sixty conversions, about forty of whom have given their names for membership in our Church. The others will go to the Baptist and Presbyterian churches. We praise God for the rich success attending his gospel.

Whitworth College opened to-day with a gratifying number. Dr. Cooper expects the dormitories to be crowded to the limit of their capacity. There is an excellent educational atmosphere here, both in the college and in the town. I have never seen a finer class of girls, nor a body of teachers giving evidence of greater natural endowment and educational equipment for the great and responsible duties of training the young women entrusted to their care. The outlook for a successful session is very flattering. My wife and daughter entered Whitworth College together this morning—the one as teacher of History and Philosophy, the other as a pupil.

Your brother in Christ,

J. M. WYATT.

The AMERICAN PAINT WORKS
——Manufacturers of——
High Grade Mixed Paints; Perfecto White Lead; Nonpareil Carriage Paint; Varnish Stain; Colors in Oil; Wood Fillers; Chemically Pure Dry Colors, Etc.
428-434 JOSEPHINE STREET.....Phone 918
NEW ORLEANS, LA.

SUPPOSE YOU HAVE A FIRE TO-NIGHT?
GET SOLID PROTECTION AND INSURE WITH
LEON IRWIN & CO.
FIRE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE.
736 Union Street. Phone, Main 868.

A COLLEGE CONFEDERATE ROOM.

One of the most important duties the Southern people owe to themselves and to their posterity is to see that the truth is told concerning the great struggle for constitutional freedom and the rights of the States from 1861 to 1865. When the terrible war closed the South accepted the result in good faith and has been loyal to the new Union that was established by the sword. She proved this in the war with Spain when her sons leaped by a common patriotic impulse to follow the flag. But the South is loyal to the nation now because she was true to her convictions then. She was either right or wrong when she poured out her best blood like water to defend her soil from armed invasion. I am one who believes the South was right. Her defenders were neither "rebels" nor "traitors," but patriots of the highest type, and the story of her heroic conflict with over-whelming odds in defense of her freedom is the everlasting inspiration of freedom everywhere.

Having accepted the presidency of the college for women in Jackson, Tenn., one of the oldest institutions of its kind in the South, I desire to encourage the young women who are educated here to know the true history of the South. I have therefore set apart a large room in the college to be known as Confederate Room. In this room we intend to have a complete collection of Southern histories and literature about the war; portraits of Southern leaders and soldiers and especially of Southern women, who bore such a memorable and noble part in the struggle; souvenirs and mementoes of all kinds forming a cabinet of Confederate relics. I invite our friends everywhere, and especially the Sons of Confederate Veterans and the Daughters of the Confederacy, to help in this undertaking. I invite the Veterans to send us relics that will help to inspire the minds of our girls with admiration and love for their fathers, and for the land consecrated by their blood and made glorious by their valor, and, above all, that will help them to emulate the marvelous devotion of our Southern women to the cause of freedom, when, with bleeding but unwavering hearts, they laid their richest gifts on the altar of the land they loved. Many of these noble women were educated in this college, and we are proud of the superb spirit they displayed in the fiery trial through which they passed. There could be no holier work than perpetuating the memory of this patriotism, and we wish to make our Confederate Room a civic altar, from whose sacred fire every young woman who attends our school may kindle anew the flame of liberty.

In all this we design nothing inconsistent with the highest type of loyalty to the Union now, and to the flag which is the proud emblem of its glory. No sentiments will be encouraged in this school which would be disagreeable to the daughter of a Union soldier. The girl from Illinois and the girl from Mississippi may feel equally at home in the fraternal atmosphere of the college. But truth is our object and "whatever record leaps to light" the South need feel no fear. Her principles were sacred, her motives right, and the conduct of her sons and daughters was glorious to the end. I invoke your co-operation to make our Confederate Room a source of patriotic inspiration to the young womanhood of our country.

S. A. STEEL, President.

Jackson, Tenn.

GRENADA COLLEGE OPENS.

Dear Dr. Meek: The Methodists of the North Mississippi Conference will be pleased to learn that we have had the most gratifying opening in our history. We have more pupils than at any opening for some years, at least. They come from the most cultured homes and show their rearing in their looks and manners. I have never seen a more select body of girls. Best of all, the majority of them have finished their high school work and enter our college classes to be with us till their work is crowned by graduation. No former president has had such a body of material placed in his hands. I am happy with "my girls," and they are happy in Grenada College. No home sickness here.

The Y. W. C. A. is organized and at work. The students' prayer meeting, held daily, is largely attended. An athletic association includes practically the entire school. Teachers and students have expressed the most cordial appreciation of improvements made in buildings and grounds. The people of Grenada packed the house at our opening exercises, indicating their cordial interest in the college. Things never looked so bright for educational work for the girls of the North Mississippi Conference.

In his address at the opening, Brother Bingham, president of the Board of Trustees, struck the key note of a forward movement by his plea for an endowment. We must have it or forfeit our opportunity for the higher education of our young women. Of this matter, more later.

Several of the trustees were with us. Brother Jaco was here with ten fine girls from the Corinth District. Jaco is a sub-bishop who oversees every interest of the Church in his territory. He proves his faith by his works, placing his own daughter here under a three-year contract. She captured first honors in the high school which she attended and starts well here.

Of the faculty, I cannot speak too highly. Not a teacher is content to leave off work with the close of school hours, but in the halls, on the campus, everywhere, they are taking the most cordial interest in the general welfare of the students. Our ideals embrace scholarship, but scholarship plus cultured Christian character.

We have room for ten more girls.

Most cordially, J. R. COUNTISS, President.

A FINE OPENING.

Before the largest audience ever seen on a similar occasion, Grenada College had a larger opening day than last year. All were gratified with the tasteful and substantial improvements on the buildings and grounds. Everything is favorable for a great session. President Countiss made a practical speech on College Ideals, which met the approval of all. He is the ideal college president. Great things will be heard from Grenada College again this session.

J. R. BINGHAM.

IN MEMORY OF MRS. ANN LUCRETIA EDGAR.

To the Christian, death has few pangs. It is hard to leave the loved ones, the earthly happiness, but there is transcendent in every Christian's death a note of joy. For to die well, one must live well; to meet Christ face to face in the other land is to know him as an intimate friend during the brief years on earth.

Having lived an ideal life of Christian service; having given her all to others; having loved not only her own home folk, but the whole world, Mrs. Edgar could not but feel deeply the pain of the separation. Her's was a keen insight into the things of God, quickened by daily study of the Holy Book. She felt that since God lived—all's right with the world.

May 22, 1845, Ann Lucretia Godfrey was born. From the beginning she had the ideal environment of a parsonage home and the helpful companionship of a saintly father and mother. In her life, we can refer to no special service, no particular time, and say on this day she sought God. With her, to know Christ was to live, and from early childhood she was so imbued with the love of God that she gave no thought to any but godly ways.

What a blessed privilege was hers! No wonder that as she budded into womanhood, as she entered the bonds of matrimony, as she fulfilled the duties of wife and mother, she ever imparted to her friends a sunshiny acceptance of the sorrows and joys of life. "If to make one life the brighter, one load the lighter, is not to have lived in vain," how helpful was her life!

As the bride of Mr. Joseph E. Norwood, to whom she was wedded in the dark, troublous days of 1862, she was as brave as were all Southern women during the terrible times of war and bloodshed. In May, 1873, her beloved husband was taken away, and a few weeks later her only child was born, becoming ever her pleasure and comfort during his childhood days, and her rod and staff when he assumed the duties and responsibilities of manhood.

In 1882, she entered wider fields of usefulness as the wife of Rev. E. F. Edgar, a member of the Mississippi Annual Conference. She loved the work, and in return received the love of all who knew her. To-day, her work lives on in lives blessed by her willing service, for "The deeds we do, the words we say,

Into still air they seem to fleet, we count them ever past;
But they shall last.
In the dread judgment we and they shall meet."

Such a record as Mrs. Edgar leaves written upon the hearts of others brings the sweetest consolation to those who loved her so dearly. Intelligent, cultured, a true Christian, she had a wide circle of friends who, by daily walking with God, know that in the "sweet by and by" they shall again see and be with the loved one during all the years of eternity.

She left us on June 30, passing away in the Presbyterian Hospital in New Orleans. A host of sorrowing friends survive her, but after all,

"You shall shortly know that the lengthened breath
Is not the sweetest gift God sends his friends;
And that sometimes the sable pall of death
Conceals the fairest bloom his love can send."

"The world recedes; it disappears!
Heaven opens on my ears; my ears
With sounds seraphic ring;
Lend, lend your wings!
I mount! I fly!"

O Grave, where is thy sting?
O Death, where is thy victory?

I. W. COOPER.

A DISTRACTED PASTOR.

We are in receipt of a letter from one of our prominent and successful pastors, one paragraph of which we quote:

"By the way, I am in a great quandary. What shall I do? I want to be loyal to all of our interests. They have so multiplied, and so many urgent calls come to me that should I comply with all requests as I want to, I could do nothing else. We have too much machinery, and too many appeals. It wears out a pastor and tends to disgust or discourage the people."

The brother's dilemma is perfectly natural. If he is loyal to the Church, he will spend much of his public time in presenting causes and raising collections that should, we thoroughly believe, be otherwise employed. And we are becoming more and more involved as the years pass. New causes are being created faster than old appeals are dispensed with; the habit of establishing special Sundays has grown so extensively that the Sunday is fast becoming an exception when the preacher is left free to choose his theme.

We confess the Methodist machine is somewhat complicated—but then it is dealing with a complicated world, and we hardly see how we can dispense with any part of the mechanism. The Laymen's Missionary Movement has evolved a plan of finance popularly known now as the Duplex Envelope System, calling for weekly contributions to benevolences along with the regular contributions for pastoral support. The pastor can then speak upon the different causes of the Church with no embarrassment, selecting his own time for each cause. This is the only sensible solution of the benevolent collections, and we are glad to observe it is being introduced with success in many churches.—Western Christian Advocate.

Geo. W. Riehl. Aug. Rauxet, Jr.
RIEHL & RAUXET.
Successors to Lowengardt & Armstrong,
JEWELERS,
122 BARONNE STREET - - New Orleans, La
(Optical Department: M. F. Fitzgerald, Optician.)
Phone, Main 727.

The Home Circle

ALONE.

Alone! He trod the wine press all alone!
And we alone must tread our way.
Alone, unconscious, do we reach life's day;
Alone, at night we near the unknown land;
On some dear breast an aching head we lay,
Yet find that only God can understand!

—Mary Dodge.

A DROP OF INK.

"I don't see why you won't let me play with Robert Scott," pouted Walter Brown. "I know he does not always mind his mother, and smokes cigars, and sometimes swears. But I have been brought up better than that. He won't hurt me and I should think you would trust me. Perhaps I can do him good."

